Intervenor-defendants the Committee on Financial Services and Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence of the U.S. House of Representatives (collectively, Committees) submit this response in opposition to the motion for a preliminary injunction, Pls.' Mem. (May 3, 2019), ECF No. 27, filed by Donald J. Trump (in his individual, not Presidential, capacity), Donald J. Trump, Jr., Eric Trump, Ivanka Trump, The Donald J. Trump Revocable Trust, The Trump Organization, Inc., Trump Organization LLC, DJT Holdings LLC, DJT Holdings Managing Member LLC, Trump Acquisition LLC, and The Trump Acquisition Corporation (collectively, Mr. Trump or plaintiffs). Plaintiffs seek extraordinary relief that, if granted, would undermine the constitutional separation of powers and directly impede ongoing Congressional investigations implicating threats to national security and the U.S. financial system.

INTRODUCTION

Mr. Trump's request for a preliminary injunction betrays a fundamental misunderstanding of the powers of the Legislative Branch under our constitutional scheme and is flatly inconsistent with nearly a century of Supreme Court precedent. Congress's power to conduct oversight and investigations is firmly rooted in the constitutional separation of powers and is an essential component of Congress's Article I legislative authority. The Supreme Court has emphasized that "the power to investigate is inherent in the power to make laws because a legislative body cannot legislate wisely or effectively in the absence of information respecting the conditions which the legislation is intended to affect or change." Eastland v. U.S. Servicemen's Fund, 421 U.S. 491, 504 (1975) (cleaned up).

Contrary to Mr. Trump's allegation that the Committees are merely attempting to expose his finances, the Committees are investigating serious and urgent questions concerning the safety of banking practices, money laundering in the financial sector, foreign influence in the U.S. political process, and the threat of foreign financial leverage, including over the President, his family, and his business. But rather than respect the Committees' legitimate investigations into these serious issues of national importance, Mr. Trump and his companies have continually engaged in stonewalling intended to obstruct and undermine these inquiries. This suit is Mr. Trump's latest attempt to prevent Congress from obtaining critical information needed to make informed legislative judgments and perform meaningful oversight.

Mr. Trump's disapproval of the Committees' investigations is not a legal basis for this Court to enjoin enforcement of the subpoenas. Given the need for an expeditious resolution of the subpoenas' validity, the Committees request that the Court consolidate the May 22, 2019 hearing with a decision on the merits. Fed. R. Civ. P. 65(a)(2); Order, Trump v. Comm. on Oversight and Reform, No. 19-cv-01136 (D.D.C. May 9, 2019) (ECF No. 25) (consolidating preliminary injunction hearing with trial on the merits under Rule 65(a)(2) in suit challenging a Congressional subpoena). This Court should deny the motion for a preliminary injunction and dismiss Mr. Trump's meritless complaint. See Munaf v. Geren, 553 U.S. 674, 705 (2008).

BACKGROUND

I. The Committees' Investigations

The Committees are conducting wide-ranging investigations of issues bearing upon the integrity of the U.S. financial system and national security, including bank fraud, money laundering, foreign influence in the U.S. political process, and the counterintelligence risks posed by foreign powers' use of financial leverage. Although the Committees are investigating matters related to the President, his business, and his family members—some of whom are also senior Executive Branch officials—they are doing so as part of much broader investigations to inform their legislative and oversight responsibilities, which include the issuance of subpoenas seeking information from other financial institutions about their practices with respect to clients other than the plaintiffs.

A. Committee on Financial Services’s Investigations

The Committee on Financial Services, pursuant to its broad oversight and legislative jurisdiction over “[b]anks and banking, including deposit insurance and Federal monetary policy,” as well as “[i]nternational finance,” Rule X.1(h)(1), (5), Rules of the U.S. House of Representatives (116th Cong.) (House Rules),<sup>1</sup> is investigating serious issues regarding compliance with banking regulations, loan practices, and money laundering. As Chairwoman Maxine Waters recently explained, “[t]he movement of illicit funds throughout the global financial system raises numerous questions regarding the actors who are involved in these money laundering schemes and where the money is going.”<sup>2</sup> Those concerns are “precisely why the Financial Services Committee is investigating the questionable financing provided to President Trump and the Trump Organization by banks like Deutsche Bank to finance his real estate properties.”<sup>3</sup> The Chairwoman cautioned that “Congress must close these loopholes.”<sup>4</sup>

Among other issues, the Committee is investigating whether existing policies and programs at financial institutions are adequate to ensure the safety and soundness of lending practices and the prevention of loan fraud. As recently reported, over the past two years, financial institutions have issued more than $1 trillion in large corporate loans (called leveraged loans) to heavily indebted companies that may be unable to repay those loans.<sup>5</sup> Relatedly, the Committee is investigating the lending practices of financial institutions, including Deutsche Bank, for loans issued to the Trump family and companies controlled by Mr. Trump. Over the years, Deutsche Bank has reportedly provided more than $2 billion in loans to Mr. Trump, despite concerns raised by certain senior bank officials about some of the loans.<sup>6</sup>

The Committee is investigating industry-wide compliance with banking statutes and regulations, particularly anti-money laundering policies. For example, the Committee is investigating whether Deutsche Bank's programs are adequate to prevent the types of activities that led regulators to fine the bank for its role in facilitating a $10 billion so-called "mirror trading" scheme involving its Moscow, New York, and London offices<sup>7</sup> and its reported role as a conduit for the laundering of over $20 billion in rubles out of Russia.<sup>8</sup> This is important in determining the volume of illicit funds that may have flowed through the bank, and whether any touched the accounts held there by Mr. Trump, his family, or business. A full accounting of past failures in banking practices is critical to preventing similar illicit money flows going forward.

The Committee is also investigating the use of anonymous corporations as vehicles to launder illicit funds through legitimate investments and enterprises, including real estate and other investments, some of which are controlled by Mr. Trump. Public reports indicate that hundreds of millions of dollars in illicit funds have been used by shell companies to purchase

Trump properties.<sup>9</sup> The Committee is considering legislation that would increase transparency regarding ownership of anonymous shell corporations generally. E.g., H. Res. 206, 116th Cong. (2019) (recognizing risk of money laundering and encouraging increased transparency); H.R. 2513, 116th Cong. (2019) (reforming corporate beneficial ownership disclosures); H.R. 2514, 116th Cong. (2019) (strengthening Bank Secrecy Act<sup>10</sup> and anti-money laundering provisions). As Chairwoman Waters has noted, “real estate is frequently used to launder dirty money. Bad actors like Russian oligarchs and kleptocrats often use anonymous shell companies and all-cash schemes to buy and sell commercial and residential real estate to hide and clean their money. Today, these all-cash schemes are exempt from the Bank Secrecy Act.”<sup>11</sup>

The Committee has held hearings on the adequacy of the policies and programs at financial institutions that are the subject of the Committee’s investigations and has long sought legislative solutions to combat all facets of financial crime, including money laundering.<sup>12</sup> See, e.g., H.R. 1404, 116th Cong. (2019) (as passed by House, Mar. 12, 2019) (requiring Executive Branch agencies to submit reports to Congress regarding financial holdings of Russian President Vladimir Putin and top Kremlin-connected oligarchs).

into “[i]ntelligence and intelligence-related activities.” House Rule X.11(b)(1)(B). The Committee is charged with oversight of the Intelligence Community and all intelligence-related activities and programs of the United States Government. See H. Res. 658, 95th Cong. (1977). To that end, the Committee is investigating efforts by Russia and other foreign powers to influence the U.S. political process during and since the 2016 election—including financial leverage that foreign actors may have over President Trump, his family, and his business—and the related counterintelligence, national security, and legislative implications. The Committee is also evaluating whether the structure, legal authorities, policies, and resources of the U.S. Government’s intelligence, counterintelligence, and law enforcement elements are adequate to combat such threats to national security.<sup>13</sup>

More specifically, the Committee is investigating, among other things: (1) “[t]he extent of any links and/or coordination between the Russian government, or related foreign actors, and individuals associated with Donald Trump’s campaign, transition, administration, or business interests, in furtherance of the Russian government’s interests”; (2) “[w]hether any foreign actor has sought to compromise or holds leverage, financial or otherwise, over Donald Trump, his family, his business, or his associates”; and (3) “[w]hether President Trump, his family, or his associates are or were at any time at heightened risk of, or vulnerable to, foreign exploitation, inducement, manipulation, pressure, or coercion, or have sought to influence U.S. government policy in service of foreign interests.”<sup>14</sup>

As Chairman Schiff has explained, “[t]he Committee’s ongoing investigation and oversight—alongside other committees’ investigations—will inform a wide-range of legislation and appropriations decisions.”<sup>15</sup> The Committee will rely on information gathered during its investigations to decide whether and how to “[s]trengthen legal authorities and capabilities for our intelligence and law enforcement agencies to better track illicit financial flows, including through shell companies, real estate and other means; to better identify counterintelligence risks; and to expose interference by foreign actors.”<sup>16</sup> The Committee’s investigation will also inform a host of pending legislative proposals to protect the U.S. political process and strengthen national security. E.g., H.R. 2424, 116th Cong. (2019) (requiring federal campaign officials to notify law enforcement if offered assistance by agents of another government and to report all meetings with foreign agents); H.R. 1617, 116th Cong. (2019) (requiring intelligence assessment of Russian intentions relating to NATO and Western allies); H.R. 1474, 116th Cong. (2019) (requiring intelligence threat assessment prior to every federal general election); H.R. 1, 116th Cong. (2019) (improving election security and oversight and providing for national strategy and enforcement to combat foreign interference).

For decades, Mr. Trump’s business interests have intersected with Russia-linked entities and individuals, including oligarchs with ties to President Vladimir Putin.<sup>17</sup> Since 1998,

The Committee’s current investigations follow on the investigation conducted during the 115th Congress into “Russian interference with the 2016 Presidential election.” Bean LLC v. John Doe Bank, 291 F. Supp. 3d 34, 38 (D.D.C. 2018).

Deutsche Bank—which also had ties to Russian state institutions—served as a lender of last resort for Mr. Trump, extending loans totaling more than $2 billion.<sup>18</sup> Around 2006, Mr. Trump embarked on a multi-year spending spree, ultimately spending more than $400 million in cash on various properties.<sup>19</sup> These cash outlays occurred during a period in which the Trump Organization was reportedly experiencing significant cash inflows from Russian sources.<sup>20</sup> It has also been reported that wealthy Russians and individuals from former Soviet states used Trump-branded real estate to park—and in some cases launder—large sums of money for over a decade.<sup>21</sup> More recently, Mr. Trump secretly pursued a lucrative licensing deal for Trump Tower Moscow—a deal that would have required Kremlin approval—through at least June 2016, including after Mr. Trump had effectively secured the Republican presidential nomination.<sup>22</sup> At the same time, Mr. Trump was advocating policies favored by Russia and praising President Putin.<sup>23</sup> It is unclear whether the Trump Tower Moscow deal remains latent.<sup>24</sup>

The Committee is examining whether Mr. Trump’s foreign business deals and financial ties were part of the Russian government’s efforts to entangle business and political leaders in corrupt activity or otherwise obtain leverage over them. On March 28, 2019, the Committee held a hearing to “discuss how the Kremlin uses financial leverage and corruption as tools of intelligence operations and foreign policy,” including “the use of financial entanglements as a means of compromise.”<sup>25</sup> Former U.S. Ambassador to Russia Michael McFaul testified that “in parallel with Putin’s use of money, corruption, and property rights as instruments for governing inside Russia, the Russian government instructs its economic actors to make deals with foreign entities to establish increased leverage and influence within these countries.”<sup>26</sup> Ultimately, the Committee’s investigation of these matters will inform its “plans to develop legislation and policy reforms to ensure the U.S. government is better positioned to counter future efforts to undermine our political process and national security.”<sup>27</sup>

ARGUMENT

PLAINTIFFS ARE NOT ENTITLED TO A PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

Mr. Trump's motion for a preliminary injunction should be denied. A preliminary injunction is an "extraordinary and drastic remedy," Munaf, 553 U.S. at 689-90 (quotation marks omitted), that "should not be granted unless the movant, by a clear showing, carries the burden of persuasion," Mazurek v. Armstrong, 520 U.S. 968, 972 (1997) (per curiam) (emphasis and quotation marks omitted). To meet that burden, a plaintiff "must establish that he is likely to succeed on the merits, that he is likely to suffer irreparable harm in the absence of preliminary relief, that the balance of equities tips in his favor, and that an injunction is in the public interest." N.Y. Progress & Prot. PAC v. Walsh, 733 F.3d 483, 486 (2d Cir. 2013) (quoting Winter v. Nat. Res. Def. Council, Inc., 555 U.S. 7, 20 (2008)).<sup>28</sup>

I. Mr. Trump Cannot Demonstrate a Substantial Likelihood of Success on the Merits

A series of Supreme Court decisions drawing on historical practice stretching back to the earliest days of our Republic compels denial of Mr. Trump's injunction request. These cases support our core proposition: that Mr. Trump's lawsuit reflects a seriously uninformed and mistaken view of the powers of Congress.

A. The Constitution Confers Broad Investigatory Powers on Congress

Congress has broad authority to obtain information necessary to conduct oversight and

<sup>28</sup> To the extent there is any meaningful distinction between the Winter standard and the "serious questions" formulation, Pls.' Mem. 2, that has also been used by the Second Circuit in post-Winter cases, see Citigroup Glob. Mkts., Inc. v. VCG Special Opportunities Master Fund Ltd., 598 F.3d 30, 36-38 (2d Cir. 2010), this Court need not consider that nuance here because Mr. Trump has failed to meet the heavy burden required under either standard.

investigations. See Eastland, 421 U.S. at 504 n.15 (“[T]he scope of [Congress’s] power of inquiry . . . is as penetrating and far-reaching as the potential power to enact and appropriate under the Constitution.” (quotation marks omitted)). The power to investigate—and to issue subpoenas—is integral to Congress’s Article I power to legislate. Id. at 503-04 (explaining that “[t]he power to investigate and to do so through compulsory process plainly falls” within Congress’s “legitimate legislative sphere” and “[i]ssuance of subpoenas . . . has long been held to be a legitimate use by Congress of its power to investigate”). Thus, Congress’s “power to secure needed information by [compulsory process] has long been treated as an attribute of the power to legislate” and “is an essential and appropriate auxiliary to the legislative function.” McGrain v. Daugherty, 273 U.S. 135, 161, 174 (1927).<sup>29</sup>

The Supreme Court has explained the constitutional foundation for this principle: “A legislative body cannot legislate wisely or effectively in the absence of information respecting the conditions which the legislation is intended to affect or change; and where the legislative body does not itself possess the requisite information—which not infrequently is true—recourse must be had to others who do possess it.” Id. at 175. And because “mere requests for such information often are unavailing . . . some means of compulsion are essential to obtain what is needed.” Id.; accord Eastland, 421 U.S. at 505.

B. The Power of the Committees to Investigate

Pursuant to the Constitution’s Rulemaking Clause, U.S. Const. art. I, § 5, cl. 2, the House has delegated extensive oversight and investigative authority to both Committees. See House

<sup>29</sup> See also, e.g., Barenblatt v. United States, 360 U.S. 109, 111 (1959) (“The power of inquiry has been employed by Congress throughout our history, over the whole range of the national interests concerning which Congress might legislate or decide upon due investigation not to legislate[.]”); United States v. Josephson, 165 F.2d 82, 89-90 (2d Cir. 1947) (“It is, of course, well settled that Congress may make investigations in aid of legislation.”); Bean LLC, 291 F. Supp. 3d at 43 (similar).

Rule XI.1(b)(1). The Committee on Financial Services has broad jurisdiction regarding “[b]anks and banking, including deposit insurance and Federal monetary policy,” as well as “[i]nternational finance.” House Rule X.1(h)(1), (5). The Committee on Intelligence has jurisdiction over “the activities of the intelligence community” and all legislative matters pertaining to the federal government’s “[i]ntelligence and intelligence-related activities.” House Rules X.3(m), X.11(b)(1)(B). Both Committees are authorized to issue subpoenas for testimony and documents. See House Rule XI.2(m)(1)(B); Rules of the Comm. on Financial Services, Rule 3(e)(1);<sup>30</sup> Rules of the Permanent Select Comm. on Intelligence, Rule 10(b).<sup>31</sup>

To fulfill their legislative, investigative, and oversight responsibilities, and consistent with their jurisdiction, the Committees are conducting wide-ranging investigations into pressing issues of national importance, including ongoing reports of money laundering and of foreign influence in the U.S. political process. See supra pp. 3-9. Contrary to Mr. Trump’s arguments, the Supreme Court has stressed that the role of the courts in reviewing these Congressional investigations is very limited. See Barenblatt, 360 U.S. at 132 (“So long as Congress acts in pursuance of its constitutional power, the Judiciary lacks authority to intervene on the basis of the motives which spurred the exercise of that power.”). Where “a rational legislative purpose is present for investigating a particular person, organization, or institution[,] [t]here is no requirement that every piece of information gathered in such an investigation be justified before the judiciary.” McSurely v. McClellan, 521 F.2d 1024, 1041 (D.C. Cir. 1975), vacated on other grounds by 553 F.2d 1277, 1280 (D.C. Cir. 1976) (en banc) (per curiam). A Congressional investigation may lead “up some ‘blind alleys’ and into nonproductive enterprises. To be a valid legislative inquiry there need be no predictable end result.” Eastland, 421 U.S. at 509.

This Court’s narrow inquiry into whether there is a legitimate legislative purpose is not an occasion to adjudicate the motivations of the Committees or to second-guess the Committees’ reasonable determinations regarding the need for the information sought. Id. at 508 (explaining that when “determining the legitimacy of a congressional act, [courts] do not look to the motives alleged to have prompted it”); see also, e.g., Bean LLC, 291 F. Supp. 3d at 44 (holding that courts “lack[] the authority to restrict the scope of [a] Committee’s investigation” and stating that they “may not [] engage in a line-by-line review of [a] Committee’s requests” (emphasis added)).

C. The Committees Have a Valid Legislative Purpose

Plaintiffs incorrectly contend that the Committees lack a valid legislative purpose and instead seek merely to “‘expose’ Plaintiffs’ finances.” Pls.’ Mem. at 10 (quoting Watkins v. United States, 354 U.S. 178, 200 (1957)). The information requested by the Committees is necessary for their investigations and will inform their ongoing oversight and legislative efforts. Only through a detailed and comprehensive understanding of the banks’ implementation of the relevant banking laws and regulations, foreign governments and entities’ financial activities, and Mr. Trump’s finances and business deals can the Committees assess the risks to the U.S. financial system and national security presented by the loans and foreign financial ties at issue. The factual record developed through the Committees’ investigations is critical to developing and refining effective legislative and policy initiatives.

The question before this Court is whether the Committees’ inquiries are authorized under House Rules and “concern[] a subject on which ‘legislation could be had.’” Eastland, 421 U.S. at 506 (quoting McGrain, 273 U.S. at 177); see also Bean LLC, 291 F. Supp. 3d at 43. The subpoenas to Deutsche Bank and Capital One are integral to the Committees’ investigations, which fall comfortably within the Committees’ legislative, oversight, and investigative jurisdictions. Supra pp. 3-12. Mr. Trump's contrary arguments are unavailing.

1. Mr. Trump contends that the subpoenas are invalid because “[t]he Committees have never identified a single piece of legislation within their respective jurisdictions that they are considering.” Pls.’ Mem. at 10. But this misunderstands the law. The Committees have no obligation to identify specific legislation they are considering. See Josephson, 165 F.2d at 89-90 (noting “it is immaterial” to the valid legislative purpose inquiry “that in the past this particular committee has proposed but little legislation”). The Supreme Court requires only that the subject matter of the investigation be “one on which legislation could be had.” McGrain, 273 U.S. at 177 (emphasis added); see also Barenblatt, 360 U.S. at 111 (power of inquiry “has been employed by Congress throughout our history, over the whole range of the national interests concerning which Congress might legislate or decide upon due investigation not to legislate”).

In McGrain, for example, the Supreme Court recognized that the original resolution authorizing the Senate’s investigation into the Teapot Dome Affair made no mention of a legislative purpose. 273 U.S. at 177 (“It is quite true that the resolution directing the investigation does not in terms avow that it is intended to be in aid of legislation[.]”). Nevertheless, the Court found a legitimate legislative purpose, noting that “[p]lainly the subject was one on which legislation could be had and would be materially aided by the information which the investigation was calculated to elicit.” Id. The Court stressed that it was “bound to presume that the action of the legislative body was with a legitimate object, if it is capable of being so construed, and we have no right to assume that the contrary was intended.” Id. at 178 (quotation marks omitted).

The law cannot be otherwise, as plaintiffs erroneously suggest. If Congress could only investigate matters where legislation is actively being drafted—but not, for example, where legislation had already passed the House or could be developed in the future—Congress would be unable to fulfill its purpose. It could not exercise the power to investigate as the Supreme Court envisioned, i.e., in aid of Congress’s legislative authority, and it would “be seriously handicapped in its efforts to exercise its constitutional function.” Quinn v. United States, 349 U.S. 155, 161 (1955). Mr. Trump’s view would deprive Congress of its ability to obtain the very information it needs to determine whether legislation is necessary, e.g., Barenblatt, 360 U.S. at 111, and to then “legislate wisely [and] effectively,” McGrain, 273 U.S. at 175. In any event, although the Committees are not required to identify specific pending legislation to justify either the legitimate legislative purpose of the investigations or the subpoenas, there are several bills and pending proposals that will be informed by the information sought here. E.g., supra pp. 5, 7.

Setting aside Mr. Trump’s speculation about Congressional motives, he has offered no legitimate basis to find that the subpoenas at issue were not designed to elicit information that will inform and aid the Committees in their legislative and oversight functions. As the Chairpersons of both Committees have publicly stated, the investigations are specifically designed to further the Committees’ legislative agendas: Ms. Waters cautioned that “Congress must close the[] loopholes” that have allowed money laundering and unsafe banking practices,<sup>32</sup> and Mr. Schiff emphasized that “[t]he Committee . . . plans to develop legislation and policy reforms to ensure the U.S. government is better positioned to counter future efforts to undermine our political process and national security.”<sup>33</sup>

2. Mr. Trump asserts that “any legislative purpose is not legitimate unless it falls within that committee’s jurisdiction.” Pls.’ Mem. at 9. But he makes little effort to explain this contention, other than to argue that the subpoenas relate to “financial conduct of private citizens years before they were anywhere near public office.” Pls.’ Mem. at 10. This argument fails to understand the scope of the Committees’ jurisdiction and the nature of the investigations.

The Committee on Financial Services is investigating, among other things, unsafe lending practices that can have broad effects on the national economy. That investigation is not limited to Mr. Trump or even to public officials. Congress is authorized by the Constitution to legislate to address such industry-wide risks, but it can only do so if it understands the problems. The banks’ lending practices—including loans made to plaintiffs—are an important piece of that investigation. The subpoenas seek records relating to individuals and entities—including plaintiffs—that may have served as conduits for illicit funds or may not have been properly underwritten. Because of his prominence, much is already known about Mr. Trump, his family, and his business, and this public record establishes that they serve as a useful case study for the broader problems being examined by the Committee. Moreover, the relevant transactions occurred, and the risky practices developed, over the course of many years. The Committee seeks documents that will enable it to identify weaknesses in laws intended to guard against these financial ills, including the Bank Secrecy Act and anti-money laundering regulations.

Simultaneously, the Committee on Intelligence is investigating, among other time-sensitive threats to national security, foreign interference in the U.S. political process and financial or other leverage that foreign powers may possess over Mr. Trump, his family, and his business. That investigation is squarely within the Committee’s jurisdiction and requires an understanding of Mr. Trump’s complex financial arrangements, including how those arrangements intersect with Russia and other foreign governments and entities. That inquiry is, by definition, not limited to Mr. Trump’s time in office and, given the closely held nature of the Trump Organization, must include his close family members. The Intelligence Community has long recognized that foreign financial ties can create potential conflicts of interest and a heightened risk of foreign influence, exploitation, and coercion. Indeed, such ties are regularly examined as part of the normal security clearance process.

Even when a subpoena is challenged on relevancy grounds, “the subpoena is to be enforced ‘unless the district court determines that there is no reasonable possibility that the category of materials the Government seeks will produce information relevant to the general subject of the . . . investigation.’” Senate Select Comm. v. Packwood, 845 F. Supp. 17, 21 (D.D.C. 1994) (ellipsis in original) (quoting United States v. R. Enters., Inc., 498 U.S. 292, 301 (1991)). “There is no requirement that every piece of information gathered in [a Congressional] investigation be justified before the judiciary.” McSurely, 521 F.2d at 1041. “This is particularly true in light of the fact that, at this stage of the proceedings, the Committee is acting as the ‘legislative branch equivalent of a grand jury, in furtherance of an express constitutional grant of authority.’” Bean LLC, 291 F. Supp. 3d at 45 (quoting Packwood, 845 F. Supp. at 21).

The Committees have subpoenaed plaintiffs’—and other non-parties’—financial statements that will aid the Committees in performing their oversight functions and considering and drafting legislation. The information may also shed light on other potential areas of inquiry or the locations of other relevant evidence that the Committees could obtain. Mr. Trump has not, and cannot, establish that the Committees’ subpoenas are “plainly incompetent or irrelevant to any lawful purpose,” McPhaul v. United States, 364 U.S. 372, 381 (1960), or that there is “no reasonable possibility that the category of materials the [Committee] seeks will produce information relevant to the general subject of the . . . investigation,” R. Enters., 498 U.S. at 301; McSurely, 521 F.2d at 1041.

3. Mr. Trump erroneously contends that the Committees are engaged in “a quintessential law enforcement task.” Pls.’ Mem. at 10. The fact that an investigation is wide-ranging, however, does not convert it from a legislative to a law-enforcement task. To the contrary, the Committees’ power to investigate is in many respects broader than that of law enforcement; it “is as penetrating and far-reaching as the potential power to enact and appropriate.” Eastland, 421 U.S. at 504 n.15 (quotation marks omitted). Even if the Committees’ investigations were to uncover criminal conduct, there is no basis for Mr. Trump’s unsupported assertion that the Committees lack the power to investigate matters within their jurisdiction or obtain the relevant financial records sought here. See R. Enters., 498 U.S. at 299 (cautioning against “[r]equiring the Government to explain in too much detail the particular reasons underlying a subpoena”).

While Congressional Committees can refer suspected criminal matters to the proper Executive Branch officials, the possibility that they could find criminal activity does not mean they are engaged in law enforcement, nor does it invalidate their legitimate legislative purposes. Hutcheson v. United States, 369 U.S. 599, 618 (1962) (“[S]urely a congressional committee which is engaged in a legitimate legislative investigation need not grind to a halt whenever responses to its inquiries might potentially be harmful to a witness in some distinct proceeding, or when crime or wrongdoing is disclosed.” (citation omitted)). “[C]ourts must presume that the committees of Congress will exercise their powers responsibly and with due regard for the rights of affected parties,” Exxon Corp. v. FTC, 589 F.2d 582, 589 (D.C. Cir. 1978).

4. Mr. Trump’s assertion that the Committees seek merely to expose his finances, Pls.’ Mem. at 10, is unsupported by anything other than political rhetoric and press statements. Even if he had provided some basis to question the Committees’ motives, the Court should not look behind the legitimate legislative purpose of the investigations. Cf. Trump v. Hawaii, 138 S. Ct.

2392, 2418-20, 2423 (2018) (upholding President Trump’s “travel ban” and explaining the issue “is not whether to denounce the [President’s] statements,” but rather to “review[] a Presidential directive, neutral on its face, addressing a matter within the core of executive responsibility”).

As discussed above, and consistent with the voluminous public record, there is no basis for this Court to question the legitimacy of the legislative purpose of the Committees’ investigations. See, e.g., Eastland, 421 U.S. at 509 (“The wisdom of congressional approach or methodology is not open to judicial veto.”); Watkins, 354 U.S. at 200 (cautioning against “testing the motives of committee members for this purpose”). And, as noted above, Supreme Court precedent establishes that Congress’s power to investigate is “broad” and “encompasses inquiries concerning the administration of existing laws as well as proposed or possibly needed statutes.” Watkins, 354 U.S. at 187; see also Barenblatt, 360 U.S. at 132 (“So long as Congress acts in pursuance of its constitutional power, the Judiciary lacks authority to intervene on the basis of the motives which spurred the exercise of that power.”).

Accordingly, Mr. Trump’s motion for a preliminary injunction should be denied and this Court should issue an order that the subpoenas to the banks are valid and enforceable.

D. The Right to Financial Privacy Act Does Not Apply to Congress

Mr. Trump argues that the subpoenas “violate Plaintiffs’ statutory rights,” Pls.’ Mem. 10, under the Right to Financial Privacy Act (RFPA), 12 U.S.C. § 3401 et seq.<sup>34</sup> But RFPA does not apply to Congress. RFPFA constrains the disclosure of customer financial records to federal authorities. Id. §§ 3402, 3405. “[T]he ‘most salient feature of [RFPFA] is the narrow scope of the entitlements it creates’, because Congress wanted to ‘minimize[] the risk that customers’ objections to subpoenas will delay or frustrate agency investigations.’” Daccarett, 6 F.3d at 51. To that end, the “Second Circuit has adopted a decidedly narrow view of the protections afforded by the RFPFA.” Barroga-Hayes v. Susan D. Settenbrino, P.C., No. 10 CV 5298, 2012 WL 1118194, at *4 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 30, 2012) (collecting cases).

<sup>34</sup> Separate and apart from RFPA’s inapplicability to Congress (discussed infra), at most only a handful of plaintiffs could conceivably avail themselves of the statute’s protections. RFPA’s requirements apply to the “financial records of any customer.” 12 U.S.C. § 3402. The term “customer” means a “person or authorized representative of that person,” and RFPA defines “person” as “an individual or a partnership of five or fewer individuals.” 12 U.S.C. § 3401(4) & (5) (emphasis added). Because they are not “customers” within the ambit of the statute, plaintiff corporations, limited liability companies, and a trust (Compl. ¶¶ 17-23) lack any rights under RFPA. See United States v. Daccarett, 6 F.3d 37, 51 (2d Cir. 1993) (RFPA “is limited to individual customers and small partnerships; corporations are not protected”), superseded on

In Hubbard v. United States, the Supreme Court considered whether the very statutory terms at issue here—“any department or agency of the United States”—as used in 18 U.S.C. § 1001 referred only to the Executive Branch or more broadly to Congress, as the Court had previously held in United States v. Bramblett, 348 U.S. 503 (1955).<sup>35</sup> In Hubbard, the Court overruled Bramblett to hold that “department or agency of the United States” refers only to Executive Branch entities, explaining, “while we have occasionally spoken of the three branches of our Government, including the Judiciary, as ‘department[s],’ that locution is not an ordinary one[,]” and “[f]ar more common is the use of ‘department’ to refer to a component of the Executive Branch.” 514 U.S. at 699 (citation omitted); see id. at 699-700, 702 (calling Bramblett “a seriously flawed decision” that “made no attempt to reconcile its interpretation with the usual other grounds by statute as recognized by United States v. Sum of $185,336.07 Currency Seized from Citizen’s Bank Account L7N01967, 731 F.3d 189, 196 (2d Cir. 2013); Bean, 291 F. Supp. 3d at 48 (limited liability company “has no rights under the RFPFA because it is not a ‘person’ who may qualify as a ‘customer’ for the purposes of that statute.”); Exch. Point LLC v. U.S. SEC, 100 F. Supp. 2d 172, 175 (S.D.N.Y. 1999) (corporation and limited liability company not covered by RFPFA); In re Porras, 191 B.R. 357, 359 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 1995) (“Trust is not a protected entity under [RFPFA].”).

meaning of ‘department’”). The Court invoked the same statutory provision, 18 U.S.C. § 6, that plaintiffs rely on, Pls.’ Mem. at 11, as “bolster[ing]” the Court’s “commonsense reading” of “department” to exclude all non-Executive Branch entities, including Congress.<sup>36</sup>

The text and structure of RFPFA further demonstrate that Congress did not intend for the terms “agency” or “department” to apply to itself. In a section of the statute that governs the “transfer” of financial information already held by RFPFA-regulated “agencies” or “departments,” Congress provided that “nothing in this chapter shall authorize the withholding of information by any officer or employee of a supervisory agency from a duly authorized committee or subcommittee of Congress.” 12 U.S.C. § 3412(d). Were Congress itself an “agency or department,” this savings clause would have no meaning. See Dobrova v. Holder, 607 F.3d 297, 302 (2d Cir. 2010) (“We disfavor interpretations of statutes that render language superfluous.” (quotation marks omitted)). Far from an “acknowledge[ment]” by Congress that RFPFA “covered the . . . legislative branch[],” Pls.’ Mem. 12, the clause shows that Congress well understood its own Committees to be distinct from “any agency or department” subject to RFPFA’s strictures.

Other aspects of RFPFA’s design reinforce this understanding. The statute, for example, exempts numerous types of investigatory instruments—e.g., administrative subpoenas, grand jury subpoenas, and search warrants, see 12 U.S.C. §§ 3405-3407—from its disclosure prohibitions without mention of Congressional subpoenas. There is simply no reason to think that Congress, acting sub silentio, would so dramatically curtail the scope of its Article I investigative powers to obtain confidential information. Moreover, RFPA provides for an array of civil penalties for those (including government actors) who violate its requirements—see 12 U.S.C. § 3417 (punitive damages). It is implausible that Congress would silently subject itself and its staff to such liability, particularly given its broad Speech or Debate and other immunities. See, e.g., U.S. Const. art. 1, § 6, cl. 1.<sup>37</sup> RFPA simply has no application to this case.

II. Mr. Trump Has Failed to Establish a Likelihood of Irreparable Injury

Mr. Trump’s failure to satisfy the stringent irreparable-injury requirement is a separate and independent ground requiring denial of the motion. “A showing of irreparable harm is the single most important prerequisite for the issuance of a preliminary injunction.” Faiveley Transp. Malmo AB v. Wabtec Corp., 559 F.3d 110, 118 (2d Cir. 2009) (quotation marks omitted). “[A] mere possibility of irreparable harm is insufficient to justify the drastic remedy of a preliminary injunction.” Borey v. Nat’l Union Fire Ins. Co. of Pittsburgh, Pa., 934 F.2d 30, 34 (2d Cir. 1991). Rather, a plaintiff “must demonstrate that absent a preliminary injunction they will suffer an injury that is neither remote nor speculative, but actual and imminent, and one that cannot be remedied if a court waits until the end of trial to resolve the harm.” Grand River Enter. Six Nations, Ltd. v. Pryor, 481 F.3d 60, 66 (2d Cir. 2007) (quotation marks omitted). Importantly, irreparable injury may not be shown by bare allegations or conclusory statements; a plaintiff must provide the court with actual “evidence” of the harm that is allegedly being incurred. E.g., Weaver v. Schiavo, 750 F. App'x 59, 60 (2d Cir. 2019) (upholding denial of preliminary injunction where plaintiff “provided no evidence that he would suffer irreparable harm absent injunctive relief”); Faiveley, 559 F.3d at 120 (“In the absence of evidentiary support of irreparable harm, there was no basis for the entry of a preliminary injunction . . . in this action.”); Lanvin Inc. v. Colonia, Inc., 739 F. Supp. 182, 193 (S.D.N.Y. 1990).

<sup>37</sup> The legislative history likewise contains no indication that Congress intended for RFPA to regulate its own subpoenas. On the contrary, Congress declined to “extend” the definition of “government authority” to include “Congress of the United States,” after the Justice and Treasury Departments proffered draft language that would have done so. See Electronic Funds Transfer and Financial Privacy: Hearings on S. 2096, S. 2293 and S. 1460 Before the Subcomm. on Financial Institutions of the Senate Comm. on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs, 95th Cong., 2nd Sess. 194, 397 (1978); id. at 397 (defining “government authority” in proposed, draft legislation to mean “the Congress of the United States, or any agency or department of the United States or of a State or political subdivision, or any officer, employee or agent of any of the foregoing” (emphasis added)).

Mr. Trump falls short of this exacting standard. Asserting that “there will be no way to unring the bell once” the subpoenas are executed, Pls.’ Mem. 1, plaintiffs provide no actual evidence of their potential injury. This lack of substantiation is reason enough to conclude that plaintiffs have not shown irreparable injury. Faiveley, 559 F.3d at 119-20. Mr. Trump’s reliance on various cases, Pls.’ Mem. at 6, involving public disclosure of confidential records is also misplaced. “[T]he release of information to the Congress does not constitute ‘public disclosure.’” Exxon Corp., 589 F.2d at 589 (“no indication” that disclosure of confidential trade secret information to a Congressional subcommittee “will in any way harm” plaintiff). Even where trade secrets are at stake, “[t]he courts must presume that the committees of Congress will exercise their powers responsibly and with due regard for the rights of affected parties.” Id.

Nor does Mr. Trump’s reliance on U.S. Servicemen’s Fund v. Eastland, 488 F.2d 1252, 1256, 1257 (D.C. Cir. 1973), rev’d, 421 U.S. 491 (1975), Pls.’ Mem. at 7, 13, rescue the inadequate irreparable harm showing. While Mr. Trump is correct that, in staying enforcement of the subpoena, the Eastland Court noted the “serious constitutional questions [that] are presented by this litigation,” Eastland, 488 F.2d at 1256, Mr. Trump neglects to mention that the Eastland plaintiff had claimed that the subpoena violated numerous First Amendment rights, id. at 164 (“threat to the right of freedom of association and assembly and protest under the First Amendment”)—a grave species of injury long recognized as warranting immediate judicial intervention. See Bronx Household of Faith v. Bd. of Educ. of City of N.Y., 331 F.3d 342, 349 (2d Cir. 2003) (noting “[t]he loss of First Amendment freedoms, for even minimal periods of time, unquestionably constitutes irreparable injury” (quoting Elrod v. Burns, 427 U.S. 347, 373 (1976)), overruled in part on other grounds by Good News Club v. Milford Cent. Sch. Dist., 533 U.S. 98 (2001)). Eastland recognized these unique circumstances, distinguishing the situation from “all of the previous cases” it considered because “[h]ere the plaintiffs have no alternative means to vindicate their [First Amendment] rights.” Eastland, 488 F.2d at 1269, 1260.<sup>38</sup>

Mr. Trump, who does not claim any such violation of his First Amendment rights, cannot validly contend that “the questions raised in this case [regarding release of bank records] . . . are far more serious and important than the questions in Eastland.” Pls.’ Mem. at 13. The failure to assert, let alone establish, irreparable injury is fatal to the preliminary injunction motion.

III. The Balance of Equities Tips Heavily in Favor of the Committees

The balance of the equities overwhelmingly favors the Committees. Mr. Trump asserts that injury will flow from compliance with the subpoenas. But there is no basis for assuming such injury if the banks produce financial records to the Committees in the same manner that numerous entities—including accounting firms, banks, and other financial institutions—routinely produce such records in response to civil discovery subpoenas, government administrative subpoenas or civil investigative demands, grand jury subpoenas, and the like. “Given the presumption of congressional propriety discussed above, there is no risk of imminent injury to [plaintiffs]” from disclosure to Congress. Exxon Corp., 589 F.2d at 589 (citation omitted).

By contrast, the Committees are actively investigating matters of national importance,

<sup>38</sup> This special First Amendment context notwithstanding, the Supreme Court noted in overturning the D.C. Circuit years later that the “case illustrates vividly the harm that judicial interference may cause” where a valid “legislative inquiry has been frustrated for nearly five years.” Eastland, 421 U.S. at 511.

including live threats to the nation’s financial system, election system, and security. The Committees’ interest in prompt compliance with their subpoenas is paramount. As the Supreme Court has held, Congress’s “power of inquiry—with process to enforce it—is an essential and appropriate auxiliary to the legislative function.” McGrain, 273 U.S. at 174. Mr. Trump’s argument that the Committees have “no urgent need for the subpoenaed documents,” Pls.’ Mem. at 14, is not only wrong—given the pressing nature of the investigations—it is also an improper usurpation of Congress’s constitutional power to investigate and conduct oversight. The Committees’ interest in obtaining relevant information necessary to ongoing investigations—before the 116th Congress expires—would be severely harmed by any injunctive relief in this case. Thus, the balance of equities weighs heavily in favor of denial of Trump’s motion.

IV. The Public Interest Supports Enforcement of the Subpoena

For the same reasons, the public interest strongly supports denial of the requested relief. There is a “clear public interest in maximizing the effectiveness of the investigatory powers of Congress,” and “the investigatory power is one that the courts have long perceived as essential to the successful discharge of the legislative responsibilities of Congress.” Exxon Corp., 589 F.2d at 594. Plaintiffs’ contrary argument ignores the clear and compelling public interest in expeditious and unimpeded Congressional investigations into core aspects of the financial and election systems that touch every member of the public. And Mr. Trump provides no legitimate reason why the public would be served by delaying the Committees from obtaining the records necessary to carry out their constitutional oversight and legislative duties.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, plaintiffs’ motion for a preliminary injunction should be denied and the case should be dismissed with prejudice following a Rule 65(a)(2) merits hearing.

Respectfully submitted,

8. Any document related to any communication sent or received by Selected Deutsche Bank Employees concerning any individual, entity, or any issue or document identified in items 1 through 7 above, including, but not limited to, any entity in which such an individual has been identified as a trustee, settlor, or grantor, beneficiary, beneficial owner, or has or had in any way control over, individually or with others, or any government official.

RESPONDING TO COMMITTEE SUBPOENAS

In responding to the document request, please apply the instructions and definitions set forth below:

INSTRUCTIONS

1. In complying with this request, you should produce all responsive documents in unredacted form that are in the possession, custody, or control or otherwise available to Deutsche Bank AG or its agents, employees, or representatives, regardless of whether the documents are possessed directly by you.
2. Documents responsive to the request should not be destroyed, modified, removed, transferred, or otherwise made inaccessible to the Committee.
3. In the event that any entity, organization, or individual named in the request has been, or is currently, known by any other name, the request should be read also to include such other names under that alternative identification.
4. Each document should be produced in a form that may be copied by standard copying machines.
5. When you produce documents, you should identify the paragraph(s) and/or clause(s) in the Committee's request to which the document responds.
6. Documents produced pursuant to this request should be produced in the order in which they appear in your files and should not be rearranged. Any documents that are stapled, clipped, or otherwise fastened together should not be separated. Documents produced in response to this request should be produced together with copies of file labels, dividers, or identifying markers with which they were associated when this request was issued. Indicate the office or division and person from whose files each document was produced. Documents produced on paper (those from paper files that you choose to produce as such) shall not contain any permanent fasteners (i.e., staples), but shall be separated based on the divisions between documents as it is maintained in the custodian's files by non-permanent fasteners (e.g., paper clips, binder clips, rubber bands) or a non-white slip sheet.
7. Each folder and box should be numbered, and a description of the contents of each folder and box, including the paragraph(s) and/or clause(s) of the request to which the documents are responsive, should be provided in an accompanying index.
8. Responsive documents must be produced regardless of whether any other person or entity possesses non-identical or identical copies of the same document.
9. The Committee requests electronic documents in addition to paper productions. If any of the requested information is available in machine-readable or electronic form (such as on a computer server, hard drive, CD, DVD, back up tape, or removable computer media such as thumb drives, flash drives, memory cards, and external hard drives), you should immediately consult with Committee staff to determine the appropriate format in which to produce the information. Documents produced in electronic format should be organized, identified, and indexed electronically in a manner comparable to the organizational structure called for in (6) and (7) above.

10. Documents shall be produced in accordance with the attached Data Delivery Standards. Alternatively, all documents derived from word processing programs, email applications, instant message logs, spreadsheets, and wherever else practicable, shall be produced in text searchable PDF format. Spreadsheets shall also be provided in their native form. Audio and video files shall be produced in their native format, although picture files associated with email or word processing programs shall be produced in PDF format along with the document it is contained in or to which it is attached.

11. Other than native files produced along with TIFF images in accordance with the attached Data Delivery Standards, every page of material produced to the Committee, whether from paper files or as a text searchable PDF, must contain a unique Bates number. All files produced in PDF format shall be named according to the Bates range that the file contains (e.g. YourCo-00001 - YourCo- 00035.pdf).

12. With respect to the requested wire transfer records, please provide such records in Excel (.xls) format that is enabled (not "read only" format), with separate columns that show each wire transfer field, including, but not limited to, the following fields: "Payment Date," "Amount," "Ordering Customer" #1 through #4, "Ordering Bank" #1 through #5, "Debiting ID," "Debiting Address" #1 through #4, "Credit ID," "Credit Address" #1 through #4, "Account Party" #1 through #5, "Ultimate Beneficiary" #1 through #5, "Det_Payment" #1 through #4, and "Bank to Bank" #1 through #6.

13. If any document responsive to this request was, but no longer is, in your possession, custody, or control, or has been placed into the possession, custody, or control of any third party and cannot be provided in response to this request, you should identify the document (stating its date, author, subject and recipients) and explain the circumstances under which the document ceased to be in your possession, custody, or control, or was placed in the possession, custody, or control of a third party.

14. If any document responsive to this request was, but no longer is, in your possession, custody or control, state:

- a. how the document was disposed of;
- b. the name, current address, and telephone number of the person who currently has possession, custody or control over the document;
- c. the date of disposition;
- d. the name, current address, and telephone number of each person who authorized said disposition or who had or has knowledge of said disposition.

15. If any document responsive to this request cannot be located, describe with particularity the efforts made to locate the document and the specific reason for its disappearance, destruction or unavailability.

16. If a date or other descriptive detail set forth in this request referring to a document, communication, meeting, or other event is inaccurate, but the actual date or other descriptive detail is known to you or is otherwise apparent from the context of the request, you should produce all documents which would be responsive as if the date or other descriptive detail were correct.

17. The request is continuing in nature and applies to any newly discovered document, regardless of the date of its creation. Any document not produced because it has not been located or discovered by the return date should be produced immediately upon location or discovery subsequent thereto.

18. You should consult with Committee majority staff regarding the method of delivery prior to sending any materials.

19. In the event that a responsive document is withheld on any basis, including a claim of privilege, you should provide a log containing the following information concerning every such document: (i) the reason the document is not being produced; (ii) the type of document; (iii) the general subject matter; (iv) the date, author and addressee; (v) the relationship of the author and addressee to each other; and (vi) any other description necessary to identify the document and to explain the basis for not producing the document. If a claimed privilege applies to only a portion of any document, that portion only should be withheld and the remainder of the document should be produced. As used herein, "claim of privilege" includes, but is not limited to, any claim that a document either may or must be withheld from production pursuant to any statute, rule, or regulation.

(a) Any objections or claims of privilege are waived if you fail to provide an explanation of why full compliance is not possible and a log identifying with specificity the ground(s) for withholding each withheld document prior to the request compliance date.

(b) Any assertion by a request recipient of any such non-constitutional legal bases for withholding documents or other materials, for refusing to answer any deposition question, or for refusing to provide hearing testimony, shall be of no legal force and effect and shall not provide a justification for such withholding or refusal, unless and only to the extent that the Committee (or the chair of the Committee, if authorized) has consented to recognize the assertion as valid.

20. If the request cannot be complied with in full, it should be complied with to the extent possible, which should include an explanation of why full compliance is not possible.

21. Upon completion of the document production, you must submit a written certification, signed by you or your counsel, stating that: (1) a diligent search has been completed of all documents in your possession, custody, or control which reasonably could contain responsive documents; (2) documents responsive to the request have not been destroyed, modified, removed, transferred, or otherwise made inaccessible to the Committee since the date of receiving the Committee's request or in anticipation of receiving the Committee's request; and (3) all documents identified during the search that are responsive have been produced to the Committee, identified in a log provided to the Committee, as described in (18) above, or identified as provided in (12), (13) or (14) above.

22. When representing a witness or entity before the Committee in response to a document request or request for transcribed interview, counsel for the witness or entity must promptly submit to the Committee a notice of appearance specifying the following: (a) counsel's name, firm or organization, and contact information; and (b) each client represented by the counsel in connection with the proceeding. Submission of a notice of appearance constitutes acknowledgement that counsel is authorized to accept service of process by the Committee on behalf of such client(s), and that counsel is bound by and agrees to comply with all applicable House and Committee rules and regulations.

RESPONDING TO COMMITTEE SUBPOENAS

In responding to the document request, please apply the instructions and definitions set forth below:

INSTRUCTIONS

1. In complying with this request, you should produce all responsive documents in unredacted form that are in the possession, custody, or control or otherwise available to Capital One Financial Corporation or its agents, employees, or representatives, regardless of whether the documents are possessed directly by you.
2. Documents responsive to the request should not be destroyed, modified, removed, transferred, or otherwise made inaccessible to the Committee.
3. In the event that any entity, organization, or individual named in the request has been, or is currently, known by any other name, the request should be read also to include such other names under that alternative identification.
4. Each document should be produced in a form that may be copied by standard copying machines.
5. When you produce documents, you should identify the paragraph(s) and/or clause(s) in the Committee's request to which the document responds.
6. Documents produced pursuant to this request should be produced in the order in which they appear in your files and should not be rearranged. Any documents that are stapled, clipped, or otherwise fastened together should not be separated. Documents produced in response to this request should be produced together with copies of file labels, dividers, or identifying markers with which they were associated when this request was issued. Indicate the office or division and person from whose files each document was produced. Documents produced on paper (those from paper files that you choose to produce as such) shall not contain any permanent fasteners (i.e., staples), but shall be separated based on the divisions between documents as it is maintained in the custodian's files by non-permanent fasteners (e.g., paper clips, binder clips, rubber bands) or a non-white slip sheet.
7. Each folder and box should be numbered, and a description of the contents of each folder and box, including the paragraph(s) and/or clause(s) of the request to which the documents are responsive, should be provided in an accompanying index.
8. Responsive documents must be produced regardless of whether any other person or entity possesses non-identical or identical copies of the same document.
9. The Committee requests electronic documents in addition to paper productions. If any of the requested information is available in machine-readable or electronic form (such as on a computer server, hard drive, CD, DVD, back up tape, or removable computer media such as thumb drives, flash drives, memory cards, and external hard drives), you should immediately consult with Committee staff to determine the appropriate format in which to produce the information. Documents produced in electronic format should be organized, identified, and indexed electronically in a manner comparable to the organizational structure called for in (6) and (7) above.

10. Documents produced in electronic format should be produced as delimited text with images and native files in accordance with the attached Data Delivery Standards. Alternatively, all documents derived from word processing programs, email applications, instant message logs, spreadsheets, and wherever else practicable, shall be produced in text searchable PDF format. Spreadsheets shall also be provided in their native form. Audio and video files shall be produced in their native format, although picture files associated with email or word processing programs shall be produced in PDF format along with the document it is contained in or to which it is attached. The requested wire transfer records should be produced in Excel (.xls) format that is enabled (not "read only" format), with separate columns that show each wire transfer field, including, but not limited to, the following fields: "Payment Date," "Amount," "Ordering Customer" #1 through #4, "Ordering Bank" #1 through #5, "Debiting ID," "Debiting Address" #1 through #4, "Credit ID," "Credit Address" #1 through #4, "Account Party" #1 through #5, "Ultimate Beneficiary" #1 through #5, "Det_Payment" #1 through #4, and "Bank to Bank" #1 through #6.

11. Other than native files produced along with TIFF images in accordance with the attached Data Delivery Standards, every page of material produced to the Committee, whether from paper files or as a text searchable PDF, must contain a unique Bates number. All files produced in PDF format shall be named according to the Bates range that the file contains (e.g. YourCo-00001 - YourCo- 00035.pdf).

12. If any document responsive to this request was, but no longer is, in your possession, custody, or control, or has been placed into the possession, custody, or control of any third party and cannot be provided in response to this request, you should identify the document (stating its date, author, subject and recipients) and explain the circumstances under which the document ceased to be in your possession, custody, or control, or was placed in the possession, custody, or control of a third party.

13. If any document responsive to this request was, but no longer is, in your possession, custody or control, state:

- a. how the document was disposed of;
- b. the name, current address, and telephone number of the person who currently has possession, custody or control over the document;
- c. the date of disposition;
- d. the name, current address, and telephone number of each person who authorized said disposition or who had or has knowledge of said disposition.

14. If any document responsive to this request cannot be located, describe with particularity the efforts made to locate the document and the specific reason for its disappearance, destruction or unavailability.

15. If a date or other descriptive detail set forth in this request referring to a document, communication, meeting, or other event is inaccurate, but the actual date or other descriptive detail is known to you or is otherwise apparent from the context of the request, you should produce all documents which would be responsive as if the date or other descriptive detail were correct.

16. The request is continuing in nature and applies to any newly discovered document, regardless of the date of its creation. Any document not produced because it has not been located or discovered by the return date should be produced immediately upon location or discovery subsequent thereto.

17. You should consult with Committee majority staff regarding the method of delivery prior to sending any materials.

18. In the event that a responsive document is withheld on any basis, including a claim of privilege, you should provide a log containing the following information concerning every such document: (i) the reason the document is not being produced; (ii) the type of document; (iii) the general subject matter; (iv) the date, author and addressee; (v) the relationship of the author and addressee to each other; and (vi) any other description necessary to identify the document and to explain the basis for not producing the document. If a claimed privilege applies to only a portion of any document, that portion only should be withheld and the remainder of the document should be produced. As used herein, "claim of privilege" includes, but is not limited to, any claim that a document either may or must be withheld from production pursuant to any statute, rule, or regulation.

(a) Any objections or claims of privilege are waived if you fail to provide an explanation of why full compliance is not possible and a log identifying with specificity the ground(s) for withholding each withheld document prior to the request compliance date.

(b) Any assertion by a request recipient of any such non-constitutional legal bases for withholding documents or other materials, for refusing to answer any deposition question, or for refusing to provide hearing testimony, shall be of no legal force and effect and shall not provide a justification for such withholding or refusal, unless and only to the extent that the Committee (or the chair of the Committee, if authorized) has consented to recognize the assertion as valid.

19. If the request cannot be complied with in full, it should be complied with to the extent possible, which should include an explanation of why full compliance is not possible.

20. Upon completion of the document production, you must submit a written certification, signed by you or your counsel, stating that: (1) a diligent search has been completed of all documents in your possession, custody, or control which reasonably could contain responsive documents; (2) documents responsive to the request have not been destroyed, modified, removed, transferred, or otherwise made inaccessible to the Committee since the date of receiving the Committee's request or in anticipation of receiving the Committee's request;

and (3) all documents identified during the search that are responsive have been produced to the Committee, identified in a log provided to the Committee, as described in (18) above, or identified as provided in (12), (13) or (14) above.

21. When representing a witness or entity before the Committee in response to a document request or request for transcribed interview, counsel for the witness or entity must promptly submit to the Committee a notice of appearance specifying the following: (a) counsel's name, firm or organization, and contact information; and (b) each client represented by the counsel in connection with the proceeding. Submission of a notice of appearance constitutes acknowledgement that counsel is authorized to accept service of process by the Committee on behalf of such client(s), and that counsel is bound by and agrees to comply with all applicable House and Committee rules and regulations.

In responding to the subpoena, please apply the instructions and definitions set forth below:

Instructions

The documents subpoenaed include all those that are in the custody, control or possession, or within the right of custody, control or possession, of Capital One or its agents, employees, or representatives.

If the subpoena cannot be complied with in full, it shall be complied with to the extent possible, with an explanation of why full compliance is not possible. Any document withheld on the basis of privilege shall be identified on a privilege log submitted with the responses to this subpoena. The log shall state the date of the document, its author, his or her occupation and employer, all recipients, the occupation and employer of each recipient, the subject matter, the privilege claimed and a brief explanation of the basis of the claim of privilege. If any document responsive to this subpoena was, but no longer is, in your possession, custody, or control, identify the document and explain the circumstances by which it ceased to be in your possession, custody, or control.

Documents shall be produced as delimited text with images and native files in accordance with the attached Data Delivery Standards.

Alternatively, all documents derived from word processing programs, email applications, instant message logs, spreadsheets, and wherever else practicable, shall be produced in text searchable PDF format. Spreadsheets shall also be provided in their native form. Audio and video files shall be produced in their native format, although picture files associated with email or word processing programs shall be produced in PDF format along with the document it is contained in or to which it is attached.

Other than native files produced along with TIFF images in accordance with the attached Data Delivery Standards, every page of material produced to the Committee, whether from paper files or as a text searchable PDF, must contain a unique Bates number. All files produced in PDF format shall be named according to the Bates range that the file contains (e.g. YourCo-00001 - YourCo- 00035.pdf).

Documents produced on paper (those from paper files that you choose to produce as such) shall not contain any permanent fasteners (i.e., staples), but shall be separated based on the divisions between documents as it is maintained in the custodian's files by non-permanent fasteners (e.g., paper clips, binder clips, rubber bands) or a non-white slip sheet.

DATA DELIVERY STANDARDS

Record productions shall be prepared according to, and strictly adhere to, the following standards:

1. Records produced shall be organized, identified, and indexed electronically.
2. Only alphanumeric characters and the underscore (“_”) character are permitted in file and folder names. Special characters are not permitted.
3. Two sets of records shall be delivered, one set to the Majority Staff and one set to the Minority Staff. To the extent the Minority Staff does not have an electronic record review platform, records shall be produced to the Minority Staff in searchable PDF format and shall be produced consistent with the instructions specified in this schedule to the maximum extent practicable.
4. Production media and produced records shall not be encrypted, contain any password protections, or have any limitations that restrict access and use.
5. Records shall be produced to the Committee on one or more CDs, memory sticks, thumb drives, or USB hard drives. Production media shall be labeled with the following information: Case Number, Production Date, Producing Party, Bates Range.
6. Records produced to the Committee shall include an index describing the contents of the production. To the extent that more than one CD, hard drive, memory stick, thumb drive, box, or folder is produced, each CD, hard drive, memory stick, thumb drive, box, or folder shall contain an index describing its contents.
7. All records shall be Bates-stamped sequentially and produced sequentially.
8. When you produce records, you shall identify the paragraph or number in the Committee’s Request to which the records respond and add a metadata tag listing that paragraph or number in accordance with Appendix A.
  - a. All submissions must be organized by custodian unless otherwise instructed.
  - b. Productions shall include:
    1. A Concordance Data (.DAT) Load File in accordance with metadata fields as defined in Appendix A.
    2. A Standard Format Opticon Image Cross-Reference File (.OPT) to link produced images to the records contained in the .DAT file.

3. A file (can be Microsoft Word, Microsoft Excel, or Adobe PDF) defining the fields and character lengths of the load file.
- c. The production format shall include images, text, and native electronic files. Electronic files must be produced in their native format, i.e., the format in which they are ordinarily used and maintained during the normal course of business. For example, a Microsoft Excel file must be produced as a Microsoft Excel file rather than an image of a spreadsheet. NOTE: An Adobe PDF file representing a printed copy of another file format (such as Word Document or Webpage) is NOT considered a native file unless the record was initially created as a PDF.
1. Image Guidelines:
    1. Single or multi page TIFF files.
    2. All TIFF images must have a unique file name, i.e., Bates Number
    3. Images must be endorsed with sequential Bates numbers in the lower right corner of each image.
  2. Text Guidelines:
    1. All text shall be produced as separate text files; not inline within the .DAT file.
    2. Relative paths shall be used to link the associated text file (FIELD: TEXTPATH) to the record contained in the load file.
    3. Associated text files shall be named as the BEGBATES field of each record.
  3. Native File Guidelines:
    1. Copies of original email and native file records/attachments must be included for all electronic productions.
    2. Native file records must be named per the BEGBATES field.
