
10 A Maybe 5 minutes or so.

11 Q Did he initiate the call, or did you initiate the call?

12 A He initiated the call.

13 Q Okay. And was he asking for something?

14 Ms. Zdeb. And, at this point, we're getting well beyond the scope of what Mr.
15 Estrada is authorized to discuss. This call, as you know from the dates, took place after 16 the events related to the question of whether to partner or cocounsel. And so he is not 17 able to get into the specifics of the more recent call with Mr. Weiss.

18 Mr. Castor. All right.

19 BY MR. CASTOR:

20 Q Have you received any other materials other than the three memos on this
21 case?

22 A I'm trying to think. The materials I've received on the question of whether 23 to cocounsel was limited to the three memoranda.

24 Q What was your understanding of Mr. Weiss' ability to bring charges in this 25 case?

1 A My understanding was that Mr. Weiss had been doing this investigation for 2 several years, was leading the investigation, and would bring charges if he believed they
3 were appropriate.

4 Q And if charges needed to be brought in your district, what did he need to do
5 to do that?

6 A My understanding was that he could bring charges in my district.

7 Q And how would that work?

8 A I don't know the specifics of how it would work. He had SAUSAs in my 9 office. When I offered him administrative support and office space, he thanked me for 10 that. So it was my belief that he was going to be able to do that.

11 Moreover, DOJ components often litigate in my district and have the authorization
12 to do that. I don't know the specific code that necessarily gives that authorization, but 13 they have the ability to do that.

14 So my understanding was that, if he wanted to bring those charges in my district,
15 he could bring those charges in my district.

16 Q What is the difference between what you offered Mr. Weiss and what he 17 was requesting?

18 A He requested to cocounsel on the case, which, in my experience, having 19 practiced for over 20 years, including in private practice, which is most often where 20 I've -- in fact, I shouldn't say most often. That's my experience cocounseling, in private 21 practice.

22 In private practice, when you cocounsel, you're in completely. You litigate
23 everything. You're at every hearing. You're an equal member for trial. Every aspect 24 of the case you litigate, which obviously entails significant resources and entails
25 significant time on behalf of the attorneys involved.

1 Q Okay. Are you aware of any instance where your office agreed to 2 cocounsel or partner with a different U.S. Attorney's Office?

3 A No, I'm not, with a different U.S. Attorney's Office. We do partner quite 4 often with different components at Main Justice.

5 Q Okay.

6 A But I'm not familiar myself with partnering with another U.S. Attorney's 7 Office on litigation.

8 Q And did you communicate that to Mr. Weiss, that this was a request that 9 was out of the ordinary?

10 A I didn't communicate that it was a request -- that the request was out of the 11 ordinary. I mean, I was -- my goal was to be as polite and helpful to Mr. Weiss as 12 possible.

13 I was down 40 AUSAs at the time, so we were very resource-strapped. We were 14 trying to hire as much as possible and had very limited resources. And every attorney 15 you assign to a case means you can't do another case.

16 And it seemed -- and he didn't push back on -- when I told him the situation, that 17 we wouldn't be cocounseling, but he did express appreciation when I offered
18 administrative support.

19 Q So was his request out of the ordinary?

20 A I don't know if I could characterize it as out of the ordinary, because all I 21 know is my district. I was an AUSA in my district, and I am the U.S. Attorney in my 22 district. Our district is pretty unique.

23 Q Right.

24 A It's different from any other district. We have more than we can handle in 25 our district, so we typically do not go and litigate in other districts. But that may be

1 different, as there's 94 districts in our great country. So I don't know what the typical 2 practice is in other places.

3 Q Okay. But, in your experience -- I mean, before becoming U.S. Attorney
4 you'd been with the office for just shy of 8 years. Is that correct?

5 A Yes.

6 Q And you hadn't witnessed any U.S. Attorney from a district, different district
7 cocounseling or partnering with someone in your district, correct?

8 A In the Central District, that was not my experience. But, again, we are 9 unique. We are, unfortunately, the gang capital of this country. We're also the hub
10 for every cartel in this country.

11 So that means we may prosecute activity that occurs in other parts of the country, 12 but we have venue in our district to prosecute those conspiracies. We do national 13 security cases that go to other districts as well, but we generally have venue because so 14 much activity occurs in our district.

15 So our district is unique. So I would never presume to say that my experience in 16 the Central District of California somehow dictates what is typical for the rest of the 17 country.

18 Q When you told Mr. Weiss that you were unwilling to partner, that you 19 weren't interested in being -- having a cocounsel arrangement, did he indicate to you that 20 he was interested in taking you up on your offer of administrative support and office 21 space?

22 A The only indication he gave me was he thanked me when I told him that, and 23 that's all I can say.

24 Q Okay. Did it seem like Mr. Weiss was relying on you to give an up-or-down 25 decision on whether a case could be brought in your district?

1 A That was not my understanding, given that he had attorneys SAUSAed to my 2 district and that he thanked me when I told him I wouldn't be cocounseling but offered
3 administrative support.

4 Q Okay. Did he indicate to you that he was going to take you up on that offer
5 of administrative support?

6 A All I can say is he thanked me.

7 Q Okay. Can you tell us why your office decided not to cocounsel or partner
8 with Mr. Weiss on this case?

9 A So, again, I don't want to get into the deliberative process of how we analyze 10 which cases to do, which cases not to do.

11 What I can say at a high level is, generally, when we evaluate cases, we do so 12 under the Justice Manual guidelines. We look at whether a Federal offense has been 13 committed and whether we believe that there is admissible evidence sufficient to prove 14 to an unbiased trier of fact that an individual has committed an offense beyond a 15 reasonable doubt.

16 So we follow those guidelines. We also look to the practical impact of limited 17 resources. As I mentioned, we have over -- we have about 20 million people in the 18 district, yet, at the time I came in, about 140 AUSAs. That's just over one AUSA per 19 100,000 people in the district. At the same time, we're dealing with -- as I said, we're 20 the gang capital. We, unfortunately, export MS-13, Crips gangs, Hispanic gangs, 21 Mexican mafia to the rest of the country. Our cartels infect the rest of the country.
22 The fraud we have here infects the rest of the country.

23 So there were a lot of issues I needed to deal with right there and then which 24 called for resources.

25 Q Did you express to Mr. Weiss that your decision not to cocounsel with him or

1 not to partner with him on this case had more to do with the law and the facts, or was it
2 more of a resource issue, from your perspective?

3 Ms. Zdeb. And he's not able to get into the specifics of what he communicated
4 to Mr. Weiss or what his analysis was, as he has made clear.

5 BY MR. CASTOR:

6 Q I think that's a pretty important question, so -- I mean, we're talking about a
7 time period that's relevant for this transcribed interview.

8 So I just ask you again, are you willing to tell us whether you communicated to Mr.
9 Weiss that your decision to, you know, deny him the ability to partner with you had more
10 to do with your resources, or did it have more to do with other issues?

11 A So I've been given very specific instructions in terms of what I'm authorized
12 and not authorized to speak about by Mr. Weinsheimer in the October 18th letter. I do
13 not want to violate those restrictions, so I can't get into the specifics. But, as I 14 mentioned to you, there were two general principles that we look at in terms of whether 15 we're going to devote resources to any case.

2 [10:58 a.m.]

3 BY MR. CASTOR:

4 Q Okay. Did you have any additional communications on the Hunter Biden
5 case that you haven't told us about here today?

6 And I can cabin that off to the communications that occurred prior to the plea
7 bargain falling apart, the plea bargain in Delaware falling apart.

8 A Can you give me a date? I don't follow this stuff terribly closely and have 9 the dates in mind. So what date are you giving me?

10 Q Well, you told us about the communications that you had in 2022, in 11 October of 2022.

12 A Uh-huh.

13 Q And then you brought up a call that you had with Mr. Weiss in September
14 of 2023, and I'm just asking, is there any other communications you had either internally
15 or externally of your office on the case?

16 A There were communications that I had with my press folks in the spring of 17 2023 when we started getting press inquiries. As I mentioned to you, that was limited
18 to issuing a brief statement which I described to you earlier.

19 Q Okay. But did you have any communications with Main Justice, either the 20 DAG's office or the Tax Division?

21 A I had the communication with Brad Weinsheimer with regard to that brief
22 statement which I issued.

23 Q Okay.

24 A But beyond that, no.

25 Q Okay. Prior to his appointment as special counsel --

1 A Should we not be concerned about that buzzer?

2 Mr. Castor. Off the record.

3 [Discussion off the record.]

4 Mr. Castor. Going back on the record.

5 BY MR. CASTOR:

6 Q Prior to his appointment as special counsel at the end of the summer, did 7 you believe that Mr. Weiss had ultimate authority over the Hunter Biden prosecution?

8 A So I would disagree with the way you phrased the question.

9 Q Okay.

10 A My understanding, through all of my interactions with Mr. Weiss in 11 Delaware, was that he was leading the investigation and was able to bring whatever 12 charges he wanted at any point.

13 Q Okay. I mean, whether he had ultimate authority or not is a -- I mean, 14 those are words that Mr. Weiss has used. So I was just asking you about that.

15 A I thought he had authority to bring the charges wherever he chose to when 16 he was U.S. Attorney and certainly as he is now special counsel.

17 Q What's your understanding of the meaning of ultimate authority inside of 18 DOJ?

19 A I don't know what that means within DOJ. It could mean lots of different 20 things.

21 Q Okay. If someone has ultimate -- if a U.S. Attorney has ultimate authority 22 to bring charges, does that mean they're the final decisionmaker?

23 A It could. I just don't use that term.

24 Q Okay. Well, Mr. Weiss has used it. So, you know, you're a U.S. Attorney,
25 and so I'm just asking you. So that the term "ultimate authority" doesn't have meaning

1 to you?

2 A It has no special meaning for me in the context of being U.S. Attorney. I
3 would use authority. I have the authority to bring criminal charges, civil offense
4 charges, national security charges, many different types of charges.

5 Q According to the Justice Department's Justice Manual, the final authority for 6 the prosecution or declination of all criminal matters arising under the Internal Revenue 7 laws rests with the.

8 Assistant Attorney General for the Tax Division.

9 Is that something that you're aware of?

10 A So what I'm aware of is that, for certain tax charges, you need authorization
11 from the Tax Division to bring those charges and then also to dismiss those charges --

12 Q Okay.

13 A -- if you choose to dismiss them.

14 Q All right. But if the -- what's the Justice Manual -- maybe we can start 15 there -- to you? What does it mean to you?

16 A So the Justice Manual is what used to be the United States Attorney Manual.

17 Q Okay.

18 A And it is a lengthy set of guidelines for how offices operate and how 19 litigation should be conducted. So it pertains to criminal prosecutions. It pertains to 20 national security matters. It pertains to civil matters, administrative. There are many 21 different provisions.

22 Q Okay. And the Justice Manual with regard to tax matters states: The final 23 authority for the prosecution or declination of all criminal matters arising under the 24 Internal Revenue laws rests with the Assistant Attorney General of the Tax Division.

25 Is that something that you are aware of and something you're familiar with?

1 A I'm familiar with the fact that the Tax Division must approve certain tax
2 charges --

3 Q Okay.

4 A -- in order to have those filed, but also approve the dismissal of those 5 charges if a prosecutor wishes to dismiss them.

6 Q Okay. But, if the Justice Manual says that the Assistant Attorney General
7 for the Tax Division has the final authority, how do you reconcile that with Mr. Weiss'
8 statement that he had ultimate authority?

9 A I'm not going to attempt to reconcile anything. I can't get into the mind of 10 Mr. Weiss of what he meant by the term. You would have to ask him. And my 11 understanding of what the Tax Division's role is as I stated to you.

12 Q Okay. Are you familiar with 28, United States Code, 515, the special 13 counsel authority statute?

14 A I'm aware of 515 in the context of authorizing litigation by components and 15 also by U.S. Attorneys and attorneys for -- and even attorneys outside of the Department.
16 It's a very -- it's a general statute which pertains to the Attorney General being able to 17 authorize litigation. So I don't know that it is a special counsel statute.

18 Q Okay. Outside of 515, is there another way that the U.S. Attorney for 19 Delaware could have acquired ultimate authority from the Attorney General that you're 20 aware of?

21 A I don't know what the ultimate authority -- that's a vague term to me,
22 "ultimate authority."

23 Q Okay.

24 A It's not something I use, not a specialized term I'm familiar with. So I can't 25 answer that.

1 Q Okay. Outside of 515, are there other mechanisms the Department has to 2 grant charging authority to a U.S. Attorney that would supersede the Justice Manual?

3 A I mean, I have charging authority for cases. I don't know if that comes from 4 515 or elsewhere.

5 Q But your charging authority, I mean, you can't -- you can't go against the 6 Justice Manual. Correct?

7 A I don't know what you mean by "go against." They're principles. They're 8 general principles that we're supposed to follow, but the principles are general. So the 9 principle we most often deal with is deciding whether we believe there's sufficient 10 admissible evidence to prove a case beyond a reasonable doubt. That is a principle.
11 It's not going against or not going against. If we believe there's evidence, we believe 12 there's evidence.

13 Q Okay. I mean, what's not a principle, though, is the Justice Manual says the 14 final authority in tax cases, you know, rests with the Assistant Attorney General for the 15 Tax Division. Correct?

16 A I don't know the Justice Manual provision you're talking about. I can tell 17 you my understanding of what the Tax Division's authority is. They approve charges, 18 and you need approval if you're going to dismiss certain charges.

19 Q Right.

20 A Not all tax-related charges, but certain tax charges.

21 Q Right. So, if you're bringing a tax case in your division, you need the 22 approval -- the authorization from the Tax Division? Correct?

23 A I don't -- I can't say in all instances -- I can't say in all instances what the 24 requirements would be.

25 Mr. Castor. Okay. We're out of time. We'll stop there.

1 [Recess.]

2 [REDACTED]: It's 11:22. We can go back on the record.

3 EXAMINATION

4 BY [REDACTED]:

5 Q Good morning again.

6 A Good morning.

7 Q I want to start off with just some followup questions from the prior hour.

8 You mentioned that you talked to a gentleman named Bradley Weinsheimer in

9 the --

10 A Brad Weinsheimer, correct.

11 Q Who is Mr. Weinsheimer?

12 A My understanding is he's the most senior career official in the Department
13 and sits within the office of the Deputy Attorney General. Beyond that, I don't have 14 more on his title.

15 Q And you spoke with him this past spring about media contacts that you had 16 received. Correct?

17 A Correct.

18 Q Why was Mr. Weinsheimer the person that you talked to?

19 A Because he was the person I understood that was handling questions in this 20 regard.

21 Q And, again, he's a career official. Correct?

22 A Yes, that was my understanding -- well, he is a career official. I know that 23 to be a fact, yeah.

24 Q Okay. And you spoke with him again in the lead up to today's interview.
25 Correct?

1 A I did not. So I received a letter from him --

2 Q I'm sorry.

3 A -- on October 18th regarding the scope of my authority to speak today.

4 Q And is it your understanding that you received that letter from him again
5 because he is the highest ranking career official?

6 A I don't have an understanding beyond the fact that he's the person that's 7 designated to handle this, and he's the highest ranking career official.

8 Q Okay. I want to turn to the discussion of SAUSAs again and just make sure 9 that I have my facts straight on this.

10 A SAUSA is a Special Assistant United States Attorney; correct?

11 A Correct.

12 Q And is it correct that the SAUSAs from Mr. Weiss' office that were appointed
13 as SAUSAs in the Central District of California had already been so appointed by the time
14 that you came to the office in September of last year?

15 A They had been appointed already, yes.

16 Q Okay. So you don't recall the exact date -- or you can't recall the exact 17 date, but it was before you came to the office?

18 A So, when I -- I usually get the request to authorize a SAUSA or to terminate a 19 SAUSA, and that request is made by folks at the line level, and it goes up through 20 the -- that division without attorneys, the Administrative Division. And then it comes to 21 me for signature. So I did not -- the authorization came before, and that's the extent to 22 which I know, and I've never authorized termination.

23 Q Okay. And, with respect to SAUSAs, just generally speaking, what can a 24 SAUSA do in your office when they're assigned to your office?

25 A So a SAUSA has full authority to litigate within our office. Most often

1 SAUSAs come from State practice. So, right now, I mentioned before we have a fentanyl
2 epidemic, and the State is unable to prosecute those cases as homicides. They're 3 limited in their authority of what they can do on those cases. So many of the State
4 District Attorney's Offices have given us State prosecutors to work as SAUSAs to do what 5 we call death resulting cases. Those are title 841 -- or section 841 cases, 21, 841, where 6 an individual sells a controlled substance, and that results in the death of another person.
7 That's a statute we didn't used to use very often before. But now that kids are taking 8 what they think is an Oxy or what they think is a Percocet and waking up dead the next
9 morning and the State is hamstrung by what they can do, we're getting more and more 10 SAUSAs to do those cases. The SAUSAs have the authority to investigate the cases, to 11 indict the cases, to try the cases, and they do that. We have a lot of those cases in our 12 district.

13 Q When a SAUSA is assigned to your office, can they consult with other 14 attorneys in the office, meaning, for example, regular assistant U.S. attorneys?

15 A They generally do because they don't know all the practices. So, just like 16 other AUSAs, they will consult with a supervisor. If there are questions about an 17 indictment or how to get grand jury time, or any sort of questions they may have, they 18 consult with supervisors in the office.

19 Q Okay. So they're not walled off. They're effectively part of the office. Is 20 that fair to say?

21 A Generally speaking, I'm not aware of any SAUSAs being ever walled off, so I 22 don't even know what necessarily that would mean. But I -- yeah, I'm not aware of 23 SAUSAs ever being walled off.

24 Q I want to move on and talk about your background a little bit and especially 25 prior to joining -- prior to your appointment as the U.S. Attorney in the Central District.

1 You said you first joined the Central District of California as an assistant U.S. Attorney in 2 approximately 2007. Is that right?

3 A Correct.

4 Q What was your role?

5 A When I first started I was in the General Crimes Section. I was a rookie, so
6 that was my role. I was a rookie learning how to prosecute cases.

7 Q And those were criminal cases?

8 A Those were criminal cases because I was hired for the Criminal Division. So
9 I started out learning how to do criminal prosecutions. I was in the General Crimes
10 Section for about 6 months. Then I went to what's known as the Violent Organized 11 Crime Section. And so, for the rest of my career I became a supervisor there and was 12 the international organized crime coordinator, which meant that I handled mostly 13 organized crime work in the office. I did mostly Eurasian organized crime, 14 Russian-Armenian organized crime cases. I also did gang cases in the context of 15 Mexican Mafia cases. We indicted one of the largest Mexican Mafia cases in the country
16 involving eight verified members. I also did some work on Crips gangs that were 17 manufacturing and distributing PCP and some cases on MS-13, which is a gang that 18 originated in Los Angeles but is largely Central American and is now present all over the 19 country, including in this area.

20 Q During that time, did you have the opportunity to try cases before a jury?

21 A Yes.

22 Q Could you estimate approximately how many cases you tried before a jury?

23 A Yes. I tried -- as an AUSA, I had 22 cases. I tried 22 cases. And, in 24 general, in my overall practice, I've tried over 35 cases in Federal and State court.

25 Q And, when you say "in general," that includes your time in private practice?

1 A Correct.

2 Q I want to talk through some of the cases that you have overseen since you
3 became the U.S. Attorney in September of last year.

4 Are you familiar with a defendant named Jose Huizar?

5 A Yeah. Jose Huizar was a member of the Los Angeles City Council for about 6 15 years. He was one of the highest ranking members in the city council. He was the 7 first Latino to be a fellow of Princeton University. He was a very sort of high-riser in 8 California politics. We indicted him actually on RICO charges, and he pled guilty I believe 9 either late last year or early this year.

10 Q And which political party was Mr. Huizar a member of?

11 A He was a Democrat.

12 Q So is it fair to say that, while -- and was he also -- did he also plead guilty to a 13 count of tax evasion?

14 A My understanding is yes.

15 Q Okay. So is it fair to say that while you were serving as U.S. Attorney, your 16 office actually prosecuted a Democratic politician for tax-related crimes?

17 A While I've been U.S. Attorney, we've prosecuted several Democratic 18 politicians for a variety of crimes. The most prominent one, we tried an individual 19 named Mark Ridley-Thomas. He was one of the most powerful African-American 20 politicians in the State, if not the country. He served in the city council but also as a 21 member of the county board of supervisors, also in the State assembly and also in the 22 State senate. We charged him with bribery with regard to funneling money to his son 23 who had left his position in the State senate after there were allegations of sexual 24 harassment. And his father, Mark Ridley-Thomas, funneled money through USC to his 25 son inappropriately.

1 But there's many beyond that. We've indicted three different city council
2 members in the last few years, all Democrats. We also have indicted several other
3 politicians in the L.A. area. L.A. is not just the city of Los Angeles. There are many 4 other cities around there, and we've indicted many individuals.

5 Q Is it fair to say that your office is not swayed by political party when 6 considering whether to charge an individual?

7 A We are -- we adhere to the Justice Manual and the principle of validating
8 cases unbiasedly and just based on the facts and law, and we take the facts and law
9 where they take us. And that could mean any individual, regardless of his or hers fame,
10 position, power. It doesn't matter.

11 Q I want to turn to the Justice Manual. And you've mentioned it a couple of 12 times that your office follows the Justice Manual.

13 [REDACTED]: I want to introduce as, I guess it's exhibit number 1 --

14 Mr. Estrada. Okay.

15 [REDACTED]: -- an excerpt from the Justice Manual's principles of Federal 16 prosecution. It's section 9-27.220, and it's entitled "Grounds for Commencing or 17 Declining Prosecution."

18 [Estrada Exhibit No. 1

19 Was marked for identification.]

20 Mr. Estrada. Is it just these two pages?

21 BY [REDACTED]:

22 Q So this is the cover page of the section, and then it's section 9-27.220. So it
23 is on the bottom of the second page -- of the third page, I guess.

24 A Okay.

25 Q And I should say we printed this off online. The full section; I think it's

1 30-some pages. So, in this exhibit, we're only including the excerpt that we're going to 2 talk through.

3 A Understood.

4 Q I'm going to read out loud the section entitled "Grounds for Commencing or
5 Declining Prosecution."

6 It says: The attorney for the government should commence or recommend 7 Federal prosecution if he or she believes that the person's conduct constitutes a Federal 8 offense, and that the admissible evidence will probably be sufficient to obtain and sustain 9 a conviction, unless, number one, the prosecution would serve no substantial Federal 10 interest; number two, the person is subject to effective prosecution in another 11 jurisdiction; or, number three, there exists an adequate noncriminal alternative to 12 prosecution.

13 Did I read that correctly?

14 A Yes.

15 Q Okay. This section refers to the term "admissible evidence." And you also 16 used it in the first hour.

17 In layperson's terms, what does "admissible evidence" mean?

18 A It means evidence we can present to a jury. So, in many instances, we may 19 be aware of information, scuttlebutt that may be out there. For instance, very often in 20 gang murders everyone in the neighborhood knows who did it. It doesn't mean we can 21 admit that at trial. That would often be hearsay or lack of foundation, so it wouldn't be 22 admissible.

23 So we need to be sure that the evidence that we're admitting is admissible under 24 the Federal Rules of Evidence, and it's sufficient to sustain a conviction beyond a 25 reasonable doubt. And sustain is important because that means not just obtaining a

1 conviction but also making sure that we will sustain that throughout the appellate
2 process.

3 Q And you referenced "beyond a reasonable doubt." "Beyond a reasonable 4 doubt" is actually the highest evidentiary standard in law; correct?

5 A As defense attorneys always like to say, yes, it is.

6 Q And it's a higher standard than, for example, the probable cause standard
7 that is needed just to obtain an indictment; correct?

8 A Correct.

9 Q And it's a higher standard than the preponderance of the evidence standard
10 that's often needed to obtain a judgment in your favor in a civil case. Correct?

11 A Correct, yes.

12 Q In layperson's terms, to the best of your ability, can you explain what 13 "beyond a reasonable doubt" is?

14 A So "beyond a reasonable doubt" is evidence -- there's a Ninth Circuit
15 instruction on this -- that leads you firmly convinced in the guilt of an individual. It's not 16 beyond all possible doubt, but it's based on reason and common sense. But it is the 17 highest standard that exists under law.

18 Q So --

19 A The other important part of that when we talk about sustaining a conviction
20 is, to get a conviction under criminal law, you need a unanimous jury of all 12 jurors
21 voting to convict. And that's an important distinction from civil practice where you 22 don't need a unanimous jury to find even by a lesser standard, which is the 23 preponderance standard.

24 Q Have you ever had an experience as a prosecutor where you felt strongly 25 that you had presented the jury with sufficient evidence to prove a case beyond a

1 reasonable doubt and sustained that conviction, but there was maybe one juror who 2 didn't agree, and so, as a result, that defendant was not convicted?

3 A I've had that occur several times in my career, yes.

4 Q Can you describe those cases just broadly speaking for us?

5 A Sure. Those are known as often hung juries where the jury can't come to a 6 decision. I've had that occur at least four, five times. That's why I've tried so many 7 cases. I've had to repeat some of them. You know, it helps you understand the 8 difficulty of proving proof beyond a reasonable doubt because one person can be 9 unconvinced and prevent a conviction from going forward.

10 I had one instance in my career where we had an individual visiting the United 11 States from Armenia, from the Sochi area -- not Armenia, but Russia, from the Sochi area.
12 He was kidnapped and shot several times by an Armenian group that wanted to extort
13 him and demand money from him. He was held for 5 days and forced to different stash
14 locations. We rescued him on fourth day. SWAT went in. There's videos of SWAT
15 going in rescuing him. He was suffering from significant injuries from the untreated 16 gunshot wound.

17 And I'll never forget the testimony from the trauma surgeon who testified that, 18 when he made the first incision into the individual's stomach, out erupted a fountain of 19 liquid stool. He had to go through four different surgeries. He ultimately survived 20 after 2 months.

21 We tried three individuals for the kidnapping, and it hung, and it was two jurors
22 who hung it, and it was largely what we call jury nullification. They didn't like the 23 prosecution because they believed that the victim was himself involved in criminal 24 activity and had connections to powerful people in Russia, what's known as thieves in 25 law, which is essentially the godfather in Russian organized crime. And, because of that,

1 they didn't want to convict. So we had to retry that case, much shorter, and ultimately 2 got a conviction on that case.

3 But we had -- the evidence was, in our view, extremely strong, but still some 4 jurors didn't agree in the first instance.

5 Q So, turning to the Hunter Biden investigation specifically -- and I don't want
6 to ask you about deliberations, but I want to talk about the kind of considerations that 7 your office had to think through under the Justice Manual and in particular the 8 decision -- or the recommendation that was made to you by the chief of the Major Frauds
9 Section and the Criminal Section.

10 And you said -- before I go there, the chief of the Major Frauds Section and the 11 Criminal Division chief in the Central District are both career employees. Correct?

12 A They are, yes.

13 Q And can you say again for the record how many years of experience they 14 have?

15 A They have at least over 40 years of experience combined, probably more in 16 the ballpark getting to 50 years.

17 Q So, without revealing -- and they made a recommendation to you; correct?

18 A Correct.

19 Q And you accepted that recommendation?

20 A The recommendation was not to cocounsel on this matter, yes, and I 21 accepted that.

22 Q Without revealing your actual deliberations or your discussions on the 23 matter, was one thing that you considered whether there was sufficient admissible
24 evidence such that prosecutors could sustain a conviction from a jury in your district?

25 Ms. Zdeb. And he can answer that question, not about this case specifically

1 because that involves the ongoing case, but he can talk about his general process. To 2 the extent he can talk about his general process, he needs to do it with respect to broadly
3 speaking in all cases. But he cannot speak about the considerations that he evaluated in 4 this case.

5 A So I can't get into the specifics what was discussed and what law or facts
6 were analyzed in this case. I'll say the general matter that we discuss when looking at all
7 matters are the Justice Manual requirement that we only prosecute cases where we 8 believe a Federal offense has been committed and where we believe there will be 9 sufficient admissible evidence to prove a case beyond a reasonable doubt to an unbiased 10 trier of fact.

11 And we also discuss the second principle of ensuring the practical aspect of having 12 limited resources and ensuring we prosecute cases in light of those limited resources.

13 BY [REDACTED]:

14 Q And that's the case -- and you said you apply those principles -- or you 15 consider those two principles in all cases that come before you. Correct?

16 A Yes.

17 Q And this was one of the questions that came before you was pertaining to 18 the Hunter Biden matter. Correct?

19 A The question of whether to cocounsel on this investigation, which was being 20 led by the District of Delaware.

21 Q In addition to the probability of obtaining and sustaining a conviction at trial,
22 the Justice Manual's principles of prosecution also instruct prosecutors to consider 23 whether there exists an adequate noncriminal alternative to prosecution; correct?

24 A Yes.

25 Q And that applies in all cases; correct?

1 A Yes. We have what's known as a CASA program, which is Conviction
2 Alternative and Sentencing Alternatives program, in which some individuals we send to a
3 program where they go through course work for a period of time, and after that, either
4 they receive a probationary sentence or, in a different, track the charges are dismissed.
5 Those are often for individuals who commit crimes as a result of substance abuse,
6 but -- and also as a result of being pressured into committing crimes by gangs and cartels
7 and things of that sort.

8 So we do have a program for that, which I believe ours was one of the first in the 9 country, so we're proud of it.

10 Q And, in tax-related cases in particular, there are alternatives to criminal 11 prosecution that are routinely pursued, such as a payment of civil penalties. Correct?

12 A In our district, we actually have a Tax Division. We have a Tax Division 13 which handles tax matters, and they do it on the civil side, not criminal. But, even their 14 cases largely pertain to tax preparers and accountants and firms that on a routine basis
15 are helping individuals not pay their full amount of taxes. And they'll also prosecute
16 cases against individual taxpayers where they fail to pay the tax or hiding accounts
17 overseas or things of that sort. But those are all done generally on the civil side.

18 Q To the best of your knowledge, has the Central District ever prosecuted an 19 individual for tax-related crimes when that individual has paid the taxes in question? I 20 mean criminally prosecuted.

21 A My understanding is where an individual has not paid taxes in the first 22 instance but later paid those taxes with penalties and interest before a prosecution is 23 initiated or an investigation is initiated, we have never brought criminal charges.

24 Q Is willfulness something that prosecutors have to prove in a tax evasion
25 case?

1 A Under most tax statutes, felony and misdemeanor, for a criminal case, one
2 would need to prove willfulness.

3 Q And what does "willfulness" mean again in layman's terms?

4 A Willfulness means the knowing violation of a legal duty. So it's 5 essentially -- specific intent is another way it's sometimes described -- that you know
6 you're violating the law, not just that you violate the law, but you know you're violating 7 the law.

8 Q If an individual has paid taxes that are due, might that make it challenging to 9 prove willfulness?

10 A That could add to the defense argument that the individual did not 11 knowingly violate the law. But there's lots of factors that go into whether an individual 12 knowingly violated the law, such as whether they hired an attorney or a tax
13 preparer -- that's often part of a defense because they hired trained individuals to do it 14 for them -- whether an individual falsified books and records or kept double books, so 15 that's another factor as to whether or not there's willfulness, and whether or not there
16 was concealment of assets from the IRS. That's another factor that goes to willfulness.
17 When we don't have those facts, it becomes much harder to prove willfulness.

18 Q Can it matter if an individual was suffering from substance abuse, for 19 example, at the time that they allegedly failed to pay their taxes?

20 A It depends on the facts and circumstances. If the defense becomes that 21 the substance abuse was such that they did not have full control of their faculties or 22 unaware of actions they were doing, I'm sure they would present that as a defense and 23 try to convince a jury they didn't act -- they were in violation of a legal duty.

24 Q You said over and over again that, when Mr. Weiss asked your office to join 25 or cocounsel on this prosecution, your response was guided by -- or your response and

1 your office's recommendation and, ultimately, your decision was guided by consideration
2 of the Justice Manual's Principles of Federal Prosecution. Correct?

3 A Yes. That was at least guided by those principles.

4 Q Was your response and your decision influenced in any way by personal,
5 political, or partisan considerations of any kind?

6 A It was not.

7 Q Was your decision influenced in any way by people outside your office, such 8 as people at the White House or the Deputy Attorney General or the Attorney General's 9 Office who sought to affect your decision?

10 A No. And I had no contact with those individuals when making decisions.

11 Q What impact, if any, do you believe that your decision not to cocounsel on 12 this case had on Mr. Weiss' efforts to potentially prosecute Hunter Biden in the Central 13 District of California?

14 A None. I believe then, I believe now that he had full authority to bring the 15 case if he chose to do so. It was his investigation. He knew it best. His prosecutors 16 knew it best. They've had it for several years, and it was up to them to decide whether 17 to bring it or not. And whether or not we cocounseled would be immaterial to whether 18 he could bring the charges that he found appropriate.

19 Q And is it fair to say that you never took any steps to block Mr. Weiss from 20 bringing charges in the Central District of California?

21 A Never. In fact, to the contrary, my office before I had come in had 22 appointed as SAUSAs people from his office, and I had offered him administrative support 23 and office space to pursue his case, which he thanked me for.

24 Q And, when you say "administrative support," can you explain what that 25 means?

1 A It can mean a lot of things. And I use the term in part because I don't want
2 to reveal aspects of the deliberative process. But it could involve secretarial support,
3 filing support, how to file in the Central District, how many copies are required, paper, IT
4 support, trial presentation support, how to do a PowerPoint, folks that help you prepare
5 the PowerPoint, and we have a grand jury administrator who reserves grand jury time,
6 the number of copies that need to be filed with the court after you get a true bill from a 7 grand jury, a lot of things that, thankfully, lawyers don't have to work on, but we have 8 great staff that handle those things.

9 Q And, when you offered Mr. Weiss all administrative support, he understood
10 that this was the type of support you were providing to him?

11 A I believed that he had that understanding given how he thanked me for it,
12 but I always say I can't get into his head.

13 Q You said in the earlier hour that, when you relayed to Mr. Weiss that you 14 weren't interested in cocounseling, joining as cocounsel, but you would be willing to 15 provide any administrative support that he might need, he didn't push back on the 16 decision not to join as cocounsel.

17 Do you remember saying that?

18 A I don't recall specifically, but if you say so.

19 Q Well, what does not push back -- does that mean that he didn't try and 20 convince you to join?

21 A We didn't have a discussion, a back-and-forth, about whether or not to 22 partner on the case or a discussion about the charges he was contemplating. It was 23 simply him listening to me for a short period of time. It seemed like he already had an 24 understanding of my reasons, given that there was little discussion, and it was such a
25 short conversation; I didn't need to say much to him. And then I proceeded to tell him

1 he would have support and administrative support, and he thanked me for it.

2 Q You were nominated in June 2022. Correct?

3 A I believe so.

4 Q As part of your nomination, did you make any assurances or promises to 5 anybody regarding how you would handle the Hunter Biden matter?

6 A No. Sorry to laugh. I was not aware of the Hunter Biden matter until late
7 September, early October of 2022.

8 Q So, during the entirety of your nomination and ultimate confirmation, you
9 had no knowledge of the Hunter Biden matter whatsoever?

10 A I did not have any knowledge of it. But also I partly laugh because of the 11 absurdity of agreeing on any particular case of how I would handle it. I wouldn't have 12 taken the job if I had to make assurances to people of how I would handle the criminal 13 cases. The reasons to do the job is for the love of the office, for the love of the country, 14 and to do the right thing. So I would have never made such assurances.

15 Q The suggestion was made in the earlier hour that perhaps this case should 16 be treated differently because it involves the son of the President, so, for example,
17 perhaps you should be talking to the SAUSAs on the case or something like that. But, in 18 fact, you have treated this case like any other case; correct?

19 A Yes. In terms of how to analyze whether to cocounsel on the case, I've 20 treated it like every case we get.

21 Q And why is that?

22 A Because that's the appropriate way for the Department of Justice to conduct 23 its business. The Department of Justice is not partisan. That's always been one of the 24 abiding principles of the Department. That's why we get some of the best lawyers in the 25 country to work for us because -- and they're of all different stripes, every associated

1 background, every part of the country. They want to work for us because we play it
2 straight, and we take every case where the facts and the law go, regardless of any
3 considerations -- inappropriate considerations who the individual is. That's the reason
4 people love the job, love the office, love the Department and are so proud to serve our 5 client which is the United States of America.

6 [REDACTED]: Thank you.

7 I'm going to turn it over to my cocounsel, [REDACTED].

8 BY [REDACTED]:

9 Q Hi, Mr. Estrada.

10 A Hello.

11 Q I just want to ask you a couple of questions about your experience with the 12 need to go to the Tax Division on certain types of charges.

13 In the previous hour, you indicated that for certain tax charges you need authority
14 to bring or dismiss those. Is that your understanding?

15 A My understanding is, for certain tax charges, you need authority from the 16 Tax Division to indict them, to file them, and also if you later want to dismiss them.

17 Q Okay. And, when you are referring to that authority from the Tax Division, 18 is that something in the Justice Manual that led you to believe that you needed that 19 authority from the Tax Division?

20 A So I acquired that understanding from my time as an AUSA. I had 21 matter -- another organized crime matter where there was a group of individuals who 22 were stealing identities and submitting false tax returns on a massive scale and made over 23 $20 million through that scheme. And, when I was investigating that case and looking at 24 what charges I could bring, I looked into potential tax charges since they were false tax 25 returns and consulted with the Tax Division and came to the understanding that they

1 needed to approve any sort of specific tax evasion type charges if I was to file those.

2 Q And so the Tax Division was referring themselves to the Justice Manual in 3 terms of the need to get that authority. Is that right?

4 A I was told by a supervisor you have got to go to the Tax Division if you want
5 to bring these charges.

6 Q Okay. But you, yourself, never looked at the Justice Manual with respect to 7 that authority or --

8 A I can't recall if I did or not. This would have been probably 13, 14 years 9 ago, so --

10 Q I understand.

11 A -- I can't recall.

12 Q Okay.

13 [REDACTED]: I'm going to introduce as exhibit 2 -- this is a part of the Justice
14 Manual.

15 [Estrada Exhibit No. 2

16 Was marked for identification.]

17 BY [REDACTED]:

18 Q It's section 6-1.100 entitled "Department of Justice Policy and 19 Responsibilities - Tax Division."

20 A So the previous document I can give back or --

21 Q You can set it aside or -- either way.

22 This one is just one page --

24 Q -- the first part of that section.

25 A So you're asking about which provision?

1 Q So, yeah, let me direct your attention. The first section of the sentence
2 actually -- this is that bold paragraph there underneath the headline. It says: The 3 Assistant Attorney General for the Tax Division, subject to the general supervision of the 4 Attorney General and under the direction of the Associate Attorney General, is 5 responsible for conducting, handling, or supervising the following matters.

6 And then it lists certain types of cases; correct?

7 A I see that.

8 Q Okay. I guess what I want to emphasize is the very first part that says that 9 these matters, even these specific ones that are identified as kind of special under the Tax
10 Code, these are under the general supervision of the Attorney General according to the 11 Justice Manual.

12 Is that fair to say? I'm sorry. That's the very first line of the --

13 A Subject to the general supervision of the Attorney General and under the 14 direction of the Associate Attorney General, yes.

15 Q Right. Okay. And the Justice Manual itself, you indicated earlier it's a set 16 of principles in your mind?

17 A Many of them are principles. It's a very extensive document, so I wouldn't 18 attempt to characterize the entire thing, but there are many principles that we need to 19 follow.

20 Q They're regulations; is that right?

21 A I don't know if it's in the Code of Federal Regulations, if they're CFRs or not.

22 Q I need you to look at the bottom of the page here. You can see a cite to 28, 23 CFR, sections .70 and .71, but I don't want to --

24 A Apparently they are.

25 Q But they're not statutes. Is that fair to say?

1 A I never understood it to be a statute.

2 Q And you indicated earlier that you understand, as the United States
3 Attorney, that you have authority to bring criminal charges in your district; correct?

4 A Yes.

5 Q And that authority does derive by statute, correct, section 515?

6 A That's my understanding.

7 Q Okay. And the statutory authority to prosecute Federal offenses in the 8 United States rests in the Attorney General ultimately. Correct?

9 A That's my understanding. We have an org chart. I report technically to 10 the Deputy Attorney General, and the Deputy Attorney General reports to the Attorney
11 General.

12 Q Okay. And the Attorney General can delegate authority as he wishes within 13 the Department of Justice --

14 A Yes.

15 Q -- to some extent?

16 A Yes.

17 Q I guess my point is this. If there's something in the Justice Manual that asks
18 an attorney to seek approval or authority from another part of the Justice Department
19 like the Tax Division, do you see any reason that the Attorney General, him or herself,
20 could not make an exception to that policy just because it's written down in the Justice
21 Manual? Do you think that they would have the authority to direct the Tax Division, for 22 example, to allow charges to go if that's what he chose?

23 A So I've never encountered any situation of that sort. Every Attorney 24 General has broad powers to delegate within the Department and revise aspects of the 25 Justice Manual. The Attorney General is the ultimate authority for the entire

1 Department of Justice.

2 Q Okay. So, if the Attorney General Merrick Garland says with respect to the 3 issue that we've been discussing today that a U.S. Attorney, Mr. Weiss, had full authority
4 to bring charges with respect to a certain person, Mr. Biden, do you believe -- do you
5 have any reason to believe that he was not being truthful when he said that just because 6 there might be something in the Justice Manual that asks for consultation or authority
7 from the Tax Division?

8 A I had no reason to believe that the Attorney General's statement was not 9 accurate. I believe it was accurate, given that was my understanding when Mr. Weiss
10 and his office first sought to have us partner on the case and my career folks
11 recommended not doing it. So my understanding was and is that he, Mr. Weiss, had the 12 authority to bring the case where he chose. And, when the media reached out, that's 13 why we put out a very brief statement echoing what the Attorney General had stated.
14 As the Attorney General stated, Mr. Weiss had full authority over the investigation.

15 Q And, if a career attorney or supervisor or someone else in Main Tax had 16 decided "I'm going to advise you not to bring these charges," do you think that the 17 Attorney General himself could have weighed in on that and made sure that, like he said
18 publicly, Mr. Weiss had ultimate authority to bring those charges, notwithstanding what 19 some other person in Tax Division's opinion might have been?

20 A I would think so, but I never worked in the Tax Division. I don't know how 21 they operate. I don't know how they do things. I only had that one interaction. And 22 we actually declined to bring tax charges because we didn't want to have to go to the Tax
23 Division to decide whether to dismiss them. So it was a limited interaction with the Tax 24 Division that I had.

25 Q Okay. But, in your position with the Justice Department and various

1 positions that you've held, can you imagine situations where you might have to deviate
2 from something that is policy within the Justice Manual by going higher up and asking for 3 permission to deviate in a special circumstance?

4 A I can imagine situations even with the Deputy Attorney General or the 5 Attorney General to directing certain courses of action or changing aspects of the Justice
6 Manual, it's certainly possible. I just haven't encountered it myself.

7 Q All right. And through your career as the former U.S. -- it was actually 8 formerly called the U.S. Attorneys' Manual, and then it changed to the Justice Manual?

9 A It was the USAM, U.S. Attorneys' Manual, yes.

10 Q So, through your career, have you ever seen changes to policies as they've 11 been sort of memorialized in those manuals?

12 A Very frequently.

13 Q Okay.

14 A In fact, this one says: Updated June 2020.

15 [REDACTED]. Okay.

16 BY [REDACTED]:

17 Q And so I think just to wrap up what [REDACTED] was asking, ultimately the 18 Attorney General is in charge of Justice Department; correct?

19 A Correct.

20 Q And the Attorney General has final say over what happens in the Justice
21 Department; is that fair to say?

22 A Yes, yeah.

23 Q And so, ultimately, if the Attorney General wants to effectively override
24 what's written down in the Justice Manual, the Attorney General can do that; correct?

25 A That would be my understanding, but I've never had a situation where I have

1 encountered that.

2 Q I want to move on. You've mentioned a couple of times resource
3 considerations --

4 A Yes.

5 Q -- in your office.

6 A Uh-huh.

7 Q And I want to talk about that in a little more detail. The Central District of 8 California covers the largest Federal district in the Nation; correct?

9 A We're the largest district in the country, correct.

10 Q How many people does the Central District of California cover?

11 A We have just under 20 million people, seven counties, going from Los 12 Angeles County, Orange County in the south, which has about three-something million
13 people. We have the Inland Empire, Riverside, San Bernardino -- San Bernardino being 14 the fastest growing county in the country, about 4 million something -- and to the north 15 we have Ventura, Santa Barbara, and San Luis Obispo.

16 Q And you said I think earlier that your office currently employs around 300
17 Assistant U.S. Attorneys. Is that right?

18 A We have 300, but that's overall. Criminal prosecutors, we have about 170.

19 Q 170. And I think you also said that, in September of last year, so when the 20 decision about whether to cocounsel on this case was first brought to you, you were 21 down about 40. So you would have had 130, approximately, Criminal Division
22 prosecutors?

23 A We were down 40. It was more like 140 because at the same time that I
24 had been hiring as much as possible, we had continued attrition. Our office is one
25 where people often leave for different opportunities, whether it be judgeships, whether it

1 be private practice, whether it be going to another public sector office. So we get
2 attrition too. So I think we're more at the 140 area and are now at 170.

3 Q And you said earlier that 140 -- approximately 140 is equal to one U.S.
4 Attorney for every 100,000 citizens or residents of your district; correct?

5 A Just around that. I mean, just to put it into perspective, it was a crisis mode
6 when I came in because one of the major areas we have is national security. National 7 Security covers not just foreign actors. It includes terrorist actors. It includes domestic 8 extremism. And I've had to double the size of that division during the time I've been 9 there, and we still can't handle all of the cases we have there.

10 Q And that's today, even doubled, you don't have sufficient attorneys to 11 handle all of the cases?

12 A Well, that's true in every one of our areas. We don't have enough AUSAs
13 to handle our national security matters. We could be doing -- every AUSA in my office
14 could be doing PPP fraud cases we have so much PPP fraud. Every --

15 Q PPP is the --

16 A That's the COVID fraud, COVID-19 money fraud. Every AUSA in my office
17 could be doing healthcare fraud cases we have so much healthcare fraud. We have to 18 deploy our resources in the most effective manner to address the needs of the district.
19 As I mentioned, we have a fentanyl epidemic. That includes not just death-resulting 20 cases, it includes going after cartels which are distributing these pills, not just in powder
21 form but in pill form. We routinely seize over a million pills at a time from vehicles, and 22 we need to prosecute those cases. Each pill could be a death. And routinely now 23 we're finding cartels transporting fentanyl in liquid form, which is a new thing that they're 24 doing. So we have to do those cases.

25 We have a violent crime crisis where, for a variety of reasons, including some of

1 the local policies, there has been an increase, certainly in our view, of violent crime and 2 use of handguns in crimes. We have taco vendors on the streets getting robbed at 3 gunpoint. So we are doing more of those types of offenses than we ever have before.
4 We don't have enough resources to do those.

5 And, as I mentioned, the public corruption area is one where we've been very 6 active. We've been trying to do as much as we can there, but even there it's very 7 resource strapped.

8 BY [REDACTED]:

9 Q You've talked a lot about the different types of cases that your office
10 handles. Some of those fall outside of the typical buckets, and I just want to ask you one 11 question about one of those.

12 While you're sitting here today answering questions about your decision not to 13 partner on the prosecution of Hunter Biden, your office is beginning trial in a case 14 involving the death of 34 individuals who were killed in a fire on a dive boat; correct?

15 A Uh-huh.

16 Q And that's starting today?

17 A Yes. Sorry.

18 Q I'm sorry to bring up an emotional subject. I will ask one followup
19 question.

20 A Uh-huh.

21 Q Do you feel that your time would be better spent if you were in the office
22 supporting your team on that case?

23 A So we have a -- I'm sorry to get a little emotional, but it's 33 individuals who 24 died. It's a ship called the Conception, which was out on Labor Day weekend of 2019.
25 It was all families, young people, retirees went out for a diving expedition off Santa Cruz

1 Island, which is an island that's rural, has no development, no gas stations, no
2 convenience stores, nothing. And, because the captain hadn't trained his crew on how
3 to use fire equipment that was on the ship, did not, contrary to Coast Guard regulations,
4 have a watch person at all times, allowed a small fire to become a conflagration, which 5 erupted and killed all of the passengers on board except for the captain and a few crew,
6 who were first off the ship and allowed this tragedy to happen.

7 And I get a little emotional because we've been dealing a lot with the victims on 8 the case, the victims' families, and they have been going through hell on the case. So it's 9 a very difficult matter to talk about.

10 [REDACTED]. Thank you. And I apologize.

11 BY [REDACTED]:

12 Q I want to move on to -- we have a little bit of time left.

13 A Sure.

14 Q -- to another topic that I guess might also be a little emotional.

15 You referenced the media inquiries that you received for the handling this case in 16 the spring of this year.

17 A Uh-huh.

18 Q Is it fair to say that this investigation, the Republican investigation, into Mr.
19 Weiss' investigation in particular has received substantial press coverage?

20 A I am aware that there has been press coverage. I don't track this on a 21 day-to-day basis. In fact, as executives of the Department, we get a daily email which 22 has snippets from various criminal prosecutions and issues around the country, and that's 23 where I've seen some articles on this topic. But I don't track it myself, but I've seen 24 articles on this topic.

25 Q And your office specifically has been in the public eye because of this

1 investigation; correct? I mean, you got a media inquiry.

2 A I've gotten media inquiries. I wouldn't say we're -- we're not obsessing
3 over the media inquiries that we get. We get a lot of media inquiries. We respond to 4 those media inquiries and move on.

5 Q Have you personally received any incoming communications from the public
6 about this investigation?

7 A Those I wouldn't categorize as media inquiries. But, yes, I have received
8 what I would categorize as hate mail, hate emails on this matter.

9 Q Can you estimate how many hate emails you've received because of this
10 investigation?

11 A Dozens. I don't fixate on it because I try to move those and not let it take 12 up most of my days. I don't focus on it, but it's been dozens of hate communications.

13 Q Can you describe any of the hate communications that you've received?

14 A Again, I don't focus a lot on it. I try to leave it aside, but I have been 15 slandered using epithets, the N word, certain derogatory terms reserved for Latinos. So 16 I've gotten a lot of communications from the public showing a lot of hatred.

2 [12:11 p.m.]

3 BY [REDACTED]:

4 Q Do you have any concerns for your safety because of these communications?

5 A So I've forwarded many of the communications to the Marshals Service, so 6 they've been assisting with security issues.

7 Q Uh-huh.

8 A I have confidence in the Marshals Service, but I've always -- because of the 9 nature of the work I do and what I did as an AUSA with organized crime work, I've always 10 taken precautions. So, if you notice, I don't have a wedding ring. I tend to not -- and I
11 don't have, generally, screensavers with my kids and things like that. So I try to -- I take 12 precautions always because of the nature of the work we do.

13 Q And the work you did prior, in your prior time with the U.S. Attorney's Office, 14 was violent-crime- and organized-crime-focused. Is that right?

15 A Yes.

16 Q And it's fair to say that you were the target of some threats or other 17 threatening communications because of that work?

18 A I received seven verified threats during the time I was an AUSA.

19 Q In your time now, is it fair to say that you're also receiving threats and hate
20 mail because of your work and because of the investigation into Hunter Biden
21 specifically?

22 A I receive a lot of hate mail and threats as a result of doing this work, and 23 there was certainly an uptick when the news came out in the spring regarding the Hunter
24 Biden investigation.

25 BY [REDACTED]:

1 Q Mr. Estrada, you mentioned during the previous hour --

2 A Uh-huh.

3 Q -- your office, when you were a line AUSA, there was a case that was 4 prosecuted in your office from another district where venue had been transferred to the 5 Central District of California, correct?

6 A Yes.

7 Q And that was a case that came from North Carolina, correct?

8 A No. The case I was thinking of was one that came from the Eastern District
9 of New York.

10 Q So you're not aware of a case from North Carolina, U.S. v. Avedis Djeredjian, 11 that was prosecuted by prosecutors from North Carolina while you were an AUSA?

12 A That one doesn't ring a bell with me, no.

13 Q Okay. Fair enough. And the one that you recall was from the Eastern 14 District of New York?

15 A Yes.

16 Q And that's Brooklyn and Queens?

17 A I don't know if they have Queens. They definitely have Brooklyn. I think 18 it's Long Island. I'm not sure of their full district.

19 Q Fair enough. And, in that case, do you know, was your office asked to 20 partner?

21 A We were not asked to partner. It was transferred by a judge out to our 22 district, so the AUSA on that case had to come out to our district. I know because I 23 helped that AUSA navigate our court system and filing system and things like that.

24 Q Is that the type of administrative support that you offered to Mr. Weiss?

25 A Yeah. Well, that sort and more. I mean, I got direction from the

1 supervisor, you're going to help with this case. But I'm sure that person got other 2 support from our staff, IT support, things of that sort, that I wasn't directly involved in.

3 Q Fair enough. And are you aware of whether that case concluded? Was it
4 a jury trial? Do you know what happened?

5 A Ended up as a change of plea, as a plea agreement, later while it was being 6 litigated in our district.

7 Q And the defendant was sentenced in your district as well?

8 A Yes.

9 Q Okay.

10 [REDACTED]: Thank you. We can go off the record.

11 [Recess.]

12 Mr. Castor. Back on the record.

13 BY MR. CASTOR:

14 Q At the end of our last hour, when I was asking you questions, I asked you 15 about Mr. Weiss's use of the term "ultimate authority," and I think you characterized that 16 as not a very precise --

17 A Well, I cannot say what he meant by "ultimate authority." It's not, sort of, 18 terminology that I use as U.S. Attorney, so I can't say what he meant by "ultimate 19 authority."

20 Q But could there be anything more than ultimate authority? Like, just as an 21 American reading those words, like, what else could he have meant? Like, if he didn't 22 have ultimate authority, I mean, like, who else could block his attempt to prosecute?

23 A I mean, I would just be guessing. All I know is that, in my situation, my 24 understanding was he had the authority to proceed on the charges he was 25 contemplating.

1 Q Okay. Do you know if the Tax Division had signed off on the charges?

2 A I do not.

3 Q Okay. But you had received the Tax Division's memoranda in your October
4 meeting.

5 A So I have limitations in terms of what I can testify to --

6 Q Right.

7 A -- in terms of the decision-making process.

8 Q Right.

9 A So I'll say, I received memoranda --

10 Q Uh-huh.

11 A -- and they were authored by attorneys in the three different areas I
12 mentioned -- my office, Delaware, and the Tax Division.

13 Q So you weren't aware that the Tax Division had told Mr. Weiss he couldn't 14 prosecute?

15 A Are you saying the Tax Division, in fact, told Mr. Weiss he couldn't prosecute 16 and you're asking me if I know that?

17 Q Yeah, I'm asking you if you know that.

18 A I'm not aware of whether that's a fact --

19 Q Okay.

20 A -- whether they, in fact, told him that, or anything that would've transpired
21 there. All I know is the specific question that was before me --

22 Q Right.

23 A -- and what I told him.

24 Q But if Mr. Weiss characterized his authority as "ultimate authority" going 25 back to last June, you know, before he was the special counsel, do you think that meant

1 that he had received the okay from the Tax Division to prosecute?

2 A I don't know what that means. I don't know what he did with the Tax
3 Division. My understanding was, if he wanted to bring those certain tax charges in my 4 district, he had full power to do so.

5 Q Okay.

6 You indicated that you offered resources to him, including office space, access to 7 your grand jury, I presume --

8 A I said office space and administrative support.

9 Q Uh-huh.

10 A And I don't want to get into the specifics of the grand jury, because I'm 11 concerned it goes beyond the scope of what I'm permitted to testify about.

12 Q But -- and correct me if I'm wrong, but I understood your use of the word
13 "administrative support" to include that, if he needed to use the grand jury, that you 14 would allow him to schedule it.

15 I mean, to schedule a grand jury in the Central District of California, certainly a 16 prosecutor has to go through an individual that arranges that. That's under your 17 purview, correct?

18 A We have staff that help schedule grand jury time.

19 Q Uh-huh. Under your purview, right?

20 A What do you mean by under my purview?

21 Q It's staff of the U.S. Attorney's Office in the Central District of California, 22 which you're U.S. Attorney for.

23 A I don't look at the grand jury schedule on a weekly basis and see who's 24 scheduled for what time or -- I don't micromanage that.

25 Q Of course not.

1 A There's staff that handle those issues.

2 Q But they work for you.

3 A I have various supervisors, so that person would report to a different
4 person --

5 Q I understand you're a very high-level guy. But, ultimately, they work for 6 you. Like, you know, if somebody is going to need access to a grand jury, they would 7 have to ask somebody who works for you, maybe very far down the chain, but ultimately 8 there is somebody that is under your purview, correct?

9 A I'm not trying to say I'm a high-level person. What I'm trying to give you an 10 understanding of is the size of the office and how I don't know specifics of who's using the 11 grand jury on a particular day. I need to, as a matter of functioning and running the 12 office, delegate that to others. It --

13 Q Of course.

14 A -- has nothing to do with self-importance or anything. It's just a matter of 15 running an office.

16 Q Understood. But if Mr. Weiss -- you said Mr. Weiss could prosecute a case 17 in your district, correct, if he wanted to?

18 A My understanding was he could do that.

19 Q And if he needed the use of the grand jury to prosecute the case, you were 20 going to make that available to him, correct?

21 A He could have any administrative support he needed to prosecute the case.

22 Q And do you consider access to a grand jury part of that?

23 A Yes.

24 Q Okay. Do you know if he took you up on any of your -- you know, you
25 invited him to avail himself of some of these resources. Do you know if he took you up

1 on any of that?

2 Ms. Zdeb. And, at this point, we're getting a bit beyond the question of whether 3 Mr. Estrada blocked Mr. Weiss from pursuing charges, which I think he has clearly said he 4 did not.

5 And your question is more getting into whether certain steps were or were not 6 taken subsequent to that as part of an investigation that is ongoing. And so that is 7 outside the scope of what he is authorized to testify about.

8 Mr. Castor. Okay. Well, I was asking about the grand jury to see if that fell into 9 the basket of administrative offerings. And, as I take it, it was.

10 Ms. Zdeb. He just answered that question. But the question you had just 11 posed, unless I misunderstood it, was whether Mr. Weiss, in fact, availed himself of 12 various types of administrative support. And my point is that the answer to that 13 question necessarily --

14 Mr. Castor. Okay.

15 Ms. Zdeb. -- gets into an ongoing investigation and --

16 Mr. Castor. Okay. I can unpack that.

17 BY MR. CASTOR:

18 Q Do you know if anyone in the District of Delaware has an office in the Central 19 District of California? You said you offered office space. Do you know if anyone has 20 taken you up on that offer?

21 Ms. Zdeb. And I'm not sure unpacking it helps, because the question you just 22 asked is a subset of the broader question.

23 Mr. Castor. He doesn't have to answer it, Sara. Like -- you know. So, it's a 24 voluntary interview. He said he offered office space, and now I'm asking the question, 25 do you know if they took you up on that offer?

1 Mr. Estrada. So I want to be cautious not to get into the details of an ongoing
2 investigation, and because your question has no, sort of, scope in time --

3 Mr. Castor. Okay.

4 Mr. Estrada. -- it's hard for me to answer that.

5 BY MR. CASTOR:

6 Q Okay. What types of scope in time would you like me to put on that 7 question? How about, do you know if anyone from the District of Delaware took you up
8 on the offer of office space prior to June of 2023?

9 A That I don't know. I don't know if anyone took us up on office space,
10 whether they did or did not.

11 Q Okay. Do you know if anyone in the District of Delaware took you up on 12 your offer of office space after June of 2023?

13 A There have been requests made since that time, yes.

14 Q Okay. And have they, in fact, occupied any offices?

15 A I can't get into that. All I can say is, the offer was made, and I don't want to 16 reveal an ongoing investigation.

17 Q So you know the answer to my question, then?

18 A Which question?

19 Q About whether they've occupied offices.

20 A I don't know the answer to that. I don't know the answer to that.

21 Q Even subsequent to June 2023?

22 A I don't know that, and I'm concerned that it's going into territory that might
23 reveal an ongoing investigation.

24 Q I understand you don't want to answer the question, but I'm just saying, if 25 you did want to answer the question, would you be able to answer it accurately?

1 A It's not that I don't want to answer the question. It's that I have an
2 obligation not to reveal an ongoing investigation --

3 Q Okay.

4 A -- being handled by others.

5 Q Okay.

6 A I mean, it's a courtesy --

7 Q I understand --

8 A -- it's a courtesy to others not to reveal their ongoing investigation.

9 Q Okay. Whether it's -- okay. Whether it's a courtesy or not, I'm just -- as I
10 understand your testimony, you're not going to answer the question.

11 And so my followup is: Do you know the answer to that question of whether 12 they've availed themselves of office space?

13 A I don't know.

14 Q You don't know the answer?

15 A No.

16 Q Okay.

17 And as we discussed this morning, the number of AUSAs from Delaware that have 18 the SAUSA status, you don't know the answer to that question either?

19 A I know it's more than one.

20 Q It's more than one?

21 A I know it's plural.

22 Q Okay. But you don't know whether it's more than two?

23 A I just know more than one.

24 Q Okay. But it's less than 10, right?

25 A All I know is it's plural. That's all I can tell you.

1 Q Okay.

2 And the question -- and I apologize for asking this again, but do you know the 3 answer to the question and you don't want to tell me? Or you can't tell me because of 4 what DOJ has --

5 A I don't know the answer to the question.

6 Q You don't know the answer. Okay. Fair enough.

7 Getting back to Mr. Weiss's use of the term "ultimate authority," would you agree
8 that someone who has ultimate authority does not require someone else's permission to 9 act with regard to the matter?

10 A I don't understand your question.

11 Q Okay.

12 In a letter to Chairman Jordan in June of 2023, Mr. Weiss wrote, quote, "I have 13 been granted ultimate authority over this matter, including responsibility for deciding 14 where, when, and whether to file charges and for making decisions necessary to preserve
15 the integrity of the prosecution, consistent with Federal law, the Principles of Federal 16 Prosecution, and Departmental regulations."

17 So that's the context in which Mr. Weiss identified his authority as being the 18 ultimate authority.

19 A Uh-huh.

20 Q And so my question is, would you agree that someone that has ultimate 21 authority, as Mr. Weiss said he did in June of 2023, does not require another official at 22 the Department to act with regard to that matter?

23 A I don't know what he meant when he wrote that.

24 Q Okay.

25 A I don't speak that way. I don't tell folks in my office I have ultimate

1 authority.

2 Q Okay.

3 A So I don't know what he meant by that.

4 Q Okay.

5 A You know, I can interpret it as it's written, just like you can, and --

6 Q Right.

7 A -- that's all I can say.

8 Q Okay.

9 I mean, he said, "I have been granted ultimate authority over this matter,
10 including responsibility for deciding where, when, and whether to file charges."

11 That statement seems pretty comprehensive. Do you see it a different way?

12 A I understood it as being consistent with my understanding in October of 13 2022 when we spoke --

14 Q Uh-huh.

15 A -- that he had the authority to bring the charges that were being 16 contemplated in the Central District of California. And when I offered him support and 17 he thanked me for it --

18 Q Okay.

19 A -- that further confirmed my view.

20 Q Okay. And do you know whether he had that authority specifically from 21 the Attorney General or through the Attorney General under 28 U.S.C. 515?

22 A At that time, I didn't know exactly where, except for the fact that he had 23 SAUSAs in the district which could litigate. It seemed like he was partnering with the 24 Tax Division.

25 Q Uh-huh.

1 A So it appeared to me and I was under the understanding that he could bring 2 the case in the district. And his response to our phone call further confirmed that for 3 me.

4 Q Okay.

5 What was your understanding of his partnership with the Tax Division?

6 A My understanding was that attorneys from his office and attorneys from the 7 Tax Division were working on the matter.

8 Q Okay. And was it your understanding as of October 2022 that they had an 9 agreement on how to proceed?

10 A I didn't know one way or the other.

11 Q Okay. And the memorandum that you read in advance of the October 12 2022 meeting didn't further inform you, the Tax Division component of the 13 memorandum?

14 A That what? What's the question?

15 Q I'm just asking whether it was your understanding that the Tax Division and 16 Weiss's office were on the same page, that they were partnering.

17 A It seemed to me that certain attorneys in the Tax Division were working with 18 attorneys in the District of Delaware.

19 Q And do you know whether the Tax Division at that point in time had reached 20 a final determination?

21 A That I don't know. I don't know how high up this was being reviewed or if 22 final authorizations had been granted. That I don't know.

23 Q Were you aware of any dissent within the Tax Division?

24 A I was not.

25 Q Okay.

1 Mr. Weiss followed up on his June 7th letter on June 30th, and he -- to Mr. Jordan,
2 and he wrote, "I stand by what I wrote and wish to expand on what this means. As the
3 U.S. Attorney for the District of Delaware, my charging authority is geographically limited
4 to my home district. If venue for a case lies elsewhere, common Departmental practice
5 is to contact the United States Attorney's Office for the district in question and determine
6 whether it wants to partner on the case. If not, I may request Special Attorney status
7 from the Attorney General pursuant to 28 U.S.C. 515. Here, I have been assured that, if
8 necessary after the above process, I would be granted 515 Authority in the District of 9 Columbia, the Central District of California, or any other district where charges could be 10 brought in this matter."

11 Were you aware of Mr. Weiss's letter to Mr. Jordan? Had you reviewed, sort of,
12 this correspondence as it was occurring?

13 A So there's two questions there. Am I familiar with it? Yes. As it was 14 occurring? No.

15 Q Okay. And when did you become familiar with it? Was it in prep for 16 today?

17 A More recently.

18 Q Okay. In prep for the questioning that you were getting ready for here?

19 A I don't want to reveal any attorney-client communications or work product.

20 I know that, as an employee of the Department --

21 Q Yeah. I mean, there's no attorney-client privilege between you and Ms.
22 Zdeb, but --

23 A Well, my understanding is different, actually --

24 Q Okay.

25 A -- that, as an employee of the Department, there is a privilege. And I'm not

1 authorized to reveal --

2 Q Okay.

3 A -- privileged communications.

4 Q Okay.

5 Going back to the -- do we have a copy of the June 30th letter? Maybe we 6 should just make it an exhibit. What number are we up to?

7 Ms. Nabity. Three.

8 Mr. Castor. Okay. I'm going to make this No. 4. Because we have the first 9 letter, the June 7th letter -- so the June 7th letter I'll make exhibit 3, and then the 10 June 30th -- sorry.

11 [Estrada Exhibit No. 3

12 Was marked for identification.]

13 [Estrada Exhibit No. 4

14 Was marked for identification.]

15 Mr. Estrada. Thank you.

16 BY MR. CASTOR:

17 Q So the June 7th letter, you know, the statement I read about "granted 18 ultimate authority over this matter, including responsibility for deciding where, when, and 19 whether to file charges," that seems to me to be consistent with your understanding as of 20 October 2022. Is that correct?

21 A That he had authority to bring the case?

22 Q Yeah.

23 A That was my understanding. He had authority to bring the case in my 24 district.

25 Q Okay. But then his June 30th letter sort of goes the opposite direction.

1 Do you see where it does that?

2 A Where are you looking?

3 Q "I stand by what I wrote" is at the bottom of the first page. And then the 4 first paragraph on the second page --

5 A Uh-huh.

6 Q -- "As the U.S. Attorney for the District of Delaware, my charging authority is
7 geographically limited to my home district. If venue for a case lies elsewhere, common
8 Departmental practice is to contact the United States Attorney's Office for the district in 9 question and determine whether it wants to partner on the case. If not, I may request
10 Special Attorney status from the Attorney General pursuant to 28 U.S.C. 515. Here, I 11 have been assured that, if necessary after the above process" -- "after the above 12 process" -- "I would be granted 515 Authority in the District of Columbia, the Central 13 District of California, or any other district where charges could be brought in this matter."

14 It seems to us that this paragraph is in conflict with what your understanding was 15 in October of 2022 and with the June 7th letter. What are your thoughts?

16 A I don't read them as being in conflict, because he quotes that statement on 17 the first page and is expanding on it. So the way I interpret it is: I have authority to 18 bring charges in my district; some of those charges I, nonetheless, need to get approval 19 from Main on.

20 Q Uh-huh.

21 A So, for instance, national security cases, I need to get approval from the 22 Assistant Attorney General for National Security. On civil rights cases --

23 Q Right.

24 A -- I need to get approval from the Assistant Attorney General for the Civil 25 Rights Division. But it's a collaborative process.

1 Q Right.

2 A We provide our case, provide the facts of the case, and get approval, and 3 then we file the charges.

4 Q But he makes it clear that, if venue for a case lies elsewhere, he needs to 5 contact the U.S. Attorney's Office for the district in question and determine whether it
6 wants to partner on the case.

7 That's what happened in October of 2022. Your office decided that you did not
8 want to partner, or co-counsel, or whatever term you used or want to use.

9 So, because you didn't want to partner, he didn't have the authority -- under his 10 words of the June 30th letter, he didn't have the ability to just bring the case, which is in 11 conflict with the June 7th letter and also what he told you or what your understanding 12 was of the October 22nd call -- October of 2022, the call you had.

13 A So my understanding was, he could bring the case in my district if he chose 14 to.

15 Q Uh-huh.

16 A The mechanism by which he would need to do that I don't know. I don't 17 know what mechanisms he would need to do that.

18 Q Okay.

19 A He'd already had SAUSAs. He had administrative support if he needed it.
20 It seemed to me he was working with the Tax Division. Components of DOJ file cases in 21 other districts all the time.

22 So I don't know the specific mechanism --

23 Q Okay.

24 A -- but my understanding was, he had the ability to do it if he thought it was 25 appropriate.

1 Q Okay.

2 And then on July 10, 2023 -- I don't know that we need to mark this, but -- he
3 clarifies in a letter to Senator Graham that, as of July of 2023, he had not requested
4 special counsel designation under the CFR or under the statute, which would've allowed
5 him to file charges in a district outside of his own without the partnership -- and, again,
6 he uses the term "partnership" -- of the local U.S. Attorney.

7 And my question is: His letters to us make it seem like, in his own mind, he 8 needed you to partner with him to bring these cases, whether it was in D.C. or the Central 9 District of California. What are your thoughts?

10 A I can just tell you my understanding. When we were having the 11 conversation, my understanding was he could bring the case if he so chose, given that he 12 had SAUSAs, given that I had offered him administrative support and he thanked me for 13 it, didn't say anything else regarding that.

14 I don't know what mechanisms he would need to use.

15 Q Uh-huh.

16 A I bring cases in the hate-crime context all the time, and I believe I have the 17 authority to bring hate-crime charges, but I still need to go through the AG to get 18 approval on those.

19 Q Uh-huh.

20 A That often happens within a day.

21 Q Uh-huh.

22 A So I thought he had the ability to do it. I believed he did. All indications 23 were. That was my understanding.

24 Q Okay. Do you know why he didn't bring them in the October 2022
25 timeframe?

1 A I, one, will not get into deliberative process of whether or not to bring
2 charges.

3 Q Uh-huh.

4 A And, two, I'm not going to speculate and try to jump into the head of 5 another person and figure out why they did or did not do something.

6 Q Right. But I'm not asking you to jump into his head. But, you know, your 7 staff has been in communication with their staff. Do you have any idea, you know, from 8 talking with your staff, as to why they had not proceeded?

9 A Had not proceeded on what?

10 Q On bringing a case in the Central District.

11 A On filing -- my understanding was, there was some sort of plea deal that was 12 reached.

13 Q Okay. In the District of Delaware?

14 A I don't know the full contours of it. I don't know if certain charges were 15 waived, venue, or whatnot. I don't know. But I understand there was a plea deal that 16 was reached.

17 Q Okay.

18 After the whistleblowers came forward, this case received more public attention.
19 You talked about working with your press office. Did you have any communications
20 with your staff, when this became public, about what's been going on since October 21 2022?

22 A I had communications with my public affairs person in terms of the 23 appropriate response to the media inquiries we were getting.

24 I had communications with my first assistant U.S. Attorney and the executive 25 United States Attorney on the threats I was receiving and what to do about the threats

1 and who to send those to. I had communications with the Marshals Service about those 2 threats.

3 But in terms of the decision of whether or not to co-counsel, that wasn't discussed
4 at all.

5 Q You mentioned you were dealing with your first assistant and then the chief 6 of the Major Frauds division and the chief of the Criminal Division? Or was it the chief of 7 the Major Frauds Section?

8 A What time context are you referring to?

9 Q In October 2022.

10 A October 2022, it was the First Assistant United States Attorney, the Criminal 11 Division chief, and the Major Frauds Section chief.

12 Q Okay.

13 When the whistleblowers came forward and this was in the news, did you have 14 any communications with these three officials on an update on, you know, what has 15 Delaware tried to do in our district, if anything?

16 A I did not. No.

17 Q Okay.

18 Off the record for a second.

19 [Discussion off the record.]

20 Mr. Castor. My colleague Mr. Clerget has some questions.

21 Mr. Clerget. Good afternoon.

22 Mr. Estrada. Good afternoon.

23 BY MR. CLERGET:

24 Q You testified that after you took your post and you met with your team and 25 learned about the Hunter Biden matter that the request was pending on whether or not

1 your office would partner with the District of Delaware and that Mr. Weiss wanted to talk 2 to you about that.

3 Do I have that right?

4 A So my understanding was that, at some point shortly after I started, I was 5 told that there was a request from the District of Delaware to co-counsel, partner on the 6 case; that my career attorneys had recommended against doing so; that had been 7 communicated to the District of Delaware; and the District of Delaware then, through Mr.
8 Weiss, wanted to talk to me about it.

9 The timing in terms of when those communications happened, because I came in 10 on September 19th and I was told about this late September/early October, I can't say 11 whether it was before or after the 19th.

12 Q You can't say whether the request to your office came before or after the 13 19th?

14 A You had stated that there were communications between my office on this 15 request before September 19th. I can't say whether it was before or after.

16 Q And do you know if the assistant United States attorneys from the District of 17 Delaware who were designated special assistant United States attorneys, were they 18 already designated on the date you took your post?

19 A Yes, I know that, because I was not the one who approved it.

20 Q And you don't -- do you know whether the request to designate those 21 assistant United States attorneys came before or after the request to partner on the 22 case?

23 A I don't know the timing of that.

24 Q And I'm sorry if you answered this already, but do you know when the 25 request for -- to designate special assistant United States attorneys came to your office?

1 A Can you repeat the question?

2 Q So I'm trying to -- do you know -- you said you're not sure of the timing of 3 the request for partnering on the case. Is that right?

4 A I know that it was presented to me in late September/early October that the 5 career attorneys had recommended against it; communicated that to Delaware; now
6 Delaware wanted to talk to me about it.

7 Just for context, when I came into the seat, I mentioned we were down 40 AUSAs.
8 We had to hire a lot. So I was out there hiring as much as possible. I was meeting with 9 the assistant director in charge of the FBI, meeting with the chief of the LAPD, meeting
10 with the then-sheriff of Los Angeles Sheriff's Department, making the rounds through the 11 seven counties to meet with all the law enforcement.

12 So there were a lot of things on the plate, and there were things waiting for me to 13 decide, like hiring decisions. So there were a lot of things that were happening. This 14 issue did not arise, to my recollection, until late September/early October 2022.

15 Q Do you know whether an Acting U.S. Attorney could make the decision to 16 agree to partner? Hypothetically. Not on this case, but on any case. A request like 17 this, would your predecessor, who was an acting United States Attorney, have the 18 authority to say yes or no?

19 A I believe so.

20 Q I'm trying to understand whether this request was waiting for you to be 21 confirmed so that you could make the decision or whether or not it was requested after 22 you took the position.

23 A I mean, I don't know for certain, but I know some of the memos were dated 24 after I took the seat.

25 Q And --

1 A So it would seem to me that, once the package was prepared, they 2 presented it to the person who was sitting in that chair, which happened to be me at the 3 time.

4 Q And I know you said that this kind of thing doesn't happen very often or 5 perhaps hasn't happened in your time as U.S. Attorney, but do you have any sense for 6 how long it would take your team to do an evaluation and make a recommendation to 7 you in a case like this?

8 A Well, yes. I think it would take several weeks of analysis, legal research.
9 Usually -- I shouldn't say "usually." It's the case that my staff does a thorough analysis
10 before it's presented to me, and I generally expect a memorandum to be drafted. That 11 all takes time. So I would expect a thorough analysis.

12 Q So, if you received, you know, the information at the end of September or in 13 early October, is it fair to say that this request was made either before the 19th or very 14 shortly after the 19th for your staff to get up to speed and be prepared to make a 15 recommendation and brief you?

16 A I can't say. I can't say.

17 Q But if it takes weeks, generally, to do that -- the 19th to even early October 18 would be 2 weeks, approximately, maybe 3.

19 A I can't say about the timing. I know when -- I expect my attorneys to do a 20 thorough analysis. A thorough analysis was done in this case. So -- I don't make 21 decisions until I get a thorough analysis.

22 Mr. Clerget. That's all I have.

23 Mr. Castor. Okay.

24 [Recess.]

25 [REDACTED]. It is 12:59. We can go back on the record.

1 BY [REDACTED]:

2 Q In the prior hour, you were asked some questions about the administrative 3 support that your office offered to Mr. Weiss. And I understand you can't get into the 4 specifics, but I just want to ask some overarching questions.

5 Did you ever receive any indication from Mr. Weiss that he did not have the 6 support he needed from your office?

7 A No.

8 Q To the best of your knowledge, did any of your staff ever receive any 9 indication from Mr. Weiss that he did not have the support he needed from your office?

10 A I was never informed of that.

11 Q And, to the best of your knowledge, did anyone in your office receive any 12 indication from anyone on Mr. Weiss's staff, such as the SAUSAs, that they did not have 13 the support they needed from your office?

14 A I never heard that, and I would've expected to get a call from Mr. Weiss if 15 that were the case.

16 Q Okay. And you didn't get such a call?

17 A No.

18 Q Okay.

19 You were just asked some questions about the timeline of the decision coming to 20 you or being presented to you. Was it your impression that the decision was held for 21 you, you know, pending your confirmation?

22 A I did not get that impression.

23 Q It just happened that that was the timeline that it came to you,
24 late-September-ish?

25 A So what I can say is that I was made aware of this and presented with a

1 package of material, and the package included materials dated after I had taken the seat.

2 BY [REDACTED]:

3 Q Okay.

4 Moving on, in our first hour, so the second hour of questioning overall, we talked 5 through some of the considerations that prosecutors take into account when deciding 6 whether to bring charges. Do you remember that conversation?

7 A Yes.

8 Q Okay. How do prosecutors learn how to assess and evaluate the type of 9 concerns that you described, such as having to prove cases beyond a reasonable doubt,
10 sustain a conviction? How do prosecutors learn that?

11 A Through experience, through having done many cases and seeing what is 12 required. Through legal ability, knowing the elements of an offense, knowing the law 13 that pertains to an offense, and analyzing those facts and the law together, and having 14 the experience to know that.

15 So experience matters a lot in this context, including having seen many other
16 cases.

17 Q Okay. So it's fair to say that prosecutors have unique training and/or 18 experience, as you said, in assessing the sufficiency of the admissible evidence. Is that 19 fair to say?

20 A I think so. And I think the more experience a prosecutor has, generally, the 21 better at evaluating those sorts of things.

22 Q And along the same lines, prosecutors have unique training, unique 23 experience in assessing the likelihood that the admissible evidence will be persuasive to a 24 jury, correct?

25 A Yes.

1 Q And again along the same lines, it's fair to say that prosecutors have unique
2 training, unique experience in assessing whether the admissible evidence is reasonably
3 likely to result in a conviction, correct?

4 A Doing the analysis required under the Justice Manual -- doing that analysis is 5 something that takes training, takes experience, and consultation with supervisors.

6 Q Now, when prosecutors are working on a case, they work with investigators,
7 correct?

8 A We work generally with agencies, and the agencies will have investigators.

9 Q Okay. And the investigators that prosecutors work with, so the 10 investigators, the people who actually help gather the evidence for the case, for example, 11 they generally don't have the same experience in assessing the admissible evidence -- in 12 other words, in assessing how that evidence -- whether that evidence might be 13 convincing to a jury?

14 A Generally, they do not.

15 Q Okay.

16 Is it fair to say that one, kind of, unique difference between investigators and 17 prosecutors is that investigators typically do their work before trial, before the stage 18 where evidence is tested by defenses at trial, and before jurors are asked to confront the 19 contested evidence?

20 A I mean, it depends, honestly, on the investigator and how experienced that 21 person is. But, I mean, generally speaking, the attorneys are the ones that have the 22 experience, the know-how, the training to determine whether a case can be proven 23 beyond a reasonable doubt.

24 Q Okay. And it's prosecutors that actually have to present the evidence in 25 court, correct?

1 A Correct.

2 Q So it's prosecutors that have to consider the adversarial setting of the trial,
3 including how the evidence will look in light of possible defenses, correct?

4 A Correct.

5 Q And prosecutors are the ones who have to consider how persuasive the 6 evidence will ultimately be at a trial, where 12 jurors have to consider whether it proves a 7 charge beyond a reasonable doubt?

8 A That is our job, yes.

9 Q Okay.

10 Given the differences between what prosecutors do and what investigators do, is 11 it surprising that there might be differences in opinion among investigators and 12 prosecutors about the strength of the evidence and the likelihood of success at trial?

13 A There are sometimes disagreements between agents and AUSAs about a 14 case, whether it should proceed or not. That will occur on some occasions.

15 Q And as a supervisor, you've seen that happen with cases under your purview.
16 Is that fair to say?

17 A It happens fairly often.

18 Q In those cases where prosecutors and investigators disagree about the 19 likelihood of success at trial, it's prosecutors that have the final say on whether to bring 20 charges, correct?

21 A Absolutely.

22 Q And why is that?

23 A Well, because we have the training, we have the know-how, the experience.
24 We can play devil's advocate and see what the defenses will be.

25 Just about in every gang case I've done, the agents have wanted to indict those

1 extra 10 defendants or extra 12 defendants. And it's the prosecutor's job to look at the 2 evidence objectively, not emotionally, and determine whether it can really be proven
3 beyond a reasonable doubt and whether it serves the interest of justice.

4 Q Thank you.

5 I want to move on and talk about questions of venue and plea agreements. This 6 came up briefly in the prior round of questioning.

7 Briefly, in layperson's terms, what's your understanding of what "venue" means?

8 A So "venue" refers to the location. In the Federal context, it would be the 9 district where the misconduct or conduct took place. "Venue" also factors in where 10 defendants, witnesses can be located. But generally it's where the conduct took place.

11 Q And if prosecutors don't bring cases in the appropriate jurisdiction or the 12 appropriate venue, then the court can dismiss the charges, correct?

13 A The court can dismiss. The court can also transfer venue.

14 Q Okay. All that said, a defendant can waive his or her right to challenge
15 venue as part of a plea agreement, correct?

16 A Venue can be waived, correct.

17 Q Okay.

18 I want to introduce as exhibit 5 the memorandum of plea, of the plea agreement, 19 in United States v. Robert Hunter Biden.

20 [Estrada Exhibit No. 5

21 Was marked for identification.]

22 BY [REDACTED]:

23 Q This document was signed on July 26, 2023, and filed in the Delaware District
24 Court on August 2, 2023.

25 A It's just the one stapled copy?

1 Q Yes. Sorry. I think we gave you extras for your counsel.

2 It's Document No. 28 in Delaware Federal District Court case number
3 1:23-mj-00274-MN.

4 A I see that.

5 Q And I just want to look at the very first paragraph here, the -- sorry, I should 6 say the paragraph numbered 1, not the official first paragraph but the first numbered 7 paragraph.

8 A Okay.

9 Q That paragraph reads, "The defendant waives any challenge to the 10 Information based on venue and agrees to plead guilty in the United States District Court
11 for the District of Delaware to: Counts One and Two of the Information, which charge
12 the defendant with willful failure to pay tax, in violation of Title 26, United States Code,
13 Section 7203."

14 Did I read that correctly?

15 A I see that. Yes.

16 Q So, putting aside the process around the plea agreement and what 17 happened after it was signed --

18 A Uh-huh.

19 Q -- the defendant in this case, Robert Hunter Biden, did agree to waive venue,
20 correct?

21 A It appears so. The defendant waived any challenge based on venue.

22 Q Okay.

23 And the paragraph also says that the charges against Mr. Biden were laid out in an 24 information, correct?

25 A Yes.

1 Q An information is different than an indictment, correct?

2 A Yes. An information is something a defendant can agree to. It doesn't 3 require presentation to a grand jury.

4 Q And are you familiar with the difference between a pre-indictment plea
5 agreement and a post-indictment plea agreement?

6 A Yes.

7 Q Can you explain what that is?

8 A So a pre-indictment plea agreement is one that's reached before charges are 9 filed through the grand jury process. And a post-indictment plea agreement is one 10 where the indictment is issued and then a plea agreement is arranged to one or more 11 charges in the indictment. Although it doesn't have to be that way. You could do an 12 information after an indictment's been issued too.

13 Q And can you also explain, if you know, what a global plea agreement is?

14 A So a global plea agreement will often be in the context of where charges
15 either are pending or could be brought in multiple jurisdictions, and the global will cover 16 all the defendant's exposure in those different jurisdictions.

17 Q So, just to sum up, if a prosecutor and a defendant are working towards a 18 pre-indictment global plea agreement in which venue is waived, then there would be no
19 need to bring charges before a grand jury seated in the district where the alleged criminal 20 conduct actually took place. Is that fair to say?

21 A Yes. But, also, there'd be -- the plea agreement already covers that, so -- I 22 don't know if I fully understand the question.

23 Q My point is that, in a case like this, where there is a pre-indictment global 24 plea agreement that waives venue -- and, in this case, you know, the venue might have 25 been in Central District of California, for example --

1 A Uh-huh.

2 Q -- venue is waived. And so U.S. Attorney Weiss, for example, wouldn't 3 really need to do anything in your district in that case, because venue has been waived.
4 Is that fair to say?

5 A Yeah. They've already wrapped up the entire case.

6 Q Okay.

7 I want to move on and turn to the letters that we walked through --

8 A Okay.

9 Q -- in the prior round. And I know you've answered a lot of questions about 10 these already, but I just want to make a clean record so there's not any confusion in the 11 record.

12 A Okay.

13 Q So, looking at what's marked as exhibit 3, it's the June 7th letter.

14 A Okay.

15 Q The second paragraph of the letter reads, "While your letter does not specify
16 by name the ongoing investigation that is the subject of the Committee's oversight, its 17 content suggests your inquiry is related to an investigation in my District. If my 18 assumption is correct, I want to make clear that, as the Attorney General has stated, I 19 have been granted ultimate authority over this matter, including responsibility for 20 deciding where, when, and whether to file charges and for making decisions necessary to 21 preserve the integrity of the prosecution, consistent with Federal law, the Principles of 22 Federal Prosecution, and Departmental regulations."

23 Did I read that correctly?

24 A Yes.

25 Q Are you aware of any information that contradicts Mr. Weiss's statement

1 that he was granted ultimate authority over this matter?

2 A I'm not.

3 Q Okay. Are you aware of any information that contradicts Mr. Weiss's 4 statement that his authority over this matter includes the responsibility to decide where,
5 when, and whether to file charges?

6 A I am not.

7 Q Are you aware of any information that contradicts Mr. Weiss's statement 8 that his authority over this matter includes making all decisions necessary to preserve the 9 integrity of the prosecution?

10 A I'm not.

11 Q Okay.

12 And I want to turn to the last paragraph in this letter, which is on page 3.

13 A Okay.

14 Q That paragraph reads, quote, "In February 2021, I was asked to remain as 15 United States Attorney for the District of Delaware to continue my oversight of this 16 matter. Since that time, I have fulfilled my responsibilities, consistent with Department
17 practices and procedures, and will continue to do so. Throughout my tenure as U.S.
18 Attorney my decisions have been made -- and with respect to the matter must be 19 made -- without reference to political considerations."

20 Did I read that correctly?

21 A Yes.

22 Q Are you aware of any information that contradicts Mr. Weiss's statement 23 that his decisions in this matter had been made without reference to political 24 considerations?

25 A I am not.

1 Q All right. Thank you.

2 I want to move on to exhibit 4, which is the June 30th letter. And I want to look 3 at the third paragraph on the front page of this letter.

4 A Okay.

5 Q It says, "First, the Department of Justice did not retaliate against 'an Internal 6 Revenue Service ("IRS") Criminal Supervisory Special Agent and whistleblower, as well as
7 his entire investigative team... for making protected disclosures to Congress.'"

8 Did I read that correctly?

9 A I see that.

10 Q Are you aware of any information that contradicts this statement from Mr.
11 Weiss?

12 A I am not.

13 Q Okay.

14 The letter then quotes his June 7th letter saying that he had been granted ultimate 15 authority over the matter.

16 And then on the second page, at the top of the second page, he continues, "As the 17 U.S. Attorney for the District of Delaware, my charging authority is geographically limited
18 to my home district. If venue for a case lies elsewhere, common Departmental practice
19 is to contact the United States Attorney's Office for the district in question and determine
20 whether it wants to partner on the case. If not, I may request Special Attorney status
21 from the Attorney General pursuant to 28 U.S.C. Section 515. Here, I have been assured 22 that, if necessary after the above process, I would be granted Section 515 Authority in the 23 District of Columbia, the Central District of California, or any other district where charges 24 could be brought in this matter."

25 Did I read that correctly?

1 A Yes.

2 Q Were you aware of any information that would contradict Mr. Weiss's
3 statement that he had been assured that he would be granted Section 515 authority if 4 another U.S. Attorney -- if necessary, if, for example, another office declined to partner
5 with him?

6 A I'm not aware of any information of that kind.

7 Q Okay. To your knowledge, did Mr. Weiss ever actually request Section 515
8 authority?

9 A I don't know one way or the other.

10 Q Okay.

11 And I want to introduce as exhibit 6 a letter that was referenced in the prior hour 12 but not actually introduced.

13 A Uh-huh.

14 Q It is the July 10, 2023, letter from Mr. Weiss to Senator Lindsey Graham.
15 Lindsey Graham is the Republican ranking member on the Senate Judiciary Committee.

16 A Okay.

17 Q This will be exhibit 6.

18 [Estrada Exhibit No. 6

19 Was marked for identification.]

20 BY [REDACTED]:

21 Q Have you seen this letter?

22 A I don't believe I have.

23 Q Do you want to take a minute to read it?

24 A Sure.

25 Okay. I see it.

1 Q I want to look at the third paragraph. The first sentence of that paragraph 2 reads: "To clarify an apparent misperception and to avoid future confusion, I wish to 3 make one point clear: in this case, I have not requested Special Counsel designation
4 pursuant to 28 CFR Section 600 et seq."

5 Did I read that correctly?

6 A Yes.

7 Q 28 CFR Section 600 et seq gives the Attorney General authority to appoint a
8 special counsel, correct?

9 A I am not completely familiar with the regulation. If he writes that, I have 10 no reason to not agree with it.

11 Q Okay.

12 A I've never had occasion to request to be special counsel.

13 Q Okay.

14 We'll introduce for the record the special counsel regulations. It's 28 CFR Section 15 600.1. This will be exhibit 7.

16 [Estrada Exhibit No. 7

17 Was marked for identification.]

18 Mr. Estrada. Okay. I see that.

19 BY [REDACTED]:

20 Q So, having had a minute to review 28 CFR Section 600.1, you agree that 21 these are the regulations that give the Attorney General the authority to appoint a special 22 counsel when he or she determines that it's appropriate?

23 A It appears to be so, yes.

24 Q Okay.

25 Turning back to the Senator Graham letter, are you aware of any information that

1 contradicts Mr. Weiss's statement that, as of July 10, 2023, when this letter was sent, he
2 had not requested special counsel designation pursuant to 28 CFR Section 600.1?

3 A I'm not aware of any information that contradicts that.

4 Q Okay.

5 That July 10 letter continues, quote, "Rather, I had discussions with Departmental 6 officials regarding potential appointment under 28 U.S.C. Section 515, which would have 7 allowed me to file charges in a district outside my own without the partnership of the 8 local U.S. Attorney. I was assured that I would be granted this authority if it proved
9 necessary. And this assurance came months before the October 7, 2022, meeting
10 referenced throughout the whistleblowers' allegations. In this case, I've followed the 11 process outlined in my June 30 letter and have never been denied the authority to bring 12 charges in any jurisdiction."

13 Did I read that correctly?

14 A Yes.

15 Q To the best of your knowledge, is it accurate that Mr. Weiss was never 16 denied the authority to bring charges in any jurisdiction?

17 A I have no reason to think he was denied that authority. Certainly, in my 18 district, I never denied him the ability to bring the case. In fact, I offered him support to 19 bring the case if he chose to.

20 Q On September 20th of this year, Attorney General Garland testified before 21 the House Judiciary Committee. He told the committee that, quote, "Mr. Weiss has full 22 authority to conduct his investigation however he wishes."

23 Do you have any information to contradict the Attorney General's statement?

24 A No.

2 [1:20 p.m.]

3 BY [REDACTED]:

4 Q The Attorney General also told the committee that, quote, "Mr. Weiss had,
5 as I said at the very beginning, that he had authority over all matters that pertained to
6 Hunter Biden."

7 Do you have any information to contradict the Attorney General's statement?

8 A I do not.

9 Q To sum up, do you have any reason to believe that David Weiss lied to 10 Congress or was misleading to Congress when he described the extent of authority he 11 had been granted by the Attorney General?

12 A I have no reason to think he lied. And what he did say seems consistent 13 with my experience in dealing with him in October of 2022.

14 Q Okay.

15 Do you have any reason to believe that the Attorney General prevented Mr. Weiss
16 from taking any particular investigative step?

17 A I have no reason to believe that.

18 Q Do you have any reason to believe that Attorney General Garland denied Mr.
19 Weiss any resources for his investigation?

20 A I have no reason to believe that.

21 Q Do you have any reason to believe that President Biden interfered in this 22 investigation in any way?

23 A I have no reason to believe that.

24 Q Did you ever tell Mr. Weiss that he could not bring charges in the Central 25 District of California?

1 A I never told him he couldn't bring charges. To the contrary, we had allowed
2 attorneys from his office to be SAUSA'ed to litigate in our district, and we had offered him
3 administrative support. So it's quite the opposite.

4 Q Did you ever take any steps to prevent Mr. Weiss -- I'm sorry.

5 To the best of your knowledge, did anyone else in your office ever take any steps
6 to prevent Mr. Weiss from bringing charges in the Central District of California?

7 A No.

8 Q Okay.

9 Did you do anything to delay the investigation into Hunter Biden?

10 A No, I did not.

11 Q Okay.

12 Throughout your tenure as U.S. Attorney, have you made all decisions without 13 reference to political considerations?

14 A Throughout my tenure as U.S. Attorney, Assistant United States Attorney, 15 frankly as a practicing lawyer, yes.

16 Q Okay.

17 [REDACTED]: All right. We can go off the record. Thank you.

18 [Whereupon, at 1:22 p.m., the interview was concluded.]

1 Mr. Castor. Good morning. This is a transcribed interview of Special Counsel
2 David Weiss. Chairman Jordan has requested this interview as part of the committee's 3 oversight of the Justice Department's commitment to impartial justice in its handling of 4 the Hunter Biden investigation.

5 We're also investigating protected disclosures made by two whistleblowers who 6 were an integral part of the investigative team before, as we understand it, you asked for 7 their removal.

8 Would the witness please state your name for the record?

9 Mr. Weiss. David Weiss.

10 Mr. Castor. And you're joined here with agency counsel?

11 Mr. Weiss. Correct.

12 Mr. Castor. State your name for the record.

13 Ms. Zdeb. Sarah Zdeb, Department of Justice.

14 Ms. Gao. Greta Gao, Department of Justice.

15 Mr. Castor. And, Mr. Weiss, you understand that agency counsel has a legal duty
16 to protect the interests of the Department and not you personally?

17 Mr. Weiss. I do.

18 Mr. Castor. And you've decided to go forward with that arrangement?

19 Mr. Weiss. I have.

20 Mr. Castor. Okay. On behalf of the committee, I would like to thank you for 21 appearing here today to answer our questions, and we appreciate you coming down from 22 Delaware voluntarily.

23 My name is Steve Castor. I'm with Chairman Jordan's Judiciary Committee staff.

24 I'll have the staffers in the room introduce themselves, starting with my colleague
25 Ms. Nabity.

1 Ms. Nabity. Caroline Nabity with Chairman Jordan's staff.
2 Chairman Jordan. Jim Jordan.
3 Mr. Armstrong. Kelly Armstrong.
4 Mr. Nadler. Jerry Nadler. Not staff.
5 [REDACTED], Ranking Member Nadler's staff.
6 [REDACTED], Ranking Member Nadler's staff.
7 [REDACTED], Ranking Member Nadler's staff.
8 Ms. Scanlon. Mary Gay Scanlon, PA-5.
9 Mr. Ivey. Glenn Ivey, member of the committee.
10 Ms. Havens. Brittany Havens, Chairman Jordan's staff.
11 Ms. Ferguson. Betsy Ferguson, Chairman Jordan's staff.
12 Mr. Chepp. Dillon Chepp, Chairman Jordan's staff.
13 Ms. Meadows. Lillian Meadows, Chairman Jordan's staff.
14 Mr. Clerget. Sean Clerget, Chairman Jordan's staff.
15 Mr. Abourisk. Clark Abourisk, Chairman Jordan's staff.
16 [REDACTED], with Ranking Member Nadler's staff.
17 [REDACTED], Ranking Member Nadler's staff.
18 [REDACTED], with Mr. Nadler.
19 Mr. Castor. Now there's going to be a quiz about each of their names.
20 Mr. Weiss. I'll fail miserably.
21 Mr. Ivey. Read the transcript.
22 Mr. Castor. I would like to go over the interview process that we'll follow today.
23 Our questioning will proceed in rounds. The majority will ask questions first for 24 an hour, and then the minority will have a chance to ask questions for an hour as well.
25 We'll alternate back and forth until we're done.

1 We often take a short break at the end of each hour, but if you need to take a
2 break apart from that to confer with counsel or for any other reason, let us know.

3 As you can see, there's an official House reporter taking down everything we say
4 to make a written record, so we will do our best to go slowly and give verbal responses.
5 Are you comfortable with that?

6 Mr. Weiss. Yes, I am.

7 Mr. Castor. We'll do our best to limit the number of people directing questions
8 to you during any given hour. Usually, it's just one staffer. But, of course, the 9 members -- and we're joined here by five members. The Republican members may 10 jump in during my questioning, and the Democratic members may jump in during their 11 hour as well.

12 We want you to answer our questions in the most complete and truthful manner
13 possible. If you honestly don't know the answer to a question or don't remember, it's 14 best not to guess. Please do give us your best recollection. And it's okay to tell us if 15 you learned something from a third party. The rules of hearsay don't apply in this 16 setting. Just indicate how you came to know the information.

17 And, if there are things you don't know or can't remember, just say so. And we 18 would appreciate it if you, to the extent you don't remember an entire set of facts, that 19 you just help us with as much as you do remember.

20 You also understand that, by law, you are required to answer questions before 21 Congress truthfully. Do you understand that?

22 Mr. Weiss. I do understand that.

23 Mr. Castor. And this applies to questions posed by congressional staffers in an 24 interview. Do you understand that as well?

25 Mr. Weiss. Yes.

1 Mr. Castor. Witnesses that knowingly provide false testimony could be subject
2 to criminal prosecution for making false statements under 18 United States Code 1001.
3 Do you understand that?

4 Mr. Weiss. I am familiar with that.

5 Mr. Castor. Thank you. Is there any reason you're unable to provide complete
6 and truthful answers to today's questions?

7 Mr. Weiss. There is not.

8 Mr. Castor. Okay. That's the end of my opening remarks.

9 Ms. Zdeb, do you have anything?

10 Ms. Zdeb. I don't, but Mr. Weiss has a couple of brief remarks.

11 Mr. Castor. Okay. Let me ask [REDACTED] if she wants to --

12 [REDACTED]: Yeah. We just thank the Special Counsel for taking time out of your 13 very busy schedule to come in and join us today.

14 Mr. Weiss. Thank you.

15 Mr. Castor. Or any of the members, did you have anything you would like to 16 say?

17 Okay, sir.

18 Mr. Weiss. Thank you.

19 I have voluntarily agreed to appear before this committee. To my knowledge, I
20 am the first Special Counsel to testify before the submission of the special counsel's 21 report. I have done so out of respect for the committee's oversight responsibilities and 22 to respond to questions raised about the scope of my authority.

23 I am in the midst of conducting an ongoing investigation and prosecution and will 24 be limited as to what I can say at this point. I will prepare a report at the conclusion of 25 the work by the Special Counsel's Office and will be able to share more information at 1 that time.

2 Today, I am prepared to address misunderstandings about the scope of my 3 authority to decide where, when, and whether to bring charges in this matter. I do not 4 intend to answer questions that could jeopardize the ongoing litigation, our 5 investigations, or the rights of defendants or other individuals involved in these matters.

6 I am and have been the decisionmaker in this case. I do not, however, make 7 these decisions in a vacuum. I am bound by Federal law, the principles of Federal 8 prosecution, and DOJ guidelines.

9 As a result, there are processes that I must adhere to in making investigative and 10 charging decisions. These processes did not interfere with my decisionmaking authority.
11 At no time was I blocked or otherwise prevented from pursuing charges or taking the 12 steps necessary in the investigation by other U.S. Attorneys, the Tax Division, or anyone 13 else in the Department of Justice.

14 As I have said previously, I did not request Special Counsel status until August of 15 2023. When I made that request, it was promptly granted. Throughout this 16 investigation, the career prosecutors on my team and I have made decisions based on the 17 facts and the law. Political considerations played no part in our decisionmaking.

18 Our analysis has been moored to the principles of Federal prosecution, and going 19 forward, my team and I will continue to abide by these same principles as we try to bring 20 this matter to a just conclusion. Thanks.

21 Mr. Castor. Thank you.

22 Just at the top, I'm going to mark three letters that you sent to Congress.

23 The first is exhibit 1, a June 7th letter.

24 [Weiss Exhibit No. 1

25 Was marked for identification.]

1 Mr. Castor. Exhibit 2 is a June 30th letter, both to Chairman Jordan.

2 [Weiss Exhibit No. 2

3 Was marked for identification.]

4 Mr. Castor. And the third is a July 10th letter.

5 [Weiss Exhibit No. 3

6 Was marked for identification.]

7 Mr. Castor. We'll get into the specifics of these later, but I just thought it would 8 be helpful to have it marked as exhibits 1, 2, and 3 right at the top.

9 Mr. Weiss. Thank you.

10 Mr. Castor. I'll start the clock. It's 10:11.

11 EXAMINATION

12 BY MR. CASTOR:

13 Q When were you nominated to be the U.S. Attorney for the District of 14 Delaware?

15 A I believe in late 2000- -- sometime in 2017, I believe, to the best of my 16 recollection.

17 Q Okay. And you were confirmed by the Senate?

18 A I was.

19 Q And when was that?

20 A That was several months thereafter. 2018.

21 Q Okay. And then you began your tenure as U.S. Attorney when?

22 A I was acting for some time since the spring, I believe, of 2017. And I was 23 confirmed, as I said, in the spring of 2018, I believe, or there so.

24 Q Okay. And you were supported by both Democratic Senators from 25 Delaware. Is that correct?

1 A That is correct.

2 Q Are you familiar with the Blue Slip Process?

3 A Generally.

4 Q Okay. What's your understanding of that?

5 A My understanding is you -- in all jurisdictions, you are typically 6 recommended or not by your local Senators.

7 Q Okay.

8 A And the Senators -- my understanding is the senators supported my position
9 as U.S. Attorney.

10 Q Okay. So both Senators Coons and Carper recommended you to the White 11 House?

12 A That's my understanding.

13 Q Okay. Now, after the conclusion of the previous administration in January 14 of 2021, you were asked to stay on?

15 A I believe it was end of January, early February. And, yes, I was asked to 16 stay on.

17 Q And who asked you to stay?

18 A It was a telephone call, and it was the Acting Attorney General at that point
19 in time that asked me to stay.

20 Q And was that Mr. Wilkinson?

21 A Yes, it was.

22 Q And what do you remember from that call?

23 A Just that. That he asked if I would be willing to continue to serve as U.S.
24 Attorney for the District of Delaware.

25 Q And did you expect that call?

1 A I wouldn't say that I expected it, nor would I say I was shocked by it.

2 Q Okay. So you had prepared your resignation just like the rest of the U.S.

3 Attorneys?

4 A I don't know that I had actually prepared my resignation.

5 Q Okay.

6 A I mean, I understood the process that was going on, and there were other
7 U.S. Attorneys that either resigned or would be asked to end their tenure at some point.
8 But I had not prepared a resignation letter.

9 Q So you generally didn't know what was going to happen?

10 A I didn't know what was going to happen.

11 Q Okay. But you suspected maybe they'd ask you to stay on?

12 A I suspected that it was a possibility.

13 Q Okay. Before Mr. Wilkinson called you and asked you to stay on, had you
14 had any conversations with Department officials or White House officials or transition 15 team officials about staying on?

16 A I had not.

17 Q Okay. So, when Mr. Wilkinson called you, that was the first time that you 18 were talking to somebody in a position of authority about staying on?

19 A In the new administration, yes.

20 Q Okay. And these decisions are ultimately made by the President, correct?

21 A I don't know who made this decision, to tell you the truth. I know what 22 was communicated to me during that conversation.

23 Q But U.S. Attorneys serve at the pleasure of the President, correct?

24 A U.S. Attorneys serve at the pleasure of the President. That is correct.

25 Q So currently you serve at the pleasure of President Biden, correct?

1 A I do.

2 Q And, when the decision was made to ask you to stay on, that was a decision
3 made by President Biden, correct?

4 A Again, I can't speak to that. All I can say is, as I have said before, that it was 5 communicated to me by the Acting Attorney General.

6 Q Okay. But certainly, if President Biden didn't want you to stay on, you
7 would have been removed like all U.S. Attorneys are when a President wants that to 8 happen, correct?

9 A As we discussed a moment ago, I serve at the pleasure of the President.

10 Q Okay. How many attorneys are in your office?

11 A Approximately --

12 Q I know, obviously, it changes.

13 A Yeah. We just had two additions. So I think we're at 24, 25, including the 14 U.S. Attorney.

15 Q Okay. And how many work on criminal matters?

16 A So I have six in the Civil Division. About 14.

17 Chairman Jordan. Did Mr. Wilkinson give you any specific reason why he wanted 18 you to stay?

19 Mr. Weiss. He did not.

20 BY MR. CASTOR:

21 Q When you have interactions with Justice Department Headquarters or Main 22 Justice, how does that ordinarily happen? Who is your primary point of contact?

23 A I don't know that there is an ordinary. I don't know that I would designate 24 anyone in particular.

25 Q Under the reporting structure, though, you report up through the Deputy

1 Attorney General. Is that correct?

2 A That's correct.

3 Q And how often do you talk with Ms. Monaco?

4 A I have never spoken with Ms. Monaco.

5 Q You've never spoken to her?

6 A Never.

7 Q Okay. And do you have communications with someone else in the office?

8 Maybe the PADAG?

9 A I have -- my point of contact for the last year, year and a half has been 10 Associate Deputy Attorney General Weinsheimer.

11 Q Okay. So you're not in contact on a regular basis with the PADAG, Mr.
12 Miller?

13 A I am not.

14 Q Have you ever had communications with him?

15 A I have not.

16 Q Okay. So you've never had any communications with Marshall Miller or 17 Lisa Monaco?

18 A I have not.

19 Q Okay. And how often do you have communications with 20 Mr. Weinsheimer?

21 A It varies depending upon what's going on. But I would say we've spoken, 22 before August of 2023, approximately once a month, sometimes more frequently.

23 Q And was it related to the Hunter Biden case, or was it related to your 24 ordinary duties?

25 A Generally, it was related to the Hunter Biden case investigation.

1 Q Okay. And when did Mr. Weinsheimer first start having communications
2 with you about the Hunter Biden case?

3 A I think we first spoke about the case in the spring of 2022.

4 Q And, to the extent you can tell us, what were the nature of those 5 discussions?

6 A In 2022?

7 Q Yeah.

8 A Actually, more accurately, February of 2022, I think, was the first time we 9 spoke. And I would have reached out because we were looking to bring certain portions
10 of our investigation to either D.C. or L.A. At that time, D.C.

11 Q Okay. Did you call him, or did he call you?

12 A I reached out by email to the Principal Deputy Attorney General at that time, 13 John Carlin.

14 Q Okay. So he was the PADAG before Mr. Barr?

15 A Correct.

16 Q And how often had you spoken with Mr. Carlin?

17 A Before this? Never.

18 Q Okay. So you initiated email contact with Mr. Carlin, and he referred you 19 to Mr. Weinsheimer?

20 A I initiated email contact with Mr. Carlin, and I subsequently had a 21 conversation with John Carlin, and I believe Brad Weinsheimer was on the call.

22 Q Okay. And what did they tell you about bringing the case in D.C. or 23 different jurisdictions from yours?

24 A We discussed the fact that I would -- they wanted me to proceed in the way
25 it would typically be done, and that would involve ultimately reaching out to the U.S.

1 Attorney in the District of Columbia.

2 I raised the idea of 515 authority at that time because I had been handling the 3 investigation for some period of time. And, as I said, they suggested let's go through the 4 typical process and reach out to D.C. and see if D.C. would be interested in joining or 5 otherwise participating in the investigation.

6 Q Okay. And you mentioned 515 authority, and in your June 30th letter, you
7 refer to that as Special Attorney status?

8 A I don't know that I referred to it as Special Attorney status at that time. I 9 typically referred to it as 515 authority.

10 Q Okay.

11 A For whatever reason, that's the way -- my recollection is that's the way I 12 referenced it.

13 Q Okay. I mean, the text of the statute talks about Special Attorney.

14 A Special Attorney. That's correct.

15 Q So, from your point of view, is there a difference between being a Special 16 Attorney under 515 and being a Special Counsel?

17 A Yes, there is a difference.

18 Q And what's that difference, as you understand it?

19 A As I understand it, the Special Attorney under 515 was for the purpose of 20 allowing me, as a U.S. Attorney in one jurisdiction, to possibly proceed with charges in 21 another jurisdiction.

22 Q Okay.

23 A It has to be approved by the Attorney General or his designee.

24 Q Okay. And what's your understanding then of Special Counsel authority?

25 A Special Counsel is permitted to bring charges in any jurisdiction in which

1 Special Counsel determines -- which Special Counsel determines is appropriate,
2 consistent with the order and the authority bestowed on Special Counsel through that 3 order.

4 Q Okay.

5 A You know, which describes, in general terms, my investigative authority.

6 Q Okay. But it's all 515 authority, right?

7 A It's all 515 authority?

8 Q Are both the Special Attorney and the Special Counsel status that we've 9 been discussing here flow from the 28 United States Code 515?

10 A I think perhaps in -- there's the 500 series, but there are also regulations that 11 attend these Special Counsel --

12 Q Okay.

13 A -- authority.

14 Q Okay. So, when you initially were pursuing or discussing 515 authority or 15 considering it, you know, when you were speaking with Mr. Weinsheimer, in your mind,
16 that was different from Special Counsel authority?

17 A Absolutely.

18 Q Okay. And what did Mr. Weinsheimer or Mr. Carlin say about 515
19 authority?

20 A As I said, they said let's proceed as we would in the normal process. We 21 talked a bit about the fact that it's often the case in D.C. that a DOJ component, whether 22 it's Tax Division or Public Integrity, would develop a case and reach out to the U.S.
23 Attorney's Office in D.C. and give them an opportunity to participate. So the discussion
24 was let's proceed in a typical fashion.

25 And, as you know, ultimately -- this didn't happen in this conversation, but down

1 the road -- I was given the authority to proceed if I chose to do so.

2 Q Okay. Are you familiar with the term "SAUSA"?

3 A I am familiar with the term "SAUSA."

4 Q Okay. What does that term mean to you?

5 A It's a special assistant United States attorney.

6 Q Okay. And what's the difference between, you know, SAUSA status and 7 515 status?

8 A You know, to the extent -- I want to make sure I fully understand it.

9 Q Of course.

10 A Look, SAUSA doesn't have to be part and parcel of a 515 authority situation.
11 For instance, if we have a case in Delaware -- a drug investigation, let's say -- that,
12 during the course of the investigation takes us to a neighboring jurisdiction, and both 13 jurisdictions -- we'll start talking with agents and AUSAs in that other jurisdiction to 14 ensure we're deconflicting, proceeding in a safe fashion.

15 And, if we ultimately -- so we'll pursue that investigation in conjunction with one 16 another, and if there comes a time when we're talking about charges, we'll decide how 17 we're going to proceed in the case. We might both move forward. Delaware might 18 take it. It could proceed in any number of fashions.

19 If we chose to continue to play a role in prosecuting a piece of that case in, let's
20 say, the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, we could have an attorney designated as a 21 SAUSA to allow that attorney to participate in the case in the Eastern District of 22 Pennsylvania.

23 Q Okay. So, after your discussion with Mr. Weinsheimer and Mr. Carlin in 24 February of 2022, what was your next step in terms of initiating contact with the D.C. U.S.
25 Attorney's Office?

1 A Ultimately -- and I think it was in early March -- I reached out to Matt Graves,
2 who was the U.S. Attorney in D.C. at that time.

3 Q And, before you reached out to Mr. Graves, had your staff been working 4 with Mr. Graves' staff?

5 A No.

6 Q Okay. So the first contact Mr. Graves' office had from your office was when 7 you telephoned him?

8 A That's my understanding, yes.

9 Q And what's your recollection of that call?

10 A It was about, I think, a 5-, 10-minute call. I had never met or spoken with 11 Mr. Graves before. I explained the situation. I talked a little bit about the 12 investigation, some of the background of the investigation.

13 I mentioned that I had a conversation with the Office of the Deputy Attorney
14 General, that I had raised 515 authority, because I wanted him to know, you know, what I
15 was thinking and that I intended to proceed in any event.

16 And we agreed that we would -- I think we first talked about putting the criminal 17 chiefs together and our staffs so that we would proceed from there.

18 Q And what did Mr. Graves say to that?

19 A He was -- you know, he was receptive. Like I said, we agreed that my 20 criminal chief, I think, would reach out to his, and we would move forward.

21 Q And then what happened next?

22 A I know that the teams met, but ultimately, I received word from my staff
23 that the U.S. Attorney's Office in the District of Columbia had decided not to join the case
24 as a partner or co-counsel moving forward.

25 Q Okay. And what did that mean for the case proceeding?

1 A That meant that I would follow up with respect to the 515 authority --

2 Q Okay.

3 A -- which, ultimately, I did. And I had a conversation with -- again, this 4 conversation, I believe, was with John Carlin and Brad Weinsheimer.

5 Q Okay.

6 A I think it was, best of my recollection, in early May.

7 At that time, we were talking about where we would proceed. There were 8 questions about where we would proceed. I mentioned before that we were 9 considering D.C., which is where we went first, and the Central District of California in L.A.

10 I told Messrs. Carlin and Weinsheimer that D.C. had decided not to join the 11 investigation, that we were reviewing matters, and had not decided whether we would 12 proceed in D.C. And my recollection is that John Carlin at that time said, "Look, if you
13 decide to proceed in D.C., you have the authority to do so, and you have the authority 14 to -- under 515, to bring whatever charges you deem appropriate."

15 Q Mr. Carlin said that?

16 A Mr. Carlin said that.

17 Q And did you have any discussion with Mr. Graves about SAUSA status?
18 About having your lawyers from the District of Delaware come to D.C. and just get a 19 special assistant United States attorney designation?

20 A I don't recall. It may have been. I just don't recall the specifics of that.

21 Q And, at this point in time, we're talking about the 2014 and 2015 tax years
22 for Mr. Biden; is that correct?

23 A I'm not going to comment on, you know, what we were talking about. No.
24 I'm sorry. I'm not going to talk about the merits, the investigation, or any aspect of that.

25 Q Okay. But the 2014 and 2015 tax years, the statute of limitations was

1 about to expire, correct?

2 A Again, I'm not going to talk about something that touches on the
3 investigation.

4 Q Okay. It's our understanding that the statute of limitations had been tolled
5 by a tolling agreement. Is that your understanding?

6 A Again, I'm not going to talk about any aspect of the investigation or what 7 could crop up in the litigation that we're currently involved in.

8 Q Okay. And that the tolling agreement was set to expire in September of 9 2022. Is that your understanding?

10 A Again, I'm not at liberty to discuss the particulars of the investigation or what 11 could impact the litigation. However, look, there will come a time at the preparation 12 and submission of the report when I expect I would address matters such as that.

13 Chairman Jordan. What was the date that you had the conversation with the 14 U.S. Attorney in the District of Columbia?

15 Mr. Weiss. I believe that conversation was in early March of 2022.

16 Chairman Jordan. And then when did he decline to partner with you? Same
17 time?

18 Mr. Weiss. I think we received their feedback within a month.

19 Chairman Jordan. So late March, early April?

20 Mr. Weiss. Yes.

21 Chairman Jordan. And then you had a subsequent conversation with 22 Mr. Weinsheimer and Mr. Carlin?

23 Mr. Weiss. I had a subsequent conversation with Mr. Weinsheimer and 24 Mr. Carlin.

25 Chairman Jordan. So you wanted to partner with him, and he said no. Why

1 didn't you just ask for 515 status right then?

2 Mr. Weiss. I did. In my next conversation with Carlin and Weinsheimer, I did
3 ask for 515 authority.

4 Chairman Jordan. And then why didn't they give it?

5 Mr. Weiss. They did. They said if I intended to proceed -- as I just described,
6 John Carlin told me that if I intended to or was interested in moving forward in D.C., I had 7 the authority to do so, and I had the authority to bring whatever charges I determined
8 were appropriate.

9 Chairman Jordan. But you didn't want to proceed?

10 Mr. Weiss. Excuse me?

11 Chairman Jordan. But you didn't want to proceed, then, in D.C.?

12 Mr. Weiss. I'm not going to talk about what matters are clearly part of the 13 investigation and the deliberative process.

14 BY MR. CASTOR:

15 Q What type of paper flow occurred between your staff and Mr. Graves' staff?
16 I mean, was there an exchange of documents, paper?

17 A We provided them with information so that they could make an informed 18 judgment on deciding whether to participate in the investigation. But I'm not going to 19 get into particulars of documentation. All of that would be matters that are part of the 20 investigation and relevant to the merits of the ongoing litigation.

21 Q Okay. Can you at least tell us, you know, what types of documents were 22 shared?

23 A No.

24 Q Or can you identify them at a privileged level?

25 A No. I can't get into the particulars of documentation that was shared.

1 Again, these would have been part of an ongoing investigation, and this would deal with 2 the deliberative process between ourselves and D.C.

3 Q Okay. Did your staff have in-person meetings with Mr. Graves' staff?
4 Was it all done over the telephone?

5 A I'm not sure. I know they had a detailed discussion at some point in time.

6 Q Was it more than one?

7 A I don't know for sure.

8 Q And was it essentially your staff trying to convince Mr. Graves' staff to 9 partner or to co-counsel?

10 A No. I don't think it was an effort in persuasion. I think it was just an 11 attempt to appropriately inform them.

12 Q Okay. But, obviously, you had an interest in prosecuting a case in D.C. I
13 mean, you wouldn't have called the DAG's office and you wouldn't have initiated contact
14 with Mr. Graves if you didn't want to move forward with the prosecution, correct?

15 A I think it's fair to say there was an interest in moving forward in either D.C.
16 or L.A. or wherever the facts and the law took us.

17 Q Right. Or both, correct? I mean, if you're looking at a tax case, the venue 18 is --

19 A Again, I don't want to get too far into investigation, deliberative process, or 20 the merits. But certainly these were things that were being contemplated.

21 Q Okay. But, if a taxpayer failed to pay the taxes willfully, I mean, the venue 22 for that is where?

23 A If a taxpayer --

24 Q If there's a potential tax -- a criminal tax charge for failure to file, where is 25 venue for that?

1 A It depends where -- you know, where the taxpayer is residing, where the 2 returns are filed, where the returns are prepared. I know there are all kinds of 3 considerations that one has to evaluate in determining appropriate venue.

4 Q But the team had evaluated that and had decided where venue was 5 appropriate for the different tax years, correct?

6 A Again, I'm not going to get into, you know, merits, deliberative process, or 7 matters that are clearly part of the investigation. I'll speak to my authority.

8 Q We're dealing with the tax years of 20- -- for Mr. Biden, 2014 through 2019;
9 is that correct?

10 A You're asking me matters that are not part of the question of authority and 11 clearly go to the merits of the investigation and the litigation.

12 Q Okay. But you know the answer to my question, correct? If you were 13 free from the Department's admonishment that you can't talk about this, you would 14 know the answer to my question; is that correct?

15 A Look, Counsel, I appreciate the question. It's not an admonishment. I am 16 very sensitive to a matter that we are currently investigating. The last thing I want to do
17 here while I am trying to provide answers -- the last thing I want to do is to say or suggest 18 anything that's going to be used against the government in our ongoing litigation or in 19 any investigation.

20 You know, I'm trying to tiptoe and provide what information I can relative to my 21 authority, but I'm not going to get into the other matters.

22 Q In 2022, after a man in Delaware was sentenced to 6 months in prison for tax
23 evasion, you stated, "Tax dodging represents an affront to every member of the taxpaying 24 public, and we will continue to prosecute tax cheats aggressively."

25 Do you remember making that statement?

1 A I don't have a specific recollection.

2 Q Okay. But do you believe in that?

3 A I believe that the laws of the United States, including tax laws, should be 4 enforced.

5 Q In 2021, after a man was sentenced to 1 year in prison in order to pay
6 $192,529 in restitution for tax evasion, you made the following statement in conjunction 7 with announcing that: "The financial loss in tax cases is shared by every member of the 8 taxpaying public. Our Nation's ability to operate and serve its citizenry depends on 9 voluntary compliance with its tax obligations."

10 Do you remember making that statement?

11 A I don't have a specific recollection, but nor would I divorce myself from any 12 statement of that nature.

13 Q Do you still believe that financial loss in tax cases is shared by every member 14 of the taxpaying public?

15 A I still believe that, yes.

16 Q Do you believe that public figures are exceptions to that?

17 A Nobody is an exception to the tax laws. We have a system that's built on 18 the notion of voluntary compliance.

19 Q All right. Shifting gears a little bit, on politically-sensitive investigations, 20 what policies does DOJ have to prevent a politically-motivated employee from being 21 involved with an investigation that might touch on political sensitivities?

22 A I am not aware of a policy that you're referring to. So, if you could show
23 me something, I'm happy to review it.

24 Q I guess the question is, is there such a policy?

25 A I'm not aware of such a policy, and I haven't run into this situation.

1 Q Okay. Now, if your office was prosecuting, hypothetically, a political figure
2 in Delaware, say an elected official, and someone on your staff, you know, demonstrated 3 a political ideology consistent with the person you're prosecuting, what would be the 4 process to sideline them or --

5 A It's a hypothetical with all kinds of variables, and it's not something I'm going 6 to speculate about.

7 Q Okay. If you're aware, on a politically-sensitive investigation, what 8 protocols does DOJ have to prevent politically-motivated decisions from being made on a
9 particular investigation?

10 A I'm not aware of protocols. And look, my interest and the interest of 11 prosecutors in my office is pursuing cases, and we should be pursuing cases based on the 12 laws and the facts, period.

13 Q But you're not aware of any Department processes or protocols for dealing 14 with --

15 A Look, no, I'm not aware of any policies, and I haven't experienced, to my 16 knowledge, a situation in which I had to deal with the hypothetical that you're describing.

17 Q Okay. On a politically-sensitive investigation, if an investigator or 18 prosecutor makes what is believed to be a politically-motivated statement or decision, 19 how is that reviewed in your office?

20 A There is no policy or practice or procedure. And, again, I'm not aware of 21 such a situation.

22 Q For example, on the Hunter Biden case, if one of your assistant United States
23 attorneys was exhibiting favoritism towards the Biden family or towards Hunter Biden,
24 and that was brought to your attention, what would be the process to sort that out?

25 A Again, I'm not going to comment on any aspect of the investigation or a

1 prosecution, and from my perspective, the prosecutors who participated in this case
2 followed the law and the facts. That was the motivation.

3 Q So your office doesn't have a process or protocol for dealing with that?

4 A My office has no process or protocol for dealing with something like that.
5 It's not something we have engaged in, participated in, or that I have experienced.

6 Q Okay. If a member of the investigative team believes such a thing has 7 occurred, what is their course of action?

8 A Again, you're talking about hypotheticals, and I'm not going to speculate on 9 what their course of action might be.

10 Q Is there an independent review within DOJ that can address that? If a 11 member of the investigative team believes that a politically-motivated decision is being 12 made to protect a target of investigation or a potential defendant, is there somebody in 13 DOJ that can review that?

14 A Again, I don't have an answer for the question, and it calls for a hypothetical 15 or a speculative response on my part. I'm just not going to express an opinion on it.

16 Q Well, it's not that speculative. I mean, we have two whistleblowers that 17 testified about what they asserted was political -- politically-motivated decisions made in 18 the Hunter Biden case, correct?

19 A I am aware that you have two whistleblowers who have testified. That's
20 correct.

21 Q So you're not aware of any independent review within DOJ that can evaluate 22 concerns raised by members of the investigative team?

23 A As I sit here today, I'm not aware of any such reviews.

24 Q Okay. If a special agent assigned to an investigation had concerns with the 25 objectivity of the Justice Department, unethical conduct of DOJ employees assigned to a

1 case, or DOJ employees who have provided preferential treatment to a taxpayer, how 2 would that agent or employee raise those concerns?

3 A Again, that calls for speculation on my part. You're talking about agents or 4 agency-related matters. It's not something I'm going to speculate about.

5 Q I mean, it's not that hypothetical. I mean, we have two senior, you know,
6 criminal investigators that have bravely come forward to Congress and identified what 7 they consider is preferential treatment that was afforded to Hunter Biden.

8 And, you know, I'm just asking you what the process would ordinarily be when a
9 member of the investigative team believes that that's occurred. What's the process
10 inside your office or inside of DOJ? Is there any process?

11 A I've told you. I have no such process. We haven't experienced it in our 12 office. And to generally -- I don't have an answer. I don't --

13 Q Okay.

14 A It's not something I experienced. I understand what your representation is 15 with respect to these whistleblowers, and that would have me commenting on specifics
16 relative to this investigation and this case.

17 Q Okay. What's your understanding of the word "retaliation"?

18 A In the context of retaliation vis-a-vis whistleblowers?

19 Q Uh-huh.

20 A I'm not going to get into anything along those lines.

21 Q Okay. Are you familiar with what a protected disclosure to Congress is? If 22 a whistleblower believes that they've exhausted all avenues and they'd like to come to 23 Congress?

24 A Again, that's not something for me to speak to. I'm here to talk about my 25 authority. I'm not going to get into these other matters.

1 Q Okay. But you are aware that there are avenues for whistleblowers to 2 come to Congress and to make legally-protected disclosures, correct?

3 A As I think I indicated in my first letter to the chairman, I am aware of and 4 appreciate the whistleblower rights. I do. I understand them generally, and I
5 appreciate the importance of those rights.

6 Q Prior to the March of 2022 discussion that you had with Mr. Graves -- and it
7 was March of 2022. Did I get that date right?

8 A That's correct.

9 Q Had the matters that you had brought to Mr. Graves' office -- had they 10 already been approved by the Tax Division?

11 A My recollection is that -- Tax Division?

12 Q Yes.

13 A Right. I'm not going to comment on Tax Division approvals relative to this 14 case. It would entail the deliberative process.

15 Q I mean, you're aware that the Tax Division needs to okay criminal tax 16 charges, right?

17 A I am aware of the Tax Division responsibilities under title -- under the Code
18 of Federal Regulations and the manual.

19 Q Okay. So, under the manual, the final authority for the prosecution or 20 declination of all criminal matters arising under the Internal Revenue laws rest with the 21 Tax Division, correct?

22 A I am aware that Tax Division approves the charging of title 26 offenses.

23 Q Okay. How do you reconcile what the manual says? I mean, the Tax
24 Division also has to approve if you're going to issue, you know, a search warrant and if 25 you're going to go to a grand jury. Before you do that, the Tax Division needs to okay

1 that, correct?

2 A There are certain types of search warrants that require Tax Division
3 approval, to my understanding.

4 Q Okay. But, if you're working a tax case, there's specific investigative steps
5 that need the okay or approval of the Tax Division before you can initiate, correct?

6 A That's my understanding.

7 Q Okay. Would you agree that someone who has ultimate authority does not 8 require someone else's permission to act with regard to the matter over which they have 9 ultimate authority?

10 A Again, I didn't need anybody's permission. I made the decision. From my 11 perspective, the Tax Division was more than comfortable with me making the decision.

12 Q Okay.

13 A I think they wanted me to be the one making the decision.

14 Q Okay.

15 A And, in this case, I never experienced a situation where I ran into any issues
16 with respect to Tax Division approval. If I had, I would have dealt with it.

17 Q Okay. So you believe you had the ultimate authority over the Tax Division 18 officials in this instance?

19 A I believe I was the decisionmaker in the case, as I said in my opening 20 statement.

21 Q Okay. So, even if the Tax Division disagreed, you felt that you could have 22 proceeded anyway?

23 A If Tax Division -- if we came to an impasse -- which, as I said, didn't happen in 24 this case -- and I felt that my position was the one I wanted to pursue, and I felt that my 25 course of action was the appropriate one, I could have appealed to the Deputy Attorney

1 General or the Attorney General.

2 Q I mean, the whistleblowers testified that there were a series of 3 disagreements over, you know, whether the 2014 and 2015 -- the 2014 and 2015 tax
4 years, by the way, with Hunter Biden are pretty crucial years because that's all the 5 Burisma income. That's all the income that flowed from the official acts of the former 6 Vice President.

7 And so, 2014 and 2015, those tax years were crucial to the Hunter Biden
8 prosecution. Isn't that correct?

9 A Again, that's a matter you know I can't comment on, and I shouldn't be 10 commenting on because it implicates the investigation and my ongoing litigation.

11 Q And we heard from the whistleblowers that, during the course of the 12 investigative work, the Tax Division and everyone prosecuting it that was on the 13 prosecution team was in favor of moving forward on the 2014 and 2015 tax years until 14 they weren't. Are you aware of that?

15 A I'm not going to comment on that. That's deliberative process. There will 16 come a time, however, when I look forward to having the opportunity in the submission 17 of a report to address matters such as the one you just spoke to.

18 Q Okay. Are you aware of the special agent report that was prepared by 19 Mr. Ziegler?

20 A I am aware that IRS prepared a report.

21 Q And do you remember when that was?

22 A I believe the report was completed in early 2022, I believe. That's my best
23 recollection.

24 Q And, as we understand it, there was a series of meetings in the fall of 2021
25 with everyone on the prosecution team -- the assistant United States attorneys in your

1 office, you were involved, the Tax Division officials were involved, FBI officials were 2 involved, IRS investigators were involved -- in the fall of 2021 about how to proceed on 3 charging Mr. Biden. Do you remember that?

4 A No, I don't.

5 Q Okay. And, from that, the special agent report resulted -- and Mr. Ziegler
6 testified that, after meetings in October of 2021, he left that meeting with the 7 understanding that he was to prepare the first draft of the special agent report, and he 8 began that over the November timeframe of 2021. Is that your understanding?

9 A I have no idea what Mr. Ziegler's understanding was, nor could I speak to it,
10 nor should I be speaking to it, given the scope of my testimony and the implications to the 11 investigation and the deliberative process.

12 Q But you're aware a special agent report was prepared in this case, correct?

13 A As I said a moment ago, yes, I am aware a special agent report was prepared, 14 and as you have suggested, that's something that apparently should be prepared by the 15 special agent.

16 Q Okay. And you indicated that it was finalized in the beginning part of 2022,
17 correct?

18 A That's the best of my recollection.

19 Q Which was right around the same time that you initiated communications
20 with Mr. Carlin and Mr. -- and ultimately Mr. Weinsheimer, right, and then Mr. Graves?

21 A It is right about the time, or I initiated contact sometime after that.

22 Q Okay. So, before you initiated contact with Mr. Carlin and 23 Mr. Weinsheimer, the team had reached a consensus that that was what it was going to 24 do, correct?

25 A Before I reached out, as I mentioned a moment ago, the special agent's

1 report had been completed.

2 Q Okay. What was the next step after the special agent report was 3 completed?

4 A What do you mean what was the next step? I'm not sure -- I want to make 5 sure I fully understand your question.

6 Q Well, the special agent -- the IRS prepared a special agent report, correct?

7 A Yes.

8 Q And the next step, as we understand it, was that report was analyzed by DOJ
9 officials both in the Tax Division and in your office, correct?

10 A I'm not going to talk about the review, analysis of that report, or any other 11 report that would necessarily get into the deliberative process. That's something I 12 shouldn't be addressing.

13 Q Okay. Was a memo prepared subsequent to the receiving of the special 14 agent report by the Tax Division lawyers?

15 A I'm not going to talk about any memoranda that was prepared during the 16 course of this investigation. That would entail deliberative process.

17 Q Okay. But, before you called Mr. Graves, was there any disagreement
18 about your plan to call Mr. Graves and to proceed in D.C.?

19 A Again, that would entail discussions regarding deliberative process among 20 prosecutors, agents, others. So, no, it's not a matter I can discuss.

21 Q Okay. At that point in time, had the Tax Division given you discretion to 22 move forward on all the tax years or just 2014 and 2015?

23 A Again, those are matters that are related to the deliberative process, go to 24 the investigation, and are matters that, at this point in time, I'm just not in a position to 25 discuss. I would expect that I would be in a position at the conclusion of our

1 investigation where I can address it in the submission of the report.

2 Q Okay. I'm going to turn to the letter that we marked as exhibit 1, the June 3 7th letter. And this is your first letter to Mr. Jordan.

4 Initially, Mr. Jordan had written the Department, and we were a little surprised
5 that you replied to Mr. Jordan's initial letter. Could you help us understand how that 6 came to be?

7 A Mr. Jordan's letter -- I can't really get into the particulars -- the who, what,
8 when, and where -- because, again, that gets into deliberative process in responding to 9 the chairman's letter.

10 But I'd say that these were matters that clearly addressed circumstances, given 11 the case I thought was being referenced, and the questions posed matters within my 12 purview. So it seemed appropriate for me to respond.

13 Q Okay. So did the Department ask you to respond, or did you ask the 14 Department if you could respond?

15 A There were discussions. Again, I don't want to get into the particulars, but 16 there were discussions with members of the Department about the response.

17 Chairman Jordan. We actually sent two letters. We sent a letter in February to 18 the Attorney General, who didn't respond. He didn't respond. You didn't respond.
19 No one responded. And then we sent the letter on May 25th to the Attorney General 20 that you responded to.

21 And I guess what Steve is asking is, did the Attorney General call you up and say,
22 "Hey, David, I want you to respond to this letter"? How did that work?

23 Mr. Weiss. He did not.

24 Chairman Jordan. Who told you to respond?

25 Mr. Weiss. No one told me to respond. As I said --

1 Chairman Jordan. Well, how did you know -- if the letter didn't go to you, how 2 did you find out?

3 Mr. Weiss. The letter was shared with me because -- well, I shouldn't say. I
4 don't know. The letter was shared with me because it seemed to concern a matter with 5 the Hunter Biden investigation. So it was shared with me.

6 And there were discussions with members from ODAG and others. And I agreed
7 to send the letter -- I agreed to sign the letter. And --

8 BY MR. CASTOR:

9 Q So you didn't write the letter?

10 A Look, I --

11 Q Your office didn't write it, though?

12 A No, that's not true. I'm not going to get into the particulars because it's a 13 deliberative process.

14 But, as you guys have noted, I had never previously responded to a letter from the 15 chairman. I wasn't going to sign off on any communication with Congress that I didn't 16 fully endorse. So these are matters that I addressed that I was comfortable saying in 17 response to the chairman's letter.

18 Q Okay. Are you familiar with the Linder Letter?

19 A Am I familiar with it?

20 Q Yeah.

21 A I mean, I know it's referenced here.

22 Q But, before this, did you know anything about the Linder Letter? I mean, 23 this is pretty arcane.

24 A I wasn't intimately familiar with the Linder Letter.

25 Q Of course not. Of course not. Unless you're involved with congressional 1 investigations, the Linder Letter is not something that really anybody knows about, right?

2 You know, it's --

3 A I don't know that. But I'm telling you, I wasn't intimately familiar with the 4 Linder Letter.

5 Q Okay. And there's all sorts of, you know, text in here about the Linder
6 Letter stuff.

7 Is that the first time you became familiar with the Linder Letter?

8 A I'm not going to get into the deliberative process.

9 But my understanding was, whether it was the Linder Letter or any other aspect 10 referenced here, these are matters that speak to investigative oversight, congressional 11 responsibilities. It was certainly part of the education and something that is 12 appropriately addressed when responding to --

13 Q I mean, the Linder Letter is a list of, like, every reason the Department can 14 think of not to reply to Congress. Is that a fair assessment?

15 A I'm not going to characterize it. My intention wasn't -- look, I was 16 responding for the first time.

17 Q Right.

18 A I wasn't intending to offer a response that was nonresponsive.

19 Q Right. I mean, anytime Congress asks the Department something, they've 20 got, like, a menu of, like, a million reasons they can't give us the answers we want. Are 21 you aware of that?

22 A I am not -- I am not fully conversed in the exchange of the letters Congress
23 writes and the back-and-forth between the Department and Congress, and I shouldn't 24 say.

25 Chairman Jordan. Our letter goes to the Main Justice. It goes to the Attorney

1 General, and then someone shares it with you. Who shared it with you? How did you
2 find out?

3 Mr. Weiss. I can say that I had -- I spoke to others, but, again, I don't want to get 4 into the particulars because it will get in -- necessarily get into the deliberative process.

5 Chairman Jordan. Well, someone had to -- like, it just didn't, like, appear.
6 Someone had to say, like, "Hey, Mr. Weiss, we have this letter regarding a case that we 7 think you're dealing with," and then there's a response put together that you sign off on.

8 Mr. Weiss. There's a response that was prepared that I signed --

9 Chairman Jordan. Was it prepared by Main Justice, or was it prepared by the 10 U.S. Attorney's Office in Delaware?

11 Mr. Weiss. I will say, globally, it was prepared by the U.S. Attorney's Office in 12 Delaware.

13 Chairman Jordan. What does that mean?

14 Mr. Weiss. That means that it was generated by the U.S. Attorney's Office in 15 Delaware.

16 Chairman Jordan. With consultation from the people at Main Justice?

17 Mr. Weiss. People -- again, now we're getting further and further into the 18 deliberative process, and I'm not going to do that.

19 I'm saying that it was, as I said, prepared primarily in my office, and I signed the 20 letter. The first time signing a letter to the chairman or anyone else affiliated with 21 Congress, so I wasn't going to do it until and unless I was fully comfortable.

22 Chairman Jordan. You know, the first sentence sort of says it all: "The May 23 25th letter to Attorney General Garland was forwarded to me."

24 Mr. Weiss. Yes.

25 Chairman Jordan. So someone gave it to you.

1 Mr. Weiss. Yes.

2 Chairman Jordan. "With a request that I respond."

3 So they said you're going to -- so Main Justice said, "Hey, Mr. Weiss, we got this 4 letter. We don't want to respond. We're giving it to you. You write them back."

5 Mr. Weiss. Forwarded to me with the request that I respond. I was asked to 6 respond. Nobody directed me. Nobody ordered me. Nobody -- you know, so I can't 7 endorse that aspect of things.

8 Chairman Jordan. Okay.

9 BY MR. CASTOR:

10 Q And did they give you all the Linder Letter lingo?

11 A Again, as part of the deliberative process, I became more familiar than I 12 historically had been with the Linder Letter.

13 Q Right. I mean, ordinarily, U.S. Attorneys don't engage with us. I mean, we 14 frequently will write U.S. Attorneys and ask them questions about important matters,
15 and --

16 Mr. Ivey. That was the old days.

17 BY MR. CASTOR:

18 Q -- you know, almost uniformly, we get a letter back, or we don't get a letter
19 back. Like, you know, in February, we didn't get a letter back. We get a letter back 20 from the Justice Department thanking us for our interests and so forth.

21 So the fact that you responded to this letter was remarkable, and so we're just 22 curious how that came to be.

23 A Again, I think I've tried to address it as best I can.

24 Q Okay. In the letter, you asserted, "I have been granted ultimate authority
25 over this matter, including responsibility for deciding where, when, and whether to file

1 charges and for making decisions necessary to preserve the integrity of the prosecution
2 consistent with Federal law, the principles of Federal prosecution, and departmental
3 regulations."

4 Was that something that you added in the letter or your staff, or was that 5 something that emanated from Main Justice?

6 A That came from us. The District of Delaware.

7 Q Okay. Can you tell us at least what offices were involved with the 8 preparation of that? We have the Office of Legislative Affairs; you said the Office of 9 Deputy Attorney General, your office in the District of Delaware. Any other components 10 of the Department involved in that?

11 A No, not -- no.

12 Q Okay. So nobody from OLC?

13 A I'm unaware of anyone else being involved in this.

14 Q Okay. And did you have telephone calls about it? Was it email
15 exchanges?

16 A I'm not going to get into particulars.

17 Q Okay. Were there email exchanges?

18 A I don't recall, and I'm not going to get into specifics.

19 Q Okay. So you don't even know the answer if you were allowed to answer?

20 A I'm allowed to answer.

21 Q Okay.

22 A But it doesn't mean that it's appropriate that I answer. But I'm permitted
23 to answer, but it goes to deliberative process. So nobody is precluding me from 24 responding.

25 Q So you can answer my question.

1 Were there emails?

2 A No. I can't answer it because it gets into the deliberative process of 3 responding to the letter.

4 Q Okay. So you're saying that you know the answer to the question, but you
5 just are not going to give me the answer?

6 A I'm saying that it's part of the deliberative process, and I'm not going to dive
7 into the particulars.

8 Q All right. You sent a subsequent letter to us on June 30th. We marked 9 that as exhibit 2.

10 Did the decision to have you send a second letter to Congress on June 30th -- did
11 that follow the same process as the first letter in terms of the Department forwarding you 12 information? Or how did it come to be that you responded on June 30th to the 13 chairman?

14 A I don't have the letter that the chairman issued the second time. I don't 15 know if it was directed to me. I just don't recall off the top of my head. But, certainly,
16 yeah, in the general sense, without getting into particulars --

17 Q I can give it -- it's in response to the June 22nd letter?

18 A All I was interested in was whether it was addressed to me.

19 Q Right.

20 Chairman Jordan. It was.

21 BY MR. CASTOR:

22 Q It was.

23 A Yeah. So it would have sort of short-circuited a bit. But otherwise, yes.

24 Mr. Castor. So we'll mark it as exhibit 4 for you.

25 [Weiss Exhibit No. 4]

1 Was marked for identification.]

2 BY MR. CASTOR:

3 Q Your June 30th letter states -- this is in response to your June 22nd letter,
4 and this is responding to Mr. Jordan.

5 The second paragraph -- I'll call your attention to the second paragraph: "At the 6 outset, I would like to reaffirm the contents of the June 7 letter drafted by my office and 7 reiterate that I'm not at liberty to provide the materials you seek. The whistleblowers'
8 allegations relate to a criminal investigation that is now being prosecuted in the United 9 States District Court for the District of Delaware."

10 And the question I have for you is, as of June 30th, 2023, you had decided to pivot
11 back to Delaware for prosecuting this case?

12 A As of June 30th --

13 Q 2023.

14 A -- 2023, there had been a filing in the District of Delaware.

15 Q Okay. And what was that filing?

16 A A filing of a -- an information and plea agreement with respect to the tax
17 matters and a diversion agreement with respect to the firearm charges.

18 Q Okay. Going down to the last paragraph on the first page, starting with the 19 last sentence on the page, "I stand by what I wrote and wish to expand on what this 20 means."

21 A Yes.

22 Q And flipping over to the second page, "As the United States Attorney for the 23 District of Delaware, my charging authority is geographically limited to my home district.
24 If venue for a case lies elsewhere, common departmental practice is to contact the United 25 States Attorney's Office for the district in question and determine whether it wants to

1 partner on the case. If not, I may request Special Attorney status from the Attorney
2 General pursuant to 28 United States Code 515. Here, I have been assured that, if
3 necessary after the above process, I would be granted 515 authority in the District of 4 Columbia, Central District of California, or any other district where charges could be
5 brought in this matter."

6 Isn't it also true that your lawyers could have been afforded SAUSA status?

7 A SAUSA status solely as -- in a supporting way to the District of Columbia?

8 Q Well, it's our understanding -- and maybe I misunderstood what you said
9 earlier -- that one of the ways you could have prosecuted a case in D.C. was to have 10 Mr. Graves appoint your lawyers Special Assistant United States Attorneys for the District
11 of Columbia to prosecute the case?

12 A I don't know -- I don't recall describing it that way.

13 Q Okay.

14 A You know, I didn't envision a circumstance in which this would proceed
15 without me continuing to be involved in a supervisory way. Regardless of whether D.C.
16 chose to partner or not, my expectation and intention was that I would continue to 17 participate in a supervisory capacity as the case moved forward.

18 Q Okay. Do you agree that the June 7th letter and the June 30th letter are 19 sort of describing two separate situations?

20 A No, I don't.

21 Q Okay. Because, in the June 7th letter, you indicate that you've been 22 granted ultimate authority over this matter, including the responsibility for deciding 23 where, when, and whether to file charges.

24 A Uh-huh.

25 Q But, in the June 30th letter, you walk us through how you have got to confer

1 with, you know, the various U.S. Attorneys in the different districts.

2 A Yeah.

3 Q Could you help us understand the difference there?

4 A Yeah. I don't see it as an inconsistency. It doesn't mean I don't have the 5 authority. And, again, you read it the first time. You didn't this last time.

6 In the June 7th letter, I say -- I talk about my authority, and I say "consistent with 7 Federal law, the principles of Federal prosecution, and departmental regs," which means
8 I'm not operating in a vacuum.

9 There's a basic structure and a framework that, as a U.S. Attorney, I'm operating 10 within. And that means that, if I go outside my jurisdiction, I've got to do certain things.
11 And, in this situation, if I go outside the jurisdiction, I'm describing in the second letter the 12 process that I adhered to.

13 It doesn't mean that anybody blocked my authority or prevented me from 14 pursuing charges. I'm just trying to describe the process that references the consistent 15 language in the June 7 letter.

16 Q But, in the June 7th letter, if you had been granted indeed ultimate 17 authority, you didn't need to ask Matthew Graves whether he wanted to partner with 18 you, correct?

19 A There would have never been a situation where I'm granted ultimate 20 authority and all the processes that are part of DOJ's framework and the Department 21 within which I operate are -- suddenly disappear. I had the authority, but still, I had to 22 proceed consistent with departmental processes. I'm describing one of those processes 23 here.

24 Nobody blocked me. Nobody prevented me. I still had the authority, and I had 25 the ability to make the decision.

1 [11:04 a.m.]

2 BY MR. CASTOR:

3 Q But on June 7th you hadn't been afforded 515 authority. And so you didn't 4 have ultimate authority to bring a case in D.C., correct?

5 A On June 7th, I knew, because I had the conversations that I've previously
6 described with Carlin and Weinsheimer where they said --

7 Q Right.

8 A -- if you want to proceed in D.C., you have the authority to do so, and you
9 can file whatever charges you deem appropriate.

10 Q Right.

11 A To me, it didn't require that I then do it. It had been represented to me
12 that I had the authority. So it was a done deal, as far as I was concerned.

13 Q Right. But the Attorney General would've had to confer that authority to 14 you. I mean, you didn't have it at that time.

15 A The Attorney General --

16 Q You were advised that you'd be getting that authority if you really wanted it.

17 A No. I was advised at that time, if I decided to proceed in D.C., I had the 18 authority to do so. That's the way -- I'm telling you what I understand, what I believed.

19 Q So you didn't need a 515 designation from the Attorney General?

20 A No. In order to put this into place, in order to execute on the 21 representation that I've just described a couple times --

22 Q Right.

23 A -- that would've required an order signed, and that would've ultimately 24 conferred the authority. Yes, there would've been a documentation of the -- 25 Chairman Jordan. So you go to D.C., you ask them to partner, and they say no.

1 Then you have the meeting with Carlin and Weinsheimer at Main Justice, and they said,
2 you can have the authority if you want it. But you never asked for it. And yet you
3 conveyed to us you had it all along.

4 Mr. Weiss. Yeah, they con- -- first of all, it wasn't a meeting in D.C.; it was a
5 phone call. And I had -- the conver- --

6 Chairman Jordan. But after you had the conversation with Weinsheimer and 7 Carlin -- you meet with them, phone call, email, whatever -- phone call, you meet with 8 them, or you talked to them --

9 Mr. Weiss. I talk to them. They say, if you want to proceed in D.C., you have 10 the authority to move forward. That's correct.

11 Mr. Armstrong. Is there any written affirmation of that, or just the phone call?

12 Mr. Weiss. At that time?

13 Mr. Armstrong. Yeah.

14 Mr. Weiss. No.

15 BY MR. CASTOR:

16 Q Before our hour's up, I want to refer you to exhibit 3, which is the third 17 letter. This is a letter you sent to Senator Lindsey Graham.

18 A Yes. Yes.

19 Q You state, "To clarify an apparent misperception and avoid future confusion,
20 I wish to make one point clear: in this case, I have not requested Special Counsel
21 designation pursuant to" the CFR -- I'm paraphrasing here. "Rather, I had discussions
22 with Departmental officials regarding...appointment under...515, which would have 23 allowed me to file charges in a district outside my own without the partnership of the 24 local U.S. Attorney."

25 What did you mean when you wrote that you would be granted this authority if it

1 proved necessary? And this is on July 10th.

2 A Again, this is the same back-and-forth we've been having -- I had with you,
3 counsel --

4 Q Right.

5 A -- and with the chairman, where, if I decided to move forward -- it was just a
6 question of whether I decided to move forward --

7 Q Right.

8 A -- and where that would occur.

9 Q Right.

10 A That's all that the focus was, in my mind.

11 Q Uh-huh.

12 A I wasn't -- the authority, to the best of my belief, that had been resolved. I
13 was going to have the authority; just a question of where I was going to move forward 14 with respect to that.

15 Q Right. But you agree that the term "would be" refers to a plan or intention 16 to do something in the future, correct?

17 A I hadn't made a decision as to where the case would proceed or how the 18 case would proceed. The focus --

19 Q And if it --

20 A The focus was on the case.

21 Q Okay. And the words "if it proved necessary" refers to a condition that had 22 not been fulfilled at the time you wrote the letter, correct?

23 A The "if it proves necessary" refers to the fact that, as I've described on 24 multiple occasions now, I had the conversation, I had previously requested the authority,
25 and it was made clear to me, if you decide to move forward, you have the authority to do

1 so and to bring whatever charges you deem appropriate.

2 Q Right.

3 A So, to me, as I said a moment ago, that issue had been resolved.

4 Q By the time we had this letter series, though, you had already asked
5 Matthew Graves to partner, you had asked Martin Estrada to partner, and both had said
6 no.

7 And so, at that point in time, it's hard for us to understand, as we sit here today,
8 how didn't it prove necessary? I mean, this is before you were afforded, you know,
9 Special Counsel status in August of 2023. You write, you know, "if it proved necessary."

10 A Yes, if -- as I said, if the decision was made to proceed, I knew I had the 11 authority to do so. So, you know, why didn't it prove necessary? The question speaks
12 to deliberations --

13 Q Right.

14 A -- charging decisions. Those are things I just can't get into.

15 Q But in, you know, July of 2023 and at the end of this letter series that we're 16 discussing, you know, over a year had elapsed since you'd gone to D.C. and D.C. said no,
17 you'd gone to Los Angeles and Los Angeles said no.

18 And so it's just hard for us, as we sit here today, to understand how, in fact, you 19 did have ultimate authority to bring a case wherever you, you know, deemed fit.

20 A Yeah. I appreciate your question. I can't get into the specifics of the 21 charging decision or the deliberative process. I reaffirm what I've said about my 22 authority --

23 Q Uh-huh.

24 A -- and that's all I can --

25 Q Okay.

1 A I don't want to be too repetitive.

2 Q But you do understand that a potential appointment -- a potential
3 appointment as of July of 2023 indicates that you had not been afforded that authority,
4 correct, under 515?

5 A I'm sorry. Could you -- I didn't understand your question. A potential?

6 Q A potential appointment as a Special Attorney or as a Special Counsel, as you
7 reference in the Lindsey Graham letter, that is -- you know, indicates that you had not 8 been actually appointed at that point in time.

9 A I had not -- the execution of the authority had not taken place, that's correct.
10 But it wasn't a function of the authority or lack thereof; it was the decision as to where or 11 how to proceed.

12 Q Okay.

13 The hour's up.

14 Chairman Jordan. We'll take a 5-minute break, 10-minute break, whatever you 15 guys need.

16 The Reporter. Off the record?

17 Ms. Nabity. Yes.

18 Mr. Castor. Yes.

19 [Recess.]

20 [REDACTED]. It is 11:27. We can go back on the record.

21 Special Counsel Weiss, thank you again for joining us today.

22 Mr. Weiss. Sure.

23 EXAMINATION

24 BY [REDACTED]:

25 Q At the start, I just want to clarify a couple things from the last round.

1 You're appearing here today voluntarily, correct?

2 A I am.

3 Q And nobody from the Department is preventing you from answering any 4 question, correct?

5 A They are not.

6 Q Okay.

7 At the end of the last round, there was some conversation about whether it would
8 prove necessary for you to seek 515 authority. Do you recall that conversation?

9 A I do.

10 Q Okay. I want to explore that a little bit further.

11 Before I do, could you briefly describe in layperson's terms what the term "venue"
12 means?

13 A "Venue" is where -- there has to be a nexus with jurisdiction to file charges.
14 And, in any given case, there are -- depending upon the nature of the case, there are 15 certain facts that tell you where venue lies.

16 And, as counsel for the majority explored, there are a number of factors that will 17 determine appropriate venue in a tax case. It could be the residence of the taxpayer, it 18 could be where the tax returns are filed, things of that sort.

19 Q And if prosecutors do not bring a case or a charge in an appropriate 20 jurisdiction or an appropriate venue, then the court can dismiss the charges, correct?

21 A Certainly, I would expect, as a general matter, a defense counsel to seek 22 dismissal. I don't know that that would terminate the prosecution, but certainly could 23 give rise to motion to dismiss.

24 Q Understood.

25 And all of that said, though, a defendant can waive his or her right to challenge

1 venue as part of a plea agreement, correct?

2 A A defendant can waive venue.

3 Q And if a defendant has agreed to waive venue as part of a plea agreement,
4 then the prosecutor would not need to seek authority to bring charges in any other
5 jurisdiction. Is that correct?

6 A A prosecutor would not seek to, yeah, to receive approval to bring charges in 7 that jurisdiction in which venue had been waived, yes.

8 Q All right.

9 I want to move on. And we talked about your background at the very beginning 10 of the last hour. I want to go through that in a little bit more detail.

11 So can you say again, when did you first join the District of Delaware United States
12 Attorney's Office?

13 A I started -- originally? A long time ago. I started at the U.S. Attorney's 14 Office in Delaware in '86.

15 Q And what was your role? What kind of cases did you prosecute?

16 A I was an Assistant United States Attorney, and I prosecuted drug cases, 17 firearm cases, public corruption cases, economic crime cases, tax cases. Whatever the 18 district had to offer I was more than happy to work on.

19 Q And how long were you a career prosecutor during your first stint with the 20 District of Delaware's office?

21 A About 3-1/2 years.

22 Q Okay. And then you left the U.S. Attorney's Office, correct?

23 A I did.

24 Q And at some point did you return to the U.S. Attorney's Office?

25 A I did.

1 Q When was that?

2 A That was in 2007.

3 Q And what led you to return to the U.S. Attorney's Office in 2007?

4 A I had been in private practice for some time, and then I went with a client of 5 mine and was in private industry -- both positive experiences, experiences that I enjoyed.
6 But public service is different.

7 Q And when you returned in 2007, who was the U.S. Attorney in the District of
8 Delaware?

9 A Colm Connolly.

10 Q And who was Mr. Connolly an appointee of?

11 A Mr. Connolly was -- he was an appointee -- I don't know which President. A 12 Republican -- a Republican President.

13 Q Is it fair to say, if he was the U.S. Attorney in 2007, he was likely an 14 appointee of President George W. Bush?

15 A Yes.

16 Q Okay.

17 A I wasn't tracking.

18 Q When you returned to the District of Delaware in 2007, what was your role?

19 A When I returned, I was FAUSA and I was chief of the Civil Division.

20 Q And, for the record, what is FAUSA?

21 A First Assistant United States Attorney. Sorry for that.

22 Q And what is the role of the FAUSA?

23 A The FAUSA is the number-two -- at least as our office is structured and has 24 historically been structured, the FAUSA is the number-two in the District of Delaware.

25 Q Okay.

1 And then you stayed at the District of Delaware for a period of time, correct?

2 A Until now.

3 Q Okay. So, in fact, you returned to the District of Delaware under President
4 George W. Bush; you stayed throughout President Obama; and now you've stayed 5 through President Trump and, again, President Biden, correct?

6 A That is correct.

7 Q Okay.

8 In the earlier hour, you were asked about the blue-slip process and whether you
9 had been recommended by the Senators from Delaware.

10 As part of the process for being nominated as U.S. Attorney, did you have any 11 conversations with the White House Counsel's Office?

12 A I don't recall whether I did, in all candor.

13 Q Did you have conversations with the Justice Department?

14 A Yes, I did.

15 Q And do you recall who you had conversations with?

16 A I would've been interviewed by -- I was definitely interviewed by Rod
17 Rosenstein. I was interviewed by Scott Schools, I believe, and a group of folks in a 18 conference room.

19 Q And Mr. Rosenstein and Mr. Schools were both Republican appointees,
20 correct?

21 A Mr. Rosenstein was. I just don't know about Scott Schools. I thought
22 Mr. Schools was the senior career official in the Department at that time. I have no idea 23 who he was appointed by.

24 Q Okay.

25 And then you were ultimately nominated to serve as U.S. Attorney by

1 President Trump, correct?

2 A I was.

3 Q Okay.

4 I want to introduce as exhibit 5 -- is that right? -- exhibit 5, the November 17,
5 2017, statement from President Trump announcing your appointment.

6 [Weiss Exhibit No. 5

7 Was marked for identification.]

8 BY [REDACTED]:

9 Q And I'll give you a minute to review. I can tell you, we're going to look at 10 the first paragraph on the first page. And I think your nomination is actually on the 11 second page.

12 A Okay.

13 Q Are you ready to proceed?

14 A I think so. It appears that I got most of my background information correct.

15 Q So this statement from President Trump actually announces the nominations
16 of four U.S. Attorneys and four U.S. Marshals. And, as I said, your name is on the second 17 page of this announcement as printed.

18 I want to read from the first paragraph, which relates to all of the individuals who 19 are nominated on November 17th, you and the others.

20 In relevant part, it says, "The United States Attorney serves as the chief Federal 21 law enforcement officer within his or her Federal judicial district." It then describes the 22 role of the U.S. Marshals. And then it says, "These candidates share the President's 23 vision for 'Making America Safe Again.'"

24 Is this consistent with your recollection of why you were nominated for this role 25 by President Trump?

1 A I can't really speak to that. From -- I can't say why I was nominated. I
2 really don't know, I mean, other than I believe I was a credible candidate in whom the 3 folks that I interacted with had confidence that I could perform the job. That's all I could 4 say, based on my understanding.

5 Q Okay.

6 Is it fair to say that you've served under both Republican and Democratic 7 administrations?

8 A I have.

9 Q And, in fact, for the majority of your time at the U.S. Attorney's Office, you 10 were a career prosecutor, not a political appointee, correct?

11 A That is correct. I consider myself first and foremost a prosecutor.

12 Q Okay. During the course of your career, have you tried cases before a jury?

13 A Yes.

14 Q Approximately how many cases have you tried before a jury?

15 A I think, the best I can recall, as I described in my background work-up, 16 somewhere in the neighborhood of 17 or so cases.

17 Q Okay. And you've supervised many more cases that have been tried before 18 juries; is that fair to say?

19 A I have.

20 Q And so you have a good understanding of the considerations a prosecutor
21 might take into account when considering whether to bring a case before a jury. Is that 22 fair to say?

23 A I hope that I do.

24 Q Okay.

25 I want to move on to your interactions with the U.S. Attorney's Office in D.C.

1 and -- yeah, focus on the U.S. Attorney's Office in D.C.

2 You said that you first approached Mr. Graves in either late February or early
3 March of 2022, correct?

4 A The conversation I had with Mr. Graves, I believe, was in early March, yes.

5 Q Okay. And when you approached Mr. Graves, did you ask him to provide 6 administrative support as you were exploring the possibility of bringing charges in the 7 District of Columbia?

8 A I don't know whether I did or not, to tell you the truth. It was one
9 conversation, 5 or 10 minutes, and I don't recall the particulars with respect to the need
10 for administrative support.

11 Q Was it ever a concern of yours that Mr. Graves might not provide you with 12 administrative support if you chose to move forward in the District of Columbia?

13 A Ultimately, no, it wasn't. I understood, at the conclusion of the process, 14 not necessarily from Mr. Graves, but that we would have a logistical support if we were to 15 proceed.

16 Q And what do you mean by "logistical support"?

17 A I mean that we were -- we were interested in someone who could work with 18 us from an administrative standpoint, somebody who could help us in working with the 19 court and the processes that are required, the practices, local practice, things of that 20 nature -- provide some guidance as to the local logistics.

21 Q And was it your impression that Mr. Graves and his team would, in fact,
22 provide you with that support?

23 A It was my understanding that D.C. would've supported us in that regard 24 generally.

25 Q Okay.

1 There were some questions earlier about Mr. Graves's decision not to join the 2 case, or not to have his office join the case.

3 You said that you provided him with the information -- or your team provided him
4 with the information they needed so he could make an informed decision. Do you recall 5 saying that?

6 A I recall saying something along those lines, yes.

7 Q And can you explain what you mean by "so he could make an informed
8 decision"?

9 A Well, not -- I wasn't directing this to Mr. Graves per se. I don't know
10 who -- I mean, I know that career folks in Mr. Graves's office and my own office
11 interacted and discussed things. I don't know anything about the particular 12 decision-making process itself.

13 Q Understood. But when you're saying "informed decision," that means that 14 you thought that it was up to Mr. Graves to make the choice, right? It wasn't -- you 15 weren't directing him to make any particular decision.

16 A I wasn't directing him to make a decision. My folks were trying to provide 17 them with what we determined -- what information was necessary in order to make a 18 decision. Of course, that couldn't have been anything like the information that we had 19 in our possession that we had developed over the course of 2-plus years or more.

20 Q What do you mean by that?

21 A I mean that we had been conducting an investigation for an extended period 22 of time, so we weren't about to share everything that we had.

23 Q Okay.

24 When you approached Mr. Graves, were you under the impression that you
25 needed Mr. Graves to join the case in order to proceed in the District of Columbia?

1 A I was not under the impression either way that I needed -- no. I wasn't 2 asking for his permission or anything along those lines.

3 Q Okay.

4 Did Mr. Graves tell you why he didn't want to join the case?

5 A I never had a conversation with Mr. Graves about that. I had the one
6 conversation when I reached out, told him what we were interested in doing, and 7 basically inquired as to whether his office would be willing to join us or participate in this 8 case. We never had a subsequent conversation. That was done at the line level.

9 Q Okay.

10 When the decision was relayed to the line officials, did you have any reason or did 11 your team have any reason to believe that Mr. Graves's decision not to join the case was 12 motivated in any way based on partisan, political considerations?

13 A I don't have -- I have -- I don't know what the basis of the decision was in 14 that regard, no. I understand that they chose not to proceed. I don't want to get into 15 particulars, as I said to counsel. That involves deliberative-process types of 16 consideration, so I'm not going to speak to that.

17 Q Did Mr. Graves take any steps to block or prevent you from bringing charges
18 in the District of Columbia?

19 A No. He wasn't in a position to block me.

20 Q Did anyone on Mr. Graves's staff take any steps to block or prevent you from 21 bringing such charges?

22 A No.

23 Q And I think you said you did not believe that you needed permission from 24 Mr. Graves to move forward in the District of Columbia, correct?

25 A That's correct.

1 Q In the earlier hour, you were asked some questions about your interactions
2 with the Tax Division, and I want to return to those questions.

3 In this case, did you welcome the Tax Division's assistance?

4 A I did.

5 Q Why was that?

6 A Because they're the experts in tax matters. They have the experience; they 7 have the expertise. And, from my perspective, the prosecution team would only benefit 8 from their input.

9 Q Is it fair to say that tax cases can be uniquely complicated?

10 A Yeah. I'm not a tax expert, but yes. They're a particular type of 11 white-collar case, and, like other white-collar cases, they can be complicated, involving 12 extensive documentations, tax returns, things of that nature. So, yes, they can be 13 complicated.

14 Q Okay. And the Tax Division handles these kind of cases all the time,
15 correct?

16 A That's my understanding, yes.

17 Q Okay.

18 Are you familiar with the term "sufficiency of the evidence"?

19 A Yes.

20 Q In layman's terms, what does that mean?

21 A That means that you have to have a certain modicum of evidence in order to 22 proceed with charges. There has to be sufficient evidence to move forward.

23 Q Is it fair to say that, in tax cases, in particular, which can, as you've just said, 24 be uniquely complicated, Tax Division prosecutors tend to have more experience in 25 understanding when evidence is likely to be sufficient for purposes of convincing a jury

1 that they've proven charges beyond a reasonable doubt?

2 A I expect that Tax Division prosecutors, because this is the only type of work
3 that they do, would be uniquely qualified to weigh in on all aspects of a tax prosecution,
4 whether it's sufficiency of the evidence or other matters.

5 Q And would that include Tax Division prosecutors having unique expertise in 6 the viability of potential defenses to charges?

7 A Yeah. All aspects of the case. Yes.

8 Q Okay.

9 The comment was made earlier about, I think, Tax Division could approve or deny
10 charges. In fact, the Tax Division has three options, correct? It can approve charges, it 11 can deny charges, or it can grant discretion.

12 A That -- I'm not intimately familiar with all the intricacies of the Tax Division
13 process, but that's my understanding.

14 Q Okay. And when charges are approved, the U.S. Attorney's Office doesn't 15 have any discretion; it has to bring the charges that have been approved, correct?

16 A My understanding -- and, again, I'm no expert -- is, if charges are approved
17 by the Tax Division, the charges are going to proceed. If the U.S. Attorney's Office
18 decides not to be part of the case, Tax Division, on its own, will proceed with charges.

19 Q Okay. And when charges are denied, that means the U.S. Attorney's Office
20 absolutely cannot proceed with charges, correct?

21 A That would be my understanding.

22 Q Unless, obviously, the -- the U.S. Attorney's Office could appeal that decision.

23 A Yeah, I mean -- yes. Again, as I discussed with majority counsel, that's not 24 something that I experienced in this case, but, yes, I was always aware of the fact that if 25 there was a difference of opinion with respect to the appropriateness of charges, that

1 ultimately it's either the ODAG or the AG that makes the call as to whether a case would 2 proceed if there's an impasse between a U.S. Attorney's Office and a component.

3 Q Okay.

4 And, finally, what does it mean when the Tax Division grants "discretion" to a
5 U.S. Attorney's Office over whether to bring charges?

6 A My understanding would be, it's telling the U.S. Attorney's Office that it can 7 decide whether to proceed or not. And then Tax Division, on its own, will decide 8 whether to be part of that case or not.

9 Q Okay. So, in effect, granting discretion gives a U.S. Attorney full 10 decision-making authority over whether to bring those charges. Is that right?

11 A That's my understanding, that, yes, then the U.S. Attorney's Office can 12 decide whether to move forward.

13 Q Okay. In this case, the Tax Division granted your office discretion, correct?

14 A I'm not going to talk about what Tax Division did or did not do in this case.

15 Q Okay.

16 You alluded to this just a minute ago, but if there had been a dispute over whether 17 to bring charges, for example, between line prosecutors at the District of Delaware and 18 line prosecutors from the Tax Division, how do you expect that might've been resolved?

19 A Again, that calls for speculation, and, the way I understood the question, it
20 gets into the particulars of this case, which, for reasons I've discussed previously, I'm just 21 not at liberty to discuss at this point in time. Perhaps at the time of the submission of a 22 report I could address some things like that.

23 Q Okay. But you've said that, ultimately, nothing rose to the level that you
24 felt you needed to intervene. Is that fair to say?

25 A Nothing rose to the level that I felt I needed to intervene in what respect?

1 Q Or that you needed to seek approval from the Deputy Attorney General or 2 the Attorney General to move forward, correct?

3 A I've mentioned -- I have stated that I don't recall a situation in this case
4 where I was at an impasse with Tax Division and we required the participation of the 5 Office of the Deputy Attorney General in order to resolve a difference of opinion as to 6 how to proceed.

7 Q Okay.

8 I want to move on and talk about the letters that you sent to Congress. I know
9 we went through them in some detail in the last hour, but I think we're going to take 10 another spin through them.

11 Before I get into them, though, I do want to introduce the Linder letter. We'll 12 introduce that as exhibit 6.

13 Voice. It's already introduced.

14 [REDACTED]: Is it introduced?

15 Mr. Castor. No, I --

16 [REDACTED]: I don't think it was introduced.

17 Mr. Weiss. No.

18 [Weiss Exhibit No. 6

19 Was marked for identification.]

20 BY [REDACTED]:

21 Q You've seen this letter before, correct?

22 A Which letter?

23 Q The Linder letter.

24 A I have -- I have seen it before.

25 Q Okay.

1 And I just want to make the record clear, this is a letter from Robert Raben, who
2 was the Assistant Attorney General for the Office of Legislative Affairs at the Department
3 of Justice, to the Honorable John Linder, who at that time was the chairman of the 4 Subcommittee on Rules and Organization of the House for the House Committee on 5 Rules.

6 That's what it says on the face of the letter, correct?

7 A That is what it says on the face of the letter.

8 Q What is the date on the Linder letter?

9 A January 27, 2000.

10 Q Okay. So this letter has actually been in effect for 23 years at this point.
11 Is that fair to say?

12 A This letter was written on January 27, 2000. The effectiveness I can't really 13 speak to.

14 Q So my point is, it's not something that was given to you as a new product 15 when you were looking at responding to these letters, correct?

16 A It does not appear to be a new product. As I suggested to counsel, I don't 17 know that I had previously reviewed the Linder letter.

18 Q Okay.

19 Looking at your June 7th letter, which is marked as exhibit 1, you said earlier you
20 wrote -- you signed this letter.

21 A I signed this letter, yes.

22 Q And, in doing so, these are your words, correct?

23 A These -- I am -- yes, these are my words.

24 Q Okay.

25 The first paragraph reads -- I'm sorry, the first full paragraph; I guess it's actually

1 the second paragraph -- reads, "I want to make clear that, as the Attorney General has
2 stated, I have been granted ultimate authority over this matter, including responsibility
3 for deciding where, when, and whether to file charges and for making decisions necessary
4 to preserve the integrity of the prosecution, consistent with federal law, the Principles of 5 Federal Prosecution, and Departmental regulations."

6 Correct?

7 A Correct.

8 Q Your letter specifically notes that your decision and authority are, quote,
9 "consistent with federal law, the Principles of Federal Prosecution, and Departmental 10 regulations." Why was it important for you to include this language in this letter?

11 A As I said previously, it was important because I wanted to make it clear that I
12 have the authority but, like other U.S. Attorneys, I am subject to certain processes.
13 There's a framework within the Department of Justice. I'm not operating in a vacuum, 14 and there are certain requirements that exist with respect to particular actions.

15 Q The reference here to the Principles of Federal Prosecution is a reference to 16 the Principles of Federal Prosecution in the Justice Manual, correct?

17 A Yes.

18 Q And, briefly, for the record, could you explain what the Justice Manual is?

19 A The Justice Manual is a set of rules, regulations, procedures that basically 20 provides guidance to Department of Justice personnel.

1 [11:49 a.m.]

2 BY [REDACTED]:

3 Q Okay. And what are the Principles of Federal Prosecution themselves?

4 A The Principles of Federal Prosecution provide guidance with respect to, in 5 particular, charging decisions. They speak to the proof, that if you're going to proceed
6 with charges, there are certain guidelines that you should look to. And the first section
7 of that deals with sufficiency. The second part of it deals with whether the matter
8 you're pursuing is an appropriate Federal case. And there are factors that attend
9 Federal case analysis.

10 Q Okay.

11 I'm going to introduce as exhibit 7 an excerpt from the Justice Manual, section 12 9-27.000. This is the Principles of Federal Prosecution.

13 [Weiss Exhibit No. 7

14 Was marked for identification.]

15 BY [REDACTED]:

16 Q And we're going to look at the preface, which is section 9-27.001.
17 You've seen this before?

18 A I suspect that I have.

19 Q Under the preface, the fourth paragraph down, it states that the purpose of 20 the Principles of Federal Prosecution -- sorry -- that there are two important purposes for 21 the Principles of Federal Prosecution: quote, "ensuring the fair and effective exercise of 22 prosecutorial discretion...by attorneys for the government, and promoting confidence on 23 the part of the public and individual defendants that important prosecutorial decisions
24 will be made rationally and objectively based on an individualized assessment of the facts
25 and circumstances of each case."

1 Did I read that correctly?

2 A Yes.

3 Q Okay. Taking this clause by clause, what is your understanding of what 4 "ensuring the fair and effective exercise of prosecutorial discretion...by attorneys for the 5 government" means?

6 A It means that we're charged with making decisions based on the applicable
7 facts and the law.

8 Q Okay. In layman's terms, what does "prosecutorial discretion" mean?

9 A All prosecutors have discretion, so they are required to exercise their best 10 judgment based on their experience and expertise in trying to seek a just conclusion of 11 the matter that's before them.

12 Q Why is it important for prosecutorial discretion to be exercised fairly and 13 effectively?

14 A Because prosecutors have tremendous authority whether to pursue a matter
15 that curtails someone's liberty. I mean, we send people to jail. That's a huge 16 responsibility. And prosecutors are required to exercise that discretion in a judicious
17 fashion.

18 Q And so is it fair to say that the Principles of Federal Prosecution, which you
19 cite in your June 7th letter, part of the purpose is to ensure that defendants are treated 20 fairly under the law by prosecutors?

21 A Absolutely. We're trying to defeat -- "defeat" -- to treat everyone, the 22 person in this case or people that we're dealing with in this case and all other matters 23 that we prosecute in my district -- you're trying to treat everyone equally and fairly under 24 the law, yes.

25 Q Okay.

1 And the second clause in the sentence I read earlier says "promoting confidence
2 on the part of the public and individual defendants that important prosecutorial decisions
3 will be made rationally and objectively based on an individualized assessment of the facts
4 and circumstances of each case."

5 What's your understanding of why it's important to promote confidence in the 6 public and in individual defendants in this way?

7 A Well, the rule of law is key. And the rule of law only survives and flourishes
8 if the public believes that folks responsible for enforcing the law are doing that in a fair
9 fashion.

10 Q So is it fair to say that, by noting in your June 7th letter that your authority
11 would be exercised consistent with all relevant laws and regulations and the Principles of 12 Federal Prosecution, you were actually noting that you would be treating this matter in 13 accordance with the guidelines applicable to all Federal cases in order to ensure that 14 prosecutorial discretion would be fairly exercised and the public could have confidence in 15 your decision-making?

16 A That's what we're trying to accomplish, yes.

17 Q Okay. And, in fact, if you were not adhering to the Principles of Federal 18 Prosecution and Federal law and Departmental regulations, you would've actually been 19 treating this matter different than other Federal prosecutions, correct?

20 A Yes. We would only -- we would adhere to the Principles of Federal 21 Prosecution. We're required to. It would be inappropriate to diverge from those basic 22 principles.

23 Q Okay.

24 I want to move on to your June 30th letter, which is exhibit 2.

25 In the prior hour, it was suggested that the June 30th letter and the June 7th letter

1 were somehow inconsistent, and you said you did not agree with that assessment,
2 correct?

3 A I did say that.

4 Q Okay. And, in fact, your June 7th letter states that your authority is to be 5 exercised consistent with Federal law, Principles of Federal Prosecution, and 6 Departmental regulations, and then you reiterate that on your June 30th letter at the 7 bottom of the first page, correct?

8 A I did.

9 Q Okay.

10 And, then, at the top of page 2 of your June 30th letter, you state that your 11 "charging authority is geographically limited to my home district."

12 Can you briefly explain what you meant by that?

13 A Yes. There are 94 U.S. Attorneys around the country. We can't just go
14 gallivanting around and prosecute cases wherever we decide we'd like to do so. We're 15 responsible for our home districts. You know, I am U.S. Attorney for the District of 16 Delaware only, and if I have an interest in pursuing a matter elsewhere, there are certain 17 procedures that have to be followed.

18 Q Okay. And that's true for all U.S. Attorneys, correct?

19 A Yes.

20 Q And that is set by statute and also by Departmental regulations, correct?

21 A Yes.

22 Q Okay.

23 I want to introduce -- actually -- so I want to introduce as exhibit 8 section
24 515 -- sorry. We're going to introduce 28 U.S.C. 515.

25 [Weiss Exhibit No. 8

1 Was marked for identification.]

2 BY [REDACTED]:

3 Q Have you seen this before?

4 A I have.

5 Q Paragraph (a) -- section 515(a) reads, "The Attorney General or any other 6 officer of the Department of Justice, or any attorney specifically appointed by the 7 Attorney General under law, may, when specifically directed by the Attorney General,
8 conduct any kind of legal proceeding, civil or criminal, including grand jury proceedings
9 and proceedings before committing magistrate judges, which United States attorneys are 10 authorized by law to conduct, whether or not he is a resident of the district in which the 11 proceeding is brought."

12 Did I read that correctly?

13 A Yes, I believe you did.

14 Q Okay. 28 U.S.C. section 515 is a Federal statute, correct?

15 A Yes.

16 Q And it describes the process by which a U.S. Attorney, or any other attorney 17 for that matter, can be granted authority to bring charges outside of their district,
18 correct?

19 A Yes.

20 Q Okay.

21 So, in your June 7th letter, you referred to "subject to applicable statutes." You 22 said that it's statute and regulation that limited your geographical charging authority, but 23 also it's section 515, which is a Federal statute, which is the process by which you can 24 obtain authority to charge outside your district, correct?

25 A Yes.

1 Q So that is, in fact -- so the reference in your June 30th letter to section 515
2 authority is fully consistent with the reference to Federal statute and regulation in your 3 June 7th letter, correct?

4 A I thought it was consistent. And that's what I intended to do -- refer back
5 to the language in my prior letter.

6 Q Okay.

7 And before we move on from your June 30th letter, the third paragraph on the 8 first page reads, "First, the Department of Justice did not retaliate against 'an Internal 9 Revenue Service ("IRS") Criminal Supervisory Special Agent and whistleblower, as well as
10 his entire investigative team...for making protected disclosures to Congress.'"

11 Was that a true and accurate statement at the time that you signed this letter?

12 A Yes.

13 Q And is it true and accurate to this day?

14 A Yes.

15 Q Okay.

16 And I want to turn, to complete the record, to the July 10th letter to Senate
17 Judiciary Committee Ranking Member Lindsey Graham. This is exhibit 3.

18 You said that, as of July 10, 2023, you had not asked to be designated Special 19 Counsel. Was that an accurate statement?

20 A Yes.

21 Q Do you recall when you first requested to be made Special Counsel?

22 A The only time was in August of 2023.

23 Q Do you recall the date?

24 A I think it's August 11th, as best I can recall, but that's my best recollection.

25 Q Okay. And when you made the request, you were made Special Counsel

1 within days, correct?

2 A In fact, I'm not sure whether I'm confusing the date on which I made the 3 request with the date on which the request was granted. So it was in proximity to 4 August 11th.

5 Q Is it fair --

6 A So, yes, once I made the request, in response to your question, it was, I
7 believe, 2 days later that the request was granted.

8 Q Okay.

9 On September 20th of this year, Attorney General Garland testified before the 10 House Judiciary Committee. He told the committee that, quote, "Mr. Weiss has 11 authority to conduct his investigation however he wishes."

12 Is it true that you have full authority to conduct your investigation however you 13 wish?

14 A I believe I have the authority to conduct the investigation as I determine is 15 appropriate, yes.

16 Q And the Attorney General said that you have authority over all matters that 17 pertain to Hunter Biden. Is it accurate that you have authority over all matters
18 pertaining to Hunter Biden?

19 A I believe that I have the authority to proceed with respect to my 20 investigation or any charging decisions with respect to the Hunter Biden matter as I deem 21 appropriate, yes.

22 Q Okay. Has the Attorney General ever blocked you from taking any step that 23 you wish to take in this investigation?

24 A No one has ever blocked me with respect to taking any step that I perceived 25 was appropriate.

1 Q Has the Deputy Attorney General ever blocked you from taking any step you
2 wish to take in this investigation?

3 A No one has blocked me from taking appropriate steps.

4 Q Okay.

5 Are you familiar with an individual named Lesley Wolf?

6 A I am.

7 Q Who is Ms. Wolf?

8 A Ms. Wolf is an AUSA who works in my office.

9 Q There have been allegations that Lesley Wolf acted out of bias or was 10 motivated by political considerations. What's your response to that allegation?

11 A Yeah, I'm not going to discuss any particular allegations. Lesley Wolf has 12 been a dedicated public servant for more than 16 years. I believe she is an excellent 13 lawyer and is a person of integrity.

14 Q There have been arguments made in other transcribed interviews we've held 15 that the Biden family is, quote/unquote, "royalty in Delaware" and that it would,
16 therefore, be impossible for your office to be impartial in matters related to the Biden 17 family.

18 What is your response to those allegations?

19 A Look, our responsibility as prosecutors is to follow the evidence and the law, 20 regardless of the circumstances, regardless of the defendant. And that's what 21 we're responsible for doing, and that's the only way the public is going to have confidence
22 in the process, if we proceed in accordance with that principle.

23 Q In the earlier hour, you were asked about a special agent report supposedly 24 prepared by Special Agent Ziegler.

25 Without getting into the specifics of that report itself, are you familiar generally

1 with what special agent reports are?

2 A I'm familiar with -- I mean -- with reports that are prepared by agents who 3 work on Federal cases, yes. I am generally familiar with those, yes, reports.

4 Q And are you familiar with prosecution memos?

5 A I am familiar with prosecution memos.

6 Q Can you describe what a prosecution memo is?

7 A At least in the District of Delaware, as a general matter, a prosecution memo
8 sets out the basis to proceed in a prosecution and will address key components that are 9 required in the decision-making process.

10 Q Are special agent reports or memos prepared by investigators different than 11 prosecution memos?

12 A Well, I want to make sure we're clear on, I don't know if you're talking about 13 the report in this case that was prepared in early 2022 versus reports or memoranda of 14 interview or in the FBI 302s that are prepared in the course of an investigation.

15 Q Fair. So what I'm looking at -- and I don't want to get into the specifics of 16 this case necessarily, but I wanted --

17 A I would be unable to do so.

18 Q I understand that. I want to explore the differences between what might 19 be contained in an investigative memo and a prosecution memo, because they're 20 different, right?

21 A Well, if we're talking about the typical report, the typical report prepared by 22 an agent describes the facts that he or she has developed on a particular matter. It 23 might be based on an interview, a surveillance that the agent conducted, or something of 24 that nature, and that's always reduced to a report in the course of an investigation.

25 Q And that's different than a prosecution memo, correct?

1 A Yeah. A prosecution memo serves a different function; that's correct.

2 Q And what's the function of a prosecution memo?

3 A To evaluate the evidence and to explain to the reader why there's a basis to 4 proceed with a prosecution.

5 Q Okay. And a prosecution memo actually analyzes the facts against the law,
6 correct?

7 A Absolutely, yes.

8 Q And it also looks at potential defenses?

9 A Yes. If it's done appropriately, it takes into account potential defenses and 10 the risks/reward and the -- and handicapping the case.

11 Q Okay. And those are the type of things that wouldn't be in a special agent
12 report, which just describes the pure facts that have been developed, correct?

13 A From my perspective, no, they wouldn't be in an investigative report; that's
14 correct.

15 Q Okay.

16 And I want to look at some of the considerations that prosecutors take into 17 account that might be included in a prosecution memo or might just be things they take 18 into account when they're considering whether to charge a case.

19 I want to turn back to the Principles of Federal Prosecution and look at section
20 9-27.220, which is the section entitled "Grounds for Commencing or Declining
21 Prosecution."

22 The section reads, "The attorney for the government should commence or 23 recommend federal prosecution if he/she believes that the person's conduct constitutes a 24 federal offense, and that the admissible evidence will probably be sufficient to obtain and 25 sustain a conviction, unless (1) the prosecution would serve no substantial federal

1 interest; (2) the person is subject to effective prosecution in another jurisdiction; or (3)
2 there exists an adequate non-criminal alternative to prosecution."

3 Did I read that correctly?

4 A You did.

5 Q Okay. So, under these principles, prosecutors should only bring charges
6 when, among other considerations, they believe that the admissible evidence will 7 probably be sufficient to obtain and sustain a conviction, correct?

8 A That's correct.

9 Q And in layperson's terms, what does "admissible evidence" mean?

10 A It means evidence that you're going to get to the jury.

11 Q Okay.

12 The burden of proof for a criminal prosecutor to obtain a conviction at trial is 13 "beyond a reasonable doubt," correct?

14 A Correct.

15 Q "Beyond a reasonable doubt" is the highest evidentiary standard in law,
16 correct?

17 A Correct.

18 Q It's higher than the "probable cause" standard that is needed to obtain an 19 indictment, correct?

20 A Yes.

21 Q And it's higher than the "preponderance of the evidence" standard that's 22 often needed to obtain a judgment in a civil case, correct?

23 A It is.

24 Q In your experience as a Federal criminal prosecutor, is it fair to say that it can 25 be very difficult to convince a jury beyond a reasonable doubt to convict even when you

1 have a significant amount of evidence that a defendant has violated a law?

2 A At times it can be, yes.

3 Q In fact, in order to obtain a criminal conviction, you need not only to 4 establish the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt but you actually have to 5 convince 12 jurors that you've met that very high standard of proof, correct?

6 A You do. Jurors have to make these decisions unanimously.

7 Q And when you say they have to make the decision unanimously, that means
8 that if even one single jury has what he or she considers to be a reasonable doubt, that 9 juror will be instructed to find your defendant not guilty, correct?

10 A If that juror cannot reconcile his or her differences with the majority of the 11 jury, yes.

12 Q Okay.

13 I want to talk through some of the considerations that a prosecutor might take 14 into account when weighing whether the admissible evidence will probably be sufficient 15 to obtain and sustain a conviction beyond a reasonable doubt.

16 We talked through sufficiency of the evidence earlier. Is sufficiency of the 17 evidence something that a prosecutor might take into account?

18 A In deciding?

19 Q In deciding whether to bring charges?

20 A Yeah, absolutely.

21 Q Okay.

22 Does the ability to explain the charges effectively to a jury matter?

23 A Yeah, even if you have the evidence, you have to be able to convey the 24 significance of that evidence to the jury. And most good lawyers, good prosecutors, if 25 you've got sufficient evidence, they'll figure out a way to articulate the basis for a

1 conviction.

2 Q But it can be challenging, because facts can be complicated, correct?

3 A Can be challenging, particularly in more complicated cases, yes.

4 Q Are defenses to a charge something that a prosecutor would take into 5 account when deciding whether or not to charge?

6 A Defenses are something that good prosecutors should be very mindful of 7 when deciding whether to proceed, yes.

8 Q And taking all of these things into account, a prosecutor can only bring 9 charges if, based on those considerations, the prosecutor is confident that they can 10 obtain and sustain a conviction, correct?

11 A You're going to recommend a charge when you think you can prevail and 12 persuade a jury, yes.

13 Q Okay.

14 How do you prosecutors learn how to assess and evaluate the type of concerns we 15 just talked through?

16 A They read. They listen to others. They watch cases. They develop by 17 their own experiences. And they -- look, most folks that come to a U.S. Attorney's Office
18 have some level of experience, but the more you work as a prosecutor, the more you 19 appreciate making these judgment calls.

20 Q And is it fair to say that prosecutors, therefore, have kind of unique 21 experience in making those judgment calls?

22 A Yes. Especially, you know, the experienced prosecutors have unique 23 experience in making these decisions, yes.

24 Q And is it fair to say that investigators who are working on the case probably 25 don't have that same experience making the judgment calls about whether to bring

1 charges?

2 A I mean, it's fair to say that investigators, by virtue of their responsibilities,
3 aren't called upon to make these decisions. Some investigators who have experience
4 and have been around a while and are really good understand and appreciate 5 prosecutorial determination, some more than others.

6 Q In general, is it fair to say that one unique difference between investigators 7 and prosecutors is that investigators generally do their work before trial and before the 8 stage where the evidence is actually contested and prosecutors have to think about 9 presenting the evidence to a jury in a contested setting?

10 A Yeah, now, that's generally the case, but the fact is, agents continue to work 11 not only before trial -- or, the bulk of their work is done before trial, but they continue to 12 do all kinds of things during the course of a trial.

13 And prosecutors -- the best prosecutors do the bulk of their work before trial.
14 The presentation then takes over. So it's the actual responsibility, then, to present your 15 case to the jury. But the presentation doesn't go well if you haven't done your 16 homework well in advance.

17 Q Understood. My point is just that prosecutors, as opposed to investigators, 18 have to consider how the facts and the evidence will play out in an adversarial setting.
19 Is that fair to say?

20 A They have to consider that if they're going to be successful and persuade a 21 jury, yes.

22 Q Okay.

23 Given the difference in roles between investigators and prosecutors, is it 24 surprising that there are sometimes differences in opinion between investigators and 25 prosecutors about, for example, the strength of the evidence and the likelihood of 1 success at trial?

2 A Yeah, I can say that it is not unusual for prosecutors and agents to, at times,
3 disagree as to strength of the case, investigative decisions, things of that nature. It does 4 happen from time to time.

5 Q And in the course of your career as a prosecutor and as a supervisor of 6 prosecutors, have you experienced these disagreements?

7 A Sure. Part of my responsibilities entail running into those and trying to 8 resolve those.

9 Q And how do you work to resolve those differences?

10 A You make sure that everyone has an opportunity to be heard. You hash it
11 out; you talk it through. And, you know, if the parties are unable to -- that is, the agents 12 and the prosecutors -- to persuade or come to a consensus, you make a decision as to 13 how you're going to proceed. And hopefully everybody gets on board, and then you
14 proceed.

15 Q And if everybody doesn't get on board, though, it's prosecutors that have 16 the final say, correct?

17 A Typically, the prosecutors -- especially when it comes to charging decisions 18 and how the case is going to move forward, prosecutors are ultimately making that 19 decision.

20 Q And that's because prosecutors are responsible for actually bringing the case
21 to trial, correct?

22 A The prosecutor is responsible for -- yes, for putting together the evidence 23 and presenting the case at trial, yes.

24 Q And it's ultimately the prosecutor's decision as to whether the strength of 25 the evidence will be sufficient to convince 12 jurors beyond a reasonable doubt, correct?

1 A It is.

2 Mr. Goldman. Could I just add something on this line of questioning?

3 Is it common for prosecutors to meet with defense counsel to get a presentation
4 from them prior to making a charging decision?

5 Mr. Weiss. In the run-of-the-mill case, it certainly will happen that prosecutors
6 will hear from defense counsel. In tax cases, my understanding is, it's sort of part of the 7 process. Taxpayer conferences are generally built into the tax process, as I understand
8 it. I'm not an expert. That's my understanding.

9 Mr. Goldman. Well, you can confirm that Hunter Biden's lawyers made
10 presentations to your office as part of this investigation, correct?

11 Mr. Weiss. I'm not going to confirm those kinds of discussions, because it 12 wouldn't be appropriate for me to comment on those kinds of discussions. But I've 13 certainly participated in cases generally where defense counsel has made a pitch to the 14 prosecutors.

15 Mr. Goldman. I'm not asking for the discussions. I'm just asking about the fact 16 of the matter, that defense counsel for Hunter Biden made a presentation or multiple 17 presentations to your office. I don't want you to get into the details; just whether it 18 happened or not.

19 Mr. Weiss. I can say that Hunter Biden's counsel made a -- made a pitch.

20 Mr. Goldman. Right. And that pitch was to the prosecutors, correct?

21 Mr. Weiss. That pitch was -- again, I'm not going to get into the particulars. I 22 will acknowledge that it happened.

23 Mr. Goldman. But it wasn't to -- it wasn't with IRS agents.

24 Mr. Weiss. No. No.

25 Mr. Goldman. It would just be to the prosecutors?

1 Mr. Weiss. Again, I'm not going to get into the particulars. The pitch was 2 made.

3 Mr. Goldman. All I'm just trying to figure --

4 Mr. Weiss. Any prosecutor would want to hear -- I mean, if defense counsel
5 wants to talk to me about his case and tell me why we shouldn't move forward, I'm just 6 hearing additional input with respect --

7 Mr. Goldman. Very common. I agree. I'm just trying to make sure we 8 understand who that pitch is made to.

9 Mr. Weiss. I don't want to --

10 Mr. Goldman. It was made to the prosecutors, not to the investigators, because 11 the prosecutors are ultimately responsible for making the charging decision, correct?

12 Mr. Weiss. I don't want to get into the particulars in this case, but it would -- as a 13 general matter, it would be -- it would typically be the case, as I understand it, that 14 prosecutors and defense counsel would be the ones participating in such a scenario.

15 Mr. Goldman. Thank you.

16 Mr. Weiss. Sure.

17 [REDACTED]. Mr. Ivey, do you have --

18 Mr. Ivey. No.

19 Mr. Goldman. I have more, if we have time. I just thought you were -- if you
20 want to continue, go.

21 [REDACTED]. We have about 5 minutes.

22 Mr. Goldman. Do you have any more? You can go.

23 [REDACTED]. I'm at a stopping point.

24 Mr. Goldman. Okay.

25 I just wanted to follow up on a couple of things from the Republican side, their

1 questions.

2 When you say you had ultimate authority if it proved necessary, that meant, am I
3 correct, that you were assured that if there was any point when you needed additional 4 authority to charge what you thought you had sufficient evidence to charge, that you
5 would be able to do that, correct?

6 Mr. Weiss. I was assured that if I needed to proceed in another jurisdiction and I
7 chose to do so, I had the authority to do those things.

8 Mr. Goldman. Okay. And so the fact that you may not have sought particular 9 authority has no bearing on whether you had that authority.

10 Mr. Weiss. No, I had -- that's correct. I had the authority; I just hadn't 11 exercised the authority, is what you're speaking to.

12 Mr. Goldman. Yes. So the fact of not exercising doesn't mean you do not have 13 it.

14 Mr. Weiss. That's the way I see it, yes.

15 Mr. Goldman. Okay.

16 And is it also fair to say that the decision for a different U.S. Attorney's Office to 17 agree to join or partner with an investigation from another U.S. Attorney's Office
18 considers many, many factors, not just the substance of the investigation?

19 Mr. Weiss. Again, not discussing this case, but generally they could consider any 20 number of factors --

1 [12:18 p.m.]

2 Mr. Goldman. Right. And in part because the local U.S. Attorney's Office, if 3 partnering with an outside Attorney's Office would necessarily want to put their own staff
4 and their own resources in that case if it's in their own district?

5 Mr. Weiss. Sure. They're considering their resource constraints, their 6 priorities, all kinds of factors in deciding whether they want to throw additional resources 7 at the matter you're presenting.

8 Mr. Goldman. Right. And in a case of a 4-year investigation with more than 60 9 witnesses and hundreds of thousands of documents, it would require a lot of effort from 10 a local U.S. Attorney's Office to get up to speed on such an investigation. Is that fair to 11 say?

12 Mr. Weiss. And again, that sounds like you're getting into the case at hand, so I
13 can't get into that decision-making process. But I can say that I would expect, generally
14 speaking, that the more complicated the case, the more resource-intensive the case,
15 perhaps the more difficult the decision is for the district who was receiving this 16 information.

17 Mr. Goldman. And I may have missed this at the beginning. Did you ever ask 18 for 515 Special Attorney authority?

19 Mr. Weiss. I did ask for 515 Special Attorney authority.

20 Mr. Goldman. When did you do that?

21 Mr. Weiss. In the spring of 2022.

22 Mr. Goldman. Were you granted that?

23 Mr. Weiss. And at the -- I asked for it, and then in -- I think I've described it in or 24 around February, March of 2022, and at the conclusion of the process in D.C., as was 25 discussed with majority counsel, I was informed by the Principal Deputy Attorney General

1 that if I decided to proceed in the District of Columbia, I had the authority to proceed and 2 the authority to move forward with whatever charges I deemed appropriate.

3 Mr. Goldman. And that the first step would be to see if you could partner with 4 that U.S. Attorney. Is that right?

5 Mr. Weiss. The first step was just to contact the U.S. Attorney's Office to see if 6 they wanted to join in the prosecution.

7 Mr. Goldman. Okay. And you ultimately requested Special Counsel authority?

8 Mr. Weiss. I requested Special Counsel authority upfront.

9 Mr. Goldman. What do you mean "upfront"?

10 Mr. Weiss. In preliminary -- in my first conversations with the Principal Deputy 11 Attorney General, and in my conversation in February of 2022, I raised the specter of 515
12 authority at that time.

13 Mr. Goldman. Not Special Attorney. I'm asking about Special Counsel
14 authority.

15 Mr. Weiss. Oh, I'm sorry. I'm sorry.

16 Mr. Goldman. Yeah.

17 Mr. Weiss. I misunderstood. Hopefully the record reflects I misunderstood. I 18 was speaking to Special Attorney.

19 I never requested Special Counsel authority -- I'm sorry -- until August of 2023.

20 Mr. Goldman. And why did you request Special Counsel authority in August?

21 Mr. Weiss. I'm not going to discuss that. That's a matter -- those are privileged 22 communications between myself and the executives at the Department.

23 Mr. Goldman. But you were granted Special Counsel authority?

24 Mr. Weiss. I was granted Special Counsel authority.

25 Mr. Goldman. And that means that you can charge whatever you believe you

1 have sufficient evidence to charge wherever you need to charge it?

2 Mr. Weiss. That means, consistent with the AG's order, I can charge -- I can
3 discharge my responsibilities and charge the -- bring forth the charges in whatever 4 jurisdiction is appropriate.

5 Mr. Goldman. And I believe this is a matter of public record, but isn't it true that 6 Hunter Biden's attorneys waived venue as part of that proposed plea agreement in
7 Delaware?

8 Mr. Weiss. The plea documents are there. And as part of that resolution, my 9 recollection is, yes, there was a waiver -- there was a venue waiver as part of those 10 materials.

11 Mr. Goldman. Thank you.

12 [REDACTED]: Did you ever have any doubt that you would be granted 515 authority
13 if you sought it from the Deputy Attorney General's Office?

14 Mr. Weiss. From the time I received the assurance from PADAG John Carlin I 15 didn't really concern myself with authority moving forward. I understood that I had the 16 authority to proceed, you know, and to prosecute the charges I thought appropriate.

17 [REDACTED]: Okay.

18 Mr. Lieu. So I'm just a little confused. I just want to understand. You can't 19 talk about the particular aspects of the case today, right?

20 Mr. Weiss. Right.

21 Mr. Lieu. All right. So you testified that you have had whatever authority you 22 believe you needed to take the appropriate steps, right?

23 Mr. Weiss. I have.

24 Mr. Lieu. And you said that no one at Department of Justice has stopped you 25 from taking steps you deemed appropriate, right?

1 Mr. Weiss. Yes.

2 Mr. Lieu. I don't know what we're doing here today. We should just end this.
3 This is totally stupid. He can't talk about the facts of the case. He said he had all the 4 authority he needs. So I'm asking the Republicans why don't we just shut this down?
5 We're just wasting everybody's time. I don't understand why we're all here. What's 6 the point of this?

7 I yield back.

8 [REDACTED]. On that note, we can go off the record.

9 Thank you.

10 [Recess.]

11 Chairman Jordan. Let's go back on the record.

12 Thanks, Mr. Weiss.

13 In your last hour, Mr. Goldman asked you, Did you ever ask for 515 authority?
14 And you said, Yes, in the spring of 2022.

15 Did you ask for that authority before meeting with Mr. Graves -- or talking with 16 Mr. Graves about partnering with him or after?

17 Mr. Weiss. Before.

18 Chairman Jordan. You asked for it before.

19 And you asked -- this was the PADAG, right?

20 Mr. Weiss. This was the PADAG and Brad Weinsheimer.

21 Chairman Jordan. So Mr. Carlin and Mr. Weinsheimer?

22 Mr. Weiss. Yes.

23 Chairman Jordan. And they told you no at the time, that you should go talk to 24 Mr. Graves in D.C.?

25 Mr. Weiss. No. They never said no. They never said no. I asked for it.

1 They said, Let's follow the process. Go talk -- let's talk to Mr. Graves, see if they're going
2 to join. We're going to take it step by step. No one ever said no.

3 Chairman Jordan. Okay. And in the course of your investigation, from when 4 you started all the way until August 8th when you asked for Special Counsel status and
5 then were granted Special Counsel status on August 11th, did you ever have 515
6 authority throughout that time?

7 Mr. Weiss. I never -- as we've discussed, I never executed on that assurance that 8 I would have the authority.

9 Chairman Jordan. So you asked for it before you talked to Mr. Graves. Mr.
10 Graves -- you asked for it, and PADAG said, No. Go talk to Mr. Graves first. You go talk
11 to him. He says that he doesn't want to partner with you, and you never subsequently 12 asked for it. And the only time that you've been given any special counsel/515 authority
13 is when you asked for it in August of this year?

14 Mr. Weiss. No. The premise of your question I can't endorse. You said, I 15 asked for it, the PADAG said, No. As I said a moment ago, no one ever said no. He 16 didn't say no.

17 Chairman Jordan. Okay.

18 Mr. Weiss. They said to follow the process, talk to Graves, give him the 19 opportunity to join. When I completed that process, I returned to 515, and I was 20 assured you had the authority to proceed in D.C. and to file any charges you deem 21 appropriate.

22 Chairman Jordan. Again, I just want to be clear, though. Mr. Goldman asked 23 last hour, Did you ever ask for 515 authority? You said, Yes, in the spring of 2022.

24 And what I'm asking is did you ever have 515 authority throughout this
25 investigation?

1 Mr. Weiss. I was assured I had the authority necessary to move forward, yes.

2 Chairman Jordan. Let me ask it this way --

3 Mr. Weiss. I didn't request an order that ultimately gave me the authority that 4 would have been required if I had, in fact, filed the charges.

5 Chairman Jordan. Okay. Did you ask for it? You said, Yes, in the spring of 6 2022. What I want to know is, were you ever granted 515 authority?

7 Mr. Weiss. As I said a couple of times, I was assured at the conclusion of the 8 process in D.C. that I had 515 authority to proceed if I determined it was appropriate.

9 Chairman Jordan. Okay. And what you wrote to Senator Graham is -- on 10 July 10th of this year, you said, You would be granted this authority if it proved necessary.
11 Is that right?

12 Mr. Weiss. I'm looking at the letter.

13 Chairman Jordan. This is the July 10th letter to Ranking Member Graham.

14 Mr. Weiss. I'm sure you're reading it accurately.

15 Yes, that's what it says.

16 Chairman Jordan. Now, in this letter you say: I have not requested Special 17 Counsel designation.

18 Was that something different than 28 U.S.C. 515?

19 Mr. Weiss. Yes. That was --

20 Chairman Jordan. Okay.

21 Mr. Weiss. Yes.

22 Chairman Jordan. And you didn't request that again until August 8th and were 23 granted that on August 11th of this year. Is that right?

24 Mr. Weiss. I think your question was you didn't request it again. I only 25 requested it in --

1 Chairman Jordan. No. I meant again -- I wasn't referring to that.

2 Okay. And then the next sentence: When I had the discussion with 3 Department officials regarding judicial appointment under 28 U.S.C. 515, which we've 4 been talking about, which would allow me to file charges in a district outside my own
5 without the partnership of the U.S. local attorney, I was assured I would be granted
6 authority if it proved necessary.

7 When Mr. Graves turned you down, wasn't it necessary?

8 Mr. Weiss. If I chose to proceed. If I chose to move forward in D.C., it would 9 have been necessary, yes.

10 Chairman Jordan. But you went to Mr. Graves and asked him to partner. I 11 assume that meant you wanted to proceed in D.C. He says: No, we're not going to 12 partner. And I'm asking, that wasn't proof enough to be necessary to ask for 515?

13 Mr. Weiss. Again, I don't want to get into deliberative process or case merits.
14 But as I think I mentioned previously, we were thinking about D.C. and L.A., and at this 15 time, I was assured that if I wanted to proceed in D.C., I had the authority, and I was not 16 prepared at that time to make a decision as to where we would proceed.

17 Chairman Jordan. Okay.

18 Mr. Biggs. Can I ask a question?

19 You keep saying you were assured that you had the authority.

20 Mr. Weiss. Uh-huh.

21 Mr. Biggs. Who assured you?

22 Mr. Weiss. The Principal Deputy Attorney General told me that I would have the 23 authority to proceed in the District of Columbia and file whatever charges I deemed 24 appropriate.

25 Mr. Biggs. Was it conditional in any way?

1 Mr. Weiss. No.

2 Mr. Biggs. You just flat out had the authority. He assured you -- I don't know
3 who it was that assured you that you would have that authority. In fact, did you take 4 that as a granting of authority?

5 Mr. Weiss. From -- I understood that -- based on that assurance, I understood
6 that I could charge in that jurisdiction and proceed and that, yes, I could determine what 7 charges were appropriate.

8 Mr. Biggs. Regardless of Mr. Graves?

9 Mr. Weiss. Yes.

10 Mr. Biggs. Okay.

11 Mr. Weiss. Yes.

12 Mr. Biggs. Thank you.

13 Mr. Weiss. Sure. You're welcome.

14 EXAMINATION

15 BY MR. CASTOR:

16 Q I want to go back to, in 2020, were you aware that the U.S. Attorney out in 17 the Western District of Pennsylvania, Scott Brady, was asked by the Department to vet all 18 incoming Ukraine-related information?

19 A I was aware that the U.S. Attorney in the Western District of Pennsylvania
20 had been assigned that vetting responsibility.

21 Q And how frequently did you interact with Mr. Brady regarding information 22 his office received during his tenure?

23 A I'm not going to discuss that process at all. That's still ongoing. It's still 24 the subject of ongoing investigative matters.

25 Q Mr. Brady testified to the committee that it was a challenge for his office to

1 obtain information from you and your investigative team, so much so that at one point,
2 he had to submit written interrogatories to your office.

3 Can you help us understand what happened there?

4 A No. I'm sorry. At this time I can't help you understand what happened
5 there. I'm not going to discuss matters that concern ongoing investigations. At the 6 appropriate time, I'll prepare a report, and I expect that this will be something that will be 7 addressed in the report.

8 Q Okay. So you're not denying that Mr. Brady had to send you
9 interrogatory-style questions to get information out of you?

10 A I'm not commenting either way on the process at all. I want to make that 11 clear. It would be inappropriate for me to do so.

12 [Weiss Exhibit No. 9

13 Was marked for identification.]

14 BY MR. CASTOR:

15 Q Are you familiar -- let's mark this as the next exhibit -- with an FD-1023 dated 16 June 30, 2020, summarizing a confidential human sources meeting with Burisma
17 executives during which they discussed bribes allegedly paid to Joe Biden and Hunter
18 Biden?

19 A I'm sorry. What was your question about this document?

20 Q Are you familiar with this?

21 A I'm not going to comment on that. I appreciate your question, but it
22 concerns a matter that is subject to an outstanding investigation. It's something that I
23 absolutely cannot comment on either way.

24 Q The FBI has consistently reviewed the confidential human source in question
25 and found them to be highly credible.

1 Is that your understanding?

2 A As I said a moment ago, this is a matter about which I absolutely cannot 3 comment. It would be inappropriate for me to do so, although at the appropriate time,
4 I hope to address this matter and all aspects of this process.

5 Q Brady told us that he had such trouble getting ahold of you and your office,
6 that he had to go through the PADAG, and basically the PADAG had to intervene and 7 instruct your office to take a meeting with him.

8 A Is that a question?

9 Q Yes. Why wouldn't you meet with Mr. Brady?

10 A I'm not at liberty to discuss that at this time. I look forward to the 11 opportunity to addressing this in the special counsel's report at the appropriate time.

12 Q Yeah. Whether you had a meeting with Mr. Brady or not, I mean, you 13 certainly can tell us at a privilege log level the number of communications you had with 14 Mr. Brady.

15 A No, I'm not going to get into this topic at all. It would be inappropriate, 16 absolutely inappropriate to do so while this matter is outstanding.

17 Q Did your office conduct any further investigation after you became aware of 18 the 1023? Did you interview the confidential human source in question?

19 A Counsel, you know I can't discuss outstanding investigative matters. It's 20 inappropriate for me to do so.

21 Q Okay. I want to mark the two Delaware cases as the next exhibits.

22 Last hour I referenced some comments you made in some different tax cases.
23 Just for your benefit, I wanted to mark them just so we could close that loop.

24 A I recall that.

25 Mr. Castor. Number 10 and 11.

1 [Weiss Exhibits Nos. 10 and 11
2 Were marked for identification.]

3 BY MR. CASTOR:

4 Q Number 10 is the "Sussex County Photographer Bruce Kevin Fleming
5 Sentenced for Federal Tax Evasion." The fifth paragraph is your comment that "The 6 financial loss in tax cases is shared by every member of the tax-paying public. Our 7 Nation's ability to operate and serve its citizenry depends on voluntary compliance with 8 tax obligations. The defendant not only willfully evaded his personal income tax 9 obligations, but he failed to pay over taxes withheld from his employees' paychecks,
10 demonstrating a complete disregard for their individual tax liabilities."

11 Do you remember making that statement?

12 A I don't recall making the statements, but I don't doubt that I did.

13 Q Okay. And you still stand by that, correct?

14 A Sure.

15 Q The same with the next exhibit, the last paragraph is: "Tax dodging 16 represents an affront to every member of the tax-paying public, and we will continue to 17 prosecute tax cheats aggressively."

18 Do you remember making that?

19 A I don't recall the specific statement, but I'm satisfied that those are the 20 words that were used, and I stand by that statement.

21 Q If over -- in 2014 and 2015, it's been well-established by the whistleblowers, 22 Hunter Biden had in excess of over $1 million in revenue coming in from Burisma that has 23 avoided tax entirely.

24 Do you think it's fair that he is able to avoid paying tax on that gigantic sum of 25 money?

1 A Again, that's something I can't comment on. That pertains to the ongoing
2 litigation and our outstanding investigation. I'm just not at liberty to comment at this 3 time, but there will come a time.

4 Q Even though the statute of limitations has lapsed?

5 A Yes, yes.

6 Q When is the appropriate time to address why the statute of limitations was 7 allowed to lapse?

8 A I'll address it in the report, but even though the statute of limitations has 9 lapsed and even though charges won't be filed, if there were to be an outstanding tax 10 prosecution, there is no reason to believe that evidence pertaining to prior years, or 11 witnesses involved in prior years, wouldn't be part of that litigation.

12 Q Okay. But you can still I think -- without compromising a potential 13 prosecution that cannot be had for 2014 and 2015, you ought to be able to tell us about 14 the decision to let the statute lapse.

15 A I understand and appreciate the question and what you're suggesting. I'm 16 just not at liberty to do so. What I can say is, because it's akin to a charging 17 decision -- and making charging decisions in any matter, you're considering the proof.
18 You're considering your witnesses. You're considering legal challenges. If it's a 19 multi-charge situation, you're considering the effect of certain charges on other charges,
20 and whether those charges enhance or detract from your prosecution.

21 So, as a general matter, I'm just offering that there are any number of 22 considerations that would go into account --

23 Q Okay.

24 A -- in deciding whether to pursue them or not.

25 Q Did you make a decision to affirmatively let the statute lapse, or did it

1 happen by accident?

2 A I'm not going to address that at this time, but I will address it in the report.

3 Q Okay.

4 Mr. Biggs. Can I weigh in just for a second on that?

5 Because I appreciate what you're saying about it might have bearing on future
6 cases or any potential for future prosecution, but the question here is distinctly different
7 from that. This is, was this an accidental lapsing? Was this an intentional lapsing? It
8 really has no connection or bearing on any potential outcome of prosecution going 9 forward. So I'm struggling to understand your position on that.

10 Mr. Weiss. Yeah, I respect the question, Congressman. I understand it, but it 11 gets into deliberative process in this case, decision making processes, and those are 12 things that I'm not at liberty to discuss at this time. But as I said, I will address it. I will 13 address it in the report.

14 Mr. Castor. I want to mark the next exhibit, exhibit 12.

15 [Weiss Exhibit No. 12]

16 Was marked for identification.]

17 BY MR. CASTOR:

18 Q This is the special agent report we've had some discussion about. It was 19 produced in limited form. But this is the special agent report prepared by the IRS 20 criminal investigative agent at the end -- he began writing it at the end of 2021 and 21 wrapped it up in the beginning of 2022.

22 A You're telling me that this is the report or a portion of the report?

23 Q This is a portion of the report.

24 A Got it.

25 Q Fair enough. It contains the cover page and then the last two pages. It's

1 an 85-page document. Is this the first time -- you've seen this report before, correct? I
2 think you told us that this morning.

3 A I believe I have, yes. I believe I --

4 Q You saw the whole 85 pages?

5 A I believe I have.

6 Q Okay. Was there anything in the 85-page report that you or your Assistant 7 U.S. Attorneys disagreed with?

8 A I wouldn't comment on that now because it pertains to the case and the 9 investigation, and I don't recall.

10 Q Okay. If you would go to the second page, which is page 84 of the special
11 agent report. It states: "The recommendation for prosecution is based on the facts
12 above" -- that's the prior 83 pages -- "and recommends that RHB," Hunter Biden, "be 13 prosecuted under the provisions of Title 26, United States Code, Sections 7201 and 7206
14 for the tax years 2014, 2018, and 2019, and under the provisions of Title 26, United States
15 Code, Section 7203 for the tax years 2015, 2016, 2017, 2018, and 2019.

16 "A draft of this special agent report has been given to DOJ tax senior attorney 17 Mark Daly, as well as AUSA Lesley Wolf. AUSA Wolf has reviewed the appendices and 18 the charges cited in this report and agrees with the prosecution recommendation of the 19 above cited charges against RHB." That is Hunter Biden.

20 Is that consistent with your understanding of what was in this special agent report
21 when you reviewed it?

22 A Yeah. I'm not going to comment on any aspect or substance of the 23 investigative report, but I will acknowledge that you read the paragraph accurately.

24 Q Okay. But I guess what my question is, this isn't a doctored document.
25 This is what --

1 A I have no reason to believe that this is a doctored document.

2 Q Okay. And if Lesley Wolf and Mark Daly didn't agree with this stuff,
3 presumably the criminal investigator who prepared the report wouldn't put that on the 4 conclusions and recommendations page, correct? In fact, it was ultimately signed and 5 executed.

6 A Again, I can't speak to that. But, like I said, I agree that what you have 7 represented is stated in the report, and I believe this is --

8 Q Okay.

9 A -- an authentic version, subject to the redactions, of what I would have seen.

10 Q Okay. But a criminal investigative agent wouldn't make false
11 representations, correct, in the ordinary course of business?

12 A I'm not going to get into the substance of this particular report. But, as a 13 general matter, I wouldn't expect any agent to make false representations in a report of 14 any kind.

15 Q Okay. Shortly after the special agent report was prepared we have been 16 told through -- in sworn testimony that the DOJ Tax Division drafted a 99-page report
17 regarding the charging decisions in the matter.

18 Are you familiar with that document?

19 A I'm not going to get into the preparation of that document or any other 20 attorney-driven document in this case.

21 Q Okay. But you read the 99-page report that the Tax Division prepared,
22 right?

23 A I'm not going to get into the particulars of the documents that were 24 prepared, other than to say if something was presented to me in this case, I read it.

25 Q Okay. Certainly something as significant as a 99-page memo?

1 A Well, generally speaking, the fact that something is 99 pages doesn't 2 necessarily mean it's significant, but --

3 Q Well --

4 A -- as I said, I reviewed appropriate materials during the course of this case.

5 Q Okay. But it --

6 A I'm not going to get into the substance of those materials.

7 Q Okay. But if the DOJ Tax Division did draft a 99-page report related to the 8 Hunter Biden matter, you certainly would have reviewed it in the ordinary course,
9 correct?

10 A Again, I'm not going to get into the particulars of this case because it
11 necessarily gets into the deliberative process and case materials. As a supervisor of this 12 case, I would have read the key documents, absolutely.

13 Q Okay. Do you know who authored it?

14 A I'm not going to -- no, I'm not going to get into the particulars of any report
15 in this case or discuss the authors.

16 Q Okay. And do you know if it was -- I'm going to ask you, do you know if it 17 was authored in part by your AUSAs in the Tax Division?

18 A Again, I'm not going to get into the particulars of those matters because it
19 necessarily involves deliberative process and prosecutorial decisionmaking, 20 recommendations, and the like, all those kinds of things.

21 Q Let's take it up a level. Ordinarily, would this type of memo be prepared
22 jointly with the U.S. Attorney's Office in the Tax Division, or would it ordinarily be a Tax 23 Division document?

24 A Based on my experience -- and the fact is, I'm unfamiliar with a case in which 25 I participated where the U.S. Attorney's Office in Delaware has partnered with tax

1 divisions. So I can't draw on that frame of reference that you allude to.

2 Q Actually, this type of memo, in your experience, would be a DOJ Tax Division
3 product?

4 A I'm not saying either way. I'm not going to get into the particulars here.
5 What I'm suggesting is what happened here, that's the basis of the full sum of my 6 experience --

7 Q Okay.

8 A -- in the sort of hypothetical that you're presenting.

9 Q Okay. If the case had concluded and you had issued your report, would you
10 be able to tell me the answer to that question --

11 A Okay.

12 Q -- or are you withholding it because of the ongoing investigation, the 13 deliberative process or --

14 A It's part of the deliberative process, and for that reason, I can't comment.

15 Q But do you know the answer, I guess, of who wrote the memo?

16 A Again, I'm not going to get into whether I know the answer or not. This is 17 at all part of the deliberative process.

18 Mr. Biggs. You're not saying there wasn't a memo like this?

19 Mr. Weiss. Like what?

20 Mr. Biggs. He's referenced this specific memo. I'm asking you, do you agree 21 that that certain memo exists?

22 Mr. Weiss. I'm not going to acknowledge -- I'm not going to talk about memos
23 that were prepared during the course of this case. It's part of the deliberative process.
24 I'm not going to talk about --

25 Mr. Biggs. I'm asking you if the memo was created.

1 Mr. Weiss. Again, I understand that you're going to draw from my answer, which
2 is why I'm going to be very careful in what I respond to and what I don't. And I'm 3 unable, because it delves into the deliberative process, to say anything in this regard.

4 BY MR. CASTOR:

5 Q Okay. Did you attend a meeting on June 15th at Main Justice about this 6 case where the players involved included the entire investigative -- representatives from 7 the investigative team, including Gary Shapley; his supervisor, Darrell Waldon; Mark Daly
8 from the Tax Division; Stuart Goldberg from the Tax Division; Jack Morgan from the Tax
9 Division? Does this jog your memory? I can give you additional participants if that's 10 helpful.

11 A I don't want to discuss particular meetings, but I will say that I participated in 12 several meetings, and that some of those meetings involved virtually all of the folks who 13 were involved in this case at a leadership level.

14 Q Okay. The June 15th meeting happened here in Washington, D.C. So can 15 you tell us, did you travel down here for the meeting?

16 A Again, I'm not going to talk about those kinds of things. I'm not going to 17 get into the particulars of our investigation, particular meetings, who participated. I'm 18 here to talk about my authority, decision-making authority.

19 Q Okay. Did you meet with Gary Shapley the day before?

20 A As I mentioned a moment ago, I met with agents and the investigative and 21 leadership team on several occasions during the course of this process, and I did so out
22 of -- in an effort to make sure -- and I mentioned this in reference to a question 23 previously -- an effort to make sure that the agents were heard, and that their views on 24 this investigation, their view of the case and appropriate charges was part of the 25 decision-making process, but I can't get into the particulars.

1 Q Okay. We've received testimony, not just from the IRS whistleblowers, but
2 also from other witnesses, that at the June 14th -- or sorry -- the June 15th meeting, DOJ
3 Tax had a presentation.

4 Do you remember that presentation?

5 A I'm not going to get into the particulars of any presentation or the 6 circumstances surrounding this meeting. This, again, would be something that I would 7 expect and I'd be more than happy to address in the special counsel's report.

8 Q The testimony shows that at the June 15th meeting the Tax Division lawyers 9 presented complications and all the difficulties they would have with bringing a case, but 10 yet, FBI personnel piped up and disputed that characterization.

11 Do you remember that?

12 A I'm not at liberty to discuss any particulars concerning this meeting or other 13 meetings, other than meetings at which my decision-making authority was discussed.

14 Q When did you decide to contact the Central District of California, the Los 15 Angeles U.S. Attorney's Office about this case?

16 A I contacted the Central District of California in August of '22.

17 Q And did that -- was that preceded by a discussion with the DAG's Office?

18 A I would have had a discussion with the DAG's Office -- I mean, at this point in 19 time, as I think I alluded to previously, I was having monthly conversations, or about each 20 month with the Office of the Deputy Attorney General.

21 Q Okay. And those monthly conversations were with Mr. Weinsheimer?

22 A Primarily, yes.

23 Q Was Mr. Carlin and then, subsequently, Mr. Miller involved with that?

24 A No. As I told you, I never spoke to Miller, and I believe Mr. Carlin had left 25 the Department at -- you know, somewhere during this time, the summer of 2022.

1 Q And were your Weinsheimer telephone calls monthly, was that a regularly
2 scheduled call or did it just happen to turn out to be monthly based on --

3 A It happened to be monthly.

4 Q Okay.

5 A Based on -- you know, I'm estimating the frequency of the meetings.

6 Q Okay. Fair enough.

7 And so before you decided to contact the Los Angeles U.S. Attorney's Office, you
8 had a conversation with Mr. Weinsheimer?

9 A I don't know -- I don't know if it was before or shortly thereafter. I don't 10 know what preceded what, but -- so I don't recall the particulars.

11 Q Did he need to grease the skids for that meeting?

12 A No, he did not.

13 Q Did you ask for 515 authority before or after going to Los Angeles?

14 A I just -- no. I described my conversations with respect to 515 authority in 15 the context of the D.C. discussions.

16 Q Okay.

17 A And so in my mind, from my perspective, I didn't need to raise it, and I didn't 18 raise it any further.

19 Q Okay. So as we understand it, the U.S. Attorney in Los Angeles wasn't 20 installed until September of 2022, but you had made contact with that office during the 21 month of August. Is that correct?

22 A I had contact with --

23 Q His predecessor?

24 A -- his predecessor, the Acting U.S. Attorney at that time.

25 Q Okay. And as we understand it, according to Mr. Estrada, some SAUSAs

1 were established. Is that correct?

2 A Again -- and you asked that about D.C. I just don't recall the particulars of 3 whether SAUSAs were established and exactly what that meant, but I don't necessarily 4 dispute it. I just don't recall the particulars.

5 Q Okay. So if Mr. Estrada told us there are officials from your office in 6 Delaware, AUSAs, that have been granted Special Assistant U.S. Attorney authority under 7 the SAUSA regime, you don't know if that's correct or not?

8 A I just can't -- I can't recall. I can't recall the particulars of that process. I
9 know the conversations in which I participated and, you know, what we were doing
10 vis-à-vis the Central District of California.

11 Q What was the -- do you remember the name of the person you were talking 12 to, the predecessor, the acting, before Mr. Estrada was installed?

13 A Stephanie Christensen.

14 Q And did Ms. Christensen -- did she urge you to wait until Estrada was on 15 board?

16 A No.

17 Q What was the nature of your conversation with her in August of 2022?

18 A Similar to my conversation with U.S. Attorney Graves.

19 Q Okay.

20 A Basically that this is the case. These are the circumstances. I'm reaching 21 out to see if you wanted to join or participate in this case. I have requested 515
22 authority. And it went from there with line personnel having communications.

23 Q Okay. Did Ms. Christensen ever present you with a decision from their 24 office about whether they wanted to partner, co-counsel, or whatever?

25 A She did not.

1 Q Okay. And so then when was your next interaction with the office? Was 2 that after Mr. Estrada was installed?

3 A I believe it was.

4 Q And what do you remember from that?

5 A I had a brief conversation with U.S. Attorney Estrada. It was in October
6 of '22, and Mr. Estrada informed me that his office was -- declined to participate with us
7 or to join us in that case.

8 Q Okay. So he shot you down, too, just like Mr. Graves?

9 A I'm not going to use the words "shot me down" --

10 Q Okay.

11 A -- but he declined to participate in the case.

12 Q Okay. And so what was your move from there?

13 A Same as it had been before, to proceed to moving forward.

14 Q Okay.

15 A To focus on the decision-making process.

16 Q Okay. But you said that you felt confident that had you asked for it, you
17 would have had 515 authority to take a case and bring it in Los Angeles?

18 A Yes. It wasn't a question of my authority. It was just a question of 19 deciding to move forward.

20 Chairman Jordan. Just tell me the timeline again. So in August of '22 you 21 talked to Ms. Christensen, I think you said, and said, Do you want to partner with the 22 Central District of California? And was there any conversations between that August 23 contact and October when Mr. Estrada who became the U.S. Attorney told you no?

24 Mr. Weiss. Not by me.

25 Chairman Jordan. But your office had subsequent contacts in that time frame

1 between August and October?

2 Mr. Weiss. My office and Tax Division were working with folks in L.A.

3 Chairman Jordan. And the first contact you had with Mr. Estrada is when you got 4 on the phone and he told you no?

5 Mr. Weiss. That's the first and only contact with respect to this matter that I had 6 with Mr. Estrada.

7 Chairman Jordan. Okay.

8 BY MR. CASTOR:

9 Q Just one call that you remember with him?

10 A One call about this, yes.

11 Q Okay. If he remembers more than one call, is it possible that there was 12 more than one call?

13 A If he remembers more than one call, it wasn't at this time about this issue.
14 That's my recollection.

15 Q Okay. So D.C. didn't want to partner, correct?

16 A D.C. chose not to participate in this case as a partner, that's correct.

17 Q Okay. And Los Angeles, the Central District of California, they didn't want 18 to partner either, correct?

19 A L.A. chose not to join us in this case, that's correct.

20 Q Okay. DOJ Tax, while at first they wanted to -- they were enthusiastic
21 about moving forward, then they moved -- at the June 15th meeting, we learned that DOJ
22 Tax was reluctant to proceed?

23 A I'm not going to embrace that characterization, nor can I comment on any 24 discussions that were had with the Tax Division in June of 2022, or at any other time.

25 Q Okay.

1 A I'm just not going to get into that.

2 Q We've been told -- Scott Brady testified that every time he tried to talk to 3 your office he was basically turned down and had to go to the PADAG to set up some 4 meetings with you in your office.

5 A Counsel, in all candor, I don't know that I would accept that representation
6 under any circumstances. But in any event, I'm not going to get into particulars of 7 communications with Mr. Brady on the matter that you're referring to.

8 Q At this point did you feel like you were on an island?

9 A No, no.

10 Q I mean, D.C. didn't want to prosecute and partner with you; L.A. didn't want
11 to partner with you; DOJ Tax was expressing reservations. I mean, did you feel like you 12 had -- you know, you were getting isolated?

13 A No. I thought that -- as I said repeatedly, I thought I had the authority and 14 then it was a question of making the decisions.

15 Chairman Jordan. What was it going to take to prove necessary to ask for and 16 get 515 status? You're 0 for 2. You had asked before you ever went to the initial 17 contact with the D.C. Attorney, Mr. Graves, and you say in your letter, if it proved 18 necessary, you would request and get that authority. What was it going to take if you 19 were already 0 for 2?

20 Mr. Weiss. Chairman, I mean, your question presumes that I'm asking the U.S.
21 Attorneys in L.A. and in D.C. for their approval with respect to 515 status. That wasn't 22 happening at all. I wasn't asking them for anything in that regard.

23 Chairman Jordan. I'm not saying you were.

24 Mr. Weiss. I had it if I wanted.

25 Chairman Jordan. You asked them to partner with the case.

1 Mr. Weiss. I asked them --

2 Chairman Jordan. Both of them told you no. You were told by Main Justice,
3 prior to your initial ask of the U.S. Attorney in the District of Columbia, that if you needed
4 515 authority -- you asked for 515 authority. He said, No. Go talk to them. You're 0
5 for 2, and you still don't ask for it. You still don't get it.

6 Mr. Weiss. The only -- I still don't get it. The only question is did I ask for it.
7 So I knew that when or if I asked for it, I was going to get it. That wasn't at the forefront
8 of my mind. What I was concentrating on now was the case, the strength of the case
9 and whether we bring the case. That's all that was -- that was the focus of my attention, 10 not the authority issue.

11 Mr. Castor. Do we have in the exhibits the August 7, 2020 email?

12 Ms. Nabity. Yes.

13 Mr. Castor. I'm going to mark as the next exhibit -- we're up to number 13.

14 [Weiss Exhibit No. 13

15 Was marked for identification.]

16 BY MR. CASTOR:

17 Q On August 2nd, AUSA Lesley Wolf sent FBI Special Agent Joshua Wilson an 18 email in which she wrote: There should be nothing about Political Figure 1 -- and that 19 refers to Joe Biden -- in the draft search warrant.

20 Are you familiar with that?

21 Are you familiar with that?

22 A Can I look at what you're referring to?

23 Q I referenced an August 2nd email. Now the marked email is August 7th.

24 But there should be nothing about Political Figure 1 in the search warrant. And 25 the question is do you know who Political Figure 1 is? And I think by all accounts, it's Joe

1 Biden.

2 A I don't know if -- because there are redactions on the below email, whether I
3 was copied. But, in any event, this clearly pertains to aspects of the investigation, and 4 I'm not going to comment on any aspect of the investigation.

5 Q In your experience, for ordinary cases, is it normal for prosecutors to order
6 investigators to remove references to key figures that could potentially be implicated in a 7 search warrant?

8 A Again, there are so many variables in that hypothetical, and it's not 9 something I -- it wouldn't be appropriate for me to speculate or offer an opinion on a set 10 of circumstances such as those.

11 Q Whistleblowers have testified that during a prosecution team meeting on 12 September 3, 2020, that Lesley Wolf stated that there was enough probable cause for 13 search warrants, but optics were a driving factor in the decision of whether to execute 14 that search warrant.

15 Do you remember that?

16 A No, I don't, and nor would I comment on particulars of the investigation.
17 It's just not appropriate now, and perhaps it will be appropriate at the time I prepare the 18 report.

19 Q But for an investigation that doesn't involve the son of a President, or the 20 future President at that time, would that -- regular case, not involving the son of a future
21 President or the son of a former Vice President, would that type of driving factor be 22 appropriate optics?

23 A Again, I'm not going to comment on a question that necessarily is a 24 hypothetical. Prosecutors will consider any number of factors in deciding whether to 25 proceed with certain investigative techniques. And I just -- there are so many variables

1 that might go into that decision-making process, it just wouldn't be productive or 2 constructive for me to get into those circumstances.

3 Q Are you aware of the day of action that was planned on December 8, 2020?

4 A I am aware as a general matter to that eventuality. But, again, because it's 5 an investigative technique as part of our overall investigation into this matter, I'm not at 6 liberty to get into the particulars.

7 Q Do you know how many interviews were planned for that day?

8 A Just not going to get into the particulars of that matter.

9 Q And do you know how many interviews were actually conducted?

10 A I'm not at liberty to get into the particulars of that matter. I would say that 11 as a general matter in white-collar investigations, when you're dealing with persons who 12 are represented by counsel, you never accept as a fait accompli that folks will be available
13 for you and will be willing participants in interviews.

14 So as a general matter, I don't know that there are expectations in that regard 15 when you're dealing with certain types of cases and investigations.

16 Q But they had success with Rob Walker, didn't they?

17 A Again, I can't get into the particulars of this case, because it involves the
18 investigation.

19 Q And the transcript of the Rob Walker interview, I mean, that was made 20 public as a part of the whistleblower proceedings, correct?

21 A I can't get into the particulars of this investigation. It would be 22 inappropriate for me to comment on any aspect of it or any witness who has or has not 23 spoken.

24 Q Do you know if Mr. Walker was represented by counsel?

25 A I'm just not at liberty to discuss the particulars of the investigation at this

1 time.

2 Q Do you know who made the decision to tip off the presidential transition
3 team about the day of action, and that the investigators wanted to try to speak with 4 Hunter Biden?

5 A That's, again, another -- that's a part of the investigation, and it is something 6 that I would expect to address in the submission of my report, but it wouldn't be 7 appropriate for me to comment on that matter until that time.

8 Q Okay. So you acknowledge that that was an issue that occurred?

9 A Again, I am -- that's something that I will address -- it's something -- if -- I'm 10 not going to comment on the investigation, but investigative techniques and certain other 11 aspects of the investigation would be topics I would expect to address at the time I
12 prepare the report.

13 Q Are you familiar with investigators' plan to search Hunter Biden's storage
14 unit around this time period?

15 A Again, I'm not going to get into the particulars of any particular investigative 16 technique or what was or was not done during the course of the investigation. It will be 17 addressed at a later time.

18 Q How many taxpayer conferences -- Mr. Goldman raised this with you, that 19 there were a series of taxpayer conferences with lawyers for Hunter Biden. The 20 question is how many were there?

21 A I believe we talked about defense counsel, and I mentioned that, as a 22 general rule, there are -- my understanding, not being a tax expert, but part of the 23 process afforded in tax cases is that the putative defendant taxpayer may be afforded a 24 conference with Tax Division counsel or the attorneys assigned to the case.

25 Q And ordinarily that's one, right? There's, like, one?

1 A In all candor, Counsel, I don't know what the normal course is. I'm not an 2 expert in Tax Division processes in this regard and how many conferences are typically 3 afforded.

4 Q Do you remember Mr. Clark suggesting that it would be career suicide to 5 bring a case involving Hunter Biden?

6 A I'm not going to talk about the particulars of any conversations with defense
7 counsel or whatever representations Mr. Clark may have made.

8 Q But you're aware Mr. Clark took a volume of information and he handed it
9 over to the press, correct?

10 A I'm aware of Mr. Clark. I'm just not going to talk about anything he has said
11 or anything he has done. He can address that if he so desires.

12 Q Okay. But there was a big long New York Times article and a Politico story 13 about this, correct?

14 A I try to stay away from press reports so that I can focus on the case and --

15 Q Okay. So you haven't read The New York Times article?

16 A I don't recall either way.

17 Mr. Castor. Okay. Do you want to mark the next exhibit? We'll mark it then.

18 [Weiss Exhibit No. 14

19 Was marked for identification.]

20 BY MR. CASTOR:

21 Q So The New York Times reported that Mr. Clark wrote to your office and 22 basically raised the prospect that President Biden would be called as a witness, and 23 because of that, that would be a reason that you should not bring the case.

24 Do you remember that allegation?

25 A I'm not going to comment on that, what Mr. Clark may have said or 1 represented to us.

2 Q Uh-huh.

3 A But I'd say, as a general matter, decisions in the case are going to be based 4 on the facts and the law, not any representation --

5 Q Okay.

6 A -- by the defense counsel or -- I'm not going to call them threats, but 7 whatever he may have said in that regard.

8 Q So surely you remember this New York Times article coming out, right? I
9 mean, this is a pretty significant article against the backdrop of your case. You can flip 10 through it. It's pretty --

11 Do you remember reading the article when it came out?

12 A I don't know that I recall reading the article. I'm not going to 13 discuss -- whatever Mr. Clark chose to share with the press, that's for him to speak to.
14 I'm not going to comment on it either way. It would be inappropriate -- to the extent
15 this is discussing plea negotiations, absolutely inappropriate for a prosecutor to talk 16 about that process.

17 Q Okay. Stuart Goldberg testified that he went to Delaware for one of these 18 taxpayer conference meetings.

19 Do you remember that?

20 A Do I remember Stuart Goldberg coming to Delaware?

21 Q Yeah.

22 A I'm not going to get into the meetings.

23 Q I mean, he did. I don't know what the difference is.

24 A Well, I understand that he -- I don't know, but I'm not going to discuss 25 meetings with defense counsel. I just don't think it's appropriate for this process, and it

1 doesn't go to my authority.

2 Q Okay. I mean, it's a little confusing for us. I mean, witnesses come in with 3 the same DOJ lawyers and, you know, some witnesses are talking about one thing, and 4 then now you're saying you're not going to talk about it.

5 Do you -- I guess the question is, do you remember the meeting?

6 A Look, I can only make decisions on behalf of myself and the integrity of the 7 investigation and the process moving forward. That's what I'm focused on. I can't 8 speak to why Mr. Goldberg did or did not address something that I'm handling differently.
9 I understand the frustration, but I'm not in a position to address it.

10 Q During this meeting, Mr. Clark said that your legacy was on the line, how you 11 handled this case.

12 Do you remember that?

13 A Again, I'm not going to talk about the meeting or any particulars with respect
14 to the meeting.

15 Q I'm going to turn your attention to the Attorney General statements about 16 your authority. In April of 2022, he stated: The Hunter Biden investigation is being run 17 and supervised by the United States Attorney for the District of Delaware. He's in 18 charge of that investigation. There will not be any interference of any political or 19 improper kind.

20 Do you remember hearing the Attorney General's comments in April of 2022?

21 A I can't -- I can't recall when or if I heard specific comments. What I can say
22 is I believe -- with respect to what you've just represented to me, I believe I'm in charge of 23 the investigation, and I don't believe I was interfered with in the exercise of my 24 responsibilities in this case.

25 Q So the Attorney General has had a couple of silent appearances where this

1 topic has come up, and I guess the question is, did you have direct communications with 2 the Attorney General?

3 A I've never had any direct communications with the Attorney General, save
4 my communication in requesting Special Counsel authority in August of 2023.

5 Q When you did request Special Counsel authority in August of 2023, how did
6 you request it? Was it in writing or on the telephone?

7 A It was in writing, and that's about all I'm going to say about that process.

8 Q Okay. Did you reach out directly to the Attorney General, or did you go
9 through Mr. Weinsheimer?

10 A I'm not going to get into anything further. I requested it, and it was 11 granted.

12 Q Okay. So the Attorney General, Mr. Garland's testimony before the Senate
13 in April of 2022, did Mr. Weinsheimer tip you off that the Attorney General was going to 14 be making those statements, or did he follow up after they were made to alert you to 15 them?

16 A I don't recall ever being tipped off or alerted to anything the Attorney
17 General was or was not going to say.

18 Q Okay.

19 A -- to Congress or anyone else.

20 Q Okay.

21 A I don't recall anything that resembles such a process.

22 Q Okay. So to the extent you are familiar with them, you just heard about 23 them in the news?

24 A I'm not sure where I heard about them. All I can say and all I'd address is 25 what I understand the situation to be with respect to anything that was said that

1 pertained to me, the investigation, my authority, anything in that nature.

2 Q In March of 2023, the Attorney General stated: "The U.S. Attorney in 3 Delaware has been advised that he has the full authority to make those kind of referrals,"
4 referring to other U.S. Attorney's Offices, "or bring cases in other jurisdictions if he feels 5 it's necessary, and I've not heard anything from that office to suggest they're not able to 6 do everything that the U.S. Attorney wants to do."

7 Do you remember the Attorney General making that comment?

8 A I don't know if I have a specific recollection of that comment or the others.

9 Q Okay.

10 A What I'd say is I've testified to you folks is that -- or I've described for you
11 folks is that I had the ability to pursue charges in the jurisdiction I determined was 12 appropriate.

13 Q But as of March of 2023, I mean, you tried to bring a case in D.C. He 14 decided not to partner. You tried to bring a case in the Central District of California, in 15 Los Angeles. He decided not to partner. So how do you reconcile that?

16 A How do I reconcile that with what?

17 Q That, on one hand, the Department is saying, yeah, we're going to give you 18 515 authority. The Attorney General is saying you have the full authority. But, on the 19 other hand, when you actually try to implement any of these things, you're told no.

20 A Again, you're putting one fact together with another that don't go together.
21 I had the authority. I was satisfied I had the authority. I wasn't concerned about my 22 authority. The only issue I was concerned with was the decisionmaking on the case, the 23 strength of the case, and whether to bring the case. That was the focus of my thought 24 process, not the authority.

25 Q And in your letter you talk about requesting Special Attorney status?

1 A In exhibits 1, 2, or 3?

2 Q Correct.

3 A Yes.

4 Q And then ultimately, you requested Special Counsel status. Why the 5 difference? Like, why didn't you just request Special Attorney status as you had 6 indicated?

7 A I'm not going to get into the particulars as to why I requested Special
8 Counsel status --

9 Q Okay.

10 A -- as opposed to Special Attorney status.

11 Q Okay.

12 A That's just --

13 Chairman Jordan. The whole premise here is on your authority. That gets to 14 the heart of the matter. What is the distinction your authority -- you requested Special 15 Attorney status clear back in March of '22 -- actually February of '22 before you went to 16 Mr. Graves. That's the heart of what we're trying to get at, and you won't answer the 17 question.

18 Mr. Weiss. No, I'm not going to get into the particulars of why I requested 19 Special Counsel status. That's beyond the scope of this, in my mind.

20 Mr. Castor. Okay.

21 Mr. Weiss. Those are executive communications and inappropriate for me to 22 disclose. I had the authority that I thought was appropriate as U.S. Attorney to bring the 23 charges under 515 as I've discussed, and I continue to have the authority to move forward 24 in my current status.

25 BY MR. CASTOR:

1 Q What were the differences, though, in Special Attorney status and in Special
2 Counsel status? Like, you were making your decision in August to request Special
3 Counsel status. Surely, you mulled whether Special Attorney status would do it for you.

4 And so the question is, in August of 2023, when you're thinking this over, you're 5 mulling it, what are the differences in your mind between those two?

6 A Yeah. That gets right back to the question that was posed by the chairman
7 and yourself previously, and it necessarily gets into particular executive conversations
8 that I'm not at liberty to discuss, would be inappropriate for me to discuss at this time,
9 certainly would be the subject, and should be the subject, of my Special Counsel report
10 when that's submitted.

11 Q Okay. If you're giving a lecture then -- let's say hypothetically you're giving 12 a lecture to a bunch of law students, and you're trying to help law students understand 13 the difference between the two, what would you tell them?

14 A The difference between --

15 Q Special Counsel authority and Special Attorney.

16 A Well, there are differences, and we discussed some of the processes that 17 one must follow. I mean, as a U.S. Attorney, I've got to go through the 515 process that 18 we've been discussing extensively. As Special Counsel, that process doesn't exist. I 19 have the authority, consistent with my mandate as ordered by the Attorney General, to 20 prosecute and to bring the case wherever circumstances dictate.

21 So I don't have to go through that step-by-step process. But that's one example 22 of the differences between the two.

1 [1:34 p.m.]

2 BY MR. CASTRO:

3 Q And, if you were told that you would have been able to have 515 authority if 4 you asked for it, like, why wouldn't you just go that route?

5 A Again, that necessarily gets into the issue that we've been looking at, and it's 6 just not appropriate for me to get into at this time.

7 Mrs. Spartz. Are there key differences that are significant in the statuses, any 8 other difference except processes for 515?

9 Mr. Weiss. I mean, generally speaking, the idea is you don't report -- you know,
10 the reporting requirements aren't as demanding as Special Counsel, but I'm trying to 11 think of other differences. Resource availability might be different under the two 12 processes. But, again, I would return to the idea that, whether I was Special Counsel or 13 whether I was a U.S. Attorney, you know, I had the authority I needed to proceed as I 14 deemed appropriate.

15 BY MR. CASTRO:

16 Q Since you've been appointed Special Counsel, did you get more staff?

17 A I don't want to get into the particulars of the staff, and I continue to work on 18 building the team, but I'm not going to get into the particulars.

19 Q Do you have separate office space?

20 A I do have separate office space.

21 Q Okay. And you're housed in Delaware?

22 A I am housed in Delaware.

23 Q Okay. So it's totally separate office as Special Counsel from the U.S.
24 Attorney?

25 A It is.

1 Q Okay. And you're performing both functions? You're performing the 2 functions of the United States Attorney for the District of Delaware, and the Special
3 Counsel?

4 A I have help as U.S. Attorney, but I'm doing the best I can in each of the roles,
5 yes.

6 Q Okay. And I'm sorry if I just asked this, but how large is your team on the 7 Special Counsel's Office? I think I asked a slightly different question, but I'm not trying 8 to be repetitive here.

9 A I don't know that you have. I don't want to get into particulars of numbers, 10 individuals, and the team, so -- and determine that we will have the team necessary to 11 pursue the case as we assess it.

12 Chairman Jordan. I just want to read from the Attorney General's statement on 13 August 11th of this year announcing U.S. Special Counsel. Bottom of the first page of 14 what's been marked, it says: "On Tuesday of this week, Mr. Weiss advised me" -- this is 15 a Friday, August 11th, so Tuesday would have been August 8th. "On Tuesday of this 16 week, Mr. Weiss advised me that, in his judgment, his investigation reached a stage in 17 which he should continue his work as Special Counsel, and he asked to be so appointed."

18 And you said that was the only contact you've had with the Attorney General, was 19 when you asked him for this?

20 Mr. Weiss. That's my professional --

21 Chairman Jordan. And just refresh my memory. Was that a phone call, email?
22 How was that? A letter?

23 Mr. Weiss. I didn't get into the particulars, but that is the only communication
24 that I had with the Attorney General that I recall, yes.

25 Chairman Jordan. Did you talk with anyone else at Main Justice prior to the

1 communication directly with the Attorney General?

2 Mr. Weiss. With respect to that request?

3 Chairman Jordan. Yes.

4 Mr. Weiss. No.

5 Chairman Jordan. Okay.

6 BY MR. CASTRO:

7 Q During your discussions with Mr. Weinsheimer about 515 authority, was 8 there any discussion about the conflict-of-interest rules and whether they would be 9 applicable here?

10 A For conflict-of-interest rules for me?

11 Q Correct.

12 A No. Not as it pertained to my -- oh, wait. They would be applicable here
13 with respect to what? Special Counsel, Special Attorney? I just want to make sure I 14 understand.

15 Q The fact that you're handling, you know, the Hunter Biden case, that you're 16 the Delaware U.S. Attorney, you know, Hunter Biden is the son of the President, who is 17 from Delaware, who is certainly a very influential person and comes from a very 18 influential family in Delaware.

19 A No. I had been with the case for a couple of years, and, no, we never 20 discussed whether it was appropriate for me to continue to handle the case, because I 21 was the U.S. Attorney in Delaware.

22 Q Okay. There has been some reporting that, during President Biden's son 23 Beau Biden's tenure as attorney general in Delaware, you had some interactions with 24 him.

25 What can you tell us about those?

1 A I don't know what that has to do with my authority, but I --

2 Q Were you friends with Beau Biden?

3 A No, I wasn't friends with Beau Biden. I barely had a relationship with 4 Beau Biden.

5 Q Okay.

6 A I was the Acting U.S. Attorney. He was the attorney general, so our paths
7 crossed. That was the extent of this relationship.

8 Q Okay. Any relationship with any other Biden family members?

9 A Nope.

10 Ms. Zdeb. Steve, can we go off the record for one quick second?

11 Mr. Castro. Sure.

12 [Discussion off the record.]

13 Mr. Castro. Back on the record.

14 BY MR. CASTRO:

15 Q Did you have anything to add after conferring with counsel?

16 A No, no, no. I -- no.

17 Q Okay. When Graves and Estrada told you that they didn't want to partner 18 on the case, did they give you any specific feedback about why?

19 A I never had a conversation with Graves about not partnering, and I had a 20 conversation with Estrada. I don't want to get into particulars. It goes to the merits,
21 and --

22 Mr. Biggs. It goes to the merits of what?

23 Mr. Weiss. It goes to merits of the case, views of the case, discussions about the 24 case, and I'm not going to discuss those discussions because it does bear on the merits of 25 the case and the investigation.

1 Mr. Biggs. The phrase is interesting. I -- "goes to the merits of the case." All
2 right.

3 BY MR. CASTRO:

4 Q So the Graves people, that was all staff to staff? You learned that 5 Mr. Graves didn't want to partner via staff?

6 A That's correct. I learned via the folks on my side of the aisle, yes.

7 Q And you never had a subsequent follow-up with him?

8 A No. I wasn't -- it wasn't necessary. It wasn't like I was looking to 9 persuade anyone. I wasn't concerned about my ability to go forward, so there was no
10 need to say, "Do you want to reconsider," or anything of that nature. They said it. I 11 accepted it, and I had conversations with the Office of Deputy Attorney General and 12 understood what my options were.

13 Q Okay. Did Graves or Estrada -- did their offices offer you anything? Did 14 they offer you office space or access to their grand juries?

15 A As I said earlier, I specifically recall feedback from Mr. Graves' office that 16 would have afforded us those logistical assists, yes.

17 Q But you didn't take him up on that offer?

18 A Well, I didn't proceed in the jurisdiction, so I didn't take him up on that offer.

19 Q Did Mr. Weinsheimer ever tell you that he met with Chris Clark?

20 A He -- if -- no. If he met with Chris Clark, I would have been at that meeting.

21 Q Okay. So there were no one-on-one meetings or telephone calls between 22 Mr. Clark and Brad Weinsheimer?

23 A I am unaware of any such meeting, and I don't think any such meeting would 24 have occurred.

25 Q Was Mr. Weinsheimer -- did he attend all the meetings, the taxpayer

1 conference meetings?

2 A Well, there are two types of meetings. I didn't attend taxpayer
3 conferences to the -- you know, I didn't participate in any taxpayer conference.

4 Q But you attended some meetings with Mr. Clark, correct?

5 A As I acknowledged earlier, there was a meeting, or 6 there -- meeting -- meetings with defense counsel took place. Just can't get into the 7 particulars of any meeting.

8 Mr. Castro. Okay. Our hour is up, so I'll stop there.

9 [Recess.]

1 [2:19 p.m.]

2 [REDACTED]: All right. It is 2:20. We can go back on the record.

3 BY [REDACTED]:

4 Q Special Counsel Weiss, in the last hour of questioning, the majority counsel
5 asked you a number of questions about supposed investigative steps, and you repeatedly 6 declined to comment.

7 In declining to comment, you did not intend to confirm or deny that any 8 investigative steps were or were not taken, correct?

9 A I do not, that's correct.

10 Q Okay. And so, for example, you were asked about a 1023 form that I think 11 was marked as exhibit 9. In declining to comment, you did not intend to suggest that 12 your office had, had not seen the form, had or had not taken any steps with regard to the 13 form. You were declining to comment entirely as to the question, correct?

14 A Yes. I don't want to communicate anything in that regard so as not to 15 jeopardize anything that we have that is ongoing.

16 Q Okay. And one more question: The comment was made that you agree
17 that the transition team was tipped off before a supposed interview of Hunter Biden.
18 You did not mean to confirm or deny that that actually took place, correct?

19 A That's correct. I did not mean to confirm or deny that fact.

20 Q Okay. I want to look at exhibit 12, which is the Special Counsel Report.
21 Realizing that there are a number of redactions and that this may be redacted,
22 there is no date on this report, correct?

23 A This -- oh, yes. It is 12. I'm sorry. There is a sticker that says 2, but I do
24 not see a date on exhibit 12.

25 Q Okay. And you realize it says pages 84 and 85, but you have not been

1 presented with the pages preceding pages 84 and 85, correct?

2 A That's correct.

3 Q Okay. So, given that there is no date on this, you don't know, for example,
4 what steps might have been taken, what evidence might have been developed after this 5 report was presented, correct?

6 A Whether I do or not, I am not at liberty to comment on any steps or 7 investigative avenues that were pursued after the submission of the report.

8 Q Understood. And this is not the entire report, correct, as it exists?

9 A Exhibit 12 does not represent the entire report.

10 Q Okay. The statement was made in the prior hour that Matt Graves and/or 11 Martin Estrada, quote, "shot you down" or told you no. Is that an accurate 12 representation of your interactions with them?

13 A It is not. As I explained on several occasions, I did not ask them for their 14 permission to proceed. That wasn't the question that was posed.

15 I asked whether they were interested in joining in or participating in the case, and 16 they declined to do so, but I still had the ability to move forward if and when I chose to do 17 so.

18 Q Okay. And that pertains to both the Central District of California and the 19 District of Columbia, correct?

20 A That is correct.

21 Q Okay. Were you denied 515 authority in spring 2022?

22 A I was not denied 515 authority at any time, no.

23 Q Okay. And, in fact, you said earlier that -- I'm sorry. Withdraw that.

24 You don't need section 515 authority to take investigative steps in another
25 jurisdiction, correct?

1 A You do not need 515 authority to pursue investigative steps wherever they
2 may be, yes.

3 Q Okay. You've said in your letters and you reiterated again today that you
4 were assured that you would be granted 515 authority if it proved necessary.

5 At what point would you need to formally go through the process to obtain 6 section 515 authority?

7 A I would execute on that authority at the time we were ready to bring the 8 charges, to file.

9 Q Okay. And, accordingly, if you were not ready to bring charges, you would 10 not formally go through the process to obtain 515 authority. Is that correct?

11 A That's correct.

12 Q Okay. In the prior hour, you were asked about some statement supposedly 13 made by Mr. Clark. I think there was a reference to career suicide and your legacy being 14 on the line. I don't want to get into those statements specifically, and I understand you
15 can't comment on them, but at a high level based on your many years of experience as a 16 prosecutor, it's accurate to say that defense attorneys have an obligation to vigorously 17 defend their clients, correct?

18 A As a general matter, absolutely.

19 Q And, as part of that defense, defense attorneys might sometimes use what 20 some people could consider to be aggressive language in their conversations with 21 prosecutors. Is that fair?

22 A Certainly there are times when defense counsel may choose to use
23 aggressive language.

24 Q And have you been in situations in which defense counsel has used
25 aggressive language with prosecutors?

1 A I believe that I have, although I don't find it -- personally, I don't find it very
2 effective for what that's worth, but I suspect that I have witnessed such tactics.

3 Q Okay. When you say you don't find it very effective, in your experience, are 4 prosecutors easily intimidated by defense tactics like aggressive language?

5 A I mean, I can't -- no. I wouldn't expect that most prosecutors would be 6 intimidated by such tactics.

7 Q And, when you say you don't find it very effective for defense attorneys to 8 use those kind of aggressive tactics, why do you say that?

9 A Because we're bound to make our decisions based on the facts and the law,
10 so, if -- I find, as a general matter, defense counsel is most effective when he focuses -- he 11 or she focuses on the facts and law and demonstrates why my case isn't what I think it is.

12 Q Okay. Thank you.

13 I want to turn to the release of information in cases. Are you familiar with the 14 term "law enforcement sensitive information"?

15 A I am generally, yes.

16 Q What's your understanding of what that term means?

17 A It means that it's information that is part of the investigation, and, therefore,
18 our preference would be that such information not be released, at least -- well, I wouldn't 19 even limit it to the pendency of the investigation, yes.

20 Q Are you familiar with what I mean when I refer to 6(e) material?

21 A I certainly am.

22 Q What is 6(e) material?

23 A It's grand jury material.

24 Q Are there particular safeguards around 6(e) material, or grand jury material?

25 A Sure.

1 Q What are they?

2 A There are statutes that provide that the knowing release of grand jury
3 material could be a criminal offense under certain circumstances depending upon the 4 surrounding circumstances.

5 Q Is it fair to say that the Justice Department works to keep both information 6 about ongoing matters and law enforcement sensitive information and 6(e) material from 7 being released?

8 A Yes.

9 Q Why is that?

10 A Because release of such material could jeopardize any ongoing investigation,
11 and perhaps be used by an adversary to undermine the ongoing investigation or the case
12 if it's ultimately prosecuted.

13 Q Okay. Could it actually impair prosecutors' ability to move forward with a
14 case?

15 A It could impair an ability to move forward. It certainly doesn't do it any 16 good.

17 Q Okay. And it could actually prevent prosecutors from obtaining a 18 conviction, right?

19 A Under certain circumstances. I mean, it's a hypothetical, but, as I said, it's 20 not a good development for prosecution.

21 Q Okay. Is it also a concern that the release of information about ongoing 22 investigations could create a risk of damaging the reputation of individuals who might not 23 ultimately be charged, for example?

24 A Certainly that's -- you know, that's a fair concern, yes. That's why we don't 25 talk about ongoing matters.

1 Q In this case, there have been allegations that, on at least two occasions,
2 information about the ongoing investigation, including potentially 6(e) material, was 3 leaked to the press.

4 Are you familiar with these allegations?

5 A I'm not familiar with the particulars that you're discussing.

6 Q Okay. Would it be concerning if information about this case was leaked to 7 the press?

8 A Absolutely. Any case for any prosecutor, the release of information to the 9 press would be of concern, yes.

10 Q Moving on, we've been keeping a loose tally, and, by our count so far today,
11 the majority has asked you more than 75 times questions about the ongoing 12 investigation, and you've repeatedly declined to answer.

13 It was made clear to the majority in advance of your testimony that you would 14 only be able to discuss the scope of your authority over this case, correct?

15 A My understanding, as I said in my opening statement, was that I was coming 16 in here to discuss the scope of the authority, but I have no comment with respect to the 17 number of times that the question has been raised. I've tried to be consistent in my 18 responses to the best of my ability.

19 Q Okay. Can you talk a little bit about why you are concerned about 20 discussing the underlying case in this format as opposed to putting the information into a 21 report to be released later?

22 A I don't want to say or do anything to jeopardize the ongoing case. We're 23 doing our best to gather the evidence and to make informed decisions. There are 24 people working very hard on that exercise, and the last thing I want to do is to say
25 anything here -- while I am mindful of oversight responsibilities, I'm doing my best to

1 respond to questions. I am really sensitive to the idea that I don't do anything to 2 jeopardize what we're working on otherwise with respect to the investigation or any
3 prosecution.

4 Q And can you explain why discussing that information here might jeopardize a 5 prosecution or might impact the ongoing case?

6 A Certainly, you know, there are any number of ways in which that could
7 manifest itself, but whether a court takes exception to something I say, whether defense
8 counsel uses something I say to attack the prosecution or the merits of the prosecution,
9 these are all things that I'm trying to be mindful of so as to not undermine what we're 10 working hard on the investigative front.

11 Q Okay. And so, to the extent that you have declined to respond to questions 12 about the underlying case, that is a decision that you yourself are making based on 13 protecting that case, correct?

14 A Yes.

15 Q It's not a directive from Mr. Weinsheimer, for example?

16 A No one has directed me. I'm doing my best. I'm responsible for the case
17 and for the investigation, as I've tried to communicate, and I'm trying my best on my own,
18 without direction, to preserve the integrity of the case.

19 Q Compared to other matters that you've worked on during your career at the 20 Department of Justice, has this matter attracted more public attention than others?

21 A I think that's fair.

22 Q Has this outsized attention led to increased attention on your office
23 specifically?

24 A It's led to increased attention for everyone who has touched the case. I 25 think that's correct.

1 Q Has the outsized attention given to this case resulted in threats and 2 harassment against members of your office?

3 A Yes. Members of my office, agents assigned to the case, both from the IRS
4 and from the FBI, doxing family members of members of my office. So, yeah, it's part 5 and parcel of this case.

6 Q Do you have concerns for the safety of individuals working in your office?

7 A Sure. I have safety concerns for everybody who has worked on the case,
8 and we want to make sure that folks -- yeah, folks are encouraged to do what they need 9 to do with respect to the pursuit of justice generally and they not be intimidated in any 10 way from performing their responsibilities.

11 Q Do you have concerns that the threats and harassment employees have 12 received are intended to intimidate them into not doing their jobs?

13 A I really can't speak to the intention of any actor in this realm. I just know
14 that these -- that certain actions have been taken by individuals, doxing, and, you know,
15 threats that have been made, and that gives rise to concern. We've got to be able to do 16 our jobs.

17 And, sure, people shouldn't be intimidated, threatened, or in any way influenced 18 by others who -- again, I don't know what their motives are, but we're just trying to do a 19 public service here, so --

20 Q Have you yourself been the subject of any threats or harassment?

21 A I've certainly received messages, calls, emails from folks who have not been 22 completely enamored of my -- with my role in this case.

23 Q Do you have concerns for your safety or that of your family because of these 24 threats?

25 A You know, I'm not -- for myself, I'm not particularly concerned. Certainly I

1 am concerned, as any parent or spouse would be for -- yeah, for family, yep.

2 Q Are you familiar with threats that have been targeting Lesley Wolf?

3 A I am aware that Lesley Wolf has received threats, yes.

4 Q Is it fair to say that she's been the particular target for threats?

5 A I think that Lesley has received more than others for the most part in this 6 case, yes.

7 Q Do you have confidence in Ms. Wolf as a prosecutor?

8 A Yeah. I have confidence in Ms. Wolf as a prosecutor.

9 Q Okay. Are you confident that she did her work on the Hunter Biden matter
10 in a professional and unbiased manner without partisan or political considerations?

11 A I believe she did. As I said, she served the Department for more than 12 16 years, and I believe her to be a prosecutor with integrity.

13 [REDACTED]. Okay. All right. Thank you. We can go off the record.

14 [Recess.]

15 Mr. Castro. We can go back on the record. It's 2:36.

16 BY MR. CASTRO:

17 Q Did you have any interactions with FBI official Timothy Tebow?

18 A I don't know a Timothy Tebow, so I'd say no.

19 Q Okay.

20 A Not that I know of.

21 Q Are you aware that FBI agents from the Washington Field Office interviewed
22 a gentleman by the name of Tony Bobulinski?

23 A I am aware of investigative steps in this case generally, but I'm not going to 24 discuss any particular investigative step that was taken.

25 Q Mr. Bobulinski has -- I don't know what the right word is -- maybe

1 complained that he tried to give the FBI information, but they didn't seem willing to take
2 it, and the U.S. Attorney's Office in Delaware didn't follow up with him.

3 What can you say with regard to that?

4 A Counsel, as you might surmise, I can't say anything in that regard, because it
5 pertains to the investigation. And, at this time, I'm just not at liberty to comment on 6 any aspect of the investigation, although I suspect I could comment on that and probably 7 would at the conclusion of our investigation and submission of the report.

8 Q Okay. Have you had any issues getting the information you needed from 9 Mr. Bobulinski?

10 A Again, I'm not going to comment on the investigation.

11 Q Have you interacted with an FBI agent named Eric Miller?

12 A Can you tell me the agency?

13 Q With the FBI. The Washington Field Office of the FBI.

14 A No. Not that I recall.

15 Q Okay. Are you aware of the role of the Washington Field Office in 16 suppressing information related to the Hunter Biden case?

17 A I have no particular knowledge about such a matter. I mean, not really.

18 Q Okay. Your primary FBI office is the Baltimore Field Office?

19 A Our -- the SAC, the special agent in charge, is located in the Baltimore Field
20 Office. That's correct.

21 Q Okay. And who is the special agent in charge that you interact with in 22 Baltimore?

23 A During -- currently?

24 Q Currently.

25 A As of today, it's Tom Sobocinski.

1 Q Okay. And what other FBI officials in that office do you interact with?

2 A His assistant special agent in charge is Ryeshia Holley, and those are the folks
3 I recall off the top of my head.

4 Q Okay. As far as the IRS personnel, how frequently does your office utilize
5 the supervisory or the special agents from the IRS in your cases?

6 A We utilize special agents from the IRS in any tax case, and, at a minimum, a 7 support capacity in many other cases.

8 Q Okay. So it's not uncommon for your office to work with the IRS agents?

9 A No. Hopefully not. If we're -- you know, no, because they're a 10 tremendous tool. So, no, we work with the IRS on a number of cases.

11 Q Okay. I'm going to mark the plea agreement.

12 Mr. Castro. What number are we up to?

13 Ms. Nabity. Fifteen.

14 Mr. Castro. Fifteen.

15 [Weiss Exhibit No. 15

16 Was marked for identification.]

17 BY MR. CASTRO:

18 Q This is the copy of the plea agreement dated July 26th of this year.

19 What's the current status of this plea agreement?

20 A The plea agreement has been withdrawn, and that's all I'd say about it at this 21 moment. There is ongoing litigation in this matter, as you know, and, therefore, I'm not 22 going to say anything that's going to compromise the prosecution in the district of 23 Delaware.

24 Q Okay. But we certainly can talk about the public plea agreement, can't we?

25 A I'm not going to talk about the public plea agreement because I don't know

1 how or when or if it will be utilized by defense counsel to advance the defense in this
2 case.

3 Q Okay. Do you know who drafted the statement of facts and the plea
4 agreement?

5 A Again, I'm not going to get into this. This is the subject of ongoing
6 litigation, an indicted case, so there is no way I'm going to comment on this matter.

7 Q Okay. Let me just ask you generally, though: If the defense attorney
8 drafted it, would that give you concern?

9 A I review with skepticism anything that is prepared by another party, so you 10 have to critically review documents you received drafted from an adversary, certainly.

11 Q Okay. So it would be uncommon for a defense attorney to draft a 12 statement of facts and plea agreement?

13 A Plea agreements and statement of facts accompanying plea agreements, as 14 a general matter, are part of the prosecution's efforts.

15 Q Could you turn to page 2? And I'll call your attention to 5(a).

16 Pursuant to the United States Sentencing Guidelines, section 2T1.1, the amount of 17 loss as to count 1 and 2, including relevant conduct as defined in the Sentencing
18 Guidelines, is no less than 1.1 million and no greater than 1.5 million.

19 Is this true and correct?

20 A You've rounded the numbers, but otherwise you've accurately read the 21 provision in the plea agreement.

22 Q Okay. And this was a plea agreement that was submitted to the court and 23 was, you know, attempted to be implemented, correct?

24 A This was a plea agreement that was submitted to the court.

25 Q Okay. So the information contained in here is accurate to the best of your

1 knowledge?

2 A Yeah, I'm not going to say anything about the contents of the plea
3 agreement or anything else about the process.

4 Q And your office signed this, correct, on page 6?

5 A There is a signature on the signature line on behalf of the United States, yes.

6 Q So, based on that, we can deduce that everything in here is something that is 7 true and correct to the best of your knowledge?

8 A Again, I'm not going to comment on anything that implicates the contents of 9 this document.

10 Q Okay. I'll refer you to page 7 of exhibit 1. It's exhibit 1. It's page 7 of 11 the --

12 A I got it.

13 Q -- document, the paragraph that states, during calendar year 2017, Biden
14 earned a substantial income, including just under 1 million from a company he formed
15 with the CEO of a Chinese business conglomerate, 666,666 -- that's an unusual 16 number -- "from his domestic business interests; approximately 664,000 from a
17 Chinese -- another Chinese infrastructure investment company, 500,000 in director's fees
18 from a Ukrainian energy company, 70,000 relating to a Romanian business, and 48,000
19 from the multinational law firm.

20 Is this all true and correct to the best of your understanding?

21 A Again, all I'm going to say is that you've accurately read the paragraph.
22 Otherwise, I'm not going to comment on the document or the exhibit attached thereto.

23 Q Okay. Do you know who drafted this part, exhibit 1?

24 A Again, I'm not going to get into the contents or the drafting process with 25 respect to this.

1 Q Who would ordinarily draft these types of documents?

2 A I'm not -- won't comment on it as it applies to this case. Generally, the 3 statement of facts that accompany a plea are the province of the prosecution as a general
4 matter.

5 Q Okay.

6 A However, that's not to say there have been -- I am aware of circumstances in 7 which, you know, the other side has had comment or had input into a document.

8 Q Would it be common for defense counsel to draft something and then send 9 it to the prosecution and have the prosecutors basically use the document --

10 A Again, that --

11 Q -- and edit it?

12 A That sounds like we're suggesting such with respect to this case, and, again,
13 it's -- we're litigating this, so I'm not going to get into anything that could be utilized in a 14 way that's contrary to the government's interests on this topic.

15 Q Yeah. I was just asking from a general matter.

16 A I understand.

17 Q Do you take documents that defense attorneys send you and then just work
18 from there?

19 A Again, I'm just --

20 Q Not in the case. Just generally.

21 A I'm giving you what I can, you know, on this kind of -- on this situation. I 22 mean, this is active litigation. We're involved in motions practice as we speak.

23 Q Flipping the page to page 8, the third paragraph, the paragraph that begins 24 with "despite"?

25 A I see it.

1 Q Direct your attention to the second sentence. On or about March 22nd,
2 2018, Biden received a $1 million payment into his Owasco, LLC bank account as a
3 payment for legal fees for Patrick Ho and 939,000 remained available as of tax day.

4 Is that true and correct to the best of your knowledge?

5 A As I've stated previously, counsel, I'm just not going to comment on any 6 aspect of the contents of this document or the plea agreement in general.

7 Q But this was a plea agreement accompanied by a statement of facts that 8 your office signed?

9 A This is a plea agreement that was signed by someone in my -- I believe in my 10 office.

11 Q Okay. And this isn't the first time you've seen this, right?

12 A This --

13 Q We're talking about the right plea agreement, right?

14 A This is not the first time I have seen this.

15 Q Okay. Did you have any involvement with this particular document --

16 A Not going to talk about it.

17 Q -- or was it just the AUSAs in your office?

18 A Not going to talk about the process, as I've said before. Just not going to 19 talk about the process that underlies this, that led to the completion of the report, or any 20 of the contents thereof.

21 Q Okay. Ordinarily, are you involved in it?

22 A Again, I'm not -- I'm just not going to get into that.

23 Q Outside of this case, is, like, the U.S. Attorney ordinarily involved in revising
24 plea agreements that your AUSAs are handling?

25 A I have -- we're a small office, so it wouldn't be the craziest thing for me to 1 review and have questions or suggestions with respect to a plea agreement.

2 Q Okay. On July 26th, the date of this plea agreement, Judge Noreika of U.S.
3 District Court for the District of Delaware declined to accept the Department's plea and 4 pretrial diversion agreements, correct?

5 A I'm not going to comment on Judge Noreika's decision at all. I'm just not 6 going to offer any comment in that regard.

7 Q Okay. But she declines to -- I mean, I don't mean to be difficult here, but --

8 A The plea agreement did not go forward.

9 Q Okay. Because of the judge?

10 A I'm not going to comment on why, who said what, the judge's comments.
11 We're in the matter before the judge as we speak, so I'm not going to say anything in that 12 regard.

13 Q Okay.

14 Mr. Castro. Can we get a copy of the pretrial diversion agreement? We'll mark 15 that as the next exhibit.

16 We can go off the record for a second.

17 [Discussion off the record.]

18 Mr. Castro. All right. We're up to exhibit 16. This is the pretrial diversion
19 agreement.

20 [Weiss Exhibit No. 16

21 Was marked for identification.]

22 BY MR. CASTRO:

23 Q Paragraph 15 -- I'm sure you've seen this document before, correct?

24 A I've seen this document before.

25 Q This is the pretrial diversion agreement. On page 9 of the document, it's

1 signed by Mr. Wise of your office under your authority. It's signed by the defendant,
2 Robert Hunter Biden, and his attorney, Chris Clark. And there is also a signature block
3 for the United States probation officer.

4 Is the probation officer needed to make this document effective?

5 A Not going to comment on that. It's the subject of ongoing litigation.

6 Q Is there ordinarily a spot for the probation officer to sign?

7 A Not going to comment on that at all. It's subject of ongoing litigation. I'm 8 not going to say or do anything to jeopardize the litigation or the rights of either the 9 government or defense in pursuing that litigation.

10 Q You've seen pretrial diversion agreements in your district before?

11 A I have seen pretrial diversion agreements in my district before.

12 Q Okay. And is ordinarily the probation office one of the parties that has to 13 sign?

14 A In our district, the probation office is a party to the agreement.

15 Q Okay. And they sign it?

16 A They are party to the agreement. I can't recall specific circumstances. I 17 don't review all the pretrial diversion agreements, but the probation office is absolutely a 18 party to a pretrial diversion agreement.

19 Q Okay. Now, is that not the case in other districts to your knowledge?

20 A I can't speak to other districts.

21 Q Okay. Paragraph 15 of this document, which I believe is on page 7, states, 22 "The United States agrees not to criminally prosecute Biden outside the terms of this 23 agreement for any Federal crimes encompassed by the attached statement of facts and 24 the statement of facts attached as exhibit 1 to the memorandum of plea agreement filed 25 the same day. This agreement does not provide any protection against prosecution for

1 any future conduct by Biden or by any of his affiliated businesses."

2 Did I get that right? Did I read it accurately?

3 A You read it well.

4 Q Okay. Thank you.

5 Other than the Hunter Biden case, how many times has your office included, you
6 know, in a pretrial diversion agreement, an agreement not to prosecute crimes that are 7 unrelated to the crime being diverted?

8 A I'm not going to comment on that. Again, I'm not going to comment on the 9 substance of this document. Subject of ongoing litigation, and I don't want to in any 10 way influence that litigation.

11 Q Okay. Well, what is the status of the litigation? Maybe you could just 12 help us understand that and that would alleviate the need to ask.

13 A The government has filed charges in the district of Delaware, and 14 we're -- motions practice is -- will be underway.

15 Q Okay. And are these agreements -- the plea agreement, are they subject to 16 litigation specifically?

17 A They haven't filed their motions, but --

18 Q Okay.

19 A -- there are documentation -- there is documentation that suggests that it
20 will certainly be the subject of litigation.

21 Q Okay. Did you personally sign off on both of these agreements?

22 A Again, I'm not going to get into the particulars of my sign-off or any other 23 aspect of the preparation of the documents or the content of the documents.

24 Q Okay. Well, then who is Leo Wise and Derek Hines?

25 A They are -- they were persons who were authorized to sign the document on 1 my behalf.

2 Q Okay. Are they AUSAs in the district of Delaware?

3 A They are -- they are AUSAs who are -- they're AUSAs. That's all -- they 4 were, I think, SAUSAs on this matter.

5 Q They were SAUSAs?

6 A Special Assistant United States Attorneys.

7 Q Okay. Are they part of your office now? Are they still part of the --

8 A I'm not going to comment on personnel.

9 Q Okay. Well, why wasn't -- I mean, Lesley Wolf, as far as -- you know, we're 10 aware and the whistleblower testified Lesley Wolf was the lead prosecutor on this. Why 11 isn't she signing these documents?

12 A I'm not going to -- I'm not going to speak to personnel -- anyone's role in our 13 prosecution or who participated and who did not participate and why that may be.

14 Q Was she benched in the wake of the whistleblower testimony?

15 A Not going to discuss personnel matters. It's not -- it's certainly outside the 16 scope of the intended topic that we're here to discuss.

17 Q Well, your intended topic, but, I mean, you know, we're obviously following 18 up on what we believe is credible testimony provided by whistleblowers via protected 19 disclosures?

20 A I understand that you have a role to perform and a job to do, as I do. And,
21 yes, I'm here to discuss my authority and all aspects of that question, but not the case,
22 the personnel on the case, or anything associated with the investigation.

23 Q Okay. Is Ms. Wolf still working the case?

24 A I'm not going to comment on personnel that's part of the case. Just not 25 going to do it for the reasons we've previously discussed. Just not helpful in that regard.

1 Q What's the Delaware way?

2 A I don't really know what the Delaware way is. I've heard the phrase. I'm 3 not from Delaware, but I've heard the phrase, so I don't pretend to be intimately familiar
4 with the connotation.

5 Q Have you ever used the term "the Delaware way"?

6 A No. I don't think -- I don't believe I've ever used the term "the Delaware
7 way."

8 Q Are you aware of a prosecution of a gentleman by the name of Christopher 9 Tigani?

10 A I am, yes.

11 Q And you prosecuted him?

12 A I was -- I don't recall my status at the time, whether I was acting or -- but I 13 am aware of the prosecution for Mr. Tigani.

14 Q Okay. At the time, I believe you were the interim head of the office?

15 A I may have been.

16 Q Okay.

17 A If it was, you know, 2009, 2010, I was acting or interim U.S. Attorney during 18 that timeframe.

19 Q And you had stated at the time that Tigani had become the embodiment of 20 the Delaware way.

21 A Okay.

22 Q Do you know what you meant when you said that?

23 A You know, I can't -- I can't specifically recall. I recall Mr. Tigani's case, and I
24 know that it pertained to -- or my recollection is that it pertained to campaign violations.

25 Q Okay.

1 A Bundling, I believe. Bundling campaign contributions.

2 Q In the presentencing memo for that case, it was written, "The defendant
3 himself, Mr. Tigani, best described the pervasive nature of his conduct to Federal agents.
4 Over a 6-year period, defendant became the embodiment of the Delaware way, a
5 concept described uniformly by defendant and others as a form of soft corruption
6 intersecting business and political interests which has existed in the State for years."

7 Does that refresh your recollection?

8 A The idea of soft corruption? I wouldn't -- I don't -- I don't recall. That was 9 submitted -- I think I was the supervisor at the time. You can tell me if I'm wrong, if the 10 AUSA -- my name is under the AUSAs. I certainly wouldn't retreat from the description 11 in that sentencing memorandum --

12 Q Okay.

13 A -- with respect to Mr. Tigani's role and what it represented.

14 Q Okay. Would you characterize the Delaware legal community as a small,
15 tight-knit legal community?

16 A I would characterize the Delaware community as a small community, yes, for 17 sure.

18 Q And, for the most part, all the key players who litigate in Federal court know
19 one another?

20 A I think that's fair that folks get to know one another pretty quickly, yes.

21 Q Okay. Did you ever have any concerns that you were responsible for 22 bringing a case against the President's son and, yet, you're part of this close-knit 23 community?

24 A No, I didn't. No. Yes, I just -- I just acknowledge that the Delaware, 25 particularly in Federal courts -- you know, there is only a certain number of practitioners

1 locally --

2 Q Right.

3 A -- and there is extensive base that comes in from outside of Delaware.

4 Q Right.

5 A But there is a certain limited number of practitioners that regularly appear in 6 Federal court, but that fact, as far as I'm concerned, and nor did any other fact give pause,
7 as far as I was concerned, with respect to my ability to pursue the facts and the law and 8 go where they led in this investigation or the prosecution.

9 Q Was there any discussion that you ever were a part of that maybe it would 10 be best to have a Special Counsel over this case that was not connected to this small,
11 tight-knit legal community of Delaware?

12 A I don't recall any discussion that was had along those lines. That is,
13 perhaps Special Counsel would be appropriate because this is a small, tight-knit legal 14 community. No, I don't recall any conversation of that length or of that nature.

15 Q Or, like, maybe for this case, the best type of Special Counsel would be 16 somebody from outside the Delaware legal community?

17 A A conversation which -- that I was privy to, or participated in?

18 Q Right. I mean, either/or, yes.

19 A I don't recall that, no. No. I don't recall a conversation that suggested 20 that someone from Delaware having responsibility of this case could not fulfill his or her 21 responsibilities.

22 Q Do you think, from an outsider's perspective, that a reasonable outsider 23 could perceive that potentially there could be a conflict of interest there worthy of 24 addressing?

25 A You know, I can't speak to that. You know, it's speculation, but -- so I really

1 can't address it.

2 Q I mean, one of the principles under the Special Counsel regime is that, if the 3 President needs to be investigated or the President's, you know, close family member of 4 the President, that that be handled -- if a Special Counsel is going to be appointed, that it
5 be detached from the authority of the President, correct?

6 A Yeah. I don't know about being detached from the authority of the 7 President. What I would say is, at least as it pertains to me, that I wouldn't have 8 requested an appointment of Special Counsel if I didn't think I could fulfill the 9 responsibilities that attached thereto, which are significant. I fully appreciate it, and I
10 wouldn't have asked for it if I didn't think I could do it.

11 Q Right. Do you see any conflict of interest that you serve at the pleasure of 12 President Joe Biden, yet, at the same time, you're in the midst of a prosecution of his 13 son?

14 A I understand what you're suggesting. The fact is that Special Counsel 15 ultimately reports to the Attorney General, who reports to the President of the United 16 States, regardless of who it is. That's the way it works. So you could -- one could 17 frame the same question with respect to anybody that might operate in this role.

18 Q Are you familiar with Robert Hur?

19 A I am familiar with Robert Hur, yes.

20 Q And he's another Special Counsel currently?

21 A He is another Special Counsel.

22 Q And, to your understanding, what is he examining?

23 A He's examining the document case.

24 Q Okay.

25 A The classified document situation.

1 Q Is he somebody with experience in Delaware, or is he from the Delaware
2 legal community?

3 A Rob Hur was the U.S. Attorney in the District of Maryland when I was U.S.
4 Attorney in -- and I still am -- in Delaware.

5 Q Okay. Do you know why Mr. Hur was selected?

6 A I don't.

7 Q And he was brought in from outside the Department? That's correct?

8 A Rob was -- my understanding is that Rob Hur was not part of the Department
9 of Justice at the time. That's my understanding.

10 Q In August of 2023, when you requested Special Counsel authority, did you
11 have a recommendation that maybe the Department ought to consider somebody other 12 than yourself, or were you the only person that you thought could do this job?

13 A I'm not going to get into the particulars of my request for the reasons I
14 discussed previously.

15 Q Okay. Was there any discussion with the Department about whether you
16 were the best person for the job, or whether they ought to go outside the Department
17 like they did with Mr. Hur, like they did in other Special Counsel situations?

18 A No. As I mentioned previously, I -- you know, I submitted the request.
19 That was the only request that I am aware of. I don't know -- I have no idea whether the 20 Department considered other options.

21 Q And, when you submitted the request, was that through Mr. Weinsheimer?

22 A No. No, it wasn't.

23 Q Did you have communications with Mr. Weinsheimer before you submitted 24 the request?

25 A I did not have communications with Mr. Weinsheimer about the request

1 before I submitted it.

2 Q Okay. You just went right to the Attorney General?

3 A I submitted the request on my own initiative, and, otherwise, I really can't 4 get into the particulars at all.

5 Q Right. Have you had subsequent conversations with Mr. Weinsheimer? Is 6 he the individual that you reported to, or --

7 A After I was appointed?

8 Q Correct.

9 A Yes. I continue to discuss the matter with Mr. Weinsheimer.

10 Q So he's your primary point of contact still?

11 A He continues to be my primary point of contact, yes.

12 Q Okay. And do you still consider yourself as reporting into the DAG as a 13 Special Counsel like a U.S. Attorney would?

14 A Ultimately, whether I'm Special Counsel or as U.S. Attorney, yes, you 15 have -- it's still the Attorney General that --

16 Q Right.

17 A -- runs the Department, whether -- and that applies whether I am Special 18 Counsel or U.S. Attorney, absolutely.

19 Chairman Jordan. Have you kept up the rhythm? You said earlier today that 20 you had monthly contacts with the key people at the Justice Department. Have you 21 kept up that same protocol? Has it increased or decreased as Special Counsel?

22 Mr. Weiss. I guess it's been, I guess, 3 months. I don't know that there is much 23 of a practice or that I could say, you know, circumstances. You know, I've had several 24 conversations in the last 3 months with Mr. Weinsheimer. I can say that.

25 Chairman Jordan. So it's picked up?

1 Mr. Weiss. It's -- I've had probably -- yes, several conversations. Whether that 2 will continue or it was unique to the initial stages of the project, I really can't speak to.

3 Chairman Jordan. Okay.

4 BY MR. CASTRO:

5 Q If you're going to indict somebody, would you need to alert
6 Mr. Weinsheimer in advance? Would you need to alert the DAG or alert the Attorney
7 General?

8 A I don't -- it's expected and my recollection of the regulations that attend to a 9 Special Counsel would require to apprise the AG, I expect, through the Office of the 10 Deputy Attorney General of significant developments in the case.

11 Q So, if you were going to indict somebody, you would presumably go through 12 Mr. Weinsheimer and then --

13 A The regulations provide for keeping the AG and his designee apprised of 14 significant developments. That's my understanding of the regs.

15 Q Right. But, in practice, Mr. Weinsheimer is your primary contact?

16 A Historically, that's been the case, correct.

17 Q Okay. So, if you were going to indict someone, you'd probably alert 18 Mr. Weinsheimer and determine whether any other communications were needed with 19 the DAG individually or the AG?

20 A If I were to take a significant step in the case, I expect, as you've suggested,
21 that, yes, I would have contact with Mr. Weinsheimer.

22 Q Okay. Has Mr. Weinsheimer given you any guidance or limiting instructions 23 about things you can or can't do?

24 A No.

25 Q You mentioned earlier this morning in a previous round that you had -- we

1 asked you about discussions that you had with Mr. Estrada, and I believe you told us that,
2 with respect to bringing a case in the, you know, Los Angeles U.S. Attorney's Office, the 3 Central District of California, you had one conversation with Mr. Estrada?

4 A Yes. Yes. At that time, I had one -- yes. I had one conversation relevant
5 to our pursuit of the case in 2022, that's correct.

6 Q Okay. And then I take it by that that you potentially have had additional 7 communications with Mr. Estrada?

8 A Yeah, I don't want to get into those communications, but I was trying to 9 address -- I don't know who said what, but the notion that there may have been another 10 conversation.

11 Q Mr. Estrada testified that there was another conversation in September 12 of 2023. Do you remember that one?

13 A Yeah, I don't want to get into the particulars of any further conversations. I 14 mean, the first one -- and I'm not trying to be cute. The first one spoke to my authority.
15 The second one, I just -- it would not be appropriate for me to comment on.

16 Q Okay. If you were going to bring an indictment in the Central District of 17 California as Special Counsel, what would you need to do with respect to Mr. Estrada?
18 Would you need to let him know you're doing it? Would you --

19 A Again, I don't want to get into the particulars here, but, as Special Counsel, 20 just as U.S. Attorney, there should be some communication to another district so that 21 someone -- you can't just appear and be there. There has to be some --

22 Q Of course.

23 A -- coordination.

24 Q So you would expect to alert Mr. Estrada if you were bringing in --

25 A I've said as much as I can say without in any way compromising or giving -- or

1 speaking to what now may be transpiring. I just don't want to get into that at all.

2 Q Okay. Do you have any indictments that are on the horizon?

3 A I'm not going to speak to indictments that may be on the horizon or 4 deliberative process or anything in that regard, as I'm sure you know.

5 Chairman Jordan. Do you have any idea when you will complete your task as 6 Special Counsel?

7 Mr. Weiss. I do not as I sit here today, but we will try to move it as quickly as 8 possible without compromising the investigation or the prosecution of any case that 9 might be brought.

10 BY MR. CASTRO:

11 Q Do you have any goal as to when you'd like to bring it to conclusion?

12 A Two weeks ago. No, I say -- again, I say that in jest, but no. Look, I 13 recognize that it's never good for cases to linger, so I am interested in efficiency to the 14 extent possible.

15 Chairman Jordan. It's been 5 years.

16 Mr. Weiss. I understand that, Chairman. I really do. I absolutely do.

17 Chairman Jordan. So that doesn't -- you just used the term "linger." That 18 doesn't fit the definition of "linger"?

19 Mr. Weiss. I understand your question and appreciate it.

20 BY MR. CASTRO:

21 Q Are you familiar with an individual by the name of Alexander Mackler?

22 A I am familiar with an individual by the name of Alexander Mackler.

23 Q And how do you know him?

24 A Mr. Mackler was an AUSA in U.S. Attorney's Office in the District of 25 Delaware.

1 Q And do you know how long?

2 A I believe for a couple years, but I can't speak with any specificity as to his
3 tenure, but that's my general recollection.

4 Q Okay. Do you remember what timeframe?

5 A I don't know specifically. 2017, 2018 --

6 Q Okay.

7 A -- I think, generally.

1 [3:12 p.m.]

2 BY MR. CASTOR:

3 Q Okay. Did you know that he also had served at one point as Joe Biden's 4 press secretary?

5 A I didn't know, and -- I didn't know Mr. Mackler's role vis-à-vis now-President
6 Biden. I knew that Mr. Mackler had worked for now-President Biden.

7 Q Are you aware that he served as Beau Biden's campaign manager during his 8 reelection campaign?

9 A I was not aware of that, not to the best of my knowledge.

10 Q Were you aware that in 2014 through 2016 he served as deputy counsel to 11 then-Vice President Biden?

12 A I was not aware of that.

13 Q Were you aware that in November of 2021 Mr. Mackler was named to 14 President Biden's transition team?

15 A I do think I learned of that.

16 Q Okay. And when did you learn of that, or under what circumstances?

17 A I don't know. I don't know. I don't know when or what the circumstances 18 were, but I think I heard that.

19 Q When Mr. Mackler was with the U.S. Attorney's Office in Delaware, what 20 was his role?

21 A He was an AUSA.

22 Q And, as I understand it, he was an AUSA from August of 2016 through May of 23 2019? Is that --

24 A Again, you have dates. I was estimating. Apparently, I wasn't that far off.
25 But --

1 Q Okay.

2 A -- I'm not going to challenge that.

3 Q Okay. And during his time as an AUSA, did you have any interactions with 4 him?

5 A Sure. We're a small office. I have interactions --

6 Q Okay.

7 A -- with everybody in my office.

8 Q Okay.

9 A At least if I'm doing my job.

10 Q Do you remember under what circumstances Mr. Mackler left the U.S.
11 Attorney's Office?

12 A I know that he went to be the chief deputy for the Attorney General's Office
13 for the State of Delaware.

14 Q Okay. And that was in 2019, when he left?

15 A Again, I can't recall the particulars, but that sounds within the realm of 16 reason.

17 Q When you subsequently found out that he was part of the transition team, 18 did that give you any concern that it might create an optics issue?

19 A No.

20 Q Did you or anyone in your office have any communications with him when 21 he was working with the transition team?

22 A I don't know when he worked with the transition team. I don't know if I
23 would've had any conversations with him. I certainly wouldn't have had any 24 conversations with him about his work as a member of the transition team.

25 Q Okay.

1 A I don't -- I'm very confident I had no conversations with him about it.

2 Q Would you or any member of your staff have had a conversation with 3 Mr. Mackler about the Hunter Biden case?

4 A I have not spoken to Mr. Mackler ever about the Hunter Biden case.

5 Q Okay.

6 A I have no idea whether anyone else has spoken to Alex Mackler period or 7 about the case.

8 Q Okay. So you don't know if any of your AUSAs had any communications
9 with Mr. Mackler?

10 A I do not know.

11 Q Okay.

12 Earlier, I had asked you about the transition team being tipped off as far as the 13 day of action in December of 2020.

14 A You said the transition team was tipped off?

15 Q Yeah.

16 A Yeah, I'm unaware of the transition team -- I'm unaware of that, and I
17 can't -- I'm just not going to -- as I said before, I can't comment on it, because it pertains 18 to the investigation. But I'm unaware of that.

19 Q Would that concern you, if somebody in your office tipped off the transition
20 team about something related to the day of action?

21 A I think as part of minority counsel's questions, I would be concerned with 22 anything that comes out pertaining to an investigation for which I'm responsible and 23 anyone hears of it. It shouldn't happen --

24 Q Okay.

25 A -- and it does the investigation no good.

1 Q Okay. So, if some investigative actions were planned for the day of action
2 in December of 2020 and, before that occurred, the transition team was tipped off about 3 it, that would give you concern.

4 A I'm not going to talk about the particulars in this case. I will acknowledge 5 that, to the extent, as a general matter, anything of that nature occurred, it's a problem.

6 Q And if you found out that something like that did occur, what would you do
7 to address it?

8 A That's a hypothetical. I'm not going to speculate on that. I'm just saying,
9 as a general matter, it's problematic. I'm not going to talk about anything that might 10 touch on this case or this investigation.

11 Q Do any of the attorneys on your team, whether it's a Special Counsel team or 12 before the Special Counsel team was stood up, have any ties which you would consider 13 close to the Biden family?

14 A I'm not going to get -- I don't know relationships. I don't delve into those 15 kinds of things, as a general matter, and it's just not something I'm particularly 16 comfortable speaking about. But I will say, I'm unaware of any such thing.

17 Q Do you remember, during the Special Counsel Robert Mueller's probe, 18 advocates or allies of President Trump raised a concern that members of the Special 19 Counsel team had a lot of contributions to Democrats? Do you remember that?

20 A I remember allegations about a leaning by --

21 Q Okay.

22 A -- members of Mr. Mueller's team. I do recall that coming up in a repeated
23 fashion.

24 Q Is that something you've considered as you've built your team, to examine 25 the political contributions of the people on the team so it doesn't give the impression that

1 they're aligned with one party or another?

2 A I understand the question, and for the reasons we just mentioned, I
3 understand why you ask it. But the fact is, I looked for people who were the best
4 qualified and were interested in participating in this effort. That's what I asked about.
5 That's what I focused --

6 Q Okay.

7 A -- my recruitment efforts on.

8 Q Okay. And, in any way, have you examined whether you've got folks on 9 your staff that are big-time political contributors to Democrats?

10 A I'm not going to speak to it, because I don't want to discuss personnel,
11 and -- but I understand the question, the sensitivity, but it's not something I'm in a 12 position to address.

13 Chairman Jordan. You may have answered this earlier. The Special Counsel 14 staff, was it selected from your team in Delaware's U.S. Attorney's Office and/or from 15 outside?

16 Mr. Weiss. It wasn't limited.

17 Chairman Jordan. Okay. So you went outside the office to get staff for this 18 task.

19 Mr. Weiss. I don't want to get too far into the process or the particulars, but I 20 was not restricted in any way; I'll say that. I was able --

21 Chairman Jordan. Are there folks --

22 Mr. Weiss. -- to go outside.

23 Chairman Jordan. -- on the team from -- are there folks on the Special Counsel
24 team who were already working in the Delaware U.S. Attorney's Office?

25 Mr. Weiss. Yeah, I'm not -- I don't want to get into the particulars of who's on it,

1 for the reasons we've previously discussed. I just don't want to get into personnel.

2 Chairman Jordan. Is it fair to say that there could be members from the 3 Delaware U.S. Attorney's Office and people from outside the Delaware's U.S. Attorney's 4 Office? Is it fair to say that that could be the makeup of the team?

5 Mr. Weiss. There is nothing in the regulations that would prohibit such a thing.

6 Chairman Jordan. Okay.

7 BY MR. CASTOR:

8 Q One of the big questions I think a lot of our members have is that, as of last 9 July, you know, heading into July 26th, you know, we saw the plea agreement and the 10 pre-trial diversion agreement; you know, we thought this matter was coming to a close, 11 and then it didn't.

12 How do you address the fact that this was on the verge of being completely over
13 and wrapped up on July 26th and then, boom, in August, you have to request Special 14 Counsel status, now you're standing up a whole new office, and we've got an 15 investigation that could go on for some time?

16 A Yeah. I understand the question and the members' curiosity.

17 Q Uh-huh.

18 A Because I've got ongoing litigation in Delaware, I'm not at liberty to discuss 19 it. But --

20 Q Uh-huh.

21 A -- I can say that at no time was it coming to a close. I think, as I stated in 22 the one statement I made at the time --

23 Q Uh-huh.

24 A -- the investigation was continuing. So it wasn't ending there in any event.

25 Chairman Jordan. When the judge would've accepted the agreement, it wasn't

1 over?

2 Mr. Weiss. Our efforts were not concluded; that's correct.

3 BY MR. CASTOR:

4 Q I mean, if that's the case, though, why would Chris Clark sign the agreement?

5 I mean, you know, the agreement seems pretty comprehensive. I mean, the statement
6 of facts, like, goes way beyond just the matters at hand.

7 A Counsel, you know, just by virtue of the question, I'm not in a position to 8 address what Mr. Clark may or may not have been thinking. I don't know, and --

9 Q Uh-huh.

10 A -- I'm not going to presume to guess.

11 Q Are you aware of a referral that was made regarding a potential campaign
12 finance violation by the individual that paid Hunter Biden's taxes?

13 A I'm not familiar with the matter you're describing.

14 Q So Mr. Morris, right, paid off Hunter Biden's tax debt, right?

15 A I'm not going to discuss --

16 Q Do you know who he is?

17 A I'm not going to discuss those particulars.

18 Q Do you know who he is?

19 A I'm not going to discuss any particulars that pertain to ongoing investigative 20 matters.

21 Q Right. But my question is, do you know who Kevin Morris is?

22 A I understand your question, but it's not something I'm in a position to discuss 23 at this time, because it --

24 Q Okay.

25 A -- references or it pertains to matters that are outstanding.

1 Q Okay.

2 A It's something I suspect I will very much address in the report.

3 Q Right.

4 Did you find it surprising or unusual that somebody wanted to come in and just,
5 like, pay off a taxpayer's tax bill? I mean, isn't that unusual? Does that happen in 6 ordinary cases?

7 A I don't know, and nor would I comment on that.

8 Q Right. Okay. And, if so, you know, if someone hypothetically did do that,
9 is there a campaign finance violation that might be worthy of investigating?

10 A Again, I'm not going to comment on what may or may not be worthy of 11 investigation.

12 Q Okay.

13 I want to turn our attention to the October 7th meeting.

14 The October 7th meeting, of course, was described by Mr. Shapley as his red line,
15 as his red-line moment, that the experience he had in the October 7th meeting was so 16 shocking to him that he felt the only honorable thing he could do next would be to seek 17 avenues to so-called blow the whistle.

18 What do you remember about the October 7th meeting?

19 A I remember that the meeting occurred in Delaware, in a conference room.
20 I recall the participants, some of whom I believe you have spoken to. And I recall that,
21 in advance of the meeting, The Washington Post and I believe The Wall Street Journal --

22 Q Uh-huh.

23 A -- had published articles that discussed the investigation, the fact that the 24 U.S. Attorney in Delaware was sitting on charges that were available as of that summer,
25 and that the source of that information was someone close to the investigation; I don't

1 recall the particulars.

2 But I remember that happening, I believe, the day before the articles came out, so
3 I know that I addressed that up front with the participants in the meeting. And I
4 discussed other things, including -- I mean, the purpose of the meeting was to discuss the 5 process and to share with IRS and FBI where we were in that process.

6 And I -- given that the leak had occurred, given that I knew I was going into this 7 meeting discussing what was clearly deliberative process, I was purposefully trying to be 8 cautious and limited in my description of that process, and I believe that I was.

9 But I described the fact that I had been in D.C., that I had -- I believe I referenced
10 the 515 authority that we have discussed today, that I sought it, and that I was now
11 proceeding down the same path in the Central District of California.

12 Q Do you believe that any of the participants in the meeting were the source of 13 the leak?

14 A I don't know who is the source of the leak. And if I knew, I wouldn't discuss 15 it here.

16 Q Okay. But the individuals in the meeting -- let's just go over them. Was 17 Ms. Holley there?

18 A I don't want to get into the particulars, but I know Ms. Holley has been here
19 and has testified. So --

20 Q Right.

21 A -- yes, Ryeshia Holley was there and Tom Sobocinski --

22 Q Right.

23 A -- from the FBI were there.

24 Q And Gary Shapley was in attendance?

25 A Gary Shapley was in attendance.

1 Q And was Mr. Ziegler?

2 A I don't recall Mr. Ziegler being there, no.

3 Q Okay.

4 Now, as it comes to the criminal investigators, was there anyone else from IRS
5 present that you know?

6 A The SAC was there.

7 Q Okay. Mr. Waldon?

8 A Mr. Waldon.

9 Q Okay. Anybody else?

10 A Anybody else from IRS?

11 Q IRS or FBI.

12 A No, not that I recall.

13 Q And then -- so those individuals, if they are leaking to the press, I mean, that 14 is a high crime, right, for a criminal investigator?

15 A It's a major problem, for anybody to be --

16 Q Right.

17 A -- leaking to the press --

18 Q So --

19 A -- that's affiliated with the case either directly or indirectly. Absolutely --

20 Q Right.

21 A -- a major problem.

22 Q So, I mean, if the FBI officials or the IRS officials were the source of this leak, 23 they would be in big trouble, wouldn't they?

24 A If it can be proved, they would be in big trouble.

25 Q And as far as we know, the TIGTA has been investigating this, correct? Do

1 you know about TIGTA?

2 A I know what TIGTA is --

3 Q Yeah.

4 A -- but I'm not going to speak to any investigative efforts by TIGTA or 5 otherwise.

6 Q And why is that?

7 A Because it's inappropriate for me to comment on that.

8 Q Okay. Has TIGTA interviewed you?

9 A I'm not going to discuss that.

10 Q Okay.

11 Are you aware -- Mr. Shapley has been blamed for this leak, and he has 12 strenuously objected, that he was not the source of this leak. He has taken affirmative
13 measures to release the reporter from any confidentiality -- you know, source reporter 14 confidentiality agreement. He's told the reporter that, if I'm your source, you are free to 15 disclose that.

16 Are you aware of that?

17 A I'm not -- I don't know -- I don't recall it, but I'm not going to comment on it 18 either way. I'm not going to --

19 Q Okay.

20 A -- I'm not going to assess --

21 Q Do you think Mr. Shapley was the source?

22 A I'm not going to comment on that either.

23 Q Who else was in attendance for the October 7th meeting?

24 A Folks from my office.

25 Q Mr. Weede?

1 A I'm not going to identify people who haven't appeared, for the reasons we
2 have discussed.

3 Q Uh-huh.

4 A I just don't want to disclose names of participants.

5 Q Okay. And Ms. Hanson? That's our understanding of the -- were there
6 any other officials as part of that meeting?

7 A Folks from my office and the people we've previously discussed.

8 Q Okay. Was Ms. Wolf there?

9 A Ms. Wolf was not in attendance at the meeting.

10 Q How come?

11 A Because this was a leadership meeting.

12 Q Gary Shapley was there.

13 A He's in IRS leadership, as I understand it. He was the ASAC, I believe.

14 Q Okay.

15 A That's my recollection of his title.

16 Q So that counts as leadership?

17 A He was a participant in the meeting.

18 Q Okay. Do you know who arranged the meeting?

19 A My recollection is that Mr. Shapley sent me an email asking for a meeting to 20 get an update. And I think that communication was followed up on by his SAC.

21 Q Okay.

22 A And I agreed to sit down with those guys and the FBI and to say what I could,
23 even though we were still engaged in the deliberative process --

24 Q Uh-huh.

25 A -- to say what I could about where things stood.

1 Q Uh-huh. And what do you remember about what you said during that
2 meeting?

3 A I mean, I've described it in general terms, and I can't get into the particulars.
4 But, as to my authority, I recall describing the process in a very general, somewhat
5 cryptic way probably -- that it had taken place in D.C., that I had sought 515 authority, I
6 followed a process, and that now I was in the Central District of California --

7 Q Uh-huh.

8 A -- to see whether they would join us or participate in the prosecution moving 9 forward. That's my best recollection.

10 Q Okay.

11 We'll mark as exhibit 17 an email that Mr. Shapley sent to Mr. Batdorf, who is Mr.
12 Waldon's boss.

13 [Weiss Exhibit No. 17

14 Was marked for identification.]

15 BY MR. CASTOR:

16 Q So he CC'ed Waldon, who was at the meeting.

17 Item 1 from -- this isn't the first time you've seen this, right?

18 A I've seen this before.

19 Q Okay. Did you see it in conjunction with the whistleblower testimony 20 coming out, or did you see it back when it was written?

21 A I don't remember seeing this when it was written, no.

22 Q Okay. So Mr. Waldon didn't forward this to you?

23 A I'm not --

24 Q To the best of your knowledge, obviously.

25 A I recall seeing this after the whistleblower testified.

1 Q Okay.

2 So item number 1 on here is "Discussion about the agent leak," as you mentioned,
3 that the "DOJ IG will be notified," that "FBI headquarters is notified and they refer it to 4 their Counter Intelligence squad in a field office for investigation," and IRS CI indicated
5 that "we need to make a referral to TIGTA."

6 So is it fair to say that all the participants in the meeting were fairly enthusiastic 7 about pursuing the leak?

8 A Oh, I don't know about that. No, I'm not going to characterize whether 9 they were enthusiastic about pursuing a leak.

10 Q Uh-huh.

11 A I wanted to communicate that this was damn serious stuff --

12 Q Right.

13 A -- and that I was enthusiastic about putting a stop to it.

14 Q Okay. But the DOJ IG was notified. Did you ask them --

15 A I'm not going to get into particulars, but my office made the notifications 16 that were appropriate under the circumstances.

17 Q Okay. And then you asked IRS to make a referral to TIGTA?

18 A That's what I read here.

19 Q Okay. And do you remember if that happened?

20 A I don't re- -- I suspect that it did, but --

21 Q Okay.

22 A -- I don't have a specific recollection. But I would have no reason --

23 Q Okay.

24 A -- to question whether it did or not.

25 Chairman Jordan. But you did these; you did A, B, and C? This came from your

1 office? You notified Horowitz, and then you worked with the FBI -- "headquarters is 2 notified and they refer it to their Counter Intelligence squad" -- you were the instigator of 3 all that?

4 Mr. Weiss. I'm not saying that. All I'm saying is that my office made the 5 appropriate notifications given what I had read, heard, and learned about a leak relevant 6 to our ongoing investigation.

7 Chairman Jordan. And the "appropriate notifications," one of those would've
8 been to let the inspector general know at DOJ?

9 Mr. Weiss. The notifications would be to let the responsible authorities, who 10 would be, you know, required to investigate --

11 Chairman Jordan. Uh-huh.

12 Mr. Weiss. -- such an allegation.

13 Chairman Jordan. Okay.

14 Mr. Weiss. Yes.

15 BY MR. CASTOR:

16 Q Number 2 on this email: "Weiss stated that he is not the deciding person 17 on whether charges are filed."

18 What's your reaction to that?

19 A It's not what I said, nor is it what I believed, as I've told you guys repeatedly 20 today.

21 Q What do you think you did say at that meeting that would give Gary Shapley
22 the -- and, subsequently, Shapley, I think, has released his, you know, contemporaneously
23 handwritten notes. Because, you know, people are calling Gary Shapley a liar, and so 24 he's trying to defend himself.

25 A I believe people have called me a liar.

1 Q So I'm asking you what your -- I mean, what's your reaction? Like, do you
2 think you may have said something that was interpreted -- misinterpreted?

3 A Counsel, in all candor, I don't know. That's possible. It's possible
4 that -- as I said, I was trying to be careful. I wasn't trying to be -- I was trying to be 5 careful in what I said. Because I had a leak --

6 Q Uh-huh.

7 A -- that had just transpired, and I'm talking about deliberative process, which 8 is something unique to what prosecutors discuss. We usually don't go through those 9 kinds of things with agents. But, here, I thought it was appropriate to give them an 10 update. So I would have generally described that process.

11 Q Okay.

12 A I don't know -- it certainly -- perhaps somebody misunderstood what I said in 13 that regard.

14 Q Okay.

15 And then number 2 -- under 2(b), Mr. Shapley has notes about the process. The 16 first is, "Needs DOJ Tax approval first - stated that DOJ Tax will give 'discretion' (We 17 explained what that means and why that is problematic)."

18 Does that sync with your memory of what you --

19 A Not exactly. I don't doubt that I mentioned DOJ Tax --

20 Q Uh-huh.

21 A -- and, you know, a general reference to the role and the process.

22 Q Right.

23 A Not that -- I don't recall saying anything about DOJ Tax approval being 24 required first --

25 Q Okay.

1 A -- second, third, or anything --

2 Q Okay.

3 A -- of that nature.

4 Q But, as we've discussed, under the Justice Manual, DOJ Tax has to approve 5 felony charges, right?

6 A DOJ Tax has approval -- is required to approve Title 26 charges. Yes, we 7 have discussed that. And I welcomed DOJ Tax's input in this case. Never felt that I had 8 an issue in that regard.

9 Q Right. But whether you had Special Counsel authority or 515 authority, no
10 matter what kind of authority you had, you still had to have DOJ Tax's approval for tax
11 charges.

12 A You're still consulting with DOJ Tax --

13 Q Right.

14 A -- absolutely.

15 Q Okay. So, when Mr. Shapley writes, "Needs DOJ Tax approval first," I mean, 16 that is consistent with the facts of life, correct?

17 A I'm not -- look, I'm not challenging the DOJ Tax. And I believe I would've
18 said, as I've said here today, I'm not operating in a vacuum. There are processes here.
19 And others need to be involved.

20 Q Right.

21 A And DOJ Tax was performing its due diligence. And I welcomed that.

22 Q Okay.

23 I'm at the end of my hour, so I have to unfortunately stop.

24 [Recess.]

25 [REDACTED] All right. It is 3:52. We can go back on the record.

1 BY [REDACTED]:

2 Q Special Counsel Weiss, did you have any conversations with Attorney
3 General Barr about whether you should be appointed Special Counsel?

4 A I had conversations with Attorney General Barr, and I don't want to get into 5 the content of those conversations, because they're with the AG.

6 Q Okay. But you did have conversations to that effect with Attorney General
7 Barr?

8 A I had conversations with the Attorney General, yes.

9 Q I want to introduce as exhibit 18 an NPR article entitled "Barr Says No Need 10 for Special Counsel for Hunter Biden Probe, Election Fraud Claims," dated December 21, 11 2020.

12 [Weiss Exhibit No. 18

13 Was marked for identification.]

14 BY [REDACTED]:

15 Q Have you seen this before?

16 A I don't recall.

17 Q Okay.

18 On the bottom of the second page of this article -- I'm just going to read it out
19 loud -- it says, "Some Republicans are pushing for the Justice Department to name a 20 Special Counsel to handle the probe, which would add an extra layer of protection from 21 potential political influence in a sensitive case involving the president-elect's son. Asked 22 whether he agreed with the idea, Barr said no."

23 Quote, "'I think it's being handled responsibly and professionally currently within 24 the department, and to this point I have seen no reason to appoint a Special Counsel, and 25 I have no plan to do so before I leave,' he told reporters."

1 Did I read that correctly?

2 A You did read it correctly.

3 Q So it is accurate that Attorney General Barr did not see a reason to appoint a
4 Special Counsel in this case, correct?

5 A According to what you read. I don't know -- according to what you read,
6 that's correct. Otherwise, I wouldn't comment on any aspect of that.

7 Q And Attorney General Barr was an appointee of President Trump, correct?

8 A I understand that -- that is correct.

9 Q Okay.

10 Moving on, just a few quick questions about Alexander Mackler. Did 11 Mr. Mackler play any role in this case?

12 A He did not.

13 Q Did he provide any input into this case?

14 A He did not.

15 Q To the best of your recollection, did he have any conversations with anybody
16 involved in this case?

17 A I just don't -- I know nothing about any conversations he may have had with 18 anybody involved with this case.

19 Q Based on your --

20 A He had no conversations with me about this case.

21 Q Okay. And based on your interactions with Mr. Mackler as a former 22 employee of the Delaware U.S. Attorney's Office, do you have any reason to question
23 Mr. Mackler's integrity?

24 A I do not.

25 Q Do you have any reason to question Mr. Mackler's prosecutorial ethics?

1 A I do not.

2 Q Are you aware that Mr. Mackler was a -- or, actually, still is a member of the 3 Army JAG National Guard?

4 A I am. I believe he served in that capacity -- perhaps started in that capacity
5 as he left the U.S. Attorney's Office, if I recall.

6 Q And so he actually was on Active Duty and away from the office throughout
7 2019, correct?

8 A I don't know about throughout 2019, but my recollection is, the last several 9 months of his -- I think he was still on our rolls --

10 Q Uh-huh.

11 A -- but the last several months he was serving in the National Guard. And 12 the Department makes provisions for that, or did in this circumstance. I don't recall the 13 particulars.

14 Q Okay. Thank you.

15 All right. We can go off the record. Thank you.

16 [Recess.]

17 Mr. Castor. We'll go back on the record. It's 3:58.

18 Mrs. Spartz has some questions.

19 Mrs. Spartz. Thank you so much. Thank you for being here. And I apologize if 20 I haven't been here all the time. I tried to do my best.

21 But I just have a few clarifications. I'm not an attorney in this committee, but 22 just trying to understand procedurally. And then one question related to your 23 biography.

24 It looks like you worked at a financial services firm. Can you state which one?

25 Mr. Weiss. It was a firm called The Siegfried Group.

1 Mrs. Spartz. Okay. And what did you do, what kind of financial --

2 Mr. Weiss. I am not a financial expert at all. I actually helped the folks run the 3 business. So --

4 Mrs. Spartz. Okay. So it wasn't -- okay.

5 Mr. Weiss. -- it was in a business capacity. I used to represent those folks as a
6 lawyer, and I got involved in the business.

7 Mrs. Spartz. Okay. Okay.

8 Well, talking about statute of limitations, you know, I'm just trying to understand,
9 you know, from -- and I am -- you know, I was a CPA and did public accounting, but I
10 didn't deal with taxes, but I understand the processes in taxes.

11 And it looks like, just to clarify -- so, based on, you know, that you have this memo
12 that I think earlier was exhibit 2 that was provided to you, regarding to IRS conclusions
13 and recommendations, which was stated that, you know, success (ph), you know, 14 prosecute targets for years '14, '15, '16, '17, '18, and '19.

15 So, just procedurally, so the statute of limitations for the '14 and '15 has expired;
16 is that correct?

17 Mr. Weiss. Yeah. I'm -- the statute of limitations for '14 and '15 has expired.

18 Mrs. Spartz. Yes. What about '16?

19 Mr. Weiss. I'm not going to comment on anything --

20 Mrs. Spartz. Well, I'm just talking from theoretical standpoint, like, just in 21 general, how the law works, not specifically for this case from this specific situation, you
22 know, like, if you did based on the law. You know, I'm not talking about this situation, 23 what is it this time. Because I'm not an attorney on this case. But '16, would that be 24 expired by now too?

25 Mr. Weiss. I'm not going to speak to -- I don't know the particulars about the 1 statute of limitations generally. It would depend upon, I think, the given charges.

2 However, I am familiar with the statute of limitations as it pertains to potential
3 charges in this case, and that's not something I'm going to speak to.

4 Mrs. Spartz. But with the general statute of limitations on tax, you know, fraud
5 and anything else, what is generally it is? I mean, you don't know the law, but I'm just 6 trying to find out, because I don't familiar. What is the statute of limitations?

7 Mr. Weiss. I'm not a tax practitioner, but my understanding --

8 Mrs. Spartz. But you're a prosecutor, right?

9 Mr. Weiss. I am a prosecutor, yes.

10 Mrs. Spartz. Yeah. So you need to know that, right?

11 Mr. Weiss. No, I don't need to know all the statute of limitations applicable to all 12 Federal offenses. No, I don't know that that's required for me. But to the best of my --

13 Mrs. Spartz. But --

14 Mr. Weiss. -- to the best of my recollection, I think in tax cases it's a 6-year
15 statute of limitations. And I'm saying that's the best of my recollection.

16 Mrs. Spartz. Okay. So it's about 6 years. So do you usually look at that and 17 have a sense of urgency when you investigate anything with statute of limitations, or do 18 you actually look at that as a prosecutor?

19 Mr. Weiss. Prosecutors are aware of the statute of limitations.

20 Mrs. Spartz. So you have a sense of urgency.

21 Mr. Weiss. Prosecutors are aware of the statute of limitations as a general
22 matter, yes.

23 Mrs. Spartz. So when did you start to investigate this? In which year did you 24 start investigate this?

25 Mr. Weiss. We -- I think I've discussed that we got a referral in 2019.

1 Mrs. Spartz. 2019. So it took you several years to figure out until statute of 2 limitations.

3 Do you think you don't have enough resources? Because I've been in this -- I
4 understand Tax Code. It doesn't seem -- or you don't have enough resources to figure 5 out? Why does the investigation take so long?

6 I mean, because it seems to be very simple. You have a tax return. People
7 report stuff. This is not a complicated, convoluted scheme, you know, where people
8 doing some evaluations and try to do offshore things. It's very simple.

9 You know, you either have things that -- if you don't have enough resources or you
10 don't have people that have enough knowledge? It seems like that shouldn't be 11 complicated tax case taking 4 to 5 years to figure it out. What is happening --

12 Mr. Weiss. Yeah. I mean --

13 Mrs. Spartz. -- in the Department?

14 Mr. Weiss. -- was that a question?

15 Mrs. Spartz. Yeah, it's a question. Why take --

16 Mr. Weiss. I don't understand the question.

17 Mrs. Spartz. The question is why it takes you 4 to 5 years to figure out -- until 18 you figure out what to do, when the tax statute of limitation expires on this case, to deal
19 with simple tax transaction. Why is that? Is it a lack of resources in Department?

20 Mr. Weiss. Again, I'm not going to discuss the investigation. Your question, no
21 matter how you phrase it, asks as to the particulars of the investigation, and I'm not going 22 to discuss it.

23 Mrs. Spartz. Well, I'm not asking you. I'm just saying, every case I've seen, it 24 takes the Department special prosecutor that I've seen years to figure out something that 25 I probably can do it within half an hour, I'll be honest with you.

1 So you don't have enough professionals? Or -- this seems to me very strange, as 2 a professional. I can claim myself being a CPA professional in that business. I'm not
3 sure I understand what's happening there. And that is my question.

4 So what do you believe you'll be able to complete in the current investigation?
5 Are you planning to do it urgently, or are you going to spend another 5 years? What is 6 your -- like, do you have a sense of urgency when you deal with these cases at all?

7 Mr. Weiss. Yeah, I'm not going to put a timeframe on it. As I said previously in 8 response to counsel's questions, we plan to move as efficiently as possible.

9 Mrs. Spartz. Okay.

10 What about when you have a designation -- so I think earlier there was a question 11 of Special Counsel versus anything else, like Special Attorney. Is your accountability and 12 level of responses to Congress different, or is it exactly the same? Is there any 13 procedural difference, in general, Special Counsel than anyone -- other, you know, 14 attorney in the Department of Justice? Is it there is a different level of how you should 15 report to Congress?

16 It should be the same. So the only differences would be on jurisdiction, on what 17 kind of reporting, but there is no formalities, what you have to be telling us. Is there a 18 difference between that or not?

19 Mr. Weiss. If I understand your question, no, I'm not aware of any difference. I
20 am accountable for my actions and for the cases under my supervision whether I'm a 21 U.S. Attorney or whether I'm Special Counsel.

22 Mrs. Spartz. So all your responses for us would not be any different, right? So 23 you pretty much would not be able to say anything to us that you consider in the 24 investigation, doesn't matter how long, no matter in which capacity you work, either as 25 Special Attorney or Special Counsel? There is no difference, right? You would be

1 responding to us "no" on pretty much anything we ask you about an investigation. Is 2 there a level differentiation?

3 Mr. Weiss. No, there is no differentiation. As I've said before, I've tried to 4 answer --

5 Mrs. Spartz. Yeah.

6 Mr. Weiss. -- the questions as best I could, particularly with respect to my 7 authority. And it was my understanding that that was the primary purpose of my 8 appearance here today.

9 But I am unable to answer questions about ongoing litigation or the investigation,
10 yes. I understand your frustration, but I'm unable to address that.

11 Mrs. Spartz. No, I'm just trying to understand, because this is not just you; it's 12 every Special Counsel.

13 Mr. Weiss. Yeah.

14 Mrs. Spartz. I in my short time on this committee that has very slow 15 investigations, statute of limitation expires, and no one recalls anything by the time it's 16 done.

17 And I'm just trying to see procedurally -- you've been in this department for very 18 long. I mean, if we'd be doing in business like that, as an attorney, you'd be out of 19 practice if you would do that. You would go bankrupt. But it seems that we continue 20 this. And I'm just trying to figure out what is going on with the Department in general, 21 because this is a very -- you know, the story is always the same.

22 What is any consequences to the Department right now for, you understand, you 23 know, if you fail -- you know, you're talking about, you know, your duties and 24 having -- you know, which is important, you know, for the public and proper due 25 processes and rule of law -- if there is any generally consequences? If you believe that

1 there is something you do it, it is not? Is there any consequences or -- except, you
2 know, someone lets you go -- if there is any consequences in general.

3 How does the Department work if you do something to violate how the 4 prosecution happens or, like, any ethics or any other concerns? How does it happen in 5 the Department? Do you know the rules?

6 Mr. Weiss. Congresswoman, if I understand your question, it is -- I think it is, if I
7 do something that is inappropriate or unethical --

8 Mrs. Spartz. Ill intent.

9 Mr. Weiss. -- are there -- ill intent -- are there consequences? Absolutely, just 10 as with any other attorney practicing on behalf of or within the Department.

11 Mrs. Spartz. So what is the consequences?

12 Mr. Weiss. I'm not --

13 Mrs. Spartz. No, what is the -- like, what is the process for that, if somebody -- or 14 if somebody under you would do something like that, what is the processes for that?

15 Mr. Weiss. It depends what's done. And I'm not going to explore all kinds of 16 scenarios. But, you know, we are responsible to act professionally and to abide by rules 17 of conduct.

18 Mrs. Spartz. But are there internal processes or they're external? Is 19 Department of Justice can only --

20 Mr. Weiss. It depends what a prosecutor's actions are, with respect to what 21 consequences derive from that conduct. I can't -- there are any number of things that 22 could happen that could lead to problems for a prosecutor. We have responsibilities to 23 act in a certain way.

24 Mrs. Spartz. What is the incentive for you -- or what is internal incentive for you
25 to have a completion of the cases? Do you have internal incentives at Department once

1 you have productivity? Do you have internal incentives to actually do things fast, or you
2 don't generally?

3 Mr. Weiss. You have incentives -- all prosecutors have incentives. I certainly 4 have an incentive to prosecute this case as best I can. I know, am very much aware, that 5 people are watching this case. We're having a discussion about the case today. I'm 6 mindful of that.

7 So I am trying to perform my responsibilities as best I can and fulfill those 8 responsibilities to follow the facts and the law. That's the best I can do.

9 Mrs. Spartz. But if you would have something that -- not collaboration internal 10 to the Department, who would you address it with? Would you come to Congress?
11 And how would you address it, if you believe there is no collaboration internally and you
12 don't -- what is the process for you to -- would you let us know? Or who would you 13 know?

14 Mr. Weiss. I would -- if I wasn't satisfied with something -- this is a hypothetical,
15 so I shouldn't speculate, but I would stay within the Department and try to resolve it 16 there.

17 Mrs. Spartz. So generally it's internal. You generally don't come externally to 18 Congress or anything. This is internal.

19 Mr. Weiss. I would expect to get it resolved in Congress -- I'm sorry, not in 20 Congress. I would expect to get it resolved within the Department. Everyone in the 21 Department knows that, in my current capacity, I'm going to prepare a report at the end
22 of the day, and I'm going to describe what I've experienced along the way.

23 Mrs. Spartz. Okay. Just one last question.

24 Mr. Weiss. Sure.

25 Mrs. Spartz. So, generally, you know, theoretically, if we look at some of this

1 stuff, you know, when Vice President Biden was in office, which was '14, '15, and '16,
2 theoretically it would be that all of the years could be potentially -- two of them for sure
3 are statute of limitations -- theoretically all of the years would be statute of limitations,
4 unless something else happened would expire statute of limitations, all of the years with 5 what happened with Hunter, with his situation, with Burisma and any other transaction
6 during the time of the Vice President was in office.

7 Is that correct, based on -- assessment?

8 Mr. Weiss. I don't -- I'm not drawing a connection between charges in this case
9 versus the now-President's status as a Vice President. Our responsibility is to make 10 decisions based on the evidence before us. And that's what we've done in this case.

11 Mrs. Spartz. Okay. Thank you.

12 Mr. Weiss. Sure. Thank you.

13 BY MR. CASTOR:

14 Q I just have one more question on Mr. Mackler. Just to clarify, when was 15 the last time you spoke to him? I know you said you didn't speak about this case, but --

16 A I don't know. I don't know. I can't recall.

17 Q Was it when he was with your office, or was it after?

18 A No, no. I've spoken to him since he's left my office, which I think we 19 established was in 2019, so --

20 Q Okay.

21 A I just -- I don't know.

22 Q Okay.

23 A Don't recall it.

24 Q Certainly wasn't about this case?

25 A No. I never discussed this case with him that I can recall. No.

1 Q I'll go back to exhibit 12 -- I'm sorry. Mrs. Spartz was discussing exhibit 12.
2 Exhibit 17.

3 You had the right one, I think.

4 A This one?

5 Q It says exhibit 10 on the bottom, but that's from a different proceeding.

6 A Yeah. Sorry.

7 Q Where we last left off was on the first page, 2(b)(i), "Needs DOJ Tax approval
8 first." And then I think that's where we concluded our discussion.

9 So the next item on that page is "No venue." This is 2(b)(ii). "No venue in 10 Delaware has been known since at least June 2021."

11 Do you recall if that was discussed, venue in Delaware wasn't an option?

12 A I don't recall if it was discussed. But I discussed the fact that I had pursued 13 the process in D.C. and in L.A.

14 Q Okay. Obviously, if you could've pursued it in Delaware, that would've 15 been your first choice, certainly, right?

16 A Again, I discussed that we were, you know, in D.C. and that -- or we had 17 been in D.C. and, at this time, we were in the Central District of California.

18 Q Okay.

19 (iii): "Went to D.C. U.S. Attorney in early summer."

20 Of course, we know that that was in March, correct, when you went to --

21 A That's correct.

22 Q -- Mr. Graves?

23 A That's correct.

24 Q "-- to request to charge there." The U.S. Attorney "said they could not 25 charge in his district."

1 And then (1) underneath that was, "Weiss requested Special Counsel authority
2 when it was sent to D.C. and Main DOJ denied his request and told him to follow the
3 process."

4 And the way Shapley, you know, records this in his notes, it seems similar to the 5 way you described your interactions with Main Justice, in that you told us that you asked
6 for 515 authority -- that is, Special Counsel authority -- and that Main Justice -- I mean,
7 Shapley writes "denied his request," and you said that your request was never denied,
8 but Main Justice did tell you to follow the process, correct?

9 A I described that I had a conversation with Main Justice about following the 10 process. No one ever said -- no one ever denied --

11 Q Right.

12 A -- my authority. And I didn't request Special Counsel authority. I 13 requested what I characterized as 515 authority --

14 Q Right.

15 A -- and what we agreed was Special Attorney authority.

16 And I would also take issue with, I think, what's under, if I can read it correctly,
17 (iii): "Went to D.C. USAO in early summer to request to charge there -- Biden appointed 18 USA said they could not charge in his district."

19 As I've said on several occasions, I wasn't asking the Biden-appointed U.S.
20 Attorney in D.C. whether I could or could not charge in his district. I didn't present that 21 question for his consideration.

22 Q But these notes were prepared from the meeting. Is it possible
23 Mr. Shapley misunderstood what you were -- you were obviously, during the course of 24 this meeting, you were walking through some of these issues, correct? And he's making 25 notes about it?

1 A I can't speak to what Mr. Shapley -- clearly, he was -- "clearly" -- I suspect he
2 was taking notes. I don't know. I don't know why the notes came about this way.
3 But if he misheard or misunderstood something, the fact that he reduced it to notes
4 doesn't change the misunderstanding or --

5 Q Right.

6 A -- whether he misheard it. I know what I believe to be the case and what I
7 believe I said, you know, in that regard.

8 Chairman Jordan. Well, he got it exactly right in 2(b)(iii)(1), the next sentence
9 down, other than the term "counsel" versus "attorney": "USA Weiss requested Special
10 counsel authority when it was sent to D.C. and Main DOJ denied his request and told him
11 to follow the process."

12 That's exactly what you told us earlier, other than the word "denied." They 13 didn't grant your request. So it seems to me he got it exactly right there.

14 Mr. Weiss. Well, "denied" is a key word in that phrase. It wasn't -- it wasn't 15 denied. I --

16 Chairman Jordan. But it wasn't granted, right?

17 Mr. Weiss. Yes. We have been over this. It wasn't granted. They said,
18 follow the process. I followed the process. And in completing the process --

19 Chairman Jordan. But, Mr. Weiss, when you ask for something and they don't 20 give it to you, what is that?

21 Mr. Weiss. I asked for something, and in that conversation they didn't give it to 22 me, but at the --

23 Chairman Jordan. All right. It's a simple question.

24 Mr. Weiss. -- at the conclusion --

25 Chairman Jordan. When you ask for something and they didn't give it to you,

1 what is that?

2 Mr. Weiss. I'm not -- you want me to say it's a denial, but it's not. Not when I
3 know that, weeks later, I was specifically told, "You can proceed." So it's the same
4 question, it's the same request --

5 Chairman Jordan. Maybe weeks later, but at that point what is it?

6 Mr. Weiss. It's, "Proceed, with this process. We're asking you to go through 7 this process." From my mind, it's a sequencing event. It's not a denial in any way,
8 shape, or form. That's the way I interpreted it.

9 Chairman Jordan. Okay.

10 BY MR. CASTOR:

11 Q Flipping over the page to (iv): "Mid-September they sent the case to 12 central district of California -- coinciding with the confirmation of the new Biden
13 appointed USA -- decision is still pending."

14 And that's pretty much an accurate assessment, right?

15 A Inaccurate? Or accurate?

16 Q Accurate.

17 A No. I didn't bring this -- as we discussed, I didn't bring this about in 18 mid-September. I contacted the U.S. Attorney's Office in mid-August.

19 Q Right. But --

20 A It had nothing to do with coinciding with the appointment of a new Biden 21 appointee.

22 Q But your first communication with the U.S. Attorney out there, with Estrada, 23 was right after he was confirmed, correct?

24 A No. My understanding -- and I didn't track the dates -- was that he was 25 confirmed sometime in the month of September, mid-September. My first

1 communication with him was in mid-October.

2 Q Okay.

3 "If California doesn't" -- this is (v): "If California does not support charging USA
4 Weiss has no authority to charge in California."

5 Is that something that was discussed at the October 7th meeting?

6 A No. I would not have said that. It's not what I believed; it's not what I 7 said.

8 Q "He would have to request permission to bring charges in California from the 9 Deputy Attorney General/Attorney General."

10 Isn't that -- I mean, if Estrada said, no, I don't want to partner, I don't want to 11 co-counsel, whatever the word is, then you go and request 515 authority, correct?

12 A That's consistent with the process I've described --

13 Q Right.

14 A -- in most respects in D.C. But by this point in time, as we have discussed, I 15 had been through the process, I knew that the ultimate decision was, you can proceed in 16 D.C. and pursue charges. So I wasn't asking here.

17 Then the question at the conclusion of this process was simply deciding the 18 merits.

19 Q This meeting happened, like, right around the same time that you were 20 engaging with Mr. Estrada, correct?

21 A I engaged with Mr. Estrada after this conversation.

22 Q Okay. So, as of the October 7th meeting, you didn't have a final 23 determination from his office about whether they wanted to --

24 A As best I recall, I did not have a final determination.

25 Q Okay.

1 A I had not had that conversation with the U.S. Attorney.

2 Q But if they had said no, as it turns out they did, then your next move is to get 3 Special Counsel authority or 515 authority, whichever, if you're going to prosecute in the 4 Central District of California?

5 A As I think I mentioned, as it was in my mind, that issue had been resolved.
6 So my next move is to decide, okay, is this case moving forward? We've gotten 7 feedback from D.C. Now we've gotten feedback from L.A. We're deciding the case;
8 we're going to decide --

9 Q Right.

10 A -- how to proceed in the case. It's not asking for permission or resolving 11 any questions about whether I have authority to proceed.

12 Q Okay.

13 Then, 3: "They are not going to charge 2014/2015 tax years."

14 By this point in time of October of 2022 -- I mean, I believe the statute lapsed in 15 September. So, by this meeting, the statute had lapsed for the 2014 and 2015 tax 16 years?

17 A Yeah, I'm not going to discuss the statute, when it lapsed, or the 18 circumstances surrounding that. Nor am I going to discuss any conversations I had with 19 them about 2014.

20 Q Okay.

21 A I'll discuss authority, but I'm just not going to go beyond that.

22 Q But, I mean, it's my understanding that, you know, part of your -- I mean, we 23 didn't agree to a scope, because we obviously have questions --

24 A I understand.

25 Q -- that you're not willing to answer.

1 A I understand the committee has questions well beyond that, but -- and I
2 hope at the appropriate time I'll be able to answer them.

3 Q But I did think -- pardon me for suggesting this, but I did think that the 4 content of the October 7th meeting was all fair game.

5 A The content of the October 7 meeting as it pertains to authority is certainly 6 fair game. And I've tried to --

7 Q But --

8 A I've tried to discuss other aspects that I think inform the authority issue.
9 But that's the extent of what --

10 Q Okay.

11 A -- of the scope of what I'm authorized to discuss.

12 Q Okay. So can you confirm that the decision not to charge 2014 and 2015
13 was discussed at that meeting?

14 A I can't get into -- I can't get into the merits of that discussion. I can't get 15 into that discussion.

16 Q Okay. You don't have any reason to believe that Shapley is lying, correct?

17 A I don't -- I can't speak to Mr. Shapley. I'm not saying anything about 18 whether he's lying. I'm not suggesting that he's lying. I don't know the basis for his 19 statements or what he's committed to his notes.

20 Q Okay.

21 Do you remember Mr. Shapley stating that he did not concur with the decision to 22 not charge 2014 and 2015, as he writes in his notes here?

23 A Again, if I commented on that, it would speak to the decision itself, which I'm 24 not going to discuss.

25 I remember Mr. Shapley's body language at the meeting at various times. I do

1 remember that.

2 Q Okay. But do you remember him asserting, stating for the record that he 3 didn't concur with any particular decision?

4 A It's not something I'm going to discuss, because it would necessarily go
5 into -- be it a reaction to something I said about the merits of the case or the 6 investigation, and I just can't get into that at this point in time.

7 Q Okay.

8 And Special Agent Holley, the assistant special agent in charge, she testified, too, 9 that she remembers Burisma being discussed, the fact that if you don't charge 2014 and 10 2015, that all the Burisma income is tax-free.

11 Do you remember that being discussed?

12 A I'm not going to discuss the case, the investigation, or those kinds of details.

13 Q Okay. Did you have any concerns that, if you didn't charge 2014 and 2015,
14 all the Burisma income just goes tax-free?

15 A Again, I'm not going to discuss the case, the investigation, or those 16 particulars. I understand the question, and I appreciate why you ask the question.

17 Q Okay. So you could understand why members, our members at least, are 18 concerned about that issue, about the 2014 and 2015, specifically the Burisma years, you
19 know, that Hunter Biden is getting off scot-free here.

20 A Yeah, I understand why you're asking the questions on behalf of the 21 committee. And it's certainly something that I would intend to address and would plan
22 to address in the Special Counsel report.

23 Q Okay.

24 Number 5 on this document states that "no major investigative actions remain."

25 Is that something you remember being discussed at the October 7th meeting?

1 A Again, I'm not going to talk about investigative actions --

2 Q Okay.

3 A -- or what had been done and what remained at that time.

4 Q Right.

5 And when Shapley testified in May of 2023 to the committees -- or he testified
6 before the Ways and Means Committee, he told us that nothing had happened, you
7 know, that there weren't any -- and, by that time, he didn't know he'd been removed 8 from the case. He stated in May of 2023 that no investigative actions had occurred on 9 the Hunter Biden case.

10 So that is consistent with number 5 here, that "no major investigative actions 11 remain." Is that something you can concur with?

12 A No, it's not something I can comment on as of today. It's something I hope 13 to be able to comment on in the report.

14 Q Okay.

15 Do you remember that meeting -- and this relates to 6(c). Do you remember the 16 meeting as being contentious?

17 A There, you mean his reference to "communication issues" or "update 18 issues," that these issues were surprisingly contentious?

19 Q Well, the way I interpret number 6 -- and this is informed, obviously, by 20 Mr. Shapley's testimony -- that, at the end of the meeting, IRS -- and "us" meaning the 21 IRS -- and the FBI brought up some general issues, and they included communication 22 issues, update issues, which, as we understand them, are sort of -- you know, you can 23 conflate those. But (c), his observation that these were "surprisingly contentious."

24 A Yeah. I can't -- I don't know that I'm going to characterize whether these 25 issues were surprisingly contentious. I remember -- I do recall communication issues

1 and updates from this point forward coming up.

2 Q Okay.

3 A I remember Mr. Shapley talking about communications from this point
4 forward.

5 Q Uh-huh.

6 A And I'm at a meeting where, the day before, The Post and The Wall Street
7 Journal reported leaks that were purported to be coming from someone close to my 8 investigation and, I think, mentioned an agent. So I was unwilling to make any 9 commitments --

10 Q Okay.

11 A -- about further communication. I wanted to better understand, to the 12 extent possible, what had transpired, rather than making commitments to how 13 frequently --

14 Q Uh-huh.

15 A -- I was going to meet with Mr. Shapley or anybody else associated with the 16 team at that particular time.

17 Q Okay. So it sounds like it was contentious.

18 A You know, I'm just saying I was very sensitive to the issue and I was --

19 Q Right.

20 A -- concerned about the issue, because I am concerned about the
21 investigation --

22 Q Right.

23 A -- and trying to preserve the integrity of the investigation moving forward.

24 Q Right.

25 And just so you know, from our perspective -- and I think I mentioned this

1 earlier -- you know, we're sensitive to any allegation that Mr. Shapley was the leaker for 2 the story, because he has denied that he's done it. And, you know, if you're an IRS
3 agent or FBI agent and you leak to a reporter, I mean, that is a high crime. I mean, you
4 would lose your job. I mean, the stakes are super-high.

5 So, to the extent -- you know, I hope we can establish that, you know, there's no
6 evidence, there's zero evidence that Mr. Shapley was involved with any leaks.

7 A I can't comment on that. I don't pretend to be familiar with the evidence --

8 Q Right. But you don't have any evidence that Mr. Shapley was involved
9 with --

10 A I'm not going to say anything about that.

11 Chairman Jordan. When did you learn that Mr. Shapley and Mr. Ziegler were 12 coming to Congress under whistleblower status? And how did you learn that?

13 Mr. Weiss. I think -- I don't know whether I heard it in news media or from 14 somebody with the Department. But I think it was in, I don't know, somewhere around 15 April, that it cropped up in April of 2023 --

16 Chairman Jordan. Right.

17 Mr. Weiss. -- something of that nature.

18 Chairman Jordan. Right.

19 Mr. Weiss. I didn't know any of the particulars at that time. I don't think I 20 learned them until I saw the testimony.

21 Chairman Jordan. Who was the somebody from the Department who told you 22 that, if it wasn't the press?

23 Mr. Weiss. I don't know.

24 Chairman Jordan. You said it was one or the other.

25 Mr. Weiss. If it was somebody from the Department, it would've been

1 Mr. Weinsheimer.

1 [4:27 p.m.]

2 Chairman Jordan. Do you remember if he called you or emailed you or what?

3 Mr. Weiss. I don't recall. I believe I was on -- I was on what was supposed to 4 be a vacation at the time.

5 Chairman Jordan. When you go to another U.S. Attorney and ask them to 6 partner, what are you asking them to partner on?

7 Mr. Weiss. I'm asking them to -- to decide whether they're willing to be part of 8 the investigation, whether they're willing to assign someone to be co-counsel in the
9 investigation.

10 Chairman Jordan. Is it -- are you asking them to partner on investigation only 11 and/or prosecution?

12 Mr. Weiss. To the extent there were further investigative steps, they wouldn't 13 be precluded, but I was primarily focused on -- I mean, in my mind, prosecution piece of 14 the investigation.

15 Chairman Jordan. So you were ready to prosecute, you wanted to prosecute in 16 D.C. When you all go to Mr. Graves and you go to him and ask him to partner, you're 17 actually asking him to partner not so much on the investigation but on the decision that 18 you've already made in your mind to prosecute in that venue?

19 Mr. Weiss. No. No decision had been made at that point in time, but we -- this 20 is where we wanted to proceed. There were still -- still things that had to happen, but I
21 was thinking -- and I knew what resources we had available to us, so the discussion, in my 22 mind, with Mr. Graves is more -- when I'm asking about partnering, at least in my mind,
23 I'm thinking more about his office.

24 Chairman Jordan. Well, I'll go back to the original question. What are you 25 asking him to partner on?

1 Mr. Weiss. I'm asking whether they want to be --

2 Chairman Jordan. Partner on the prosecution?

3 Mr. Weiss. -- they want to be part of the case, and in my mind, I'm thinking more 4 about from an attorney standpoint, whether -- whether --

5 Chairman Jordan. Part of the case, to do what, to prosecute?

6 Mr. Weiss. Prosecutors, they're -- prosecutors perform both, you know,
7 prosecutorial aspects of their job and investigatory aspects of their job, depending upon 8 what they're doing.

9 Chairman Jordan. Okay. Because I just want to be clear, because you said you
10 were primarily -- I thought you said earlier, you were primarily asking -- when you went to 11 ask him to partner, you were asking them to partner on prosecuting the case?

12 Mr. Weiss. I was asking him to join in the prosecution of the case, whether they 13 wanted to be part of it.

14 Chairman Jordan. Got it.

15 Mr. Castor. Did you need them? Did you need their help?

16 Mr. Weiss. No. Well, did I need them -- as I said, we were prepared to 17 proceed. We were prepared to go forward if they chose not to participate.

18 Mr. Castor. But did you need extra bodies?

19 Mr. Weiss. I wouldn't -- I'm not going to talk about whether I needed more 20 resources or the particulars of those kinds of things.

21 Chairman Jordan. But you would only ask them to partner on prosecuting the 22 case if you felt that the case needed to be prosecuted, fair?

23 Mr. Weiss. I would only ask them to partner in the case if I was contemplating 24 prosecution in that jurisdiction, if that was part of the consideration. That's the only 25 reason it would be asked. Not that a decision had been made, just that it was being

1 considered.

2 Chairman Jordan. Well, that sort of brings us back to where we were, I guess,
3 earlier today. So you're asking Mr. Graves and the D.C. U.S. Attorney to partner with 4 you on the prosecution of the case. They declined.

5 Why didn't you then request 515 status so you could prosecute the case in D.C.?

6 Mr. Weiss. Again, because we -- there was still -- can't get into something that 7 would go into deliberative process, case discussions, and things of that nature. But 8 the --

9 Chairman Jordan. But did the discussion with Mr. Graves cause you to change 10 your mind on what you initially asked him to partner with you on?

11 Mr. Weiss. My discussion with Mr. Graves did not change my mind in any 12 respect, no.

13 Chairman Jordan. That's amazing. Okay.

14 Mr. Castor. Both Mr. Graves and Mr. Estrada testified that your request to 15 partner on the case was a difficult -- was difficult for them because they felt they were 16 stretched too thin. Did they communicate that to you?

17 Mr. Weiss. I'm not going to get into the specifics of the discussion.

18 BY MR. CASTOR:

19 Q Mr. Estrada said that he was dealing with -- and he really went into how 20 they've got just a terrible fentanyl problem, and they've got just -- they're overrun with 21 problems relating to the border.

22 And he talked about how they don't have enough attorneys in his office to handle
23 their own business, and so, he indicated to us the idea that he would be able to lend his 24 limited personnel -- he also said he's got a gigantic office, but, you know, his limited
25 resources to you was a real issue. Did he let you know about that?

1 A I'm not going to talk about the particulars of what he discussed in that
2 regard.

3 Chairman Jordan. But you didn't ask for additional help, said when you went to 4 Mr. Graves you weren't looking for people to help. You were just looking for him to 5 partner with the prosecution. You weren't actually asking him to give you attorneys to 6 help with the investigation.

7 Mr. Weiss. We were -- we were giving him the opportunity to join in the 8 investigation. If we decided to proceed in D.C., we would've proceeded with or without 9 assistance from Mr. Graves.

10 BY MR. CASTOR:

11 Q Did it surprise you that two Biden appointees didn't want to participate in a 12 case to prosecute the son of the President?

13 A I understand the question. I'm just not going to comment on whether I was 14 or was not surprised.

15 Mr. Castor. Okay.

16 Go off the record briefly.

17 [Discussion off the record.]

18 BY MR. CASTOR:

19 Q We'll go back on the record?

20 It's our understanding you filed a statement of interest on behalf of DOJ in a 21 patent infringement suit between Moderna and Arbutus relating to a COVID vaccine.
22 Does this ring any bells for you?

23 A No. I can't -- I can't speak to it. I'm sorry.

24 Q Okay. To the extent your office would file a statement of interest in a 25 matter such as this, what would be the process? Would you have communications with

1 Main Justice, or would you handle that without the --

2 Mr. Ivey. Could I ask though, the statement of interest that was filed by the
3 U.S. Attorney's Office in Delaware?

4 Mr. Castor. Yes.

5 Mr. Ivey. Okay. And the case then is related to what we're investigating in 6 some way or something totally different?

7 Chairman Jordan. Totally different. Let's go off the record.

8 Mr. Castor. This is -- we'll go off the record for a second.

9 [Discussion off the record.]

10 Mr. Ivey. Let's go back on the record.

11 Mr. Castor. Okay.

12 BY MR. CASTOR:

13 Q So when your office files a statement of interest, is it customary that 14 Main Justice be involved in that process?

15 A Again, I can't speak to the usual pattern when my office files a statement of 16 interest and the participation of DOJ and the component. It's so dependent upon the 17 particular circumstances, and because I'm not familiar with the circumstances here, I'm 18 just unable to intelligently comment on the matter.

19 Q Okay. Fair enough.

20 Does the name Brian Boynton ring any bells? He's a Principal Deputy Associate 21 Attorney General in the Civil Division.

22 A It does not.

23 Q Okay. So as you sit here today, you're not -- you don't have any 24 recollection of filing a statement of interest with this Moderna vaccine issue?

25 A Yeah, and, Counsel, I'm not saying we didn't or we did. I just don't -- I just

1 don't have a recollection.

2 Q Okay. Fair enough. All right.

3 Mr. Ivey. Could I -- I just want to --

4 Mr. Castor. You want me to go off the record, or you want to put this on the 5 record?

6 Mr. Ivey. No, I want this to be on the record.

7 Mr. Castor. All right.

8 [REDACTED]: And then I actually have, like, maybe three questions.

9 Mr. Ivey. Oh, well, go ahead.

10 [REDACTED]: Yeah.

11 Mr. Ivey. Go ahead.

12 [REDACTED]: Can you hear me if I stay here?

13 Mr. Castor. Yes.

14 [REDACTED]: Okay.

15 Mr. Castor. So we're starting a whole new -- we're starting a new round?

16 [REDACTED]: It's almost five o'clock. I don't think we're --

17 Mr. Ivey. No. Another hour, though, right?

18 Mr. Castor. All right. We're going to --

19 Mr. Ivey. Last round, but --

20 [REDACTED]: I'm not going to be constrained.

21 Mr. Ivey. All right.

22 Mr. Castor. We're going to go back on the record.

23 [REDACTED]: We'll go back on the record.

24 Mr. Castor. It's 4:38.

25 [REDACTED]: ?

1 [REDACTED]: Did you want to make a statement first?

2 Mr. Ivey. No, go ahead.

3 [REDACTED]: Okay.

4 BY [REDACTED]:

5 Q I want to turn back to exhibit 10 -- or I'm sorry, it's exhibit 17 -- it's the back
6 of exhibit 10, yeah -- the reference to communication issues, it's 6A on page 2.

7 Is it fair to say that communication can often be a challenge when you're pursuing 8 a case?

9 A You know, I'm -- sorry, I'm stumbling right now.

10 Q Let me rephrase it differently.

11 A Perhaps it can be a challenge. It's important -- it's incredibly important that 12 you have open communication. At least I believe it's important to a successful
13 prosecution, especially in a long-term case. People have a lot invested in the case, 14 so -- so I think it's an important part of partnering with agencies and with co-counsel.

15 Q And in this particular case, you had prosecutors and investigators who were 16 situated in different offices -- different physical offices, correct?

17 A That's correct.

18 Q And that can potentially make communication challenging as well?

19 A That can -- that can complicate things, but again, it's still important, yeah.

20 Q And you said you had a number of meetings -- you said this, I think, much 21 earlier today -- you had a number of meetings with supervisors and with various 22 members of the team, and that was an effort to make sure that they were heard and that 23 they were hearing from you, correct?

24 A I did -- I did speak to that, yes.

25 Q Okay. And that's an attempt to address communication, correct, to 1 improve communication?

2 A I was certainly interested in, yes, maintaining communications.

3 Q You said that you recall Mr. Shapley's body language during this meeting.

4 Can you describe what Mr. Shapley's body language was?

5 A I don't know that I could describe the particulars, but I knew at various 6 points in time, based on the nature of Mr. Shapley's reaction, that I suspected he wasn't
7 happy with something I was saying. Whatever that might've been -- and I don't recall
8 what it was in reaction to, but I do recall times in which he wasn't pleased with whatever 9 it was that was coming out of my mouth.

10 Mr. Ivey. Mr. Weiss, I wanted to thank you for coming and testifying today, and I
11 know it's been a long, difficult day. I appreciated your statement at the beginning 12 where you reference that this was unprecedented and that -- because you're in the 13 middle of a prosecution, and you did reference not only at the beginning, but over 14 multiple occasions, that you're going to produce a report.

15 And I just wanted to flag for the chairman and the committee that this is exactly
16 why I objected to him being brought in previously or that -- the committee doing 17 investigations in the middle of prosecutions like this.

18 So I'm a little concerned that what's going to happen at the hearing is, statements
19 will be made that he wasn't answering questions or he was being evasive or anything like 20 that. The only reason he's here is because we required him to come in. And because,
21 as he pointed out, he's in the middle of an investigation, there's a lot of stuff he can't 22 answer.

23 So hopefully when we get to the hearing, nobody will be making allegations like 24 that directly.

25 Chairman Jordan. Well, he's here voluntarily, and DOJ offered to have him to

1 come in to talk to us about the three different letters that we -- that was the focus of 2 our -- the primary focus of our asking questions.

3 Obviously, we think things flow from that, and that's why Mr. Castor and others
4 asked the questions we did, and Mr. Weiss made the determination not to answer most 5 of those.

6 Mr. Ivey. Well, I think he was right not to answer them. I think he's sort of 7 stuck in the --

8 Chairman Jordan. I'm just saying, DOJ offered to have him come talk to us
9 because of the various letters were sent this summer --

10 Mr. Castor. Yeah.

11 Chairman Jordan. -- and the concern about the different positions that the 12 letters seem to indicate that the Department was taking.

13 Mr. Castor. In July, DOJ offered a number of dates, I think four dates, two in 14 September, two in October. We were working with the Department, you know, for that.
15 So this was not a voluntary transcribed interview that was conducted under the threat of 16 subpoena or anything. It was -- it was voluntary.

17 Mr. Ivey. I appreciate that. I don't think we should be doing these for the 18 reasons I stated, but fair enough.

19 Chairman Jordan. You can take that up with the Attorney General.

20 Mr. Ivey. Will do.

21 ██████: We can go off the record.

22 Ms. Nabity. We're off the record.

U.S. Department of Justice

Office of Legislative Affairs

Office of the Assistant Attorney General

Washington, DC 20530

The Honorable Jim Jordan
Chairman
Committee on Judiciary
U.S. House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Chairman Jordan:

This responds to your letter of June 29, 2023, to the Department of Justice (Department) expressing interest in an individual ongoing criminal investigation and prosecution conducted by David Weiss, the U.S. Attorney for the District of Delaware. U.S. Attorney Weiss has consistently made clear in his letters to the House Judiciary Committee (Committee) and Members of Congress that he has ultimate authority over the matter, including the authority to bring a case in any jurisdiction, consistent with federal law, the Principles of Federal Prosecution, and Department regulations. U.S. Attorney Weiss said he welcomes the opportunity to meet with the Committee at an appropriate time, consistent with the law and Department policy. The Department, with this letter, affirms that commitment. The Office of Legislative Affairs will reach out to your staff tomorrow to discuss the appropriate timeline and scope of such an appearance.

Interest in an individual ongoing criminal investigation

The Department respects and gives due weight to your interest in this matter, and we can provide the following information at this time. Your letter refers generally to assertions made by two Internal Revenue Service investigators regarding U.S. Attorney Weiss's investigation. U.S. Attorney Weiss was appointed by President Donald J. Trump. He began this investigation during the previous administration. After the change in administrations, U.S. Attorney Weiss was asked to remain in his position to continue his leadership of the investigation.¹

U.S. Attorney Weiss brought charges in this case for two misdemeanor tax offenses and for a felony firearms offense. Mr. Robert Hunter Biden agreed to enter a plea of guilty to the tax offenses and to enter into a pre-trial diversion agreement with regard to the firearm charge.² A hearing is scheduled for July 26, 2023, in the U.S. District Court for the District of Delaware to consider a plea agreement between the United States and Mr. Robert Hunter Biden. Sentencing will follow upon entry of a guilty plea.

U.S. Attorney Weiss has clearly stated that he has been “granted ultimate authority over this matter, including responsibility for deciding where, when and whether to file charges and for making decisions necessary to preserve the integrity of the prosecution, consistent with federal law, the Principles of Federal Prosecution, and Departmental regulations.”³ He has said he has “never been denied the authority to bring charges in any jurisdiction.”⁴ U.S. Attorney Weiss has assured that his “decisions have been made—and with respect to the matter must be made—without reference to political considerations.”⁵

U.S. Attorney Weiss also made clear that he has “not requested Special Counsel designation pursuant to 28 CFR § 600 et seq.”⁶ U.S. Attorney Weiss further explained that if he wanted to bring charges outside the District of Delaware, he could either “partner” with the U.S. Attorney’s Office for the other district, or seek “Special Attorney” status pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 515.⁷ Section 515 provides that “any attorney specially appointed by the Attorney General under law, may, when specifically directed by the Attorney General, conduct any kind of legal proceeding, civil or criminal . . . which United States attorneys are authorized by law to conduct, whether or not he is a resident of the district in which the proceeding is brought.” As U.S. Attorney Weiss explained, he was assured that he “would be granted this authority if it proved necessary.”⁸ That assurance “came months before the October 7, 2022, meeting referenced throughout the whistleblowers’ allegations.”⁹ As Attorney General Garland has testified, U.S. Attorney Weiss “has full authority” to make “referrals” to other districts “or to bring cases in other jurisdictions if he feels it’s necessary.”¹⁰

The Office of Legislative Affairs will work with your staff to discuss the appropriate timing and scope for providing further information from U.S. Attorney Weiss.¹¹ In determining the timing and scope, the Department must consider the integrity of the ongoing criminal investigation and prosecution and the Department’s longstanding policy that we seek “whenever possible to provide information about closed, rather than open, matters.”¹² Indeed, legal barriers

Oversight of the Department's programs and operations

Your letter also identifies general areas where the Committee may have legislative oversight authority: the Department's "programs and operations" within the "jurisdiction" of the Committee. The Department respects that the Rules of the 118th Congress grant the Committee jurisdiction to initiate legislative inquiries regarding a range of the Department's work and administration.¹³ We also respect the scope of Congress's oversight authorities in service of its legislative responsibilities.¹⁴

As the Department explained in its letter of January 20, 2023, courts have long held that the Constitution "requires each Branch to engage in a 'realistic evaluation of [one another's] needs'" when Congress seeks Executive Branch information, and that "[t]he Committee can assist the Department in making this process as efficient as possible by helping the Department understand the scope of its interests."¹⁵ The Office of Legislative Affairs is available to meet with your staff so we can understand the legislative purpose and scope of your inquiry into the Department's programs and operations, which your letter does not specify.¹⁶ Providing that information is a necessary first step to enable the Department and the Committee to begin a process of accommodation, as appropriate.

In any accommodation process, the Department applies its longstanding policies and practices to protect the integrity of our work, as the Department conveyed to the Committee at the outset of this Congress.¹⁷ Subject to the necessary discussions referenced above, those principles apply to your requests for transcribed interviews with several Department personnel, including line agents and prosecutors. As noted, the Department safeguards non-public information about open investigations, sensitive law enforcement information, and internal deliberations.¹⁸ Moreover, the longstanding policy of the Department is to "ensur[e] that

Office of the Assistant Attorney General

Washington, DC 20530

The Honorable Jim Jordan
Chairman
Committee on the Judiciary
U.S. House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Chairman Jordan:

This responds to your letter to the Attorney General, dated July 21, 2023, expressing continued interest in an individual ongoing criminal investigation and prosecution led by the U.S. Attorney for the District of Delaware, David Weiss. The Department of Justice (Department) appreciates the Committee on the Judiciary's (Committee's) acceptance of our offer for U.S. Attorney Weiss to testify at a public hearing before the Committee. The Department is ready to offer U.S. Attorney Weiss to testify shortly after Congress returns from the August district work period, as described more fully below.

Across administrations, the Department has long recognized its obligation to protect law enforcement work from even the perception of political interference, including from Congress.¹ Our longstanding principles and duty to take care that the law be faithfully executed require us to maintain the confidentiality of sensitive law enforcement information and to protect line attorneys and agents so they can do their jobs for the American people free from improper political pressures. These concerns are heightened while a matter is open and investigative steps, prosecutorial decisions, or judicial proceedings are ongoing. At the same time, we are deeply concerned by any misrepresentations about our work—whether deliberate or arising from misunderstandings—that could unduly harm public confidence in the evenhanded administration of justice, to which we are dedicated. The Department, therefore, reaffirms U.S. Attorney Weiss's commitment to providing public testimony, consistent with law and Department policy, to protect these principles.

Your letter refers to assertions made by two Internal Revenue Service investigators regarding U.S. Attorney Weiss's authority and asks additional questions about U.S. Attorney Weiss's recent letters explaining the scope of his authority. U.S. Attorney Weiss is the appropriate person to speak to these issues, as he is both the senior Department official responsible for the investigation as well as the person with direct knowledge of the facts necessary to respond to the assertions in which you have expressed interest.

¹ See, e.g., Letter from Assistant Attorney General Robert Raben to Chairman John Linder (Jan. 27, 2000) ("Congressional inquiries during the pendency of a matter pose an inherent threat to the integrity of the Department's law enforcement and litigation functions.").

The Department believes it is strongly in the public interest for the American people and for Congress to hear directly from U.S. Attorney Weiss on these assertions and questions about his authority at a public hearing. To address these issues, U.S. Attorney Weiss is available to appear at a public hearing before the Committee, consistent with the law and Department policy, after the House returns from its August district work period. U.S. Attorney Weiss is available on September 27, September 28, October 18, and October 19. To be clear, the most appropriate time for any testimony on these subjects is after the matter is closed, especially under the circumstances where the matter is pending before a court and subject to judicial supervision, not to mention legal and ethical bars that limit what the Department can say while the matter is pending in court. While testimony at this early juncture must be appropriately limited to protect the ongoing matter and important confidentiality interests, the Department acknowledges your stated interest in addressing aspects of this matter in the near term, such as U.S. Attorney Weiss's authority and jurisdiction to bring charges wherever he deems appropriate.

As the Department has repeatedly stated, we remain committed to working with you to address the Committee's expressed interests consistent with the Department's duties and policies. We are, therefore, deeply concerned by your notification today that the Committee has authorized deposition subpoenas for the individuals identified in your letter. Any attempts at compulsory process are unjustified and premature. The Committee authorized subpoenas less than a business day after your July 21 letter and before the stated deadline in that letter. It has been less than a month since the Committee's original requests, and little more than a week since the Department responded to that letter on the date requested by the Committee. During a staff discussion last week, the Department and Committee agreed to continue discussions. Such discussions would ensure we understand the Committee's interests and that you understand the Department's longstanding approach across administrations regarding such requests, including those that seek information about ongoing aspects of our work and testimony from line personnel. We remain available to discuss your interests further.

We hope this information is helpful. Please do not hesitate to contact this office if we may provide additional assistance regarding this or any other matter.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Daly:

The Committee on the Judiciary is conducting oversight of the Executive Branch's commitment to impartial justice, as well as investigating the veracity of statements made in response to congressional inquiries related to the Department of Justice's investigation of Hunter Biden. As a part of this oversight, the Committee has determined that it requires testimony from several Department officials, including you, who have first-hand knowledge of the Department's investigation.

In a letter dated June 29, 2023, the Committee, along with the Committees on Ways and Means and Oversight and Accountability, requested transcribed interviews with eleven Department officials, including you.¹ The Department declined our request for voluntary compliance.² On July 21, 2023, the Committees reiterated our request for voluntary transcribed interviews.³ Once again, the Department did not agree to our request.⁴ Consequently, the Committee served subpoenas on August 21, 2023, compelling the appearance of two of those witnesses.⁵

The Supreme Court has recognized that Congress has a “broad and indispensable” power to conduct oversight, which “encompasses inquiries into the administration of existing laws, studies of proposed laws, and surveys in our social, economic or political system for the purpose of enabling Congress to remedy them.”⁶ Pursuant to the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee is authorized to conduct oversight of the Department as well as criminal justice matters in the United States to inform potential legislative reforms.⁷ In this matter, potential legislation could include, but is not limited to, strengthening laws protecting whistleblowers from retaliation, reforming the “special attorney” statute,⁸ codifying the special counsel regulations,⁹ and reforming the Department’s Tax Division.

The Supreme Court has also recognized that Congress may seek information from the Executive Branch about “corruption, maladministration or inefficiency in agencies of the Government.”¹⁰ Here, whistleblowers have brought forward numerous concerns, backed by contemporaneous documentary evidence, of corruption (e.g., preferential treatment for the President’s son), maladministration (e.g., retaliation against whistleblowers), and inefficiency (e.g., an investigation so bogged down by delays and micromanagement that the statute of limitations lapsed before prosecutors could file certain charges). These are among the matters about which the Committees require testimony to inform potential legislative reforms.

Based on information provided by whistleblowers and made available to the Committee, you have unique information that is relevant and necessary to inform our oversight and potential legislative reforms.¹¹ For instance, according to whistleblower testimony, you attended a “tax summit” in October 2021 with prosecutors and investigators during which attendees agreed to “move forward” with producing a prosecution report recommending charges against Hunter Biden for tax years 2014 to 2019.¹² Additionally, you apparently gave a presentation at a June 15, 2022 meeting to discuss reasons why the Department should not charge Hunter Biden’s case.¹³ Further, whistleblower testimony suggests that, in early August 2022, you may have been on a phone call in which prosecutors informed investigators they were going to approve the recommendation of charges against Hunter Biden for 2017 to 2019 (and possibly 2016) tax years, but not for 2014 to 2015.¹⁴ The Committee has sought to obtain the Department’s voluntary compliance with our request to conduct a transcribed interview with you, and has engaged in good faith with the Department to address the purported reasons why it could not comply. Even still, the Department has not agreed to make you available.

The Supreme Court has recognized that Congress has a “broad and indispensable” power to conduct oversight, which “encompasses inquiries into the administration of existing laws, studies of proposed laws, and surveys in our social, economic or political system for the purpose of enabling Congress to remedy them.”⁶ Pursuant to the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee is authorized to conduct oversight of the Department as well as criminal justice matters in the United States to inform potential legislative reforms.⁷ In this matter, potential legislation could include, but is not limited to, strengthening laws protecting whistleblowers from retaliation, reforming the “special attorney” statute,⁸ codifying the special counsel regulations,⁹ and reforming the Department’s Tax Division.

The Supreme Court has also recognized that Congress may seek information from the Executive Branch about “corruption, maladministration or inefficiency in agencies of the Government.”¹⁰ Here, whistleblowers have brought forward numerous concerns, backed by contemporaneous documentary evidence, of corruption (e.g., preferential treatment for the President’s son), maladministration (e.g., retaliation against whistleblowers), and inefficiency (e.g., an investigation so bogged down by delays and micromanagement that the statute of limitations lapsed before prosecutors could file certain charges). These are among the matters about which the Committees require testimony to inform potential legislative reforms.

Based on information provided by whistleblowers and made available to the Committee, you have unique information that is relevant and necessary to inform our oversight and potential legislative reforms.¹¹ For instance, according to whistleblower testimony, you attended a “tax summit” in October 2021 with prosecutors and investigators during which attendees agreed to “move forward” with producing a prosecution report recommending charges against Hunter Biden for tax years 2014 to 2019.¹² Additionally, you apparently gave a presentation at a June 15, 2022 meeting to discuss reasons why the Department should not charge Hunter Biden’s case.¹³ Further, whistleblower testimony suggests that, in early August 2022, you may have been on a phone call in which prosecutors informed investigators they were going to approve the recommendation of charges against Hunter Biden for 2017 to 2019 (and possibly 2016) tax years, but not for 2014 to 2015.¹⁴ The Committee has sought to obtain the Department’s voluntary compliance with our request to conduct a transcribed interview with you, and has engaged in good faith with the Department to address the purported reasons why it could not comply. Even still, the Department has not agreed to make you available.

Ok we will move the deposition return dates to Oct 26 (Daly) and Oct 30 (Morgan).

Confirming Graves, Estrada, and Goldberg.

I will get back to you on Weiss so I can confirm TI preference over hearing, but please leave 11/7 and 11/8 open.

Thanks. I can confirm there are no scheduling conflicts for Daly on October 26 or Morgan on October 30 (or later that week), so we would appreciate the Committee moving the return dates to those days. That will also give us time to keep discussing the requests.

We are good to confirm the dates below for voluntary TIs by Graves, Estrada, and Goldberg.

We're also good to confirm either November 7 or 8 for Weiss, provide you confirm it will be a voluntary TI and that the committee does not anticipate reupping a request for a second appearance at a hearing in the near term. If you do, we'll need to discuss further whether to proceed with a TI or a hearing before locking in his appearance for the reasons we discussed (i.e., he's available only for a single appearance at this time particularly given resource constraints while his investigation is ongoing).

Yes this is my expectation. Can you confirm the Department would be willing to move the return date on the deposition subpoenas to Oct 26 (Daly) and a tbd date during the week of Oct 30 (Morgan)? We would then work with the Department on a scope understanding for a voluntary transcribed interview.

Can we also confirm dates that you proposed for the other witnesses. Graves (10/3), Estrada (10/20), Goldberg (10/24), and Weiss (11/7 or 11/8).

Hi Steve -- just checking in to confirm that you plan to reschedule the return dates for this week's subpoenas. We're operating under that assumption based on our discussion this weekend, and on the witnesses' unavailability this week, but if you could confirm I'd appreciate it.

Hi Steve -- Thanks for chatting yesterday and for your openness to moving next week's dates given the work-related and sensitive personal conflicts, respectively, that we've flagged for Messrs. Daly and Morgan. Obviously, we continue to have more fundamental concerns about the subpoenas for their testimony for various reasons that you and I have discussed, but putting those aside for the moment, my understanding is that there should be no scheduling conflicts on October 26 for Mr. Daly or on October 30 (or any other day that week) for Mr. Morgan. I'd appreciate the opportunity to continue talking about your need for their testimony as your inquiry progresses, but in the meantime, would you mind confirming that you're able to reschedule the return dates of the subpoenas?

I also have some more information for you on SC Weiss. He's available on either November 7 or November 8. As discussed, we're able to make him available for a single appearance in the near term to discuss the subject of his authority (including questions about the October 7 meeting). My understanding from our discussion is that your priority is to bring him in for a TI. We're happy to lock in a voluntary TI for either of those dates provided this will, in fact, be his only near-term appearance. If you anticipate reupping a hearing request after a TI and while his investigation is ongoing (as opposed to at the conclusion of his investigation, when we would expect the committee to request a hearing with him like other recent special counsels), then we should discuss now whether to proceed with a hearing as opposed to a TI on one of those dates, because given resource constraints we can't do both.

Happy to discuss if helpful. Thanks again for taking time out of your weekend to connect yesterday.

RE: Mark Daly

Dear Chairman Jordan,

This firm represents Mark Daly, a career attorney and long-time civil servant of the Department of Justice in the Tax Division and senior litigation counsel in the Office of Special Counsel headed by the US Attorney for the District of Delaware David C. Weiss. We are in possession of the subpoena directing Mr. Daly to appear before your committee for a transcribed interview currently scheduled for October 26, 2023. I have also held brief conversations with your staff, who were exceedingly gracious and professional regarding the subpoena and Mr. Daly's appearance.

As you are aware and as I have been informed, the Department of Justice—as Mr. Daly's employer—has asserted various equities in the matters the committee would like to discuss. Among other things, I have been informed that the Justice Department has raised constitutional objections to the subpoena in question relating to both the subpoena power of the committee and its ability to subpoena a DOJ line attorney regarding an active matter in light of statutory issues related to taxpayer privacy, grand jury secrecy issues under Fed.R.Crim.P. 6(e), and other things.

It is also clear to me from my conversations with congressional staff that the committee asserts weighty constitutional interests of its own relating to its oversight responsibilities and the enforcement of its subpoenas.

The constitutional and statutory questions raised by the competing claims of the executive and legislative branches of government in instances like this are thorny, complex, and in many instances unresolved by the third branch of government—the courts. But these issues are not necessarily novel. In my career, I have been on both sides of these intra-branch disputes with respect to various clients. Both sides have good faith arguments and can find support for them in precedent, case law, or constitutional theory. The answers to the questions raised are often far from clear or certain.

The Honorable Jim Jordan

What is clear to me, however, is that this dispute is not Mr. Daly's dispute. It is a dispute between the legislative and executive branches—specifically his employer and the committee—and it should be worked out between those two parties, which should both want to avoid forcing a long-time apolitical career tax lawyer into a Hobson's choice where he must choose to comply with either his employer or a congressional subpoena. I urge a negotiated resolution between the committee and DOJ regarding whether Mr. Daly is an appropriate witness at all, what the appropriate scope of questioning will be given the statutory restrictions on sharing taxpayer information and the ongoing nature of the investigation about which the committee seeks information, and who should be present at any questioning to protect the various interests asserted by the Justice Department. It is not up to Mr. Daly, nor me as his lawyer representing his personal interests, to resolve those issues or to weigh in with our independent analysis. I merely urge you to come to some type of accommodation with the Justice Department and to postpone Mr. Daly's scheduled testimony if necessary to do so to allow more time for negotiation.

For planning purposes, given that the committee has issued a subpoena, it is my current intention to appear with Mr. Daly on Thursday, as discussed with your staff. However, it is also my advice to Mr. Daly that, if the constitutional dispute between the legislative and executive branches of government is unresolved, his interests are best protected by following the instructions of the branch that employs him. Thus, we will follow whatever instructions are clearly given by the Justice Department, in writing, regarding any restrictions on his testimony, up to and including an instruction that he not appear, and I will instruct him not to answer questions as directed by the DOJ to preserve any bona fide disputes for future resolutions by the federal judiciary or otherwise. I will let you know promptly if I receive any such communication that directs Mr. Daly not to appear.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Robert N. Driscoll

Dear Mr. Driscoll:

I write concerning your client Mark Daly. I serve as the senior career official at the Department of Justice (Department). Consistent with this role, in which I have served since 2018, I possess and exercise delegated authority to provide current and former Department employees with direction concerning the disclosure and protection of Department information, including with respect to congressional requests for testimony. I write to you in that capacity.

On September 14, 2023, the House Committee on the Judiciary (Committee) issued a deposition subpoena to your client for testimony regarding the work of the Department of Justice (Department) on an ongoing individual criminal investigation and prosecution led by Special Counsel David Weiss.¹ The Committee's correspondence, including the letter accompanying the subpoena to your client, states that it seeks testimony about meetings and conversations among investigators and prosecutors about the weight of evidence and charging decisions in this open matter. The Department offered voluntary appearances by three senior officials on appropriate topics as an alternative to the Committee pursuing such testimony from line-level attorneys, including your client. Although the Committee accepted the Department's offered alternative and these officials have appeared for interviews, the Committee has continued to pursue testimony from your client. Pursuant to the Rules of the House of Representatives, incorporated by reference in the Committee Rules transmitted with the subpoena, agency counsel is prohibited from attending the deposition.

The Department has written to the Committee explaining that principles and policies for safeguarding the confidentiality of the Department's work further the public interest in the integrity of law enforcement investigations.² These principles and policies have been followed across administrations and are grounded in constitutional concerns. As discussed in that letter, excluding agency counsel in these circumstances undermines the Executive Branch's ability to protect its confidentiality interests in the course of the constitutionally mandated accommodation process.³ In addition, the exclusion of agency counsel interferes with the Executive Branch's ability to protect potentially privileged information.⁴ The underlying principles that inform the Department's position are longstanding across administrations. Here, the subpoena issued by the Committee prohibits the attendance of agency counsel at an appearance where the Committee has indicated it will ask questions regarding information Mr. Daly learned within the scope of his official duties, including potentially privileged information.⁵ On the basis of a 2019 Office of Legal Counsel opinion, the Department has determined that the exclusion of agency counsel means that the subpoena lacks legal effect and cannot constitutionally be enforced.

Having carefully considered the relevant facts and authority, Department and Executive Branch precedents and longstanding principles, and the Department's determination that not appearing would be lawful because this subpoena lacks legal effect, I recommended to the Deputy Assistant Attorney General serving as the Head of the Tax Division and to the Attorney General that Mr. Daly be directed not to appear before the Committee pursuant to this subpoena. The Attorney General and the Head of the Tax Division approved my recommendation. Accordingly, the Department directs Mr. Daly not to appear before the Committee pursuant to the subpoena.

This directive is consistent with longstanding principles of the Justice Department regarding congressional requests for information, as well as the Department's respect for Congress's authority to conduct legitimate oversight of the Executive Branch and our mutual obligations under the constitutionally mandated accommodation process. Department witnesses are expected to abide by their obligations under the law and Department policy, including the Justice Manual, to refrain from disclosing information that has not been authorized for public release. This includes information about ongoing investigations and prosecutions, sensitive law enforcement information, and Executive Branch deliberative processes, such as those that underlie investigative and prosecutorial decisions. The presence of agency counsel during congressional interviews is essential to ensure, among other things, that Department witnesses fully understand and abide by their obligations and that the Department has the ability to raise objections or assert privileges or other Executive Branch confidentiality interests.

This directive is also consistent with our continuing commitment to good-faith negotiations with the Committee in response to its interest in this matter. The Department remains willing to discuss with the Committee appropriate requests for information and the circumstances under which the Department may be able to provide that information. Nothing in this directive shall be understood to waive or limit, on behalf of Mr. Daly or of the Department, any potentially applicable privileges, objections, or confidentiality interests regarding this or other congressional requests for information.

The Honorable Jim Jordan
Chairman
Committee on the Judiciary
U.S. House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Chairman Jordan:

This is a further response to the Committee's September 14, 2023, deposition subpoenas issued to line-level attorneys in the Department of Justice's (Department) Tax Division about an ongoing individual investigation and prosecution led by Special Counsel David Weiss.

The Department is committed to upholding the American people's strong interest in appropriate accountability and transparency regarding our work. This commitment is reflected by the significant resources we invest in responding to congressional requests, including this one.¹ Indeed, we have made extraordinary efforts to provide appropriate information on this matter through voluntary testimony by seven current and former senior Department officials, including Special Counsel Weiss. The Department remains committed to transparency regarding Special Counsel Weiss's investigation. As the Attorney General testified, he intends to make public as much of Mr. Weiss's final report as possible, consistent with law and Department policy.

The Department is also dedicated to protecting the American people's strong interest in public safety, the integrity of law enforcement investigations, and the evenhanded administration of justice. This dedication informs the times when we must decline to disclose information, in order to safeguard law enforcement work. The Committee is seeking to depose, under threat of criminal contempt, line-level attorneys for information inextricably intertwined with an ongoing criminal investigation and prosecution. The Committee's subpoenas encompass information Department attorneys are duty-bound not to disclose, including information protected by statutes such as 26 U.S.C. § 6103 and Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 6(e). You have continued to pursue testimony from line-level attorneys even when reasonable and responsive alternatives have already been offered and provided. These demands implicate the very core of the Executive Branch's constitutionally assigned authority to enforce the law, as well as statutory restrictions, potential privileges, and other important confidentiality interests. It is extraordinary for Congress to attempt to compel testimony that would intrude upon so many aspects of the public's interest in the confidentiality and integrity of law enforcement work.

Page 2

The Department will continue to protect the integrity of law enforcement work, on this matter and others, as we have done for decades across administrations of both political parties.² In light of these important interests and the extraordinary efforts we have made to provide appropriate information to the Committee, we urge the Committee to end its pursuit of additional testimony from line-level career attorneys.

The Department's Extraordinary Efforts

The Department has made exceptional efforts to provide appropriate information to the Committee out of the respect and due weight the Department has given your interest in this ongoing matter.³ Among other things, with the Department's authorization the Committee received testimony from two current U.S. Attorneys, a former U.S. Attorney, a current Tax Division Acting Deputy Assistant Attorney General, and two current senior supervisory Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) agents. Special Counsel Weiss himself is scheduled to testify on November 7. Although the Department has not authorized any witness to provide nonpublic, sensitive information regarding the ongoing matter, the work we have done to identify information that can be shared—for example, about Mr. Weiss's scope of authority—and the fact that the Department has authorized such appearances at all is extraordinary.

The Department offered testimony from three of these senior officials as an alternative to the Committee's continued pursuit of testimony from line-level Tax Division attorneys.⁴ The Department's policy of declining to provide line attorneys for congressional testimony is longstanding and protects their safety and the integrity of their work. Our offer was, therefore, a reasonable compromise—senior officials providing responsive testimony on appropriate topics such as Mr. Weiss's authority—to avoid unnecessary conflict over line-level attorneys' testimony that could risk the integrity of an open matter. Yet you have persisted in seeking such testimony, including about meetings and conversations among investigators and prosecutors on the weight of evidence and charging decisions. This could result in exactly the kinds of disclosures that could undermine an ongoing investigation and prosecution. Indeed, as Attorney General Robert Jackson explained more than 80 years ago, disclosure of this kind of information could be of tremendous value to a defendant or prospective defendant, as it would allow counsel to know “how much or how little information the Government has, and what witnesses or sources of information it can rely upon.”⁵ This is in addition to risking dangerous chilling effects, statutory violations, and constitutional concerns discussed below.

² See Letter from Rod Rosenstein, Deputy Att'y Gen., to U.S. Sen. Charles Grassley at 6–7 (June 27, 2018) (“Rosenstein Letter”) (“It may seem tempting to depart from Department policies and traditions in an effort to deflect short-term criticism, but such deviations ultimately may cause a loss of public confidence in the even-handed administration of justice. . . . I urge you and your colleagues to support us in following the rules.”).

In any event, it is not clear why you need to speak to these particular line-level attorneys.⁶ “While fact-finding by a legislative committee is undeniably a part of its task, legislative judgments normally depend more on the predicted consequences of proposed legislative actions and their political acceptability, than on precise reconstruction of past events,” as may be necessary for law enforcement or judicial functions.⁷ Moreover, these line attorneys did not exercise any authority over whether, where, or when to bring charges in this matter; that authority lies with Mr. Weiss, who is scheduled to appear in front of the Committee days from now. And to the extent you had questions about the role of the Tax Division, a Deputy Assistant Attorney General—one of the most senior career officials in the Tax Division—was made available to speak on that topic.

Confidentiality Protects Public Safety and the Fair Administration of Justice

Keeping the American people safe from criminal and national security threats often requires confidentiality. Among other things, the Department must protect information that could reveal law enforcement sources and methods, or that could discourage witnesses from coming forward.⁸ These principles are consistent and longstanding. More than 80 years ago, Attorney General Robert Jackson declined to provide FBI investigative files to Congress because “much of this information is given in confidence and can only be obtained upon pledge not to disclose its sources.”⁹ We have since reiterated that “[t]o demand the prosecutor’s documents while the case is in progress would irreversibly taint our principles of justice,” and that disclosing such information to Congress “could harm the reputations of innocent people or even place witnesses in danger of retaliation.”¹⁰ Protecting such information also avoids the serious consequences of revealing investigative methods or signaling that the Department will not keep sources confidential.

Confidentiality is also critical to ensuring that cases are prosecuted effectively and that justice is done for victims and communities. As the Department explained decades ago, “the disclosure of documents from our open files could also provide a ‘road map’ of the Department’s ongoing investigations,” including to suspects and defendants.¹¹ Disclosing investigative information about a suspect or defendant outside the guardrails of Department policies or the rules of evidence and due process that apply in court—with an apolitical judge as gatekeeper—

⁸ See, e.g., Mandatory Disclosure of Civil Rights Cold Case Records, 43 Op. may risk creating claims of undue prejudice and undermine the ability of the Department to obtain an otherwise appropriate conviction.¹²

Further, as the Department observed during the Reagan Administration, producing law enforcement files to Congress could mean that “a person who is ultimately not prosecuted may be subjected to unfair and prejudicial publicity—and thus suffer substantial and lasting damage to his professional and community standing—based on unfounded allegations.”¹³ In addition, providing confidential law enforcement files in an ongoing matter would place Congress in a position to exert pressure over or attempt to influence the prosecution and could create the appearance of undue political influence. These concerns may be heightened in the context of certain congressional requests. As Attorney General Janet Reno asked in response to a congressional demand for nonpublic law enforcement information and prosecutorial deliberations in an open matter: “Suppose, for example, a Congressional committee wants to stop us from prosecuting someone the committee supports. What’s to stop the committee from threatening Department lawyers with contempt, forcing them to produce their internal memos and making them public to everyone including the defendant’s legal team?”¹⁴

The Committee’s subpoenas directly implicate these concerns. The record is clear that the Committee seeks testimony on evidence in the case and meetings about “recommending charges” or “reasons why the Department should not charge.”¹⁵ To produce such information to Congress risks the kinds of outside influences or appearances of selective decision-making that could undermine the fair and effective administration of justice. It could also prospectively chill decision-making by Department personnel and our law enforcement partners, as well as undermine confidence in the Department’s ability to protect sources, methods, and other sensitive law enforcement information from improper influence or disclosure.

Protecting Line Personnel and Their Work

Across administrations, the Department has supported its personnel and safeguarded the integrity of their work by ensuring that when the Department speaks to Congress it does so through an appropriately senior official. This is true for routine as well as high-profile oversight matters. When the Department produces internal documents to Congress, it discloses the names of senior officials but protects the privacy of line personnel. When the Department appears at a hearing or sends a letter to Congress, it does so through a senior and appropriately accountable official. This policy of protecting line personnel is standard Department practice, and it has been so for decades.

¹² See, e.g., Response to Congressional Requests for Information Regarding Decisions Under the Independent Counsel Act, 10 Op. O.L.C. 68, 77 (1986) (citing Delaney v. United States, 199 F.2d 107, 114 (1st Cir. 1952)).

Exceptions are extraordinarily rare and fact-specific. As Attorney General Garland said last year, the Department’s “institutional backbone, and its historical memory, is our talented and dedicated career workforce.”¹⁶ The Department explained to Congress during the Bush Administration that we must “ensure that our line attorneys and agents can exercise the independent judgment essential to the integrity of our law enforcement activities and to public confidence in those activities.”¹⁷ We remain steadfastly committed to enabling our line personnel to do their work free from political pressures or improper influence of any kind, from any source. And because senior officials responsible for the Department’s operations are the ones who “make the decisions that are the subjects of Congressional review,” they “should be the ones to explain the decisions.”¹⁸

The wisdom of this enduring approach is clear today from the very real threat of “doxing,” harassment, and even physical violence against public servants and their families after being identified as working on high-profile matters.¹⁹ As Attorney General Garland testified to the Committee last month, “what is dangerous is when anyone singles out a career prosecutor or a career FBI agent. And we know, as a matter of fact, that that kind of singling out has led to threats.”²⁰ Indeed, the Committee has received testimony about threats and harassment of Department employees working on Mr. Weiss’s investigation, specifically, as well as on other high-profile matters.²¹

The Department also must guard against the chilling effect of prosecutors and investigators being singled out as a result of their work on a high-profile matter. No one is above the law, and like cases must be treated alike. As Attorney General Garland recently testified to the Committee, “[t]here is not one set of laws for the powerful and another for the powerless, one for the rich and another for the poor, one for Democrats and another for Republicans, or different rules, depending upon one’s race, or ethnicity, or religion.”²² Our line personnel must not be chilled from working on a matter, taking an appropriate investigative step, or making the right decision based on the facts and the law and nothing more.²³

Respect for Congress's Important Role in Our Democracy

The Department respects that “[t]he oversight process is, of course, an important underpinning of the legislative process.”²⁴ Legitimate legislative oversight is necessary to Congress’s constitutional role of legislating on behalf of, and being directly democratically responsive to, the American people. The Department respects that the Rules of the 118th Congress grant the Committee jurisdiction to initiate legislative inquiries regarding a range of our work.²⁵ Indeed, in our first letter to the current Committee we reiterated that we “share your belief that congressional oversight is vital to our functioning democracy.”²⁶

But legislative investigations and law enforcement investigations serve different purposes under our system of government. Our constitutional system requires that each person receive equal justice under the general laws enacted by Congress. Decisions in specific cases must be based on the law and the facts, not political factors or popular opinion. Considerations that may appropriately inform legislative policymaking must remain irrelevant to how any individual is treated in our justice system. Law enforcement authority is thus “assigned under our Constitution to the Executive and the Judiciary.”²⁷ As the Office of Legal Counsel explained nearly forty years ago, “[t]he Framers intended that Congress not be involved in such prosecutorial decisions or in questions regarding the criminal liability of specific individuals.”²⁸ This separation of “the power to enact laws” from “the power to execute laws” is not a mere formality, but is a constitutional protection for individual liberty.²⁹ Therefore, Congress’s authority to conduct legislative investigations “does not lead inexorably to the conclusion that the Executive must supply the fruits of its own investigation efforts to Congress.”³⁰

²⁴ Linder Letter at 1.

²⁵ The Department’s prior correspondence has noted the scope of Congress’s oversight authorities in service of its legislative responsibilities. See Letter from Carlos Uriarte, Assistant Att’y Gen., U.S. Dep’t of Just., to U.S. Rep. Jim Jordan at 3 (July 13, 2023) (noting the scope of legislative oversight authority delegated to the Committee pursuant to House Rules). The Department continues to reserve all objections to the Committee’s oversight requests regarding this matter, including but not limited to the scope of, or authority for, the Committee’s investigation or any particular request. See, e.g., Linder Letter at 3 & nn.13–16.

The Department must therefore decline to facilitate disclosures that would interfere with its investigations or prosecutions. The Committee’s demands for information about charging decisions and weighing evidence pose exactly that risk. As Attorney General William French Smith explained early in the Reagan Administration, our policy against disclosing to Congress the sensitive information in law enforcement files is premised on the Executive’s constitutionally assigned “responsibility to ‘take Care that the Laws be faithfully executed,’”³¹ and “courts have repeatedly held that ‘the Executive Branch has exclusive authority and absolute discretion to decide whether to prosecute a case.’”³² Our policy against producing line prosecutors for testimony is grounded in significant part on this concern. Across administrations of both political parties, the Department has made clear that “congressional efforts to subpoena line prosecutors ‘pose a long-term constitutional threat by impinging upon the core, judicially-unreviewable, Executive Branch function of rendering independent decisions concerning the undertaking or forbearance of criminal prosecutions.’”³³

The American people must also have confidence that the law is being executed in an evenhanded, apolitical manner. Nearly fifty years ago Attorney General Edward Levi explained, “[n]either the law in general nor the criminal law in particular can be entirely enforced by the government. Ultimately, enforcement must spring from the faith of citizens People must believe, if not in the wisdom of a particular law, at least in the fairness and honesty of the enforcement process.”³⁴ Congressional intrusion into ongoing Department investigations “inescapably create[s] the risk that the public and the courts will perceive undue political and Congressional influence over law enforcement and litigation decisions.”³⁵

In light of these principles, the Committee’s subpoenas are particularly problematic given that under the relevant House and Committee Rules, Department counsel are barred from attending the depositions. The public’s strong interest in the integrity of law enforcement work is one critical reason counsel for the Department must be present when agency witnesses testifying on those matters appear before Congress. Excluding agency counsel in these circumstances undermines the Executive Branch’s ability to protect its confidentiality interests in the course of the constitutionally mandated accommodation process.³⁶ In addition, the exclusion of agency counsel interferes with the Executive Branch’s ability to protect potentially privileged information, including law enforcement sensitive information.³⁷ The underlying principles that inform the Department’s position are longstanding across administrations. Therefore, as the Office of Legal Counsel explained under Attorney General William Barr, “Congress may not compel an executive branch witness to appear without agency counsel.”³⁸ Here, the subpoenas issued by the Committee prohibit the attendance of agency counsel at appearances by line-level attorneys where the Committee has indicated it will ask questions regarding information they learned within the scope of their official duties, including regarding the ongoing criminal investigation.³⁹ Because these subpoenas demand deposition testimony without agency counsel present, they lack legal effect and cannot constitutionally be enforced.⁴⁰

Protecting the Public Interest by Adhering to Longstanding Principles

In a 1940 speech to U.S. Attorneys, Attorney General Jackson explained that “[t]he prosecutor has more control over life, liberty, and reputation than any other person in America[,]” and that “the greatest danger of abuse in prosecuting power lies” in the possibility that it will be used against “some person whom he dislikes or desires to embarrass,” or that the prosecutor “selects some group of unpopular persons and then looks for an offense.”⁴¹ Thus, “[o]nly by extreme care can we protect the spirit as well as the letter of our civil liberties, and to do so is a responsibility of the federal prosecutor.”⁴² We continue to adhere to these principles today. In a speech to U.S. Attorneys last year, Attorney General Garland said of the need for confidentiality in law enforcement: “The health of our democracy requires that we speak through our work and our filings in court, because anything else jeopardizes the viability of our investigations and the civil liberties of our citizens. And the health of our democracy requires that we adhere to these norms even when—especially when—the circumstances we face are not normal.”⁴³

The Department remains willing to continue providing appropriate information to the Committee voluntarily, consistent with these principles. We urge the Committee to work with us to avoid unnecessary conflict, including by ceasing to pursue this testimony from line attorneys.

Sincerely,

3 Mr. Castor. All right. We are ready to go on the record.

4 Good morning.

5 This was supposed to be a deposition for Mark Daly, a senior litigation counsel
6 with the Tax Division of the Department of Justice. He was served a subpoena on 7 September 14th with a return date of September 27th, and that is marked as exhibit 1, a 8 cover letter and subpoena.

9 The Justice Department asked us to reschedule the dates for Mr. Daly and his 10 colleague, Mr. Morgan, who also received a subpoena, and they provided new dates for 11 the subpoena and agreed to move the date of the subpoena to October 26th, which is 12 today. Exhibit 2 is a copy of that email traffic.

13 Now apparently, DOJ all along was going to tell Mr. Daly and also Mr. Morgan not 14 to appear, so it's curious why we needed to move the date from September to 15 October 26th, almost a month, from September 27th to October 26th. I'm not sure if 16 there's a good-faith basis for doing that on behalf of DOJ.

17 We marked as exhibit 3 the notice of deposition for today.

18 And exhibit 4 is a letter we received on October 24th from counsel, personal 19 counsel for Mr. Daly. Mr. Daly's personal counsel indicated to us that Mr. Daly was 20 willing to appear and answer our questions. But obviously, he has received an order
21 from the Justice Department not to appear.

22 Exhibit 5 is a letter we received on October 25th from the Justice Department
23 indicating that they would not be permitting Mr. Daly to appear today.

24 [REDACTED], do you have anything you would like to add for the record?

25 [REDACTED]. I think you've represented -- you've listed the documents correctly.

1 I do want to note the DOJ letter, which was received last night, notes concerns
2 about -- and for the record, the Democrat minority are not taking a position on this 3 matter. But I do want to note the letter received from the Justice Department expresses 4 concern about confidentiality interests, expresses concerns about protecting line
5 personnel and their work, and notes that they have concerns about doxxing, harassment,
6 and physical violence against public servants and their families in connection with this 7 matter, and describes some of the efforts they've made to comply with the majority's
8 requests.

9 Mr. Castor. Okay. That is all for today.

10 We will go off the record.

11 [Whereupon, at 10:14 a.m., the deposition was concluded.]

Caroline and Betsy,

Thank you for our call this afternoon. This email confirms that as we discussed, although our client Jack Morgan has no a per se objection to testifying, given the competing constitutional claims and interests expressed by his employer the Department of Justice, he will be following his employer's directive.

You asked for a copy of the letter I received from the Department with that directive. It is attached.

Hi Steve,

Confirming receipt of the subpoena and copying my colleagues. We appreciate your accommodation on scheduling, thank you.

We understand that, because Mr. Morgan is a career civil servant at the Department of Justice being subpoenaed to testify about his work there, the Department has interests and equities in this matter. As discussed on our call with Committee counsel, although we are not parties to the Committee's dialogue with the Department about such equities, we do anticipate needing to be cognizant and respectful of concerns raised by his employer and superiors.

Dear Ms. Duval:

I write concerning your client Jack Morgan. I serve as the senior career official at the Department of Justice (Department). Consistent with this role, in which I have served since 2018, I possess and exercise delegated authority to provide current and former Department employees with direction concerning the disclosure and protection of Department information, including with respect to congressional requests for testimony. I write to you in that capacity.

On September 14, 2023, the House Committee on the Judiciary (Committee) issued a deposition subpoena to your client for testimony regarding the work of the Department on an ongoing individual criminal investigation and prosecution led by Special Counsel David Weiss.¹ On November 1, 2023, the Committee issued an additional deposition subpoena to your client with a return date of November 6, 2023.² The Committee's correspondence, including the letters accompanying the subpoenas to your client, states that the Committee seeks testimony about meetings and conversations among investigators and prosecutors about the weight of evidence and charging decisions in this open matter. The Department offered voluntary appearances by three senior officials on appropriate topics as an alternative to the Committee pursuing such testimony from line-level attorneys, including your client. Although the Committee accepted the Department's offered alternative and these officials have appeared for interviews, the Committee has continued to pursue testimony from your client. Pursuant to the Rules of the House of Representatives, incorporated by reference in the Committee Rules transmitted with the subpoenas, agency counsel is prohibited from attending the deposition.

The Department has written to the Committee explaining that principles and policies for safeguarding the confidentiality of the Department's work further the public interest in the integrity of law enforcement investigations.³ These principles and policies have been followed across administrations and are grounded in constitutional concerns. As discussed in that letter, excluding agency counsel in these circumstances undermines the Executive Branch's ability to protect its confidentiality interests in the course of the constitutionally mandated accommodation process.⁴ In addition, the exclusion of agency counsel interferes with the Executive Branch's ability to protect potentially privileged information.⁵ The underlying principles that inform the Department's position are longstanding across administrations. Here, the subpoena issued by the Committee prohibits the attendance of agency counsel at an appearance where the Committee has indicated it will ask questions regarding information Mr. Morgan learned within the scope of his official duties, including potentially privileged information.⁶ On the basis of a 2019 Office of Legal Counsel opinion, the Department has determined that the exclusion of agency counsel means that the subpoena lacks legal effect and cannot constitutionally be enforced.

Having carefully considered the relevant facts and authority, Department and Executive Branch precedents and longstanding principles, and the Department's determination that not appearing would be lawful because this subpoena lacks legal effect, I recommended to the Deputy Assistant Attorney General serving as the Head of the Tax Division and to the Attorney General that Mr. Morgan be directed not to appear before the Committee pursuant to these subpoenas. The Attorney General and the Head of the Tax Division approved my recommendation. Accordingly, the Department directs Mr. Morgan not to appear before the Committee pursuant to the subpoenas.

This directive is consistent with longstanding principles of the Justice Department regarding congressional requests for information, as well as the Department's respect for Congress's authority to conduct legitimate oversight of the Executive Branch and our mutual obligations under the constitutionally mandated accommodation process. Department witnesses are expected to abide by their obligations under the law and Department policy, including the Justice Manual, to refrain from disclosing information that has not been authorized for public release. This includes information about ongoing investigations and prosecutions, sensitive law enforcement information, and Executive Branch deliberative processes, such as those that underlie investigative and prosecutorial decisions. The presence of agency counsel during congressional interviews is essential to ensure, among other things, that Department witnesses fully understand and abide by their obligations and that the Department has the ability to raise objections or assert privileges or other Executive Branch confidentiality interests.

1 Mr. Castor. Good morning.

2 This was supposed to be a deposition for Jack Morgan, a former senior litigation
3 counsel with the Justice Department's Tax Division. He's now serving as an Assistant 4 United States Attorney in the Eastern District of Virginia.

5 He was served a subpoena on September 14th, with a return date of September
6 28th. We're marking that as exhibit 1.

7 [Morgan Exhibit No. 1

8 Was marked for identification.]

9 Mr. Castor. The Justice Department asked us to reschedule the deposition dates
10 for Mr. Morgan and his colleague Mr. Daly, who also received a subpoena, and they 11 provided new dates for the subpoena and agreed to move the date of the deposition to 12 October 30th.

13 Of course, that was pointless, because they are not here, and they knew all along 14 they were going to direct him not to appear.

15 Exhibit 2 is a copy of the email traffic of the Justice Department discussing with us
16 moving the date of the deposition.

17 [Morgan Exhibit No. 2

18 Was marked for identification.]

19 Mr. Castor. Mr. Morgan then obtained personal counsel. And, in discussions 20 with her, Ms. Kate Duval, we settled on a new date for the deposition, a third date, to be 21 today, November 6th. We served a copy of the subpoena. We're marking that as 22 exhibit 3.

23 [Morgan Exhibit No. 3]

24 Was marked for identification.]

25 Mr. Castor. We noticed that, in accordance with the committee's rules, on 1 October 27th. And that's exhibit 4.

2 [Morgan Exhibit No. 4

3 Was marked for identification.]

4 Mr. Castor. Exhibit 5 is a letter we received, dated November 2, 2023, from the 5 Justice Department indicating they would not be permitting Mr. Morgan to appear today,
6 raising the question of why we couldn't have done this all back on September 28th.

7 [Morgan Exhibit No. 5]

8 Was marked for identification.]

9 Mr. Castor. Exhibit 6 is just some email traffic from Ms. Duval advising us that 10 her client Mr. Morgan will not be appearing today.

11 [Morgan Exhibit No. 6

12 Was marked for identification.]

13 Mr. Castor. [REDACTED], do you have anything for the Democrats?

14 [REDACTED]. Did you introduce the October 25th Justice Department letter? Can 15 we introduce that as exhibit 7?

16 Mr. Castor. Of course.

17 [Morgan Exhibit No. 7]

18 Was marked for identification.]

19 [REDACTED]. And this does note the Justice Department's concerns with, among 20 other things, the safety of their career employees. And I think I read that into the 21 record the last time, so I won't read it again --

22 Mr. Castor. All right.

23 [REDACTED]. -- but I'd like to introduce that into the record.

24 I also want to note that the email traffic from Ms. Duval -- we were forwarded a 25 copy of that. It does note that he, Mr. Morgan, has no per se objection to testifying,

1 but, given the competing constitutional claims and interests expressed by his employer,
2 the Department of Justice, he will be following his employer's directive.

3 Mr. Castor. Okay.

4 With that, we'll note that it's now 10:11, Mr. Morgan has not appeared, and we
5 will conclude this portion of the non-deposition deposition.

6 [Whereupon, at 10:12 a.m., the deposition was concluded.]

Dear Mr. Daly:

Attached to this letter please find a subpoena issued by the Committee on the Judiciary (the Committee) compelling your appearance for a deposition.

The Committee requires your deposition testimony to further several of its critical investigative and oversight interests. As an initial matter, your testimony is necessary to assist the Committee in determining whether sufficient grounds exist to draft articles of impeachment against President Joseph R. Biden. In addition, your deposition testimony is relevant to the Committee's ongoing oversight of the Executive Branch's commitment to impartial justice, as well as its investigation into the veracity of statements made in response to congressional inquiries related to the Department of Justice's (DOJ) investigation of Hunter Biden, President Biden's son.

On December 13, 2023, the House of Representatives adopted House Resolution 918, which directed the Committee, along with the Committees on Oversight and Accountability and Ways and Means, to continue the House's ongoing impeachment inquiry.¹ As part of its impeachment inquiry, the Committee is investigating, among other things, whether President Biden "abuse[d] his power as President to impede, obstruct, or otherwise hinder investigations or the prosecution of Hunter Biden."² As background, for years, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) and DOJ have been investigating Hunter Biden for tax crimes.³ In spring 2023, two IRS whistleblowers who were intimately involved in that investigation came forward and exposed several ways that DOJ had deviated from its standard processes during the Hunter Biden investigation.⁴ Some of the information the Committee has uncovered suggest that political interference may have impeded the Hunter Biden investigation and prosecution, and the Committee is investigating whether President Biden (directly or through his political appointees) has in any way attempted to meddle in the investigation.

As a member of the team that was assigned to work on the Hunter Biden matter, you have firsthand knowledge of the investigation's day-to-day operations. Your testimony is thus critical to the impeachment inquiry. For example, you were present at an October 2021 "tax summit" where you, along with other members of the team, agreed to move forward with generating a prosecution memorandum that would recommend bringing criminal charges against Hunter Biden for tax years 2014 to 2019.⁵ Months later, however, on June 15, 2022, you gave a presentation and argued just the opposite: that Hunter Biden should not be charged for the 2014 and 2015 tax years.⁶ Although Hunter Biden's counsel was willing to agree to toll the statute of limitations for charges related to those tax years, DOJ ultimately allowed the statute of limitations to lapse without bringing charges.⁷ The Committee must understand why DOJ decided not to bring these charges, and, given your personal knowledge of this aspect of the investigation, the Committee believes you can shed important light on that decision, including whether it was impacted by political interference.

The Committee also believes that you may be able to shed light on why the U.S. Attorney for the District of Columbia and the U.S. Attorney for the Central District of California refused to partner with the prosecution team to bring charges against Hunter Biden. Because tax charges must be filed in the judicial district where the defendant resides or where the tax return is prepared or filed, charges against Hunter Biden related to the 2014 and 2015 tax years would have needed to be filed in the District of Columbia, where Hunter Biden lived until 2017, and for later years, in the Central District of California, where Hunter Biden moved in 2017. The lead prosecutor assigned to the Hunter Biden case, David Weiss, the U.S. Attorney for the District of Delaware, could not have filed charges outside of his district before his Special Counsel appointment on August 11, 2023.⁸ Thus, Weiss would have needed to partner with Matthew Graves, the U.S. Attorney for the District of Columbia, and/or Martin Estrada, the U.S. Attorney for the Central District of California, to bring charges against Hunter Biden in those districts. However, both refused to partner with him.

According to one of the IRS whistleblowers, DOJ's Tax Division authored an extensive prosecution memo recommending charges for the 2014 and 2015 tax years and presented this memorandum to the U.S. Attorney's Office for the District of Columbia during a meeting in March 2022.⁹ It has been reported that you then informed the other IRS whistleblower that the first assistant in that office, a non-presidentially-appointed career prosecutor, was optimistic about bringing charges and stated she would assign a prosecutor to assist. However, just a couple of days later, according to the first IRS whistleblower, you told the other IRS whistleblower that U.S. Attorney Graves personally reviewed the report and indicated that he did not support the charges or the investigation as a whole and would not allow charges to proceed in his district.¹⁰ Given your role on the prosecution team, and the fact that you were present at the meeting where members of the Tax Division presented the issue to the office, the Committee believes that you may be able to shed light on these events, including whether political interference played any role in U.S. Attorney Graves's failure to partner with the prosecution team.

Likewise, the Committee believes that you may have insight into why the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Central District of California did not work with Weiss's team to bring charges against Hunter Biden for later tax years.¹¹ According to one of the IRS whistleblowers, you gave a presentation to that office in mid-September 2022 about bringing charges against Hunter Biden for the 2016 through 2019 tax years. The Committee believes you may be able to shed light on this meeting, including what was discussed and whether political interference played any role in U.S. Attorney Estrada's failure to partner with the prosecution team.

The Committee has attempted to get this information from other sources but has been unable to do so. For example, witnesses, including Weiss and Lesley Wolf, a former senior member of the prosecution team, have refused to discuss with the Committee the decision to allow the statute of limitations for the 2014 and 2015 tax years to lapse, often citing concerns about revealing information related to an ongoing investigation or the deliberative process privilege. These concerns and purported privileges have no factual or legal basis.

For starters, there is no ongoing investigation related to the 2014 and 2015 tax years because the statute of limitations for those charges has lapsed. Thus, questions about DOJ's decision not to bring charges related to those years—including U.S. Attorney Graves's failure to partner with Weiss—necessarily do not involve an ongoing investigation. Beyond that, concerns about an ongoing investigation “rest[] on no constitutional privilege or case law authority,” but rather on self-serving opinions issued unilaterally by the DOJ's Office of Legal Counsel (OLC).¹² These authorities are not binding on Congress and are ultimately unpersuasive. In fact, the Supreme Court has noted, contrary to DOJ's position, that “a congressional committee. . .

engaged in legitimate legislative investigation need not grind to a halt” in the face of an ongoing criminal investigation.¹³ In short, there is no “ongoing investigation” privilege in statutory or common law,¹⁴ and the historical record is replete with examples of DOJ providing congressional committees with information related to ongoing criminal investigations.¹⁵ Accordingly, there is no legal basis to withhold information from the Committee on the basis of an “ongoing” investigation,¹⁶ especially in the context of an impeachment inquiry.

Nor does a purported deliberative process privilege prevent you from testifying before the Committee.¹⁷ The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit has held that “the privilege disappears altogether when there is any reason to believe government misconduct occurred.”¹⁸ As the Committee has detailed, there is substantial evidence of governmental misconduct; namely, that DOJ deviated from standard investigative procedures (including by declining to bring charges that the prosecution team originally recommended bringing) in its investigation of Hunter Biden such that he received special treatment than otherwise afforded to similarly situated Americans.¹⁹ In short, there is no valid basis to withhold information from the Committee on the basis of the deliberative process privilege.

You have firsthand knowledge that is critical to the Committee’s impeachment inquiry, and the Committee has been unable to get that information from other sources. No privilege

There is no ‘ongoing investigation’ privilege.”). See also Christopher R. Smith, I Fought the Law and the Law Lost: The Case for Congressional Oversight Over Systemic DOJ Discovery Abuse in Criminal Cases, 9 CARDOZO PUB. L. Comm. on Oversight and Gov’t Reform, 112th Cong. (2011) [hereinafter Hearing on Obstruction of Justice] (statement of Louis Fisher, Scholar in Residence, Const. Project) (“Congress has often obtained records related to ongoing criminal investigations.”).

¹⁶ Even assuming that an “ongoing” investigation is an appropriate basis on which to withhold information from the Committee, it is certainly inapplicable with respect to your testimony relating to the 2014 and 2015 tax year charges because the statute of limitations for these charges has expired. The Department conducts investigations to determine whether sufficient evidence exists to pursue prosecution. If the Department is barred from pursuing prosecution by the expiration of the statute of limitations, it follows that any related investigation would no longer be “ongoing.”

prevents you from sharing this information with the Committee. You must appear and testify so that the Committee has the facts it needs as it investigates whether President Biden committed an impeachable offense.

The information you possess is also related to several of the Committee's legislative and oversight objectives. Pursuant to the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee is authorized to conduct oversight of DOJ as well as criminal justice matters in the United States to inform potential legislative reforms.²⁰ The Committee believes that information from your deposition will inform potential legislation including, but not limited to, reforms to the "special attorney" statute,²¹ codifying regulations related to special counsels,²² reforming DOJ's Tax Division, and strengthening laws protecting whistleblowers from retaliation.

When we subpoenaed you to appear for a deposition in the fall,²³ DOJ instructed you to not appear.²⁴ The primary basis for DOJ's instruction was that, pursuant to an OLC opinion, the Committee's subpoena was unlawful because under House rules, agency counsel could not accompany you to your deposition. DOJ's position is unpersuasive, and you have a legal obligation to appear before the Committee.

At the outset, after you are served with this legally valid and enforceable subpoena, you have a legal obligation to comply by appearing before the Committee.²⁵ Concerns about who can, and who cannot, attend the deposition do not affect the legality or enforceability of the subpoena itself and the legal duty to comply that flows from it. The OLC opinion cites no support for its leap that excluding agency counsel renders the subpoena itself invalid and unenforceable. On the merits of excluding agency counsel, the Constitution clearly specifies that each chamber of Congress "may determine the Rules of its Proceedings."²⁶ A rule that dictates who may attend committee depositions is a rule that governs House proceedings and thus easily falls within its rulemaking authority under the Constitution.

Moreover, as an extraordinary accommodation, the Committee is willing to allow agency counsel to remain physically present just outside the Committee room in which the deposition will occur and will permit a recess at any time for you and/or your personal counsel to consult with agency counsel about any matters that may arise during the deposition. The Committee believes that this accommodation will allow you to consult with agency counsel as necessary and alleviates the concerns that DOJ has articulated about proceeding without agency counsel.

To sum up, the Committee requires your testimony, and you have a legal obligation to provide it. Most importantly your testimony is directly relevant to the House's impeachment inquiry. Specifically, your testimony is critical to the question of whether President Biden abused his power to directly or indirectly impede, obstruct, or hinder DOJ's investigation or prosecution of Hunter Biden. Congress's authority to access information is broadest during an impeachment investigation,²⁷ a fact which even Presidents and other Executive Branch officials have traditionally recognized.²⁸ Indeed, conducting an impeachment inquiry based on anything less than all pertinent evidence would be an affront to the Constitution and irreparably damage public faith in the impeachment process.²⁹

Additionally, the Supreme Court has recognized that Congress has a "broad and indispensable" power to conduct oversight that "encompasses inquiries into the administration of existing laws, studies of proposed laws, and surveys in our social, economic or political system for the purpose of enabling Congress to remedy them."³⁰ It is also well established that Congress may seek information from the Executive Branch about "corruption, maladministration or inefficiency in agencies of the Government."³¹ Here, the Committee has documentary and testimonial evidence, obtained from whistleblowers, of corruption (e.g., preferential treatment for the President's son), maladministration (e.g., retaliation against whistleblowers), and inefficiency (e.g., frequent delays in the investigation due to unprecedented approval requirements to conduct basic investigative tasks). These are among the matters about which the Committee requires your testimony to inform potential legislative reforms.

several ways that DOJ had deviated from its standard processes during the Hunter Biden investigation.⁴ Some of the information the Committee has uncovered suggest that political interference may have impeded the Hunter Biden investigation and prosecution, and the Committee is investigating whether President Biden (directly or through his political appointees) has in any way attempted to meddle in the investigation.

As a member of the team that was assigned to work on the Hunter Biden matter, you have firsthand knowledge of the investigation's day-to-day operations. Your testimony is thus critical to the impeachment inquiry. For example, you were present at an October 2021 "tax summit" where you, along with other members of the team, agreed to move forward with generating a prosecution memorandum that would recommend bringing criminal charges against Hunter Biden for tax years 2014 to 2019.⁵ Months later, however, on June 15, 2022, you gave a presentation and argued just the opposite: that Hunter Biden should not be charged for the 2014 and 2015 tax years.⁶ Although Hunter Biden's counsel was willing to agree to toll the statute of limitations for charges related to those tax years, DOJ ultimately allowed the statute of limitations to lapse without bringing charges.⁷ The Committee must understand why DOJ decided not to bring these charges, and, given your personal knowledge of this aspect of the investigation, the Committee believes you can shed important light on that decision, including whether it was impacted by political interference.

The Committee also believes that you may be able to shed light on why the U.S. Attorney for the District of Columbia and the U.S. Attorney for the Central District of California refused to partner with the prosecution team to bring charges against Hunter Biden. Because tax charges must be filed in the judicial district where the defendant resides or where the tax return is prepared or filed, charges against Hunter Biden related to the 2014 and 2015 tax years would have needed to be filed in the District of Columbia, where Hunter Biden lived until 2017, and for later years, in the Central District of California, where Hunter Biden moved in 2017. The lead prosecutor assigned to the Hunter Biden case, David Weiss, the U.S. Attorney for the District of Delaware, could not have filed charges outside of his district before his Special Counsel appointment on August 11, 2023.⁸ Thus, Weiss would have needed to partner with Matthew Graves, the U.S. Attorney for the District of Columbia, and/or Martin Estrada, the U.S. Attorney for the Central District of California, to bring charges against Hunter Biden in those districts. However, both refused to partner with him.

According to one of the IRS whistleblowers, DOJ's Tax Division authored an extensive prosecution memo recommending charges for the 2014 and 2015 tax years and presented this memorandum to the U.S. Attorney's Office for the District of Columbia in March 2022.⁹ It has been reported that the first assistant in that office, a non-presidentially-appointed career prosecutor, was optimistic about bringing charges and stated she would assign a prosecutor to assist. However, just a couple of days later, according to IRS whistleblower testimony, U.S. Attorney Graves personally reviewed the report and indicated that he did not support the charges or the investigation as a whole and would not allow charges to proceed in his district.¹⁰ Given your role on the prosecution team, and the fact that members of the Tax Division (where you worked at the time) presented the issue to the office, the Committee believes that you may be able to shed light on these events, including whether political interference played any role in U.S. Attorney Graves's failure to partner with the prosecution team. Likewise, the Committee believes that you may have insight into why the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Central District of California did not work with Weiss's team to bring charges against Hunter Biden for later tax years.¹¹

The Committee has attempted to get this information from other sources but has been unable to do so. For example, witnesses, including Weiss and Lesley Wolf, a former senior member of the prosecution team, have refused to discuss with the Committee the decision to allow the statute of limitations for the 2014 and 2015 tax years to lapse, often citing concerns about revealing information related to an ongoing investigation or the deliberative process privilege. These concerns and purported privileges have no factual or legal basis.

For starters, there is no ongoing investigation related to the 2014 and 2015 tax years because the statute of limitations for those charges has lapsed. Thus, questions about DOJ's decision not to bring charges related to those years—including U.S. Attorney Graves's failure to partner with Weiss—necessarily do not involve an ongoing investigation. Beyond that, concerns about an ongoing investigation “rest[] on no constitutional privilege or case law authority,” but rather on self-serving opinions issued unilaterally by the DOJ's Office of Legal Counsel (OLC).¹² These authorities are not binding on Congress and are ultimately unpersuasive. In fact, the Supreme Court has noted, contrary to DOJ's position, that “a congressional committee. . . engaged in legitimate legislative investigation need not grind to a halt” in the face of an ongoing criminal investigation.¹³ In short, there is no “ongoing investigation” privilege in statutory or common law,¹⁴ and the historical record is replete with examples of DOJ providing congressional committees with information related to ongoing criminal investigations.¹⁵ Accordingly, there is no legal basis to withhold information from the Committee on the basis of an “ongoing” investigation,¹⁶ especially in the context of an impeachment inquiry.

Nor does a purported deliberative process privilege prevent you from testifying before the Committee.¹⁷ The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit has held that “the privilege disappears altogether when there is any reason to believe government misconduct occurred.”¹⁸ As the Committee has detailed, there is substantial evidence of governmental misconduct; namely, that DOJ deviated from standard investigative procedures (including by declining to bring charges that the prosecution team originally recommended bringing) in its investigation of Hunter Biden such that he received special treatment than otherwise afforded to similarly situated Americans.¹⁹ In short, there is no valid basis to withhold information from the Committee on the basis of the deliberative process privilege.

You have firsthand knowledge that is critical to the Committee’s impeachment inquiry, and the Committee has been unable to get that information from other sources. No privilege prevents you from sharing this information with the Committee. You must appear and testify so that the Committee has the facts it needs as it investigates whether President Biden committed an impeachable offense.

The information you possess is also related to several of the Committee’s legislative and oversight objectives. Pursuant to the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee is authorized to conduct oversight of DOJ as well as criminal justice matters in the United States to inform potential legislative reforms.²⁰ The Committee believes that information from your deposition will inform potential legislation including, but not limited to, reforms to the “special Project) (“Congress has often obtained records related to ongoing criminal investigations.”).

¹⁶ Even assuming that an “ongoing” investigation is an appropriate basis on which to withhold information from the Committee, it is certainly inapplicable with respect to your testimony relating to the 2014 and 2015 tax year charges because the statute of limitations for these charges has expired. The Department conducts investigations to determine whether sufficient evidence exists to pursue prosecution. If the Department is barred from pursuing prosecution by the expiration of the statute of limitations, it follows that any related investigation would no longer be “ongoing.”

attorney” statute,²¹ codifying regulations related to special counsels,²² reforming DOJ’s Tax Division, and strengthening laws protecting whistleblowers from retaliation.

When we subpoenaed you to appear for a deposition in the fall,²³ DOJ instructed you to not appear.²⁴ The primary basis for DOJ’s instruction was that, pursuant to an OLC opinion, the Committee’s subpoena was unlawful because under House rules, agency counsel could not accompany you to your deposition. DOJ’s position is unpersuasive, and you have a legal obligation to appear before the Committee.

At the outset, after you are served with this legally valid and enforceable subpoena, you have a legal obligation to comply by appearing before the Committee.²⁵ Concerns about who can, and who cannot, attend the deposition do not affect the legality or enforceability of the subpoena itself and the legal duty to comply that flows from it. The OLC opinion cites no support for its leap that excluding agency counsel renders the subpoena itself invalid and unenforceable. On the merits of excluding agency counsel, the Constitution clearly specifies that each chamber of Congress “may determine the Rules of its Proceedings.”²⁶ A rule that dictates who may attend committee depositions is a rule that governs House proceedings and thus easily falls within its rulemaking authority under the Constitution.

Moreover, as an extraordinary accommodation, the Committee is willing to allow agency counsel to remain physically present just outside the Committee room in which the deposition will occur and will permit a recess at any time for you and/or your personal counsel to consult with agency counsel about any matters that may arise during the deposition. The Committee believes that this accommodation will allow you to consult with agency counsel as necessary and alleviates the concerns that DOJ has articulated about proceeding without agency counsel.

To sum up, the Committee requires your testimony, and you have a legal obligation to provide it. Most importantly your testimony is directly relevant to the House’s impeachment inquiry. Specifically, your testimony is critical to the question of whether President Biden abused his power to directly or indirectly impede, obstruct, or hinder DOJ’s investigation or prosecution of Hunter Biden. Congress’s authority to access information is broadest during an impeachment investigation,²⁷ a fact which even Presidents and other Executive Branch officials have

Additionally, the Supreme Court has recognized that Congress has a “broad and indispensable” power to conduct oversight that “encompasses inquiries into the administration of existing laws, studies of proposed laws, and surveys in our social, economic or political system for the purpose of enabling Congress to remedy them.”³⁰ It is also well established that Congress may seek information from the Executive Branch about “corruption, maladministration or inefficiency in agencies of the Government.”³¹ Here, the Committee has documentary and testimonial evidence, obtained from whistleblowers, of corruption (e.g., preferential treatment for the President’s son), maladministration (e.g., retaliation against whistleblowers), and inefficiency (e.g., frequent delays in the investigation due to unprecedented approval requirements to conduct basic investigative tasks). These are among the matters about which the Committee requires your testimony to inform potential legislative reforms.

For the reasons above, there is no valid legal basis for you to defy this subpoena. Accordingly, please find the attached subpoena compelling your appearance at a deposition.

RE: Mark Daly

Dear Chairman Jordan,

Thank you for your February 22 letter and subpoena directed to Mark Daly. This confirms their receipt and my acceptance of the subpoena on behalf of Mr. Daly. Thank you as well for thoroughly explaining the committee's rationale for seeking testimony from Mr. Daly.

As you know, Mr. Daly is an apolitical line career attorney in the Justice Department's Tax Division. As you may not know, Mr. Daly is also currently assigned to David Weiss's Special Counsel team that indicted Hunter Biden and is actively prosecuting that case in the U.S. District Court for the Central District of California.

Through counsel, Mr. Biden has moved to dismiss the indictment due to "selective" and "vindictive" prosecution theories based on an assertion that the prosecution is the product of political pressure placed on the Department by the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives. Thus, Mr. Daly is currently a career DOJ employee prosecuting a case that the defendant claims was brought because of political pressure from Republican elected officials, including members of the Judiciary Committee, while at the same time the Judiciary Committee seeks his testimony to investigate its theory that the pending case was unduly narrowed or delayed due to political pressure or influence from the current President or his Democratic political appointees.

Under the circumstances, I respectfully suggest that attempting to compel testimony from a line lawyer during a pending prosecution to elicit testimony about the facts and deliberations surrounding that very prosecution would set a dangerous precedent, as future congressional leaders and committees could subpoena prosecuting attorneys in any high-profile prosecution that is the subject of intense political debate. It is one thing to attempt to question the Attorney General or a Senate-confirmed political appointee with decision-making authority about a decision to prosecute or decline to prosecute a particular matter as part of congressional oversight. However, it is quite another to attempt to compel testimony from a line lawyer who is handling a case while that case is actively being litigated.

The Honorable Jim Jordan

February 24, 2024

While I have not attempted to create an exhaustive list of potential hazards of such an approach, one particular risk bears mention: Partisans on the committee (of either party) or their staff could attempt to create a record, or essentially take extrajudicial discovery outside the strictures of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, which could weaken a criminal prosecution and possibly create appellate issues or defenses that might not otherwise exist—potentially undermining the government’s case or the defendant’s right to a fair trial. Of course, this concern is beyond clear issues related to Fed. R. Crim. P. 6(e), 26 U.S.C. § 6103, or applicable rules of professional conduct that will arise with any testimony of a line prosecutor in a criminal tax case.

Your letter acknowledges that the committee has already interviewed Acting Deputy Assistant Attorney General Goldberg, U.S. Attorney (and now Special Counsel) Weiss, and other Justice Department political appointees who had final decision-making authority in the Biden prosecution. And your letter acknowledges that the Department has not permitted these employees to answer questions related to certain charging decisions and deliberative processes regarding a pending prosecution. While I do not yet know what position the Department will take here, I fully expect the Department to take the same position with respect to Mr. Daly. Thus, the committee’s investigative goals will not be advanced in the least should Mr. Daly be permitted to appear for testimony. Rather, all that will be achieved is that a career lawyer in the Department who is in the midst of a high-profile prosecution will be caught in the cross-fire of a bitter interbranch constitutional dispute that he has no ability to resolve.

If the committee wishes to challenge the Department’s position on the legal issues that arise when there is oversight of a pending prosecution (and to be clear, there are legitimate and valid interests to be protected by both the Executive and Legislative branches in a circumstance such as this), I suggest that can be accomplished via civil litigation to compel testimony of a senior DOJ official who has already, at the instruction of agency counsel, declined to answer specific questions the committee finds crucial. Subpoenaing a line lawyer and subjecting him to questioning about an active prosecution under threat of contempt of Congress, or future protracted federal litigation, creates unnecessary stress and potential collateral issues for a career line lawyer who asked for none of this. Moreover, we should all want Mr. Daly to be focusing on his current mission and pending case before him, not spending his time distracted by an interbranch constitutional dispute that is not his to resolve.

In light of the foregoing, I respectfully suggest that Mr. Daly is not the appropriate witness to serve as a vehicle to resolve the committee’s dispute with DOJ over the validity of DOJ’s legal positions.

I therefore request that the committee withdraw its subpoena and find another path to achieve its objectives. Should the subpoena remain outstanding, please know that the most likely outcome is that—as I did this fall with respect to a prior subpoena—I will counsel Mr. Daly to follow any instructions from his employer, the Department of Justice, with respect to whether to appear or whether to limit his testimony in any respect due to the pending prosecution. Until I receive any such instructions and evaluate them, I will plan on appearing with Mr. Daly on March 1

Dear Mr. Driscoll:

I write concerning your client Mark Daly. I serve as the senior career official at the Department of Justice (Department). Consistent with this role, in which I have served since 2018, I possess and exercise delegated authority to provide current and former Department employees with direction concerning the disclosure and protection of Department information, including with respect to congressional requests for testimony. I write to you in that capacity.

I write regarding a deposition subpoena issued to your client by the House Committee on the Judiciary (Committee) on February 22, 2024.¹ As background, on September 14, 2023, the Committee issued a deposition subpoena to your client for testimony regarding the work of the Department on an ongoing individual criminal investigation and prosecution led by Special Counsel David Weiss.² On November 1, 2023, the Committee issued an additional deposition subpoena to your client with a return date of November 6, 2023.³ The Committee's correspondence at that time, including the letters accompanying the subpoenas to your client, stated that the Committee sought testimony about meetings and conversations among investigators and prosecutors about the weight of evidence and charging decisions in an open matter. Pursuant to the Rules of the House of Representatives, incorporated by reference in the Committee Rules transmitted with the subpoenas, agency counsel was prohibited from attending the deposition. The Department offered voluntary appearances by three senior officials on appropriate topics as an alternative to the Committee pursuing such testimony from line-level attorneys, including your client. Although the Committee accepted the Department's offered alternative and these officials appeared for interviews last fall, the Committee continued to pursue testimony from your client via the November 1, 2023 subpoena.

On November 2, 2023, I wrote to you to convey that the Department had determined, on the basis of a 2019 Office of Legal Counsel (OLC) opinion, that the exclusion of agency counsel meant that the subpoenas lacked legal effect and could not constitutionally be enforced. My letter explained that, having carefully considered the relevant facts and authority, Department and Executive Branch precedents and longstanding principles, and the Department's determination that not appearing would be lawful because this subpoena lacks legal effect, I recommended to the Deputy Assistant Attorney General serving as the Head of the Tax Division and to the Attorney General that Mr. Daly be directed not to appear before the Committee pursuant to this subpoena. The Attorney General and the Head of the Tax Division approved my recommendation. Accordingly, my November 2, 2023 letter conveyed that the Department was directing Mr. Daly not to appear before the Committee pursuant to the subpoena. Mr. Daly complied with the Department's direction.

Several months passed before the Committee communicated again with the Department regarding any interest in seeking your client's testimony.⁴ As noted, last week the Committee issued an additional deposition subpoena to your client seeking testimony on the same topics regarding the same criminal investigation and prosecution, which remains ongoing and in which there are currently multiple public indictments filed in multiple districts. Furthermore, as explained in correspondence from the Department to the Committee today, although the Committee has described this subpoena as part of an impeachment inquiry into whether President Biden "abuse[d] his power as President to impede, obstruct, or otherwise hinder investigations (including Congressional investigations) or the prosecution of Hunter Biden," the factual record the Committee developed in its own investigation demonstrated that this matter has been handled without improper interference; other information the Committee is requesting is not pertinent to the impeachment inquiry; and, in any event, the Committee has not explained how your client would have any relevant personal knowledge of such conduct by President Biden or the White House.⁵ Pursuant to the Rules of the House of Representatives, incorporated by reference in the Committee Rules transmitted with this additional subpoena, agency counsel is prohibited from attending this deposition, as well.

As discussed in my letter of November 2, 2023, the Department has written to the Committee explaining that principles and policies for safeguarding the confidentiality of the Department's work further the public interest in the integrity of law enforcement investigations.⁶ These principles and policies have been followed across administrations and are grounded in constitutional concerns. As discussed in the Department's prior correspondence with the Committee, excluding agency counsel in these circumstances undermines the Executive Branch's ability to protect its confidentiality interests in the course of the constitutionally mandated accommodation process.⁷ In addition, the exclusion of agency counsel interferes with the Executive Branch's ability to protect potentially privileged information.⁸ The underlying principles that inform the Department's position are longstanding across administrations. Here, the subpoena issued by the Committee prohibits the attendance of agency counsel at an appearance where the Committee has indicated it will ask questions regarding information Mr. Daly learned within the scope of his official duties, including potentially privileged information.⁹ On the basis of 2019 Office of Legal Counsel opinions, the Department has determined that the exclusion of agency counsel means that the subpoena is invalid and lacks legal effect.¹⁰ It therefore cannot constitutionally be enforced by civil or criminal means or through any inherent contempt power of Congress.¹¹ Accordingly, the Department has determined that Mr. Daly cannot be subject to criminal prosecution for declining to appear or to answer questions pursuant to this subpoena.¹²

⁴ In the interim, on December 13, 2023, the House of Representatives passed a resolution purporting to authorize the Committee to seek civil enforcement of the November 1, 2023 subpoena to your client. As of the date of this letter, the Department is unaware of any action by the Committee or the House to pursue such an effort.

Furthermore, having carefully considered the relevant facts and authority (including developments since November 2, 2023), Department and Executive Branch precedents and longstanding principles; and the Department's determination that not appearing would be lawful because this subpoena lacks legal effect, I recommended to the Deputy Assistant Attorney General serving as the Head of the Tax Division and to the Attorney General that Mr. Daly be directed not to appear before the Committee pursuant to the February 22, 2024 subpoena. The Attorney General and the Head of the Tax Division approved my recommendation. Accordingly, the Department directs Mr. Daly not to appear before the Committee pursuant to the subpoena.

This directive is consistent with longstanding principles of the Justice Department regarding congressional requests for information, as well as the Department's respect for Congress's authority to conduct legitimate oversight of the Executive Branch and our mutual obligations under the constitutionally mandated accommodation process. Department witnesses are expected to abide by their obligations under the law and Department policy, including the Justice Manual, to refrain from disclosing information that has not been authorized for public release. This includes information about ongoing investigations and prosecutions, sensitive law enforcement information, and Executive Branch deliberative processes, such as those that underlie investigative and prosecutorial decisions. The presence of agency counsel during congressional interviews is essential to ensure, among other things, that Department witnesses fully understand and abide by their obligations and that the Department has the ability to raise objections or assert privileges or other Executive Branch confidentiality interests. circumstances here, such as the specific requests to your client for information learned within the scope of his official duties, including information that is potentially privileged, following the Department's directive not to appear would protect the confidentiality interests of the Executive Branch and the separation of powers.

This directive is also consistent with our continuing commitment to good-faith negotiations with the Committee in response to its interest in this matter. The Department remains willing to discuss with the Committee appropriate requests for information and the circumstances under which the Department may be able to provide that information. Nothing in this directive shall be understood to waive or limit, on behalf of Mr. Daly or of the Department, any potentially applicable privileges, objections, or confidentiality interests regarding this or other congressional requests for information.

Pursuant to 5 U.S.C § 2302(b)(13), the provisions of this letter are consistent with and do not supersede, conflict with, or otherwise alter the employee obligations, rights, or liabilities created by existing statute or Executive order relating to (1) classified information, (2) communications to Congress, (3) the reporting to an Inspector General or the Office of Special Counsel of a violation of any law, rule, or regulation, or mismanagement, a gross waste of funds, an abuse of authority, or a substantial and specific danger to public health or safety, or (4) any other whistleblower protection. Dear Ms. Duval:

I write concerning your client Jack Morgan. I serve as the senior career official at the Department of Justice (Department). Consistent with this role, in which I have served since 2018, I possess and exercise delegated authority to provide current and former Department employees with direction concerning the disclosure and protection of Department information, including with respect to congressional requests for testimony. I write to you in that capacity.

I write regarding a deposition subpoena issued to your client by the House Committee on the Judiciary (Committee) on February 22, 2024.¹ As background, on September 14, 2023, the Committee issued a deposition subpoena to your client for testimony regarding the work of the Department on an ongoing individual criminal investigation and prosecution led by Special Counsel David Weiss.² On November 1, 2023, the Committee issued an additional deposition subpoena to your client with a return date of November 6, 2023.³ The Committee's correspondence at that time, including the letters accompanying the subpoenas to your client, stated that the Committee sought testimony about meetings and conversations among investigators and prosecutors about the weight of evidence and charging decisions in an open matter. Pursuant to the Rules of the House of Representatives, incorporated by reference in the Committee Rules transmitted with the subpoenas, agency counsel was prohibited from attending the deposition. The Department offered voluntary appearances by three senior officials on appropriate topics as an alternative to the Committee pursuing such testimony from line-level attorneys, including your client. Although the Committee accepted the Department's offered alternative and these officials appeared for interviews last fall, the Committee continued to pursue testimony from your client via the November 1, 2023 subpoena.

On November 2, 2023, I wrote to you to convey that the Department had determined, on the basis of a 2019 Office of Legal Counsel (OLC) opinion, that the exclusion of agency counsel meant that the subpoenas lacked legal effect and could not constitutionally be enforced. My letter explained that, having carefully considered the relevant facts and authority, Department and Executive Branch precedents and longstanding principles, and the Department's determination that not appearing would be lawful because this subpoena lacks legal effect, I recommended to the Deputy Assistant Attorney General serving as the Head of the Tax Division and to the Attorney General that Mr. Morgan be directed not to appear before the Committee pursuant to this subpoena. The Attorney General and the Head of the Tax Division approved my recommendation. Accordingly, my November 2, 2023 letter conveyed that the Department was directing Mr. Morgan not to appear before the Committee pursuant to the subpoena. Mr. Morgan complied with the Department's direction.

Several months passed before the Committee communicated again with the Department regarding any interest in seeking your client's testimony.⁴ As noted, last week the Committee issued an additional deposition subpoena to your client seeking testimony on the same topics regarding the same criminal investigation and prosecution, which remains ongoing and in which there are currently multiple public indictments filed in multiple districts. Furthermore, as explained in correspondence from the Department to the Committee today, although the Committee has described this subpoena as part of an impeachment inquiry into whether President Biden "abuse[d] his power as President to impede, obstruct, or otherwise hinder investigations (including Congressional investigations) or the prosecution of Hunter Biden," the factual record the Committee developed in its own investigation demonstrated that this matter has been handled without improper interference; other information the Committee is requesting is not pertinent to the impeachment inquiry; and, in any event, the Committee has not explained how your client would have any relevant personal knowledge of such conduct by President Biden or the White House.⁵ Pursuant to the Rules of the House of Representatives, incorporated by reference in the Committee Rules transmitted with this additional subpoena, agency counsel is prohibited from attending this deposition, as well.

As discussed in my letter of November 2, 2023, the Department has written to the Committee explaining that principles and policies for safeguarding the confidentiality of the Department's work further the public interest in the integrity of law enforcement investigations.⁶ These principles and policies have been followed across administrations and are grounded in constitutional concerns. As discussed in the Department's prior correspondence with the Committee, excluding agency counsel in these circumstances undermines the Executive Branch's ability to protect its confidentiality interests in the course of the constitutionally mandated accommodation process.⁷ In addition, the exclusion of agency counsel interferes with the Executive Branch's ability to protect potentially privileged information.⁸ The underlying principles that inform the Department's position are longstanding across administrations. Here, the subpoena issued by the Committee prohibits the attendance of agency counsel at an appearance where the Committee has indicated it will ask questions regarding information Mr. Morgan learned within the scope of his official duties, including potentially privileged information.⁹ On the basis of 2019 Office of Legal Counsel opinions, the Department has determined that the exclusion of agency counsel means that the subpoena is invalid and lacks legal effect.¹⁰ It therefore cannot constitutionally be enforced by civil or criminal means or through any inherent contempt power of Congress.¹¹ Accordingly, the Department has determined that Mr. Morgan cannot be subject to criminal prosecution for declining to appear or to answer questions pursuant to this subpoena.¹²

⁴ In the interim, on December 13, 2023, the House of Representatives passed a resolution purporting to authorize the Committee to seek civil enforcement of the November 1, 2023 subpoena to your client. As of the date of this letter, the Department is unaware of any action by the Committee or the House to pursue such an effort.

Furthermore, having carefully considered the relevant facts and authority (including developments since November 2, 2023), Department and Executive Branch precedents and longstanding principles; and the Department's determination that not appearing would be lawful because this subpoena lacks legal effect, I recommended to the Deputy Assistant Attorney General serving as the Head of the Tax Division and to the Attorney General that Mr. Morgan be directed not to appear before the Committee pursuant to the February 22, 2024 subpoena. The Attorney General and the Head of the Tax Division approved my recommendation. Accordingly, the Department directs Mr. Morgan not to appear before the Committee pursuant to the subpoena.

This directive is consistent with longstanding principles of the Justice Department regarding congressional requests for information, as well as the Department's respect for Congress's authority to conduct legitimate oversight of the Executive Branch and our mutual obligations under the constitutionally mandated accommodation process. Department witnesses are expected to abide by their obligations under the law and Department policy, including the Justice Manual, to refrain from disclosing information that has not been authorized for public release. This includes information about ongoing investigations and prosecutions, sensitive law enforcement information, and Executive Branch deliberative processes, such as those that underlie investigative and prosecutorial decisions. The presence of agency counsel during congressional interviews is essential to ensure, among other things, that Department witnesses fully understand and abide by their obligations and that the Department has the ability to raise objections or assert privileges or other Executive Branch confidentiality interests. Under the

This directive is also consistent with our continuing commitment to good-faith negotiations with the Committee in response to its interest in this matter. The Department remains willing to discuss with the Committee appropriate requests for information and the circumstances under which the Department may be able to provide that information. Nothing in this directive shall be understood to waive or limit, on behalf of Mr. Morgan or of the Department, any potentially applicable privileges, objections, or confidentiality interests regarding this or other congressional requests for information.

RE: AUSA Jack Morgan

Dear Chairman Jordan:

Thank you for the thorough explanation of the Committee's activities and rationale for seeking testimony from my client, Jack Morgan, as set forth in your letter of February 22. This letter re-confirms receipt of your letter and my acceptance of the Committee's subpoena on behalf of Mr. Morgan.

We understand the importance of your investigation and your Committee's critical investigative and oversight interest. We also appreciate the Committee's efforts to narrow the scope of the testimony it seeks. There is no doubt that Mr. Morgan appreciates the importance of a thorough investigation.

As I think you are aware, Mr. Morgan is a career civil servant of the Department of Justice. He was previously assigned to the Justice Department's Tax Division, but since September 2022 has served as an Assistant United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia. As such, he is obligated to follow his employer's direction, including the provisions in the Department's Justice Manual, as well as the applicable ethics rules for attorneys.

The Committee's subpoena seeks to have Mr. Morgan testify about matters related to an ongoing Department investigation, including privileged information and confidential material regarding prosecutorial choices. Legally and ethically, Mr. Morgan must weigh heavily his employer's guidance in this situation. This afternoon the Department directed Mr. Morgan, via the enclosed letter, not to testify in response to the Committee's February 22 subpoena.

Mr. Morgan is therefore caught in an ongoing tug-of-war between two co-equal branches of our government, and he has no ability to resolve this dispute. Importantly, Mr. Morgan remains employed by the Department of Justice, and he must carefully consider the views and legal advice of his employer in responding to a subpoena seeking information about his work there.

As described in the attached letter, the Department's view is that your investigation may impinge the Department's prosecutorial discretion, as partisan questions (from either side) could result in extrajudicial discovery that may undermine an ongoing investigation. We also note that Mr. Morgan's testimony about prior tax prosecutions could implicate Fed. R. Crim. P. 6(e) (forbidding any disclosure of grand jury information), 26 U.S.C. § 6103 (forbidding disclosure of tax information except to certain entities), as well as the applicable rules of professional conduct.

Under the circumstances, we also respectfully suggest that compelling testimony from a line attorney to elicit testimony about the facts and deliberations surrounding an ongoing case would establish a dangerous precedent. We have advised Mr. Morgan to follow the directions of his employer, the Department of Justice. Accordingly, Mr. Morgan will not appear for testimony on March 1.

Sincerely,

Catherine S. Duval

1 Mr. Castor. Good afternoon.

2 This was supposed to be a deposition of Mark Daly of the Justice Department's Tax
3 Division. Chairman Jordan requested this deposition as part of the House's formal
4 impeachment inquiry into President Biden as well as the Judiciary Committee's oversight
5 responsibilities of the Department.

6 I'm going to mark a number of exhibits.

7 Mr. Daly is not here today. He received a letter from the Justice Department
8 instructing him not to appear.

9 This is not the first time we tried to have Mr. Daly in for a deposition. On 10 September 14, 2023, Chairman Jordan sent a subpoena for a deposition to Mark Daly.
11 That will be marked as exhibit 1.

12 Exhibit 2 is some email exchanged between the committee and the Justice
13 Department's Office of Legislative Affairs.

14 Exhibit 3 is a notice of deposition for the first deposition for Mr. Daly, noticed on 15 September 27, 2023. The original -- the first deposition was scheduled to be on 16 Thursday, October 26, 2023.

17 Exhibit 4 is a letter from his personal counsel, a former DOJ official, Robert 18 Driscoll, to Chairman Jordan dated October 24, 2023 -- that's exhibit 4 -- 2 days before the 19 October 26th deposition.

20 Exhibit 5 is a letter from the Justice Department's Bradley Weinsheimer to 21 Mr. Driscoll dated October 25, 2023, instructing Mr. Daly not to appear for the 22 October 26th deposition.

23 Exhibit No. 6 is a letter dated October 25, 2023, from the Justice Department to 24 Chairman Jordan about the Mark Daly deposition on October 26th advising the chairman
25 he's been instructed not to appear.

1 In the new year, we tried again, and on February 22nd Chairman Jordan issued a
2 new deposition subpoena to Mark Daly. We identified some of the topics that we're
3 interested in and some of the topics that we believe are not part of the ongoing
4 investigation -- specifically, the 2014 and 2015 tax years, which the Department
5 intentionally and willfully allowed to lapse. And this is as part of the investigation into 6 Hunter Biden.

7 That is exhibit 7, the subpoena and cover letter dated February 22, 2024.

8 Exhibit 8 is the committee's formal notice of the deposition, February 22, 2024,
9 notice of deposition for today, March 1, 2024, at 2:00 p.m.

10 Exhibit 9 is a letter from Mr. Daly's counsel, Robert Driscoll, dated February 24, 11 2024; this is last Saturday.

12 On February 29th, the Department wrote the committee -- and this is 13 yesterday -- advising the committee that Mr. Daly is not going to be -- he's going to be 14 instructed not to appear. The February 29th letter from the Department is marked as 15 exhibit 10.

16 Exhibit 11 is a letter from the Department to counsel for Mr. Daly, Robert Driscoll.
17 The letter comes from Bradley Weinsheimer, dated yesterday, February 29, 2024.

18 Finally, the last exhibit is a letter dated February 29, 2024, from Mr. Driscoll to the 19 committee, and we'll mark that as exhibit 12, again, dated yesterday.

20 [Daly Exhibits Nos. 1 through 12
21 were marked for identification.]

22 Mr. Castor. [REDACTED]?

23 [REDACTED]. Yeah. We just want to note for the record that we don't agree with 24 the characterization of the Justice Department having intentionally and willfully allowed
25 certain tax years to lapse. I think the evidence here has shown that all prosecutorial

1 decisions were made in accordance with applicable law, regulations, and policies.

2 As Assistant Attorney General Uriarte's February 29th letter notes, the testimony
3 has shown that Mr. Weiss had authority to determine where, when, and whether to bring 4 charges, that he was never blocked from bringing charges or taking any investigative 5 steps, and that he was never denied the request to be special counsel, which is really the 6 thrust of this investigation.

7 We also think that the evidence has shown that all prosecutorial decisions were 8 made in accordance with all applicable law, regulation, and policies.

9 I would also note that, in Mr. Driscoll's email dated February 29th, he notes that 10 Mr. Daly is not appearing in accordance with the instruction of the -- in accordance with 11 the instruction from Mr. Weinsheimer.

12 Mr. Castor. Okay. I should note, exhibit 12 is an email, as [REDACTED] points out, 13 from Mr. Driscoll to committee staff.

14 I want to flag a couple other issues.

15 We offered the Department the ability to sit outside the room, either at a table 16 immediately outside the room or provide them, you know, some office space where they 17 could confer with Mr. Driscoll and Mr. Daly should the need arise. If a question was 18 propounded that the witness really didn't know how to respond, given the Department's 19 interests, we offered that accommodation.

20 Mr. Driscoll is a former DOJ official and experienced lawyer in this area, so we 21 believe that Mr. Daly certainly is well-served from a counsel perspective.

22 I would note one other item. The Department's logic in not providing us
23 Mr. Daly and also his former Tax Division colleague, Mr. Morgan, follows what we 24 consider to be a little bit of circular logic. You know, they argue that, you know, the 25 relevance of these types of witnesses -- you know, that we are unable to establish from

1 facts collected to date that these witnesses are necessary. And, in fact, the committee
2 has uncovered substantial irregularities in the investigation and prosecution of the 3 President's son.

4 DOJ's position, that because interviews with certain witnesses that they have 5 allowed to come and testify only about topics that they have allowed these witnesses to 6 testify about hasn't, you know, uncovered any evidence directly implicating the President,
7 doesn't mean the committee's investigation of the matter should end, and it doesn't 8 mean that the committee's investigation should be foreclosed from witnesses with 9 relevant information.

10 The alleged mismatch between interviewing Mr. Daly and Mr. Morgan and the 11 scope of the impeachment inquiry doesn't make any sense, the Department's arguments, 12 in our opinion. Mr. Daly and Mr. Morgan were directly involved in the irregularities that 13 are under scrutiny. They were directly involved in the facts testified to by the Ways and 14 Means whistleblowers, Supervisory Special Agent Gary Shapley and Special Agent Ziegler.

15 And while no one expects that they would've directly spoken with the President, 16 their testimony -- that is, Mr. Daly and Mr. Morgan -- regarding these irregularities is 17 quite relevant to the committee's inquiry. They could provide explanations for these 18 irregularities that might be exculpatory for the Department and for the President, or they 19 could give testimony regarding political causes for these irregularities that would be 20 inculpatory.

21 So this is why we take the depositions; this is why we ask the witnesses to come in 22 and ask the questions.

23 And, with that --

24 [REDACTED]: Could I respond to that real fast?

25 Mr. Castor. Yes.

1 [REDACTED]. Again, we don't -- the minority does not agree that the evidence has 2 shown irregularities in this case.

3 I would also note that the Department has expressed concern -- has made Stuart
4 Goldberg, who is the supervisor of both individuals, available to testify. I think he 5 testified for 6 hours at the end of last year.

6 And the Department has also expressed concern that these witnesses would be 7 questioned about matters involving an ongoing prosecution. There is, obviously,
8 longstanding Department policy protecting ongoing matters.

9 So I just want to make the note that that is all included in Mr. Uriarte's letter
10 dated February 29th.

11 Mr. Castor. Okay.

12 With that, we'll go off the record.

13 [Whereupon, at 2:09 p.m., the deposition was concluded.]

1 Mr. Castor. We can go on the record.

2 Good morning. This was supposed to be a deposition of Mr. Jack Morgan from 3 the Justice Department, formerly of the Tax Division. Chairman Jordan requested this 4 deposition as part of the House's formal impeachment inquiry into the President Biden,
5 as well as the committee's oversight jurisdiction of the Justice Department.

6 Mr. Morgan is not here today after receiving a letter from his employer not to 7 appear.

8 We're going to mark a number of exhibits for the record.

9 Exhibit No. 1 is a letter from Chairman Jordan to Jack Morgan with a subpoena,
10 dated September 14, 2023.

11 Exhibit 2 is a September 2023 email exchange between the committee and the 12 Justice Department about the scheduling of Mr. Morgan's deposition.

13 Exhibit 3 is an October 25, 2023, letter from the Justice Department about the first 14 Jack Morgan deposition subpoena.

15 Exhibit 4 is a letter, dated November 1, 2023, from Mr. Jordan to Jack Morgan
16 enclosing a new subpoena, a second subpoena.

17 Exhibit 5 is a notice of deposition that we put out for the first Jack Morgan
18 deposition.

19 Exhibit No. 6 is a letter from the Justice Department, dated November 2, 2023, 20 directing Mr. Morgan not to appear for the first deposition.

21 On February 22, Mr. Jordan issued a new subpoena. We narrowed the topics,
22 and we tried to set up a scenario where DOJ would permit Mr. Morgan to attend. So 23 exhibit 7 is a cover letter from Mr. Jordan with a new subpoena, dated February 22, 2024.

24 Exhibit No. 8 is the notice of deposition that the committee put out noticing
25 today's deposition for February 29, 2024 -- I'm sorry -- March 1, 2024.

1 Exhibit 9 is a letter from yesterday, February 29, from the Department to Mr.
2 Jordan advising us that the witnesses have been instructed not to appear, including Mr.
3 Morgan, Mr. Daly.

4 Exhibit 10 is a letter, dated yesterday, February 29, from DOJ, from Mr.
5 Weinsheimer, to counsel for Mr. Morgan, Kate Duval.

6 And exhibit 11 is a letter from counsel of Mr. Morgan, Kate Duval, to Chairman
7 Jordan, dated yesterday, February 29, 2024.

8 We offered the Department, Mr. Morgan an accommodation. We offered to 9 have Department lawyers stationed outside the room or at a different committee office
10 to be able to consult with Mr. Morgan and his counsel, Ms. Duval, in the likelihood a 11 question was raised that they needed to consult with the Department. We believe that 12 was an accommodation that would allow today to proceed. Ms. Duval is a very 13 experienced lawyer in these matters, and so she certainly is competent and capable to 14 work with DOJ and Mr. Morgan in advance of today to understand DOJ's positions on 15 some of the topics we intended to ask Mr. Morgan about. So the idea that the Justice
16 Department has to be in the room to facilitate today is something the committee does 17 not agree with.

18 And we would note, in response to yesterday's letter from DOJ -- we would just 19 put this on the record -- that their arguments about the relevance of the witnesses to the 20 impeachment inquiry are -- their arguments are a little bit circular. The committee has 21 uncovered substantial irregularities in the investigation and prosecution of the President's 22 son, Hunter Biden, of which Mr. Morgan was directly involved as a lawyer in the Tax
23 Division.

24 DOJ's position is that, because interviews with certain witnesses they have chosen
25 to make available, where those witnesses answered only certain questions DOJ allowed

1 them to answer, hasn't uncovered, you know, any evidence that they claim implicates the 2 President. You know, because of that, DOJ's position is the committee's investigation
3 should end and no more witnesses should be interviewed. That, of course, doesn't work
4 for Congress, a coequal branch of government.

5 The alleged mismatch between interviewing Mr. Morgan and the scope of the 6 impeachment inquiry is nonsense. Mr. Morgan was directly involved in the irregularities 7 that are under scrutiny, and we have questions that only he can answer, not his 8 supervisors.

9 [Morgan Exhibit Nos. 1 to 11
10 were marked for identification.]

11 Mr. Castor. With that, I would like to offer the minority an opportunity to --

12 ██████████. Thank you.

13 I think, just to make the record clear, the minority does not agree that the 14 investigation has uncovered substantial irregularities or, in fact, any irregularities in the 15 handling of this criminal matter. I think, to the contrary, the evidence has shown that it
16 was handled by the book in accordance with Justice manual principles, applicable statutes
17 and regulations.

18 I think the contention that the witnesses were only permitted to only answer
19 certain questions, I think the counsels in those interviews made it clear that the questions
20 that were not answered pertained to the ongoing matter, and there were concerns about 21 compromising that ongoing matter, among other things.

22 The statement was just made that there might have been some -- that there might 23 have been some evidence that maybe implicated the President, something I think the 24 minority doesn't agree that we've seen anything along those lines.

25 And then I would just note for the record, in the February 29, 2024, letter from

1 Carlos Uriarte at the Department of Justice to Chairman Jordan, the Department noted
2 correctly that every witness who's appeared to date has confirmed that Special Counsel
3 Weiss had authority to determine where, when, and whether to bring charges, that he 4 was never blocked from bringing charges or taking any investigative step, that he was 5 never blocked from bringing charges or taking any investigative steps -- I'm sorry -- by 6 either the Criminal Division, the Tax Division, the U.S. Attorneys of the District of 7 Columbia or the Southern District of California, and that he first requested to be 8 appointed special counsel in August of 2023. He never requested or was denied special
9 counsel status before then. When he requested special counsel status, he was promptly
10 appointed. Those questions were all addressed I think in full by the witnesses who have 11 appeared.

12 I would note that the Department in that letter also offered to answer written 13 questions, which their position is that that's an accommodation. I think the discussions 14 on that are still ongoing.

15 And then I would note, from the letter dated February 29, 2024, from Ms. Duval,
16 that she does note that Mr. Morgan is a career civil servant who's been called to testify
17 about matters related to an ongoing Department investigation, including privileged 18 information and confidential information. As she notes, legally and ethically, Mr.
19 Morgan must weigh heavily his employer's guidance in the situation, that guidance in this 20 case being not to appear.

21 She continues that Mr. Morgan is, therefore, caught in an ongoing tug of war
22 between two coequal branches of our government and has no ability to resolve this 23 dispute.

24 So I would just note for the record that, to the extent there is a dispute, it's 25 between the chairman and the Department and not Mr. Morgan.

1 Thank you.

2 Mr. Castor. Okay. And we would just note that, in our cover letter, Mr.
3 Jordan's cover letter for today's subpoena, we identified topics related to the 2014 and 4 2015 tax years which the Department intentionally and willfully allowed to lapse, and so
5 there could be no prosecution about the 2014 and 2015 tax years. And we have 6 questions for Mr. Morgan about that that can't possibly interfere with an ongoing 7 investigation of those two tax years.

8 [REDACTED]. And I would just note in response to that that I believe we did receive 9 testimony from Matthew Graves, the U.S. Attorney for the District of Columbia, that 10 strongly suggested that there would have been serious issues with trying to prosecute 11 those tax years.

12 Mr. Castor. And, with that, I think we are good to go off the record.

13 [REDACTED]. Thank you.

14 [Whereupon, at 10:11 a.m., the deposition was concluded.]

The Honorable Jim Jordan
Chairman
Committee on the Judiciary
U.S. House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Chairman Jordan:

The Department of Justice (Department) writes in response to your letters and four subpoenas of February 22, 2024, seeking testimony regarding the ongoing investigation and prosecutions overseen by Special Counsel David Weiss.¹ All the letters indicate the House Committee on the Judiciary (Committee) issued the subpoenas in support of the House of Representatives' impeachment inquiry into whether the President "abuse[d] his power as President to impede, obstruct, or otherwise hinder investigations (including Congressional investigations) or the prosecution of Hunter Biden."²

The Department has already taken extraordinary steps that address your interest in this matter, including by authorizing testimony by six senior Department officials. One of those individuals was Special Counsel Weiss, who testified he was responsible for deciding whether and when to bring charges and resolved the Committee's questions about improper interference. Even so, we remain open to continued good-faith engagement with the Committee and are willing to assess whether the Department can provide additional information in response to

Jim Jordan, Chairman, H. Comm. on the Judiciary, to Lesley Wolf (Feb. 22, 2024). The Department's position on the Committee's previous requests and subpoenas for testimony from these same individuals is set forth in prior correspondence, which the Department incorporates by reference here. written questions, consistent with our obligation to protect the integrity of Special Counsel Weiss's ongoing work.

The Department's efforts to address the Committee's interest have been extraordinary, not least because this matter is ongoing: it is currently the subject of three public indictments and prosecutions, and Special Counsel Weiss has made clear his investigation continues. Nevertheless, the Department concluded it was in the public interest to address misrepresentations and misunderstandings that could unduly harm public confidence in the evenhanded administration of justice.³ Although the witnesses' testimony was necessarily scoped to protect the ongoing investigation and prosecutions, they were able to address the central issue in these subpoenas and the impeachment resolution: whether there was any political interference in Special Counsel Weiss's investigation, including by President Biden. Each witness said they were unaware of any such interference. Indeed, the Committee has identified no reason to believe that any evidence exists of improper interference by President Biden in the Department's work, including as described in the impeachment resolution, much less evidence that would justify the additional testimony you seek in these subpoenas.

This was already clear from the significant information the Department produced to the Committee over the course of months prior to the passage of House Resolution 918, through correspondence, documents, and authorized testimony by multiple senior officials, including Special Counsel Weiss himself. Indeed, the factual record the Committee developed in its own investigation demonstrated that this matter has been handled without political interference.⁴ For example, in extraordinary testimony authorized by the Department months ago, Special Counsel Weiss testified to this Committee: "I am, and have been, the decision-maker on this case."⁵ He further testified: "Throughout this investigation, the career prosecutors on my team and I have made decisions based on the facts and the law. Political considerations played no part in our decision-making."⁶

In addition to Special Counsel Weiss, the Department has made five senior officials available for transcribed interviews to address the Committee's interest in the scope of Mr. Weiss's authority to decide where, whether, and when to bring charges. Each Department witness who was asked indicated they had witnessed no political interference in Special Counsel Weiss's investigation. The witnesses also confirmed:

³ See Letter from the Hon. Carlos F. Uriarte, Assistant Att'y Gen., Off. of Legis. Aff., to the Hon. Jim Jordan, Chairman, H. Comm. on the Judiciary (July 24, 2023).

⁴ As discussed below, the Department has not been provided with copies of the transcripts of testimony received by the Committee. However, the Department is aware of the testimony for which it was present and the limited testimony that has been made public. None of it supports the premise that the President or the White House has interfered with the investigation or prosecution, or the Department's responses to Congress on this matter. See, e.g., Transcribed Interview of former FBI Supervisory Special Agent Before the H. Comm. on Oversight and Accountability, 118th Cong. (July 17, 2023) at 49–50, 57–58, <https://oversight.house.gov/wp-content/uploads/2023/08/FBI-SSA-Transcribed-Interview-Transcript.pdf>; Transcribed Interview of former Assistant U.S. Att'y Before the H. Comm. on Judiciary, 118th Cong. (Dec. 14, 2023), opening statement ("I can convey that as far as I am aware, any narrative that suggests, much less insists that political influence played a role in any matter I handled, is a false one.").

- David Weiss had authority to determine where, when, and whether to bring charges.
- David Weiss was never blocked from bringing charges or taking any investigative steps by the U.S. Attorneys for the District of Columbia or the Central District of California, whose approval or partnership he did not require to pursue charges in districts outside of Delaware.
- Nor was David Weiss ever blocked from bringing charges or taking any investigative step by the Tax Division, whose assistance and expert input on tax charges he welcomed.
- David Weiss first requested to be appointed Special Counsel in August 2023. He never requested, nor was he denied, Special Counsel status before then. When he requested Special Counsel status, he was promptly appointed.

This is the record developed by the Committee’s own investigation to date.⁷ As to these four subpoenas, the Committee’s letters identify no evidence of any efforts by President Biden or the White House to interfere with the ongoing investigation or prosecution, or with the Department’s responses to congressional requests about this matter. That is consistent with what the Attorney General has made clear repeatedly, including in testimony to this Committee, when committing that this matter would be handled independently and without improper interference.⁸

Moreover, other information the Committee is requesting, including through repeat testimony from some of the same individuals the Committee has already spoken to, simply is not pertinent to the impeachment inquiry. Many of the Committee’s questions appear to focus on events from 2020, before President Biden took office, or on decisions the Committee has already learned, repeatedly, were made free from interference. And even if there were anything in the record to support—rather than rebut—allegations of improper interference with the Department’s work, the Committee has not explained how the line tax attorneys and prosecutors it has requested as witnesses would have any relevant personal knowledge of such conduct by President Biden or the White House. Further, none of the four individuals the Committee now seeks to depose has responsibility for the Department’s responses to congressional inquiries, including on this matter. Put simply, there is a mismatch between the information demanded and the asserted purpose and scope of the Committee’s investigation, including as described in the impeachment resolution.⁹

In addition, the Committee’s letters make clear it intends to question witnesses about information relating to the ongoing investigation and prosecutions and investigative steps and prosecutorial decisions made during the matter. The Committee’s theory that certain aspects of the matter are closed because statutes of limitation have run on specific criminal charges is

⁷ Although the Supreme Court has acknowledged that “[t]he very nature of the investigative function—like any research—is that it takes the searchers up some ‘blind alleys’ and into nonproductive enterprises,” that does not mean the Committee must keep going. See Eastland v. U.S. Servicemen’s Fund, 421 U.S. 491, 509 (1975).

⁸ See Oversight of the U.S. Dep’t of Just.: Hearing Before the H. Comm. on the Judiciary, 118th Cong. (Sept. 20, 2023) (testimony of the Hon. Merrick B. Garland, Att’y Gen., U.S. Dep’t of Just.).

simply not correct. The Department does not concede the Committee's assertion with respect to the application of the statute of limitations and whether certain charges were foregone for that reason. Statutes of limitations relate only to specific criminal charges. Evidence of conduct or activities may be admissible and highly relevant to other charges even if the conduct or activity occurred in years prior to the indicted charges. In fact, Special Counsel Weiss specifically addressed this point when he spoke to the Committee months ago. He testified that witnesses and evidence related to conduct that could be relevant to charges from tax years whose statutes of limitation have lapsed may still pertain to his ongoing tax prosecution. In our justice system, these are judgments to be made by prosecutors, based on the law and the facts.

The Department has repeatedly explained its duty to protect the public interest in the integrity of law enforcement work, and why congressional requests for this kind of information—particularly while an investigation is open and judicial proceedings are ongoing—create serious risks to the integrity of that investigation and the fairness of those proceedings, in addition to risking dangerous chilling effects, statutory violations, and constitutional concerns.¹⁰ Disclosing nonpublic information about ongoing investigations could violate statutory requirements or court orders; reveal road maps of our investigations including to defendants and targets; and interfere with the Department's ability to gather facts, interview witnesses, and bring successful criminal prosecutions where warranted.¹¹

As the Department has made clear in this matter and across administrations, the Department speaks through its filings and its work. As Special Counsel Weiss has repeatedly indicated, he anticipates addressing the topics of interest to the Committee in a report at the end of his investigation. Under the Department's regulations, his report will include an explanation of his prosecution and declination decisions—the very topics you are interested in. The Attorney General has committed to making as much of that report public as possible, consistent with the law and Department policy.

That said, in continuation of the Department's good-faith efforts to work with the Committee, the Department is willing to receive written questions from the Committee to assess whether additional information can be provided at this time. The Department would require additional information from the Committee, including copies of the transcripts of the testimony in this matter.¹² Months have passed since the Committee first received testimony from these individuals. During that time, the Committee has not expressed urgency or attempted follow up for information it was still seeking. It is not in keeping with comity for a co-equal branch of government for the Committee to insist that the Department compress into days what could have been done over the prior weeks and months.

Accordingly, we ask the Committee to send written questions and transcripts to the Department at its earliest convenience and to extend additional time for the Department to respond. We also request that the Committee defer any attempts to enforce the subpoenas, which at the very least would be premature. In any event, on the basis of 2019 Office of Legal Counsel opinions, the Department has determined that the exclusion of agency counsel means the subpoenas lack legal effect and cannot constitutionally be enforced.¹³

We hope this information is helpful. Please do not hesitate to contact this office if we may provide additional assistance regarding this or any other matter.

The Honorable Merrick B. Garland
Attorney General
U.S. Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W.
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Attorney General Garland:

We are in receipt of the Department's letter dated February 29, 2024, concerning the Committee's subpoenas to four current or former Department employees for testimony in furtherance of the House's ongoing impeachment inquiry of the President and the Committee's legislative oversight of the Department.¹ We are disappointed that the Department has directed two of these employees, Mark Daly and Jack Morgan, to disregard the Committee's lawfully authorized and issued subpoenas.² The Department's reasons for these directives lack merit and are unpersuasive.

As an initial matter, the February 29 letter fundamentally misstates the factual record and the Committee's findings to date.³ With the Committee on Oversight and Accountability and the Committee on Ways and Means, we released a report detailing how the Department deviated from its standard practices to provide President Biden's son, Hunter Biden, with special treatment.⁴ The report detailed how the Department slow-walked the Hunter Biden investigation, prevented line investigators from taking ordinary investigative steps, and allowed the statute of limitations to lapse on the most serious charges.⁵ The report also explained, contrary to the Department's assertion, how testimony showed that U.S. Attorney David Weiss did not have "ultimate authority" over the Hunter Biden investigation, and instead how he had to seek agreement and approval from other Department officials.⁶

But while the Committee has been able to document numerous irregularities in the Department's handling of its investigation into the President's son, the Department has obstructed the Committee's effort to uncover the cause of those irregularities. The fact of the matter is that no Department witness has provided the Committee with any explanation for the deviations identified in the Hunter Biden Report. Thus, the Committee must engage in additional fact-gathering.

The facts that the Committee has been able to uncover so far, despite the Department's unilateral and arbitrary scoping limitations on witness testimony at voluntary transcribed interviews and its refusal to make Daly and Morgan available at all,⁷ do not provide the Department with an excuse to continue to deny further information to the Committee. In fact, the Committee was forced to issue subpoenas to the four witnesses precisely because the Department prevented the witnesses from answering certain questions previously or, in the case of Daly and Morgan, withheld them from the Committee entirely.⁸ As the Committee explained to each of these witnesses, they have information that is directly relevant to the House's impeachment inquiry and that will inform potential legislation.⁹

The Department's position with respect to the Committee's subpoenas seems to be that because voluntary transcribed interviews with the Department's approved witnesses—who were subject to the Department's unilateral and arbitrary scoping limitations—did not meet the Department's self-selected threshold for wrongdoing, the Committee is not entitled to obtain any additional testimony. Such a position is not only absurd on its face, but it ignores Congress's “broad and indispensable” power to conduct legislative oversight¹⁰ and federal courts' emphasis that Congress must possess all pertinent evidence when conducting an impeachment inquiry.¹¹

Simply put, the Committee has demonstrated that it has a legitimate need to know why the Department gave the President's son preferential treatment, and it is not sufficient for: (1) the Committee to hear only from the Department's approved witnesses; (2) those witnesses to answer questions only that the Department approves; and (3) those witnesses to issue only blanket denials of political interference without providing any alternative explanation for the irregularities in the investigation of the President's son. The Department would not accept analogous restrictions on its own criminal investigations, and the Committee will not accept such restrictions on its investigation here.

The Department also alleges there is a “mismatch between the information demanded and the asserted purpose and scope of the Committee’s investigation.”¹² This assertion, too, is wrong. Each of the witnesses to whom the Committee has issued a subpoena has personal and direct involvement in the irregularities that are under scrutiny.¹³ For example, the Hunter Biden prosecution team, which included Daly, Morgan, and Wolf, initially decided to recommend charges against Hunter Biden for tax offenses stemming from the 2014 and 2015 tax years, before changing course just a few months later after Daly and Morgan gave a presentation that argued the exact opposite.¹⁴ Those charges eventually lapsed notwithstanding the willingness of Hunter Biden’s defense team to toll the statute of limitations.¹⁵ Moreover, Daly was directly involved in unsuccessful efforts for the prosecution team to partner with the U.S. Attorney’s Offices for the District of Columbia (headed by Graves) and the Central District of California to bring charges against Hunter Biden in those districts, and Wolf was involved in the negotiations over the highly unusual plea deal with Hunter Biden that blew up under judicial scrutiny.

The Committee seeks to speak to these witnesses about these irregularities because they are in a prime position to know why these irregularities occurred, and their testimony will shed light on whether impermissible political pressure that could be traced to President Biden played a part in these decisions, or whether the irregularities occurred for other reasons. Thus, the witnesses’ testimony about those irregularities is unquestionably relevant to the Committee’s impeachment inquiry.

In addition, the Department’s February 29 letter made several arguments that we have addressed in previous correspondence.¹⁶ The Department claims that the witnesses cannot provide information about topics under examination by the Committee because they implicate an ongoing criminal investigation and prosecution.¹⁷ The Department broadly and generically claims that doing so could risk chilling effects, statutory violations, and constitutional concerns.¹⁸ But, not only has the Department failed to specify exactly how its investigation in this case will be jeopardized by the Committee’s depositions, there is no “ongoing investigation” privilege in statutory or common law,¹⁹ and there is no legal basis to withhold information from the Committee on the basis of an “ongoing” investigation, especially in the context of an impeachment inquiry.²⁰ The Department’s position “rests on no constitutional privilege or case law authority,” but rather on self-serving opinions issued unilaterally.²¹ The Supreme Court has noted, contrary to the Department’s position, that “a congressional committee . . . engaged in legitimate legislative investigation need not grind to a halt” in the face of an ongoing criminal investigation.²² Moreover, none of the Department’s stated concerns excuses the wholesale failure to provide witnesses duly subpoenaed by the Committee, as in the case of Daly and Morgan, especially in light of the fact that the Department has not provided any particular concern with the Committee’s investigation.

The Department also asserted, without citation to any statute, regulation, or decision of any court, that the witnesses cannot provide information about topics for which the statute of limitations has expired—and thus criminal charges may not be brought—because “[e]vidence of conduct or activities may be admissible and highly relevant to other charges” at some undefined date in the future.²³ The Department’s position lacks any legal basis, is impractical, and taken to its extreme, would be a basis to deny Congress any information for an indefinite amount of time if a prosecutor believes it could be relevant to some uncharged crime. The Committee rejects the assertion that the Department may also deny the Committee information about topics for which criminal prosecution is statutorily barred.

The Department asks the Committee to wait for Special Counsel Weiss’s report to be published to have the answers it is currently seeking. There is no authority the Department can cite for the proposition that the House’s solemn and unique power of impeachment must wait for the conclusion of another investigation. Indeed, when it comes to impeachment, “the Framers themselves” recognized “the public interest in immediately removing a sitting President.”²⁴ The Committee’s impeachment inquiry cannot depend on the timeline set by the branch of government that is headed by the individual who is the subject of Committee’s investigation.

In lieu of the Committee proceeding with the depositions, the Department insists that the Committee propound interrogatories to the witnesses.²⁵ The Committee cannot accept the Department’s eleventh-hour demand. A live interview is a type of fact-finding that is materially unique from written questions and answers, and interrogatories have well-documented limitations: “The flexibility and the potency of oral depositions are in large part lacking in written interrogatories. . . . [I]nterrogatories can readily be misused or employed in such a rote manner as almost to ensure unhelpful answers for any but the most basic or simple questions.”²⁶ In addition, the Department has demanded that the Committee send the questions to the Department—instead of to the witnesses—suggesting that the Department intends to exert a degree of influence or control over the substance of the witnesses’ answers.

The Department has also demanded the transcripts from the Committee’s previous interviews on this matter.²⁷ There is no legitimate basis for the Department to obtain these transcripts as a condition precedent to allowing its employees to provide additional testimony. Witnesses do not need to review the testimony of others to provide truthful information about their own knowledge of the matters at issue. Moreover, consistent with the Committee’s practice, witnesses (and/or their attorneys) have been able to review the transcripts of their own interviews for accuracy. Accordingly, the Committee will not provide any transcripts to the Department. Here, again, the Department is insisting on a condition that it would not accept in its own investigations.

Finally, the Committee rejects the Department’s assertion that the Committee’s subpoenas “lack legal effect and cannot constitutionally be enforced.”²⁸ The Department’s assertion rests on two opinions unilaterally issued by the Department’s own Office of Legal Counsel, which are neither binding nor persuasive authority on how a committee of Congress carries out its Constitutional oversight duties. In any case, the OLC opinions do not properly account for how the House adopted its rule on excluding agency counsel from depositions pursuant to its constitutionally delegated power to “determine the Rules of its Proceedings,”²⁹ or how this House rule excuses the subpoenaed witnesses from their “unremitting obligation to respond to subpoenas.”³⁰

The Committee has already offered extraordinary accommodations to address the Department’s concerns. In particular, the Committee is willing to allow agency counsel to remain physically present just outside the Committee room in which the deposition will occur and will permit a recess at any time for the witness and/or his or her personal counsel to consult with agency counsel about any matters that may arise during the deposition. The Department’s February 29 letter does not even address the Committee’s good-faith offer, much less explain why it would not safeguard the Department’s purported interests.

The Department’s obstruction in this matter has delayed the Committee’s investigation for months, and the Committee must gather all necessary information to determine whether to draft articles of impeachment against President Biden and/or develop legislative reforms. As such, and in light of the above discussion, the Committee will proceed with the depositions as scheduled. We ask that you reverse the Department’s directive to the witnesses that they not comply with the Committee’s lawfully authorized and issued subpoenas.

Sincerely,

Jim Jordan

H. RES. 12

Creating a Select Committee to Investigate Covert Arms Transactions with Iran.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

JANUARY 6, 1987

Mr. FOLEY (for himself, Mr. MICHEL, Mr. HAMILTON, and Mr. CHENEY) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Rules

JANUARY 7, 1987

The Committee on Rules discharged; considered and agreed to

RESOLUTION

Creating a Select Committee to Investigate Covert Arms
Transactions with Iran.

1 Resolved, That (1) There is hereby created a Select 2 Committee to Investigate Covert Arms Transactions with 3 Iran, to be composed of fifteen Members of the House to be 4 appointed by the Speaker, one of whom he shall designate as 5 chairman, and one of whom he shall designate as vice chair-
6 man. Any vacancy occurring in the membership of the select 7 committee shall be filled in the same manner in which the 8 original appointment was made. The select committee is au-
9 thorized and directed to conduct a full and complete investi-

1 gation and study, and to make such findings and recommen-
2 dations to the House as the select committee deems appropri-
3 ate, including those concerning the amendment of existing 4 legislation or the enactment of new legislation, regarding the 5 following matters:

6 (a) Direct or indirect sale or transfer of arms, tech-
7 nology or intelligence information to Iran or Iraq in-
8 volving United States Government officers, employees,
9 consultants, agents, or persons acting in concert with 10 them, or occurring with their approval, condonation,
11 acquiescence, or knowledge; the relation of such sale
12 or transfer to efforts to obtain the release of hostages
13 and to United States policy regarding dealings with na-
14 tions supporting terrorism; the United States' relation-15 ship with the Iran-Iraq war, including the impact of 16 such sale or transfer; and such sale or transfer either 17 made to any other country for which such action is 18 against the expressed policy of the United States, or 19 generating proceeds used or disposed of apart from de-
20 posit in the Treasury.

21 (b) Diversion or intended diversion of the funds real-
22 ized in connection with the sale or transfer in para-
23 graph (a), for financing assistance to anti-Government
24 forces in Nicaragua or any other disposition apart from 25 deposit in the Treasury; and other assistance to such

1 forces from any sources when, in the judgment of the 2 select committee, information about such other assist-
3 ance may aid in understanding the nature, mechanisms,
4 extent, legality, and significance of assistance financed
5 or intended to be financed by such sale or transfer;
6 "assistance" includes provision of supplies, soliciting of 7 third-party funds, training, advising, planning, procur-
8 ing, or encouraging, or by the United States Govern-
9 ment providing diplomatic, military, paramilitary,
10 covert, or intelligence support or monitoring.

11 (c) In connection with the matters described in this 12 section, the violation of any law, agreement, promise
13 or understanding regarding reporting to, and informing 14 of, the Congress, or the circumvention or violation of 15 any Act of Congress or administrative order, regula-
16 tion, or procedure, including those governing covert ac-
17 tions, restricting arms sales, regulating appropriations,
18 withholding authority from departments and agencies,
19 and protecting the United States from conspiracy to 20 violate the laws, unauthorized disposition of things of 21 value, fraud, false statements, and obstruction of pro-
22 ceedings.

23 (d) Operational activities and the conduct of foreign 24 and national security policy by the staff of the National 25 Security Council or other White House personnel, in-

1 cluding the involvement of such staff or other executive
2 branch personnel or persons acting in concert with 3 them, or the use of any funds under the control of such 4 staff or persons, in political advocacy or campaigns or 5 efforts to influence public opinion or legislation relating 6 to the subjects described in this section including as-7 sistance to anti-Government forces in Nicaragua; and 8 the participation, coordination, and awareness, or lack 9 thereof, regarding such activities and conduct by the 10 Departments of State and Defense, the Department of 11 Justice in both its advisory and law enforcement func-
12 tions, the intelligence community, and other govern-
13 mental entities.

14 (e) Authorization and supervision or lack thereof of 15 the matters in this section by the President and other
16 White House personnel.

17 (f) The role of individuals and entities outside the 18 government, including foreign countries, entities, and 19 persons, in connection with the matters in this section,
20 including their own assistance, their parallel activities,
21 United States efforts to encourage or to prevent such 22 parallel activities, and the use of domestic and foreign 23 financial or other entities as intermediaries in the mat-
24 ters in this section.

(g) Inquiries regarding the matters in this section, including actions based on those inquiries, by the Attorney General, the Departments of Justice, State, and Defense, the intelligence community, the White House, and other governmental entities; actions of individuals in destroying, concealing, or failing to provide any evidence or information of possible value to those inquiries; and the timing, adequacy, and any conflicts of interest in those inquiries.

(h) The impact of the matters in this section on public and international confidence in the United States Government and on United States policy objectives, both internationally and domestically, and the adequacy of the steps taken to reduce such impact.

(i) All matters relating directly or indirectly to the foregoing.

(2) One-third of the members of the select committee shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business other than the reporting of a matter, which shall require a majority of the committee to be actually present, except that the select committee may designate a lesser number, but not less than two, as a quorum for the purpose of holding hearings to take testimony. When a quorum for any particular purpose is present, general proxies may be counted for that purpose. The select committee may sit while the House is reading a

1 measure for amendment under the five-minute rule. The rules
2 of the House shall govern the select committee where not 3 inconsistent with this resolution. The select committee ~~shall~~ 4 adopt additional written rules, which shall be public, to 5 govern its procedures, which shall not be inconsistent with 6 this resolution or the rules of the House. Such rules may 7 govern the conduct of the depositions, interviews, and hear-
8 ings of the select committee, including the persons present.

9 (3) The select committee is authorized to sit and act
10 during the present Congress at such times and places within 11 the United States, including any Commonwealth or posses-
12 sion thereof, or in any other country, whether the House is in 13 session, has recessed, or has adjourned; to require, by sub-14 poena or otherwise, the attendance and testimony of such 15 witnesses, the furnishing of information by interrogatory, and 16 the production of such books, records, correspondence,
17 memoranda, papers, documents, calendars, recordings, data
18 compilations from which information can be obtained, tangi-
19 ble objects, and other things and information of any kind as it
20 deems necessary, including all intelligence materials however 21 classified, White House materials, and materials pertaining 22 to unvouchered expenditures or concerning communications
23 interceptions or surveillance; and to obtain evidence in other
24 appropriate countries with the cooperation of their govern-
25 ments. Unless otherwise determined by the select committee

1 the chairman, upon consultation with the ranking minority
2 member, or the select committee, shall authorize and issue
3 subpoenas. Subpoenas shall be issued under the seal of the 4 House and attested by the Clerk, and may be served by any
5 persons designated by the chairman or any member. Provi-
6 sions may be included in the rules and process of the select 7 committee to prevent the disclosure of committee demands
8 for information. The select committee may request investiga-
9 tions, reports, and other assistance from any agency of the 10 executive, legislative, and judicial branches of the Federal 11 Government.

12 (4) The chairman, or in his absence the vice chairman,
13 or in their absence a member designated by the chairman,
14 shall preside at all meetings and hearings of the select com-
15 mittee. All meetings and hearings of the committee shall be 16 conducted in open session, unless a majority of members of 17 the select committee voting, there being in attendance the 18 requisite number required for the purpose of hearings to take 19 testimony, vote to close a meeting or hearing. Pursuant to 20 rule XI(3)(f)(2), coverage of testimony of subpoenaed wit-
21 nesses will be limited at their request, unless a majority of 22 members of the select committee voting, there being in at-23 tendance the requisite number required for the conduct of 24 business, vote otherwise.

1 (5) The chairman, upon consultation with the ranking
2 minority member, may employ and fix the compensation of 3 such clerks, experts, consultants, technicians, attorneys, in-
4 vestigators, and clerical and stenographic assistants as it con-
5 siderers necessary to carry out the purposes of this resolution.
6 No more than three such staff may receive compensation cor-
7 responding to Executive Level IV. The select committee
8 shall be deemed a committee of the House for all purposes of 9 law, including rule XI(2)(n), and sections 6005, 1505, and 10 1621 of title 18, section 192 of title 2, 1754(b)(1)(B)(ii) of 11 title 22, and section 734(a) of title 31, United States Code.
12 The select committee may reimburse the members of its staff
13 for travel, subsistence, and other necessary expenses incurred
14 by them in the performance of the duties vested in the select 15 committee, other than expenses in connection with meetings
16 of the select committee held in the District of Columbia. Staff 17 of the House or joint committees, at the direction of their 18 Members, committee chairmen, or the Speaker, as appropri-
19 ate, and upon request of the select committee, may serve as 20 associate staff to the select committee for designated pur-
21 poses. Associate staff shall be deemed staff of the select com-
22 mittee to the extent necessary for those designated purposes.

23 (6) Unless otherwise determined by the select committee
24 the chairman, upon consultation with the ranking minority
25 member, or the select committee, may authorize the taking of 1 affidavits, and of depositions pursuant to notice or subpoena,

2 by a Member or by designated staff, under oath administered
3 by a Member or a person otherwise authorized by law to 4 administer oaths. Deposition and affidavit testimony shall be 5 deemed to have been taken in Washington, DC, before the 6 select committee once filed there with the clerk of the com-
7 mittee for the committee's use. Unless otherwise directed by 8 the committee, all depositions, affidavits, and other materials
9 received in the investigation shall be considered nonpublic
10 until received by the select committee, except that all such 11 material shall, unless otherwise directed by the committee, be 12 available for use by the Members of the select committee in 13 open session.

14 (7) Pursuant to sections 6103(f)(3) and 6104(a)(2) of title
15 26, United States Code, for the purpose of investigating the 16 subjects set forth in this resolution and since information nec-
17 essary for this investigation cannot reasonably be obtained
18 from any other source, the select committee shall be specially 19 authorized to inspect and receive for the tax years 1980-
20 1986 any tax return, return information, or other tax-related 21 material, held by the Secretary of the Treasury, related to 22 individuals and entities named by the select committee as 23 possible participants, beneficiaries, or intermediaries in the 24 transactions under investigation. As specified by section

1 6103(f)(3) of title 26, United States Code, such materials and 2 information shall be furnished in closed executive session.

3 (8) The select committee shall be authorized to respond
4 to any judicial or other process, or to make any applications
5 to court, upon consultation with the Speaker consistent with
6 rule L.

7 (9) The select committee may submit to standing com-
8 mittees, including the Permanent Select Committee on Intel-
9 ligence, specific matters within their jurisdiction, and may 10 request that such committees pursue such matters further.
11 Committees pursuing such requested inquiries may, in turn,
12 receive the continuing assistance, consistent with the select 13 committee's own jurisdiction, of the select committee's legal 14 process, personnel, and records. Committees which pursue or 15 have pursued inquiries, during the previous or current Con-
16 gress, within the subjects of the select committee investiga-
17 tion shall furnish the select committee with copies of all testi-
18 mony and documents.

19 (10) The select committee shall provide other commit-
20 tees and Members of the House with access to information
21 and proceedings, consistent with rule XLVIII(7)(c)(2): Pro-
22 vided, That the select committee may direct that particular 23 matters or classes of matter shall not be made available to 24 any person by its members, staff, or others, or may impose
25 any other restriction. The select committee may require its

1 staff to enter nondisclosure agreements, and its chairman, in 2 consultation with the ranking minority member, may require
3 others, such as counsel for witnesses, to do so. The Commit-
4 tee on Standards of Official Conduct may investigate any un-
5 authorized disclosure of such classified information by a
6 Member, officer, or employee of the House or other covered
7 person upon request of the select committee. If, at the con-
8 clusion of its investigation, the Committee on Standards of 9 Official Conduct determines that there has been a significant 10 unauthorized disclosure, it shall report its findings to the 11 House and recommend appropriate sanctions for the Member,
12 officer, employee, or other covered person consistent with 13 rule XLVIII(7)(e) and any committee restriction, including 14 nondisclosure agreements.

15 (11) Authorized expenses of the select committee for in-16 vestigations and studies, including for the procurement of the 17 services of individual consultants or organizations thereof,
18 and for training of staff, shall be paid from the contingent 19 fund of the House upon vouchers signed by the chairman and 20 approved by the Speaker.

21 (12) The select committee shall report to the House the 22 final results of its investigation and study, together with such 23 recommendations for legislation or other matters as it deems
24 advisable, as soon as practicable during the present Con-
25 gress, and in no event later than October 30, 1987, unless

1 the House directs otherwise. Following the filing of its final
2 report, it shall have one month before the authority herein
3 shall expire in order to close its affairs, including provision of 4 assistance to committees pursuing remaining inquiries, trans-
5 mittal of records to other committees, and storage of its re-
6 maining records by the Clerk of the House, who may, as 7 directed by the select committee, store records in secure fa-
8 cilities of the intelligence community pursuant to agreement
9 retaining control of access by the House.

RESOLUTION

Creating a Task Force of Members of the Foreign Affairs Committee To Investigate Certain Allegations Concerning the Holding of Americans as Hostages by Iran in 1980.

1 Resolved, That (1) There is hereby created a Task
2 Force of Members of the House Committee on Foreign Af-
3 fairs to Investigate Certain Allegations Concerning the
4 Holding of Americans as Hostages by Iran in 1980, to be
5 composed of thirteen Members of the House Committee on
6 Foreign Affairs to be appointed by the Speaker, one of
7 whom he shall designate as chairman. The Speaker shall,
8 with respect to the Republican Members of the Task Force,
9 make such appointments upon consultation with the Repub-
10 lican Leader. Any vacancy occurring in the membership of 11 the Task Force shall be filled in the same manner in which 12 the original appointment was made. The Task Force is,
13 with respect to the matters described below, authorized and
14 directed to conduct a full and complete investigation and
15 study, and to make such findings as are warranted, includ-
16 ing, where appropriate, a finding that no credible evidence
17 can be found to support particular allegations. The Task
18 Force is further authorized and directed to make such rec-
19 ommendations to the Committee on Foreign Affairs as the 20 Task Force deems appropriate, including those concerning
21 the amendment of existing legislation or the enactment of

1 new legislation. The Task Force shall fulfill these functions
2 with respect to the following matters:

3 (a) Communications by or on behalf of the 1980
4 Reagan Presidential Campaign, or individuals rep-
5 resenting or associated with that campaign, with any
6 person or persons representing or associated with the 7 Iranian Government or those persons with Iran hold-
8 ing Americans as Hostages during 1979 and 1980;

9 (b) Any attempt or proposal to attempt, by the
10 1980 Reagan Presidential Campaign or persons rep-
11 resenting or associated with that campaign, to delay
12 the release of the Americans held as hostages in Iran;

13 (c) Any activity by the 1980 Reagan Presi-
14 dential Campaign to acquire or disseminate any in-
15 formation relating to actions being taken or consid-
16 ered by the United States Government in an effort to 17 obtain the release of the Americans being held as hos-
18 tages in Iran;

19 (d) Any sale or other transmittal of arms, spare
20 parts or other assistance to Iran, in 1980 or there-
21 after, by any person or nation, intended to delay the 22 release of the American held as Hostages by Iran, and
23 any approval, acquiescence or knowledge of such sales
24 or transmittals by the 1980 Reagan Presidential

1 Campaign or persons representing or associated with
2 that campaign; and

3 (e) Any actions taken to keep any communica-
4 tions or actions as described above, if any such com-
5 munications or actions took place, from being re-
6 vealed to the Government of the United States or the
7 American people.

8 (2) One-third of the members of the Task Force shall
9 constitute a quorum for the transaction of business other
10 than the reporting of a matter, which shall require a major-
11 ity of the Task Force to be actually present, except that the 12 Task Force may designate a lesser number, but not less than 13 two, as a quorum for the purpose of holding hearings to 14 take testimony. When a quorum for any particular purpose
15 is present, general proxies may be counted for that purpose.
16 The Task Force may sit while the House is reading a meas-
17 ure for amendment under the five-minute rule. The rules
18 of the House shall govern the Task Force where not incon-
19 sistent with this resolution. The Task Force shall adopt ad-
20 ditional written rules, which shall be public, to govern its 21 procedures, which shall not be inconsistent with this resolu-
22 tion or the rules of the House. Such rules may govern the 23 conduct of the depositions, interviews, and hearings of the 24 Task Force, including the persons present. Such rules shall

1 provide for the protection of classified information from un-
2 authorized disclosure.

3 (3) The Task Force is authorized to sit and act during
4 the present Congress at such times and places within the
5 United States, including any Commonwealth or possession
6 thereof, or in any other country, whether the House is in 7 session, or has adjourned; to require, by subpoena or other-
8 wise, the attendance and testimony of such witnesses, the 9 furnishing of information by interrogatory, and the produc-
10 tion of such books, records, correspondence, memoranda, pa-
11 pers, documents, calendars, recordings, data compilations
12 from which information can be obtained, tangible objects,
13 and other things and information of any kind as it deems
14 necessary, including all intelligence materials however clas-
15 sified, White House materials, campaign materials, mate-
16 rials of present and former government officials and mate-
17 rials pertaining to unvouchered expenditures or concerning
18 communications interceptions or surveillance; and to obtain
19 evidence in other appropriate countries with the coopera-
20 tion of their governments and by letters rogatory, commis-
21 sions, field depositions and other appropriate mechanisms.
22 Unless otherwise determined by the Task Force the chair-
23 man, upon consultation with the ranking Republican mem-
24 ber, on the Task Force, shall authorize and issue subpoenas.
25 Subpoenas shall be issued under the seal of the House and

1 attested by the Clerk, and may be served by any person des-
2 ignated by the chairman or any member. The Task Force
3 may request investigations, reports, and other assistance
4 from any agency of the executive, legislative, and judicial
5 branches of the Federal Government.

6 (4) The chairman, or in his absence a member des-
7 ignated by the chairman, shall preside at all meetings and 8 hearings of the Task Force. All meetings and hearings of 9 the Task Force shall be conducted in open session, unless
10 a majority of members of the Task Force voting, there being
11 in attendance the requisite number required for the purpose
12 of hearings to take testimony, vote to close a meeting or 13 hearing.

14 (5) The Chairman, upon consultation with the ranking
15 Republican member, may employ and fix the compensation
16 of such clerks, experts, consultants, technicians, attorneys,
17 investigators, and clerical and stenographic assistants as
18 it considers necessary to carry out the purposes of this reso-
19 lution. The Task Force shall be deemed a committee of the 20 House for all purposes of law, including House Rule XI
21 (2)(n), and sections 6005, 1505, and 1621 of title 18, section
22 192 of title 2, 1754(b)(1)(B)(ii) of title 22, and section
23 734(a) of title 31, United States Code. The Task Force may 24 reimburse the members of its staff for travel, subsistence,
25 and other necessary expenses incurred by them in the per-

1 formance of the duties vested in the Task Force, other than
2 expenses in connection with meetings of the Task Force held
3 in the District of Columbia.

4 (6) Unless otherwise determined by the Task Force the
5 chairman, upon consultation with the ranking Republican

12 DC, before the Task Force once filed there with the clerk
13 of the Task Force for the Task Force's use. Depositions shall 14 be deemed to be taken in Executive Session.

15 (7) The Task Force shall be authorized to respond to 16 any judicial or other process, or to make any applications
17 to court, upon consultation with the Speaker consistent with
18 rule L.

19 (8) The Task Force shall provide other committees and

RULES OF PROCEDURE OF THE HOUSE SELECT COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE COVERT ARMS TRANSACTIONS WITH IRAN

RULE 1. RULES

1.1 The provisions of House Resolution 12, 100th Congress, 1st Session, establishing this committee, and the Rules of the House of Representatives where not inconsistent therewith, are the rules of the committee, together with these Rules.

1.2 These Rules may be modified, amended, or repealed by the committee, provided that a notice in writing of the proposed changes has been given to each member at least 48 hours prior to the meeting at which action thereon is to be taken. Notwithstanding the provisions of Rule 8, proxies may not be used in any vote to modify, amend, adopt, or repeal any rule of the committee. The changes shall become effective immediately and shall be published in the Congressional Record.

RULE 2. CONVENING OF MEETINGS

2.1 The committee may schedule a regular day and hour to meet.

2.2 The chairman shall have authority, upon proper notice, to call such additional meetings of the committee as he may deem necessary, and to dispense with regular meetings when, in his judgment, there is no need therefor, and may delegate such authority to the vice chairman or to any other member of the committee.

2.3 A majority of the members of the committee may call a special meeting for a specific matter pursuant to the procedures specified in House Rule XI(2)(c)(2).

2.4 In the case of any meeting of the committee, other than a regularly scheduled meeting, the clerk of the committee shall notify every member of the committee of the time and place of the meeting and shall give reasonable notice which, except in extraordinary circumstances, shall be at least 24 hours in advance of any meeting held in Washington, D.C., and at least 48 hours in the case of any meeting held outside Washington, D.C.

RULE 8. MEETING PROCEDURES

8.1 Five members of the select committee shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business other than the reporting of a matter, which shall require a majority of the committee to be actually present, except that two members shall constitute a quorum for the purpose of hearings to take testimony.

8.2 All meetings or hearings of the committee shall be conducted in open session, unless a majority of members of the select committee voting, there being in attendance at least two members of the committee, vote to close a meeting or hearing.

3.3 When a quorum for any particular purpose is present, general proxies may be counted for that purpose. Proxies may be general or may be limited to specific matters. A vote by any member of the committee with respect to any matter being considered may be cast by proxy if the proxy authorization is in writing, asserts that the member is absent on official business or is otherwise unable to be present, and designates the member or alternate member who is to execute the proxy authorization. Each proxy to be effective shall be signed by the member assigning his vote and shall contain the date and time that the proxy is signed. Proxies shall be effective at the session for which they are provided, or if that session is rescheduled, at the rescheduled session. Proxies shall not reduce the quorum required for reporting contempt matters and will not be counted towards the two-thirds minimum requirement pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 6005 needed to seek an immunity order.

3.4 It shall be the duty of a staff officer designated by the chairman to keep or cause to be kept a stenographic record of all committee proceedings. All transcripts, affidavits, and depositions, and copies and extracts thereof, shall be the property of the select committee, and not of the witnesses.

3.5 The chairman, or in his absence the vice chairman, or in their absence a member designated by the chairman, shall preside over all meetings and hearings of the committee.

RULE 4. SUBPOENAS

4.1 Unless otherwise determined by the select committee the chairman, upon consultation with the ranking minority member, shall authorize and issue subpoenas. In addition, the select committee may itself vote to authorize and issue subpoenas. Subpoenas shall be issued under the seal of the House and attested by the Clerk, and may be served by any persons designated by the chairman or any member. Subpoenas shall be issued upon the chairman's signature or that of a member designated by him or by the committee.

4.2 Orders for the furnishing of information by interrogatory, the inspecting of locations and systems of records upon notice except in exigent circumstances, the obtaining of evidence in other countries by means of letters rogatory or otherwise, and the other process for obtaining information available to the committee, shall be authorized and issued by the chairman, upon consultation with the ranking minority member, or by the select committee. Requests for investigations, reports, and other assistance from any agency of the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of the federal government, shall be made by the chairman, upon consultation with the ranking minority member, or by the committee.

4.3 Provisions may be included in the process of the committee to prevent the disclosure of committee demands for information, when deemed necessary for the security of information or the progress of the investigation by the chairman or member designated by him or the committee, such as requiring that companies receiving subpoenas for financial or toll records make no disclosure to customers regarding the subpoena for ninety days or prohibiting the revelation by witnesses and their counsel of committee inquiries.

4.4 A subpoena duces tecum may be issued whose return shall occur at a time and place other than that of a regularly scheduled meeting. Upon the return of such a subpoena, the chairman or vice chairman, or in their absence the ranking member of the majority party who is present, on two hours' telephonic notice to all other committee members, may convene a hearing for the sole purpose of elucidating further information about the return on the subpoena and deciding any objections to the subpoena.

RULE 5. BROADCASTING, TELEVISION, AND PHOTOGRAPHY

5.1 Whenever any hearing or meeting conducted by the committee is open to the public, the committee may permit that hearing or meeting to be covered, in whole or in part, by television broadcast, radio broadcast, and still photography, or by any of such methods of coverage, under the following rules:

(1) If the television or radio coverage of the hearing or meeting is to be presented to the public as live coverage, that coverage shall be conducted and presented without commercial sponsorship.

(2) Broadcast and photographic coverage of testimony of subpoenaed witnesses will, at their request, not be permitted, unless a majority of members of the committee voting, there being in attendance the requisite number required for the conduct of business, vote otherwise.

(3) The chairman may set limits on the number of television cameras, all operating from fixed positions, that shall be permitted in a hearing room. The allocation among the television media of the positions of the number of television cameras permitted in a hearing room shall be in accordance with fair and equitable procedures devised by the Executive Committee of the Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries.

(4) Television cameras shall be placed so as not to obstruct in any way the space between any witness giving evidence or testimony and any member of the committee, or the visibility of that witness and that member to each other.

(5) Television cameras shall not be placed in positions which obstruct unnecessarily the coverage of the hearing or meeting by the other media.

(6) Equipment necessary for coverage by the television and radio media shall not be installed in, or removed from the hearing room while the committee is in session.

(7) Floodlights, spotlights, and flashguns shall not be used in providing any method of coverage of the hearing or meeting, except that the television media may install additional lighting in the hearing room, without cost to the Government, in order to raise the ambient lighting level in the hearing room to the lowest level necessary to provide adequate television coverage of the hearing at the current state of the art of television coverage.

(8) The chairman may set limits on the number of press photographers permitted to cover a hearing or meeting by still photography. In the selection of these photographers, preference shall be given to photographers from Associated Press Photos and United Press International Newspictures. If request is made by more than the limit set by the chairman for coverage of the hearing by still photography, that coverage shall be made on the basis of a fair and equitable pool arrangement devised by the Standing Committee of Press Photographers.

(9) Photographers shall not position themselves, at any time during the course of the hearing or meeting, between the witness table and the committee members.

(10) Photographers shall not place themselves in positions which obstruct unnecessarily the coverage of the hearing or meeting by the other media.

(11) Personnel providing coverage by the television and radio media shall be then currently accredited to the Press Photographers' Gallery.

(12) Personnel providing coverage by still photography shall be then currently accredited to the Press Photographers' Gallery.

(13) Personnel providing coverage by the television and radio media and by still photography shall conduct themselves and their coverage activities in an orderly and unobtrusive manner.

RULE 6. TAKING OF TESTIMONY AT HEARINGS

6.1 Witnesses required to appear before the committee shall be given, absent extraordinary circumstances, at least forty-eight hours' notice and all witnesses shall be furnished with a copy of these rules.

6.2 All witnesses at public or executive hearings who testify to matters of fact shall be sworn unless the committee provides otherwise.

6.3 Members of the committee who so desire shall have not to exceed five minutes to interrogate each witness until such time as each member has had an opportunity to interrogate such witness. The presiding member, in consultation with the ranking minority member present, may establish a format for additional or sustained questioning of any witness by the chair or otherwise.

6.4 Personal counsel retained by any witness and accompanying such witness shall be permitted to be present during the testimony of such witness at any public or executive hearing, and to advise such witness while he is testifying on his legal rights. The presiding member may require that the witness not be accompanied by anyone except such personal counsel.

6.5 The chairman, upon consultation with the ranking minority member, if he deems it necessary to maintain the security of classified subjects being discussed at closed hearings, may require that any personal counsel be qualified by having appropriate clearance, and that the witness or counsel, or both, execute nondisclosure agreements with the committee.

6.6 A witness who is unable to obtain counsel, or to obtain counsel with requisite clearance, may inform the committee of such fact, and if, consistent with the notice given under section 6.1 hereof the committee is so informed at least 24 hours prior to the witness' appearance, the committee shall then endeavor to obtain voluntary counsel for the witness. Such counsel shall act solely for the witness and not the committee. Failure to obtain qualified counsel will not excuse the witness from appearing and testifying.

6.7 Counsel shall conduct themselves in an ethical and professional manner. The presiding member may punish breaches of order and decorum, and of professional ethics on the part of counsel, by censure and exclusion from the hearings, and the committee may cite the offender to the House for contempt. If counsel is excluded, the provisions of Rule 6.6 hereof for a witness who is unable to obtain qualified counsel shall apply.

6.8 Any witness desiring to make an introductory statement in executive or public hearings shall file a copy of such statement with the chairman or clerk of the committee 48 hours in advance of the hearings at which the statement is to be presented unless the presiding member waives this requirement. The presiding member shall reduce the 48 hours proportionately for witnesses who receive less than 72 hours' notice of the hearing. The presiding member shall determine whether such statement may be read or placed in the record of the hearing.

6.9 An accurate stenographic record shall be kept of the testimony of all witnesses in executive and public hearings. A witness may obtain a transcript copy of his testimony given at a public session. If the witness testified at an executive session, the record of his testimony shall be made available for inspection by the witness and his counsel, and the chairman may authorize provision of a copy to the witness or his counsel if such testimony does not include classified information.

6.10 Whenever it is asserted that the evidence or testimony at any investigatory hearings may tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person, the committee shall afford such person an opportunity voluntarily to appear as a witness, and receive and dispose of requests from such person to subpoena additional witnesses. Otherwise, the chairman shall receive and the committee shall dispose of requests to subpoena additional witnesses. In the case of persons so mentioned or identified at public sessions, a request to appear personally or to subpoena additional witnesses before the committee shall be considered untimely if it is not received by the chairman in writing on or before fifteen days subsequent to the day on which said person's name was mentioned or otherwise specifically identified during a public hearing held before the committee, unless the chairman waives this requirement.

6.11 No evidence or testimony taken in executive session may be released or used in public sessions without the consent of the committee, which shall require a vote, counting proxy votes, of a majority of the members of the committee.

6.12 In the presiding member's discretion, witnesses may submit brief and pertinent sworn statements in writing for inclusion in the record. The presiding member may condition the filing of such a sworn statement upon the offeror's agreeing to appear personally before the committee and to testify concerning the matters contained in his sworn statement, as well as any other matters related to the subject of the investigation before the committee.

RULE 7. AFFIDAVITS AND DEPOSITIONS

7.1 Unless otherwise determined by the select committee the chairman, upon consultation with the ranking minority member, or the select committee, may authorize the taking of affidavits, and of depositions pursuant to notice or subpoena. Such authorization may occur on a case-by-case basis, or by instructions to take a series of affidavits or depositions. The chairman may either issue the deposition notices himself, or direct the chief counsel to do so. Notices for the taking of depositions shall specify a time and place for examination. Affidavits and depositions shall be taken under oath administered by a member or a person otherwise authorized by law to administer oaths.

7.2 The committee shall not initiate procedures leading to contempt proceedings in the event a witness fails to appear at a deposition unless the deposition notice was accompanied by a committee subpoena authorized and issued by the chairman or the committee pursuant to Rule 4 hereof regarding subpoenas.

7.3 Witnesses may be accompanied at a deposition by personal counsel to advise them of their rights, subject to the provisions of Rules 6.4, 6.5, 6.6 and 6.7 hereof. Absent special permission or instructions from the chairman, no one may be present in depositions except members, staff designated by the chairman, an official reporter, the witness and any personal counsel; observers or counsel for other persons or for the agencies under investigation may not attend.

7.4 Witnesses shall be examined in depositions by a member or members or by staff designated by the chairman. Objections by the witness as to the form of questions shall be noted for the record. If a witness objects to a question and refuses to answer, the members or staff may proceed with the deposition, or may obtain, at that time or at a subsequent time, a ruling on the objection by telephone or otherwise from the chairman or his designee. The committee shall not initiate procedures leading to contempt for refusals to answer questions at a deposition unless the witness refuses to testify after his objection has been overruled and after he has been ordered and directed to answer by the chairman or his designee upon consultation with the ranking minority member or his designee.

7.5 The committee staff shall insure that the testimony is either transcribed or electronically recorded, or both. If a witness' testimony is transcribed, he shall be furnished with an opportunity to review a copy. No later than five days thereafter, the staff shall enter the changes, if any, requested by the witness, with a statement of the witness' reasons for the changes, and the witness shall be instructed to sign the transcript. The individual administering the oath, if other than a Member, shall certify on the transcript that the witness was duly sworn in his presence, the transcriber shall certify that the transcript is a true record of the testimony, and the transcript shall be filed, together with any electronic recording, with the clerk of the committee in Washington, D.C. Affidavits and depositions shall be deemed to have been taken in Washington, D.C. once filed there with the clerk of the committee for the committee's use.

7.6 Unless otherwise directed by the committee, all depositions, affidavits, and other materials received in the investigation shall be considered nonpublic until received by the select committee. Once received by the select committee, use of such materials shall be governed by the select committee rules. All such material shall, unless otherwise directed by the committee, be available for use by the members of the select committee in open session; provided, that classified information or material shall not be used in open session except as permitted by the committee, which shall require a vote, counting proxy votes, of a majority of the members of the committee.

RULE 8. PROCEDURES FOR HANDLING OF CLASSIFIED OR SENSITIVE MATERIALS

8.1 Committee staff offices shall operate under strict security precautions. The chairman shall request the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence and the Clerk and Sergeant at Arms to provide assistance necessary to insure strict security. Sensitive or classified documents and material shall be segregated and stored in an appropriately secure storage area. They may be examined only at secure reading facilities. Copying, duplicating, or removal from the committee offices of such documents and other materials are prohibited except as is necessary for authorized use in, or preparation for, interviews, depositions, or committee meetings or hearings.

8.2 Each member of the committee shall at all times have access to all papers and other materials received from any source. The chief counsel or staff director, as designated by the chairman, shall be responsible for the control, under appropriate security procedures, of all classified papers and other classified materials in the possession of the committee, and for the maintenance, under such procedures, of a registry which will number and identify all such materials. Such registry shall be available to any member of the committee.

8.3 Access by staff to classified information supplied to the committee shall be limited on a need-to-know basis, pursuant to instructions of the chairman, acting in consultation with the ranking minority member, either on a case-by-case basis or by general instructions to the chief counsel or staff director. All staff with such access shall be required to have appropriate security clearance. The chief counsel or staff director shall maintain a list of those staff, including associate staff, who may attend executive sessions and have access to classified materials. The names of such associate staff shall be entered by the chief counsel or staff director on the list only after the committee member has designated the staff members in writing, and the staff members have been determined by the chairman, in consultation with the ranking minority member, to have an appropriate security clearance.

8.4 The chairman, in consultation with the ranking minority member, may limit staff attendance at certain executive sessions, and staff access to certain categories of classified materials, which involve matters of particularly high sensitivity.

8.5 Members who are not members of the committee shall be granted access to such hearings, records, data, charts and files of the committee and shall be admitted on a nonparticipatory basis to hearings of the committee which involve classified material, apart from material otherwise restricted by the committee, on the basis of the following provisions:

(1) Members who desire to examine materials in the possession of the committee or to attend committee hearings on a nonparticipatory basis should notify the clerk of the committee in writing.

(2) Each such request by a member must be considered by the committee, a quorum for the reporting of a matter being present, at the earliest practicable opportunity. The committee must determine by record vote whatever action it deems necessary in light of all the circumstances of each individual request. The committee shall take into account in its deliberations, such considerations as the sensitivity of the information sought to the national defense or the confidential conduct of the foreign relations of the United States, the likelihood of its being directly or indirectly disclosed, the jurisdictional interest of the member making the request and such other concerns—constitutional or otherwise—as affect the public interest of the United States. Such actions as the committee may take include, but are not limited to: (i) approving the request, in whole or part; (ii) denying the request; (iii) providing in different form than requested information or material which is the subject of the request.

(3) In matters touching on such requests, the committee may, in its discretion, consult the Director of Central Intelligence and such other officials as it may deem necessary.

(4) In the event that the member making the request in question does not accede to the determination or any part thereof of the committee as regards the request, that member should notify the committee in writing of the grounds for such disagreement. The committee shall subsequently consider the matter and decide, by record vote, what further action or recommendation, if any, it will take.

(5) Members examining material pursuant to this rule shall be prohibited to disclose the material further, and every member shall be furnished a copy of this rule prior to examining such material.

8.6 The committee may direct that particular matters or classes of matter shall not be made available to any person by its members, staff, or others, or may impose any other restriction. Classified information or classified material possessed or controlled by the committee, or information deemed sensitive by the committee shall not be made available to any person by its members or staff except by vote of the committee, which shall require a vote, counting proxy votes, of a majority of the members of the committee.

8.7 The chairman and ranking minority member shall be authorized to insure that the Speaker and Minority Leader are fully informed regarding the investigation, any other provisions of these rules notwithstanding.

RULE 9. STAFF, DETAILEES, AND CONSULTANTS

9.1 All staff of the committee shall be appointed by the chairman, either by hiring, contracting, detailing, or pursuant to Rule 9.4. Upon termination of employment by the committee, each member of the staff, or consultant, shall surrender all classified and other material relating to the work of the committee which came into his possession while in the employ of the committee.

9.2 In the event of an unauthorized release of information or other violation the chairman or the committee may refer the matter to the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct. Nothing in these rules shall be construed to abridge the right of a Member to make or transmit a complaint to the Committee on the Standards of Official Conduct, or shall be construed to expand the authority of that committee, over matters related to the conduct of this committee's investigation pursuant to House Resolution 12, beyond what that resolution provides. The employment of any member of the staff or consultant who fails to conform to any of these Rules may be immediately terminated.

9.3 The chairman shall have the authority to utilize the services, information, facilities, and personnel of the departments and agencies of the government, including personnel of the General Accounting Office pursuant to section 784(a) of Title 81, United States Code. Requests by the chairman may specify by name, or describe otherwise, the personnel to be detailed.

9.4 Upon request of the chairman, staff of the House, or of House or joint committees, at the direction of their members, committee chairmen, or the Speaker, as appropriate, may serve as associate staff to the select committee for designated purposes starting with their appointment by the chairman.

9.5 All travel, including foreign travel, shall be approved by the chairman.

9.6 The chairman shall have the authority to procure the temporary or intermittent services of experts or consultants or organizations thereof to make studies or assist or advise the subcommittee with respect to any matter under investigation. Associate staff, government personnel detailed to the subcommittee, and consultants, shall be deemed staff of the select committee to the extent necessary for the purposes of their designated association, detail, or consultancy, including the purposes of interrogation of witnesses and security of information under Rules 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 hereof.

9.7 The chairman, upon consultation with the ranking minority member, may establish such additional personnel, physical, communications, and document security procedures, not inconsistent with these rules, as he deems necessary to safeguard classified information or materials possessed or controlled by the select committee.

9.8 No member of the committee staff shall be employed by or detailed or otherwise assigned to the committee unless and until he agrees in writing, as a condition of employment, with regard to any classified information which comes into such person's possession either while a member of the committee staff or by virtue of such position:

(a) not to disclose such information either while a member of the committee staff or at any time thereafter;

(b) in response to any request for testimony about such information, to provide notice to, and not to disclose such information except as directed by the committee in accordance with these rules, or after the committee's termination, in such manner as may be determined by the House.

RULE 10. JOINT HEARINGS

10.1 The Select Committee may conduct hearings jointly with the Senate Select Committee on Secret Military Assistance to Iran and the Nicaraguan Opposition.

10.2 Rules 1.3, 2, and 5 of the Senate Select Committee, to the extent that they are inconsistent with the rules of this Committee, shall govern hearings conducted jointly by the two Committees, when such hearings are held in facilities provided by the Senate.

10.3 Notwithstanding Rule 10.2, all such joint hearings shall for all purposes be considered hearings of the House Select Committee.

RESOLUTION

Creating a Task Force of Members of the Foreign Affairs Committee To Investigate Certain Allegations Concerning the Holding of Americans as Hostages by Iran in 1980.

1 Resolved, That (1) There is hereby created a Task
2 Force of Members of the House Committee on Foreign Af-
3 fairs to Investigate Certain Allegations Concerning the
4 Holding of Americans as Hostages by Iran in 1980, to be
5 composed of thirteen Members of the House Committee on
6 Foreign Affairs to be appointed by the Speaker, one of
7 whom he shall designate as chairman. The Speaker shall,
8 with respect to the Republican Members of the Task Force,
9 make such appointments upon consultation with the Repub-
10 lican Leader. Any vacancy occurring in the membership of 11 the Task Force shall be filled in the same manner in which 12 the original appointment was made. The Task Force is,
13 with respect to the matters described below, authorized and
14 directed to conduct a full and complete investigation and
15 study, and to make such findings as are warranted, includ-
16 ing, where appropriate, a finding that no credible evidence
17 can be found to support particular allegations. The Task
18 Force is further authorized and directed to make such rec-
19 ommendations to the Committee on Foreign Affairs as the
20 Task Force deems appropriate, including those concerning
21 the amendment of existing legislation or the enactment of

1 new legislation. The Task Force shall fulfill these functions
2 with respect to the following matters:

3 (a) Communications by or on behalf of the 1980
4 Reagan Presidential Campaign, or individuals rep-
5 resenting or associated with that campaign, with any
6 person or persons representing or associated with the
7 Iranian Government or those persons with Iran hold-
8 ing Americans as Hostages during 1979 and 1980;

9 (b) Any attempt or proposal to attempt, by the
10 1980 Reagan Presidential Campaign or persons rep-
11 resenting or associated with that campaign, to delay
12 the release of the Americans held as hostages in Iran;

13 (c) Any activity by the 1980 Reagan Presi-
14 dential Campaign to acquire or disseminate any in-
15 formation relating to actions being taken or consid-
16 ered by the United States Government in an effort to 17 obtain the release of the Americans being held as hos-
18 tages in Iran;

19 (d) Any sale or other transmittal of arms, spare
20 parts or other assistance to Iran, in 1980 or there-
21 after, by any person or nation, intended to delay the
22 release of the American held as Hostages by Iran, and
23 any approval, acquiescence or knowledge of such sales
24 or transmittals by the 1980 Reagan Presidential

1 Campaign or persons representing or associated with
2 that campaign; and

3 (e) Any actions taken to keep any communica-
4 tions or actions as described above, if any such com-
5 munications or actions took place, from being re-
6 vealed to the Government of the United States or the
7 American people.

8 (2) One-third of the members of the Task Force shall
9 constitute a quorum for the transaction of business other
10 than the reporting of a matter, which shall require a major-
11 ity of the Task Force to be actually present, except that the 12 Task Force may designate a lesser number, but not less than 13 two, as a quorum for the purpose of holding hearings to 14 take testimony. When a quorum for any particular purpose
15 is present, general proxies may be counted for that purpose.
16 The Task Force may sit while the House is reading a meas-
17 ure for amendment under the five-minute rule. The rules
18 of the House shall govern the Task Force where not incon-
19 sistent with this resolution. The Task Force shall adopt ad-
20 ditional written rules, which shall be public, to govern its
21 procedures, which shall not be inconsistent with this resolu-
22 tion or the rules of the House. Such rules may govern the 23 conduct of the depositions, interviews, and hearings of the 24 Task Force, including the persons present. Such rules shall

1 provide for the protection of classified information from un-
2 authorized disclosure.

3 (3) The Task Force is authorized to sit and act during
4 the present Congress at such times and places within the
5 United States, including any Commonwealth or possession
6 thereof, or in any other country, whether the House is in
7 session, or has adjourned; to require, by subpoena or other-
8 wise, the attendance and testimony of such witnesses, the
9 furnishing of information by interrogatory, and the produc-
10 tion of such books, records, correspondence, memoranda, pa-
11 pers, documents, calendars, recordings, data compilations
12 from which information can be obtained, tangible objects,
13 and other things and information of any kind as it deems
14 necessary, including all intelligence materials however clas-
15 sified, White House materials, campaign materials, mate-
16 rials of present and former government officials and mate-
17 rials pertaining to unvouchered expenditures or concerning
18 communications interceptions or surveillance; and to obtain
19 evidence in other appropriate countries with the coopera-
20 tion of their governments and by letters rogatory, commis-
21 sions, field depositions and other appropriate mechanisms.
22 Unless otherwise determined by the Task Force the chair-
23 man, upon consultation with the ranking Republican mem-
24 ber, on the Task Force, shall authorize and issue subpoenas.
25 Subpoenas shall be issued under the seal of the House and

1 attested by the Clerk, and may be served by any person des-
2 igned by the chairman or any member. The Task Force
3 may request investigations, reports, and other assistance
4 from any agency of the executive, legislative, and judicial
5 branches of the Federal Government.

6 (4) The chairman, or in his absence a member des-
7 igned by the chairman, shall preside at all meetings and
8 hearings of the Task Force. All meetings and hearings of 9 the Task Force shall be conducted in open session, unless
10 a majority of members of the Task Force voting, there being
11 in attendance the requisite number required for the purpose
12 of hearings to take testimony, vote to close a meeting or 13 hearing.

14 (5) The Chairman, upon consultation with the ranking
15 Republican member, may employ and fix the compensation
16 of such clerks, experts, consultants, technicians, attorneys,
17 investigators, and clerical and stenographic assistants as
18 it considers necessary to carry out the purposes of this reso-
19 lution. The Task Force shall be deemed a committee of the 20 House for all purposes of law, including House Rule XI
21 (2)(n), and sections 6005, 1505, and 1621 of title 18, section
22 192 of title 2, 1754(b)(1)(B)(ii) of title 22, and section
23 734(a) of title 31, United States Code. The Task Force may
24 reimburse the members of its staff for travel, subsistence,
25 and other necessary expenses incurred by them in the per-

1 formance of the duties vested in the Task Force, other than
2 expenses in connection with meetings of the Task Force held
3 in the District of Columbia.

4 (6) Unless otherwise determined by the Task Force the
5 chairman, upon consultation with the ranking Republican
6 member, or the Task Force, may authorize the taking of 7 affidavits, and of depositions pursuant to notice or sub-
8 poena, by a Member or by designated staff, under oath ad-
9 ministered by a Member or a person otherwise authorized
10 by law to administer oaths. Disposition and affidavit testi-
11 mony shall be deemed to have been taken in Washington,
12 DC, before the Task Force once filed there with the clerk
13 of the Task Force for the Task Force's use. Depositions shall 14 be deemed to be taken in Executive Session.

15 (7) The Task Force shall be authorized to respond to 16 any judicial or other process, or to make any applications
17 to court, upon consultation with the Speaker consistent with
18 rule L.

19 (8) The Task Force shall provide other committees and 20 Members of the House with access to information and pro-
21 ceedings, consistent with rule XLVIII(7)(c): Provided, That 22 the Task Force may direct that particular matters or classes
23 of matter shall not be made available to any person by its 24 members, staff, or others, or may impose any other restric-
25 tion. The Task Force may require its staff to enter

1 nondisclosure agreements and its chairman, in consultation
2 with the ranking Republican member, may require others,
3 such as counsel for witnesses, to do so: Provided further,
4 That the Task Force shall, as appropriate, provide access
5 to information and proceedings to the Speaker, the Majority
6 Leader, the Republican Leader, and their appropriately
7 cleared and designated staff.

8 (9) Authorized expenses of the Task Force for investiga-
9 tions and studies, including for the procurement of the serv-
10 ices of individual consultants or organizations thereof, and 11 for training of staff, shall be paid from the contingent fund
12 of the House upon vouchers signed by the chairman and 13 *approved by the [Speaker] Chairman of the Com-
14 mittee on House Administration.

15 (10) By July 1, 1992, the Task Force shall report to 16 the House the status of its investigation. With respect to 17 this and any other report of the Task Force, including its 18 final report, the report shall be accompanied by supple-
19 mental or additional minority views.

20 (11) At the conclusion of the existence of the Task Force
21 all records of the Task Force shall become the records of 22 the Committee on Foreign Affairs except for those records
23 relating to intelligence matters which shall, upon the Task
24 Force's designation, become the records of the House Perma-
25 nent Select Committee on Intelligence.

PART 2—RULES OF PROCEDURE OF THE TASK FORCE OF MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS TO INVESTIGATE CERTAIN ALLEGATIONS CONCERNING THE HOLDING OF AMERICANS AS HOSTAGES BY IRAN IN 1980

[“October Surprise Task Force”]

Rule 1. Rules

1.1 The provisions of House Resolution 258, 102nd Congress, 2nd Session, establishing this Task Force, and the Rules of the House of Representatives where not inconsistent therewith, are the rules of the Task Force, together with these Rules.

1.2 These Rules may be modified, amended, or repealed by the Task Force, provided that a notice in writing of the proposed changes has been given to each member at least 48 hours prior to the meeting at which action thereon is to be taken. Notwithstanding the provisions of Rule 3, proxies may not be used in any vote to modify, amend, adopt, or repeal any rule of the Task Force. The changes shall become effective immediately and shall be published in the Congressional Record.

Rule 2. Convening of Meetings

2.1 The Task Force may schedule a regular day and hour to meet.

2.2 The chairman shall have authority, upon proper notice, to call such additional meetings of the Task Force as he may deem necessary, and to dispense with regular meetings when, in his judgment, there is no need therefore, and may delegate such authority to any other member of the Task Force.

2.3 A majority of the members of the Task Force may call a special meeting for a specific matter pursuant to the procedures specified in House Rule XI(2)(c)(2).

2.4 In the case of any meeting of the Task Force, other than a regularly scheduled meeting, the clerk of the Task Force shall notify each member of the Task Force of the time and place of the meeting and shall give reasonable notice which, except in extraordinary circumstances, shall be at least 24 hours in advance of any meeting held in Washington, D.C., and at least 48 hours in the case of any meeting held outside Washington, D.C.

Rule 3. Meeting Procedures

3.1 One-third of the members of the Task Force shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business other than the reporting of a matter, which shall require a majority of the Task Force, except that two members shall constitute a quorum for hearing testimony.

3.2 All meetings or hearings of the Task Force shall be conducted in open session, unless a majority of members of the Task Force voting, there being in attendance at least two members of the Task Force, vote to close a meeting or hearing.

3.3 When a quorum for any particular purpose is present, general proxies may be counted for that purpose. Proxies may be general or may be limited to specific matters. A vote by any member of the Task Force with respect to any matter being considered may be cast by proxy if the proxy authorization is in writing, asserts that the member is absent on official business or is otherwise unable to be present, and designates the member or alternate member who is to execute the proxy authorization. Each proxy to be effective shall be signed by the member assigning his vote and shall contain the date and time that the proxy is signed. Proxies shall be effective at the session for which they are provided, or if that session is rescheduled, at the rescheduled session. Proxies shall not reduce the quorum required for reporting contempt matters and will not be counted towards the two-thirds minimum requirement pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 6005 needed to seek an immunity order.

3.4 It shall be the duty of a staff officer designated by the chairman to keep or cause to be kept a stenographic record of all Task Force proceedings. All transcripts, affidavits, and depositions, and copies and extracts thereof, shall be the property of the Task Force, and not of the witnesses, unless the Task Force determines otherwise.

3.5 The Chairman, or in his absence a member designated by the chairman, shall preside over all meetings and hearings of the Task Force.

Rule 4. Subpoenas

4.1 The chairman, upon consultation with the ranking Republican member, shall authorize and issue subpoenas. In addition, the Task Force may itself vote to authorize and issue subpoenas. Subpoenas shall be issued under the seal of the House and attested by the Clerk, and may be served by any persons designated by the chairman. Subpoenas shall be issued upon the chairman's signature or that of a member designated by him or by the Task Force.

4.2 Orders for the furnishing of information by interrogatory, the inspecting of locations and systems of records upon notice except in exigent circumstances, the obtaining of evidence in other countries by means of letters rogatory or otherwise, and other processes for obtaining information available to the Task Force, shall be authorized and issued by the chairman, upon consultation with the ranking Republican member, or by the Task Force. In addition to the procedures provided for in Rule 4.1 and 4.4, requests for investigations, reports, and other assistance from any agency of the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of the federal government, may be made by the chairman, upon consultation with the ranking Republican member, or by the Task Force.

4.3 Provisions may be included in the process of the Task Force to prevent the disclosure of Task Force demands for information, when deemed necessary for the security of information or the progress of the investigation by the chairman or member designated by him or the Task Force, such as requiring that companies receiving subpoenas for financial or toll records make no disclosure to customers regarding the subpoena for ninety days or prohibiting the revelation by witnesses and their counsel of Task Force inquiries.

4.4 A subpoena duces tecum for documents may be issued whose return shall occur at a deposition or at another time and place other than at a hearing or meeting. When a return on such a subpoena or order is incomplete or accompanied by an objection, the chairman, upon consultation with the ranking Republican member or, if unavailable, the senior Republican member, may convene a meeting or hearing on shortened notice to determine the adequacy of the return and to rule on the objection or may refer the issues raised by the return for decision by poll of the Task Force. At a meeting or hearing for testimony on such a return, two members shall constitute a quorum.

Rule 5. Broadcasting, Television, and Photography

5.1 Whenever any hearing or meeting conducted by the Task Force is open to the public, the Task Force may permit that hearing or meeting to be covered, in whole or in part, by television broadcast, radio broadcast, and still photography, or by any of such methods of coverage, under the following rules:

(1) If the television or radio coverage of the hearing or meeting is to be presented to the public as live coverage, that coverage shall be conducted and presented without commercial sponsorship.

(2) The chairman may set limits on the number of television cameras, all operating from fixed positions, that shall be permitted in a hearing room. The allocation among the television media of the positions of the number of television cameras permitted in a hearing room shall be in accordance with fair and equitable procedures devised by the Executive Committee of the Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries.

(3) Television cameras shall be placed so as not to obstruct in any way the space between any witness giving evidence or testimony and any member of the committee, or the visibility of that witness and that member to each other.

(4) Television cameras shall not be placed in positions which obstruct unnecessarily the coverage of the hearing or meeting by the other media.

(5) Equipment necessary for coverage by the television and radio media shall not be installed in, or removed from the hearing room while the Task Force is in session.

(6) Floodlights, spotlights, and flashguns shall not be used in providing any method of coverage of the hearing or meeting, except that the television media may install additional lighting in the hearing room, without cost to the Government, in order to raise the ambient lighting level in the hearing room to the lowest level necessary to provide adequate television coverage of the hearing at the current state of the art of television coverage.

(7) The chairman may set limits on the number of press photographers permitted to cover a hearing or meeting by still photography. In the selection of these photographers, preference shall be given to photographers from Associated Press Photos and United Press International Newspictures. If request is made by more than the limit set by the chairman for coverage of the hearing by still photography, that coverage shall be made on the basis of a fair and equitable pool arrangement devised by the Standing Committee of Press Photographers.

(8) Photographers shall not position themselves, at any time during the course of the hearing or meeting, between the witness table and the Task Force members.

(9) Photographers shall not place themselves in positions which obstruct unnecessarily the coverage of the hearing or meeting by the other media.

(10) Personnel providing coverage by the television and radio media shall be then currently accredited to the Press Photographers' Gallery.

(11) Personnel providing coverage by still photography shall be then currently accredited to the Press Photographers' Gallery.

(12) Personnel providing coverage by the television and radio media and by still photography shall conduct themselves and their coverage activities in an orderly and unobtrusive manner.

Rule 6. Taking of Testimony at Hearings

6.1 Witnesses required to appear before the Task Force shall be given, absent extraordinary circumstances, at least forty-eight hours' notice and all witnesses shall be furnished with a copy of these rules, House Rules X and XI and H. Res. 258.

6.2 All witnesses at public or executive hearings who testify to matters of fact shall be sworn unless the chairman authorizes waiver of the oath.

6.3 Members of the Task Force who so desire shall have not to exceed five minutes to interrogate each witness until such time as each member has had an opportunity to interrogate such witness. The presiding member, in consultation with the ranking Republican member present, may establish a format for additional or sustained questioning of any witness by the chair or by another member.

6.4 Counsel representing any witness and accompanying such witness shall be permitted to be present during the testimony of such witness at any public or executive hearing, and to advise such witness while he is testifying on his legal rights; provided, however, that in the case of any witness who is an officer or employee of the government, or of a corporation or association, or represented by counsel representing other witnesses, the chairman of the Task Force, upon consultation with the ranking Republican member, may rule that such representation creates a conflict of interest, and that the witness shall be represented by other counsel without such conflict. Counsel shall not be permitted to make a statement, unless authorized to do so by the chairman.

6.5 The chairman, upon consultation with the ranking Republican member, if he deems it necessary to maintain the security of classified subjects being discussed at closed hearings, may require that any personal counsel be qualified by having appropriate clearance, and that the witness or counsel, or both, execute nondisclosure agreements with the Task Force.

6.6 A witness who is unable to obtain counsel, or to obtain counsel with requisite clearance, may inform the Task Force of such fact, and if, consistent with the notice given under section 6.1 hereof the Task Force is so informed at least 24 hours prior to the witness' appearance, the Task Force shall then endeavor to obtain voluntary counsel for the witness. Such counsel shall act solely for the witness and not the Task Force. Failure to obtain qualified counsel will not excuse the witness from appearing and testifying.

6.7 Counsel shall conduct themselves in an ethical and professional manner. The presiding member may punish breaches of order and decorum, and of professional ethics on the part of counsel, by censure and exclusion from the hearing, and the Task Force may cite the offender to the House for contempt. If counsel is excluded, the provisions of Rule 6.6 hereof for a witness who is unable to obtain qualified counsel shall apply.

6.8 Any witness desiring to make an introductory statement in executive or public hearings shall file a copy of such statement with the chairman or clerk of the Task Force 48 hours in advance of the hearings at which the statement is to be presented unless the Task Force by majority vote waives this requirement. The presiding member shall reduce the 48 hours proportionately for witnesses who receive less than 72 hours' notice of the hearing. The presiding member shall determine whether such statement may be read or placed in the record of the hearing. Unless the Task Force determines otherwise, a witness who appears before the Task Force under a grant of immunity shall not be permitted to make a statement or testify except to respond directly to questions posed by members or staff.

6.9 An accurate stenographic record shall be kept of the testimony of all witnesses in executive and public hearings. A witness may obtain a transcript copy of his testimony given at a public session. If the witness testified at an executive session, the record of his testimony shall be made available for inspection by the witness and his counsel, and the chairman may authorize provision of a copy to the witness or his counsel if such testimony does not include classified information.

6.10 No evidence or testimony taken in executive session may be released or used in public sessions without the consent of the Task Force.

6.11 In the presiding member's discretion, witnesses may submit brief and pertinent sworn statements in writing for inclusion in the record. The presiding member may condition the filing of such a sworn statement upon the offeror's agreeing to appear personally before the Task Force and to testify concerning the matters contained in his sworn statement, as well as any other matters related to the subject of the investigation before the Task Force.

Rule 7. Affidavits and Depositions

7.1 The chairman, upon consultation with the ranking Republican member, or the Task Force, may authorize the taking of affidavits, and of depositions pursuant to notice or subpoena. Such authorization may occur on a case-by-case basis, or by instructions to take a series of affidavits or depositions. The chairman may either issue the deposition notices himself, or direct the chief counsel to do so. Notices for the taking of depositions shall specify a time and place for examination. Affidavits and depositions shall be taken under oath administered by a member or a person otherwise authorized by law to administer oaths. Such depositions may, if deemed necessary by the chairman in consultation with the ranking Republican member, be taken by telephone.

7.2 The Task Force shall not initiate procedures leading to contempt proceedings in the event a witness fails to appear at a deposition unless the deposition notice was accompanied by a Task Force subpoena authorized and issued by the chairman or the Task Force pursuant to Rule 4 hereof regarding subpoenas.

7.3 Witnesses may be accompanied at a deposition by counsel representing the witness to advise them of their rights, subject to the provisions of Rules 6.4, 6.5, 6.6 and 6.7 hereof. Absent special permission or instructions from the chairman, no one may be present in depositions except members, chief counsel, chief minority counsel, staff designated by the chief counsel and chief minority counsel, an official reporter, the witness and counsel representing the witness; observers or counsel for other persons or for agencies may not attend.

7.4 Witnesses shall be examined in depositions by a member or members or by the chief counsel, chief minority counsel or staff designated by the chairman. Objections by the witness as to the form of questions shall be noted for the record. If a witness objects to a question and refuses to answer, the members or staff may proceed with the deposition, or may obtain, at the time or at a subsequent time, a ruling on the objection by telephone or otherwise from the chairman or his designee. The Task Force shall not initiate procedures leading to contempt for refusals to answer questions at a deposition unless the witness refuses to testify after his objection has been overruled and after he has been ordered and directed to answer by the chairman or a member designated by the chairman, upon consultation with the ranking Republican member or his member designee.

7.5 The staff shall insure that the testimony is either transcribed or electronically recorded, or both. If a witness' testimony is transcribed, he shall be furnished with an opportunity to review a copy. No later than five days thereafter, the staff shall enter the changes, if any, requested by the witness, with a statement of the witness' reasons for the changes, and the witness shall be instructed to sign the transcript. The individual administering the oath, if other than a Member, shall certify on the transcript that the witness was duly sworn in his presence, the transcriber shall certify that the transcript is a true record of the testimony, and the transcript shall be filed, together with any electronic recording, with the clerk of the Task Force in Washington, D.C. Affidavits and depositions shall be deemed to have been taken in Washington, D.C. once filed there with the clerk of the Task Force for the Task Force's use.

7.6 All depositions, affidavits, and other materials received in the investigation shall be considered nonpublic until received by the Task Force. Once received by the Task Force, use of such materials shall be governed by the Task Force rules. Classified information or material shall not be used in open session except as permitted by the Task Force, which shall require a vote of a majority of the members of the Task Force.

7.7 Written interrogatories and requests for admission may be authorized and issued by the Task Force or chairman, in consultation with the ranking Republican member, and shall specify a date for filing an answer with the chief clerk. Written interrogatories and requests for admissions shall be answered under oath.

Rule 8. Procedures for Handling of Classified or Sensitive Materials

8.1 Staff offices shall operate under strict security precautions. The chairman may request the Clerk and Sergeant at Arms to provide assistance necessary to insure strict security. Sensitive or classified documents and material shall be segregated and stored in an appropriately secure storage area. They may be examined only at secure reading facilities. Copying, duplicating, or removal from the offices of such documents and other materials are prohibited except as is necessary for authorized use in, or preparation for, interviews, depositions, or meetings or hearings.

8.2 The Task Force may direct that particular matters or classes of matter shall not be made available to any person by its members, staff, or others, or may impose any other restriction. Classified information or classified material possessed or controlled by the Task Force, or information deemed sensitive by the Task Force, shall not be made available to any person by its members or staff or anyone who has access to the material except by vote of the Task Force, which shall require a vote of the majority of the members of the Task Force.

8.3 Each member of the Task Force shall at all times have access to all papers and other materials received from any source. The chief counsel, as designated by the chairman, shall be responsible for the control, under appropriate security procedures, of all classified papers and other classified materials in the possession of the Task Force, and for the maintenance, under such procedures, of a registry which will number and identify all such classified materials. Such registry shall be available to any member of the Task Force.

8.4 Access by staff to classified information shall be limited on a need-to-know basis, pursuant to instructions of the chairman, acting in consultation with the ranking Republican member, either on a case-by-case basis or by general instructions to the chief counsel and chief minority counsel. All staff with such access shall be required to have appropriate security clearance. The chief counsel shall maintain a list, available to chief minority counsel, of those staff who may attend executive sessions and have access to classified materials.

8.5 The chairman, in consultation with the ranking Republican member, may limit staff attendance at certain executive sessions, and staff access to certain categories of classified materials, which involve matters of particularly high sensitivity.

8.6 Members who are not members of the Task Force shall be granted access to such hearings, records, data, charts and files of the Task Force and shall be admitted on a nonparticipatory basis to hearings of the Task Force, as the chairman deems appropriate, which involve classified material, apart from material otherwise restricted by the Task Force, on the basis of the following provisions:

(1) Members who desire to examine materials in the possession of the Task Force or to attend Task Force hearings on a nonparticipatory basis should notify the clerk of the Task Force in Writing.

(2) Each such request by a member must be considered by the Task Force, a quorum for the reporting of matter being present, at the earliest practicable opportunity. The Task Force must determine by record vote whatever action it deems necessary in light of all the circumstances of each individual request. The Task Force shall take into account in its deliberations, such considerations as the sensitivity of the information sought to the national defense or the confidential conduct of the foreign relations of the United States, the likelihood of its being directly or indirectly disclosed, the jurisdictional interest of the member making the request and such other concerns—constitutional or otherwise—as affect the public interest of the United States. Such actions as the Task Force may take include, but are not limited to: (i) approving the request, in whole or part; (ii) denying the request; (iii) providing in different form than requested information or material which is the subject of the request.

(3) In matters touching on such requests, the Task Force may, in its discretion, consult the Director of Central Intelligence and such other officials as it may deem necessary.

(4) In the event that the member making the request in question does not accede to the determination or any part thereof of the Task Force as regards the request, that member should notify the Task Force in writing of the grounds for such disagreement. The Task Force shall subsequently consider the matter and decide, by record vote, what further action or recommendation, if any, it will take.

(5) Members examining material pursuant to this rule are prohibited to disclose the material further, and every member shall be furnished a copy of this rule prior to examining such material.

8.7 Other than as provided for in rule 8.8 and 6.10, no member of the Task Force or its staff shall disclose, in whole or in part or by way of summary, to any person, governmental agency or official, outside the Task Force and its staff, for any purpose or in connection with any proceeding, judicial or otherwise, any testimony taken, including the identity of witnesses who have testified or will testify, or material presented or discussions had, in depositions or at meetings and hearings held in executive session, or other materials or information designated as sensitive by the chairman, unless otherwise authorized by Task Force or the chairman. All members of the Task Force and its staff shall agree in writing to abide by the conditions of a non-disclosure oath promulgated by the Task Force consistent with that used by the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence.

8.8 The chairman and ranking Republican member shall be authorized to insure that the Speaker and Republican Leader are fully informed regarding the investigation, any other provisions of these rules notwithstanding.

Rule 9. Staff, Detailees, and Consultants

9.1 The chairman, upon consultation with the ranking Republican member, may employ and fix the compensation of such clerks, experts, consultants, technicians, attorneys, investigators and clerical and stenographic assistants as are considered necessary to carry out the purposes of the Resolution. In addition, the chairman, upon consultation with the ranking Republican member, may designate various staff of the Congress, at the written recommendation of members of the Task Force, as associate staff to the Task Force. Upon termination of employment by the Task Force, each member of the staff, or consultant, shall surrender all classified and other material relating to the work of the Task Force which came into his possession while in the employ of the Task Force.

9.2 In the event of an unauthorized release of information or other violation, the chairman or the Task Force may refer the matter to the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct. Nothing in these rules shall be construed to abridge the right of a Member to make or transmit a complaint to the Committee on the Standards of Official Conduct, or shall be construed to expand the authority of that committee, over matters related to the conduct of this Task Force's investigation pursuant to House Resolution 258, beyond what that resolution provides. The employment of any member of the staff or consultant who fails to conform to any of these Rules may be immediately terminated by the chairman upon consultation with the ranking Republican member.

9.3 The chairman, upon consultation with the ranking Republican member, shall have the authority to utilize the services, information, facilities, and personnel of the departments and agencies of the government. Requests by the chairman may specify by name, or describe otherwise, the personnel to be detailed.

9.4 For purposes of these Rules, Task Force staff shall include all employees hired pursuant to rule 9.1, all associate staff designated pursuant to Rule 9.1, and all staff of the Speaker, Majority Leader and the Republican Leader who are appropriately cleared and designated in writing.

9.5 The chairman, upon consultation with the ranking Republican member, shall have the authority to procure the temporary or intermittent services of experts or consultants or organizations thereof to make studies or assist or advise the Task Force with respect to any matter under investigation. Government personnel detailed to the Task Force, and consultants, shall be deemed staff of the Task Force to the extent necessary for the purposes of their designated association, detail, or consultancy, including the purposes of interrogation of witnesses and security of information under Rules 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 hereof.

9.6 The chairman, upon consultation with the ranking Republican member, may establish such additional personnel, physical, communications, and document security procedures, not inconsistent with these rules, as he deems necessary to safeguard classified information or materials possessed or controlled by the Task Force.

PART 3—SELECTED RULES OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Following are selected Rules of the House of Representatives which are also a part of the Task Force rules and which affect its organization, administration, and operation. The Rules cited are not exclusive of other Rules of the House of Representatives applicable to the Task Force.

Rule X. Establishment and Jurisdiction of Standing Committees

The Committees and Their Jurisdiction

1. There shall be in the House the following standing committees, each of which shall have the jurisdiction and related functions assigned to it by this clause and clauses 2, 3, and 4; and all bills, resolutions, and other matters relating to subjects within the jurisdiction of any standing committee as listed in this clause shall (in accordance with and subject to clause 5) be referred to such committees, as follows:

(a) Committee on Agriculture.

(1) Adulteration of seeds, insect pests, and protection of birds and animals in forest reserves.

(2) Agriculture generally.

(3) Agricultural and industrial chemistry.

(4) Agricultural colleges and experiment stations.

(5) Agricultural economics and research.

(6) Agricultural education extension services.

(7) Agricultural production and marketing and stabilization of prices of agricultural products, and commodities (not including distribution outside of the United States).

(8) Animal industry and diseases of animals.

(9) Crop insurance and soil conservation.

(10) Dairy industry.

(11) Entomology and plant quarantine.

(12) Extension of farm credit and farm security.

(13) Forestry in general, and forest reserves other than those created from the public domain.

(14) Human nutrition and home economics.

(15) Inspection of livestock and meat products.

(16) Plant industry, soils, and agricultural engineering.

(17) Rural electrification.

(18) Commodities exchanges.

(19) Rural development.

(b) Committee on Appropriations.

(1) Appropriation of the revenue for the support of the Government.

(2) Rescissions of appropriations contained in appropriation Acts.

(3) Transfers of unexpended balances.

(4) The amount of new spending authority (as described in the Congressional Budget Act of 1974) which is to be effective for a fiscal year, including bills and resolutions (reported by other committees) which provide new spending authority and are referred to the committee under clause 4(a).

The committee shall include separate headings for "Rescissions" and "Transfers of Unexpended Balances" in any bill or resolution as reported from the committee under its jurisdiction specified in subparagraph (2) or (3), with all proposed rescissions and proposed transfers listed therein; and shall include a separate section with respect to such rescissions or transfers in the accompanying committee report. In addition to its jurisdiction under the preceding provisions of this paragraph, the committee shall have the fiscal oversight function provided for in clause 2(b)(3) and the budget hearing function provided for in clause 4(a).

(c) Committee on Armed Services.

(1) Common defense generally.

(2) The Department of Defense generally, including the Departments of the Army, Navy, and Air Force generally.

(3) Ammunition depots; forts; arsenals; Army, Navy, and Air Force reservations and establishments.

(8) International Financial and Monetary organizations.

(e)(1) Committee on the Budget, consisting of the following Members:

(A) Members who are members of other standing committees, including five Members who are members of the Committee on Appropriations, and five Members who are members of the Committee on Ways and Means;

(B) one Member from the leadership of the majority party; and

(C) one Member from the leadership of the minority party.

No Member other than the representative from the leadership of the majority party and the representative from the leadership of the minority party, shall serve as a member of the Committee on the Budget during more than three Congresses in any period of five successive Congresses (disregarding for this purpose any service performed as a member of such committee for less than a full session in any Congress), except that an incumbent chairman having served on the committee for three Congresses and having served as chairman of the committee for not more than one Congress shall be eligible for reelection to the committee as chairman for one additional Congress. Previous service on the Committee before the One Hundred Second Congress shall be disregarded, for the purposes of this prohibition during the One Hundred Second Congress, for the ranking minority member of the Committee (who is not the Member designated as the Member from the leadership of the minority party). A minority Member having served on the committee for three Congresses and having served as the ranking minority member in the last such Congress shall be eligible for reelection to the committee as ranking minority Member for one additional Congress. All selections of Members to serve on the committee shall be made without regard to seniority.

(2) All concurrent resolutions on the budget (as defined in section 3 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974) and other matters required to be referred to the committee under titles III and IV of that Act.

(3) The committee shall have the duty—

(A) to report the matters required to be reported by it under titles III and IV of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974;

(B) to make continuing studies of the effect on budget outlays of relevant existing and proposed legislation and to report the results of such studies to the House on a recurring basis;

(C) to request and evaluate continuing studies of tax expenditures, to devise methods of coordinating tax expenditures, policies, and programs with direct budget outlays, and to report the results of such studies to the House on a recurring basis; and

(D) to review, on a continuing basis, the conduct by the Congressional Budget Office of its functions and duties.

General Oversight Responsibilities

2. (a) In order to assist the House in—

(1) its analysis, appraisal, and evaluation of (A) the application, administration, execution, and effectiveness of the laws enacted by the Congress, or (B) conditions and circumstances which may indicate the necessity or desirability of enacting new or additional legislation, and

(2) its formulation, consideration, and enactment of such modifications of or changes in those laws, and of such additional legislation, as may be necessary or appropriate, the various standing committees shall have oversight responsibilities as provided in paragraph (b).

(b)(1) Each standing committee (other than the Committee on Appropriations and the Committee on the Budget) shall review and study, on a continuing basis, the application, administration, execution, and effectiveness of those laws, or parts of laws, the subject matter of which is within the jurisdiction of that committee and the organization and operation of the Federal agencies and entities having responsibilities in or for the administration and execution thereof, in order to determine whether such laws and the programs thereunder are being implemented and carried out in accordance with the intent of the Congress and whether such programs should be continued, curtailed, or eliminated. In addition, each such committee shall review and study any conditions or circumstances which may indicate the necessity or desirability of enacting new or additional legislation within the jurisdiction of that committee (whether or not any bill or resolution has been introduced with respect thereto), and shall on a continuing basis undertake future research and forecasting on matters within the jurisdiction of that committee. Each such committee having more than twenty members shall establish an oversight subcommittee, or require its subcommittees, if any, to conduct oversight in the area of their respective jurisdiction, to assist in carrying out its responsibilities under this subparagraph. The establishment of oversight subcommittees shall in no way limit the responsibility of the subcommittees with legislative jurisdiction from carrying out their oversight responsibilities.

(2) The Committee on Government Operations shall review and study, on a continuing basis, the operation of Government activities at all levels with a view to determining their economy and efficiency.

(3) The Committee on Appropriations shall conduct such studies and examinations of the organization and operation of executive departments and other executive agencies (including any agency the majority of the stock of which is owned by the Government of the United States) as it may deem necessary to assist it in the determination of matters within its jurisdiction.

(c) Each standing committee of the House shall have the function of reviewing and studying on a continuing basis the impact or probable impact of tax policies affecting subjects within its jurisdiction as described in clauses 1 and 3.

Special Oversight Functions

3. (a) The Committee on Armed Services shall have the function of reviewing and studying, on a continuing basis, all laws, programs, and Government activities dealing with or involving international arms control and disarmament and the education of military dependents in schools.

(b) The Committee on the Budget shall have the function of—

(1) making continuing studies of the effect on budget outlays of relevant existing and proposed legislation, and reporting the results of such studies to the House on a recurring basis; and

(2) requesting and evaluating continuing studies of tax expenditures, devising methods of coordinating tax expenditures, policies, and programs with direct budget outlays, and reporting the results of such studies to the House on a recurring basis.

(c) The Committee on Education and Labor shall have the function of reviewing, studying, and coordinating, on a continuing basis, all laws, programs, and Government activities dealing with or involving domestic educational programs and institutions, and programs of student assistance, which are within the jurisdiction of other committees.

(d) The Committee on Foreign Affairs shall have the function of reviewing and studying, on a continuing basis, all laws, programs, and Government activities dealing with or involving customs administration, intelligence activities relating to foreign policy, international financial and monetary organizations, and international fishing agreements.

(e) The Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs shall have the function of reviewing and studying, on a continuing basis, all laws, programs, and Government activities dealing with Indians and nonmilitary nuclear energy and research and development including the disposal of nuclear waste.

(f) The Committee on Science, Space, and Technology shall have the function of reviewing and studying, on a continuing basis, all laws, programs, and Government activities dealing with or involving nonmilitary research and development.

(g) The Committee on Small Business shall have the function of studying and investigating, on a continuing basis, the problems of all types of small business.

(h) The Committee on Energy and Commerce shall have the function of reviewing and studying on a continuing basis, all laws, programs and Government activities relating to nuclear and other energy.

(i) The Committee on Rules shall have the function of reviewing and studying, on a continuing basis, the congressional budget process, and the committee shall, from time to time, report its findings and recommendations to the House.

Additional Functions of Committees

4. (a)(1)(A) The Committee on Appropriations shall, within 30 days after the transmittal of the Budget to the Congress each year, hold hearings on the Budget as a whole with particular reference to—

(i) the basic recommendations and budgetary policies of the President in the presentation of the Budget; and

(ii) the fiscal, financial, and economic assumptions used as bases in arriving at total estimated expenditures and receipts.

(B) In holding hearings pursuant to subdivision (A), the committee shall receive testimony from the Secretary of the Treasury, the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, the Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, and such other persons as the committee may desire.

(C) Hearings pursuant to subdivision (A), or any part thereof, shall be held in open session, except when the committee, in open session and with a quorum present, determines by roll call vote that the testimony to be taken at that hearing on that day may be related to a matter of national security: Provided, however, That the committee may by the same procedure close one subsequent day of hearing. A transcript of all such hearings shall be printed and a copy thereof furnished to each Member, Delegate, and the Resident Commissioner from Puerto Rico.

(D) Hearings pursuant to subdivision (A), or any part thereof, may be held before joint meetings of the committee and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate in accordance with such procedures as the two committees jointly may determine.

(2) Whenever any bill or resolution which provides new spending authority described in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 is reported by a committee of the House and the amount of new budget authority which will be required for the fiscal year involved if such bill or resolution is enacted as so reported exceeds the appropriate allocation of new budget authority reported as described in clause 4(h) in connection with the most recently agreed to concurrent resolution on the budget for such fiscal year, such bill or resolution shall then be referred to the Committee on Appropriations with instructions to report it, with the committee's recommendations and (if the committee deems it desirable) with an amendment limiting the total amount of new spending authority provided in the bill or resolution, within 15 calendar days (not counting any day on which the House is not in session) beginning with the day following the day on which it is so referred. If the Committee on Appropriations fails to report the bill or resolution within such 15-day period, the committee shall be automatically discharged from further consideration of the bill or resolution and the bill or resolution shall be placed on the appropriate calendar.

(3) In addition, the Committee on Appropriations shall study on a continuing basis those provisions of law which (on the first day of the first fiscal year for which the congressional budget process is effective) provide spending authority of permanent budget authority, and shall report to the House from time to time its recommendations for terminating or modifying such provisions.

(b) The Committee on the Budget shall have the duty—

(1) to review on a continuing basis the conduct by the Congressional Budget Office of its functions and duties;

(2) to hold hearings, and receive testimony from Members of Congress and such appropriate representatives of Federal departments and agencies, the general public, and national organizations as it deems desirable, in developing the concurrent resolutions on the budget for each fiscal year;

(3) to make all reports required of it by the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, including the reporting of reconciliation bills and resolutions when so required;

(4) to study on a continuing basis those provisions of law which exempt Federal agencies or any of their activities or outlays from inclusion in the Budget of the United States Government, and to report to the House from time to time its recommendations for terminating or modifying such provisions; and

(5) to study on a continuing basis proposals designed to improve and facilitate methods of congressional budget-making, and to report to the House from time to time the results of such study together with its recommendations.

(c)(1) The Committee on Government Operations shall have the general function of—

(A) receiving and examining reports of the Comptroller General of the United States and of submitting such recommendations to the House as it deems necessary or desirable in connection with the subject matter of such reports;

(B) evaluating the effects of laws enacted to reorganize the legislative and executive branches of the Government; and

(C) studying intergovernmental relationships between the United States and the States and municipalities, and between the United States and international organizations of which the United States is a member.

(2) In addition to its duties under subparagraph (1), the Committee on Government Operations may at any time conduct investigations of any matter without regard to the provisions of clause 1, 2, or 3 (or this clause) conferring jurisdiction over such matter upon another standing committee. The committee's findings and recommendations in any such investigation shall be made available to the other standing committee or committees having jurisdiction over the matter involved (and included in the report of any such other committee when required by clause 2(1)(3) of Rule XI).

(d) The Committee on House Administration shall have the function of—

(1) examining all bills, amendments, and joint resolutions after passage by the House and, in cooperation with the Senate, examining all bills and joint resolutions which shall have passed both Houses to see that they are correctly enrolled, forthwith presenting those which originated in the House to the President of the United States in person after their signature by the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate and reporting the fact and date of such presentation to the House;

(2) reporting to the Sergeant-at-Arms of the House concerning the travel of Members of the House; and

(3) providing, through the House Information Systems, a scheduling service which shall be used by all the committees and subcommittees of the House to eliminate, insofar as possible, any meeting and scheduling conflicts.

(e)(1) The Committee on Standards of Official Conduct is authorized: (A) to recommend to the House from time to time such administrative actions as it may deem appropriate to establish or enforce standards of official conduct for Members, officers, and employees of the House, and any letter of reproof or other administrative action of the committee pursuant to an investigation under subdivision (B) shall only be issued or implemented as a part of a report required by such subdivision; (B) to investigate, subject to subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, any alleged violation, by a Member, officer, or employee of the House, of the Code of Official Conduct or of any law, rule, regulation, or other standard of conduct applicable to the conduct of such Member, officer, or employee in the performance of his duties or the discharge of his responsibilities, and after notice and hearing (unless the right to a hearing is waived by the Member, officer, or employee), shall report to the House its findings of fact and recommendations, if any, upon the final disposition of any such investigation, and such action as the committee may deem appropriate in the circumstances; (C) to report to the appropriate Federal or State authorities, with the approval of the House, any substantial evidence of a violation, by a Member, officer, or employee of the House, of any law applicable to the performance of his duties or the discharge of his responsibilities, which may have been disclosed in a committee investigation; (D) to give consideration to the request of any Member, officer, or employee of the House for an advisory opinion with respect to the general propriety of any current or proposed conduct of such Member, officer, or employee and, with appropriate deletions to assure the privacy of the individual concerned, to publish such opinion for the guidance of other Members, officers, and employees of the House; and (E) to give consideration to the request of any Member, officer, or employee of the House for a written waiver in exceptional circumstances with respect to clause 4 of rule XLIII.

(2)(A) No resolution, report, recommendation, or advisory opinion relating to the official conduct of a Member, officer, or employee of the House shall be made by the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, and no investigation of such conduct shall be undertaken by such committee, unless approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee.

(B) Except in the case of an investigation undertaken by the committee on its own initiative, the committee may undertake an investigation relating to the official conduct of an individual Member, officer, or employee of the House of Representatives only—

(i) upon receipt of a complaint, in writing and under oath, made by or submitted to a Member of the House and transmitted to the committee by such Member, or

(ii) upon receipt of a complaint, in writing and under oath, directly from an individual not a Member of the House if the committee finds that such complaint has been submitted by such individual to not less than three Members of the House who have refused, in writing, to transmit such complaint to the committee.

(C) No investigation shall be undertaken by the committee of any alleged violation of a law, rule, regulation, or standard of conduct not in effect at the time of the alleged violation; nor shall any investigation be undertaken by the committee of any alleged violation which occurred before the third previous Congress unless the committee determines that the alleged violation is directly related to any alleged violation which occurred in a more recent Congress.

(D) A member of the committee shall be ineligible to participate, as a member of the committee, in any committee proceeding relating to his or her official conduct. In any case in which a member of the committee is ineligible to act as a member of the committee under the preceding sentence, the Speaker of the House shall designate a Member of the House from the same political party as the ineligible member of the committee to act as a member of the committee in any committee proceeding relating to the official conduct of such ineligible member.

(E) A member of the committee may disqualify himself from participating in any investigation of the conduct of a Member, officer, or employee of the House upon the submission in writing and under oath of an affidavit of disqualification stating that he cannot render an impartial and unbiased decision in the case in which he seeks to disqualify himself. If the committee approves and accepts such affidavit of disqualification, the chairman shall so notify the Speaker and request the Speaker to designate a Member of the House from the same political party as the disqualifying member of the committee to act as a member of the committee in any committee proceeding relating to such investigation.

(F) No information or testimony received, or the contents of a complaint or the fact of its filing, shall be publicly disclosed by any committee or staff member unless specifically authorized in each instance by a vote of the full committee.

(f)(1) Each standing committee of the House shall, in its consideration of all bills and joint resolutions of a public character within its jurisdiction, insure that appropriations for continuing programs and activities of the Federal Government and the District of Columbia government will be made annually to the maximum extent feasible and consistent with the nature, requirements, and objectives of the programs and activities involved. For the purposes of this paragraph a Government agency includes the organizational units of government listed in clause 7(c) of Rule XIII.

(2) Each standing committee of the House shall review, from time to time, each continuing program within its jurisdiction for which appropriations are not made annually in order to ascertain whether such program could be modified so that appropriations therefor would be made annually.

(g) Each standing committee of the House shall, on or before February 25 of each year, submit to the Committee on the Budget (1) its views and estimates with respect to all matters to be set forth in the concurrent resolution on the budget for the ensuing fiscal year which are within its jurisdiction or functions, and (2) an estimate of the total amounts of new budget authority, and budget outlays resulting therefrom, to be provided or authorized in all bills and resolutions within its jurisdiction which it intends to be effective during that fiscal year. The views and estimates submitted by the Committee on Ways and Means under the preceding sentence shall include a specific recommendation, made after holding public hearings, as to the appropriate level of the public debt which should be set forth in the concurrent resolution on the budget referred to in such sentence and serve as the basis for an increase or decrease in the statutory limit on such debt under the procedures provided by rule XLIX.

(h) As soon as practicable after a concurrent resolution on the budget for any fiscal year is agreed to, each standing committee of the House (after consulting with the appropriate committee or committees of the Senate) shall subdivide any allocations made to it in the joint explanatory statement accompanying the conference report on such resolution, and promptly report such subdivisions to the House, in the manner provided by section 302 or section 602 (in the case of fiscal years 1991 through 1995) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

(i) Each standing committee of the House which is directed in a concurrent resolution on the budget to determine and recommend changes in laws, bills, or resolutions under the reconciliation process shall promptly make such determination and recommendations, and report a reconciliation bill or resolution (or both) to the House or submit such recommendations to the Committee on the Budget, in accordance with the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

Referral of Bills, Resolutions, and Other Matters to Committees

5. (a) Each bill, resolution, or other matter which relates to a subject listed under any standing committee named in clause 1 shall be referred by the Speaker in accordance with the provisions of this clause.

(b) Every referral of any matter under paragraph (a) shall be made in such manner as to assure to the maximum extent feasible that each committee which has jurisdiction under clause 1 over the subject matter of any provision thereof will have responsibility for considering such provision and reporting to the House with respect thereto. Any precedents, rulings, and procedures in effect prior to the Ninety-Fourth Congress shall be applied with respect to referrals under this clause only to the extent that they will contribute to the achievement of the objectives of this clause.

(c) In carrying out paragraphs (a) and (b) with respect to any matter, the Speaker may refer the matter simultaneously to two or more committees for concurrent consideration or for consideration in sequence (subject to appropriate time limitations in the case of any committee), or divide the matter into two or more parts (reflecting different subjects and jurisdictions) and refer each such part to a different committee, or refer the matter to a special ad hoc committee appointed by the Speaker with the approval of the House (from the members of the committees having legislative jurisdiction) for the specific purpose of considering that matter and reporting to the House thereon, or make such other provision as may be considered appropriate.

Election and Membership of Committees; Chairman; Vacancies; Select and Conference Committees

6. (a)(1) The standing committees specified in clause 1 shall be elected by the House within the seventh calendar day beginning after the commencement of each Congress, from nominations submitted by the respective party caucuses. It shall always be in order to consider resolutions recommended by the respective party caucuses to change the composition of standing committees.

(2) One-half of the members of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct shall be from the majority party and one-half shall be from the minority party. No Member shall serve as a member of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct during more than 3 Congresses in any period of 5 successive Congresses (disregarding for this purpose any service performed as a member of such committee for less than a full session in any Congress).

(b) Membership on standing committees during the course of a Congress shall be contingent on continuing membership in the party caucus or conference that nominated Members for election to such committees. Should a Member cease to be a member of a particular party caucus or conference, said Member shall automatically cease to be a member of a standing committee to which he was elected on the basis of nomination by that caucus or conference. The chairman of the relevant party caucus or conference shall notify the Speaker whenever a Member ceases to be a member of a party caucus or conference and the Speaker shall notify the chairman of each standing committee on which said Member serves, that in accord with this rule, the Member's election to such committee is automatically vacated.

(c) One of the members of each standing committee shall be elected by the House, from nominations submitted by the majority party caucus, at the commencement of each Congress, as chairman thereof. In the temporary absence of the chairman, the member next in rank in the order named in the election of the committee, and so on, as often as the case shall happen, shall act as chairman; and in case of a permanent vacancy in the chairmanship of any such committee the House shall elect another chairman.

(d) Each standing committee of the House of Representatives, except the Committee on the Budget, that has more than twenty members shall establish at least four subcommittees.

(e) All vacancies in standing committees shall be filled by election by the House from nominations, submitted by the respective party caucus or conference.

(f) The Speaker shall appoint all select and conference committees which shall be ordered by the House from time to time. In appointing members to conference committees the Speaker shall appoint no less than a majority of members who generally supported the House position as determined by the Speaker. The Speaker shall name Members who are primarily responsible for the legislation and shall, to the fullest extent feasible, include the principal proponents of the major provisions of the bill as it passed the House.

(g) Membership on select and joint committees during the course of a Congress shall be contingent on continuing membership in the party caucus or conference the Member was a member of at the time of his appointment to a select or joint committee. Should a Member cease to be a member of that caucus or conference, said Member shall automatically cease to be a member of any select or joint committee to which he is assigned. The chairman of the relevant party caucus or conference shall notify the Speaker whenever a Member ceases to be a member of a party caucus or conference and the Speaker shall notify the chairman of each select or joint committee on which said Member serves, that in accord with this rule, the Member's appointment to such committee is automatically vacated.

(h) The Speaker may appoint the Resident Commissioner from Puerto Rico and Delegates to the House to any select committee and to any conference committee that is considering legislation reported from a committee on which they serve.

(i) There shall be in the House the permanent Select Committee on Aging, which shall not have legislative jurisdiction but which shall have jurisdiction—

(1) to conduct a continuing comprehensive study and review of the problems of the older American, including but not limited to income maintenance, housing, health (including medical research), welfare, employment, education, recreation, and participation in family and community life as self-respecting citizens;

(2) to study the use of all practicable means and methods of encouraging the development of public and private programs and policies which will assist the older American in taking a full part in national life and which will encourage the utilization of the knowledge, skills, special aptitudes, and abilities of older Americans to contribute to a better quality of life for all Americans;

(3) to develop policies that would encourage the coordination of both governmental and private programs designed to deal with problems of aging; and

(4) to review any recommendations made by the President or by the White House Conference on Aging relating to programs or policies affecting older Americans.

Rule XI. Rules of Procedure for Committees

In General

1. (a)(1) The Rules of the House are the rules of its committees and subcommittees so far as applicable, except that a motion to recess from day to day, and a motion to dispense with the first reading (in full) of a bill or resolution, if printed copies are available, are nondebatable motions of high privilege in committees and subcommittees.

(2) Each subcommittee of a committee is a part of that committee, and is subject to the authority and direction of that committee and to its rules so far as applicable.

(b) Each committee is authorized at any time to conduct such investigations and studies as it may consider necessary or appropriate in the exercise of its responsibilities under Rule X, and (subject to the adoption of expense resolutions as required by clause 5) to incur expenses (including travel expenses) in connection therewith.

(c) Each committee is authorized to have printed and bound testimony and other data presented at hearings held by the committee. All costs of stenographic services and transcripts in connection with any meeting or hearing of a committee shall be paid from the contingent fund of the House.

(d) Each committee shall submit to the House, not later than January 2 of each odd-numbered year, a report on the activities of that committee under this rule and Rule X during the Congress ending at noon on January 3 of such year.

Committee Rules

Adoption of written rules

2. (a) Each standing committee of the House shall adopt written rules governing its procedure. Such rules—

(1) shall be adopted in a meeting which is open to the public unless the committee, in open session and with a quorum present, determined by roll call vote that all or part of the meeting on that day is to be closed to the public;

(2) shall be not inconsistent with the Rules of the House or with those provisions of law having the force and effect of Rules of the House; and

(3) shall in any event incorporate all of the succeeding provisions of this clause to the extent applicable.

Each committee's rules specifying its regular meeting days, and any other rules of a committee which are in addition to the provisions of this clause, shall be published in the Congressional Record not later than thirty days after the committee is elected in each odd-numbered year. Each select or joint committee shall comply with the provisions of this paragraph unless specifically prohibited by law.

Regular meeting days

(b) Each standing committee of the House shall adopt regular meeting days, which shall be not less frequent than monthly, for the conduct of its business. Each such committee shall meet, for the consideration of any bill or resolution pending before the committee or for the transaction of other committee business, on all regular meeting days fixed by the committee, unless otherwise provided by written rule adopted by the committee.

Additional and special meetings

(c)(1) The Chairman of each standing committee may call and convene, as he or she considers necessary, additional meetings of the committee for the consideration of any bill or resolution pending before the committee or for the conduct of other committee business. The committee shall meet for such purpose pursuant to that call of the chairman.

(2) If at least three members of any standing committee desire that a special meeting of the committee be called by the chairman, those members may file in the offices of the committee their written request to the chairman for that special meeting. Such request shall specify the measure or matter to be considered. Immediately upon the filing of the request, the clerk of the committee shall notify the chairman of the filing of the request. If, within three calendar days after the filing of the request, the chairman does not call the requested special meeting, to be held within seven calendar days after the filing of the request, a majority of the members of the committee may file in the offices of the committee their written notice that a special meeting of the committee will be held, specifying the date and hour of, and the measure or matter to be considered at, that special meeting. The committee shall meet on that date and hour. Immediately upon the filing of the notice, the clerk of the committee shall notify all members of the committee that such special meeting will be held and inform them of its date and hour and the measure or matter to be considered; and only the measure or matter specified in that notice may be considered at that special meeting.

Vice chairman or ranking majority member to preside in absence of chairman

(d) The member of the majority party on any standing committee or subcommittee thereof ranking immediately after the chairman shall be vice chairman of the committee or subcommittee, as the case may be, and shall preside at any meeting during the temporary absence of the chairman. If the chairman and vice chairman of the committee or subcommittee are not present at any meeting of the committee or subcommittee, the ranking member of the majority party who is present shall preside at that meeting.

Committee records

(e)(1) Each committee shall keep a complete record of all committee action which shall include a record of the votes on any question on which a roll call vote is demanded. The result of each such roll call vote shall be made available by the committee for inspection by the public at reasonable times in the offices of the committee. Information so available for public inspection shall include a description of the amendment, motion, order, or other proposition and the name of each Member voting for and each Member voting against such amendment, motion, order, or proposition, and whether by proxy or in person, and the names of those Members present but not voting.

(2) All committee hearings, records, data, charts, and files shall be kept separate and distinct from the congressional office records of the Member serving as chairman of the committee; and such records shall be the property of the House and all Members of the House shall have access thereto, except that in the case of records in the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct respecting the conduct of any Member, officer, or employee of the House, no Member of the House (other than a member of such committee) shall have access thereto without the specific, prior approval of the committee.

(3) Each committee shall include in its rules standards for availability of records of the committee delivered to the Archivist of the United States under rule XXXVI. Such standards shall specify procedures for orders of the committee under clause 3(b)(3) and clause

4(b) of rule XXXVI, including a requirement that nonavailability of a record for a period longer than the period otherwise applicable under that rule shall be approved by vote of the committee.

Proxies

(f) No vote by any member of any committee or subcommittee with respect to any measure or matter may be cast by proxy unless such committee, by written rule adopted by the committee, permits voting by proxy and requires that the proxy authorization shall be in writing, shall assert that the member is absent on official business or is otherwise unable to be present at the meeting of the committee, shall designate the person who is to execute the proxy authorization, and shall be limited to a specific measure or matter and any amendments or motions pertaining thereto; except that a member may authorize a general proxy only for motions to recess, adjourn or other procedural matters. Each proxy to be effective shall be signed by the member assigning his or her vote and shall contain the date and time of day that the proxy is signed. Proxies may not be counted for a quorum.

Open meetings and hearings

(g)(1) Each meeting for the transaction of business, including the markup of legislation, of each standing committee or subcommittee thereof shall be open to the public except when the committee or subcommittee, in open session and with a majority present, determines by roll call vote that all or part of the remainder of the meeting on that day shall be closed to the public: Provided, however, That no person other than members of the committee and such congressional staff and such departmental representatives as they may authorize shall be present at any business or markup session which has been closed to the public. This paragraph does not apply to open committee hearings which are provided for by clause 4(a)(1) of Rule X or by subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, or to any meeting that relates solely to internal budget or personnel matters.

(2) Each hearing conducted by each committee or subcommittee thereof shall be open to the public except when the committee or subcommittee, in open session and with a majority present, determines by roll call vote that all or part of the remainder of that hearing on that day shall be closed to the public because disclosure of testimony, evidence, or other matters to be considered would endanger the national security or would violate any law or rule of the House of Representatives. Notwithstanding the requirements of the preceding sentence, a majority of those present, there being in attendance the requisite number required under the rules of the committee to be present for the purpose of taking testimony,

(A) may vote to close the hearing for the sole purpose of discussing whether testimony or evidence to be received would endanger the national security or violate clause 2(k)(5) of Rule XI; or

(B) may vote to close the hearing, as provided in clause 2(k)(5) of Rule XI.

No Member may be excluded from nonparticipatory attendance at any hearing of any committee or subcommittee, with the exception of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, unless the House of Representatives shall by majority vote authorize a particular committee or subcommittee, for purposes of a particular series of hearings on a particular article of legislation or on a particular subject of investigation, to close its hearings to Members by the same procedures designated in this subparagraph for closing hearings to the public: Provided, however, That the committee or subcommittee may by the same procedure vote to close one subsequent day of hearing except that the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on Armed Services, and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence and the subcommittees therein may, by the same procedure, vote to close up to five additional consecutive days of hearings.

(3) Each committee of the House (except the Committee on Rules) shall make public announcement of the date, place and subject matter of any committee hearing at least one week before the commencement of the hearing. If the committee determines that there is good cause to begin the hearing sooner, it shall make the announcement at the earliest possible date. Any announcement made under this subparagraph shall be promptly published in the Daily Digest and promptly entered into the committee scheduling service of the House Information Systems.

(4) Each committee shall, insofar as is practicable, require each witness who is to appear before it to file with the committee (in advance of his or her appearance) a written statement of the proposed testimony and to limit the oral presentation at such appearance to a brief summary of his or her argument.

(5) No point of order shall lie with respect to any measure reported by any committee on the ground that hearings on such measure were not conducted in accordance with the provisions of this clause; except that a point of order on that ground may be made by any member of the committee which reported the measure if, in the committee, such point of order was (A) timely made and (B) improperly overruled or not properly considered.

(6) The preceding provisions of this paragraph do not apply to the committee hearings which are provided for by clause 4(a)(1) of Rule X.

Quorum for taking testimony and certain other action

(h)(1) Each committee may fix the number of its members to constitute a quorum for taking testimony and receiving evidence which shall be not less than two.

(2) Each committee (except the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on the Budget, and the Committee on Ways and Means) may fix the number of its members to constitute a quorum for taking any action other than the reporting of a measure or recommendation which shall be not less than one-third of the members.

Prohibition against committee meetings during five-minute rule and during joint sessions and joint meetings

(i)(1) No committee of the House (except the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on the Budget, the Committee on House Administration, the Committee on Rules, the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, and the Committee on Ways and Means) may sit, without special leave, while the House is reading a measure for amendment under the five-minute rule. For purposes of this subparagraph special leave will be granted unless 10 or more Members object.

(2) No committee of the House may sit during a joint session of the House and Senate or during a recess when a joint meeting of the House and Senate is in progress.

Calling and interrogation of witnesses

(j)(1) Whenever any hearing is conducted by any committee upon any measure or matter, the minority party members on the committee shall be entitled, upon request to the chairman by a majority of them before the completion of the hearing, to call witnesses selected by the minority to testify with respect to that measure or matter during at least one day of hearing thereon.

(2) Each committee shall apply the five-minute rule in the interrogation of witnesses in any hearing until such time as each member of the committee who so desires has had an opportunity to question each witness.

Investigative hearing procedures

(k)(1) The chairman at an investigative hearing shall announce in an opening statement the subject of the investigation.

(2) A copy of the committee rules and this clause shall be made available to each witness.

(3) Witnesses at investigative hearings may be accompanied by their own counsel for the purpose of advising them concerning their constitutional rights.

(4) The chairman may punish breaches of order and decorum, and of professional ethics on the part of counsel, by censure and exclusion from the hearings; and the committee may cite the offender to the House for contempt.

(5) Whenever it is asserted that the evidence or testimony at an investigatory hearing may tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person,

(A) such testimony or evidence shall be presented in executive session, notwithstanding the provisions of clause 2(g)(2) of this Rule, if by a majority of those present, there being in attendance the requisite number required under the rules of the committee to be present for the purpose of taking testimony, the committee determines that such evidence or testimony may tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person; and

(B) the committee shall proceed to receive such testimony in open session only if a majority of the members of the committee, a majority being present, determine that such evidence or testimony will not tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person.

In either case the committee shall afford such person an opportunity voluntarily to appear as a witness, and receive and dispose of requests from such person to subpoena additional witnesses.

(6) Except as provided in subparagraph (5), the chairman shall receive and the committee shall dispose of requests to subpoena additional witnesses.

(7) No evidence or testimony taken in executive session may be released or used in public sessions without the consent of the committee.

(8) In the discretion of the committee, witnesses may submit brief and pertinent sworn statements in writing for inclusion in the record. The committee is the sole judge of the pertinency of testimony and evidence adduced at its hearing.

(9) A witness may obtain a transcript copy of his testimony given at a public session or, if given at an executive session, when authorized by the committee.

Committee procedures for reporting bills and resolutions

(1)(1)(A) It shall be the duty of the chairman of each committee to report or cause to be reported promptly to the House any measure approved by the committee and to take or cause to be taken necessary steps to bring a matter to a vote.

(B) In any event, the report of any committee on a measure which has been approved by the committee shall be filed within seven calendar days (exclusive of days on which the House is not in session) after the day on which there has been filed with the clerk of the committee a written request, signed by a majority of the members of the committee, for the reporting of that measure. Upon the filing of any such request, the clerk of the committee shall transmit immediately to the chairman of the committee notice of the filing of that request. This subdivision does not apply to the reporting of a regular appropriation bill by the Committee on Appropriations prior to compliance with subdivision (C) and does not apply to a report of the Committee on Rules with respect to the rules, joint rules, or order of business of the House or to the reporting of a resolution of inquiry addressed to the head of an executive department.

(2)(A) No measure or recommendation shall be reported from any committee unless a majority of the committee was actually present.

(B) With respect to each roll call vote on a motion to report any bill or resolution of a public character, the total number of votes cast for, and the total number of votes cast against, the reporting of such bill or resolution shall be included in the committee report.

(3) The report of any committee on a measure which has been approved by the committee (A) shall include the oversight findings and recommendations required pursuant to clause 2(b)(1) of Rule X separately set out and clearly identified; (B) the statement required by section 308(a)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, separately set out and clearly identified, if the measure provides new budget authority (other than continuing appropriations), new spending authority described in section 401(c)(2) of such Act, new credit authority, or an increase or decrease in revenues or tax expenditures; (C) the estimate and comparison prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office under section 403 of such Act, separately set out and clearly identified, whenever the Director (if timely submitted prior to the filing of the report) has submitted such estimate and comparison to the committee; and (D) a summary of the oversight findings and recommendations made by the Committee on Government Operations under clause 4(c)(2) of Rule X separately set out and clearly identified whenever such findings and recommendations have been submitted to the legislative committee in a timely fashion to allow an opportunity to consider such findings and recommendations during the committee's deliberations on the measure.

(4) Each report of a committee on each bill or joint resolution of a public character reported by such committee shall contain a detailed analytical statement as to whether the enactment of such bill or joint resolution into law may have an inflationary impact on prices and costs in the operation of the national economy.

(5) If, at the time of approval of any measure or matter by any committee, other than the Committee on Rules, any member of the committee gives notice of intention to file supplemental, minority, or additional views, that member shall be entitled to not less than three calendar days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays) in which to file such views, in writing and signed by that member, with the clerk of the committee. All such views so filed by one or more members of the committee shall be included within, and shall be a part of, the report filed by the committee with respect to that measure or matter. The report of the committee upon that measure or matter shall be printed in a single volume which—

(A) shall include all supplemental, minority, or additional views which have been submitted by the time of the filing of the report, and

(B) shall bear upon its cover a recital that any such supplemental, minority, or additional views (and any material submitted under subdivisions (C) and (D) of subparagraph (3)) are included as part of the report.

This subparagraph does not preclude—

(i) the immediate filing or printing of a committee print unless timely request for the opportunity to file supplemental, minority, or additional views has been made as provided by this subparagraph; or

(ii) the filing by any such committee of any supplemental report upon any measure or matter which may be required for the correction of any technical error in a previous report made by that committee upon that measure or matter.

(6) A measure or matter reported by any committee (except the Committee on Rules in the case of a resolution making in order the consideration of a bill, resolution, or other order of business), shall not be considered in the House until the third calendar day, excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays on which the report of that committee upon that measure or matter has been available to the Members of the House, or as provided by section 305(a)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 in the case of a concurrent resolution on the budget: Provided, however, That it shall always be in order to call up for consideration, notwithstanding the provisions of clause 4(b), Rule XI, a report from the Committee on Rules specifically providing for the consideration of a reported measure or matter notwithstanding this restriction. If hearings have been held on any such measure or matter so reported, the committee reporting the measure or matter shall make every reasonable effort to have such hearings printed and available for distribution to the Members of the House prior to the consideration of such measure or matter in the House. This subparagraph shall not apply to—

(A) any measure for the declaration of war, or the declaration of a national emergency, by the Congress; or

(B) any decision, determination, or action by a Government agency which would become or continue to be, effective unless disapproved or otherwise invalidated by one or both Houses of Congress.

For the purposes of the preceding sentence, a Government agency includes any department, agency, establishment, wholly owned Government corporation, or instrumentality of the Federal Government or the government of the District of Columbia.

(7) If, within seven calendar days after a measure has, by resolution, been made in order for consideration by the House, no motion has been offered that the House consider that measure, any member of the committee which reported that measure may be recognized in the discretion of the Speaker to offer a motion that the House shall consider that measure, if that committee has duly authorized that member to offer that motion.

Power to sit and act; subpoena power

(m)(1) For the purpose of carrying out any of its functions and duties under this rule and Rule X (including any matters referred to it under clause 5 of Rule X), any committee, or any subcommittee thereof, is authorized (subject to subparagraph (2)(A) of this paragraph)—

(A) to sit and act at such times and places within the United States, whether the House is in session, has recessed, or has adjourned, and to hold such hearings, and

(B) to require, by subpoena or otherwise, the attendance and testimony of such witnesses and the production of such books, records, correspondence, memorandums, papers, and documents as it deems necessary.

The chairman of the committee, or any member designated by such chairman, may administer oaths to any witness.

(2)(A) A subpoena may be authorized and issued by a committee or subcommittee under subparagraph (1)(B) in the conduct of any investigation or series of investigations or activities, only when authorized by a majority of the members voting, a majority being present. The power to authorize and issue subpoenas under subparagraph (1)(B) may be delegated to the chairman of the committee pursuant to such rules and under such limitations as the committee may prescribe. Authorized subpoenas shall be signed by the chairman of the committee or by any member designated by the committee.

(B) Compliance with any subpoena issued by a committee or subcommittee under subparagraph (1)(B) may be enforced only as authorized or directed by the House.

Use of committee funds for travel

(n)(1) Funds authorized for a committee under clause 5 are for expenses incurred in the committee's activities; however, local currencies owned by the United States shall be made available to the committee and its employees engaged in carrying out their official duties outside the United States, its territories or possessions. No appropriated funds, including those authorized under clause 5, shall be expended for the purpose of defraying expenses of members of the committee or its employees in any country where local currencies are available for this purpose; and the following conditions shall apply with respect to travel outside the United States or its territories or possessions:

(A) No member or employee of the committee shall receive or expend local currencies for subsistence in any country for any day at a rate in excess of the maximum per diem set forth in applicable Federal law, or if the Member or employee is reimbursed for any expenses for such day, then the lesser of the per diem or the actual, unreimbursed expenses (other than for transportation) incurred by the Member or employee during that day.

(B) Each member or employee of the committee shall make to the chairman of the committee an itemized report showing the dates each country was visited, the amount of per diem furnished, the cost of transportation furnished, any funds expended for any other official purpose and shall summarize in these categories the total foreign currencies and/or appropriated funds expended. All such individual reports shall be filed no later than sixty days following the completion of travel with the chairman of the committee for use in complying with reporting requirements in applicable Federal law and shall be open for public inspection.

(2) In carrying out the committee's activities outside of the United States in any country where local currencies are unavailable, a member or employee of the committee may not receive reimbursement for expenses (other than for transportation) in excess of the maximum per diem set forth in applicable Federal law, or if the member or employee is reimbursed for any expenses for such day, then the lesser of the per diem or the actual unreimbursed expenses (other than for transportation) incurred, by the member or employee during any day.

(3) A member or employee of a committee may not receive reimbursement for the cost of any transportation in connection with travel outside of the United States unless the member or employee has actually paid for the transportation.

(4) The restrictions respecting travel outside of the United States set forth in subparagraphs (2) and (3) shall also apply to travel outside of the United States by Members, officers, and employees of the House authorized under clause 8 of Rule I, clause 1(b) of this rule, or any other provision of these Rules of the House of Representatives.

(5) No local currencies owned by the United States may be made available under this paragraph for the use outside of the United States for defraying the expenses of a member of any committee after—

(A) the date of the general election of Members in which the Member has not been elected to the succeeding Congress; or

(B) in the case of a Member who is not a candidate in such general election, the earlier of the date of such general election or the adjournment sine die of the last regular session of the Congress.

Broadcasting of Committee Hearings

3. (a) It is the purpose of this clause to provide a means, in conformity with acceptable standards of dignity, propriety, and decorum, by which committee hearings, or committee meetings, which are open to the public may be covered, by television broadcast, radio broadcast, and still photography, or by any of such methods of coverage—

(1) for the education, enlightenment, and information of the general public, on the basis of accurate and impartial news coverage, regarding the operations, procedures, and practices of the House as a legislative and representative body and regarding the measures, public issues, and other matters before the House and its committees, the consideration thereof, and the action taken thereon; and

(2) for the development of the perspective and understanding of the general public with respect to the role and function of the House under the Constitution of the United States as an organ of the Federal Government.

(b) In addition, it is the intent of this clause that radio and television tapes and television film of any coverage under this clause shall not be used, or made available for use, as partisan political campaign material to promote or oppose the candidacy of any person for elective public office.

(c) It is, further, the intent of this clause that the general conduct of each meeting (whether of a hearing or otherwise) covered, under authority of this clause, by television broadcast, radio broadcast, and still photography, or by any of such methods of coverage, and the personal behavior of the committee members and staff, other Government officials and personnel, witnesses, television, radio, and press media personnel, and the general public at the hearing or other meeting shall be in strict conformity with and observance of the acceptable standards of dignity, propriety, courtesy, and decorum traditionally observed by the House in its operations and shall not be such as to—

(1) distort the objects and purposes of the hearing or other meeting or the activities of committee members in connection with that hearing or meeting or in connection with the general work of the committee or of the House; or

(2) cast discredit or dishonor on the House, the committee, or any Member or bring the House, the committee, or any Member into disrepute.

(d) The coverage of committee hearings and meetings by television broadcast, radio broadcast, or still photography is a privilege made available by the House and shall be permitted and conducted only in strict conformity with the purposes, provisions, and requirements of this clause.

(e) Whenever any hearing or meeting conducted by any committee of the House is open to the public, that committee may permit, by majority vote of the committee, that hearing or meeting to be covered, in whole or in part, by television broadcast, radio broadcast, and still photography, or by any of such methods of coverage, but only under such written rules as the committee may adopt in accordance with the purposes, provisions, and requirements of this clause: Provided, however, Each committee or subcommittee chairman shall determine, in his discretion, the number of television and still cameras permitted in a hearing or meeting room.

(f) The written rules which may be adopted by a committee under paragraph (e) of this clause shall contain provisions to the following effect:

(1) If the television or radio coverage of the hearing or meeting is to be presented to the public as live coverage, that coverage shall be conducted and presented without commercial sponsorship.

(2) No witness served with a subpoena by the committee shall be required against his or her will to be photographed at any hearing or to give evidence or testimony while the broadcasting of that hearing, by radio or television, is being conducted. At the request of any such witness who does not wish to be subjected to radio, television, or still photography coverage, all lenses shall be covered and all microphones used for coverage turned off. This subparagraph is supplementary to clause 2(k)(5) of this rule, relating to the protection of the rights of witnesses.

(3) The allocation among the television media of the positions of the number of television cameras permitted by a committee or subcommittee chairman in a hearing or meeting room shall be in accordance with fair and equitable procedures devised by the Executive Committee of the Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries.

(4) Television cameras shall be placed so as not to obstruct in any way the space between any witness giving evidence or testimony and any member of the committee or the visibility of that witness and that member to each other.

(5) Television cameras shall operate from fixed positions but shall not be placed in positions which obstruct unnecessarily the coverage of the hearing or meeting by the other media.

(6) Equipment necessary for coverage by the television and radio media shall not be installed in, or removed from, the hearing or meeting room while the committee is in session.

(7) Floodlights, spotlights, strobелights, and flashguns shall not be used in providing any method of coverage of the hearing or meeting, except that the television media may install additional lighting in the hearing or meeting room, without cost to the Government, in order to raise the ambient lighting level in the hearing or meeting room to the lowest level necessary to provide adequate television coverage of the hearing or meeting at the then current state of the art of television coverage.

(8) In the allocation of the number of still photographers permitted by a committee or subcommittee chairman in a hearing or meeting room, preference shall be given to photographers from Associated Press Photos and United Press International Newspictures. If requests are made by more of the media than will be permitted by a committee or subcommittee chairman for coverage of the hearing or meeting by still photography, that coverage shall be made on the basis of a fair and equitable pool arrangement devised by the Standing Committee of Press Photographers.

(9) Photographers shall not position themselves, at any time during the course of the hearing or meeting, between the witness table and the members of the committee.

(10) Photographers shall not place themselves in positions which obstruct unnecessarily the coverage of the hearing by the other media.

(11) Personnel providing coverage by the television and radio media shall be then currently accredited to the Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries.

(12) Personnel providing coverage by still photography shall be then currently accredited to the Press Photographers' Gallery.

(13) Personnel providing coverage by the television and radio media and by still photography shall conduct themselves and their coverage activities in an orderly and unobtrusive manner.

Privileged Reports and Amendments

4. (a) The following committees shall have leave to report at any time on the matters herein stated, namely: The Committee on Appropriations—on general appropriation bills and on joint resolutions continuing appropriations for a fiscal year if reported after September 15 preceding the beginning of such fiscal year; the Committee on the Budget—on the matters required to be reported by such committee under Titles III and IV of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974; the Committee on House Administration—on enrolled bills, contested elections, and all matters referred to it of printing for the use of the House or the two Houses, and on all matters of expenditure of the contingent fund of the House, and on all matters relating to preservation and availability of noncurrent records of the House under rule XXXVI; the Committee on Rules—on rules, joint rules, and the order of business; and the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct—on resolutions recommending action by the House of Representatives with respect to an individual Member, officer, or employee of the House of Representatives as a result of any investigation by the committee relating to the official conduct of such Member, officer, or employee of the House of Representatives.

(b) It shall always be in order to call up for consideration a report from the Committee on Rules on a rule, joint rule, or the order of business (except it shall not be called up for consideration on the same day it is presented to the House, unless so determined by a vote of not less than two-thirds of the Members voting, but this provision shall not apply during the last three days of the session), and, pending the consideration thereof, the Speaker may entertain one motion that the House adjourn; but after the result is announced the Speaker shall not entertain any other dilatory motion until the report shall have been fully disposed of. The Committee on Rules shall not report any rule or order which provides that business under clause 7 of Rule XXIV shall be set aside by a vote of less than two-thirds of the Members present; nor shall it report any rule or order which would prevent the motion to recommit from being made as provided in clause 4 of Rule XVI.

(c) The Committee on Rules shall present to the House reports concerning rules, joint rules, and order of business, within three legislative days of the time when the bill or resolution involved is ordered reported by the committee. If any such rule or order is not considered immediately, it shall be referred to the calendar and, if not called up by the Member making the report within seven legislative days thereafter, any member of the Rules Committee may call it up as a question of privilege (but only on the day after the calendar day on which such Member announces to the House his intention to do so) and the Speaker shall recognize any member of the Rules Committee seeking recognition for that purpose. If the Committee on Rules makes an adverse report on any resolution pending before the committee, providing for an order of business for the consideration by the House of any public bill or joint resolution, on days when it shall be in order to call up motions to discharge committees it shall be in order for any Member of the House to call up for consideration by the House such adverse report, and it shall be in order to move the adoption by the House of such resolution adversely reported notwithstanding the adverse report of the Committee on Rules, and the Speaker shall recognize the Member seeking recognition for that purpose as a question of the highest privilege.

(d) Whenever the Committee on Rules reports a resolution repealing or amending any of the Rules of the House of Representatives or part thereof it shall include in its report or in an accompanying document—

(1) the text of any part of the Rules of the House of Representatives which is proposed to be repealed; and

(2) a comparative print of any part of the resolution making such an amendment and any part of the Rules of the House of Representatives to be amended, showing by an appropriate typographical device the omissions and insertions proposed to be made.

Committee Expenses

5. (a) Whenever any committee, commission or other entity (except the Committee on Appropriations and the Committee on the Budget) is to be granted authorization for the payment, from the contingent fund of the House, of its expenses in any year, other than those expenses to be paid from appropriations provided by statute, such authorization initially shall be procured by one primary expense resolution for the committee, commission or other entity providing funds for the payment of the expenses of the committee, commission or other entity for that year from the contingent fund of the House. Any such primary expense resolution reported to the House shall not be considered in the House unless a printed report on that resolution has been available to the Members of the House for at least one calendar day prior to the consideration of that resolution in the House. Such report shall, for the information of the House—

(1) state the total amount of the funds to be provided to the committee, commission or other entity under the primary expense resolution for all anticipated activities and programs of the committee, commission or other entity; and

(2) to the extent practicable, contain such general statements regarding the estimated foreseeable expenditures for the respective anticipated activities and programs of the committee, commission or other entity as may be appropriate to provide the House with basic estimates with respect to the expenditure generally of the funds to be provided to the committee, commission or other entity under the primary expense resolution.

(b) After the date of adoption by the House of any such primary expense resolution for any such committee, commission or other entity for any year, authorization for the payment from the contingent fund of additional expenses of such committee, commission or other entity in that year, other than those expenses to be paid from appropriations provided by statute, may be procured by one or more supplemental expense resolutions for that committee, commission or other entity as necessary. Any such supplemental expense resolution reported to the House shall not be considered in the House unless a printed report on that resolution has been available to the Members of the House for at least one calendar day prior to the consideration of that resolution in the House. Such report shall, for the information of the House—

(1) state the total amount of additional funds to be provided to the committee, commission or other entity under the supplemental expense resolution and the purpose or purposes for which those additional funds are to be used by the committee, commission or other entity; and

(2) state the reason or reasons for the failure to procure the additional funds for the committee, commission or other entity by means of the primary expense resolution.

(c) The preceding provisions of this clause do not apply to—

(1) any resolution providing for the payment from the contingent fund of the House of sums necessary to pay compensation for staff services performed for, or to pay other expenses of, any committee, commission or other entity at any time from and after the beginning of any year and before the date of adoption by the House of the primary expense resolution providing funds to pay the expenses of that committee, commission or other entity for that year; or

(2) any resolution providing in any Congress, for all of the standing committees of the House, additional office equipment, airmail and special delivery postage stamps, supplies, staff personnel, or any other specific item for the operation of the standing committees, and containing an authorization for the payment from the contingent fund of the House of the expenses of any of the foregoing items provided by that resolution, subject to and until enactment of the provisions of the resolution as permanent law.

(d) From the funds provided for the appointment of committee staff pursuant to primary and additional expense resolutions—

(1) The chairman of each standing subcommittee of a standing committee of the House is authorized to appoint one staff member who shall serve at the pleasure of the subcommittee chairman.

(2) The ranking minority party member of each standing subcommittee on each standing committee of the House is authorized to appoint one staff person who shall serve at the pleasure of the ranking minority party member.

(3) The staff members appointed pursuant to the provisions of subparagraphs (1) and (2) shall be compensated at a rate determined by the subcommittee chairman not to exceed (A) 75 per centum of the maximum established in paragraph (c) of clause 6 or (B) the rate paid the staff member appointed pursuant to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph.

(4) For the purpose of this paragraph, (A) there shall be no more than six standing subcommittees of each standing committee of the House, except for the Committee on Appropriations, and (B) no member shall appoint more than one person pursuant to the above provisions.

(5) The staff positions made available to the subcommittee chairman and ranking minority party members pursuant to subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph shall be made available from the staff positions provided under clause 6 of Rule XI unless such staff positions are made available pursuant to a primary or additional expense resolution.

(e) No primary expense resolution or additional expense resolution of a committee may provide for the payment or reimbursement of expenses incurred by any member of the committee for travel by the member after the date of the general election of Members in which the Member is not elected to the succeeding Congress, or in the case of a Member who is not a candidate in such general election, the earlier of the date of such general election or the adjournment sine die of the last regular session of the Congress.

(f)(1) For continuance of necessary investigations and studies by—

(A) each standing committee and select committee established by these rules; and

(B) except as provided in subparagraph (2), each select committee established by resolution;

there shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the House such amounts as may be necessary for the period beginning at noon on January 3 and ending at midnight on March 31 of each year.

(2) In the case of the first session of a Congress, amounts shall be made available under this paragraph for a select committee established by resolution in the preceding Congress only if—

(A) a reestablishing resolution for such select committee is introduced in the present Congress; and

(B) no resolution of the preceding Congress provided for termination of funding of investigations and studies by such select committee at or before the end of the preceding Congress.

(3) Each committee receiving amounts under this paragraph shall be entitled, for each month in the period specified in subparagraph (1), to 9 per centum (or such lesser per centum as may be determined by the Committee on House Administration) of the total annualized amount made available under expense resolutions for such committee in the preceding session of Congress.

(4) Payments under this paragraph shall be made on vouchers authorized by the committee involved, signed by the chairman of such committee, except as provided in subparagraph (5), and approved by the Committee on House Administration.

(5) Notwithstanding any provision of law, rule of the House, or other authority, from noon on January 3 of the first session of a Congress, until the election by the House of the committee involved in that Congress, payments under this paragraph shall be made on vouchers signed by—

(A) the chairman of such committee as constituted at the close of the preceding Congress; or

(B) if such chairman is not a Member in the present Congress, the ranking majority party member of such committee as constituted at the close of the preceding Congress who is a Member in the present Congress.

(6)(A) The authority of a committee to incur expenses under this paragraph shall expire upon agreement by the House to a primary expense resolution for such committee.

(B) Amounts made available under this paragraph shall be expended in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Committee on House Administration.

(C) The provisions of this paragraph shall be effective only insofar as not inconsistent with any resolution, reported by the Committee on House Administration and adopted after the date of adoption of these rules.

Committee Staffs

6. (a)(1) Subject to subparagraph (2) of this paragraph and paragraph (f) of this clause, each standing committee may appoint, by majority vote of the committee, not more than eighteen professional staff members. Each professional staff member appointed under this subparagraph shall be assigned to the chairman and the ranking minority party member of such committee, as the committee considers advisable.

(2) Subject to paragraph (f) of this clause, whenever a majority of the minority party members of a standing committee (except the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence) so request, not more than six persons may be selected, by majority vote of the minority party members, for appointment by the committee as professional staff members from among the number authorized by subparagraph (1) of this paragraph. The committee shall appoint any persons so selected whose character and qualifications are acceptable to a majority of the committee. If the committee determines that the character and qualifications of any person so selected are unacceptable to the committee, a majority of the minority party members may select other persons for appointment by the committee to the professional staff until such appointment is made. Each professional staff member appointed under this subparagraph shall be assigned to such committee business as the minority party members of the committee consider advisable.

(3) The professional staff members of each standing committee—

(A) shall not engage in any work other than committee business during congressional working hours; and

(B) shall not be assigned any duties other than those pertaining to committee business.

(4) Services of the professional staff members of each standing committee may be terminated by majority vote of the committee.

(5) The foregoing provisions of this paragraph do not apply to the Committee on Appropriations and to the Committee on the Budget and the provisions of subparagraphs (3) (B) and (C) do not apply to the Committee on Rules.

(b)(1) The clerical staff of each standing committee shall consist of not more than twelve clerks, to be attached to the office of the chairman, to the ranking minority party members, and to the professional staff, as the committee considers advisable. Subject to subparagraph (2) of this paragraph and paragraph (f) of this clause, the clerical staff shall be appointed by majority vote of the committee. Except as provided by subparagraph (2) of this paragraph the clerical staff shall handle committee correspondence and stenographic work both for the committee staff and for the chairman and the ranking minority party member on matters related to committee work.

(2) Subject to paragraph (f) of this clause, whenever a majority of the minority party members of a standing committee (except the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence) so request, four persons may be selected, by majority vote of the minority party members, for appointment by the committee to positions on the clerical staff from among the number of clerks authorized by subparagraph (1) of this paragraph. The committee shall appoint to those positions any person so selected whose character and qualifications are acceptable to a majority of the committee. If the committee determines that the character and qualifications of any person so selected are unacceptable to the committee, a majority of the minority party members, may select other persons for appointment by the committee to the position involved on the clerical staff until such appointment is made. Each clerk appointed under this subparagraph shall handle committee correspondence and stenographic work for the minority party members of the committee and for any members of the professional staff appointed under subparagraph (2) of paragraph (a) of this clause on matters related to committee work.

(3) Services of the clerical staff members of each standing committee may be terminated by majority vote of the committee.

(4) The foregoing provisions of this paragraph do not apply to the Committee on Appropriations and the Committee on the Budget.

(c) Each employee on the professional, clerical and investigating staff of each standing committee shall be entitled to pay at a single gross per annum rate, to be fixed by the chairman, which does not exceed the maximum rate of pay, as in effect from time to time, under applicable provisions of law.

(d) Subject to appropriations hereby authorized, the Committee on Appropriations and the Committee on the Budget may appoint such staff, in addition to the clerk thereof and assistants for the minority, as it determines by majority vote to be necessary, such personnel, other than minority assistants, to possess such qualifications as the committee may prescribe.

(e) No committee shall appoint to its staff any experts or other personnel detailed or assigned from any department or agency of the Government, except with the written permission of the Committee on House Administration.

(f) If a request for the appointment of a minority professional staff member under paragraph (a), or a minority clerical staff member under paragraph (b), is made when no vacancy exists to which that appointment may be made, the committee nevertheless shall appoint, under paragraph (a) or paragraph (b), as applicable, the person selected by the minority and acceptable to the committee. The person so appointed shall serve as an additional member of the professional staff or the clerical staff, as the case may be, of the committee, and shall be paid from the contingent fund, until such a vacancy (other than a vacancy in the position of head of the professional staff, by whatever title designated) occurs, at which time that person shall be deemed to have been appointed to that vacancy. If such vacancy occurs on the professional staff when seven or more persons have been so appointed who are eligible to fill that vacancy, a majority of the minority party members shall designate which of those persons shall fill that vacancy.

(g) Each staff member appointed pursuant to a request by minority party members under paragraph (a) or (b) of this clause, and each staff member appointed to assist minority party members of a committee pursuant to an expense resolution described in paragraph (a) or (b) of clause 5, shall be accorded equitable treatment with respect to the fixing of his or her rate of pay, the assignment to him or her of work facilities, and the accessibility to him or her of committee records.

(h) Paragraphs (a) and (b) of this clause shall not be construed to authorize the appointment of additional professional or clerical staff members of a committee pursuant to a request under either of such paragraphs by the minority party members of that committee if six or more professional staff members or four or more clerical staff members, provided for in paragraph (a)(1) or paragraph (b)(1) of this clause, as the case may be, who are satisfactory to a majority of the minority party members, are otherwise assigned to assist the minority party members.

(i) Notwithstanding paragraphs (a)(2) and (b)(2), a committee may employ nonpartisan staff, in lieu of or in addition to committee staff designated exclusively for the majority or minority party, upon an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the majority party and a majority of the members of the minority party.

RULES OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

ONE HUNDRED TWELFTH CONGRESS

RULE I

THE SPEAKER

Approval of the Journal

1. The Speaker shall take the Chair on every legislative day precisely at the hour to which the House last adjourned and immediately call the House to order. Having examined and approved the Journal of the last day's proceedings, the Speaker shall announce to the House approval thereof. The Speaker's approval of the Journal shall be deemed agreed to unless a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner demands a vote thereon. If such a vote is decided in the affirmative, it shall not be subject to a motion to reconsider. If such a vote is decided in the negative, then one motion that the Journal be read shall be privileged, shall be decided without debate, and shall not be subject to a motion to reconsider.

Preservation of order

2. The Speaker shall preserve order and decorum and, in case of disturbance or disorderly conduct in the galleries or in the lobby, may cause the same to be cleared.

Control of Capitol facilities

3. Except as otherwise provided by rule or law, the Speaker shall have general control of the Hall of the House, the corridors and passages in the part of the Capitol assigned to the use of the House, and the disposal of unappropriated rooms in that part of the Capitol.

Signature of documents

4. The Speaker shall sign all acts and joint resolutions passed by the two Houses and all writs, warrants, and subpoenas of, or issued by order of, the House. The Speaker may sign enrolled bills and joint resolutions whether or not the House is in session.

Questions of order

5. The Speaker shall decide all questions of order, subject to appeal by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner. On such an appeal a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not speak more than once without permission of the House.

Form of a question

6. The Speaker shall rise to put a question but may state it sitting. The Speaker shall put a question in this form: “Those in favor (of the question), say ‘Aye.’”; and after the affirmative voice is expressed, “Those opposed, say ‘No.’”. After a vote by voice under this clause, the Speaker may use such voting procedures as may be invoked under rule XX.

Discretion to vote

7. The Speaker is not required to vote in ordinary legislative proceedings, except when such vote would be decisive or when the House is engaged in voting by ballot.

Speaker pro tempore

8. (a) The Speaker may appoint a Member to perform the duties of the Chair. Except as specified in paragraph (b), such an appointment may not extend beyond three legislative days.

(b)(1) In the case of illness, the Speaker may appoint a Member to perform the duties of the Chair for a period not exceeding 10 days, subject to the approval of the House. If the Speaker is absent and has omitted to make such an appointment, then the House shall elect a Speaker pro tempore to act during the absence of the Speaker.

(2) With the approval of the House, the Speaker may appoint a Member to act as Speaker pro tempore only to sign enrolled bills and joint resolutions for a specified period of time.

(3)(A) In the case of a vacancy in the Office of Speaker, the next Member on the list described in subdivision (B) shall act as Speaker pro tempore until the election of a

Speaker or a Speaker pro tempore. Pending such election the Member acting as Speaker pro tempore may exercise such authorities of the Office of Speaker as may be necessary and appropriate to that end.

(B) As soon as practicable after the election of the Speaker and whenever appropriate thereafter, the Speaker shall deliver to the Clerk a list of Members in the order in which each shall act as Speaker pro tempore under subdivision (A).

(C) For purposes of subdivision (A), a vacancy in the Office of Speaker may exist by reason of the physical inability of the Speaker to discharge the duties of the office.

Other responsibilities

9. The Speaker, in consultation with the Minority Leader, shall develop through an appropriate entity of the House a system for drug testing in the House. The system may provide for the testing of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, and otherwise shall be comparable in scope to the system for drug testing in the executive branch pursuant to Executive Order 12564 (Sept. 15, 1986). The expenses of the system may be paid from applicable accounts of the House for official expenses.

Designation of travel

10. The Speaker may designate a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House to travel on the business of the House within or without the United States, whether the House is meeting, has recessed, or has adjourned. Expenses for such travel may be paid from applicable accounts of the House described in clause 1(k)(1) of rule X on vouchers approved and signed solely by the Speaker.

Committee appointment

11. The Speaker shall appoint all select, joint, and conference committees ordered by the House. At any time after an original appointment, the Speaker may remove Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner from, or appoint additional Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner to, a select or conference committee. In appointing Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner to conference committees, the Speaker shall appoint no less than a majority who generally supported the House position as determined by the Speaker, shall name those who are primarily responsible for the legislation, and shall, to the fullest extent feasible, include the principal proponents of the major provisions of the bill or resolution passed or adopted by the House.

Recess and Convening Authorities

12. (a) To suspend the business of the House for a short time when no question is pending before the House, the Speaker may declare a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

(b)(1) To suspend the business of the House when notified of an imminent threat to its safety, the Speaker may declare an emergency recess subject to the call of the Chair.

(2) To suspend the business of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union when notified of an imminent threat to its safety, the Chair of the Committee of the Whole may declare an emergency recess subject to the call of the Chair.

(c) During any recess or adjournment of not more than three days, if the Speaker is notified by the Sergeant-at-Arms of an imminent impairment of the place of reconvening at the time previously appointed, then the Speaker may, in consultation with the Minority Leader—

(1) postpone the time for reconvening within the limits of clause 4, section 5, article I of the Constitution and notify Members accordingly; or

(2) reconvene the House before the time previously appointed solely to declare the House in recess within the limits of clause 4, section 5, article I of the Constitution and notify Members accordingly.

(d) The Speaker may convene the House in a place at the seat of government other than the Hall of the House whenever, in the opinion of the Speaker, the public interest shall warrant it.

RULE II

OTHER OFFICERS AND OFFICIALS

Elections

1. There shall be elected at the commencement of each Congress, to continue in office until their successors are chosen and qualified, a Clerk, a Sergeant-at-Arms, a Chief Administrative Officer, and a Chaplain. Each of these officers shall take an oath to support the Constitution of the United States, and for the true and faithful exercise of the duties of the office to the best of the knowledge and ability of the officer, and to keep the secrets of the House. Each of these officers shall appoint all of the employees of the department concerned provided for by law. The Clerk, Sergeant-at-Arms, and Chief Administrative Officer may be removed by the House or by the Speaker.

Clerk

2. (a) At the commencement of the first session of each Congress, the Clerk shall call the Members, Delegates, and Resident Commissioner to order and proceed to record their presence by States in alphabetical order, either by call of the roll or by use of the electronic voting system. Pending the election of a Speaker or Speaker pro tempore, the Clerk shall preserve order and decorum and decide all questions of order, subject to appeal by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner.

(b) At the commencement of every regular session of Congress, the Clerk shall make and cause to be delivered to each Member, Delegate, and the Resident Commissioner a list of the reports that any officer or Department is required to make to Congress, citing the law or resolution in which the requirement may be contained and placing under the name of each officer the list of reports required to be made by such officer.

(c) The Clerk shall—

(1) note all questions of order, with the decisions thereon, the record of which shall be appended to the Journal of each session;

(2) enter on the Journal the hour at which the House adjourns;

(3) complete the distribution of the Journal to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner, together with an accurate and complete index, as soon as possible after the close of a session; and

(4) send a copy of the Journal to the executive of and to each branch of the legislature of every State as may be requested by such State officials.

(d)(1) The Clerk shall attest and affix the seal of the House to all writs, warrants, and subpoenas issued by order of the House and certify the passage of all bills and joint resolutions.

(2) The Clerk shall examine all bills, amendments, and joint resolutions after passage by the House and, in cooperation with the Senate, examine all bills and joint resolutions that have passed both Houses to see that they are correctly enrolled and forthwith present those bills and joint resolutions that originated in the House to the President in person after their signature by the Speaker and the President of the Senate, and report to the House the fact and date of their presentment.

(e) The Clerk shall cause the calendars of the House to be distributed each legislative day.

(f) The Clerk shall—

(1) retain in the library at the Office of the Clerk for the use of the Members, Delegates, Resident Commissioner, and officers of the House, and not to be withdrawn therefrom, two copies of all the books and printed documents deposited there; and

(2) deliver to any Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner an extra copy of each document requested by that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner that has been printed by order of either House of Congress in any Congress in which the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner served.

(g) The Clerk shall provide for the temporary absence or disability of the Clerk by designating an official in the Office of the Clerk to sign all papers that may require the official signature of the Clerk and to perform all other official acts that the Clerk may be required to perform under the rules and practices of the House, except such official acts as are provided for by statute. Official acts performed by the designated official shall be under the name of the Clerk. The designation shall be in writing and shall be laid before the House and entered on the Journal.

(h) The Clerk may receive messages from the President and from the Senate at any time when the House is in recess or adjournment.

(i)(1) The Clerk shall supervise the staff and manage the office of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who has died, resigned, or been expelled until a successor is elected. The Clerk shall perform similar duties in the event that a vacancy is declared by the House in any congressional district because of the incapacity of the person representing such district or other reason. When acting as a supervisory authority over such staff, the Clerk shall have authority to terminate employees and, with the approval of the Committee on House Administration, may appoint such staff as is required to operate the office until a successor is elected.

(2) For 60 days following the death of a former Speaker, the Clerk shall maintain on the House payroll, and shall supervise in the same manner, staff appointed under House Resolution 1238, Ninety-first Congress (as enacted into permanent law by chapter VIII of the Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1971) (2 U.S.C. 31b–5).

(j) In addition to any other reports required by the Speaker or the Committee on House Administration, the Clerk shall report to the Committee on House Administration not later than 45 days following the close of each semiannual period ending on June 30 or on December 31 on the financial and operational status of each function under the jurisdiction of the Clerk. Each report shall include financial statements and a description or explanation of current operations, the implementation of new policies and procedures, and future plans for each function.

(k) The Clerk shall fully cooperate with the appropriate offices and persons in the performance of reviews and audits of financial records and administrative operations.

Sergeant-at-Arms

3. (a) The Sergeant-at-Arms shall attend the House during its sittings and maintain order under the direction of the Speaker or other presiding officer. The Sergeant-at-Arms shall execute the commands of the House, and all processes issued by authority thereof, directed to the Sergeant-at-Arms by the Speaker.

(b) The symbol of the Office of the Sergeant-at-Arms shall be the mace, which shall be borne by the Sergeant-at-Arms while enforcing order on the floor.

(c) The Sergeant-at-Arms shall enforce strictly the rules relating to the privileges of the Hall of the House and be responsible to the House for the official conduct of employees of the Office of the Sergeant-at-Arms.

(d) The Sergeant-at-Arms may not allow a person to enter the room over the Hall of the House during its sittings and, from 15 minutes before the hour of the meeting of the House each day until 10 minutes after adjournment, shall see that the floor is cleared of all persons except those privileged to remain.

(e) In addition to any other reports required by the Speaker or the Committee on House Administration, the Sergeant-at-Arms shall report to the Committee on House Administration not later than 45 days following the close of each semiannual period ending on June 30 or on December 31 on the financial and operational status of each function under the jurisdiction of the Sergeant-at-Arms. Each report shall include financial statements and a description or explanation of current operations, the implementation of new policies and procedures, and future plans for each function.

(f) The Sergeant-at-Arms shall fully cooperate with the appropriate offices and persons in the performance of reviews and audits of financial records and administrative operations.

Chief Administrative Officer

4. (a) The Chief Administrative Officer shall have operational and financial responsibility for functions as assigned by the Committee on House Administration and shall be subject to the oversight of the Committee on House Administration.

(b) In addition to any other reports required by the Committee on House Administration, the Chief Administrative Officer shall report to the Committee on House Administration not later than 45 days following the close of each semiannual period ending on June 30 or December 31 on the financial and operational status of each function under the jurisdiction of the Chief Administrative Officer. Each report shall include financial statements and a description or explanation of current operations, the implementation of new policies and procedures, and future plans for each function.

(c) The Chief Administrative Officer shall fully cooperate with the appropriate offices and persons in the performance of reviews and audits of financial records and administrative operations.

Chaplain

5. The Chaplain shall offer a prayer at the commencement of each day's sitting of the House.

Office of Inspector General

6. (a) There is established an Office of Inspector General.

(b) The Inspector General shall be appointed for a Congress by the Speaker, the Majority Leader, and the Minority Leader, acting jointly.

(c) Subject to the policy direction and oversight of the Committee on House Administration, the Inspector General shall only—

(1) provide audit, investigative, and advisory services to the House and joint entities in a manner consistent with government-wide standards;

(2) inform the officers or other officials who are the subject of an audit of the results of that audit and suggesting appropriate curative actions;

(3) simultaneously notify the Speaker, the Majority Leader, the Minority Leader, and the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on House Administration in the case of any financial irregularity discovered in the course of carrying out responsibilities under this clause;

(4) simultaneously submit to the Speaker, the Majority Leader, the Minority Leader, and the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on House Administration a report of each audit conducted under this clause; and

(5) report to the Committee on Ethics information involving possible violations by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House of any rule of the House or of any law applicable to the performance of official duties or the discharge of official responsibilities that may require referral to the appropriate Federal or State authorities under clause 3(a)(3) of rule XI.

Office of the Historian

7. There is established an Office of the Historian of the House of Representatives. The Speaker shall appoint and set the annual rate of pay for employees of the Office of the Historian.

Office of General Counsel

8. There is established an Office of General Counsel for the purpose of providing legal assistance and representation to the House. Legal assistance and representation shall be provided without regard to political affiliation. The Office of General Counsel shall function pursuant to the direction of the Speaker, who shall consult with a Bipartisan Legal Advisory Group, which shall include the majority and minority leaderships. The Speaker shall appoint and set the annual rate of pay for employees of the Office of General Counsel.

RULE III

THE MEMBERS, DELEGATES, AND RESIDENT COMMISSIONER OF PUERTO RICO

Voting

1. Every Member shall be present within the Hall of the House during its sittings, unless excused or necessarily prevented, and shall vote on each question put, unless having a direct personal or pecuniary interest in the event of such question.

2. (a) A Member may not authorize any other person to cast the vote of such Member or record the presence of such Member in the House or the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

(b) No other person may cast a Member's vote or record a Member's presence in the House or the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

Delegates and the Resident Commissioner

3. (a) Each Delegate and the Resident Commissioner shall be elected to serve on standing committees in the same manner as Members and shall possess in such committees the same powers and privileges as the other members of the committee.

(b) The Delegates and the Resident Commissioner may be appointed to any select committee and to any conference committee.

RULE IV

THE HALL OF THE HOUSE

Use and admittance

1. The Hall of the House shall be used only for the legislative business of the House and for caucus and conference meetings of its Members, except when the House agrees to take part in any ceremonies to be observed therein.

2. (a) Only the following persons shall be admitted to the Hall of the House or rooms leading thereto:

(1) Members of Congress, Members-elect, and contestants in election cases during the pendency of their cases on the floor.

(2) The Delegates and the Resident Commissioner.

(3) The President and Vice President of the United States and their private secretaries.

(4) Justices of the Supreme Court.

(5) Elected officers and minority employees nominated as elected officers of the House.

(6) The Parliamentarian.

(7) Staff of committees when business from their committee is under consideration, and staff of the respective party leaderships when so assigned with the approval of the Speaker.

(8) Not more than one person from the staff of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner when that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner has an amendment under consideration (subject to clause 5).

(9) The Architect of the Capitol.

(10) The Librarian of Congress and the assistant in charge of the Law Library.

(11) The Secretary and Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate.

(12) Heads of departments.

(13) Foreign ministers.

(14) Governors of States.

(15) Former Members, Delegates, and Resident Commissioners; former Parliamentarians of the House; and former elected officers and minority employees nominated as elected officers of the House (subject to clause 4).

(16) One attorney to accompany a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who is the respondent in an investigation undertaken by the Committee on Ethics when a recommendation of that committee is under consideration in the House.

(17) Such persons as have, by name, received the thanks of Congress.

(b) The Speaker may not entertain a unanimous consent request or a motion to suspend this clause or clauses 1, 3, 4, or 5.

3. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b), all persons not entitled to the privilege of the floor during the session shall be excluded at all times from the Hall of the House and the cloakrooms.

(b) Until 15 minutes of the hour of the meeting of the House, persons employed in its service, accredited members of the press entitled to admission to the press

gallery, and other persons on request of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner by card or in writing, may be admitted to the Hall of the House.

4. (a) A former Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner; a former Parliamentarian of the House; or a former elected officer of the House or former minority employee nominated as an elected officer of the House shall not be entitled to the privilege of admission to the Hall of the House and rooms leading thereto if such individual—

(1) is a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal as those terms are defined in clause 5 of rule XXV;

(2) has any direct personal or pecuniary interest in any legislative measure pending before the House or reported by a committee; or

(3) is in the employ of or represents any party or organization for the purpose of influencing, directly or indirectly, the passage, defeat, or amendment of any legislative proposal.

(b) The Speaker may promulgate regulations to carry out this rule including regulations that exempt ceremonial or educational functions from the restrictions of this clause.

5. A person from the staff of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may be admitted to the Hall of the House or rooms leading thereto under clause 2 only upon prior notice to the Speaker. Such persons, and persons from the staff of committees admitted under clause 2, may not engage in efforts in the Hall of the House or rooms leading thereto to influence Members with regard to the legislation being amended. Such persons shall remain at the desk and are admitted only to advise the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or committee responsible for their admission. A person who violates this clause may be excluded during the session from the Hall of the House and rooms leading thereto by the Speaker.

Gallery

6. (a) The Speaker shall set aside a portion of the west gallery for the use of the President, the members of the Cabinet, justices of the Supreme Court, foreign ministers and suites, and the members of their respective families. The Speaker shall set aside another portion of the same gallery for the accommodation of persons to be admitted on the cards of Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner.

(b) The Speaker shall set aside the southerly half of the east gallery for the use of the families of Members of Congress. The Speaker shall control one bench. On the request of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or Senator, the Speaker shall issue a card of admission to the family of such individual, which may include their visitors. No other person shall be admitted to this section.

Prohibition on campaign contributions

7. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, or any other person entitled to admission to the Hall of the House or rooms leading thereto by this rule, may not knowingly distribute a political campaign contribution in the Hall of the House or rooms leading thereto.

RULE V

BROADCASTING THE HOUSE

1. The Speaker shall administer, direct, and control a system for closed-circuit viewing of floor proceedings of the House in the offices of all Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, and committees and in such other places in the Capitol and the House Office Buildings as the Speaker considers appropriate. Such system may include other telecommunications functions as the Speaker considers appropriate. Any such telecommunications shall be subject to rules and regulations issued by the Speaker.

2. (a) The Speaker shall administer, direct, and control a system for complete and unedited audio and visual broadcasting and recording of the proceedings of the House. The Speaker shall provide for the distribution of such broadcasts and recordings to news media, for the storage of audio and video recordings of the proceedings, and for the closed-captioning of the proceedings for hearing-impaired persons.

(b) All television and radio broadcasting stations, networks, services, and systems (including cable systems) that are accredited to the House Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries, and all radio and television correspondents who are so accredited, shall be provided access to the live coverage of the House.

(c) Coverage made available under this clause, including any recording thereof—

(1) may not be used for any political purpose;

(2) may not be used in any commercial advertisement; and

(3) may not be broadcast with commercial sponsorship except as part of a bona fide news program or public affairs documentary program.

3. The Speaker may delegate any of the responsibilities under this rule to such legislative entity as the Speaker considers appropriate.

RULE VI

OFFICIAL REPORTERS AND NEWS MEDIA GALLERIES

Official reporters

1. Subject to the direction and control of the Speaker, the Clerk shall appoint, and may remove for cause, the official reporters of the House, including stenographers of committees, and shall supervise the execution of their duties.

News media galleries

2. A portion of the gallery over the Speaker's chair, as may be necessary to accommodate representatives of the press wishing to report debates and proceedings, shall be set aside for their use. Reputable reporters and correspondents shall be admitted thereto under such regulations as the Speaker may prescribe from time to time. The Standing Committee of Correspondents for the Press Gallery, and the Executive Committee of Correspondents for the Periodical Press Gallery, shall supervise such galleries, including the designation of its employees, subject to the direction and control of the Speaker. The Speaker may admit to the floor, under such regulations as the Speaker may prescribe, not more than one representative of each press association.

3. A portion of the gallery as may be necessary to accommodate reporters of news to be disseminated by radio, television, and similar means of transmission, wishing to report debates and proceedings, shall be set aside for their use. Reputable reporters and correspondents shall be admitted thereto under such regulations as the Speaker may prescribe. The Executive Committee of the Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries shall supervise such gallery, including the designation of its employees, subject to the direction and control of the Speaker. The Speaker may admit to the floor, under such regulations as the Speaker may prescribe, not more than one representative of each media outlet.

RULE VII

RECORDS OF THE HOUSE

Archiving

1. (a) At the end of each Congress, the chair of each committee shall transfer to the Clerk any noncurrent records of such committee, including the subcommittees thereof.

(b) At the end of each Congress, each officer of the House elected under rule II shall transfer to the Clerk any noncurrent records made or acquired in the course of the duties of such officer.

2. The Clerk shall deliver the records transferred under clause 1, together with any other noncurrent records of the House, to the Archivist of the United States for preservation at the National Archives and Records Administration. Records so delivered are the permanent property of the House and remain subject to this rule and any order of the House.

Public availability

3. (a) The Clerk shall authorize the Archivist to make records delivered under clause 2 available for public use, subject to clause 4(b) and any order of the House.

(b)(1) A record shall immediately be made available if it was previously made available for public use by the House or a committee or a subcommittee.

(2) An investigative record that contains personal data relating to a specific living person (the disclosure of which would be an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy), an administrative record relating to personnel, or a record relating to a hearing that was closed under clause 2(g)(2) of rule XI shall be made available if it has been in existence for 50 years.

(3) A record for which a time, schedule, or condition for availability is specified by order of the House shall be made available in accordance with that order. Except as otherwise provided by order of the House, a record of a committee for which a time, schedule, or condition for availability is specified by order of the committee (entered during the Congress in which the record is made or acquired by the committee) shall be made available in accordance with the order of the committee.

(4) A record (other than a record referred to in subparagraph (1), (2), or (3)) shall be made available if it has been in existence for 30 years.

4. (a) A record may not be made available for public use under clause 3 if the Clerk determines that such availability would be detrimental to the public interest or inconsistent with the rights and privileges of the House.

The Clerk shall notify in writing the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on House Administration of any such determination.

(b) A determination of the Clerk under paragraph (a) is subject to later orders of the House and, in the case of a record of a committee, later orders of the committee.

5. (a) This rule does not supersede rule VIII or clause 11 of rule X and does not authorize the public disclosure of any record if such disclosure is prohibited by law or executive order of the President.

(b) The Committee on House Administration may prescribe guidelines and regulations governing the applicability and implementation of this rule.

(c) A committee may withdraw from the National Archives and Records Administration any record of the committee delivered to the Archivist under this rule. Such a withdrawal shall be on a temporary basis and for official use of the committee.

Definition of record

6. In this rule the term “record” means any official, permanent record of the House (other than a record of an individual Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner), including—

(a) with respect to a committee, an official, permanent record of the committee (including any record of a legislative, oversight, or other activity of such committee or a subcommittee thereof); and

(b) with respect to an officer of the House elected under rule II, an official, permanent record made or acquired in the course of the duties of such officer.

Withdrawal of papers

7. A memorial or other paper presented to the House may not be withdrawn from its files without its leave. If withdrawn certified copies thereof shall be left in the Office of the Clerk. When an act passes for the settlement of a claim, the Clerk may transmit to the officer charged with the settlement thereof the papers on file in the Office of the Clerk relating to such claim. The Clerk may lend temporarily to an officer or bureau of the executive departments any papers on file in the Office of the Clerk relating to any matter pending before such officer or bureau, taking proper receipt therefor.

RULE VIII

RESPONSE TO SUBPOENAS

1. When a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House is properly served with a judicial or administrative subpoena or judicial order directing appearance as a witness relating to the official functions of the House or for the production or disclosure of any document relating to the official functions of the House, such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee shall comply, consistently with the privileges and rights of the House, with the judicial or administrative subpoena or judicial order as hereinafter provided, unless otherwise determined under this rule.

2. Upon receipt of a properly served judicial or administrative subpoena or judicial order described in clause 1, a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall promptly notify the Speaker of its receipt in writing. Such notification shall promptly be laid before the House by the Speaker. During a period of recess or adjournment of longer than three days, notification to the House is not required until the reconvening of the House, when the notification shall promptly be laid before the House by the Speaker.

3. Once notification has been laid before the House, the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall determine whether the issuance of the judicial or administrative subpoena or judicial order described in clause 1 is a proper exercise of jurisdiction by the court, is material and relevant, and is consistent with the privileges and rights of the House. Such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee shall notify the Speaker before seeking judicial determination of these matters.

4. Upon determination whether a judicial or administrative subpoena or judicial order described in clause 1 is a proper exercise of jurisdiction by the court, is material and relevant, and is consistent with the privileges and rights of the House, the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall immediately notify the Speaker of the determination in writing.

5. The Speaker shall inform the House of a determination whether a judicial or administrative subpoena or judicial order described in clause 1 is a proper exercise of jurisdiction by the court, is material and relevant, and is consistent with the privileges and rights of the House. In so informing the House, the Speaker shall generally describe the records or information sought. During a period of recess or adjournment of longer than three days, such notification is not required until the reconvening of the House, when the notification shall promptly be laid before the House by the Speaker.

6. (a) Except as specified in paragraph (b) or otherwise ordered by the House, upon notification to the House that a judicial or administrative subpoena or judicial order described in clause 1 is a proper exercise of jurisdiction by the court, is material and relevant, and is consistent with the privileges and rights of the House, the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall comply with the judicial or administrative subpoena or judicial order by supplying certified copies.

(b) Under no circumstances may minutes or transcripts of executive sessions, or evidence of witnesses in respect thereto, be disclosed or copied. During a period of recess or adjournment of longer than three days, the Speaker may authorize compliance or take such other action as the Speaker considers appropriate under the circumstances. Upon the reconvening of the House, all matters that transpired under this clause shall promptly be laid before the House by the Speaker.

7. A copy of this rule shall be transmitted by the Clerk to the court when a judicial or administrative subpoena or judicial order described in clause 1 is issued and served on a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House.

8. Nothing in this rule shall be construed to deprive, condition, or waive the constitutional or legal privileges or rights applicable or available at any time to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, or of the House itself, or the right of such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee, or of the House itself, to assert such privileges or rights before a court in the United States.

RULE IX

QUESTIONS OF PRIVILEGE

1. Questions of privilege shall be, first, those affecting the rights of the House collectively, its safety, dignity, and the integrity of its proceedings; and second, those affecting the rights, reputation, and conduct of Members,

Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner, individually, in their representative capacity only.

2. (a)(1) A resolution reported as a question of the privileges of the House, or offered from the floor by the Majority Leader or the Minority Leader as a question of the privileges of the House, or offered as privileged under clause 1, section 7, article I of the Constitution, shall have precedence of all other questions except motions to adjourn. A resolution offered from the floor by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner other than the Majority Leader or the Minority Leader as a question of the privileges of the House shall have precedence of all other questions except motions to adjourn only at a time or place, designated by the Speaker, in the legislative schedule within two legislative days after the day on which the proponent announces to the House an intention to offer the resolution and the form of the resolution. Oral announcement of the form of the resolution may be dispensed with by unanimous consent.

(2) The time allotted for debate on a resolution offered from the floor as a question of the privileges of the House shall be equally divided between (A) the proponent of the resolution, and (B) the Majority Leader, the Minority Leader, or a designee, as determined by the Speaker.

(b) A question of personal privilege shall have precedence of all other questions except motions to adjourn.

RULE X

ORGANIZATION OF COMMITTEES

Committees and their legislative jurisdictions

1. There shall be in the House the following standing committees, each of which shall have the jurisdiction and related functions assigned by this clause and clauses 2, 3, and 4. All bills, resolutions, and other matters relating to subjects within the jurisdiction of the standing committees listed in this clause shall be referred to those committees, in accordance with clause 2 of rule XII, as follows:

(a) Committee on Agriculture.

(1) Adulteration of seeds, insect pests, and protection of birds and animals in forest reserves.

(2) Agriculture generally.

(3) Agricultural and industrial chemistry.

(4) Agricultural colleges and experiment stations.

(5) Agricultural economics and research.

(6) Agricultural education extension services.

(7) Agricultural production and marketing and stabilization of prices of agricultural products, and commodities (not including distribution outside of the United States).

General oversight responsibilities

2. (a) The various standing committees shall have general oversight responsibilities as provided in paragraph (b) in order to assist the House in—

(1) its analysis, appraisal, and evaluation of—

(A) the application, administration, execution, and effectiveness of Federal laws; and

(B) conditions and circumstances that may indicate the necessity or desirability of enacting new or additional legislation; and

(2) its formulation, consideration, and enactment of changes in Federal laws, and of such additional legislation as may be necessary or appropriate.

(b)(1) In order to determine whether laws and programs addressing subjects within the jurisdiction of a committee are being implemented and carried out in accordance with the intent of Congress and whether they should be continued, curtailed, or eliminated, each standing committee (other than the Committee on Appropriations) shall review and study on a continuing basis—

(A) the application, administration, execution, and effectiveness of laws and programs addressing subjects within its jurisdiction;

(B) the organization and operation of Federal agencies and entities having responsibilities for the administration and execution of laws and programs addressing subjects within its jurisdiction;

(C) any conditions or circumstances that may indicate the necessity or desirability of enacting new or additional legislation addressing subjects within its jurisdiction (whether or not a bill or resolution has been introduced with respect thereto); and

(D) future research and forecasting on subjects within its jurisdiction.

(2) Each committee to which subparagraph (1) applies having more than 20 members shall establish an oversight subcommittee, or require its subcommittees to conduct oversight in their respective jurisdictions, to assist in carrying out its responsibilities under this clause. The establishment of an oversight subcommittee does not limit the responsibility of a subcommittee with legislative jurisdiction in carrying out its oversight responsibilities.

(c) Each standing committee shall review and study on a continuing basis the impact or probable impact of tax policies affecting subjects within its jurisdiction as described in clauses 1 and 3.

(d)(1) Not later than February 15 of the first session of a Congress, each standing committee shall, in a meeting that is open to the public and with a quorum present, adopt its oversight plan for that Congress. Such plan shall be submitted simultaneously to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform and to the Committee on House Administration. In developing its plan each committee shall, to the maximum extent feasible—

(A) consult with other committees that have jurisdiction over the same or related laws, programs, or agencies within its jurisdiction with the objective of ensuring maximum coordination and cooperation among committees when conducting reviews of such laws, programs, or agencies and include in its plan an explanation of steps that have been or will be taken to ensure such coordination and cooperation;

(B) review specific problems with Federal rules, regulations, statutes, and court decisions that are ambiguous, arbitrary, or nonsensical, or that impose severe financial burdens on individuals;

(C) give priority consideration to including in its plan the review of those laws, programs, or agencies operating under permanent budget authority or permanent statutory authority;

(D) have a view toward ensuring that all significant laws, programs, or agencies within its jurisdiction are subject to review every 10 years;

(E) have a view toward insuring against duplication of Federal programs; and

(F) include proposals to cut or eliminate programs, including mandatory spending programs, that are inefficient, duplicative, outdated, or more appropriately administered by State or local governments.

(2) Not later than March 31 in the first session of a Congress, after consultation with the Speaker, the Majority Leader, and the Minority Leader, the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform shall report to the House the oversight plans submitted by committees together with any recommendations that it, or the House leadership group described above, may make to ensure the most effective coordination of oversight plans and otherwise to achieve the objectives of this clause.

(e) The Speaker, with the approval of the House, may appoint special ad hoc oversight committees for the purpose of reviewing specific matters within the jurisdiction of two or more standing committees.

Special oversight functions

3. (a) The Committee on Appropriations shall conduct such studies and examinations of the organization and operation of executive departments and other executive agencies (including an agency the majority of the stock of which is owned by the United States) as it considers necessary to assist it in the determination of matters within its jurisdiction.

(b) The Committee on Armed Services shall review and study on a continuing basis laws, programs, and Government activities relating to international arms control and disarmament and the education of military dependents in schools.

(c) The Committee on the Budget shall study on a continuing basis the effect on budget outlays of relevant existing and proposed legislation and report the results of such studies to the House on a recurring basis.

(d) The Committee on Education and the Workforce shall review, study, and coordinate on a continuing basis laws, programs, and Government activities relating to domestic educational programs and institutions and programs of student assistance within the jurisdiction of other committees.

(e) The Committee on Energy and Commerce shall review and study on a continuing basis laws, programs, and Government activities relating to nuclear and other energy and nonmilitary nuclear energy research and development including the disposal of nuclear waste.

(f) The Committee on Foreign Affairs shall review and study on a continuing basis laws, programs, and Government activities relating to customs administration, intelligence activities relating to foreign policy, international financial and monetary organizations, and international fishing agreements.

(g)(1) The Committee on Homeland Security shall review and study on a continuing basis all Government activities relating to homeland security, including the interaction of all departments and agencies with the Department of Homeland Security.

(2) In addition, the committee shall review and study on a primary and continuing basis all Government activities, programs, and organizations related to homeland security that fall within its primary legislative jurisdiction.

(h) The Committee on Natural Resources shall review and study on a continuing basis laws, programs, and Government activities relating to Native Americans.

(i) The Committee on Oversight and Government Reform shall review and study on a continuing basis the operation of Government activities at all levels with a view to determining their economy and efficiency.

(j) The Committee on Rules shall review and study on a continuing basis the congressional budget process, and the committee shall report its findings and recommendations to the House from time to time.

(k) The Committee on Science, Space, and Technology shall review and study on a continuing basis laws, programs, and Government activities relating to nonmilitary research and development.

(l) The Committee on Small Business shall study and investigate on a continuing basis the problems of all types of small business.

(m) The Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence shall review and study on a continuing basis laws, programs, and activities of the intelligence community and shall review and study on an exclusive basis the sources and methods of entities described in clause 11(b)(1)(A).

Additional functions of committees

4. (a)(1)(A) The Committee on Appropriations shall, within 30 days after the transmittal of the Budget to Congress each year, hold hearings on the Budget as a whole with particular reference to—

(i) the basic recommendations and budgetary policies of the President in the presentation of the Budget; and

(ii) the fiscal, financial, and economic assumptions used as bases in arriving at total estimated expenditures and receipts.

(B) In holding hearings under subdivision (A), the committee shall receive testimony from the Secretary of the Treasury, the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, the Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, and such other persons as the committee may desire.

(C) A hearing under subdivision (A), or any part thereof, shall be held in open session, except when the committee, in open session and with a quorum present, determines by record vote that the testimony to be taken at that hearing on that day may be related to a matter of national security. The committee may by the same procedure close one subsequent day of hearing. A transcript of all such hearings shall be printed and a copy thereof furnished to each Member, Delegate, and the Resident Commissioner.

(D) A hearing under subdivision (A), or any part thereof, may be held before a joint meeting of the committee and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate in accordance with such procedures as the two committees jointly may determine.

defined in section 3(9) of that Act, and enactment of the bill or joint resolution, as reported, would cause a breach of the committee's pertinent allocation of new budget authority under section 302(a) of that Act, the bill or joint resolution may be referred to the Committee on Appropriations with instructions to report it with recommendations (which may include an amendment limiting the total amount of new entitlement authority provided in the bill or joint resolution). If the Committee on Appropriations fails to report a bill or joint resolution so referred within 15 calendar days (not counting any day on which the House is not in session), the committee automatically shall be discharged from consideration of the bill or joint resolution, and the bill or joint resolution shall be placed on the appropriate calendar.

(3) In addition, the Committee on Appropriations shall study on a continuing basis those provisions of law that (on the first day of the first fiscal year for which the congressional budget process is effective) provide spending authority or permanent budget authority and shall report to the House from time to time its recommendations for terminating or modifying such provisions.

(4) In the manner provided by section 302 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the Committee on Appropriations (after consulting with the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate) shall subdivide any allocations made to it in the joint explanatory statement accompanying the conference report on such concurrent resolution, and promptly report the subdivisions to the House as soon as practicable after a concurrent resolution on the budget for a fiscal year is agreed to.

(b) The Committee on the Budget shall—

(1) review on a continuing basis the conduct by the Congressional Budget Office of its functions and duties;

(2) hold hearings and receive testimony from Members, Senators, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, and such appropriate representatives of Federal departments and agencies, the general public, and national organizations as it considers desirable in developing concurrent resolutions on the budget for each fiscal year;

(3) make all reports required of it by the Congressional Budget Act of 1974;

(4) study on a continuing basis those provisions of law that exempt Federal agencies or any of their activities or outlays from inclusion in the Budget of the United States Government, and report to the House from time to time its recommendations for terminating or modifying such provisions;

(5) study on a continuing basis proposals designed to improve and facilitate the congressional budget process, and report to the House from time to time the results of such studies, together with its recommendations; and

(6) request and evaluate continuing studies of tax expenditures, devise methods of coordinating tax expenditures, policies, and programs with direct budget outlays, and report the results of such studies to the House on a recurring basis.

(c)(1) The Committee on Oversight and Government Reform shall—

(A) receive and examine reports of the Comptroller General of the United States and submit to the House such recommendations as it considers necessary or desirable in connection with the subject matter of the reports;

(B) evaluate the effects of laws enacted to reorganize the legislative and executive branches of the Government; and

(C) study intergovernmental relationships between the United States and the States and municipalities and between the United States and international organizations of which the United States is a member.

(2) In addition to its duties under subparagraph (1), the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform may at any time conduct investigations of any matter without regard to clause 1, 2, 3, or this clause conferring jurisdiction over the matter to another standing committee. The findings and recommendations of the committee in such an investigation shall be made available to any other standing committee having jurisdiction over the matter involved.

(3)(A) The Committee on Oversight and Government Reform may adopt a rule authorizing and regulating the taking of depositions by a member or counsel of the committee, including pursuant to subpoena under clause 2(m) of rule XI (which hereby is made applicable for such purpose).

(B) A rule adopted by the committee pursuant to this subparagraph—

(i) may provide that a deponent be directed to subscribe an oath or affirmation before a person authorized by law to administer the same;

(ii) shall ensure that the minority members and staff of the committee are accorded equitable treatment with respect to notice of and a reasonable opportunity to participate in any proceeding conducted thereunder; and

(iii) shall, unless waived by the deponent, require the attendance of a member of the committee.

(C) Information secured pursuant to the authority described in subdivision (A) shall retain the character of discovery until offered for admission in evidence before the committee, at which time any proper objection shall be timely.

(d)(1) The Committee on House Administration shall—

(A) provide policy direction for the Inspector General and oversight of the Clerk, Sergeant-at-Arms, Chief Administrative Officer, and Inspector General;

(B) oversee the management of services provided to the House by the Architect of the Capitol, except those services that lie within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure under clause 1(r);

(C) have the function of accepting on behalf of the House a gift, except as otherwise provided by law, if the gift does not involve a duty, burden, or condition, or is not made dependent on some future performance by the House;

(D) promulgate regulations to carry out subdivision (C); and

(E) establish and maintain standards for making documents publicly available in electronic form by the House and its committees.

(2) An employing office of the House may enter into a settlement of a complaint under the Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 that provides for the payment of funds only after receiving the joint approval of the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on House Administration concerning the amount of such payment.

(e)(1) Each standing committee shall, in its consideration of all public bills and public joint resolutions within its jurisdiction, ensure that appropriations for continuing programs and activities of the Federal Government and the government of the District of Columbia will be made annually to the maximum extent feasible and consistent with the nature, requirement, and objective of the programs and activities involved. In this subparagraph programs and activities of the Federal Government and the government of the District of Columbia includes programs and activities of any department, agency, establishment, wholly owned Government corporation, or instrumentality of the Federal Government or of the government of the District of Columbia.

(2) Each standing committee shall review from time to time each continuing program within its jurisdiction for which appropriations are not made annually to ascertain whether the program should be modified to provide for annual appropriations.

Budget Act responsibilities

(f)(1) Each standing committee shall submit to the Committee on the Budget not later than six weeks after the submission of the budget by the President, or at such time as the Committee on the Budget may request—

(A) its views and estimates with respect to all matters to be set forth in the concurrent resolution on the budget for the ensuing fiscal year that are within its jurisdiction or functions; and

(B) an estimate of the total amounts of new budget authority, and budget outlays resulting therefrom, to be provided or authorized in all bills and resolutions within its jurisdiction that it intends to be effective during that fiscal year.

(2) The views and estimates submitted by the Committee on Ways and Means under subparagraph (1) shall include a specific recommendation, made after holding public hearings, as to the appropriate level of the public debt that should be set forth in the concurrent resolution on the budget.

Election and membership of standing committees

5. (a)(1) The standing committees specified in clause 1 shall be elected by the House within seven calendar days after the commencement of each Congress, from nominations submitted by the respective party caucus or conference. A resolution proposing to change the composition of a standing committee shall be privileged if offered by direction of the party caucus or conference concerned.

(2)(A) The Committee on the Budget shall be composed of members as follows:

(i) Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner who are members of other standing committees, including five from the Committee on

Appropriations, five from the Committee on Ways and Means, and one from the Committee on Rules;

(ii) one Member designated by the elected leadership of the majority party; and

(iii) one Member designated by the elected leadership of the minority party.

(B) Except as permitted by subdivision (C), a member of the Committee on the Budget other than one described in subdivision (A)(ii) or (A)(iii) may not serve on the committee during more than four Congresses in a period of six successive Congresses (disregarding for this purpose any service for less than a full session in a Congress).

(C) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may exceed the limitation of subdivision (B) if elected to serve a second consecutive Congress as the chair or a second consecutive Congress as the ranking minority member.

(3)(A) The Committee on Ethics shall be composed of 10 members, five from the majority party and five from the minority party.

(B) Except as permitted by subdivision (C), a member of the Committee on Ethics may not serve on the committee during more than three Congresses in a period of five successive Congresses (disregarding for this purpose any service for less than a full session in a Congress).

(C) A member of the Committee on Ethics may serve on the committee during a fourth Congress in a period of five successive Congresses only as either the chair or the ranking minority member of the committee.

(4)(A) At the beginning of a Congress, the Speaker or a designee and the Minority Leader or a designee each shall name 10 Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner from the respective party of such individual who are not members of the Committee on Ethics to be available to serve on investigative subcommittees of that committee during that Congress. The lists of Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner so named shall be announced to the House.

(B) Whenever the chair and the ranking minority member of the Committee on Ethics jointly determine that Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner named under subdivision (A) should be assigned to serve on an investigative subcommittee of that committee, each of them shall select an equal number of such Members, Delegates, or Resident Commissioner from the respective party of such individual to serve on that subcommittee.

(b)(1) Membership on a standing committee during the course of a Congress shall be contingent on continuing membership in the party caucus or conference that nominated the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner concerned for election to such committee. Should a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner cease to be a member of a particular party caucus or conference, that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall automatically cease to be a member of each standing committee to which elected on the basis of nomination by that caucus or conference. The chair of the relevant party caucus or conference shall notify the Speaker whenever a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner ceases to be a member of that caucus or conference. The Speaker shall notify the chair of each affected committee that the election of such Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner to the committee is automatically vacated under this subparagraph.

(2)(A) Except as specified in subdivision (B), a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not serve simultaneously as a member of more than two standing committees or more than four subcommittees of the standing committees.

(B) (i) Ex officio service by a chair or ranking minority member of a committee on each of its subcommittees under a committee rule does not count against the limitation on subcommittee service.

(ii) Service on an investigative subcommittee of the Committee on Ethics under paragraph (a)(4) does not count against the limitation on subcommittee service.

(iii) Any other exception to the limitations in subdivision (A) may be approved by the House on the recommendation of the relevant party caucus or conference.

(C) In this subparagraph the term “subcommittee” includes a panel (other than a special oversight panel of the Committee on Armed Services), task force, special subcommittee, or other subunit of a standing committee that is established for a cumulative period longer than six months in a Congress.

(c)(1) One of the members of each standing committee shall be elected by the House, on the nomination of the majority party caucus or conference, as chair thereof. In the absence of the member serving as chair, the member next in rank (and so on, as often as the case shall happen) shall act as chair. Rank shall be determined by the order members are named in resolutions electing them to the committee. In the case of a vacancy in the elected chair of a committee, the House shall elect another chair.

(2) Except in the case of the Committee on Rules, a member of a standing committee may not serve as chair of the same standing committee, or of the same subcommittee of a standing committee, during more than three consecutive Congresses (disregarding for this purpose any service for less than a full session in a Congress).

(d)(1) Except as permitted by subparagraph (2), a committee may have not more than five subcommittees.

(2) A committee that maintains a subcommittee on oversight may have not more than six subcommittees. The Committee on Appropriations may have not more than 13 subcommittees. The Committee on Oversight and Government Reform may have not more than seven subcommittees.

(e) The House shall fill a vacancy on a standing committee by election on the nomination of the respective party caucus or conference.

Expense resolutions

6. (a) Whenever a committee, commission, or other entity (other than the Committee on Appropriations) is granted authorization for the payment of its expenses (including staff salaries) for a Congress, such authorization initially shall be procured by one primary expense resolution reported by the Committee on House Administration. A primary expense resolution may include a reserve fund for unanticipated expenses of committees. An amount from such a reserve fund may be allocated to a committee only by the approval of the Committee on House Administration. A primary expense resolution reported to the House may not be considered in the House unless a printed report thereon was available on the previous calendar day. For the information of the House, such report shall—

(1) state the total amount of the funds to be provided to the committee, commission, or other entity under the primary expense resolution for all anticipated activities and programs of the committee, commission, or other entity; and

(2) to the extent practicable, contain such general statements regarding the estimated foreseeable expenditures for the respective anticipated activities and programs of the committee, commission, or other entity as may be appropriate to provide the House with basic estimates of the expenditures contemplated by the primary expense resolution.

(b) After the date of adoption by the House of a primary expense resolution for a committee, commission, or other entity for a Congress, authorization for the payment of additional expenses (including staff salaries) in that Congress may be procured by one or more supplemental expense resolutions reported by the Committee on House Administration, as necessary. A supplemental expense resolution reported to the House may not be considered in the House unless a printed report thereon was available on the previous calendar day. For the information of the House, such report shall—

(1) state the total amount of additional funds to be provided to the committee, commission, or other entity under the supplemental expense resolution and the purposes for which those additional funds are available; and

(2) state the reasons for the failure to procure the additional funds for the committee, commission, or other entity by means of the primary expense resolution.

(c) The preceding provisions of this clause do not apply to—

(1) a resolution providing for the payment from committee salary and expense accounts of the House of sums necessary to pay compensation for staff services performed for, or to pay other expenses of, a committee, commission, or other entity at any time after the beginning of an odd-numbered year and before the date of adoption by the House of the primary expense resolution described in paragraph (a) for that year; or

(2) a resolution providing each of the standing committees in a Congress additional office equipment, airmail and special-delivery postage stamps, supplies, staff personnel, or any other specific item for the operation of the standing committees, and containing an authorization for the payment from committee salary and expense accounts of the House of the expenses of any of the foregoing items provided by that resolution, subject to and until enactment of the provisions of the resolution as permanent law.

(d) From the funds made available for the appointment of committee staff by a primary or additional expense resolution, the chair of each committee shall ensure that sufficient staff is made available to each subcommittee to carry out its responsibilities under the rules of the committee and that the minority party is treated fairly in the appointment of such staff.

(e) Funds authorized for a committee under this clause and clauses 7 and 8 are for expenses incurred in the activities of the committee.

Interim funding

7. (a) For the period beginning at noon on January 3 and ending at midnight on March 31 in each odd-numbered year, such sums as may be necessary shall be paid out of the committee salary and expense accounts of the House for continuance of necessary investigations and studies by—

(1) each standing and select committee established by these rules; and

(2) except as specified in paragraph (b), each select committee established by resolution.

(b) In the case of the first session of a Congress, amounts shall be made available for a select committee established by resolution in the preceding Congress only if—

(1) a resolution proposing to reestablish such select committee is introduced in the present Congress; and

(2) the House has not adopted a resolution of the preceding Congress providing for termination of funding for investigations and studies by such select committee.

(c) Each committee described in paragraph (a) shall be entitled for each month during the period specified in paragraph (a) to 9 percent (or such lesser percentage as may be determined by the Committee on House Administration) of the total annualized amount made available under expense resolutions for such committee in the preceding session of Congress.

(d) Payments under this clause shall be made on vouchers authorized by the committee involved, signed by the chair of the committee, except as provided in paragraph (e), and approved by the Committee on House Administration.

(e) Notwithstanding any provision of law, rule of the House, or other authority, from noon on January 3 of the first session of a Congress until the election by the House of the committee concerned in that Congress, payments under this clause shall be made on vouchers signed by the ranking member of the committee as it was constituted at the expiration of the preceding Congress who is a member of the majority party in the present Congress.

(f)(1) The authority of a committee to incur expenses under this clause shall expire upon adoption by the House of a primary expense resolution for the committee.

(2) Amounts made available under this clause shall be expended in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Committee on House Administration.

(3) This clause shall be effective only insofar as it is not inconsistent with a resolution reported by the Committee on House Administration and adopted by the House after the adoption of these rules.

Travel

8. (a) Local currencies owned by the United States shall be made available to the committee and its employees engaged in carrying out their official duties outside the United States or its territories or possessions. Appropriated funds, including those authorized under this clause and clause 6, may not be expended for the purpose of defraying expenses of members of a committee or its employees in a country where local currencies are available for this purpose.

(b) The following conditions shall apply with respect to travel outside the United States or its territories or possessions:

(1) A member or employee of a committee may not receive or expend local currencies for subsistence in a country for a day at a rate in excess of the maximum per diem set forth in applicable Federal law.

(2) A member or employee shall be reimbursed for the expenses of such individual for a day at the lesser of

(A) the per diem set forth in applicable Federal law; or

(B) the actual, unreimbursed expenses (other than for transportation) incurred during that day.

(3) Each member or employee of a committee shall make to the chair of the committee an itemized report showing the dates each country was visited, the amount of per diem furnished, the cost of transportation furnished, and funds expended for any other official purpose and shall summarize in these categories the total foreign currencies or appropriated funds expended. Each report shall be filed with the chair of the committee not later than 60 days following the completion of travel for use in complying with reporting requirements in applicable Federal law and shall be open for public inspection.

(c)(1) In carrying out the activities of a committee outside the United States in a country where local currencies are unavailable, a member or employee of a committee may not receive reimbursement for expenses (other than for transportation) in excess of the maximum per diem set forth in applicable Federal law.

(2) A member or employee shall be reimbursed for the expenses of such individual for a day, at the lesser of—

(A) the per diem set forth in applicable Federal law;
or

(B) the actual unreimbursed expenses (other than for transportation) incurred during that day.

(3) A member or employee of a committee may not receive reimbursement for the cost of any transportation in connection with travel outside the United States unless the member or employee actually paid for the transportation.

(d) The restrictions respecting travel outside the United States set forth in paragraph (c) also shall apply to travel outside the United States by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House authorized under any standing rule.

Committee staffs

9. (a)(1) Subject to subparagraph (2) and paragraph (f), each standing committee may appoint, by majority vote, not more than 30 professional staff members to be compensated from the funds provided for the appointment of committee staff by primary and additional expense resolutions. Each professional staff member appointed under this subparagraph shall be assigned to the chair and the ranking minority member of the committee, as the committee considers advisable.

(2) Subject to paragraph (f) whenever a majority of the minority party members of a standing committee (other than the Committee on Ethics or the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence) so request, not more than 10 persons (or one-third of the total professional committee staff appointed under this clause, whichever is fewer) may be selected, by majority vote of the minority party members, for appointment by the committee as professional staff members under subparagraph (1). The committee shall appoint persons so selected whose character and qualifications are acceptable to a majority of the committee. If the committee determines that the character and qualifications of a person so selected are unacceptable, a majority of the minority party members may select another person for appointment by the committee to the professional staff until such appointment is made. Each professional staff member appointed under this subparagraph shall be assigned to such committee business as the minority party members of the committee consider advisable.

(b)(1) The professional staff members of each standing committee—

(A) may not engage in any work other than committee business during congressional working hours; and

(B) may not be assigned a duty other than one pertaining to committee business.

(2)(A) Subparagraph (1) does not apply to staff designated by a committee as “associate” or “shared” staff who are not paid exclusively by the committee, provided that the chair certifies that the compensation paid by the committee for any such staff is commensurate with the work performed for the committee in accordance with clause 8 of rule XXIII.

(B) The use of any “associate” or “shared” staff by a committee other than the Committee on Appropriations shall be subject to the review of, and to any terms, conditions, or limitations established by, the Committee on House Administration in connection with the reporting of any primary or additional expense resolution.

(c) Each employee on the professional or investigative staff of a standing committee shall be entitled to pay at a single gross per annum rate, to be fixed by the chair and that does not exceed the maximum rate of pay as in effect from time to time under applicable provisions of law.

(d) Subject to appropriations hereby authorized, the Committee on Appropriations may appoint by majority vote such staff as it determines to be necessary (in addition to the clerk of the committee and assistants for the minority). The staff appointed under this paragraph, other than minority assistants, shall possess such qualifications as the committee may prescribe.

(e) A committee may not appoint to its staff an expert or other personnel detailed or assigned from a department or agency of the Government except with the written permission of the Committee on House Administration.

(f) If a request for the appointment of a minority professional staff member under paragraph (a) is made when no vacancy exists for such an appointment, the committee nevertheless may appoint under paragraph (a) a person selected by the minority and acceptable to the committee. A person so appointed shall serve as an additional member of the professional staff of the committee until such a vacancy occurs (other than a vacancy in the position of head of the professional staff, by whatever title designated), at which time that person is considered as appointed to that vacancy. Such a person shall be paid from the applicable accounts of the House described in clause 1(k)(1) of rule X. If such a vacancy occurs on the professional staff when seven or more persons have been so appointed who are eligible to fill that vacancy, a majority of the minority party members shall designate which of those persons shall fill the vacancy.

(g) Each staff member appointed pursuant to a request by minority party members under paragraph (a), and each staff member appointed to assist minority members of a committee pursuant to an expense resolution described in clause 6(a), shall be accorded equitable treatment with respect to the fixing of the rate of pay, the assignment of work facilities, and the accessibility of committee records.

(h) Paragraph (a) may not be construed to authorize the appointment of additional professional staff members of a committee pursuant to a request under paragraph (a) by the minority party members of that committee if 10 or more professional staff members provided for in paragraph (a)(1) who are satisfactory to a majority of the minority party members are otherwise assigned to assist the minority party members.

(i) Notwithstanding paragraph (a)(2), a committee may employ nonpartisan staff, in lieu of or in addition to committee staff designated exclusively for the majority or minority party, by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the majority party and of a majority of the members of the minority party.

Select and joint committees

10. (a) Membership on a select or joint committee appointed by the Speaker under clause 11 of rule I during the course of a Congress shall be contingent on continuing membership in the party caucus or conference of which the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner concerned was a member at the time of appointment. Should a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner cease to be a member of that caucus or conference, that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall automatically cease to be a member of any select or joint committee to which assigned. The chair of the relevant party caucus or conference shall notify the Speaker whenever a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner ceases to be a member of a party caucus or conference. The Speaker shall notify the chair of each affected select or joint committee that the appointment of such Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner to the select or joint committee is automatically vacated under this paragraph.

(b) Each select or joint committee, other than a conference committee, shall comply with clause 2(a) of rule XI unless specifically exempted by law.

Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence

11. (a)(1) There is established a Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence (hereafter in this clause referred to as the “select committee”). The select committee shall be composed of not more than 20 Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner, of whom not more than 12 may be from the same party. The select committee shall include at least one Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner from each of the following committees:

- (A) the Committee on Appropriations;
- (B) the Committee on Armed Services;
- (C) the Committee on Foreign Affairs; and
- (D) the Committee on the Judiciary.

(2) The Speaker and the Minority Leader shall be ex officio members of the select committee but shall have no vote in the select committee and may not be counted for purposes of determining a quorum thereof.

(3) The Speaker and Minority Leader each may designate a respective leadership staff member to assist in the capacity of the Speaker or Minority Leader as ex officio member, with the same access to committee meetings, hearings, briefings, and materials as employees of the select committee and subject to the same security clearance and confidentiality requirements as employees of the select committee under this clause.

(4)(A) Except as permitted by subdivision (B), a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, other than the Speaker or the Minority Leader, may not serve as a member of the select committee during more than four Congresses in a period of six successive Congresses (disregarding for this purpose any service for less than a full session in a Congress).

(B) In the case of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner appointed to serve as the chair or the ranking minority member of the select committee, tenure on the select committee shall not be limited.

(b)(1) There shall be referred to the select committee proposed legislation, messages, petitions, memorials, and other matters relating to the following:

(A) The Central Intelligence Agency, the Director of National Intelligence, and the National Intelligence Program as defined in section 3(6) of the National Security Act of 1947.

(B) Intelligence and intelligence-related activities of all other departments and agencies of the Government, including the tactical intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the Department of Defense.

(C) The organization or reorganization of a department or agency of the Government to the extent that the organization or reorganization relates to a function or activity involving intelligence or intelligence-related activities.

(D) Authorizations for appropriations, both direct and indirect, for the following:

(i) The Central Intelligence Agency, the Director of National Intelligence, and the National Intelligence Program as defined in section 3(6) of the National Security Act of 1947.

(ii) Intelligence and intelligence-related activities of all other departments and agencies of the Government, including the tactical intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the Department of Defense.

(iii) A department, agency, subdivision, or program that is a successor to an agency or program named or referred to in (i) or (ii).

(2) Proposed legislation initially reported by the select committee (other than provisions solely involving matters specified in subparagraph (1)(A) or subparagraph (1)(D) (i)) containing any matter otherwise within the jurisdiction of a standing committee shall be referred by the Speaker to that standing committee. Proposed legislation initially reported by another committee that contains matter within the jurisdiction of the select committee shall be referred by the Speaker to the select committee if requested by the chair of the select committee.

(3) Nothing in this clause shall be construed as prohibiting or otherwise restricting the authority of any other committee to study and review an intelligence or intelligence-related activity to the extent that such activity directly affects a matter otherwise within the jurisdiction of that committee.

(4) Nothing in this clause shall be construed as amending, limiting, or otherwise changing the authority of a standing committee to obtain full and prompt access to the product of the intelligence and intelligence-related activities of a department or agency of the Government relevant to a matter otherwise within the jurisdiction of that committee.

(c)(1) For purposes of accountability to the House, the select committee shall make regular and periodic reports to the House on the nature and extent of the intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the various departments and agencies of the United States. The select committee shall promptly call to the attention of the House, or to any other appropriate committee, a matter requiring the attention of the House or another committee. In making such report, the select committee shall proceed in a manner consistent with paragraph (g) to protect national security.

(2) The select committee shall obtain annual reports from the Director of National Intelligence, the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of State, and the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Such reports shall review the intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the agency or department concerned and the intelligence and intelligence-related activities of foreign countries directed at the United States or its interests. An unclassified version of each report may be made available to the public at the discretion of the select committee. Nothing herein shall be construed as requiring the public disclosure in such reports of the names of persons engaged in intelligence or intelligence-related activities for the United States or the divulging of intelligence methods employed or the sources of information on which the reports are based or the amount of funds authorized to be appropriated for intelligence and intelligence-related activities.

(3) Within six weeks after the President submits a budget under section 1105(a) of title 31, United States Code, or at such time as the Committee on the Budget may request, the select committee shall submit to the Committee on the Budget the views and estimates described in section 301(d) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 regarding matters within the jurisdiction of the select committee.

(d)(1) Except as specified in subparagraph (2), clauses 8(a), (b), and (c) and 9(a), (b), and (c) of this rule, and clauses 1, 2, and 4 of rule XI shall apply to the select committee to the extent not inconsistent with this clause.

(2) Notwithstanding the requirements of the first sentence of clause 2(g)(2) of rule XI, in the presence of the number of members required under the rules of the select committee for the purpose of taking testimony or receiving evidence, the select committee may vote to close a hearing whenever a majority of those present determines that the testimony or evidence would endanger the national security.

(e) An employee of the select committee, or a person engaged by contract or otherwise to perform services for or at the request of the select committee, may not be given access to any classified information by the select committee unless such employee or person has—

(1) agreed in writing and under oath to be bound by the Rules of the House, including the jurisdiction of the Committee on Ethics and of the select committee concerning the security of classified information during and after the period of the employment or contractual agreement of such employee or person with the select committee; and

(2) received an appropriate security clearance, as determined by the select committee in consultation with the Director of National Intelligence, that is commensurate with the sensitivity of the classified information to which such employee or person will be given access by the select committee.

(f) The select committee shall formulate and carry out such rules and procedures as it considers necessary to prevent the disclosure, without the consent of each person concerned, of information in the possession of the select committee that unduly infringes on the privacy or that violates the constitutional rights of such person. Nothing herein shall be construed to prevent the select committee from publicly disclosing classified information in a case in which it determines that national interest in the disclosure of classified information clearly outweighs any infringement on the privacy of a person.

(g)(1) The select committee may disclose publicly any information in its possession after a determination by the select committee that the public interest would be served by such disclosure. With respect to the disclosure of information for which this paragraph requires action by the select committee—

(A) the select committee shall meet to vote on the matter within five days after a member of the select committee requests a vote; and

(B) a member of the select committee may not make such a disclosure before a vote by the select committee on the matter, or after a vote by the select committee on the matter except in accordance with this paragraph.

(2)(A) In a case in which the select committee votes to disclose publicly any information that has been classified under established security procedures, that has been submitted to it by the executive branch, and that the executive branch requests be kept secret, the select committee shall notify the President of such vote.

(B) The select committee may disclose publicly such information after the expiration of a five-day period following the day on which notice of the vote to disclose is transmitted to the President unless, before the expiration of the five-day period, the President, personally in writing, notifies the select committee that the President objects to the disclosure of such information, provides reasons therefor, and certifies that the threat to the national interest of the United States posed by the disclosure is of such gravity that it outweighs any public interest in the disclosure.

(C) If the President, personally in writing, notifies the select committee of objections to the disclosure of information as provided in subdivision (B), the select committee may, by majority vote, refer the question of the disclosure of such information, with a recommendation thereon, to the House. The select committee may not publicly disclose such information without leave of the House.

(D) Whenever the select committee votes to refer the question of disclosure of any information to the House under subdivision (C), the chair shall, not later than the first day on which the House is in session following the day on which the vote occurs, report the matter to the House for its consideration.

(E) If the chair of the select committee does not offer in the House a motion to consider in closed session a matter reported under subdivision (D) within four calendar days on which the House is in session after the recommendation described in subdivision (C) is reported, then such a motion shall be privileged when offered by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner. In either case such a motion shall be decided without debate or intervening motion except one that the House adjourn.

(F) Upon adoption by the House of a motion to resolve into closed session as described in subdivision (E), the Speaker may declare a recess subject to the call of the Chair. At the expiration of the recess, the pending question, in closed session, shall be, "Shall the House approve the recommendation of the select committee?"

(G) Debate on the question described in subdivision (F) shall be limited to two hours equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the select committee. After such debate the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the question of approving the recommendation without intervening motion except one motion that the House adjourn. The House shall vote on the question in open session but without divulging the information with respect to which the vote is taken. If the recommendation of the select committee is not approved, then the question is considered as recommitted to the select committee for further recommendation.

(3)(A) Information in the possession of the select committee relating to the lawful intelligence or intelligence-related activities of a department or agency of the United States that has been classified under established security procedures, and that the select committee has determined should not be disclosed under subparagraph (1) or (2), may not be made available to any person by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House except as provided in subdivision (B).

(B) The select committee shall, under such regulations as it may prescribe, make information described in subdivision (A) available to a committee or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, and permit a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner to attend a hearing of the select committee that is closed to the public. Whenever the select committee makes such information available, it shall keep a written record showing, in the case of particular information, which committee or which Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner received the information. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who, and a committee that, receives information under this subdivision may not disclose the information except in a closed session of the House.

(4) The Committee on Ethics shall investigate any unauthorized disclosure of intelligence or intelligence-related information by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House in violation of subparagraph (3) and report to the House concerning any allegation that it finds to be substantiated.

(5) Upon the request of a person who is subject to an investigation described in subparagraph (4), the Committee on Ethics shall release to such person at the conclusion of its investigation a summary of its investigation, together with its findings. If, at the conclusion of its investigation, the Committee on Ethics determines that there has been a significant breach of confidentiality or unauthorized disclosure by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, it shall report its findings to the House and recommend appropriate action. Recommendations may include censure, removal from committee membership, or expulsion from the House, in the case of a Member, or removal from office or employment or punishment for contempt, in the case of an officer or employee.

(h) The select committee may permit a personal representative of the President, designated by the President to serve as a liaison to the select committee, to attend any closed meeting of the select committee.

(i) Subject to the Rules of the House, funds may not be appropriated for a fiscal year, with the exception of a bill or joint resolution continuing appropriations, or an amendment thereto, or a conference report thereon, to, or for use of, a department or agency of the United States to carry out any of the following activities, unless the funds shall previously have been authorized by a bill or joint resolution passed by the House during the same or preceding fiscal year to carry out such activity for such fiscal year:

(1) The activities of the Director of National Intelligence and the Office of the Director of National Intelligence.

(2) The activities of the Central Intelligence Agency.

(3) The activities of the Defense Intelligence Agency.

(4) The activities of the National Security Agency.

(5) The intelligence and intelligence-related activities of other agencies and subdivisions of the Department of Defense.

(6) The intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the Department of State.

(7) The intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

(8) The intelligence and intelligence-related activities of all other departments and agencies of the executive branch.

(j)(1) In this clause the term “intelligence and intelligence-related activities” includes—

(A) the collection, analysis, production, dissemination, or use of information that relates to a foreign country, or a government, political group, party, military force, movement, or other association in a foreign country, and that relates to the defense, foreign policy, national security, or related policies of the United States and other activity in support of the collection, analysis, production, dissemination, or use of such information;

(B) activities taken to counter similar activities directed against the United States;

(C) covert or clandestine activities affecting the relations of the United States with a foreign government, political group, party, military force, movement, or other association;

(D) the collection, analysis, production, dissemination, or use of information about activities of persons within the United States, its territories and possessions, or nationals of the United States abroad whose political and related activities pose, or may be considered by a department, agency, bureau, office, division, instrumentality, or employee of the United States to pose, a threat to the internal security of the United States; and

(E) covert or clandestine activities directed against persons described in subdivision (D).

(2) In this clause the term “department or agency” includes any organization, committee, council, establishment, or office within the Federal Government.

(3) For purposes of this clause, reference to a department, agency, bureau, or subdivision shall include a reference to any successor department, agency, bureau, or subdivision to the extent that a successor engages in intelligence or intelligence-related activities now conducted by the department, agency, bureau, or subdivision referred to in this clause.

(k) Clause 12(a) of rule XXII does not apply to meetings of a conference committee respecting legislation (or any part thereof) reported by the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence.

RULE XI

PROCEDURES OF COMMITTEES AND UNFINISHED BUSINESS

In general

1. (a)(1)(A) The Rules of the House are the rules of its committees and subcommittees so far as applicable.

(B) Each subcommittee is a part of its committee and is subject to the authority and direction of that committee and to its rules, so far as applicable.

(2)(A) In a committee or subcommittee—

(i) a motion to recess from day to day, or to recess subject to the call of the Chair (within 24 hours), shall be privileged; and

(ii) a motion to dispense with the first reading (in full) of a bill or resolution shall be privileged if printed copies are available.

(B) A motion accorded privilege under this subparagraph shall be decided without debate.

(b)(1) Each committee may conduct at any time such investigations and studies as it considers necessary or appropriate in the exercise of its responsibilities under rule X. Subject to the adoption of expense resolutions as required by clause 6 of rule X, each committee may incur expenses, including travel expenses, in connection with such investigations and studies.

(2) A proposed investigative or oversight report shall be considered as read in committee if it has been available to the members for at least 24 hours (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, or legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day).

(3) A report of an investigation or study conducted jointly by more than one committee may be filed jointly, provided that each of the committees complies independently with all requirements for approval and filing of the report.

(4) After an adjournment sine die of the last regular session of a Congress, an investigative or oversight report may be filed with the Clerk at any time, provided that a member who gives timely notice of intention to file supplemental, minority, or additional views shall be entitled to not less than seven calendar days in which to submit such views for inclusion in the report.

(c) Each committee may have printed and bound such testimony and other data as may be presented at hearings held by the committee or its subcommittees. All costs of stenographic services and transcripts in connection with a meeting or hearing of a committee shall be paid from the applicable accounts of the House described in clause 1(k) (1) of rule X.

(d)(1) Not later than the 30th day after June 1 and December 1, a committee shall submit to the House a semiannual report on the activities of that committee.

(2) Such report shall include—

(A) separate sections summarizing the legislative and oversight activities of that committee under this rule and rule X during the applicable period;

(B) in the case of the first such report, a summary of the oversight plans submitted by the committee under clause 2(d) of rule X;

(C) a summary of the actions taken and recommendations made with respect to the oversight plans specified in subdivision (B);

(D) a summary of any additional oversight activities undertaken by that committee and any recommendations made or actions taken thereon; and

(E) a delineation of any hearings held pursuant to clauses 2(n), (o), or (p) of this rule.

(3) After an adjournment sine die of a regular session of a Congress, or after December 15, whichever occurs first, the chair of a committee may file the second or fourth semiannual report described in subparagraph (1) with the Clerk at any time and without approval of the committee, provided that—

(A) a copy of the report has been available to each member of the committee for at least seven calendar days; and

(B) the report includes any supplemental, minority, or additional views submitted by a member of the committee.

Adoption of written rules

2. (a)(1) Each standing committee shall adopt written rules governing its procedure. Such rules—

(A) shall be adopted in a meeting that is open to the public unless the committee, in open session and with a quorum present, determines by record vote that all or part of the meeting on that day shall be closed to the public;

(B) may not be inconsistent with the Rules of the House or with those provisions of law having the force and effect of Rules of the House; and

(C) shall in any event incorporate all of the succeeding provisions of this clause to the extent applicable.

(2) Each committee shall make its rules publicly available in electronic form and submit such rules for publication in the Congressional Record not later than 30 days after the chair of the committee is elected in each odd-numbered year.

(3) A committee may adopt a rule providing that the chair be directed to offer a motion under clause 1 of rule XXII whenever the chair considers it appropriate.

Regular meeting days

(b) Each standing committee shall establish regular meeting days for the conduct of its business, which shall be not less frequent than monthly. Each such committee shall meet for the consideration of a bill or resolution pending before the committee or the transaction of other committee business on all regular meeting days fixed by the committee unless otherwise provided by written rule adopted by the committee.

Additional and special meetings

(c)(1) The chair of each standing committee may call and convene, as the chair considers necessary, additional and special meetings of the committee for the consideration of a bill or resolution pending before the committee or for the conduct of other committee business, subject to such rules as the committee may adopt. The committee shall meet for such purpose under that call of the chair.

(2) Three or more members of a standing committee may file in the offices of the committee a written request that the chair call a special meeting of the committee. Such request shall specify the measure or matter to be considered. Immediately upon the filing of the request, the clerk of the committee shall notify the chair of the filing of the request. If the chair does not call the requested special meeting within three calendar days after the filing of the request (to be held within seven calendar days after the filing of the request) a majority of the members of the committee may file in the offices of the committee their written notice that a special meeting of the committee will be held. The written notice shall specify the date and hour of the special meeting and the measure or matter to be considered. The committee shall meet on that date and hour. Immediately upon the filing of the notice, the clerk of the committee shall notify all members of the committee that such special meeting will be held and inform them of its date and hour and the measure or matter to be considered. Only the measure or matter specified in that notice may be considered at that special meeting.

Temporary absence of chair

(d) A member of the majority party on each standing committee or subcommittee thereof shall be designated by the chair of the full committee as the vice chair of the committee or subcommittee, as the case may be, and shall preside during the absence of the chair from any meeting. If the chair and vice chair of a committee or subcommittee are not present at any meeting of the committee or subcommittee, the ranking majority member who is present shall preside at that meeting.

Committee records

(e)(1)(A) Each committee shall keep a complete record of all committee action which shall include—

(i) in the case of a meeting or hearing transcript, a substantially verbatim account of remarks actually made during the proceedings, subject only to technical, grammatical, and typographical corrections authorized by the person making the remarks involved; and

(ii) a record of the votes on any question on which a record vote is demanded.

(B) (i) Except as provided in subdivision (B)(ii) and subject to paragraph (k)(7), the result of each such record vote shall be made available by the committee for inspection by the public at reasonable times in its offices and also made publicly available in electronic form within 48 hours of such record vote. Information so available shall include a description of the amendment, motion, order, or other proposition, the name of each member voting for and each member voting against such amendment, motion, order, or proposition, and the names of those members of the committee present but not voting.

(ii) The result of any record vote taken in executive session in the Committee on Ethics may not be made available for inspection by the public without an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee.

(2)(A) Except as provided in subdivision (B), all committee hearings, records, data, charts, and files shall be kept separate and distinct from the congressional office records of the member serving as its chair. Such records shall be the property of the House, and each Member, Delegate, and the Resident Commissioner shall have access thereto.

(B) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, other than members of the Committee on Ethics, may not have access to the records of that committee respecting the conduct of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House without the specific prior permission of that committee.

(3) Each committee shall include in its rules standards for availability of records of the committee delivered to the Archivist of the United States under rule VII. Such standards shall specify procedures for orders of the committee under clause 3(b)(3) and clause 4(b) of rule VII, including a requirement that nonavailability of a record for a period longer than the period otherwise applicable under that rule shall be approved by vote of the committee.

(4) Each committee shall make its publications available in electronic form to the maximum extent feasible.

(5) To the maximum extent practicable, each committee shall—

(A) provide audio and video coverage of each hearing or meeting for the transaction of business in a manner that allows the public to easily listen to and view the proceedings; and

(B) maintain the recordings of such coverage in a manner that is easily accessible to the public.

(6) Not later than 24 hours after the adoption of any amendment to a measure or matter considered by a committee, the chair of such committee shall cause the text of each such amendment to be made publicly available in electronic form.

Prohibition against proxy voting

(f) A vote by a member of a committee or subcommittee with respect to any measure or matter may not be cast by proxy.

Open meetings and hearings

(g)(1) Each meeting for the transaction of business, including the markup of legislation, by a standing committee or subcommittee thereof (other than the Committee on Ethics or its subcommittees) shall be open to the public, including to radio, television, and still photography coverage, except when the committee or subcommittee, in open session and with a majority present, determines by record vote that all or part of the remainder of the meeting on that day shall be in executive session because disclosure of matters to be considered would endanger national security, would compromise sensitive law enforcement information, would tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person, or otherwise would violate a law or rule of the House. Persons, other than members of the committee and such noncommittee Members, Delegates, Resident Commissioner, congressional staff, or departmental representatives as the committee may authorize, may not be present at a business or markup session that is held in executive session. This subparagraph does not apply to open committee hearings, which are governed by clause 4(a)(1) of rule X or by subparagraph (2).

(2)(A) Each hearing conducted by a committee or subcommittee (other than the Committee on Ethics or its subcommittees) shall be open to the public, including to radio, television, and still photography coverage, except when the committee or subcommittee, in open session and with a majority present, determines by record vote that all or part of the remainder of that hearing on that day shall be closed to the public because disclosure of testimony, evidence, or other matters to be considered would endanger national security, would compromise sensitive law enforcement information, or would violate a law or rule of the House.

(B) Notwithstanding the requirements of subdivision (A), in the presence of the number of members required under the rules of the committee for the purpose of taking testimony, a majority of those present may—

(i) agree to close the hearing for the sole purpose of discussing whether testimony or evidence to be received would endanger national security, would compromise sensitive law enforcement information, or would violate clause 2(k)(5); or

(ii) agree to close the hearing as provided in clause 2(k)(5).

(C) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not be excluded from non—participatory attendance at a hearing of a committee or subcommittee (other than the Committee on Ethics or its subcommittees) unless the House by majority vote authorizes a particular committee or subcommittee, for purposes of a particular series of hearings on a particular article of legislation or on a particular subject of investigation, to close its hearings to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner by the same procedures specified in this subparagraph for closing hearings to the public.

(D) The committee or subcommittee may vote by the same procedure described in this subparagraph to close one subsequent day of hearing, except that the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on Armed Services, and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, and the subcommittees thereof, may vote by the same procedure to close up to five additional, consecutive days of hearings.

(3)(A) The chair of a committee shall announce the date, place, and subject matter of—

(i) a committee hearing, which may not commence earlier than one week after such notice; or

(ii) a committee meeting, which may not commence earlier than the third day on which members have notice thereof.

(B) A hearing or meeting may begin sooner than specified in subdivision (A) in either of the following circumstances (in which case the chair shall make the announcement specified in subdivision (A) at the earliest possible time):

(i) the chair of the committee, with the concurrence of the ranking minority member, determines that there is good cause; or

(ii) the committee so determines by majority vote in the presence of the number of members required under the rules of the committee for the transaction of business.

(C) An announcement made under this subparagraph shall be published promptly in the Daily Digest and made publicly available in electronic form.

(D) This subparagraph and subparagraph (4) shall not apply to the Committee on Rules.

(4) At least 24 hours prior to the commencement of a meeting for the markup of legislation, or at the time of an announcement under subparagraph (3)(B) made within 24 hours before such meeting, the chair of the committee shall cause the text of such legislation to be made publicly available in electronic form.

(5) Each committee shall, to the greatest extent practicable, require witnesses who appear before it to submit in advance written statements of proposed testimony and to limit their initial presentations to the committee to brief summaries thereof. In the case of a witness appearing in a nongovernmental capacity, a written statement of proposed testimony shall include a curriculum vitae and a disclosure of the amount and source (by agency and program) of each Federal grant (or subgrant thereof) or contract (or subcontract thereof) received during the current fiscal year or either of the two previous fiscal years by the witness or by an entity represented by the witness. Such statements, with appropriate redactions to protect the privacy of the witness, shall be made publicly available in electronic form not later than one day after the witness appears.

(6)(A) Except as provided in subdivision (B), a point of order does not lie with respect to a measure reported by a committee on the ground that hearings on such measure were not conducted in accordance with this clause.

(B) A point of order on the ground described in subdivision (A) may be made by a member of the committee that reported the measure if such point of order was timely made and improperly disposed of in the committee.

(7) This paragraph does not apply to hearings of the Committee on Appropriations under clause 4(a)(1) of rule X.

Quorum requirements

(h)(1) A measure or recommendation may not be reported by a committee unless a majority of the committee is actually present.

(2) Each committee may fix the number of its members to constitute a quorum for taking testimony and receiving evidence, which may not be less than two.

(3) Each committee (other than the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on the Budget, and the Committee on Ways and Means) may fix the number of its members to constitute a quorum for taking any action other than one for which the presence of a majority of the committee is otherwise required, which may not be less than one-third of the members.

(4)(A) Each committee may adopt a rule authorizing the chair of a committee or subcommittee—

(i) to postpone further proceedings when a record vote is ordered on the question of approving a measure or matter or on adopting an amendment; and

(ii) to resume proceedings on a postponed question at any time after reasonable notice.

(B) A rule adopted pursuant to this subparagraph shall provide that when proceedings resume on a postponed question, notwithstanding any intervening order for the previous question, an underlying proposition shall remain subject to further debate or amendment to the same extent as when the question was postponed.

Limitation on committee sittings

(i) A committee may not sit during a joint session of the House and Senate or during a recess when a joint meeting of the House and Senate is in progress.

Calling and questioning of witnesses

(j)(1) Whenever a hearing is conducted by a committee on a measure or matter, the minority members of the committee shall be entitled, upon request to the chair by a majority of them before the completion of the hearing, to call witnesses selected by the minority to testify with respect to that measure or matter during at least one day of hearing thereon.

(2)(A) Subject to subdivisions (B) and (C), each committee shall apply the five-minute rule during the questioning of witnesses in a hearing until such time as each member of the committee who so desires has had an opportunity to question each witness.

(B) A committee may adopt a rule or motion permitting a specified number of its members to question a witness for longer than five minutes. The time for extended questioning of a witness under this subdivision shall be equal for the majority party and the minority party and may not exceed one hour in the aggregate.

(C) A committee may adopt a rule or motion permitting committee staff for its majority and minority party members to question a witness for equal specified periods. The time for extended questioning of a witness under this subdivision shall be equal for the majority party and the minority party and may not exceed one hour in the aggregate.

Hearing procedures

(k)(1) The chair at a hearing shall announce in an opening statement the subject of the hearing.

(2) A copy of the committee rules and of this clause shall be made available to each witness on request.

(3) Witnesses at hearings may be accompanied by their own counsel for the purpose of advising them concerning their constitutional rights.

(4) The chair may punish breaches of order and decorum, and of professional ethics on the part of counsel, by censure and exclusion from the hearings; and the committee may cite the offender to the House for contempt.

(5) Whenever it is asserted by a member of the committee that the evidence or testimony at a hearing may tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person, or it is asserted by a witness that the evidence or testimony that the witness would give at a hearing may tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate the witness—

(A) notwithstanding paragraph (g)(2), such testimony or evidence shall be presented in executive session if, in the presence of the number of members required under the rules of the committee for the purpose of taking testimony, the committee determines by vote of a majority of those present that such evidence or testimony may tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person; and

(B) the committee shall proceed to receive such testimony in open session only if the committee, a majority being present, determines that such evidence or testimony will not tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person.

In either case the committee shall afford such person an opportunity voluntarily to appear as a witness, and receive and dispose of requests from such person to subpoena additional witnesses.

(6) Except as provided in subparagraph (5), the chair shall receive and the committee shall dispose of requests to subpoena additional witnesses.

(7) Evidence or testimony taken in executive session, and proceedings conducted in executive session, may be released or used in public sessions only when authorized by the committee, a majority being present.

(8) In the discretion of the committee, witnesses may submit brief and pertinent sworn statements in writing for inclusion in the record. The committee is the sole judge of the pertinence of testimony and evidence adduced at its hearing.

(9) A witness may obtain a transcript copy of the testimony of such witness given at a public session or, if given at an executive session, when authorized by the committee.

Supplemental, minority, or additional views

(1) If at the time of approval of a measure or matter by a committee (other than the Committee on Rules) a member of the committee gives notice of intention to file supplemental, minority, or additional views for inclusion in the report to the House thereon, that member shall be entitled to not less than two additional calendar days after the day of such notice (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) to file such views, in writing and signed by that member, with the clerk of the committee.

Power to sit and act; subpoena power

(m)(1) For the purpose of carrying out any of its functions and duties under this rule and rule X (including any matters referred to it under clause 2 of rule XII), a committee or subcommittee is authorized (subject to subparagraph (3)(A))—

(A) to sit and act at such times and places within the United States, whether the House is in session, has recessed, or has adjourned, and to hold such hearings as it considers necessary; and

(B) to require, by subpoena or otherwise, the attendance and testimony of such witnesses and the production of such books, records, correspondence, memoranda, papers, and documents as it considers necessary.

(2) The chair of the committee, or a member designated by the chair, may administer oaths to witnesses.

(3)(A) (i) Except as provided in subdivision (A)(ii), a subpoena may be authorized and issued by a committee or subcommittee under subparagraph (1)(B) in the conduct of an investigation or series of investigations or activities only when authorized by the committee or subcommittee, a majority being present. The power to authorize and issue subpoenas under subparagraph (1)(B) may be delegated to the chair of the committee under such rules and under such limitations as the committee may prescribe. Authorized subpoenas shall be signed by the chair of the committee or by a member designated by the committee.

(ii) In the case of a subcommittee of the Committee on Ethics, a subpoena may be authorized and issued only by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members.

(B) A subpoena duces tecum may specify terms of return other than at a meeting or hearing of the committee or subcommittee authorizing the subpoena.

(C) Compliance with a subpoena issued by a committee or subcommittee under subparagraph (1)(B) may be enforced only as authorized or directed by the House.

(n)(1) Each standing committee, or a subcommittee thereof, shall hold at least one hearing during each 120-day period following the establishment of the committee on the topic of waste, fraud, abuse, or mismanagement in Government programs which that committee may authorize.

(2) A hearing described in subparagraph (1) shall include a focus on the most egregious instances of waste, fraud, abuse, or mismanagement as documented by any report the committee has received from a Federal Office of the Inspector General or the Comptroller General of the United States.

(o) Each committee, or a subcommittee thereof, shall hold at least one hearing in any session in which the committee has received disclaimers of agency financial statements from auditors of any Federal agency that the committee may authorize to hear testimony on such disclaimers from representatives of any such agency.

(p) Each standing committee, or a subcommittee thereof, shall hold at least one hearing on issues raised by reports issued by the Comptroller General of the United States indicating that Federal programs or operations that the committee may authorize are at high risk for waste, fraud, and mismanagement, known as the “high-risk list” or the “high-risk series.”

Committee on Ethics

3. (a) The Committee on Ethics has the following functions:

(1) The committee may recommend to the House from time to time such administrative actions as it may consider appropriate to establish or enforce standards of official conduct for Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, officers, and employees of the House. A letter of reproof or other administrative action of the committee pursuant to an investigation under subparagraph (2) shall only be issued or implemented as a part of a report required by such subparagraph.

(2) The committee may investigate, subject to paragraph (b), an alleged violation by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House of the Code of Official Conduct or of a law, rule, regulation, or other standard of conduct applicable to the conduct of such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee in the performance of the duties or the discharge of the responsibilities of such individual. After notice and hearing (unless the right to a hearing is waived by the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee), the committee shall report to the House its findings of fact and recommendations, if any, for the final disposition of any such investigation and such action as the committee may consider appropriate in the circumstances.

(3) The committee may report to the appropriate Federal or State authorities, either with the approval of the House or by an affirmative vote of two-thirds of the members of the committee, any substantial evidence of a violation by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, of a law applicable to the performance of the duties or the discharge of the responsibilities of such individual that may have been disclosed in a committee investigation.

(4) The committee may consider the request of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House for an advisory opinion with respect to the general propriety of any current or proposed conduct of such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee. With appropriate deletions to ensure the privacy of the person concerned, the committee may publish such opinion for the guidance of other Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, officers, and employees of the House.

(5) The committee may consider the request of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House for a written waiver in exceptional circumstances with respect to clause 4 of rule XXIII.

(6)(A) The committee shall offer annual ethics training to each Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, and employee of the House. Such training shall—

(i) involve the classes of employees for whom the committee determines such training to be appropriate; and

(ii) include such knowledge of the Code of Official Conduct and related House rules as may be determined appropriate by the committee.

(B) (i) A new officer or employee of the House shall receive training under this paragraph not later than 60 days after beginning service to the House.

(ii) Not later than January 31 of each year, each officer and employee of the House shall file a certification with the committee that the officer or employee attended ethics training in the last year as established by this subparagraph.

(b)(1)(A) Unless approved by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members, the Committee on Ethics may not report a resolution, report, recommendation, or advisory opinion relating to the official conduct of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, or, except as provided in subparagraph (2), undertake an investigation of such conduct.

(B) (i) Upon the receipt of information offered as a complaint that is in compliance with this rule and the rules of the committee, the chair and ranking minority member jointly may appoint members to serve as an investigative subcommittee.

(ii) The chair and ranking minority member of the committee jointly may gather additional information concerning alleged conduct that is the basis of a complaint or of information offered as a complaint until they have established an investigative subcommittee or either of them has placed on the agenda of the committee the issue of whether to establish an investigative subcommittee.

(2) Except in the case of an investigation undertaken by the committee on its own initiative, the committee may undertake an investigation relating to the official conduct of an individual Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House only—

(A) upon receipt of information offered as a complaint, in writing and under oath, from a Member,

Delegate, or Resident Commissioner and transmitted to the committee by such Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner;

(B) upon receipt of information offered as a complaint, in writing and under oath, from a person not a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner provided that a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner certifies in writing to the committee that such Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner believes the information is submitted in good faith and warrants the review and consideration of the committee; or

(C) upon receipt of a report regarding a referral from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics.

If a complaint is not disposed of within the applicable periods set forth in the rules of the Committee on Ethics, the chair and ranking minority member shall establish jointly an investigative subcommittee and forward the complaint, or any portion thereof, to that subcommittee for its consideration. However, if at any time during those periods either the chair or ranking minority member places on the agenda the issue of whether to establish an investigative subcommittee, then an investigative subcommittee may be established only by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee.

(3) The committee may not undertake an investigation of an alleged violation of a law, rule, regulation, or standard of conduct that was not in effect at the time of the alleged violation. The committee may not undertake an investigation of such an alleged violation that occurred before the third previous Congress unless the committee determines that the alleged violation is directly related to an alleged violation that occurred in a more recent Congress.

(4) A member of the committee shall be ineligible to participate as a member of the committee in a committee proceeding relating to the member's official conduct. Whenever a member of the committee is ineligible to act as a member of the committee under the preceding sentence, the Speaker shall designate a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner from the same political party as the ineligible member to act in any proceeding of the committee relating to that conduct.

(5) A member of the committee may seek disqualification from participating in an investigation of the conduct of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House upon the submission in writing and under oath of an affidavit of disqualification stating that the member cannot render an impartial and unbiased decision in the case in which the member seeks to be disqualified. If the committee approves and accepts such affidavit of disqualification, the chair shall so notify the Speaker and request the Speaker to designate a Member, Delegate, or Resident

Commissioner from the same political party as the disqualifying member to act in any proceeding of the committee relating to that case.

(6) Information or testimony received, or the contents of a complaint or the fact of its filing, may not be publicly disclosed by any committee or staff member unless specifically authorized in each instance by a vote of the full committee.

(7) The committee shall have the functions designated in titles I and V of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, in sections 7342, 7351, and 7353 of title 5, United States Code, and in clause 11(g)(4) of rule X.

(8)(A) Except as provided by subdivisions (B), (C), and (D), not later than 45 calendar days or 5 legislative days, whichever is later, after receipt of a written report and any findings and supporting documentation regarding a referral from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics or of a referral of the matter from the board pursuant to a request under paragraph (r), the chair of the Committee on Ethics shall make public the written report and findings of the board unless the chair and ranking member, acting jointly, decide or the committee votes to withhold such information for not more than one additional period of the same duration, in which case the chair shall—

(i) upon the termination of such additional period, make public the written report and findings; and

(ii) upon the day of such decision or vote, make a public statement that the committee has voted to extend the matter relating to the referral made by the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics regarding the Member, officer, or employee of the House who is the subject of the applicable referral.

At least one calendar day before the committee makes public any written report and findings of the board, the chair shall notify such board and the applicable Member, officer, or employee of that fact and transmit to such individual a copy of the statement on the committee's disposition of, and any committee report on, the matter.

(B) (i) Notwithstanding subdivision (A)(i), if the committee votes to dismiss a matter which is the subject of a referral from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics, the committee is not required to make public the written report and findings described in such subdivision unless the committee's vote is inconsistent with the recommendation of the board. For purposes of the previous sentence, a vote by the committee to dismiss a matter is not inconsistent with a report from the board respecting the matter as unresolved due to a tie vote.

(ii) Notwithstanding subdivision (A)(ii), if the board transmits a report respecting any matter with a recommendation to dismiss or as unresolved due to a tie vote, and the committee votes to extend the matter for an additional period as provided in subdivision (A), the committee is not required to make a public statement that the committee has voted to extend the matter.

(iii) Except as provided by subdivision (E), if the committee establishes an investigative subcommittee respecting any such matter, then the report and findings of the board shall not be made public until the conclusion of the investigative subcommittee process and the committee shall issue a public statement of the establishment of an investigative subcommittee, which statement shall include the name of the applicable Member, officer, or employee, and shall set forth the alleged violation. If any such investigative subcommittee does not conclude its review within one year after the board transmits a report respecting any matter, then the committee shall make public the report and upon the expiration of the Congress in which the report is made public, the committee shall make public any findings.

(C) (i) If, after receipt of a written report and any findings and supporting documentation regarding a referral from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics or of a referral of the matter from the board pursuant to a request under paragraph (r), the committee agrees to a request from an appropriate law enforcement or regulatory authority to defer taking action on the matter

(I) notwithstanding subdivision (A)(i), the committee is not required to make public the written report and findings described in such subdivision, except that if the recommendation of the board with respect to the report is that the matter requires further review, the committee shall make public the written report but not the findings; and

(II) before the end of the first day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and public holidays) after the day that the committee agrees to the request, the committee shall make a public statement that it is deferring taking action on the matter at the request of such authority.

(ii) If, upon the expiration of the one-year period that begins on the date the committee makes the public statement described in item (i)(II), the committee has not acted on the matter, the committee shall make a new public statement that it is still deferring taking action on the matter, and shall make a new statement upon the expiration of each succeeding one-year period during which the committee has not acted on the matter.

(D) The committee may not receive any referral from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics within 60 days before a Federal, State, or local election in which the subject of the referral is a candidate. The committee may delay any reporting requirement under this subparagraph that falls within that 60-day period until the end of such period and in that case, for purposes of subdivision (A), days within the 60-day period shall not be counted.

(E) If, at the close of any applicable period for a reporting requirement under this subparagraph with respect to a referral from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics, the vote of the committee is a tie or the committee fails to act, the report and the findings of the board shall be made public by the committee, along with a public statement by the chair explaining the status of the matter.

(c)(1) Notwithstanding clause 2(g)(1) of rule XI, each meeting of the Committee on Ethics or a subcommittee thereof shall occur in executive session unless the committee or subcommittee, by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members, opens the meeting to the public.

(2) Notwithstanding clause 2(g)(2) of rule XI, each hearing of an adjudicatory subcommittee or sanction hearing of the Committee on Ethics shall be held in open session unless the committee or subcommittee, in open session by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members, closes all or part of the remainder of the hearing on that day to the public.

(d) Before a member, officer, or employee of the Committee on Ethics, including members of a subcommittee of the committee selected under clause 5(a)(4) of rule X and shared staff, may have access to information that is confidential under the rules of the committee, the following oath (or affirmation) shall be executed:

“I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will not disclose, to any person or entity outside the Committee on Ethics, any information received in the course of my service with the committee, except as authorized by the committee or in accordance with its rules.”

Copies of the executed oath shall be retained by the Clerk as part of the records of the House. This paragraph establishes a standard of conduct within the meaning of paragraph (a)(2). Breaches of confidentiality shall be investigated by the Committee on Ethics and appropriate action shall be taken.

(e)(1) If a complaint or information offered as a complaint is deemed frivolous by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the Committee on Ethics, the committee may take such action as it, by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members, considers appropriate in the circumstances.

(2) Complaints filed before the One Hundred Fifth Congress may not be deemed frivolous by the Committee on Ethics.

Committee agendas

(f) The committee shall adopt rules providing that the chair shall establish the agenda for meetings of the committee, but shall not preclude the ranking minority member from placing any item on the agenda.

Committee staff

(g)(1) The committee shall adopt rules providing that—

(A) the staff be assembled and retained as a professional, nonpartisan staff;

(B) each member of the staff shall be professional and demonstrably qualified for the position for which hired;

(C) the staff as a whole and each member of the staff shall perform all official duties in a nonpartisan manner;

(D) no member of the staff shall engage in any partisan political activity directly affecting any congressional or presidential election;

(E) no member of the staff or outside counsel may accept public speaking engagements or write for publication on any subject that is in any way related to the employment or duties with the committee of such individual without specific prior approval from the chair and ranking minority member; and

(F) no member of the staff or outside counsel may make public, unless approved by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee, any information, document, or other material that is confidential, derived from executive session, or classified and that is obtained during the course of employment with the committee.

(2) Only subdivisions (C), (E), and (F) of subparagraph (1) shall apply to shared staff.

(3)(A) All staff members shall be appointed by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee. Such vote shall occur at the first meeting of the membership of the committee during each Congress and as necessary during the Congress.

(B) Subject to the approval of the Committee on House Administration, the committee may retain counsel not employed by the House of Representatives whenever the committee determines, by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee, that the retention of outside counsel is necessary and appropriate.

(C) If the committee determines that it is necessary to retain staff members for the purpose of a particular investigation or other proceeding, then such staff shall be retained only for the duration of that particular investigation or proceeding.

(D) Outside counsel may be dismissed before the end of a contract between the committee and such counsel only by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee.

(4) In addition to any other staff provided for by law, rule, or other authority, with respect to the committee, the chair and ranking minority member each may appoint one individual as a shared staff member from the respective personal staff of the chair or ranking minority member to perform service for the committee. Such shared staff may assist the chair or ranking minority member on any subcommittee on which the chair or ranking minority member serves.

Meetings and hearings

(h)(1) The committee shall adopt rules providing that—

(A) all meetings or hearings of the committee or any subcommittee thereof, other than any hearing held by an adjudicatory subcommittee or any sanction hearing held by the committee, shall occur in executive session unless the committee or subcommittee by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members opens the meeting or hearing to the public; and

(B) any hearing held by an adjudicatory subcommittee or any sanction hearing held by the committee shall be open to the public unless the committee or subcommittee by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members closes the hearing to the public.

Public disclosure

(i) The committee shall adopt rules providing that, unless otherwise determined by a vote of the committee, only the chair or ranking minority member, after consultation with each other, may make public statements regarding matters before the committee or any subcommittee thereof.

Requirements to constitute a complaint

(j) The committee shall adopt rules regarding complaints to provide that whenever information offered as a complaint is submitted to the committee, the chair and ranking minority member shall have 14 calendar days or five legislative days, whichever is sooner, to determine whether the information meets the requirements of the rules of the committee for what constitutes a complaint.

Duties of chair and ranking minority member regarding properly filed complaints

(k)(1) The committee shall adopt rules providing that whenever the chair and ranking minority member jointly determine that information submitted to the committee meets the requirements of the rules of the committee for what constitutes a complaint, they shall have 45 calendar days or five legislative days, whichever is later, after that determination (unless the committee by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members votes otherwise) to—

(A) recommend to the committee that it dispose of the complaint, or any portion thereof, in any manner that does not require action by the House, which may include dismissal of the complaint or resolution of the complaint by a letter to the Member, officer, or employee of the House against whom the complaint is made;

(B) establish an investigative subcommittee; or

(C) request that the committee extend the applicable 45-calendar day or five-legislative day period by one additional 45-calendar day period when they determine more time is necessary in order to make a recommendation under subdivision (A).

(2) The committee shall adopt rules providing that if the chair and ranking minority member jointly determine that information submitted to the committee meets the requirements of the rules of the committee for what constitutes a complaint, and the complaint is not disposed of within the applicable time periods under subparagraph (1), then they shall establish an investigative subcommittee and forward the complaint, or any portion thereof, to that subcommittee for its consideration. However, if, at any time during those periods, either the chair or ranking minority member places on the agenda the issue of whether to establish an investigative subcommittee, then an investigative subcommittee may be established only by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee.

Duties of chair and ranking minority member regarding information not constituting a complaint

(1) The committee shall adopt rules providing that whenever the chair and ranking minority member jointly determine that information submitted to the committee does not meet the requirements of the rules of the committee for what constitutes a complaint, they may—

(1) return the information to the complainant with a statement that it fails to meet the requirements of the rules of the committee for what constitutes a complaint;

or

(2) recommend to the committee that it authorize the establishment of an investigative subcommittee.

Investigative and adjudicatory subcommittees

(m) The committee shall adopt rules providing that—

(1)(A) an investigative subcommittee shall be composed of four Members (with equal representation from the majority and minority parties) whenever such a subcommittee is established pursuant to the rules of the committee;

(B) an adjudicatory subcommittee shall be composed of the members of the committee who did not serve on the pertinent investigative subcommittee (with equal representation from the majority and minority parties) whenever such a subcommittee is established pursuant to the rules of the committee; and

(C) notwithstanding any other provision of this clause, the chair and ranking minority member of the committee may consult with an investigative subcommittee either on their own initiative or on the initiative of the subcommittee, shall have access to information before a subcommittee with which they so consult, and shall not thereby be precluded from serving as full, voting members of any adjudicatory subcommittee;

(2) at the time of appointment, the chair shall designate one member of a subcommittee to serve as chair and the ranking minority member shall designate one member of the subcommittee to serve as the ranking minority member; and

(3) the chair and ranking minority member of the committee may serve as members of an investigative subcommittee, but may not serve as non-voting, ex officio members.

Standard of proof for adoption of statement of alleged violation

(n) The committee shall adopt rules to provide that an investigative subcommittee may adopt a statement of alleged violation only if it determines by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the subcommittee that there is substantial reason to believe that a violation of the Code of Official Conduct, or of a law, rule, regulation, or other standard of conduct applicable to the performance of official duties or the discharge of official responsibilities by a Member, officer, or employee of the House of Representatives, has occurred.

Subcommittee powers

(o)(1) The committee shall adopt rules providing that an investigative subcommittee or an adjudicatory subcommittee may authorize and issue subpoenas only when authorized by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the subcommittee.

(2) The committee shall adopt rules providing that an investigative subcommittee may, upon an affirmative vote of a majority of its members, expand the scope of its investigation when approved by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee.

(3) The committee shall adopt rules to provide that—

(A) an investigative subcommittee may, upon an affirmative vote of a majority of its members, amend its statement of alleged violation anytime before the statement of alleged violation is transmitted to the committee; and

(B) if an investigative subcommittee amends its statement of alleged violation, the respondent shall be notified in writing and shall have 30 calendar days from the date of that notification to file an answer to the amended statement of alleged violation.

Due process rights of respondents

(p) The committee shall adopt rules to provide that—

(1) not less than 10 calendar days before a scheduled vote by an investigative subcommittee on a statement of alleged violation, the subcommittee shall provide the respondent with a copy of the statement of alleged violation it intends to adopt together with all evidence it intends to use to prove those charges which it intends to adopt, including documentary evidence, witness

testimony, memoranda of witness interviews, and physical evidence, unless the subcommittee by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members decides to withhold certain evidence in order to protect a witness; but if such evidence is withheld, the subcommittee shall inform the respondent that evidence is being withheld and of the count to which such evidence relates;

(2) neither the respondent nor the counsel of the respondent shall, directly or indirectly, contact the subcommittee or any member thereof during the period of time set forth in paragraph (1) except for the sole purpose of settlement discussions where counsel for the respondent and the subcommittee are present;

(3) if, at any time after the issuance of a statement of alleged violation, the committee or any subcommittee thereof determines that it intends to use evidence not provided to a respondent under paragraph (1) to prove the charges contained in the statement of alleged violation (or any amendment thereof), such evidence shall be made immediately available to the respondent, and it may be used in any further proceeding under the rules of the committee;

(4) evidence provided pursuant to paragraph (1) or (3) shall be made available to the respondent and the counsel of the respondent only after each agrees, in writing, that no document, information, or other materials obtained pursuant to that paragraph shall be made public until—

(A) such time as a statement of alleged violation is made public by the committee if the respondent has waived the adjudicatory hearing; or

(B) the commencement of an adjudicatory hearing if the respondent has not waived an adjudicatory hearing;

but the failure of respondent and the counsel of the respondent to so agree in writing, and their consequent failure to receive the evidence, shall not preclude the issuance of a statement of alleged violation at the end of the period referred to in paragraph (1);

(5) a respondent shall receive written notice whenever—

(A) the chair and ranking minority member determine that information the committee has received constitutes a complaint;

(B) a complaint or allegation is transmitted to an investigative subcommittee;

(C) an investigative subcommittee votes to authorize its first subpoena or to take testimony under oath, whichever occurs first; or

(D) an investigative subcommittee votes to expand the scope of its investigation;

(6) whenever an investigative subcommittee adopts a statement of alleged violation and a respondent enters into an agreement with that subcommittee to settle a complaint on which that statement is based, that agreement, unless the respondent requests otherwise, shall be in writing and signed by the respondent and respondent's counsel, the chair and ranking minority member of the subcommittee, and the outside counsel, if any;

(7) statements or information derived solely from a respondent or the counsel of a respondent during any settlement discussions between the committee or a subcommittee thereof and the respondent shall not be included in any report of the subcommittee or the committee or otherwise publicly disclosed without the consent of the respondent; and

(8) whenever a motion to establish an investigative subcommittee does not prevail, the committee shall promptly send a letter to the respondent informing the respondent of such vote.

Committee reporting requirements

(q) The committee shall adopt rules to provide that—

(1) whenever an investigative subcommittee does not adopt a statement of alleged violation and transmits a report to that effect to the committee, the committee may by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members transmit such report to the House of Representatives;

(2) whenever an investigative subcommittee adopts a statement of alleged violation, the respondent admits to the violations set forth in such statement, the respondent waives the right to an adjudicatory hearing, and the respondent's waiver is approved by the committee—

(A) the subcommittee shall prepare a report for transmittal to the committee, a final draft of which shall be provided to the respondent not less than 15 calendar days before the subcommittee votes on whether to adopt the report;

(B) the respondent may submit views in writing regarding the final draft to the subcommittee within seven calendar days of receipt of that draft;

(C) the subcommittee shall transmit a report to the committee regarding the statement of alleged violation together with any views submitted by the respondent pursuant to subdivision (B), and the committee shall make the report together with the respondent's views available to the public before the commencement of any sanction hearing; and

(D) the committee shall by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members issue a report and transmit such report to the House of Representatives, together with the respondent's views previously submitted pursuant to subdivision (B) and any additional views respondent may submit for attachment to the final report; and

(3) members of the committee shall have not less than 72 hours to review any report transmitted to the committee by an investigative subcommittee before both the commencement of a sanction hearing and the committee vote on whether to adopt the report.

(r) Upon receipt of any written notification from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics that the board is undertaking a review of any alleged conduct of any Member, officer, or employee of the House and if the committee is investigating such matter, the committee may at any time so notify the board and request that the board cease its review and refer the matter to the committee for its consideration. If at the end of the applicable time period (including any permissible extension) the committee has not reached a final resolution of the matter or has not referred the matter to the appropriate Federal or State authorities, the committee shall so notify the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics in writing. The committee may not request the same matter from the board more than one time.

Audio and visual coverage of committee proceedings

4. (a) The purpose of this clause is to provide a means, in conformity with acceptable standards of dignity, propriety, and decorum, by which committee hearings or committee meetings that are open to the public may be covered by audio and visual means—

(1) for the education, enlightenment, and information of the general public, on the basis of accurate and impartial news coverage, regarding the operations, procedures, and practices of the House as a legislative and representative body, and regarding the measures, public issues, and other matters before the House and its committees, the consideration thereof, and the action taken thereon; and

(2) for the development of the perspective and understanding of the general public with respect to the role and function of the House under the Constitution as an institution of the Federal Government.

(b) In addition, it is the intent of this clause that radio and television tapes and television film of any coverage under this clause may not be used, or made available for use, as partisan political campaign material to promote or oppose the candidacy of any person for elective public office.

(c) It is, further, the intent of this clause that the general conduct of each meeting (whether of a hearing or otherwise) covered under authority of this clause by audio or visual means, and the personal behavior of the committee members and staff, other Government officials and personnel, witnesses, television, radio, and press media personnel, and the general public at the hearing or other meeting, shall be in strict conformity with and observance of the acceptable standards of dignity, propriety, courtesy, and decorum traditionally observed by the House in its operations, and may not be such as to—

(1) distort the objects and purposes of the hearing or other meeting or the activities of committee members in connection with that hearing or meeting or in connection with the general work of the committee or of the House; or

(2) cast discredit or dishonor on the House, the committee, or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner or bring the House, the committee, or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner into disrepute.

(d) The coverage of committee hearings and meetings by audio and visual means shall be permitted and conducted only in strict conformity with the purposes, provisions, and requirements of this clause.

(e) Whenever a hearing or meeting conducted by a committee or subcommittee is open to the public, those proceedings shall be open to coverage by audio and visual means. A committee or subcommittee chair may not limit the number of television or still cameras to fewer than two representatives from each medium (except for legitimate space or safety considerations, in which case pool coverage shall be authorized).

(f) Each committee shall adopt written rules to govern its implementation of this clause. Such rules shall contain provisions to the following effect:

(1) If audio or visual coverage of the hearing or meeting is to be presented to the public as live coverage, that coverage shall be conducted and presented without commercial sponsorship.

(2) The allocation among the television media of the positions or the number of television cameras permitted by a committee or subcommittee chair in a hearing or meeting room shall be in accordance with fair and equitable procedures devised by the Executive Committee of the Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries.

(3) Television cameras shall be placed so as not to obstruct in any way the space between a witness giving evidence or testimony and any member of the committee or the visibility of that witness and that member to each other.

(4) Television cameras shall operate from fixed positions but may not be placed in positions that obstruct unnecessarily the coverage of the hearing or meeting by the other media.

(5) Equipment necessary for coverage by the television and radio media may not be installed in, or removed from, the hearing or meeting room while the committee is in session.

(6)(A) Except as provided in subdivision (B), floodlights, spotlights, strobelights, and flash—guns may not be used in providing any method of coverage of the hearing or meeting.

(B) The television media may install additional lighting in a hearing or meeting room, without cost to the Government, in order to raise the ambient lighting level in a hearing or meeting room to the lowest level necessary to provide adequate television coverage of a hearing or meeting at the current state of the art of television coverage.

(7) If requests are made by more of the media than will be permitted by a committee or subcommittee chair for coverage of a hearing or meeting by still photography, that coverage shall be permitted on the basis of a fair and equitable pool arrangement devised by the Standing Committee of Press Photographers.

(8) Photographers may not position themselves between the witness table and the members of the committee at any time during the course of a hearing or meeting.

(9) Photographers may not place themselves in positions that obstruct unnecessarily the coverage of the hearing by the other media.

(10) Personnel providing coverage by the television and radio media shall be currently accredited to the Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries.

(11) Personnel providing coverage by still photography shall be currently accredited to the Press

Photographers' Gallery.

(12) Personnel providing coverage by the television and radio media and by still photography shall conduct themselves and their coverage activities in an orderly and unobtrusive manner.

Pay of witnesses

5. Witnesses appearing before the House or any of its committees shall be paid the same per diem rate as established, authorized, and regulated by the Committee on House Administration for Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, and employees of the House, plus actual expenses of travel to or from the place of examination. Such per diem may not be paid when a witness has been summoned at the place of examination.

Unfinished business of the session

6. All business of the House at the end of one session shall be resumed at the commencement of the next session of the same Congress in the same manner as if no adjournment had taken place.

RULE XII

RECEIPT AND REFERRAL OF MEASURES AND MATTERS

Messages

1. Messages received from the Senate, or from the President, shall be entered on the Journal and published in the Congressional Record of the proceedings of that day.

Referral

2. (a) The Speaker shall refer each bill, resolution, or other matter that relates to a subject listed under a standing committee named in clause 1 of rule X in accordance with the provisions of this clause.

(b) The Speaker shall refer matters under paragraph (a) in such manner as to ensure to the maximum extent feasible that each committee that has jurisdiction under clause 1 of rule X over the subject matter of a provision thereof may consider such provision and report to the House thereon. Precedents, rulings, or procedures in effect before the Ninety-Fourth Congress shall be applied to referrals under this clause only to the extent that they will contribute to the achievement of the objectives of this clause.

(c) In carrying out paragraphs (a) and (b) with respect to the referral of a matter, the Speaker—

(1) shall designate a committee of primary jurisdiction (except where the Speaker determines that extraordinary circumstances justify review by more than one committee as though primary);

(2) may refer the matter to one or more additional committees for consideration in sequence, either initially or after the matter has been reported by the committee of primary jurisdiction;

(3) may refer portions of the matter reflecting different subjects and jurisdictions to one or more additional committees;

(4) may refer the matter to a special, ad hoc committee appointed by the Speaker with the approval of the House, and including members of the committees of jurisdiction, for the specific purpose of considering that matter and reporting to the House thereon;

(5) may subject a referral to appropriate time limitations; and

(6) may make such other provision as may be considered appropriate.

(d) A bill for the payment or adjudication of a private claim against the Government may not be referred to a committee other than the Committee on Foreign Affairs or the Committee on the Judiciary, except by unanimous consent.

Petitions, memorials, and private bills

3. If a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner has a petition, memorial, or private bill to present, the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall sign it, deliver it to the Clerk, and may specify the reference or disposition to be made thereof. Such petition, memorial, or private bill (except when judged by the Speaker to be obscene or insulting) shall be entered on the Journal with the name of the Member, Delegate, or Resident

Commissioner presenting it and shall be printed in the Congressional Record.

4. A private bill or private resolution (including an omnibus claim or pension bill), or amendment thereto, may not be received or considered in the House if it authorizes or directs—

(a) the payment of money for property damages, for personal injuries or death for which suit may be instituted under the Tort Claims Procedure provided in title 28, United States Code, or for a pension (other than to carry out a provision of law or treaty stipulation);

(b) the construction of a bridge across a navigable stream; or

(c) the correction of a military or naval record.

Prohibition on commemorations

5. (a) A bill or resolution, or an amendment thereto, may not be introduced or considered in the House if it establishes or expresses a commemoration.

(b) In this clause the term “commemoration” means a remembrance, celebration, or recognition for any purpose through the designation of a specified period of time.

Excluded matters

6. A petition, memorial, bill, or resolution excluded under this rule shall be returned to the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner from whom it was received. A petition or private bill that has been inappropriately referred may, by direction of the committee having possession of it, be properly referred in the manner originally presented. An erroneous reference of a petition or private bill under this clause does not confer jurisdiction on a committee to consider or report it.

Sponsorship

7. (a) Bills, memorials, petitions, and resolutions, endorsed with the names of Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner introducing them, may be delivered to the Speaker to be referred. The titles and references of all bills, memorials, petitions, resolutions, and other documents referred under this rule shall be entered on the Journal and printed in the Congressional Record. An erroneous reference may be corrected by the House in accordance with rule X on any day immediately after the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag by unanimous consent or motion. Such a motion shall be privileged if offered by direction of a committee to which the bill has been erroneously referred or by direction of a committee claiming jurisdiction and shall be decided without debate.

(b)(1) The sponsor of a public bill or public resolution may name cosponsors. The name of a cosponsor added after the initial printing of a bill or resolution shall appear in the next printing of the bill or resolution on the written request of the sponsor. Such a request may be submitted to the Speaker at any time until the last committee authorized to consider and report the bill or resolution reports it to the House or is discharged from its consideration.

(2) The name of a cosponsor of a bill or resolution may be deleted by unanimous consent. The Speaker may entertain such a request only by the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner whose name is to be deleted or by the sponsor of the bill or resolution, and only until the last committee authorized to consider and report the bill or resolution reports it to the House or is discharged from its consideration. The Speaker may not entertain a request to delete the name of the sponsor of a bill or resolution. A deletion shall be indicated by date in the next printing of the bill or resolution.

(3) The addition or deletion of the name of a cosponsor of a bill or resolution shall be entered on the Journal and printed in the Congressional Record of that day.

(4) A bill or resolution shall be reprinted on the written request of the sponsor. Such a request may be submitted to the Speaker only when 20 or more cosponsors have been added since the last printing of the bill or resolution.

(5) When a bill or resolution is introduced “by request,” those words shall be entered on the Journal and printed in the Congressional Record.

(c)(1) A bill or joint resolution may not be introduced unless the sponsor submits for printing in the Congressional Record a statement citing as specifically as practicable the power or powers granted to Congress in the Constitution to enact the bill or joint resolution. The statement shall appear in a portion of the Record designated for that purpose and be made publicly available in electronic form by the Clerk.

(2) Before consideration of a Senate bill or joint resolution, the chair of a committee of jurisdiction may submit the statement required under subparagraph (1) as though the chair were the sponsor of the Senate bill or joint resolution.

Executive communications

8. Estimates of appropriations and all other communications from the executive departments intended for the consideration of any committees of the House shall be addressed to the Speaker for referral as provided in clause 2 of rule XIV.

RULE XIII

CALENDARS AND COMMITTEE REPORTS

Calendars

1. (a) All business reported by committees shall be referred to one of the following three calendars:

(1) A Calendar of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, to which shall be referred public bills and public resolutions raising revenue, involving a tax or charge on the people, directly or indirectly making appropriations of money or property or requiring such appropriations to be made, authorizing payments out of appropriations already made, releasing any liability to the United States for money or property, or referring a claim to the Court of Claims.

(2) A House Calendar, to which shall be referred all public bills and public resolutions not requiring referral to the Calendar of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

(3) A Private Calendar as provided in clause 5 of rule XV, to which shall be referred all private bills and private resolutions.

(b) There is established a Calendar of Motions to Discharge Committees as provided in clause 2 of rule XV.

Filing and printing of reports

2. (a)(1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2), all reports of committees (other than those filed from the floor) shall be delivered to the Clerk for printing and reference to the proper calendar under the direction of the Speaker in accordance with clause 1. The title or subject of each report shall be entered on the Journal and printed in the Congressional Record.

(2) A bill or resolution reported adversely (other than those filed as privileged) shall be laid on the table unless a committee to which the bill or resolution was referred requests at the time of the report its referral to an appropriate calendar under clause 1 or unless, within three days thereafter, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner makes such a request.

(b)(1) It shall be the duty of the chair of each committee to report or cause to be reported promptly to the House a measure or matter approved by the committee and to take or cause to be taken steps necessary to bring the measure or matter to a vote.

(2) In any event, the report of a committee on a measure that has been approved by the committee shall be filed within seven calendar days (exclusive of days on which the House is not in session) after the day on which a written request for the filing of the report, signed by a majority of the members of the committee, has been filed with the clerk of the committee. The clerk of the committee shall immediately notify the chair of the filing of such a request. This subparagraph does not apply to a report of the Committee on Rules with respect to a rule, joint rule, or order of business of the House, or to the reporting of a resolution of inquiry addressed to the head of an executive department.

(c) All supplemental, minority, or additional views filed under clause 2(l) of rule XI by one or more members of a committee shall be included in, and shall be a part of, the report filed by the committee with respect to a measure or matter. When time guaranteed by clause 2(l) of rule XI has expired (or, if sooner, when all separate views have been received), the committee may arrange to file its report with the Clerk not later than one hour after the expiration of such time. This clause and provisions of clause 2(1) of rule XI do not preclude the immediate filing or printing of a committee report in the absence of a timely request for the opportunity to file supplemental, minority, or additional views as provided in clause 2(1) of rule XI.

Content of reports

3. (a)(1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2), the report of a committee on a measure or matter shall be printed in a single volume that—

(A) shall include all supplemental, minority, or additional views that have been submitted by the time of the filing of the report; and

(B) shall bear on its cover a recital that any such supplemental, minority, or additional views (and any material submitted under paragraph (c)(3)) are included as part of the report.

(2) A committee may file a supplemental report for the correction of a technical error in its previous report on a measure or matter. A supplemental report only correcting errors in the depiction of record votes under paragraph (b) may be filed under this subparagraph and shall not be subject to the requirement in clause 4 or clause 6 concerning the availability of reports.

(b) With respect to each record vote on a motion to report a measure or matter of a public nature, and on any amendment offered to the measure or matter, the total number of votes cast for and against, and the names of members voting for and against, shall be included in the committee report. The preceding sentence does not apply to votes taken in executive session by the Committee on Ethics.

(c) The report of a committee on a measure that has been approved by the committee shall include, separately set out and clearly identified, the following:

(1) Oversight findings and recommendations under clause 2(b)(1) of rule X.

(2) The statement required by section 308(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, except that an estimate of new budget authority shall include, when practicable, a comparison of the total estimated funding level for the relevant programs to the appropriate levels under current law.

(3) An estimate and comparison prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office under section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 if timely submitted to the committee before the filing of the report.

(4) A statement of general performance goals and objectives, including outcome-related goals and objectives, for which the measure authorizes funding.

(d) Each report of a committee on a public bill or public joint resolution shall contain the following:

(1)(A) An estimate by the committee of the costs that would be incurred in carrying out the bill or joint resolution in the fiscal year in which it is reported and in each of the five fiscal years following that fiscal year (or for the authorized duration of any program authorized by the bill or joint resolution if less than five years);

(B) a comparison of the estimate of costs described in subdivision (A) made by the committee with any estimate of such costs made by a Government agency and submitted to such committee; and

(C) when practicable, a comparison of the total estimated funding level for the relevant programs with the appropriate levels under current law.

(2)(A) In subparagraph (1) the term “Government agency” includes any department, agency, establishment, wholly owned Government corporation, or instrumentality of the Federal Government or the government of the District of Columbia.

(B) Subparagraph (1) does not apply to the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on House Administration, the Committee on Rules, or the Committee on Ethics, and does not apply when a cost estimate and comparison prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office under section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 has been included in the report under paragraph (c)(3).

(e)(1) Whenever a committee reports a bill or joint resolution proposing to repeal or amend a statute or part thereof, it shall include in its report or in an accompanying document—

(A) the text of a statute or part thereof that is proposed to be repealed; and

(B) a comparative print of any part of the bill or joint resolution proposing to amend the statute and of the statute or part thereof proposed to be amended, showing by appropriate typographical devices the omissions and insertions proposed.

(2) If a committee reports a bill or joint resolution proposing to repeal or amend a statute or part thereof with a recommendation that the bill or joint resolution be amended, the comparative print required by subparagraph (1) shall reflect the changes in existing law proposed to be made by the bill or joint resolution as proposed to be amended.

(f)(1) A report of the Committee on Appropriations on a general appropriation bill shall include—

(A) a concise statement describing the effect of any provision of the accompanying bill that directly or indirectly changes the application of existing law; and

(B) a list of all appropriations contained in the bill for expenditures not currently authorized by law for the period concerned (excepting classified intelligence or national security programs, projects, or activities), along with a statement of the last year for which such expenditures were authorized, the level of expenditures authorized for that year, the actual level of expenditures for that year, and the level of appropriations in the bill for such expenditures.

(2) Whenever the Committee on Appropriations reports a bill or joint resolution including matter specified in clause 1(b)(2) or (3) of rule X, it shall include—

(A) in the bill or joint resolution, separate headings for “Rescissions” and “Transfers of Unexpended Balances”; and

(B) in the report of the committee, a separate section listing such rescissions and transfers.

(g) Whenever the Committee on Rules reports a resolution proposing to repeal or amend a standing rule of the House, it shall include in its report or in an accompanying document—

(1) the text of any rule or part thereof that is proposed to be repealed; and

(2) a comparative print of any part of the resolution proposing to amend the rule and of the rule or part thereof proposed to be amended, showing by appropriate typographical devices the omissions and insertions proposed.

(h)(1) It shall not be in order to consider a bill or joint resolution reported by the Committee on Ways and Means that proposes to amend the Internal Revenue Code of

1986 unless—

(A) the report includes a tax complexity analysis prepared by the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation in accordance with section 4022(b) of the Internal Revenue Service Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998; or

(B) the chair of the Committee on Ways and Means causes such a tax complexity analysis to be printed in the Congressional Record before consideration of the bill or joint resolution.

(2)(A) It shall not be in order to consider a bill or joint resolution reported by the Committee on Ways and Means that proposes to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 unless—

(i) the report includes a macroeconomic impact analysis;

(ii) the report includes a statement from the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation explaining why a macroeconomic impact analysis is not calculable; or

(iii) the chair of the Committee on Ways and Means causes a macroeconomic impact analysis to be printed in the Congressional Record before consideration of the bill or joint resolution.

(B) In subdivision (A), the term “macroeconomic impact analysis” means—

- (i) an estimate prepared by the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation of the changes in economic output, employment, capital stock, and tax revenues expected to result from enactment of the proposal; and
- (ii) a statement from the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation identifying the critical assumptions and the source of data underlying that estimate.

Availability of reports

4. (a)(1) Except as specified in subparagraph (2), it shall not be in order to consider in the House a measure or matter reported by a committee until the third calendar day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, or legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) on which each report of a committee on that measure or matter has been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner.

(2) Subparagraph (1) does not apply to—

(A) a resolution providing a rule, joint rule, or order of business reported by the Committee on Rules considered under clause 6;

(B) a resolution providing amounts from the applicable accounts described in clause 1(k)(1) of rule X reported by the Committee on House Administration considered under clause 6 of rule X;

(C) a resolution presenting a question of the privileges of the House reported by any committee;

(D) a measure for the declaration of war, or the declaration of a national emergency, by Congress; and

(E) a measure providing for the disapproval of a decision, determination, or action by a Government agency that would become, or continue to be, effective unless disapproved or otherwise invalidated by one or both Houses of Congress. In this subdivision the term “Government agency” includes any department, agency, establishment, wholly owned Government corporation, or instrumentality of the Federal Government or of the government of the District of Columbia.

(b) A committee that reports a measure or matter shall make every reasonable effort to have its hearings thereon (if any) printed and available for distribution to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner before the consideration of the measure or matter in the House.

(c) A general appropriation bill reported by the Committee on Appropriations may not be considered in the House until the third calendar day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) on which printed hearings of the Committee on Appropriations thereon have been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner.

Privileged reports, generally

5. (a) The following committees shall have leave to report at any time on the following matters, respectively:

(1) The Committee on Appropriations, on general appropriation bills and on joint resolutions continuing appropriations for a fiscal year after September 15 in the preceding fiscal year.

(2) The Committee on the Budget, on the matters required to be reported by such committee under titles III and IV of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

(3) The Committee on House Administration, on enrolled bills, on contested elections, on matters referred to it concerning printing for the use of the House or the two Houses, on expenditure of the applicable accounts of the House described in clause 1(k)(1) of rule X, and on matters relating to preservation and availability of noncurrent records of the House under rule VII.

(4) The Committee on Rules, on rules, joint rules, and the order of business.

(5) The Committee on Ethics, on resolutions recommending action by the House with respect to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House as a result of an investigation by the committee relating to the official conduct of such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee.

(b) A report filed from the floor as privileged under paragraph (a) may be called up as a privileged question by direction of the reporting committee, subject to any requirement concerning its availability to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner under clause 4 or concerning the timing of its consideration under clause 6.

Privileged reports by the Committee on Rules

6. (a) A report by the Committee on Rules on a rule, joint rule, or the order of business may not be called up for consideration on the same day it is presented to the House except—

(1) when so determined by a vote of two-thirds of the Members voting, a quorum being present;

(2) in the case of a resolution proposing only to waive a requirement of clause 4 or of clause 8 of rule XXII concerning the availability of reports; or

(3) during the last three days of a session of Congress.

(b) Pending the consideration of a report by the Committee on Rules on a rule, joint rule, or the order of business, the Speaker may entertain one motion that the House adjourn but may not entertain any other dilatory motion until the report shall have been disposed of.

(c) The Committee on Rules may not report a rule or order that would prevent the motion to recommit a bill or joint resolution from being made as provided in clause

2(b) of rule XIX, including a motion to recommit with instructions to report back an amendment otherwise in order, if offered by the Minority Leader or a designee, except with respect to a Senate bill or joint resolution for which the text of a House-passed measure has been substituted.

(d) The Committee on Rules shall present to the House reports concerning rules, joint rules, and the order of business, within three legislative days of the time when they are ordered. If such a report is not considered immediately, it shall be referred to the calendar. If such a report on the calendar is not called up by the member of the committee who filed the report within seven legislative days, any member of the committee may call it up as a privileged question on the day after the calendar day on which the member announces to the House intention to do so. The Speaker shall recognize a member of the committee who rises for that purpose.

(e) An adverse report by the Committee on Rules on a resolution proposing a special order of business for the consideration of a public bill or public joint resolution may be called up as a privileged question by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner on a day when it is in order to consider a motion to discharge committees under clause 2 of rule XV.

(f) If the House has adopted a resolution making in order a motion to consider a bill or resolution, and such a motion has not been offered within seven calendar days thereafter, such a motion shall be privileged if offered by direction of all reporting committees having initial jurisdiction of the bill or resolution.

(g) Whenever the Committee on Rules reports a resolution providing for the consideration of a measure, it shall (to the maximum extent possible) specify in the resolution the object of any waiver of a point of order against the measure or against its consideration.

Resolutions of inquiry

7. A report on a resolution of inquiry addressed to the head of an executive department may be filed from the floor as privileged. If such a resolution is not reported to the House within 14 legislative days after its introduction, a motion to discharge a committee from its consideration shall be privileged.

RULE XIV

ORDER AND PRIORITY OF BUSINESS

1. The daily order of business (unless varied by the application of other rules and except for the disposition of matters of higher precedence) shall be as follows:

First. Prayer by the Chaplain.

Second. Reading and approval of the Journal, unless postponed under clause 8 of rule XX.

Third. The Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

Fourth. Correction of reference of public bills.

Fifth. Disposal of business on the Speaker's table as provided in clause 2.

Sixth. Unfinished business as provided in clause 3.

Seventh. The morning hour for the consideration of bills called up by committees as provided in clause 4.

Eighth. Motions that the House resolve into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union subject to clause 5.

Ninth. Orders of the day.

2. Business on the Speaker's table shall be disposed of as follows:

(a) Messages from the President shall be referred to the appropriate committees without debate.

(b) Communications addressed to the House, including reports and communications from heads of departments and bills, resolutions, and messages from the Senate, may be referred to the appropriate committees in the same manner and with the same right of correction as public bills and public resolutions presented by Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner.

(c) Motions to dispose of Senate amendments on the Speaker's table may be entertained as provided in clauses 1, 2, and 4 of rule XXII.

(d) Senate bills and resolutions substantially the same as House measures already favorably reported and not required to be considered in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union may be disposed of by motion. Such a motion shall be privileged if offered by direction of all reporting committees having initial jurisdiction of the House measure.

3. Consideration of unfinished business in which the House may have been engaged at an adjournment, except business in the morning hour and proceedings postponed under clause 8 of rule XX, shall be resumed as soon as the business on the Speaker's table is finished, and at the same time each day thereafter until disposed of. The consideration of all other unfinished business shall be resumed whenever the class of business to which it belongs shall be in order under the rules.

4. After the unfinished business has been disposed of, the Speaker shall call each standing committee in regular order and then select committees. Each committee when named may call up for consideration a bill or resolution reported by it on a previous day and on the House Calendar. If the Speaker does not complete the call of the committees before the House passes to other business, the next call shall resume at the point it left off, giving preference to the last bill or resolution under consideration. A committee that has occupied the call for two days may not call up another bill or resolution until the other committees have been called in their turn.

5. After consideration of bills or resolutions under clause 4 for one hour, it shall be in order, pending consideration thereof, to entertain a motion that the House resolve into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union or, when authorized by a committee, that the House resolve into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union to consider a particular bill. Such a motion shall be subject to only one amendment designating another bill. If such a motion is decided in the negative, another such motion may not be considered until the matter that was pending when such motion was offered is disposed of.

6. All questions relating to the priority of business shall be decided by a majority without debate.

RULE XV

BUSINESS IN ORDER ON SPECIAL DAYS

Suspensions

1. (a) A rule may not be suspended except by a vote of two-thirds of the Members voting, a quorum being present. The Speaker may not entertain a motion that the House suspend the rules except on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Wednesdays and during the last six days of a session of Congress.

(b) Pending a motion that the House suspend the rules, the Speaker may entertain one motion that the House adjourn but may not entertain any other motion until the vote is taken on the suspension.

(c) A motion that the House suspend the rules is debatable for 40 minutes, one-half in favor of the motion and one-half in opposition thereto.

Discharge motions, second and fourth Mondays

2. (a) Motions to discharge committees shall be in order on the second and fourth Mondays of a month.

(b)(1) A Member may present to the Clerk a motion in writing to discharge—

(A) a committee from consideration of a public bill or public resolution that has been referred to it for 30 legislative days; or

(B) the Committee on Rules from consideration of a resolution that has been referred to it for seven legislative days and that proposes a special order of business for the consideration of a public bill or public resolution that has been reported by a standing committee or has been referred to a standing committee for 30 legislative days.

(2) Only one motion may be presented for a bill or resolution. A Member may not file a motion to discharge the Committee on Rules from consideration of a resolution providing for the consideration of more than one public bill or public resolution or admitting or effecting a nongermane amendment to a public bill or public resolution.

(c) A motion presented under paragraph (b) shall be placed in the custody of the Clerk, who shall arrange a convenient place for the signatures of Members. A signature may be withdrawn by a Member in writing at any time before a motion is entered on the Journal. The Clerk shall make the signatories a matter of public record, causing the names of the Members who have signed a discharge motion during a week to be published in a portion of the Congressional Record designated for that purpose on the last legislative day of the week and making cumulative lists of such names available each day for public inspection in an appropriate office of the House. The Clerk shall devise a means for making such lists available to offices of the House and to the public in electronic form. When a majority of the total membership of the House shall have signed the motion, it shall be entered on the Journal, published with the signatories thereto in the Record, and referred to the Calendar of Motions to Discharge Committees.

(d)(1) On the second and fourth Mondays of a month (except during the last six days of a session of Congress), immediately after the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag, a motion to discharge that has been on the calendar for at least seven legislative days shall be privileged if called up by a Member whose signature appears thereon. When such a motion is called up, the House shall proceed to its consideration under this paragraph without intervening motion except one motion to adjourn. Privileged motions to discharge shall have precedence in the order of their entry on the Journal.

(2) When a motion to discharge is called up, the bill or resolution to which it relates shall be read by title only. The motion is debatable for 20 minutes, one-half in favor of the motion and one-half in opposition thereto.

(e)(1) If a motion prevails to discharge the Committee on Rules from consideration of a resolution, the House shall immediately consider the resolution, pending which the Speaker may entertain one motion that the House adjourn but may not entertain any other dilatory motion until the resolution has been disposed of. If the resolution is adopted, the House shall immediately proceed to its execution.

(2) If a motion prevails to discharge a standing committee from consideration of a public bill or public resolution, a motion that the House proceed to the immediate consideration of such bill or resolution shall be privileged if offered by a Member whose signature appeared on the motion to discharge. The motion to proceed is not debatable. If the motion to proceed is adopted, the bill or resolution shall be considered immediately under the general rules of the House. If unfinished before adjournment of the day on which it is called up, the bill or resolution shall remain the unfinished business until it is disposed of. If the motion to proceed is rejected, the bill or resolution shall be referred to the appropriate calendar, where it shall have the same status as if the committee from which it was discharged had duly reported it to the House.

(f)(1) When a motion to discharge originated under this clause has once been acted on by the House, it shall not be in order to entertain during the same session of Congress

(A) a motion to discharge a committee from consideration of that bill or resolution or of any other bill or resolution that, by relating in substance to or dealing with the same subject matter, is substantially the same; or

(B) a motion to discharge the Committee on Rules from consideration of a resolution providing a special order of business for the consideration of that bill or resolution or of any other bill or resolution that, by relating in substance to or dealing with the same subject matter, is substantially the same.

(2) A motion to discharge on the Calendar of Motions to Discharge Committees that is rendered out of order under subparagraph (1) shall be stricken from that calendar.

Adverse report by the Committee on Rules, second and fourth Mondays

3. An adverse report by the Committee on Rules on a resolution proposing a special order of business for the consideration of a public bill or public joint resolution may be called up under clause 6(e) of rule XIII as a privileged question by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner on a day when it is in order to consider a motion to discharge committees under clause 2.

District of Columbia business, second and fourth Mondays

4. The second and fourth Mondays of a month shall be set apart for the consideration of such District of Columbia business as may be called up by the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform after the disposition of motions to discharge committees and after the disposal of such business on the Speaker's table as requires reference only.

Private Calendar, first and third Tuesdays

5. (a) On the first Tuesday of a month, the Speaker shall direct the Clerk to call the bills and resolutions on the Private Calendar after disposal of such business on the Speaker's table as requires reference only. If two or more Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner object to the consideration of a bill or resolution so called, it shall be recommitted to the committee that reported it. No other business shall be in order before completion of the call of the Private Calendar on this day unless two-thirds of the Members voting, a quorum being present, agree to a motion that the House dispense with the call.

(b)(1) On the third Tuesday of a month, after the disposal of such business on the Speaker's table as requires reference only, the Speaker may direct the Clerk to call the bills and resolutions on the Private Calendar. Preference shall be given to omnibus bills containing the texts of bills or resolutions that have previously been objected to on a call of the Private Calendar. If two or more Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner object to the consideration of a bill or resolution so called (other than an omnibus bill), it shall be recommitted to the committee that reported it. Two-thirds of the Members voting, a quorum being present, may adopt a motion that the House dispense with the call on this day.

(2) Omnibus bills shall be read for amendment by paragraph. No amendment shall be in order except to strike or to reduce amounts of money or to provide limitations. An item or matter stricken from an omnibus bill may not thereafter during the same session of Congress be included in an omnibus bill. Upon passage such an omnibus bill shall be resolved into the several bills and resolutions of which it is composed. The several bills and resolutions, with any amendments adopted by the House, shall be engrossed, when necessary, and otherwise considered as passed severally by the House as distinct bills and resolutions.

(c) The Speaker may not entertain a reservation of the right to object to the consideration of a bill or resolution under this clause. A bill or resolution considered under this clause shall be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole. A motion to dispense with the call of the Private Calendar under this clause shall be privileged. Debate on such a motion shall be limited to five minutes in support and five minutes in opposition.

Calendar Call of Committees, Wednesdays

6. (a) On Wednesday of each week, business shall not be in order before completion of the call of those committees (except as provided by clause 4 of rule XIV) whose chair, or other member authorized by the committee, has announced to the House a request for such call on the preceding legislative day.

(b) A bill or resolution on either the House or the Union Calendar, except bills or resolutions that are privileged under the Rules of the House, may be called under this clause. A bill or resolution called up from the Union Calendar shall be considered in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union without motion, subject to clause 3 of rule XVI. General debate on a measure considered under this clause shall be confined to the measure and may not exceed two hours equally divided between a proponent and an opponent.

(c) This clause does not apply during the last two weeks of a session of Congress.

RULE XVI

MOTIONS AND AMENDMENTS

Motions

1. Every motion entertained by the Speaker shall be reduced to writing on the demand of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner and, unless it is withdrawn the same day, shall be entered on the Journal with the name of the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner offering it. A dilatory motion may not be entertained by the Speaker.

Withdrawal

2. When a motion is entertained, the Speaker shall state it or cause it to be read aloud by the Clerk before it is debated. The motion then shall be in the possession of the House but may be withdrawn at any time before a decision or amendment thereon.

Question of consideration

3. When a motion or proposition is entertained, the question, “Will the House now consider it?” may not be put unless demanded by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner.

Precedence of motions

4. (a) When a question is under debate, only the following motions may be entertained (which shall have precedence in the following order):

- (1) To adjourn.
- (2) To lay on the table.
- (3) For the previous question.
- (4) To postpone to a day certain.
- (5) To refer.
- (6) To amend.
- (7) To postpone indefinitely.

(b) A motion to adjourn, to lay on the table, or for the previous question shall be decided without debate. A motion to postpone to a day certain, to refer, or to postpone indefinitely, being decided, may not be allowed again on the same day at the same stage of the question.

(c)(1) It shall be in order at any time for the Speaker, in the discretion of the Speaker, to entertain a motion—

(A) that the Speaker be authorized to declare a recess; or

(B) that when the House adjourns it stand adjourned to a day and time certain.

(2) Either motion shall be of equal privilege with the motion to adjourn and shall be decided without debate.

Divisibility

5. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b), a question shall be divided on the demand of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner before the question is put if it includes propositions so distinct in substance that, one being taken away, a substantive proposition remains.

(b)(1) A motion or resolution to elect members to a standing committee of the House, or to a joint standing committee, is not divisible.

(2) A resolution or order reported by the Committee on Rules providing a special order of business is not divisible.

(c) A motion to strike and insert is not divisible, but rejection of a motion to strike does not preclude another motion to amend.

Amendments

6. When an amendable proposition is under consideration, a motion to amend and a motion to amend that amendment shall be in order, and it also shall be in order to offer a further amendment by way of substitute for the original motion to amend, to which one amendment may be offered but which may not be voted on until the original amendment is perfected. An amendment may be withdrawn in the House at any time before a decision or amendment thereon. An amendment to the title of a bill or resolution shall not be in order until after its passage or adoption and shall be decided without debate.

Germaneness

7. No motion or proposition on a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted under color of amendment.

Readings

8. Bills and joint resolutions are subject to readings as follows:

(a) A first reading is in full when the bill or joint resolution is first considered.

(b) A second reading occurs only when the bill or joint resolution is read for amendment in a Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union under clause 5 of rule XVIII.

(c) A third reading precedes passage when the Speaker states the question: “Shall the bill [or joint resolution] be engrossed [when applicable] and read a third time?” If that question is decided in the affirmative, then the bill or joint resolution shall be read the final time by title and then the question shall be put on its passage.

RULE XVII

DECORUM AND DEBATE

Decorum

1. (a) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who desires to speak or deliver a matter to the House shall rise and respectfully address the Speaker and, on being recognized, may address the House from any place on the floor. When invited by the Chair, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may speak from the Clerk’s desk.

(b) Remarks in debate (which may include references to the Senate or its Members) shall be confined to the question under debate, avoiding personality.

Recognition

2. When two or more Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner rise at once, the Speaker shall name the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who is first to speak. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not occupy more than one hour in debate on a question in the House or in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union except as otherwise provided in this rule.

Managing debate

3. (a) The Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who calls up a measure may open and close debate thereon. When general debate extends beyond one day, that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall be entitled to one hour to close without regard to the time used in opening.

(b) Except as provided in paragraph (a), a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not speak more than once to the same question without leave of the House.

(c) A manager of a measure who opposes an amendment thereto is entitled to close controlled debate thereon.

Call to order

4. (a) If a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, in speaking or otherwise, transgresses the Rules of the House, the Speaker shall, or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may, call to order the offending Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, who shall immediately sit down unless permitted on motion of another Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner to explain. If a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner is called to order, the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner making the call to order shall indicate the words excepted to, which shall be taken down in writing at the Clerk's desk and read aloud to the House.

(b) The Speaker shall decide the validity of a call to order. The House, if appealed to, shall decide the question without debate. If the decision is in favor of the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner called to order, the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall be at liberty to proceed, but not otherwise. If the case requires it, an offending Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall be liable to censure or such other punishment as the House may consider proper. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not be held to answer a call to order, and may not be subject to the censure of the House therefor, if further debate or other business has intervened.

Comportment

5. When the Speaker is putting a question or addressing the House, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not walk out of or across the Hall. When a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner is speaking, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not pass between the person speaking and the Chair. During the session of the House, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not wear a hat or remain by the Clerk's desk during the call of the roll or the counting of ballots. A person on the floor of the House may not smoke or use a mobile electronic device that impairs decorum. The Sergeant-at-Arms is charged with the strict enforcement of this clause.

Exhibits

6. When the use of an exhibit in debate is objected to by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, the Chair, in the discretion of the Chair, may submit the question of its use to the House without debate.

Galleries

7. During a session of the House, it shall not be in order for a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner to introduce to or to bring to the attention of the House an occupant in the galleries of the House. The Speaker may not entertain a request for the suspension of this rule by unanimous consent or otherwise.

Congressional Record

8. (a) The Congressional Record shall be a substantially verbatim account of remarks made during the proceedings of the House, subject only to technical, grammatical, and typographical corrections authorized by the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner making the remarks.

(b) Unparliamentary remarks may be deleted only by permission or order of the House.

(c) This clause establishes a standard of conduct within the meaning of clause 3(a)(2) of rule XI.

Secret sessions

9. When confidential communications are received from the President, or when the Speaker or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner informs the House that such individual has communications that such individual believes ought to be kept secret for the present, the House shall be cleared of all persons except the Members, Delegates, Resident Commissioner, and officers of the House for the reading of such communications, and debates and proceedings thereon, unless otherwise ordered by the House.

RULE XVIII

THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE HOUSE ON THE STATE OF THE UNION

Resolving into the Committee of the Whole

1. Whenever the House resolves into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Speaker shall leave the chair after appointing a Member as Chair to preside. In case of disturbance or disorderly conduct in the galleries or lobby, the Chair may cause the same to be cleared.

2. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b) and in clause 6 of rule XV, the House resolves into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union by motion. When such a motion is entertained, the Speaker shall put the question without debate: “Shall the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for consideration of this matter?”, naming it.

(b) After the House has adopted a resolution reported by the Committee on Rules providing a special order of business for the consideration of a measure in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Speaker may at any time, when no question is pending before the House, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of that measure without intervening motion, unless the special order of business provides otherwise.

Measures requiring initial consideration in the Committee of the Whole

3. All public bills, resolutions, or Senate amendments (as provided in clause 3 of rule XXII) involving a tax or charge on the people, raising revenue, directly or indirectly making appropriations of money or property or requiring such appropriations to be made, authorizing payments out of appropriations already made, releasing any liability to the United States for money or property, or referring a claim to the Court of Claims, shall be first considered in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union. A bill, resolution, or Senate amendment that fails to comply with this clause is subject to a point of order against its consideration.

Order of business

4. (a) Subject to subparagraph (b) business on the calendar of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union may be taken up in regular order, or in such order as the Committee may determine, unless the measure to be considered was determined by the House at the time of resolving into the Committee of the Whole.

(b) Motions to resolve into the Committee of the Whole for consideration of bills and joint resolutions making general appropriations have precedence under this clause.

Reading for amendment

5. (a) Before general debate commences on a measure in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, it shall be read in full. When general debate is concluded or closed by order of the House, the measure under consideration shall be read for amendment. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who offers an amendment shall be allowed five minutes to explain it, after which the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who shall first obtain the floor shall be allowed five minutes to speak in opposition to it. There shall be no further debate thereon, but the same privilege of debate shall be allowed in favor of and against any amendment that may be offered to an amendment. An amendment, or an amendment to an amendment, may be withdrawn by its proponent only by the unanimous consent of the Committee of the Whole.

(b) When a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner offers an amendment in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Clerk shall promptly transmit five copies of the amendment to the majority committee table and five copies to the minority committee table. The Clerk also shall deliver at least one copy of the amendment to the majority cloakroom and at least one copy to the minority cloakroom.

Quorum and voting

6. (a) A quorum of a Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union is 100 Members. The first time that a Committee of the Whole finds itself without a quorum during a day, the Chair shall invoke the procedure for a quorum call set forth in clause 2 of rule XX, unless the Chair elects to invoke an alternate procedure set forth in clause 3 or clause 4(a) of rule XX. If a quorum appears, the Committee of the Whole shall continue its business. If a quorum does not appear, the Committee of the Whole shall rise, and the Chair shall report the names of absentees to the House.

(b)(1) The Chair may refuse to entertain a point of order that a quorum is not present during general debate.

(2) After a quorum has once been established on a day, the Chair may entertain a point of order that a quorum is not present only when the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union is operating under the five-minute rule and the Chair has put the pending proposition to a vote.

(3) Upon sustaining a point of order that a quorum is not present, the Chair may announce that, following a regular quorum call under paragraph (a), the minimum time for electronic voting on the pending question shall be five minutes.

(c) When ordering a quorum call in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Chair may announce an intention to declare that a quorum is constituted at any time during the quorum call when the Chair determines that a quorum has appeared. If the Chair interrupts the quorum call by declaring that a quorum is constituted, proceedings under the quorum call shall be considered as vacated, and the Committee of the Whole shall continue its sitting and resume its business.

(d) A quorum is not required in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for adoption of a motion that the Committee rise.

(e) In the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Chair shall order a recorded vote on a request supported by at least 25 Members.

(f) In the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Chair may reduce to not less than two minutes the minimum time for electronic voting without any intervening business or debate on any or all pending amendments after a record vote has been taken on the first pending amendment.

(g) The Chair may postpone a request for a recorded vote on any amendment. The Chair may resume proceedings on a postponed request at any time. The Chair may reduce to not less than two minutes the minimum time for electronic voting on any postponed question that follows another electronic vote without intervening business, provided that the minimum time for electronic voting on the first in any series of questions shall be 15 minutes.

Dispensing with the reading of an amendment

7. It shall be in order in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union to move that the Committee of the Whole dispense with the reading of an amendment that has been printed in the bill or resolution as reported by a committee, or an amendment that a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner has caused to be printed in the Congressional Record. Such a motion shall be decided without debate.

Closing debate

8. (a) Subject to paragraph (b) at any time after the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union has begun five-minute debate on amendments to any portion of a bill or resolution, it shall be in order to move that the Committee of the Whole close all debate on that portion of the bill or resolution or on the pending amendments only. Such a motion shall be decided without debate. The adoption of such a motion does not preclude further amendment, to be decided without debate.

(b) If the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union closes debate on any portion of a bill or resolution before there has been debate on an amendment that a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner has caused to be printed in the Congressional Record at least one day before its consideration, the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who caused the amendment to be printed in the Record shall be allowed five minutes to explain it, after which the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who shall first obtain the floor shall be allowed five minutes to speak in opposition to it. There shall be no further debate thereon.

(c) Material submitted for printing in the Congressional Record under this clause shall indicate the full text of the proposed amendment, the name of the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner proposing it, the number of the bill or resolution to which it will be offered, and the point in the bill or resolution or amendment thereto where the amendment is intended to be offered. The amendment shall appear in a portion of the Record designated for that purpose. Amendments to a specified measure submitted for printing in that portion of the Record shall be numbered in the order printed.

Striking the enacting clause

9. A motion that the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union rise and report a bill or resolution to the House with the recommendation that the enacting or resolving clause be stricken shall have precedence of a motion to amend, and, if carried in the House, shall constitute a rejection of the bill or resolution. Whenever a bill or resolution is reported from the Committee of the Whole with such adverse recommendation and the recommendation is rejected by the House, the bill or resolution shall stand recommitted to the Committee of the Whole without further action by the House. Before the question of concurrence is submitted, it shall be in order to move that the House refer the bill or resolution to a committee, with or without instructions. If a bill or resolution is so referred, then when it is again reported to the House it shall be referred to the Committee of the Whole without debate.

Concurrent resolution on the budget

10. (a) At the conclusion of general debate in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union on a concurrent resolution on the budget under section 305(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the concurrent resolution shall be considered as read for amendment.

(b) It shall not be in order in the House or in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union to consider an amendment to a concurrent resolution on the budget, or an amendment thereto, unless the concurrent resolution, as amended by such amendment or amendments—

(1) would be mathematically consistent except as limited by paragraph (c); and

(2) would contain all the matter set forth in paragraphs (1) through (5) of section 301(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

(c)(1) Except as specified in subparagraph (2), it shall not be in order in the House or in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union to consider an amendment to a concurrent resolution on the budget, or an amendment thereto, that proposes to change the amount of the appropriate level of the public debt set forth in the concurrent resolution, as reported.

(2) Amendments to achieve mathematical consistency under section 305(a)(5) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, if offered by direction of the Committee on the Budget, may propose to adjust the amount of the appropriate level of the public debt set forth in the concurrent resolution, as reported, to reflect changes made in other figures contained in the concurrent resolution.

Applicability of Rules of the House

11. The Rules of the House are the rules of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union so far as applicable.

RULE XIX

MOTIONS FOLLOWING THE AMENDMENT STAGE

Previous question

1. (a) There shall be a motion for the previous question, which, being ordered, shall have the effect of cutting off all debate and bringing the House to a direct vote on the immediate question or questions on which it has been ordered. Whenever the previous question has been ordered on an otherwise debatable question on which there has been no debate, it shall be in order to debate that question for 40 minutes, equally divided and controlled by a proponent of the question and an opponent. The previous question may be moved and ordered on a single question, on a series of questions allowable under the rules, or on an amendment or amendments, or may embrace all authorized motions or amendments and include the bill or resolution to its passage, adoption, or rejection.

(b) Incidental questions of order arising during the pendency of a motion for the previous question shall be decided, whether on appeal or otherwise, without debate.

(c) Notwithstanding paragraph (a), when the previous question is operating to adoption or passage of a measure pursuant to a special order of business, the Chair may postpone further consideration of such measure in the House to such time as may be designated by the Speaker.

Recommit

2. (a) After the previous question has been ordered on passage or adoption of a measure, or pending a motion to that end, it shall be in order to move that the House recommit (or commit, as the case may be) the measure, with or without instructions, to a standing or select committee. For such a motion to recommit, the Speaker shall give preference in recognition to a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who is opposed to the measure.

(b)(1) Except as provided in paragraph (c), a motion that the House recommit a bill or joint resolution on which the previous question has been ordered to passage shall be debatable for 10 minutes equally divided between the proponent and an opponent.

(2) A motion to recommit a bill or joint resolution may include instructions only in the form of a direction to report an amendment or amendments back to the House forthwith.

(c) On demand of the floor manager for the majority, it shall be in order to debate the motion for one hour equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent.

Reconsideration

3. When a motion has been carried or lost, it shall be in order on the same or succeeding day for a Member on the prevailing side of the question to enter a motion for the reconsideration thereof. The entry of such a motion shall take precedence over all other questions except the consideration of a conference report or a motion to adjourn, and may not be withdrawn after such succeeding day without the consent of the House. Once entered, a motion may be called up for consideration by any Member. During the last six days of a session of Congress, such a motion shall be disposed of when entered.

4. A bill, petition, memorial, or resolution referred to a committee, or reported therefrom for printing and recommitment, may not be brought back to the House on a motion to reconsider.

RULE XX

VOTING AND QUORUM CALLS

1. (a) The House shall divide after the Speaker has put a question to a vote by voice as provided in clause 6 of rule I if the Speaker is in doubt or division is demanded. Those in favor of the question shall first rise from their seats to be counted, and then those opposed.

(b) If a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner requests a recorded vote, and that request is supported by at least one-fifth of a quorum, the vote shall be taken by electronic device unless the Speaker invokes another procedure for recording votes provided in this rule. A recorded vote taken in the House under this paragraph shall be considered a vote by the yeas and nays.

(c) In case of a tie vote, a question shall be lost.

2. (a) Unless the Speaker directs otherwise, the Clerk shall conduct a record vote or quorum call by electronic device. In such a case the Clerk shall enter on the Journal and publish in the Congressional Record, in alphabetical order in each category, the names of Members recorded as voting in the affirmative, the names of Members recorded as voting in the negative, and the names of Members answering present as if they had been called in the manner provided in clause 3. Except as otherwise permitted under clause 8 or 9 of this rule or under clause 6 of rule XVIII, the minimum time for a record vote or quorum call by electronic device shall be 15 minutes.

(b) When the electronic voting system is inoperable or is not used, the Speaker or Chair may direct the Clerk to conduct a record vote or quorum call as provided in clause 3 or 4.

3. The Speaker may direct the Clerk to conduct a record vote or quorum call by call of the roll. In such a case the Clerk shall call the names of Members, alphabetically by surname. When two or more have the same surname, the name of the State (and, if necessary to distinguish among Members from the same State, the given names of the Members) shall be added. After the roll has been called once, the Clerk shall call the names of those not recorded, alphabetically by surname. Members appearing after the second call, but before the result is announced, may vote or announce a pair.

4. (a) The Speaker may direct a record vote or quorum call to be conducted by tellers. In such a case the tellers named by the Speaker shall record the names of the Members voting on each side of the question or record their presence, as the case may be, which the Clerk shall enter on the Journal and publish in the Congressional Record. Absentees shall be noted, but the doors may not be closed except when ordered by the Speaker. The minimum time for a record vote or quorum call by tellers shall be 15 minutes.

(b) On the demand of a Member, or at the suggestion of the Speaker, the names of Members sufficient to make a quorum in the Hall of the House who do not vote shall be noted by the Clerk, entered on the Journal, reported to the Speaker with the names of the Members voting, and be counted and announced in determining the presence of a quorum to do business.

5. (a) In the absence of a quorum, a majority comprising at least 15 Members, which may include the Speaker, may compel the attendance of absent Members.

(b) Subject to clause 7(b) a majority described in paragraph (a) may order the Sergeant-at-Arms to send officers appointed by the Sergeant-at-Arms to arrest those Members for whom no sufficient excuse is made and shall secure and retain their attendance. The House shall determine on what condition they shall be discharged. Unless the House otherwise directs, the Members who voluntarily appear shall be admitted immediately to the Hall of the House and shall report their names to the Clerk to be entered on the Journal as present.

(c)(1) If the House should be without a quorum due to catastrophic circumstances, then—

(A) until there appear in the House a sufficient number of Representatives to constitute a quorum among the whole number of the House, a quorum in the House shall be determined based upon the provisional number of the House; and

(B) the provisional number of the House, as of the close of the call of the House described in subparagraph (3)(C), shall be the number of Representatives responding to that call of the House.

(2) If a Representative counted in determining the provisional number of the House thereafter ceases to be a Representative, or if a Representative not counted in determining the provisional number of the House thereafter appears in the House, the provisional number of the House shall be adjusted accordingly.

(3) For the purposes of subparagraph (1), the House shall be considered to be without a quorum due to catastrophic circumstances if, after a motion under paragraph (a) has been disposed of and without intervening adjournment, each of the following occurs in the stated sequence:

(A) A call of the House (or a series of calls of the House) is closed after aggregating a period in excess of 72 hours (excluding time the House is in recess) without producing a quorum.

(B) The Speaker—

(i) with the Majority Leader and the Minority Leader, receives from the Sergeant-at-Arms (or a designee) a catastrophic quorum failure report, as described in subparagraph (4);

(ii) consults with the Majority Leader and the Minority Leader on the content of that report; and

(iii) announces the content of that report to the House.

(C) A further call of the House (or a series of calls of the House) is closed after aggregating a period in excess of 24 hours (excluding time the House is in recess) without producing a quorum.

(4)(A) For purposes of subparagraph (3), a catastrophic quorum failure report is a report advising that the inability of the House to establish a quorum is attributable to catastrophic circumstances involving natural disaster, attack, contagion, or similar calamity rendering Representatives incapable of attending the proceedings of the House.

(B) Such report shall specify the following:

(i) The number of vacancies in the House and the names of former Representatives whose seats are vacant.

(ii) The names of Representatives considered incapacitated.

(iii) The names of Representatives not incapacitated but otherwise incapable of attending the proceedings of the House.

(iv) The names of Representatives unaccounted for.

(C) Such report shall be prepared on the basis of the most authoritative information available after consultation with the Attending Physician to the Congress and the Clerk (or their respective designees) and pertinent public health and law enforcement officials.

(D) Such report shall be updated every legislative day for the duration of any proceedings under or in reliance on this paragraph. The Speaker shall make such updates available to the House.

(5) An announcement by the Speaker under subparagraph (3)(B)(iii) shall not be subject to appeal.

(6) Subparagraph (1) does not apply to a proposal to create a vacancy in the representation from any State in respect of a Representative not incapacitated but otherwise incapable of attending the proceedings of the House.

(7) For purposes of this paragraph:

(A) The term “provisional number of the House” means the number of Representatives upon which a quorum will be computed in the House until Representatives sufficient in number to constitute a quorum among the whole number of the House appear in the House.

(B) The term “whole number of the House” means the number of Representatives chosen, sworn, and living whose membership in the House has not been terminated by resignation or by the action of the House.

(d) Upon the death, resignation, expulsion, disqualification, removal, or swearing of a Member, the whole number of the House shall be adjusted accordingly. The Speaker shall announce the adjustment to the House. Such an announcement shall not be subject to appeal. In the case of a death, the Speaker may lay before the House such documentation from Federal, State, or local officials as the Speaker deems pertinent.

6. (a) When a quorum fails to vote on a question, a quorum is not present, and objection is made for that cause (unless the House shall adjourn)—

(1) there shall be a call of the House;

(2) the Sergeant-at-Arms shall proceed forthwith to bring in absent Members; and

(3) the yeas and nays on the pending question shall at the same time be considered as ordered.

(b) The Clerk shall record Members by the yeas and nays on the pending question, using such procedure as the Speaker may invoke under clause 2, 3, or 4. Each Member arrested under this clause shall be brought by the Sergeant-at-Arms before the House, whereupon the Member shall be noted as present, discharged from arrest, and given an opportunity to vote; and such vote shall be recorded. If those voting on the question and those who are present and decline to vote together make a majority of the House, the Speaker shall declare that a quorum is constituted, and the pending question shall be decided as the requisite majority of those voting shall have determined. Thereupon further proceedings under the call shall be considered as dispensed with.

(c) At any time after Members have had the requisite opportunity to respond by the yeas and nays ordered under this clause, but before a result has been announced, a motion that the House adjourn shall be in order if seconded by a majority of those present, to be ascertained by actual count by the Speaker. If the House adjourns on such a motion, all proceedings under this clause shall be considered as vacated.

7. (a) The Speaker may not entertain a point of order that a quorum is not present unless a question has been put to a vote.

(b) Subject to paragraph (c) the Speaker may recognize a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner to move a call of the House at any time. When a quorum is established pursuant to a call of the House, further proceedings under the call shall be considered as dispensed with unless the Speaker recognizes for a motion to compel attendance of Members under clause 5(b).

(c) A call of the House shall not be in order after the previous question is ordered unless the Speaker determines by actual count that a quorum is not present.

Postponement of proceedings

8. (a)(1) When a recorded vote is ordered, or the yeas and nays are ordered, or a vote is objected to under clause 6—

(A) on any of the questions specified in subparagraph (2), the Speaker may postpone further proceedings to a designated place in the legislative schedule within two additional legislative days; and

(B) on the question of agreeing to the Speaker's approval of the Journal, the Speaker may postpone further proceedings to a designated place in the legislative schedule on that legislative day.

(2) The questions described in subparagraph (1) are as follows:

(A) The question of passing a bill or joint resolution.

(B) The question of adopting a resolution or concurrent resolution.

(C) The question of agreeing to a motion to instruct managers on the part of the House (except that proceedings may not resume on such a motion under clause 7(c) of rule XXII if the managers have filed a report in the House).

(D) The question of agreeing to a conference report.

(E) The question of ordering the previous question on a question described in subdivision (A), (B), (C), or (D).

(F) The question of agreeing to a motion to suspend the rules.

(G) The question of agreeing to a motion to reconsider or the question of agreeing to a motion to lay on the table a motion to reconsider.

(H) The question of agreeing to an amendment reported from the Committee of the Whole.

(b) At the time designated by the Speaker for further proceedings on questions postponed under paragraph (a),

the Speaker shall resume proceedings on each postponed question.

(c) The Speaker may reduce to five minutes the minimum time for electronic voting on a question postponed under this clause, or on a question incidental thereto, that follows another electronic vote without intervening business, so long as the minimum time for electronic voting on the first in any series of questions is 15 minutes.

(d) If the House adjourns on a legislative day designated for further proceedings on questions postponed under this clause without disposing of such questions, then on the next legislative day the unfinished business is the disposition of such questions.

Five-minute votes

9. The Speaker may reduce to five minutes the minimum time for electronic voting on any question arising without intervening business after an electronic vote on another question if notice of possible five-minute voting for a given series of votes was issued before the preceding electronic vote.

Automatic yeas and nays

10. The yeas and nays shall be considered as ordered when the Speaker puts the question on passage of a bill or joint resolution, or on adoption of a conference report, making general appropriations, or increasing Federal income tax rates (within the meaning of clause 5 of rule XXI), or on final adoption of a concurrent resolution on the budget or conference report thereon.

Ballot votes

11. In a case of ballot for election, a majority of the votes shall be necessary to an election. When there is not such a majority on the first ballot, the process shall be repeated until a majority is obtained. In all balloting blanks shall be rejected, may not be counted in the enumeration of votes, and may not be reported by the tellers.

RULE XXI

RESTRICTIONS ON CERTAIN BILLS

Reservation of certain points of order

1. At the time a general appropriation bill is reported, all points of order against provisions therein shall be considered as reserved.

General appropriation bills and amendments

2. (a)(1) An appropriation may not be reported in a general appropriation bill, and may not be in order as an amendment thereto, for an expenditure not previously authorized by law, except to continue appropriations for public works and objects that are already in progress.

(2) A reappropriation of unexpended balances of appropriations may not be reported in a general appropriation bill, and may not be in order as an amendment thereto, except to continue appropriations for public works and objects that are already in progress. This subparagraph does not apply to transfers of unexpended balances within the department or agency for which they were originally appropriated that are reported by the Committee on Appropriations.

(b) A provision changing existing law may not be reported in a general appropriation bill, including a provision making the availability of funds contingent on the receipt or possession of information not required by existing law for the period of the appropriation, except germane provisions that retrench expenditures by the reduction of amounts of money covered by the bill (which may include those recommended to the Committee on Appropriations by direction of a legislative committee having jurisdiction over the subject matter) and except rescissions of appropriations contained in appropriation Acts.

(c) An amendment to a general appropriation bill shall not be in order if changing existing law, including an amendment making the availability of funds contingent on the receipt or possession of information not required by existing law for the period of the appropriation. Except as provided in paragraph (d), an amendment proposing a limitation not specifically contained or authorized in existing law for the period of the limitation shall not be in order during consideration of a general appropriation bill.

(d) After a general appropriation bill has been read for amendment, a motion that the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted shall, if offered by the Majority Leader or a designee, have precedence over motions to amend the bill. If such a motion to rise and report is rejected or not offered, amendments proposing limitations not specifically contained or authorized in existing law for the period of the limitation or proposing germane amendments that retrench expenditures by reductions of amounts of money covered by the bill may be considered.

(e) A provision other than an appropriation designated an emergency under section 251(b)(2) or section 252(e) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act, a rescission of budget authority, or a reduction in direct spending or an amount for a designated emergency may not be reported in an appropriation bill or joint resolution containing an emergency designation under section 251(b)(2) or section 252(e) of such Act and may not be in order as an amendment thereto.

(f) During the reading of an appropriation bill for amendment in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, it shall be in order to consider en bloc amendments proposing only to transfer appropriations among objects in the bill without increasing the levels of budget authority or outlays in the bill. When considered en bloc under this paragraph, such amendments may amend portions of the bill not yet read for amendment (following disposition of any points of order against such portions) and are not subject to a demand for division of the question in the House or in the Committee of the Whole.

3. It shall not be in order to consider a general appropriation bill or joint resolution, or conference report thereon, that—

(a) provides spending authority derived from receipts deposited in the Highway Trust Fund (excluding any transfers from the General Fund of the Treasury); or

(b) reduces or otherwise limits the accruing balances of the Highway Trust Fund, for any purpose other than for those activities authorized for the highway or mass transit categories.

Appropriations on legislative bills

4. A bill or joint resolution carrying an appropriation may not be reported by a committee not having jurisdiction to report appropriations, and an amendment proposing an appropriation shall not be in order during the consideration of a bill or joint resolution reported by a committee not having that jurisdiction. A point of order against an appropriation in such a bill, joint resolution, or amendment thereto may be raised at any time during pendency of that measure for amendment.

Tax and tariff measures and amendments

5. (a)(1) A bill or joint resolution carrying a tax or tariff measure may not be reported by a committee not having jurisdiction to report tax or tariff measures, and an amendment in the House or proposed by the Senate carrying a tax or tariff measure shall not be in order during the consideration of a bill or joint resolution reported by a committee not having that jurisdiction. A point of order against a tax or tariff measure in such a bill, joint resolution, or amendment thereto may be raised at any time during pendency of that measure for amendment.

(2) For purposes of paragraph (1), a tax or tariff measure includes an amendment proposing a limitation on funds in a general appropriation bill for the administration of a tax or tariff.

Passage of tax rate increases

(b) A bill or joint resolution, amendment, or conference report carrying a Federal income tax rate increase may not be considered as passed or agreed to unless so determined by a vote of not less than three-fifths of the Members voting, a quorum being present. In this paragraph the term “Federal income tax rate increase” means any amendment to subsection (a), (b), (c), (d), or (e) of section 1, or to section 11(b) or 55(b), of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, that imposes a new percentage as a rate of tax and thereby increases the amount of tax imposed by any such section.

Consideration of retroactive tax rate increases

(c) It shall not be in order to consider a bill, joint resolution, amendment, or conference report carrying a retroactive Federal income tax rate increase. In this paragraph—

(1) the term “Federal income tax rate increase” means any amendment to subsection (a), (b), (c), (d), or (e) of section 1, or to section 11(b) or 55(b), of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, that imposes a new percentage as a rate of tax and thereby increases the amount of tax imposed by any such section; and

(2) a Federal income tax rate increase is retroactive if it applies to a period beginning before the enactment of the provision.

Designation of public works

6. It shall not be in order to consider a bill, joint resolution, amendment, or conference report that provides for the designation or redesignation of a public work in honor of an individual then serving as a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or Senator.

7. It shall not be in order to consider a concurrent resolution on the budget, or an amendment thereto, or a conference report thereon that contains reconciliation directives under section 310 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 that specify changes in law such that the reconciliation legislation reported pursuant to such directives would cause an increase in net direct spending (as such term is defined in clause 10) for the period covered by such concurrent resolution.

8. With respect to measures considered pursuant to a special order of business, points of order under title III of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 shall operate without regard to whether the measure concerned has been reported from committee. Such points of order shall operate with respect to (as the case may be)—

(a) the form of a measure recommended by the reporting committee where the statute uses the term “as reported” (in the case of a measure that has been so reported);

(b) the form of the measure made in order as an original bill or joint resolution for the purpose of amendment; or

(c) the form of the measure on which the previous question is ordered directly to passage.

9. (a) It shall not be in order to consider—

(1) a bill or joint resolution reported by a committee unless the report includes a list of congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, and limited tariff benefits in the bill or in the report (and the name of any Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who submitted a request to the committee for each respective item included in such list) or a statement that the proposition contains no congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits;

(2) a bill or joint resolution not reported by a committee unless the chair of each committee of initial referral has caused a list of congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, and limited tariff benefits in the bill (and the name of any Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who submitted a request to the committee for each respective item included in such list) or a statement that the proposition contains no congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits to be printed in the Congressional Record prior to its consideration;

(3) an amendment to a bill or joint resolution to be offered at the outset of its consideration for amendment by a member of a committee of initial referral as designated in a report of the Committee on Rules to accompany a resolution prescribing a special order of business unless the proponent has caused a list of congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, and limited tariff benefits in the amendment (and the name of any Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who submitted a request to the proponent for each respective item included in such list) or a statement that the proposition contains no congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits to be printed in the Congressional Record prior to its consideration; or

(4) a conference report to accompany a bill or joint resolution unless the joint explanatory statement prepared by the managers on the part of the House and the managers on the part of the Senate includes a list of congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, and limited tariff benefits in the conference report or joint statement (and the name of any Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or Senator who submitted a request to the House or Senate committees of jurisdiction for each respective item included in such list) or a statement that the proposition contains no congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits.

(b) It shall not be in order to consider a conference report to accompany a regular general appropriation bill unless the joint explanatory statement prepared by the managers on the part of the House and the managers on the part of the Senate includes—

(1) a list of congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, and limited tariff benefits in the conference report or joint statement (and the name of any Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or Senator who submitted a request to the House or Senate committees of jurisdiction for each respective item included in such list) that were neither committed to the conference committee by either House nor in a report of a committee of either House on such bill or on a companion measure; or

(2) a statement that the proposition contains no such congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits.

(c) It shall not be in order to consider a rule or order that waives the application of paragraph (a) or (b). As disposition of a point of order under this paragraph or paragraph (b), the Chair shall put the question of consideration with respect to the rule or order or conference report, as applicable. The question of consideration shall be debatable for 10 minutes by the Member initiating the point of order and for 10 minutes by an opponent, but shall otherwise be decided without intervening motion except one that the House adjourn.

(d) In order to be cognizable by the Chair, a point of order raised under paragraph (a) may be based only on the failure of a report, submission to the Congressional Record, or joint explanatory statement to include a list required by paragraph (a) or a statement that the proposition contains no congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits.

(e) For the purpose of this clause, the term “congressional earmark” means a provision or report language included primarily at the request of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or Senator providing, authorizing or recommending a specific amount of discretionary budget authority, credit authority, or other spending authority for a contract, loan, loan guarantee, grant, loan authority, or other expenditure with or to an entity, or targeted to a specific State, locality or Congressional district, other than through a statutory or administrative formula-driven or competitive award process.

(f) For the purpose of this clause, the term “limited tax benefit” means—

(1) any revenue-losing provision that—

(A) provides a Federal tax deduction, credit, exclusion, or preference to 10 or fewer beneficiaries under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, and

(B) contains eligibility criteria that are not uniform in application with respect to potential beneficiaries of such provision; or

(2) any Federal tax provision which provides one beneficiary temporary or permanent transition relief from a change to the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(g) For the purpose of this clause, the term “limited tariff benefit” means a provision modifying the Harmonized Tariff Schedule of the United States in a manner that benefits 10 or fewer entities.

10. (a)(1) Except as provided in paragraphs (b) and (c), it shall not be in order to consider a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment thereto or a conference report thereon, if the provisions of such measure have the net effect of increasing mandatory spending for the period of either—

(A) the current year, the budget year, and the four fiscal years following that budget year; or

(B) the current year, the budget year, and the nine fiscal years following that budget year.

(2) For the purpose of this clause, the terms “budget year” and “current year” have the meanings specified in section 250 of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, and the term “mandatory spending” has the meaning of “direct spending” specified in such section 250 except that such term shall also include provisions in appropriation Acts that make outyear modifications to substantive law as described in section 3(4)(C) of the Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010.

(b) If a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment thereto, is considered pursuant to a special order of the House directing the Clerk to add as new matter at the end of such bill or joint resolution the entire text of a separate measure or measures as passed by the House, the new matter proposed to be added shall be included in the evaluation under paragraph (a) of the bill, joint resolution, or amendment.

(c)(1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2), the evaluation under paragraph (a) shall exclude a provision expressly designated as an emergency for the Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010, in the case of a point of order under this clause against consideration of—

(A) a bill or joint resolution;

(B) an amendment made in order as original text by a special order of business;

(C) a conference report; or

(D) an amendment between the Houses.

(2) In the case of an amendment (other than one specified in subparagraph (1)) to a bill or joint resolution, the evaluation under paragraph (a) shall give no cognizance to any designation of emergency.

11. It shall not be in order to consider a bill or joint resolution which has not been reported by a committee until the third calendar day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, or legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) on which such measure has been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner.

RULE XXII

HOUSE AND SENATE RELATIONS

Senate amendments

1. A motion to disagree to Senate amendments to a House proposition and to request or agree to a conference with the Senate, or a motion to insist on House amendments to a Senate proposition and to request or agree to a conference with the Senate, shall be privileged in the discretion of the Speaker if offered by direction of the primary committee and of all reporting committees that had initial referral of the proposition.

2. A motion to dispose of House bills with Senate amendments not requiring consideration in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union shall be privileged.

3. Except as permitted by clause 1, before the stage of disagreement, a Senate amendment to a House bill or resolution shall be subject to the point of order that it must first be considered in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union if, originating in the House, it would be subject to such a point under clause 3 of rule XVIII.

4. When the stage of disagreement has been reached on a bill or resolution with House or Senate amendments, a motion to dispose of any amendment shall be privileged.

5. (a) Managers on the part of the House may not agree to a Senate amendment described in paragraph (b) unless specific authority to agree to the amendment first is given by the House by a separate vote with respect thereto. If specific authority is not granted, the Senate amendment shall be reported in disagreement by the conference committee back to the two Houses for disposition by separate motion.

(b) The managers on the part of the House may not agree to a Senate amendment described in paragraph (a) that—

(1) would violate clause 2(a)(1) or (c) of rule XXI if originating in the House; or

(2) proposes an appropriation on a bill other than a general appropriation bill.

6. A Senate amendment carrying a tax or tariff measure in violation of clause 5(a) of rule XXI may not be agreed to.

Conference reports; amendments reported in disagreement

7. (a) The presentation of a conference report shall be in order at any time except during a reading of the Journal or the conduct of a record vote, a vote by division, or a quorum call.

(b)(1) Subject to subparagraph (2) the time allotted for debate on a motion to instruct managers on the part of the House shall be equally divided between the majority and minority parties.

(2) If the proponent of a motion to instruct managers on the part of the House and the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner of the other party identified under subparagraph (1) both support the motion, one-third of the time for debate thereon shall be allotted to a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who opposes the motion on demand of that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner.

(c)(1) A motion to instruct managers on the part of the House, or a motion to discharge all managers on the part of the House and to appoint new conferees, shall be privileged after a conference committee has been appointed for 20 calendar days and 10 legislative days without making a report, but only on the day after the calendar day on which the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner offering the motion announces to the House intention to do so and the form of the motion.

(2) The Speaker may designate a time in the legislative schedule on that legislative day for consideration of a motion described in subparagraph (1).

(3) During the last six days of a session of Congress, a motion under subparagraph (1) shall be privileged after a conference committee has been appointed for 36 hours without making a report and the proponent meets the notice requirement in subparagraph (1).

(d) Instructions to conferees in a motion to instruct or in a motion to recommit to conference may not include argument.

(e) Each conference report to the House shall be printed as a report of the House. Each such report shall be accompanied by a joint explanatory statement prepared jointly by the managers on the part of the House and the managers on the part of the Senate. The joint explanatory statement shall be sufficiently detailed and explicit to inform the House of the effects of the report on the matters committed to conference.

8. (a)(1) Except as specified in subparagraph (2), it shall not be in order to consider a conference report until

(A) the third calendar day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, or legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) on which the conference report and the accompanying joint explanatory statement have been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner in the Congressional Record; and

(B) copies of the conference report and the accompanying joint explanatory statement have been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner for at least two hours.

(2) Subparagraph (1)(A) does not apply during the last six days of a session of Congress.

(b)(1) Except as specified in subparagraph (2), it shall not be in order to consider a motion to dispose of a Senate amendment reported in disagreement by a conference committee until—

(A) the third calendar day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, or legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) on which the report in disagreement and any accompanying statement have been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner in the Congressional Record; and

(B) copies of the report in disagreement and any accompanying statement, together with the text of the Senate amendment, have been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner for at least two hours.

(2) Subparagraph (1)(A) does not apply during the last six days of a session of Congress.

(3) During consideration of a Senate amendment reported in disagreement by a conference committee on a general appropriation bill, a motion to insist on disagreement to the Senate amendment shall be preferential to any other motion to dispose of that amendment if the original motion offered by the floor manager proposes to change existing law and the motion to insist is offered before debate on the original motion by the chair of the committee having jurisdiction of the subject matter of the amendment or a designee. Such a preferential motion shall be separately debatable for one hour equally divided between its proponent and the proponent of the original motion. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the preferential motion to its adoption without intervening motion.

(c) A conference report or a Senate amendment reported in disagreement by a conference committee that has been available as provided in paragraph (a) or (b) shall be considered as read when called up.

(d)(1) Subject to subparagraph (2), the time allotted for debate on a conference report or on a motion to dispose of a Senate amendment reported in disagreement by a conference committee shall be equally divided between the majority and minority parties.

(2) If the floor manager for the majority and the floor manager for the minority both support the conference report or motion, one-third of the time for debate thereon shall be allotted to a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who opposes the conference report or motion on demand of that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner.

(e) Under clause 6(a)(2) of rule XIII, a resolution proposing only to waive a requirement of this clause concerning the availability of reports to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner may be considered by the House on the same day it is reported by the Committee on Rules.

9. Whenever a disagreement to an amendment has been committed to a conference committee, the managers on the part of the House may propose a substitute that is a germane modification of the matter in disagreement. The introduction of any language presenting specific additional matter not committed to the conference committee by either House does not constitute a germane modification of the matter in disagreement. Moreover, a conference report may not include matter not committed to the conference committee by either House and may not include a modification of specific matter committed to the conference committee by either or both Houses if that modification is beyond the scope of that specific matter as committed to the conference committee.

10. (a)(1) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may raise a point of order against nongermane matter, as specified in subparagraph (2), before the commencement of debate on—

(A) a conference report;

(B) a motion that the House recede from its disagreement to a Senate amendment reported in disagreement by a conference committee and concur therein, with or without amendment; or

(C) a motion that the House recede from its disagreement to a Senate amendment on which the stage of disagreement has been reached and concur therein, with or without amendment.

(2) A point of order against nongermane matter is one asserting that a proposition described in subparagraph (1) contains specified matter that would violate clause 7 of rule XVI if it were offered in the House as an amendment to the underlying measure in the form it was passed by the House.

(b) If a point of order under paragraph (a) is sustained, a motion that the House reject the nongermane matter identified by the point of order shall be privileged. Such a motion is debatable for 40 minutes, one-half in favor of the motion and one-half in opposition thereto.

(c) After disposition of a point of order under paragraph (a) or a motion to reject under paragraph (b), any further points of order under paragraph (a) not covered by a previous point of order, and any consequent motions to reject under paragraph (b), shall be likewise disposed of.

(d)(1) If a motion to reject under paragraph (b) is adopted, then after disposition of all points of order under paragraph (a) and any consequent motions to reject under paragraph (b), the conference report or motion, as the case may be, shall be considered as rejected and the matter remaining in disagreement shall be disposed of under subparagraph (2) or (3), as the case may be.

(2) After the House has adopted one or more motions to reject nongermane matter contained in a conference report under the preceding provisions of this clause—

(A) if the conference report accompanied a House measure amended by the Senate, the pending question shall be whether the House shall recede and concur in the Senate amendment with an amendment consisting of so much of the conference report as was not rejected; and

(B) if the conference report accompanied a Senate measure amended by the House, the pending question shall be whether the House shall insist further on the House amendment.

(3) After the House has adopted one or more motions to reject nongermane matter contained in a motion that the House recede and concur in a Senate amendment, with or without amendment, the following motions shall be privileged and shall have precedence in the order stated:

(A) A motion that the House recede and concur in the Senate amendment with an amendment in writing then available on the floor.

(B) A motion that the House insist on its disagreement to the Senate amendment and request a further conference with the Senate.

(C) A motion that the House insist on its disagreement to the Senate amendment.

(e) If, on a division of the question on a motion described in paragraph (a)(1)(B) or (C), the House agrees to recede, then a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may raise a point of order against nongermane matter, as specified in paragraph (a)(2), before the commencement of debate on concurring in the Senate amendment, with or without amendment. A point of order under this paragraph shall be disposed of according to the preceding provisions of this clause in the same manner as a point of order under paragraph (a).

11. It shall not be in order to consider a conference report to accompany a bill or joint resolution that proposes to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 unless—

(a) the joint explanatory statement of the managers includes a tax complexity analysis prepared by the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation in accordance with section 4022(b) of the Internal Revenue Service Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998; or

(b) the chair of the Committee on Ways and Means causes such a tax complexity analysis to be printed in the Congressional Record before consideration of the conference report.

12. (a)(1) Subject to subparagraph (2), a meeting of each conference committee shall be open to the public.

(2) In open session of the House, a motion that managers on the part of the House be permitted to close to the public a meeting or meetings of their conference committee shall be privileged, shall be decided without debate, and shall be decided by the yeas and nays.

(3) In conducting conferences with the Senate, managers on the part of the House should endeavor to ensure—

(A) that meetings for the resolution of differences between the two Houses occur only under circumstances in which every manager on the part of the House has notice of the meeting and a reasonable opportunity to attend;

(B) that all provisions on which the two Houses disagree are considered as open to discussion at any meeting of a conference committee; and

(C) that papers reflecting a conference agreement are held inviolate to change without renewal of the opportunity of all managers on the part of the House to reconsider their decisions to sign or not to sign the agreement.

(4) Managers on the part of the House shall be provided a unitary time and place with access to at least one complete copy of the final conference agreement for the purpose of recording their approval (or not) of the final conference agreement by placing their signatures (or not) on the sheets prepared to accompany the conference report and joint explanatory statement of the managers.

(b) A point of order that a conference committee failed to comply with paragraph (a) may be raised immediately after the conference report is read or considered as read. If such a point of order is sustained, the conference report shall be considered as rejected, the House shall be considered to have insisted on its amendments or on disagreement to the Senate amendments, as the case may be, and to have requested a further conference with the Senate, and the Speaker may appoint new conferees without intervening motion.

13. It shall not be in order to consider a conference report the text of which differs in any way, other than clerical, from the text that reflects the action of the conferees on all of the differences between the two Houses, as recorded by their placement of their signatures (or not) on the sheets prepared to accompany the conference report and joint explanatory statement of the managers.

RULE XXIII

CODE OF OFFICIAL CONDUCT

There is hereby established by and for the House the following code of conduct, to be known as the “Code of Official Conduct”:

1. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall behave at all times in a manner that shall reflect creditably on the House.

2. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall adhere to the spirit and the letter of the Rules of the House and to the rules of duly constituted committees thereof.

3. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not receive compensation and may not permit compensation to accrue to the beneficial interest of such individual from any source, the receipt of which would occur by virtue of influence improperly exerted from the position of such individual in Congress.

4. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not accept gifts except as provided by clause 5 of rule XXV.

5. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not accept an honorarium for a speech, a writing for publication, or other similar activity, except as otherwise provided under rule XXV.

6. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner—

(a) shall keep the campaign funds of such individual separate from the personal funds of such individual;

(b) may not convert campaign funds to personal use in excess of an amount representing reimbursement for legitimate and verifiable campaign expenditures; and

(c) except as provided in clause 1(b) of rule XXIV, may not expend funds from a campaign account of such individual that are not attributable to bona fide campaign or political purposes.

7. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall treat as campaign contributions all proceeds from testimonial dinners or other fund-raising events.

8. (a) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer of the House may not retain an employee who does not perform duties for the offices of the employing authority commensurate with the compensation such employee receives.

(b) In the case of a committee employee who works under the direct supervision of a member of the committee other than a chair, the chair may require that such member affirm in writing that the employee has complied with clause 8(a) (subject to clause 9 of rule X) as evidence of compliance by the chair with this clause and with clause 9 of rule X.

(c)(1) Except as specified in subparagraph (2)—

(A) a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not retain the spouse of such individual in a paid position; and

(B) an employee of the House may not accept compensation for work for a committee on which the spouse of such employee serves as a member.

(2) Subparagraph (1) shall not apply in the case of a spouse whose pertinent employment predates the One Hundred Seventh Congress.

9. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not discharge and may not refuse to hire an individual, or otherwise discriminate against an individual with respect to compensation, terms, conditions, or privileges of employment, because of the race, color, religion, sex (including marital or parental status), disability, age, or national origin of such individual, but may take into consideration the domicile or political affiliation of such individual.

10. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who has been convicted by a court of record for the commission of a crime for which a sentence of two or more years' imprisonment may be imposed should refrain from participation in the business of each committee of which such individual is a member, and a Member should refrain from voting on any question at a meeting of the House or of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, unless or until judicial or executive proceedings result in reinstatement of the presumption of the innocence of such Member or until the Member is reelected to the House after the date of such conviction.

11. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not authorize or otherwise allow an individual, group, or organization not under the direction and control of the House to use the words "Congress of the United States," "House of Representatives," or "Official Business," or any combination of words thereof, on any letterhead or envelope.

12. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b), an employee of the House who is required to file a report under rule XXVI may not participate personally and substantially as an employee of the House in a contact with an agency of the executive or judicial branches of Government with respect to nonlegislative matters affecting any nongovernmental person in which the employee has a significant financial interest.

(b) Paragraph (a) does not apply if an employee first advises the employing authority of such employee of a significant financial interest described in paragraph (a) and obtains from such employing authority a written waiver stating that the participation of the employee in the activity described in paragraph (a) is necessary. A copy of each such waiver shall be filed with the Committee on Ethics.

13. Before a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may have access to classified information, the following oath (or affirmation) shall be executed:

“I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will not disclose any classified information received in the course of my service with the House of Representatives, except as authorized by the House of Representatives or in accordance with its Rules.”

Copies of the executed oath (or affirmation) shall be retained by the Clerk as part of the records of the House. The Clerk shall make the signatories a matter of public record, causing the names of each Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who has signed the oath during a week (if any) to be published in a portion of the Congressional Record designated for that purpose on the last legislative day of the week and making cumulative lists of such names available each day for public inspection in an appropriate office of the House.

14. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not, with the intent to influence on the basis of partisan political affiliation an employment decision or employment practice of any private entity—

(a) take or withhold, or offer or threaten to take or withhold, an official act; or

(b) influence, or offer or threaten to influence, the official act of another.

15. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b), a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not use personal funds, official funds, or campaign funds for a flight on an aircraft.

(b) Paragraph (a) does not apply if—

(1) the aircraft is operated by an air carrier or commercial operator certificated by the Federal Aviation Administration and the flight is required to be conducted under air carrier safety rules, or, in the case of travel which is abroad, by an air carrier or commercial operator certificated by an appropriate foreign civil aviation authority and the flight is required to be conducted under air carrier safety rules;

(2) the aircraft is owned or leased by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner or a family member of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner (including an aircraft owned by an entity that is not a public corporation in which the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner or a family member of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner has an ownership interest, provided that such Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner does not use the aircraft any more than the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or family member's proportionate share of ownership allows);

(3) the flight consists of the personal use of an aircraft by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner that is supplied by an individual on the basis of personal friendship; or

(4) the aircraft is operated by an entity of the Federal government or an entity of the government of any State.

(c) In this clause—

(1) the term “campaign funds” includes funds of any political committee under the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, without regard to whether the committee is an authorized committee of the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner involved under such Act;

(2) the term “family member” means an individual who is related to the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, as father, mother, son, daughter, brother, sister, husband, wife, father-in-law, or mother-in-law; and

(3) the term “on the basis of personal friendship” has the same meaning as in clause 5 of rule XXV and shall be determined as under clause 5(a)(3)(D)(ii) of rule XXV.

16. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not condition the inclusion of language to provide funding for a congressional earmark, a limited tax benefit, or a limited tariff benefit in any bill or joint resolution (or an accompanying report) or in any conference report on a bill or joint resolution (including an accompanying joint explanatory statement of managers) on any vote cast by another Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner. For purposes of this clause and clause 17, the terms “congressional earmark,” “limited tax benefit,” and “limited tariff benefit” shall have the meanings given them in clause 9 of rule XXI.

17. (a) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who requests a congressional earmark, a limited tax benefit, or a limited tariff benefit in any bill or joint resolution (or an accompanying report) or in any conference report on a bill or joint resolution (or an accompanying joint statement of managers) shall provide a written statement to the chair and ranking minority member of the committee of jurisdiction, including—

(1) the name of the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner;

(2) in the case of a congressional earmark, the name and address of the intended recipient or, if there is no specifically intended recipient, the intended location of the activity;

(3) in the case of a limited tax or tariff benefit, identification of the individual or entities reasonably anticipated to benefit, to the extent known to the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner;

(4) the purpose of such congressional earmark or limited tax or tariff benefit; and

(5) a certification that the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner or spouse has no financial interest in such congressional earmark or limited tax or tariff benefit.

(b) Each committee shall maintain the information transmitted under paragraph (a), and the written disclosures for any congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits included in any measure reported by the committee or conference report filed by the chair of the committee or any subcommittee thereof shall be open for public inspection.

18. (a) In this Code of Official Conduct, the term “officer or employee of the House” means an individual whose compensation is disbursed by the Chief Administrative Officer.

(b) An individual whose services are compensated by the House pursuant to a consultant contract shall be considered an employee of the House for purposes of clauses 1, 2, 3, 4, 8, 9, and 13 of this rule. An individual whose services are compensated by the House pursuant to a consultant contract may not lobby the contracting committee or the members or staff of the contracting committee on any matter. Such an individual may lobby other Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner or staff of the House on matters outside the jurisdiction of the contracting committee. In the case of such an individual who is a member or employee of a firm, partnership, or other business organization, the other members and employees of the firm, partnership, or other business organization shall be subject to the same restrictions on lobbying that apply to the individual under this paragraph.

RULE XXIV

LIMITATIONS ON USE OF OFFICIAL FUNDS

Limitations on use of official and unofficial accounts

1. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b), a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not maintain, or have maintained for the use of such individual, an unofficial office account. Funds may not be paid into an unofficial office account.

(b)(1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2), a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may defray official expenses with funds of the principal campaign committee of such individual under the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 431 et seq.).

(2) The funds specified in subparagraph (1) may not be used to defray official expenses for mail or other communications, compensation for services, office space, office furniture, office equipment, or any associated information technology services (excluding handheld communications devices).

2. Notwithstanding any other provision of this rule, if an amount from the Official Expenses Allowance of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner is paid into the House Recording Studio revolving fund for telecommunications satellite services, the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may accept reimbursement from nonpolitical entities in that amount for transmission to the Clerk for credit to the Official Expenses Allowance.

3. In this rule the term “unofficial office account” means an account or repository in which funds are received for the purpose of defraying otherwise unreimbursed expenses allowable under section 162(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 as ordinary and necessary in the operation of a congressional office, and includes a newsletter fund referred to in section 527(g) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

Limitations on use of the frank

4. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall mail franked mail under section 3210(d) of title 39, United States Code at the most economical rate of postage practicable.

5. Before making a mass mailing, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall submit a sample or description of the mail matter involved to the House Commission on Congressional Mailing Standards for an advisory opinion as to whether the proposed mailing is in compliance with applicable provisions of law, rule, or regulation.

6. A mass mailing that is otherwise frankable by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner under the provisions of section 3210(e) of title 39, United States Code, is not frankable unless the cost of preparing and printing it is defrayed exclusively from funds made available in an appropriation Act.

7. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not send a mass mailing outside the congressional district from which elected.

8. In the case of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, a mass mailing is not frankable under section 3210 of title 39, United States Code, when it is postmarked less than 90 days before the date of a primary or general election (whether regular, special, or runoff) in which such individual is a candidate for public office. If the mail matter is of a type that is not customarily postmarked, the date on which it would have been postmarked, if it were of a type customarily postmarked, applies.

9. In this rule the term “mass mailing” means, with respect to a session of Congress, a mailing of newsletters or other pieces of mail with substantially identical content (whether such pieces of mail are deposited singly or in bulk, or at the same time or different times), totaling more than 500 pieces of mail in that session, except that such term does not include a mailing—

(a) of matter in direct response to a communication from a person to whom the matter is mailed;

(b) from a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner to other Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, or Senators, or to Federal, State, or local government officials; or

(c) of a news release to the communications media.

Prohibition on use of funds by Members not elected to succeeding Congress

10. Funds from the applicable accounts described in clause 1(k)(1) of rule X, including funds from committee expense resolutions, and funds in any local currencies owned by the United States may not be made available for travel by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or Senator after the date of a general election in which such individual was not elected to the succeeding Congress or, in the case of a Member, Delegate, or Resident

Commissioner who is not a candidate in a general election, after the earlier of the date of such general election or the adjournment sine die of the last regular session of the Congress.

RULE XXV

LIMITATIONS ON OUTSIDE EARNED INCOME AND ACCEPTANCE OF GIFTS

Outside earned income; honoraria

1. (a) Except as provided by paragraph (b), a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not—

(1) have outside earned income attributable to a calendar year that exceeds 15 percent of the annual rate of basic pay for level II of the Executive Schedule under section 5313 of title 5, United States Code, as of January 1 of that calendar year; or

(2) receive any honorarium, except that an officer or employee of the House who is paid at a rate less than 120 percent of the minimum rate of basic pay for GS–15 of the General Schedule may receive an honorarium unless the subject matter is directly related to the official duties of the individual, the payment is made because of the status of the individual with the House, or the person offering the honorarium has interests that may be substantially affected by the performance or nonperformance of the official duties of the individual.

(b) In the case of an individual who becomes a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, such individual may not have outside earned income attributable to the portion of a calendar year that occurs after such individual becomes a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee that exceeds 15 percent of the annual rate of basic pay for level II of the Executive Schedule under section 5313 of title 5, United States Code, as of January 1 of that calendar year multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the number of days the individual is a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee during that calendar year and the denominator of which is 365.

(c) A payment in lieu of an honorarium that is made to a charitable organization on behalf of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not be received by that Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee. Such a payment may not exceed $2,000 or be made to a charitable organization from which the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee or a parent, sibling, spouse, child, or dependent relative of the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee, derives a financial benefit.

2. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not—

(a) receive compensation for affiliating with or being employed by a firm, partnership, association, corporation, or other entity that provides professional services involving a fiduciary relationship except for the practice of medicine;

(b) permit the name of such individual to be used by such a firm, partnership, association, corporation, or other entity;

(c) receive compensation for practicing a profession that involves a fiduciary relationship except for the practice of medicine;

(d) serve for compensation as an officer or member of the board of an association, corporation, or other entity; or

(e) receive compensation for teaching, without the prior notification and approval of the Committee on Ethics.

Copyright royalties

3. (a) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not receive an advance payment on copyright royalties. This paragraph does not prohibit a literary agent, researcher, or other individual (other than an individual employed by the House or a relative of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee) working on behalf of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee with respect to a publication from receiving an advance payment of a copyright royalty directly from a publisher and solely for the benefit of that literary agent, researcher, or other individual.

(b) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not receive copyright royalties under a contract entered into on or after January 1, 1996, unless that contract is first approved by the Committee on Ethics as complying with the requirement of clause 4(d)(1)(E) (that royalties are received from an established publisher under usual and customary contractual terms).

Definitions

4. (a)(1) In this rule, except as provided in subparagraph (2), the term “officer or employee of the House” means an individual (other than a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner) whose pay is disbursed by the Chief Administrative Officer, who is paid at a rate equal to or greater than 120 percent of the minimum rate of basic pay for GS–15 of the General Schedule, and who is so employed for more than 90 days in a calendar year.

(2)(A) When used with respect to an honorarium, the term “officer or employee of the House” means an individual (other than a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner) whose salary is disbursed by the Chief Administrative Officer.

(B) When used in clause 5 of this rule, the terms “officer” and “employee” have the same meanings as in rule XXIII.

(b) In this rule the term “honorarium” means a payment of money or a thing of value for an appearance, speech, or article (including a series of appearances, speeches, or articles) by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, excluding any actual and necessary travel expenses incurred by that Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee (and one relative) to the extent that such expenses are paid or reimbursed by any other person. The amount otherwise determined shall be reduced by the amount of any such expenses to the extent that such expenses are not so paid or reimbursed.

(c) In this rule the term “travel expenses” means, with respect to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, or a relative of such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee, the cost of transportation, and the cost of lodging and meals while away from the residence or principal place of employment of such individual.

(d)(1) In this rule the term “outside earned income” means, with respect to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, wages, salaries, fees, and other amounts received or to be received as compensation for personal services actually rendered, but does not include—

(A) the salary of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee;

(B) any compensation derived by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House for personal services actually rendered before the adoption of this rule or before such individual became a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee;

(C) any amount paid by, or on behalf of, a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House to a tax-qualified pension, profit-sharing, or stock bonus plan and received by such individual from such a plan;

(D) in the case of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House engaged in a trade or business in which such individual or the family of such individual holds a controlling interest and in which both personal services and capital are income-producing factors, any amount received by the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee, so long as the personal services actually rendered by such individual in the trade or business do not generate a significant amount of income; or

(E) copyright royalties received from established publishers under usual and customary contractual terms; and

(2) outside earned income shall be determined without regard to community property law.

(e) In this rule the term “charitable organization” means an organization described in section 170(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

Gifts

5. (a)(1)(A) (i) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not knowingly accept a gift except as provided in this clause.

(ii) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not knowingly accept a gift from a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal or from a private entity that retains or employs registered lobbyists or agents of a foreign principal except as provided in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph.

(B) (i) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may accept a gift (other than cash or cash equivalent) not prohibited by subdivision (A)(ii) that the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee reasonably and in good faith believes to have a value of less than $50 and a cumulative value from one source during a calendar year of less than $100. A gift having a value of less than $10 does not count toward the $100 annual limit. The value of perishable food sent to an office shall be allocated among the individual recipients and not to the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner. Formal recordkeeping is not required by this subdivision, but a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall make a good faith effort to comply with this subdivision.

(ii) A gift of a ticket to a sporting or entertainment event shall be valued at the face value of the ticket or, in the case of a ticket without a face value, at the highest cost of a ticket with a face value for the event. The price printed on a ticket to an event shall be deemed its face value only if it also is the price at which the issuer offers that ticket for sale to the public.

(2)(A) In this clause the term “gift” means a gratuity, favor, discount, entertainment, hospitality, loan, forbearance, or other item having monetary value. The term includes gifts of services, training, transportation, lodging, and meals, whether provided in kind, by purchase of a ticket, payment in advance, or reimbursement after the expense has been incurred.

(B) (i) A gift to a family member of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, or a gift to any other individual based on that individual’s relationship with the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee, shall be considered a gift to the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee if it is given with the knowledge and acquiescence of the Member, Delegate,

Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee and the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee has reason to believe the gift was given because of the official position of such individual.

(ii) If food or refreshment is provided at the same time and place to both a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House and the spouse or dependent thereof, only the food or refreshment provided to the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee shall be treated as a gift for purposes of this clause.

(3) The restrictions in subparagraph (1) do not apply to the following:

(A) Anything for which the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House pays the market value, or does not use and promptly returns to the donor.

(B) A contribution, as defined in section 301(8) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 431) that is lawfully made under that Act, a lawful contribution for election to a State or local government office, or attendance at a fundraising event sponsored by a political organization described in section 527(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(C) A gift from a relative as described in section 109(16) of title I of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 (5 U.S.C. App. 109(16)).

(D) (i) Anything provided by an individual on the basis of a personal friendship unless the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House has reason to believe that, under the circumstances, the gift was provided because of the official position of such individual and not because of the personal friendship.

(ii) In determining whether a gift is provided on the basis of personal friendship, the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall consider the circumstances under which the gift was offered, such as:

(I) The history of the relationship of such individual with the individual giving the gift, including any previous exchange of gifts between them.

(II) Whether to the actual knowledge of such individual the individual who gave the gift personally paid for the gift or sought a tax deduction or business reimbursement for the gift.

(III) Whether to the actual knowledge of such individual the individual who gave the gift also gave the same or similar gifts to other Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioners, officers, or employees of the House.

(E) Except as provided in paragraph (e)(3), a contribution or other payment to a legal expense fund established for the benefit of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House that is otherwise lawfully made in accordance with the restrictions and disclosure requirements of the Committee on Ethics.

(F) A gift from another Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House or Senate.

(G) Food, refreshments, lodging, transportation, and other benefits—

(i) resulting from the outside business or employment activities of the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House (or other outside activities that are not connected to the duties of such individual as an officeholder), or of the spouse of such individual, if such benefits have not been offered or enhanced because of the official position of such individual and are customarily provided to others in similar circumstances;

(ii) customarily provided by a prospective employer in connection with bona fide employment discussions; or

(iii) provided by a political organization described in section 527(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 in connection with a fundraising or campaign event sponsored by such organization.

(H) Pension and other benefits resulting from continued participation in an employee welfare and benefits plan maintained by a former employer.

(I) Informational materials that are sent to the office of the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House in the form of books, articles, periodicals, other written materials, audiotapes, videotapes, or other forms of communication.

(J) Awards or prizes that are given to competitors in contests or events open to the public, including random drawings.

(K) Honorary degrees (and associated travel, food, refreshments, and entertainment) and other bona fide, nonmonetary awards presented in recognition of public service (and associated food, refreshments, and entertainment provided in the presentation of such degrees and awards).

(L) Training (including food and refreshments furnished to all attendees as an integral part of the training) if such training is in the interest of the House.

(M) Bequests, inheritances, and other transfers at death.

(N) An item, the receipt of which is authorized by the Foreign Gifts and Decorations Act, the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act, or any other statute.

(O) Anything that is paid for by the Federal Government, by a State or local government, or secured by the Government under a Government contract.

(P) A gift of personal hospitality (as defined in section 109(14) of the Ethics in Government Act) of an individual other than a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal.

(Q) Free attendance at an event permitted under subparagraph (4).

(R) Opportunities and benefits that are—

(i) available to the public or to a class consisting of all Federal employees, whether or not restricted on the basis of geographic consideration;

(ii) offered to members of a group or class in which membership is unrelated to congressional employment;

(iii) offered to members of an organization, such as an employees' association or congressional credit union, in which membership is related to congressional employment and similar opportunities are available to large segments of the public through organizations of similar size;

(iv) offered to a group or class that is not defined in a manner that specifically discriminates among Government employees on the basis of branch of Government or type of responsibility, or on a basis that favors those of higher rank or rate of pay;

(v) in the form of loans from banks and other financial institutions on terms generally available to the public; or

(vi) in the form of reduced membership or other fees for participation in organization activities offered to all Government employees by professional organizations if the only restrictions on membership relate to professional qualifications.

(S) A plaque, trophy, or other item that is substantially commemorative in nature and that is intended for presentation.

(T) Anything for which, in an unusual case, a waiver is granted by the Committee on Ethics.

(U) Food or refreshments of a nominal value offered other than as a part of a meal.

(V) Donations of products from the district or State that the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner represents that are intended primarily for promotional purposes, such as display or free distribution, and are of minimal value to any single recipient.

(W) An item of nominal value such as a greeting card, baseball cap, or a T-shirt.

(4)(A) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may accept an offer of free attendance at a widely attended convention, conference, symposium, forum, panel discussion, dinner, viewing, reception, or similar event, provided by the sponsor of the event, if—

(i) the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House participates in the event as a speaker or a panel participant, by presenting information related to Congress or matters before Congress, or by performing a ceremonial function appropriate to the official position of such individual; or

(ii) attendance at the event is appropriate to the performance of the official duties or representative function of the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House.

(B) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House who attends an event described in subdivision (A) may accept a sponsor's unsolicited offer of free attendance at the event for an accompanying individual.

(C) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, or the spouse or dependent thereof, may accept a sponsor's unsolicited offer of free attendance at a charity event, except that reimbursement for transportation and lodging may not be accepted in connection with the event unless—

(i) all of the net proceeds of the event are for the benefit of an organization described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and exempt from taxation under section 501(a) of such Code;

(ii) reimbursement for the transportation and lodging in connection with the event is paid by such organization; and

(iii) the offer of free attendance at the event is made by such organization.

(D) In this paragraph the term “free attendance” may include waiver of all or part of a conference or other fee, the provision of local transportation, or the provision of food, refreshments, entertainment, and instructional materials furnished to all attendees as an integral part of the event. The term does not include entertainment collateral to the event, nor does it include food or refreshments taken other than in a group setting with all or substantially all other attendees.

(5) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not accept a gift the value of which exceeds $250 on the basis of the personal friendship exception in subparagraph (3)(D) unless the Committee on Ethics issues a written determination that such exception applies. A determination under this subparagraph is not required for gifts given on the basis of the family relationship exception in subparagraph (3)(C).

(6) When it is not practicable to return a tangible item because it is perishable, the item may, at the discretion of the recipient, be given to an appropriate charity or destroyed.

(b)(1)(A) A reimbursement (including payment in kind) to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House for necessary transportation, lodging, and related expenses for travel to a meeting, speaking engagement, factfinding trip, or similar event in connection with the duties of such individual as an officeholder shall be considered as a reimbursement to the House and not a gift prohibited by this clause when it is from a private source other than a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal or a private entity that retains or employs registered lobbyists or agents of a foreign principal (except as provided in subdivision (C)), if the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee—

(i) in the case of an employee, receives advance authorization, from the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer under whose direct supervision the employee works, to accept reimbursement; and

(ii) discloses the expenses reimbursed or to be reimbursed and the authorization to the Clerk within 15 days after the travel is completed.

(B) For purposes of subdivision (A), events, the activities of which are substantially recreational in nature, are not considered to be in connection with the duties of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House as an officeholder.

(C) A reimbursement (including payment in kind) to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House for any purpose described in subdivision (A) also shall be considered as a reimbursement to the House and not a gift prohibited by this clause (without regard to whether the source retains or employs registered lobbyists or agents of a foreign principal) if it is, under regulations prescribed by the Committee on Ethics to implement this provision—

(i) directly from an institution of higher education within the meaning of section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965; or

(ii) provided only for attendance at or participation in a one-day event (exclusive of travel time and an overnight stay).

Regulations prescribed to implement this provision may permit a two-night stay when determined by the committee on a case-by-case basis to be practically required to participate in the one-day event.

(2) Each advance authorization to accept reimbursement shall be signed by the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer of the House under whose direct supervision the employee works and shall include—

(A) the name of the employee;

(B) the name of the person who will make the reimbursement;

(C) the time, place, and purpose of the travel; and

(D) a determination that the travel is in connection with the duties of the employee as an officeholder and would not create the appearance that the employee is using public office for private gain.

(3) Each disclosure made under subparagraph (1)(A) shall be signed by the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer (in the case of travel by that Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer) or by the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer under whose direct supervision the employee works (in the case of travel by an employee) and shall include—

(A) a good faith estimate of total transportation expenses reimbursed or to be reimbursed;

(B) a good faith estimate of total lodging expenses reimbursed or to be reimbursed;

(C) a good faith estimate of total meal expenses reimbursed or to be reimbursed;

(D) a good faith estimate of the total of other expenses reimbursed or to be reimbursed;

(E) a determination that all such expenses are necessary transportation, lodging, and related expenses as defined in subparagraph (4);

(F) a description of meetings and events attended; and

(G) in the case of a reimbursement to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer, a determination that the travel was in connection with the duties of such individual as an officeholder and would not create the appearance that the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer is using public office for private gain.

(4) In this paragraph the term “necessary transportation, lodging, and related expenses”—

(A) includes reasonable expenses that are necessary for travel for a period not exceeding four days within the United States or seven days exclusive of travel time outside of the United States unless approved in advance by the Committee on Ethics;

(B) is limited to reasonable expenditures for transportation, lodging, conference fees and materials, and food and refreshments, including reimbursement for necessary transportation, whether or not such transportation occurs within the periods described in subdivision (A);

(C) does not include expenditures for recreational activities, nor does it include entertainment other than that provided to all attendees as an integral part of the event, except for activities or entertainment otherwise permissible under this clause; and

(D) may include travel expenses incurred on behalf of a relative of the Member, Delegate, Resident

Commissioner, officer, or employee.

(5) The Clerk of the House shall make all advance authorizations, certifications, and disclosures filed pursuant to this paragraph available for public inspection as soon as possible after they are received.

(c)(1)(A) Except as provided in subdivision (B), a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not accept a reimbursement (including payment in kind) for transportation, lodging, or related expenses for a trip on which the traveler is accompanied on any segment by a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal.

(B) Subdivision (A) does not apply to a trip for which the source of reimbursement is an institution of higher education within the meaning of section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

(2) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not accept a reimbursement (including payment in kind) for transportation, lodging, or related expenses under the exception in paragraph (b)(1)(C)(ii) of this clause for a trip that is financed in whole or in part by a private entity that retains or employs registered lobbyists or agents of a foreign principal unless any involvement of a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal in the planning, organization, request, or arrangement of the trip is de minimis under rules prescribed by the Committee on Ethics to implement paragraph (b)(1)(C) of this clause.

(3) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not accept a reimbursement (including payment in kind) for transportation, lodging, or related expenses for a trip (other than a trip permitted under paragraph (b)(1)(C) of this clause) if such trip is in any part planned, organized, requested, or arranged by a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal.

(d) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall, before accepting travel otherwise permissible under paragraph (b)(1) of this clause from any private source—

(1) provide to the Committee on Ethics before such trip a written certification signed by the source or (in the case of a corporate person) by an officer of the source—

(A) that the trip will not be financed in any part by a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal;

(B) that the source either—

(i) does not retain or employ registered lobbyists or agents of a foreign principal; or

(ii) is an institution of higher education within the meaning of section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965; or

(iii) certifies that the trip meets the requirements specified in rules prescribed by the Committee on Ethics to implement paragraph (b)(1)(C)(ii) of this clause and specifically details the extent of any involvement of a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal in the planning, organization, request, or arrangement of the trip considered to qualify as de minimis under such rules;

(C) that the source will not accept from another source any funds earmarked directly or indirectly for the purpose of financing any aspect of the trip;

(D) that the traveler will not be accompanied on any segment of the trip by a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal (except in the case of a trip for which the source of reimbursement is an institution of higher education within the meaning of section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965); and

(E) that (except as permitted in paragraph (b)(1)(C) of this clause) the trip will not in any part be planned, organized, requested, or arranged by a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal; and

(2) after the Committee on Ethics has promulgated the regulations mandated in paragraph (i)(1)(B) of this clause, obtain the prior approval of the committee for such trip.

(e) A gift prohibited by paragraph (a)(1) includes the following:

(1) Anything provided by a registered lobbyist or an agent of a foreign principal to an entity that is maintained or controlled by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House.

(2) A charitable contribution (as defined in section 170(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) made by a registered lobbyist or an agent of a foreign principal on the basis of a designation, recommendation, or other specification of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House (not including a mass mailing or other solicitation directed to a broad category of persons or entities), other than a charitable contribution permitted by paragraph (f).

(3) A contribution or other payment by a registered lobbyist or an agent of a foreign principal to a legal expense fund established for the benefit of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House.

(4) A financial contribution or expenditure made by a registered lobbyist or an agent of a foreign principal relating to a conference, retreat, or similar event, sponsored by or affiliated with an official congressional organization, for or on behalf of Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, officers, or employees of the House.

(f)(1) A charitable contribution (as defined in section 170(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) made by a registered lobbyist or an agent of a foreign principal in lieu of an honorarium to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House is not considered a gift under this clause if it is reported as provided in subparagraph (2).

(2) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee who designates or recommends a contribution to a charitable organization in lieu of an honorarium described in subparagraph (1) shall report within 30 days after such designation or recommendation to the Clerk—

(A) the name and address of the registered lobbyist who is making the contribution in lieu of an honorarium;

(B) the date and amount of the contribution; and

(C) the name and address of the charitable organization designated or recommended by the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner.

The Clerk shall make public information received under this subparagraph as soon as possible after it is received.

(g) In this clause—

(1) the term “registered lobbyist” means a lobbyist registered under the Federal Regulation of Lobbying

Act or any successor statute;

(2) the term “agent of a foreign principal” means an agent of a foreign principal registered under the Foreign Agents Registration Act; and

(3) the terms “officer” and “employee” have the same meanings as in rule XXIII.

(h) All the provisions of this clause shall be interpreted and enforced solely by the Committee on Ethics. The Committee on Ethics is authorized to issue guidance on any matter contained in this clause.

(i)(1) Not later than 45 days after the date of adoption of this paragraph and at annual intervals thereafter, the Committee on Ethics shall develop and revise, as necessary—

(A) guidelines on judging the reasonableness of an expense or expenditure for purposes of this clause, including the factors that tend to establish—

(i) a connection between a trip and official duties;

(ii) the reasonableness of an amount spent by a sponsor;

(iii) a relationship between an event and an officially connected purpose; and

(iv) a direct and immediate relationship between a source of funding and an event; and

(B) regulations describing the information it will require individuals subject to this clause to submit to the committee in order to obtain the prior approval of the committee for any travel covered by this clause, including any required certifications.

(2) In developing and revising guidelines under subparagraph (1)(A), the committee shall take into account the maximum per diem rates for official Government travel published annually by the General Services Administration, the Department of State, and the Department of Defense.

Claims against the Government

6. A person may not be an officer or employee of the House, or continue in its employment, if acting as an agent for the prosecution of a claim against the Government or if interested in such claim, except as an original claimant or in the proper discharge of official duties.

7. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall prohibit all staff employed by that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner (including staff in personal, committee, and leadership offices) from making any lobbying contact (as defined in section 3 of the Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995) with that individual's spouse if that spouse is a lobbyist under the Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995 or is employed or retained by such a lobbyist for the purpose of influencing legislation.

8. During the dates on which the national political party to which a Member (including a Delegate or Resident Commissioner) belongs holds its convention to nominate a candidate for the office of President or Vice President, the Member may not participate in an event honoring that Member, other than in the capacity as a candidate for such office, if such event is directly paid for by a registered lobbyist under the Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995 or a private entity that retains or employs such a registered lobbyist.

RULE XXVI

FINANCIAL DISCLOSURE

1. The Clerk shall send a copy of each report filed with the Clerk under title I of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 within the seven-day period beginning on the date on which the report is filed to the Committee on Ethics. By August 1 of each year, the Clerk shall compile all such reports sent to the Clerk by Members within the period beginning on January 1 and ending on June 15 of each year and have them printed as a House document, which shall be made available to the public.

2. For the purposes of this rule, the provisions of title I of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 shall be considered Rules of the House as they pertain to Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, officers, and employees of the House.

3. Members of the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics shall file annual financial disclosure reports with the Clerk of the House on or before May 15 of each calendar year after any year in which they perform the duties of that position. Such reports shall be on a form prepared by the Clerk that is substantially similar to form 450 of the Office of Government Ethics. The Clerk shall send a copy of each such report filed with the Clerk within the seven-day period beginning on the date on which the report is filed to the Committee on Ethics and shall have them printed as a House document and made available to the public pursuant to clause 1.

[Pertinent provisions of Title I of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 (5 U.S.C. App. §§ 101–111) follow:]

TITLE I—FINANCIAL DISCLOSURE REQUIREMENTS OF FEDERAL PERSONNEL

Persons Required to File

SEC. 101. (a) Within thirty days of assuming the position of an officer or employee described in subsection (f), an individual shall file a report containing the information described in section 102(b) unless the individual has left another position described in subsection (f) within thirty days prior to assuming such new position or has already filed a report under this title with respect to nomination for the new position or as a candidate for the position. * * *

(c) Within thirty days of becoming a candidate as defined in section 301 of the Federal Campaign Act of 1971, in a calendar year for nomination or election to the office of President, Vice President, or Member of Congress, or on or before May 15 of that calendar year, whichever is later, but in no event later than 30 days before the election, and on or before May 15 of each successive year an individual continues to be a candidate, an individual other than an incumbent President, Vice President, or Member of Congress shall file a report containing the information described in section 102(b). Notwithstanding the preceding sentence, in any calendar year in which an individual continues to be a candidate for any office but all elections for such office relating to such candidacy were held in prior calendar years, such individual need not file a report unless he becomes a candidate for another vacancy in that office or another office during that year.

(d) Any individual who is an officer or employee described in subsection (f) during any calendar year and performs the duties of his position or office for a period in excess of sixty days in that calendar year shall file on or before May 15 of the succeeding year a report containing the information described in section 102(a).

(e) Any individual who occupies a position described in subsection (f) shall, on or before the thirtieth day after termination of employment in such position, file a report containing the information described in section 102(a) covering the preceding calendar year if the report required by subsection (d) has not been filed and covering the portion of the calendar year in which such termination occurs up to the date the individual left such office or position, unless such individual has accepted employment in another position described in subsection (f).

(f) The officers and employees referred to in subsections (a), (d), and (e) are—
* * *

(9) a Member of Congress as defined under section 109(12);

(10) an officer or employee of the Congress as defined under section 109(13); * * *

(g)(1) Reasonable extensions of time for filing any report may be granted under procedures prescribed by the supervising ethics office for each branch, but the total of such extensions shall not exceed ninety days. * * *

(h) The provisions of subsections (a), (b), and (e) shall not apply to an individual who, as determined by the designated agency ethics official or Secretary concerned (or in the case of a Presidential appointee under subsection (b), the Director of the Office of Government Ethics), the congressional ethics committees, or the Judicial Conference, is not reasonably expected to perform the duties of his office or position for more than sixty days in a calendar year, except that if such individual performs the duties of his office or position for more than sixty days in a calendar year—

(1) the report required by subsections (a) and (b) shall be filed within fifteen days of the sixtieth day, and

(2) the report required by subsection (e) shall be filed as provided in such subsection.

(i) The supervising ethics office for each branch may grant a publicly available request for a waiver of any reporting requirement under this section for an individual who is expected to perform or has performed the duties of his office or position less than one hundred and thirty days in a calendar year, but only if the supervising ethics office determines that—

(1) such individual is not a full-time employee of the Government,

(2) such individual is able to provide services specially needed by the Government,

(3) it is unlikely that the individual's outside employment or financial interests will create a conflict of interest, and

(4) public financial disclosure by such individual is not necessary in the circumstances.

Contents of Reports

SEC. 102. (a) Each report filed pursuant to section 101 (d) and (e) shall include a full and complete statement with respect to the following:

(1)(A) The source, type, and amount or value of income (other than income referred to in subparagraph (B)) from any source (other than from current employment by the United States Government), and the source, date, and amount of honoraria from any source, received during the preceding calendar year, aggregating $200 or more in value and, effective January 1, 1991, the source, date, and amount of payments made to charitable organizations in lieu of honoraria, and the reporting individual shall simultaneously file with the applicable supervising ethics office, on a confidential basis, a corresponding list of recipients of all such payments, together with the dates and amounts of such payments.

(B) The source and type of income which consists of dividends, rents, interest, and capital gains, received during the preceding calendar year which exceeds $200 in amount or value, and an indication of which of the following categories the amount or value of such item of income is within:

- (i) not more than $1,000,
- (ii) greater than $1,000 but not more than $2,500,
- (iii) greater than $2,500 but not more than $5,000,
- (iv) greater than $5,000 but not more than $15,000,
- (v) greater than $15,000 but not more than $50,000,
- (vi) greater than $50,000 but not more than $100,000,
- (vii) greater than $100,000 but not more than $1,000,000,
- (viii) greater than $1,000,000 but not more than $5,000,000, or
- (ix) greater than $5,000,000.

(2)(A) The identity of the source, a brief description, and the value of all gifts aggregating more than the minimal value as established by section 7342(a)(5) of title 5, United States Code, or $250, whichever is greater, received from any source other than a relative of the reporting individual during the preceding calendar year, except that any food, lodging, or entertainment received as personal hospitality of an individual need not be reported, and any gift with a fair market value of $100 or less, as adjusted at the same time and by the same percentage as the minimal value is adjusted, need not be aggregated for purposes of this subparagraph.

(B) The identity of the source and a brief description (including a travel itinerary, dates, and nature of expenses provided) of reimbursements received from any source aggregating more than the minimal value as established by section 7342(a)(5) of title 5, United States Code, or $250, whichever is greater, and received during the preceding calendar year.

(C) In an unusual case, a gift need not be aggregated under subparagraph (A) if a publicly available request for a waiver is granted.

(3) The identity and category of value of any interest in property held during the preceding calendar year in a trade or business, or for investment or the production of income, which has a fair market value which exceeds $1,000 as of the close of the preceding calendar year, excluding any personal liability owed to the reporting individual by a spouse, or by a parent, brother, sister, or child of the reporting individual or of the reporting individual's spouse, or any deposits aggregating $5,000 or less in a personal savings account. For purposes of this paragraph, a personal savings account shall include any certificate of deposit or any other form of deposit in a bank, savings and loan association, credit union, or similar financial institution.

(4) The identity and category of value of the total liabilities owed to any creditor other than a spouse, or a parent, brother, sister, or child of the reporting individual or of the reporting individual's spouse which exceed $10,000 at any time during the preceding calendar year, excluding—

(A) any mortgage secured by real property which is a personal residence of the reporting individual or his spouse; and

(B) any loan secured by a personal motor vehicle, household furniture, or appliances, which loan does not exceed the purchase price of the item which secures it.

With respect to revolving charge accounts, only those with an outstanding liability which exceeds $10,000 as of the close of the preceding calendar year need be reported under this paragraph.

(5) Except as provided in this paragraph, a brief description, the date, and category of value of any purchase, sale or exchange during the preceding calendar year exceeds $1,000—

(A) in real property, other than property used solely as a personal residence of the reporting individual or his spouse; or

(B) in stocks, bonds, commodities futures, and other forms of securities.

Reporting is not required under this paragraph of any transaction solely by and between the reporting individual, his spouse, or dependent children.

(6)(A) The identity of all positions held on or before the date of filing during the current calendar year (and, for the first report filed by an individual, during the two-year period preceding such calendar year) as an officer, director, trustee, partner, proprietor, representative, employee, or consultant of any corporation, company, firm, partnership, or other business enterprise, any nonprofit organization, any labor organization, or any educational or other institution other than the United States. This subparagraph shall not require the reporting of positions held in any religious, social, fraternal, or political entity and positions solely of an honorary nature.

(B) If any person, other than the United States Government, paid a nonelected reporting individual compensation in excess of $5,000 in any of the two calendar years prior to the calendar year during which the individual files his first report under this title, the individual shall include in the report—

- (i) the identity of each source of such compensation; and
- (ii) a brief description of the nature of the duties performed or services rendered by the reporting individual for each such source.

The preceding sentence shall not require any individual to include in such report any information which is considered confidential as a result of a privileged relationship, established by law, between such individual and any person nor shall it require an individual to report any information with respect to any person for whom services were provided by any firm or association of which such individual was a member, partner, or employee unless such individual was directly involved in the provision of such services.

(7) A description of the date, parties to, and terms of any agreement or arrangement with respect to (A) future employment; (B) a leave of absence during the period of the reporting individual's Government service; (C) continuation of payments by a former employer other than the United States Government; and (D) continuing participation in an employee welfare or benefit plan maintained by a former employer.

(8) The category of the total cash value of any interest of the reporting individual in a qualified blind trust, unless the trust instrument was executed prior to July 24, 1995 and precludes the beneficiary from receiving information on the total cash value of any interest in the qualified blind trust.

(b)(1) Each report filed pursuant to subsections (a), (b), and (c) of section 101 shall include a full and complete statement with respect to the information required by—

(A) paragraph (1) of subsection (a) for the year of filing and the preceding calendar year,

(B) paragraphs (3) and (4) of subsection (a) as of the date specified in the report but which is less than thirty-one days before the filing date, and

(C) paragraphs (6) and (7) of subsection (a) as of the filing date but for periods described in such paragraphs.

(2)(A) In lieu of filling out one or more schedules of a financial disclosure form, an individual may supply the required information in an alternative format, pursuant to either rules adopted by the supervising ethics office for the branch in which such individual serves or pursuant to a specific written determination by such office for a reporting individual.

(B) In lieu of indicating the category of amount or value of any item contained in any report filed under this title, a reporting individual may indicate the exact dollar amount of such item.

(c) In the case of any individual described in section 101(e), any reference to the preceding calendar year shall be considered also to include that part of the calendar year of filing up to the date of the termination of employment.

(d)(1) The categories for reporting the amount or value of the items covered in paragraphs (3), (4), (5), and (8) of subsection (a) are as follows:

(A) not more than $15,000;

(B) greater than $15,000 but not more than $50,000;

(C) greater than $50,000 but not more than $100,000;

(D) greater than $100,000 but not more than $250,000;

(E) greater than $250,000 but not more than $500,000;

(F) greater than $500,000 but not more than $1,000,000;

(G) greater than $1,000,000 but not more than $5,000,000;

(H) greater than $5,000,000 but not more than $25,000,000;

(I) greater than $25,000,000 but not more than $50,000,000; and

(J) greater than $50,000,000.

(2) For the purposes of paragraph (3) of subsection (a) if the current value of an interest in real property (or an interest in a real estate partnership) is not ascertainable without an appraisal, an individual may list (A) the date of purchase and the purchase price of the interest in the real property, or (B) the assessed value of the real property for tax purposes, adjusted to reflect the market value of the property used for the assessment if the assessed value is computed at less than 100 percent of such market value, but such individual shall include in his report a full and complete description of the method used to determine such assessed value, instead of specifying a category of value pursuant to paragraph (1) of this subsection. If the current value of any other item required to be reported under paragraph (3) of subsection (a) is not ascertainable without an appraisal, such individual may list the book value of a corporation whose stock is not publicly traded, the net worth of a business partnership, the equity value of an individually owned business, or with respect to other holdings, any recognized indication of value, but such individual shall include in his report a full and complete description of the method used in determining such value. In lieu of any value referred to in the preceding sentence, an individual may list the assessed value of the item for tax purposes, adjusted to reflect the market value of the item used for the assessment if the assessed value is computed at less than 100 percent of such market value, but a full and complete description of the method used in determining such assessed value shall be included in the report.

(e)(1) Except as provided in the last sentence of this paragraph, each report required by section 101 shall also contain information listed in paragraphs (1) through (5) of subsection (a) of this section respecting the spouse or dependent child of the reporting individual as follows:

(A) The source of items of earned income earned by a spouse from any person which exceed $1,000 and the source and amount of any honoraria received by a spouse, except that, with respect to earned income (other than honoraria), if the spouse is self-employed in business or a profession, only the nature of such business or profession need be reported.

(B) All information required to be reported in subsection (a)(1)(B) with respect to income derived by a spouse or dependent child from any asset held by the spouse or dependent child and reported pursuant to subsection (a)(3).

(C) In the case of any gifts received by a spouse or dependent child which are not received totally independent of the relationship of the spouse or dependent child to the reporting individual, the identity of the source and a brief description of gifts of transportation, lodging, food, or entertainment and a brief description and the value of other gifts.

(D) In the case of any reimbursements received by a spouse or dependent child which are not received totally independent of the relationship of the spouse or dependent child to the reporting individual, the identity of the source and a brief description of each such reimbursement.

(E) In the case of items described in paragraphs (3) through (5) of subsection (a), all information required to be reported under these paragraphs other than items (i) which the reporting individual certifies represent the spouse's or dependent child's sole financial interest or responsibility and which the reporting individual has no knowledge of, (ii) which are not in any way, past or present, derived from the income, assets, or activities of the reporting individual, and (iii) from which the reporting individual neither derives, nor expects to derive, any financial or economic benefit.

(F) For purposes of this section, categories with amounts or values greater than $1,000,000 set forth in sections 102(a)(1)(B) and 102(d)(1) shall apply to the income, assets, or liabilities of spouses and dependent children only if the income, assets, or liabilities are held jointly with the reporting individual. All other income, assets, or liabilities of the spouse or dependent children required to be reported under this section in an amount or value greater than $1,000,000 shall be categorized only as an amount or value greater than $1,000,000.

Reports required by subsections (a), (b), and (c) of section 101 shall, with respect to the spouse and dependent child of the reporting individual, only contain information listed in paragraphs (1), (3), and (4) of subsection (a), as specified in this paragraph.

(2) No report shall be required with respect to a spouse living separate and apart from the reporting individual with the intention of terminating the marriage or providing for permanent separation; or with respect to any income or obligations of an individual arising from the dissolution of his marriage or the permanent separation from his spouse.

(f)(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2), each reporting individual shall report the information required to be reported pursuant to subsections (a), (b), and (c) of this section with respect to the holdings of and the income from a trust or other financial arrangement from which income is received by, or with respect to which a beneficial interest in principal or income is held by, such individual, his spouse, or any dependent child.

(2) A reporting individual need not report the holdings of or the source of income from any of the holdings of—

(A) any qualified blind trust (as defined in paragraph (3));

(B) a trust—

(i) which was not created directly by such individual, his spouse, or any dependent child, and

(ii) the holdings or sources of income of which such individual, his spouse, and any dependent child have no knowledge of; or

(C) an entity described under the provisions of paragraph (8), but such individual shall report the category of the amount of income received by him, his spouse, or any dependent child from the trust or other entity under subsection (a)(1)(B) of this section.

(3) For purpose of this subsection, the term “qualified blind trust” includes any trust in which a reporting individual, his spouse, or any minor or dependent child has a beneficial interest in the principal or income, and which meets the following requirements:

(A)(i) The trustee of the trust and any other entity designated in the trust instrument to perform fiduciary duties is a financial institution, an attorney, a certified public accountant, a broker, or an investment advisor who—

(I) is independent of and not associated with any interested party so that the trustee or other person cannot be controlled or influenced in the administration of the trust by any interested party;

(II) is not and has not been an employee of or affiliated with any interested party and is not a partner of, or involved in any joint venture or other investment with, any interested party; and

(III) is not a relative of any interested party.

(ii) Any officer or employee of a trustee or other entity who is involved in the management or control of the trust—

(I) is independent of and not associated with any interested party so that such officer or employee cannot be controlled or influenced in the administration of the trust by any interested party;

(II) is not a partner of, or involved in any joint venture or other investment with, any interested party; and

(III) is not a relative of any interested party.

(B) Any asset transferred to the trust by an interested party is free of any restriction with respect to its transfer or sale unless such restriction is expressly approved by the supervising ethics office of the reporting individual.

(C) The trust instrument which establishes the trust provides that—

(i) except to the extent provided in subparagraph (B) of this paragraph, the trustee in the exercise of his authority and discretion to manage and control the assets of the trust shall not consult or notify any interested party;

(ii) the trust shall not contain any asset the holding of which by an interested party is prohibited by any law or regulation;

(iii) the trustee shall promptly notify the reporting individual and his supervising ethics office when the holdings of any particular asset transferred to the trust by any interested party are disposed of or when the value of such holding is less than $1,000;

(iv) the trust tax return shall be prepared by the trustee or his designee, and such return and any information relating thereto (other than the trust income summarized in appropriate categories necessary to complete an interested party's tax return), shall not be disclosed to any interested party;

(v) an interested party shall not receive any report on the holdings and sources of income of the trust, except a report at the end of each calendar quarter with respect to the total cash value of the interest of the interested party in the trust or the net income or loss of the trust or any reports necessary to enable the interested party to complete an individual tax return required by law or to provide the information required by subsection (a)(1) of this section, but such report shall not identify any asset or holding;

(vi) except for communications which solely consist of requests for distributions of cash or other unspecified assets of the trust, there shall be no direct or indirect communication between the trustee and an interested party with respect to the trust unless such communication is in writing and unless it relates only (I) to the general financial interest and needs of the interested party (including, but not limited to, an interest in maximizing income or long-term capital gain), (II) to the notification of the trustee of a law or regulation subsequently applicable to the reporting individual which prohibits the interested party from holding an asset, which notification directs that the asset not be held by the trust, or (III) to directions to the trustee to sell all of an asset initially placed in the trust by an interested party which in the determination of the reporting individual creates a conflict of interest or the appearance thereof due to the subsequent assumption of duties by the reporting individual (but nothing herein shall require any such direction); and

(vii) the interested parties shall make no effort to obtain information with respect to the holdings of the trust, including obtaining a copy of any trust tax return filed or any information relating thereto except as otherwise provided in this subsection.

(D) The proposed trust instrument and the proposed trustee is approved by the reporting individual's supervising ethics office.

(E) For purposes of this subsection, "interested party" means a reporting individual, his spouse, and any minor or dependent child; "broker" has the meaning set forth in section 3(a)(4) of the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78c(a)(4)); and "investment adviser" includes any investment adviser who, as determined under regulations prescribed by the supervising ethics office, is generally involved in his role as such an adviser in the management or control of trusts.

(F) Any trust qualified by a supervising ethics office before the effective date of title II of the Ethics Reform Act of 1989 shall continue to be governed by the law and regulations in effect immediately before such effective date.

(4)(A) An asset placed in a trust by an interested party shall be considered a financial interest of the reporting individual, for the purposes of any applicable conflict of interest statutes, regulations, or rules of the Federal Government (including section 208 of title 18, United States Code), until such time as the reporting individual is notified by the trustee that such asset has been disposed of, or has a value of less than $1,000.

(B)(i) The provisions of subparagraph (A) shall not apply with respect to a trust created for the benefit of a reporting individual, or the spouse, dependent child, or minor child of such a person, if the supervising ethics office for such reporting individual finds that—

(I) the assets placed in the trust consist of a well-diversified portfolio of readily marketable securities;

(II) none of the assets consist of securities of entities having substantial activities in the area of the reporting individual's primary area of responsibility;

(III) the trust instrument prohibits the trustee, notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (3)(C) (iii) and (iv) of this subsection, from making public or informing any interested party of the sale of any securities;

(IV) the trustee is given power of attorney, notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (3)(C)(v) of this subsection, to prepare on behalf of any interested party the personal income tax returns and similar returns which may contain information relating to the trust; and

(V) except as otherwise provided in this paragraph, the trust instrument provides (or in the case of a trust established prior to the effective date of this Act which by its terms does not permit amendment, the trustee, the reporting individual, and any other interested party agree in writing) that the trust shall be administered in accordance with the requirements of this subsection and the trustee of such trust meets the requirements of paragraph (3)(A). * * *

(5)(A) The reporting individual shall, within thirty days after a qualified blind trust is approved by his supervising ethics office, file with such office a copy of—

(i) the executed trust instrument of such trust (other than those provisions which relate to the testamentary disposition of the trust assets), and

(ii) a list of the assets which were transferred to such trust, including the category of value of each asset as determined under subsection (d) of this section.

This subparagraph shall not apply with respect to a trust meeting the requirements for being considered a qualified blind trust under paragraph (7) of this subsection.

(B) The reporting individual shall, within thirty days of transferring an asset (other than cash) to a previously established qualified blind trust, notify his supervising ethics office of the identity of each such asset and the category of value of each asset as determined under subsection (d) of this section.

(C) Within thirty days of the dissolution of a qualified blind trust, a reporting individual shall—

(i) notify his supervising ethics office of such dissolution, and

(ii) file with such office a copy of a list of the assets of the trust at the time of such dissolution and the category of value under subsection (d) of this section of each such asset.

(D) Documents filed under subparagraphs (A), (B), and (C) of this paragraph and the lists provided by the trustee of assets placed in the trust by an interested party which have been sold shall be made available to the public in the same manner as a report is made available under section 105 and the provisions of that section shall apply with respect to such documents and lists.

(E) A copy of each written communication with respect to the trust under paragraph (3)(C)(vi) shall be filed by the person initiating the communication with the reporting individual's supervising ethics office within five days of the date of the communication.

(6)(A) A trustee of a qualified blind trust shall not knowingly and willfully, or negligently, (i) disclose any information to an interested party with respect to such trust that may not be disclosed under paragraph (3) of this subsection; (ii) acquire any holding the ownership of which is prohibited by the trust instrument; (iii) solicit advice from any interested party with respect to such trust, which solicitation is prohibited by paragraph (3) of this subsection or the trust agreement; or (iv) fail to file any document required by this subsection.

(B) A reporting individual shall not knowingly and willfully, or negligently, (i) solicit or receive any information with respect to a qualified blind trust of which he is an interested party that may not be disclosed under paragraph (3)(C) of this subsection or (ii) fail to file any document required by this subsection.

(C)(i) The Attorney General may bring a civil action in any appropriate United States district court against any individual who knowingly and willfully violates the provisions of subparagraph (A) or (B) of this paragraph. The court in which such action is brought may assess against such individual a civil penalty in any amount not to exceed $10,000.

(ii) The Attorney General may bring a civil action in any appropriate United States district court against any individual who negligently violates the provisions of subparagraph (A) or (B) of this paragraph. The court in which such action is brought may assess against such individual a civil penalty in any amount not to exceed $5,000.

(7) Any trust may be considered to be a qualified blind trust if—

(A) the trust instrument is amended to comply with the requirements of paragraph (3) or, in the case of a trust instrument which does not by its terms permit amendment, the trustee, the reporting individual, and any other interested party agree in writing that the trust shall be administered in accordance with the requirements of this subsection and the trustee of such trust meets the requirements of paragraph (3)(A); except that in the case of any interested party who is a dependent child, a parent or guardian of such child may execute the agreement referred to in this subparagraph;

(B) a copy of the trust instrument (except testamentary provisions) and a copy of the agreement referred to in subparagraph (A), and a list of the assets held by the trust at the time of approval by the supervising ethics office, including the category of value of each asset as determined under subsection (d) of this section, are filed with such office and made available to the public as provided under paragraph (5)(D) of this subsection; and

(C) the supervising ethics office determines that approval of the trust arrangement as a qualified blind trust is in the particular case appropriate to assure compliance with applicable laws and regulations.

(8) A reporting individual shall not be required to report the financial interests held by a widely held investment fund (whether such fund is a mutual fund, regulated investment company, pension or deferred compensation plan, or other investment fund), if—

(A)(i) the fund is publicly traded; or

(ii) the assets of the fund are widely diversified; and

(B) the reporting individual neither exercises control over nor has the ability to exercise control over the financial interests held by the fund.

(g) Political campaign funds, including campaign receipts and expenditures, need not be included in any report filed pursuant to this title.

(h) A report filed pursuant to subsection (a), (d), or (e) of section 101 need not contain the information described in subparagraphs (A), (B), and (C) of subsection (a)(2) with respect to gifts and reimbursements received in a period when the reporting individual was not an officer or employee of the Federal Government.

(i) A reporting individual shall not be required under this title to report—

(1) financial interests in or income derived from—

(A) any retirement system under title 5, United States Code (including the Thrift Savings Plan under subchapter III of chapter 84 of such title);

or

(B) any other retirement system maintained by the United States for officers or employees of the United States, including the President, or for members of the uniformed services; or

(2) benefits received under the Social Security Act.

Filing of Reports

SEC. 103. (a) Except as otherwise provided in this section, the reports required under this title shall be filed by the reporting individual with the designated agency ethics official at the agency by which he is employed (or in the case of an individual described in section 101(e), was employed) or in which he will serve. The date any report is received (and the date of receipt of any supplemental report) shall be noted on such report by such official. * * *

(g) Each supervising Ethics Office shall develop and make available forms for reporting the information required by this title.

(h)(1) The reports required under this title shall be filed by a reporting individual with—

(A)(i)(I) the Clerk of the House of Representatives, in the case of a Representative in Congress, a Delegate to Congress, the Resident Commissioner from Puerto Rico, an officer or employee of the Congress whose compensation is disbursed by the Clerk of the House of Representatives, an officer or employee of the Architect of the Capitol, United States Capitol Police, the United States Botanic Garden, the Congressional Budget Office, the Government Printing Office, the Library of Congress, or the Copyright Royalty Tribunal (including any individual terminating service, under section 101(e), in any office or position referred to in this subclause), or an individual described in section 101(c) who is a candidate for nomination or election as a Representative in Congress, a Delegate to Congress, or the Resident Commissioner from Puerto Rico; * * *

(ii) in the case of an officer or employee of the Congress as described under section 101(f)(10) who is employed by an agency or commission established in the legislative branch after the date of the enactment of the Ethics Reform Act of 1989—

(I) the Secretary of the Senate or the Clerk of the House of Representatives, as the case may be, as designated in the statute establishing such agency or commission; or

(II) if such statute does not designate such committee, the Secretary of the Senate for agencies and commissions established in even numbered calendar years, and the Clerk of the House of Representatives for agencies and commissions established in odd numbered calendar years;

(2) The date any report is received (and the date of receipt of any supplemental report) shall be noted on such report by such committee.

(i) A copy of each report filed under this title by a Member or an individual who is a candidate for the office of Member shall be sent by the Clerk of the House of Representatives or Secretary of the Senate, as the case may be, to the appropriate State officer designated under section 316(a) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 of the State represented by the Member or in which the individual is a candidate, as the case may be, within the 30-day period beginning on the day the report is filed with the Clerk or Secretary.

(j)(1) A copy of each report filed under this title with the Clerk of the House of Representatives shall be sent by the Clerk to the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct of the House of Representatives within the 7-day period beginning on the day the report is filed. * * *

(k) In carrying out their responsibilities under this title with respect to candidates for office, the Clerk of the House of Representatives and the Secretary of the Senate shall avail themselves of the assistance of the Federal Election Commission. The Commission shall make available to the Clerk and the Secretary on a regular basis a complete list of names and addresses of all candidates registered with the Commission, and shall cooperate and coordinate its candidate information and notification program with the Clerk and the Secretary to the greatest extent possible.

Failure to File or Filing False Reports

SEC. 104. (a)(1) The Attorney General may bring a civil action in any appropriate United States district court against any individual who knowingly and willfully falsifies or who knowingly and willfully fails to file or report any information that such individual is required to report pursuant to section 102. The court in which such action is brought may assess against such individual a civil penalty in any amount, not to exceed $50,000.

(2)(A) It shall be unlawful for any person to knowingly and willfully—

(i) falsify any information that such person is required to report under section 102; and

(ii) fail to file or report any information that such person is required to report under section 102.

(B) Any person who—

(i) violates subparagraph (A)(i) shall be fined under title 18, United States Code, imprisoned for not more than 1 year, or both; and

(ii) violates subparagraph (A)(ii) shall be fined under title 18, United States Code.

(b) The head of each agency, each Secretary concerned, the Director of the Office of Government Ethics, each congressional ethics committee, or the Judicial Conference, as the case may be, shall refer to the Attorney General the name of any individual which such official or committee has reasonable cause to believe has willfully failed to file a report or has willfully falsified or willfully failed to file information required to be reported.

(c) The President, the Vice President, the Secretary concerned, the head of each agency, the Office of Personnel Management, a congressional ethics committee, and the Judicial Conference of the United States, may take any appropriate personnel or other action in accordance with applicable law or regulation against any individual failing to file a report or falsifying or failing to report information required to be reported.

(d)(1) Any individual who files a report required to be filed under this title more than 30 days after the later of—

(A) the date such report is required to be filed pursuant to the provisions of this title and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder; or

(B) if a filing extension is granted to such individual under section 101(g), the last day of the filing extension period, shall, at the direction of and pursuant to regulations issued by the supervising ethics office, pay a filing fee of $200. All such fees shall be deposited in the miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury. The authority under this paragraph to direct the payment of a filing fee may be delegated by the supervising ethics office in the executive branch to other agencies in the executive branch.

(2) The supervising ethics office may waive the filing fee under this subsection in extraordinary circumstances.

Custody of and Public Access to Reports

SEC. 105. (a) Each agency, each supervising ethics office in the executive or judicial branch, the Clerk of the House of Representatives, and the Secretary of the Senate shall make available to the public, in accordance with subsection (b), each report filed under this title with such agency or office or with the Clerk or the Secretary of the Senate. * * *

(b)(1) Except as provided in the second sentence of this subsection, each agency, each supervising ethics office in the executive or judicial branch, the Clerk of the House of Representatives, and the Secretary of the Senate shall, within thirty days after any report is received under this title by such agency or office or by the Clerk or the Secretary of the Senate, as the case may be, permit inspection of such report by or furnish a copy of such report to any person requesting such inspection or copy. With respect to any report required to be filed by May 15 of any year, such report shall be made available for public inspection within 30 calendar days after May 15 of such year or within 30 days of the date of filing of such a report for which an extension is granted pursuant to section 101(g). The agency, office, Clerk, or Secretary of the Senate, as the case may be may require a reasonable fee to be paid in any amount which is found necessary to recover the cost of reproduction or mailing of such report excluding any salary of any employee involved in such reproduction or mailing. A copy of such report may be furnished without charge or at a reduced charge if it is determined that waiver or reduction of the fee is in the public interest.

(2) Notwithstanding paragraph (1), a report may not be made available under this section to any person nor may any copy thereof be provided under this section to any person except upon a written application by such person stating—

(A) that person's name, occupation and address;

(B) the name and address of any other person or organization on whose behalf the inspection or copy is requested; and

(C) that such person is aware of the prohibitions on the obtaining or use of the report.

Any such application shall be made available to the public throughout the period during which the report is made available to the public.

(3)(A) This section does not require the immediate and unconditional availability of reports filed by an individual described in section 109(8) or 109(10) of this Act if a finding is made by the Judicial Conference, in consultation with United States Marshall Service, that revealing personal and sensitive information could endanger that individual.

(B) A report may be redacted pursuant to this paragraph only—

(i) to the extent necessary to protect the individual who filed the report; and

(ii) for as long as the danger to such individual exists.

(C) The Administrative Office of the United States Courts shall submit to the Committees on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives and of the Senate an annual report with respect to the operation of this paragraph including—

(i) the total number of reports redacted pursuant to this paragraph;

(ii) the total number of individuals whose reports have been redacted pursuant to this paragraph; and

(iii) the types of threats against individuals whose reports are redacted, if appropriate.

(D) The Judicial Conference, in consultation with the Department of Justice, shall issue regulations setting forth the circumstances under which redaction is appropriate under this paragraph and the procedures for redaction.

(E) This paragraph shall expire on December 31, 2005, and apply to filings through calendar year 2005.

(c)(1) It shall be unlawful for any person to obtain or use a report—

(A) for any unlawful purpose;

(B) for any commercial purpose, other than by news and communications media for dissemination to the general public;

(C) for determining or establishing the credit rating of any individual; or

(D) for use, directly or indirectly, in the solicitation of money for any political, charitable, or other purpose.

(2) The Attorney General may bring a civil action against any person who obtains or uses a report for any purpose prohibited in paragraph (1) of this subsection. The court in which such action is brought may assess against such person a penalty in any amount not to exceed $10,000. Such remedy shall be in addition to any other remedy available under statutory or common law.

(d) Any report filed with or transmitted to an agency or supervising ethics office or to the Clerk of the House of Representatives or the Secretary of the Senate pursuant to this title shall be retained by such agency or office or by the Clerk or the Secretary of the Senate, as the case may be. Such report shall be made available to the public for a period of six years after receipt of the report. After such six-year period the report shall be destroyed unless needed in an ongoing investigation, except that in the case of an individual who filed the report pursuant to section 101(b) and was not subsequently confirmed by the Senate, or who filed the report pursuant to section 101(c) and was not subsequently elected, such reports shall be destroyed one year after the individual either is no longer under consideration by the Senate or is no longer a candidate for nomination or election to the Office of President, Vice President, or as a Member of Congress, unless needed in an ongoing investigation.

Review of Reports

SEC. 106. (a)(1) Each designated agency ethics official or Secretary concerned shall make provisions to ensure that each report filed with him under this title is reviewed within sixty days after the date of such filing, except that the Director of the Office of Government Ethics shall review only those reports required to be transmitted to him under this title within sixty days after the date of transmittal.

(2) Each congressional ethics committee and the Judicial Conference shall make provisions to ensure that each report filed under this title is reviewed within sixty days after the date of such filing.

(b)(1) If after reviewing any report under subsection (a), the Director of the Office of Government Ethics, the Secretary concerned, the designated agency ethics official, a person designated by the congressional ethics committee, or a person designated by the Judicial Conference, as the case may be, is of the opinion that on the basis of information contained in such report the individual submitting such report is in compliance with applicable laws and regulations, he shall state such opinion on the report, and shall sign such report.

(2) If the Director of the Office of Government Ethics, the Secretary concerned, the designated agency ethics official, a person designated by the congressional ethics committee, or a person designated by the Judicial Conference, after reviewing any report under subsection (a)—

(A) believes additional information is required to be submitted, he shall notify the individual submitting such report what additional information is required and the time by which it must be submitted, or

(B) is of the opinion, on the basis of information submitted, that the individual is not in compliance with applicable laws and regulations, he shall notify the individual, afford a reasonable opportunity for a written or oral response, and after consideration of such response, reach an opinion as to whether or not, on the basis of information submitted, the individual is in compliance with such laws and regulations.

(3) If the Director of the Office of Government Ethics, the Secretary concerned, the designated agency ethics official, a person designated by a congressional ethics committee, or a person designated by the Judicial Conference, reaches an opinion under paragraph (2)(B) that an individual is not in compliance with applicable laws and regulations, the official or committee shall notify the individual of that opinion and, after an opportunity for personal consultation (if practicable), determine and notify the individual of which steps, if any, would in the opinion of such official or committee be appropriate for assuring compliance with such laws and regulations and the date by which such steps should be taken. Such steps may include, as appropriate—

(A) divestiture,

(B) restitution,

(C) the establishment of a blind trust,

(D) request for an exemption under section 208(b) of title 18, United States Code, or

(E) voluntary request for transfer, reassignment, limitation of duties, or resignation.

The use of any such steps shall be in accordance with such rules or regulations as the supervising ethics office may prescribe.

(4) If steps for assuring compliance with applicable laws and regulations are not taken by the date set under paragraph (3) by an individual in a position in the executive branch (other than in the Foreign Service or the uniformed services), appointment to which requires the advice and consent of the Senate, the matter shall be referred to the President for appropriate action.

(5) If steps for assuring compliance with applicable laws and regulations are not taken by the date set under paragraph (3) by a member of the Foreign Service or the uniformed services, the Secretary concerned shall take appropriate action.

(6) If steps for assuring compliance with applicable laws and regulations are not taken by the date set under paragraph (3) by any other officer or employee, the matter shall be referred to the head of the appropriate agency, the congressional ethics committee, or the Judicial Conference, for appropriate action; except that in the case of the Postmaster General or Deputy Postmaster General, the Director of the Office of Government Ethics shall recommend to the Governors of the Board of Governors of the United States Postal Service the action to be taken.

(7) Each supervising ethics office may render advisory opinions interpreting this title within its respective jurisdiction. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the individual to whom a public advisory opinion is rendered in accordance with this paragraph, and any other individual covered by this title who is involved in a fact situation which is indistinguishable in all material aspects, and who acts in good faith in accordance with the provisions and findings of such advisory opinion shall not, as a result of such act, be subject to any penalty or sanction provided by this title.

Confidential Reports and Other Additional Requirements

SEC. 107. (a)(1) Each supervising ethics office may require officers and employees under its jurisdiction (including special Government employees as defined in section 202 of title 18, United States Code) to file confidential financial disclosure reports, in such form as the supervising ethics office may prescribe. The information required to be reported under this subsection by the officers and employees of any department or agency shall be set forth in rules or regulations prescribed by the supervising ethics office, and may be less extensive than otherwise required by this title, or more extensive when determined by the supervising ethics office to be necessary and appropriate in light of sections 202 through 209 of title 18, United States Code, regulations promulgated thereunder, or the authorized activities of such officers or employees. Any individual required to file a report pursuant to section 101 shall not be required to file a confidential report pursuant to this subsection, except with respect to information which is more extensive than information otherwise required by this title. Subsections (a), (b), and (d) of section 105 shall not apply with respect to any such report.

(2) Any information required to be provided by an individual under this subsection shall be confidential and shall not be disclosed to the public.

(3) Nothing in this subsection exempts any individual otherwise covered by the requirement to file a public financial disclosure report under this title from such requirement.

(b) The provisions of this title requiring the reporting of information shall supersede any general requirement under any other provision of law or regulation with respect to the reporting of information required for purposes of preventing conflicts of interest or apparent conflicts of interest. Such provisions of this title shall not supersede the requirements of section 7342 of title 5, United States Code.

(c) Nothing in this Act requiring reporting of information shall be deemed to authorize the receipt of income, gifts, or reimbursements; the holding of assets, liabilities, or positions; or the participation in transactions that are prohibited by law, Executive order, rule, or regulation.

Authority of Comptroller General

SEC. 108. (a) The Comptroller General shall have access to financial disclosure reports filed under this title for the purposes of carrying out his statutory responsibilities.

(b) No later than December 31, 1992, and regularly thereafter, the Comptroller General shall conduct a study to determine whether the provisions of this title are being carried out effectively.

(C) the Judicial Conference for judicial officers and judicial employees; and

(D) the Office of Government Ethics for all executive branch officers and employees; and

(19) “value” means a good faith estimate of the dollar value if the exact value is neither known nor easily obtainable by the reporting individual.

Notice of Actions Taken to Comply with Ethics Agreements

SEC. 110. (a) In any case in which an individual agrees with that individual’s designated agency ethics official, the Office of Government Ethics, a Senate confirmation committee, a congressional ethics committee, or the Judicial Conference, to take any action to comply with this Act or any other law or regulation governing conflicts of interest of, or establishing standards of conduct applicable with respect to, officers or employees of the Government, that individual shall notify in writing the designated agency ethics official, the Office of Government Ethics, the appropriate committee of the Senate, the congressional ethics committee, or the Judicial Conference, as the case may be, of any action taken by the individual pursuant to that agreement. Such notification shall be made not later than the date specified in the agreement by which action by the individual must be taken, or not later than three months after the date of the agreement, if no date for action is so specified.

(b) If an agreement described in subsection (a) requires that the individual recuse himself or herself from particular categories of agency or other official action, the individual shall reduce to writing those subjects regarding which the recusal agreement will apply and the process by which it will be determined whether the individual must recuse himself or herself in a specific instance. An individual shall be considered to have complied with the requirements of subsection (a) with respect to such recusal agreement if such individual files a copy of the document setting forth the information described in the preceding sentence with such individual's designated agency ethics official or the appropriate supervising ethics office within the time prescribed in the last sentence of subsection (a).

Administration of Provisions

SEC. 111. The provisions of this title shall be administered by * * *

(2) the Select Committee on Ethics of the Senate and the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct of the House of Representatives, as appropriate, with regard to officers and employees described in paragraphs (9) and (10) of section 101(f). * * *

RULE XXVII

DISCLOSURE BY MEMBERS AND STAFF OF EMPLOYMENT NEGOTIATIONS

1. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall not directly negotiate or have any agreement of future employment or compensation, unless such Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, within 3 business days after the commencement of such negotiation or agreement of future employment or compensation, files with the Committee on Ethics a statement, which must be signed by the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, regarding such negotiations or agreement, including the name of the private entity or entities involved in such negotiations or agreement, and the date such negotiations or agreement commenced.

2. An officer or an employee of the House earning in excess of 75 percent of the salary paid to a Member shall notify the Committee on Ethics that such individual is negotiating or has any agreement of future employment or compensation.

3. The disclosure and notification under this rule shall be made within 3 business days after the commencement of such negotiation or agreement of future employment or compensation.

4. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, and an officer or employee to whom this rule applies, shall recuse himself or herself from any matter in which there is a conflict of interest or an appearance of a conflict for that Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee under this rule and shall notify the Committee on Ethics of such recusal. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner making such recusal shall, upon such recusal, submit to the Clerk for public disclosure the statement of disclosure under clause 1 with respect to which the recusal was made.

RULE XXVIII

(RESERVED.)

RULE XXIX

GENERAL PROVISIONS

1. The provisions of law that constituted the Rules of the House at the end of the previous Congress shall govern the House in all cases to which they are applicable, and the rules of parliamentary practice comprised by Jefferson's Manual shall govern the House in all cases to which they are applicable and in which they are not inconsistent with the Rules and orders of the House.

2. In these rules words importing one gender include the other as well.

3. If a measure or matter is publicly available in electronic form at a location designated by the Committee on House Administration, it shall be considered as having been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner for purposes of these rules.

4. Authoritative guidance from the Committee on the Budget concerning the impact of a legislative proposition on the levels of new budget authority, outlays, direct pending, new entitlement authority and revenues may be provided by the chair of the committee.

RULES OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

ONE HUNDRED THIRTEENTH CONGRESS

RULE I

THE SPEAKER

Approval of the Journal

1. The Speaker shall take the Chair on every legislative day precisely at the hour to which the House last adjourned and immediately call the House to order. Having examined and approved the Journal of the last day's proceedings, the Speaker shall announce to the House approval thereof. The Speaker's approval of the Journal shall be deemed agreed to unless a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner demands a vote thereon. If such a vote is decided in the affirmative, it shall not be subject to a motion to reconsider. If such a vote is decided in the negative, then one motion that the Journal be read shall be privileged, shall be decided without debate, and shall not be subject to a motion to reconsider.

Preservation of order

2. The Speaker shall preserve order and decorum and, in case of disturbance or disorderly conduct in the galleries or in the lobby, may cause the same to be cleared.

Control of Capitol facilities

3. Except as otherwise provided by rule or law, the Speaker shall have general control of the Hall of the House, the corridors and passages in the part of the Capitol assigned to the use of the House, and the disposal of unappropriated rooms in that part of the Capitol.

Signature of documents

4. The Speaker shall sign all acts and joint resolutions passed by the two Houses and all writs, warrants, and subpoenas of, or issued by order of, the House. The Speaker may sign enrolled bills and joint resolutions whether or not the House is in session.

Questions of order

5. The Speaker shall decide all questions of order, subject to appeal by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner. On such an appeal a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not speak more than once without permission of the House.

Form of a question

6. The Speaker shall rise to put a question but may state it sitting. The Speaker shall put a question in this form: “Those in favor (of the question), say ‘Aye.’”; and after the affirmative voice is expressed, “Those opposed, say ‘No.’”. After a vote by voice under this clause, the Speaker may use such voting procedures as may be invoked under rule XX.

Discretion to vote

7. The Speaker is not required to vote in ordinary legislative proceedings, except when such vote would be decisive or when the House is engaged in voting by ballot.

Speaker pro tempore

8. (a) The Speaker may appoint a Member to perform the duties of the Chair. Except as specified in paragraph (b), such an appointment may not extend beyond three legislative days.

(b)(1) In the case of illness, the Speaker may appoint a Member to perform the duties of the Chair for a period not exceeding 10 days, subject to the approval of the House. If the Speaker is absent and has omitted to make such an appointment, then the House shall elect a Speaker pro tempore to act during the absence of the Speaker.

(2) With the approval of the House, the Speaker may appoint a Member to act as Speaker pro tempore only to sign enrolled bills and joint resolutions for a specified period of time.

(3)(A) In the case of a vacancy in the Office of Speaker, the next Member on the list described in subdivision (B) shall act as Speaker pro tempore until the election of a

Speaker or a Speaker pro tempore. Pending such election the Member acting as Speaker pro tempore may exercise such authorities of the Office of Speaker as may be necessary and appropriate to that end.

(B) As soon as practicable after the election of the Speaker and whenever appropriate thereafter, the Speaker shall deliver to the Clerk a list of Members in the order in which each shall act as Speaker pro tempore under subdivision (A).

(C) For purposes of subdivision (A), a vacancy in the Office of Speaker may exist by reason of the physical inability of the Speaker to discharge the duties of the office.

Other responsibilities

9. The Speaker, in consultation with the Minority Leader, shall develop through an appropriate entity of the House a system for drug testing in the House. The system may provide for the testing of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, and otherwise shall be comparable in scope to the system for drug testing in the executive branch pursuant to Executive Order 12564 (Sept. 15, 1986). The expenses of the system may be paid from applicable accounts of the House for official expenses.

Designation of travel

10. The Speaker may designate a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House to travel on the business of the House within or without the United States, whether the House is meeting, has recessed, or has adjourned. Expenses for such travel may be paid from applicable accounts of the House described in clause 1(k)(1) of rule X on vouchers approved and signed solely by the Speaker.

Committee appointment

11. The Speaker shall appoint all select, joint, and conference committees ordered by the House. At any time after an original appointment, the Speaker may remove Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner from, or appoint additional Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner to, a select or conference committee. In appointing Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner to conference committees, the Speaker shall appoint no less than a majority who generally supported the House position as determined by the Speaker, shall name those who are primarily responsible for the legislation, and shall, to the fullest extent feasible, include the principal proponents of the major provisions of the bill or resolution passed or adopted by the House.

Recess and Convening Authorities

12. (a) To suspend the business of the House for a short time when no question is pending before the House, the Speaker may declare a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

(b)(1) To suspend the business of the House when notified of an imminent threat to its safety, the Speaker may declare an emergency recess subject to the call of the Chair.

(2) To suspend the business of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union when notified of an imminent threat to its safety, the chair of the Committee of the Whole may declare an emergency recess subject to the call of the Chair.

(c) During any recess or adjournment of not more than three days, if the Speaker is notified by the Sergeant-at-Arms of an imminent impairment of the place of reconvening at the time previously appointed, then the Speaker may, in consultation with the Minority Leader—

(1) postpone the time for reconvening within the limits of clause 4, section 5, article I of the Constitution and notify Members accordingly; or

(2) reconvene the House before the time previously appointed solely to declare the House in recess within the limits of clause 4, section 5, article I of the Constitution and notify Members accordingly.

(d) The Speaker may convene the House in a place at the seat of government other than the Hall of the House whenever, in the opinion of the Speaker, the public interest shall warrant it.

RULE II

OTHER OFFICERS AND OFFICIALS

Elections

1. There shall be elected at the commencement of each Congress, to continue in office until their successors are chosen and qualified, a Clerk, a Sergeant-at-Arms, a Chief Administrative Officer, and a Chaplain. Each of these officers shall take an oath to support the Constitution of the United States, and for the true and faithful exercise of the duties of the office to the best of the knowledge and ability of the officer, and to keep the secrets of the House. Each of these officers shall appoint all of the employees of the department concerned provided for by law. The Clerk, Sergeant-at-Arms, and Chief Administrative Officer may be removed by the House or by the Speaker.

Clerk

2. (a) At the commencement of the first session of each Congress, the Clerk shall call the Members, Delegates, and Resident Commissioner to order and proceed to record their presence by States in alphabetical order, either by call of the roll or by use of the electronic voting system. Pending the election of a Speaker or Speaker pro tempore, the Clerk shall preserve order and decorum and decide all questions of order, subject to appeal by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner.

(b) At the commencement of every regular session of Congress, the Clerk shall make and cause to be delivered to each Member, Delegate, and the Resident Commissioner a list of the reports that any officer or Department is required to make to Congress, citing the law or resolution in which the requirement may be contained and placing under the name of each officer the list of reports required to be made by such officer.

(c) The Clerk shall—

(1) note all questions of order, with the decisions thereon, the record of which shall be appended to the Journal of each session;

(2) enter on the Journal the hour at which the House adjourns;

(3) complete the distribution of the Journal to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner, together with an accurate and complete index, as soon as possible after the close of a session; and

(4) send a copy of the Journal to the executive of and to each branch of the legislature of every State as may be requested by such State officials.

(d)(1) The Clerk shall attest and affix the seal of the House to all writs, warrants, and subpoenas issued by order of the House and certify the passage of all bills and joint resolutions.

(2) The Clerk shall examine all bills, amendments, and joint resolutions after passage by the House and, in cooperation with the Senate, examine all bills and joint resolutions that have passed both Houses to see that they are correctly enrolled and forthwith present those bills and joint resolutions that originated in the House to the President in person after their signature by the Speaker and the President of the Senate, and report to the House the fact and date of their presentment.

(e) The Clerk shall cause the calendars of the House to be distributed each legislative day.

(f) The Clerk shall—

(1) retain in the library at the Office of the Clerk for the use of the Members, Delegates, Resident Commissioner, and officers of the House, and not to be withdrawn therefrom, two copies of all the books and printed documents deposited there; and

(2) deliver to any Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner an extra copy of each document requested by that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner that has been printed by order of either House of Congress in any Congress in which the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner served.

(g) The Clerk shall provide for the temporary absence or disability of the Clerk by designating an official in the Office of the Clerk to sign all papers that may require the official signature of the Clerk and to perform all other official acts that the Clerk may be required to perform under the rules and practices of the House, except such official acts as are provided for by statute. Official acts performed by the designated official shall be under the name of the Clerk. The designation shall be in writing and shall be laid before the House and entered on the Journal.

(h) The Clerk may receive messages from the President and from the Senate at any time when the House is in recess or adjournment.

(i)(1) The Clerk shall supervise the staff and manage the office of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who has died, resigned, or been expelled until a successor is elected. The Clerk shall perform similar duties in the event that a vacancy is declared by the House in any congressional district because of the incapacity of the person representing such district or other reason. When acting as a supervisory authority over such staff, the Clerk shall have authority to terminate employees and, with the approval of the Committee on House Administration, may appoint such staff as is required to operate the office until a successor is elected.

(2) For 60 days following the death of a former Speaker, the Clerk shall maintain on the House payroll, and shall supervise in the same manner, staff appointed under House Resolution 1238, Ninety-first Congress (as enacted into permanent law by chapter VIII of the Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1971) (2 U.S.C. 31b–5).

(j) In addition to any other reports required by the Speaker or the Committee on House Administration, the Clerk shall report to the Committee on House Administration not later than 45 days following the close of each semiannual period ending on June 30 or on December 31 on the financial and operational status of each function under the jurisdiction of the Clerk. Each report shall include financial statements and a description or explanation of current operations, the implementation of new policies and procedures, and future plans for each function.

(k) The Clerk shall fully cooperate with the appropriate offices and persons in the performance of reviews and audits of financial records and administrative operations.

Sergeant-at-Arms

3. (a) The Sergeant-at-Arms shall attend the House during its sittings and maintain order under the direction of the Speaker or other presiding officer. The Sergeant-at-Arms shall execute the commands of the House, and all processes issued by authority thereof, directed to the Sergeant-at-Arms by the Speaker.

(b) The symbol of the Office of the Sergeant-at-Arms shall be the mace, which shall be borne by the Sergeant-at-Arms while enforcing order on the floor.

(c) The Sergeant-at-Arms shall enforce strictly the rules relating to the privileges of the Hall of the House and be responsible to the House for the official conduct of employees of the Office of the Sergeant-at-Arms.

(d) The Sergeant-at-Arms may not allow a person to enter the room over the Hall of the House during its sittings and, from 15 minutes before the hour of the meeting of the House each day until 10 minutes after adjournment, shall see that the floor is cleared of all persons except those privileged to remain.

(e) In addition to any other reports required by the Speaker or the Committee on House Administration, the Sergeant-at-Arms shall report to the Committee on House Administration not later than 45 days following the close of each semiannual period ending on June 30 or on December 31 on the financial and operational status of each function under the jurisdiction of the Sergeant-at-Arms. Each report shall include financial statements and a description or explanation of current operations, the implementation of new policies and procedures, and future plans for each function.

(f) The Sergeant-at-Arms shall fully cooperate with the appropriate offices and persons in the performance of reviews and audits of financial records and administrative operations.

Chief Administrative Officer

4. (a) The Chief Administrative Officer shall have operational and financial responsibility for functions as assigned by the Committee on House Administration and shall be subject to the oversight of the Committee on House Administration.

(b) In addition to any other reports required by the Committee on House Administration, the Chief Administrative Officer shall report to the Committee on House Administration not later than 45 days following the close of each semiannual period ending on June 30 or December 31 on the financial and operational status of each function under the jurisdiction of the Chief Administrative Officer. Each report shall include financial statements and a description or explanation of current operations, the implementation of new policies and procedures, and future plans for each function.

(c) The Chief Administrative Officer shall fully cooperate with the appropriate offices and persons in the performance of reviews and audits of financial records and administrative operations.

Chaplain

5. The Chaplain shall offer a prayer at the commencement of each day's sitting of the House.

Office of Inspector General

6. (a) There is established an Office of Inspector General.

(b) The Inspector General shall be appointed for a Congress by the Speaker, the Majority Leader, and the Minority Leader, acting jointly.

(c) Subject to the policy direction and oversight of the Committee on House Administration, the Inspector General shall only—

(1) provide audit, investigative, and advisory services to the House and joint entities in a manner consistent with government-wide standards;

(2) inform the officers or other officials who are the subject of an audit of the results of that audit and suggesting appropriate curative actions;

(3) simultaneously notify the Speaker, the Majority Leader, the Minority Leader, and the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on House Administration in the case of any financial irregularity discovered in the course of carrying out responsibilities under this clause;

(4) simultaneously submit to the Speaker, the Majority Leader, the Minority Leader, and the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations and the Committee on House Administration a report of each audit conducted under this clause; and

(5) report to the Committee on Ethics information involving possible violations by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House of any rule of the House or of any law applicable to the performance of official duties or the discharge of official responsibilities that may require referral to the appropriate Federal or State authorities under clause 3(a)(3) of rule XI.

Office of the Historian

7. There is established an Office of the Historian of the House of Representatives. The Speaker shall appoint and set the annual rate of pay for employees of the Office of the Historian.

Office of General Counsel

8. There is established an Office of General Counsel for the purpose of providing legal assistance and representation to the House. Legal assistance and representation shall be provided without regard to political affiliation. The Office of General Counsel shall function pursuant to the direction of the Speaker, who shall consult with a Bipartisan Legal Advisory Group, which shall include the majority and minority leaderships. The Speaker shall appoint and set the annual rate of pay for employees of the Office of General Counsel.

RULE III

THE MEMBERS, DELEGATES, AND RESIDENT COMMISSIONER OF PUERTO RICO

Voting

1. Every Member shall be present within the Hall of the House during its sittings, unless excused or necessarily prevented, and shall vote on each question put, unless having a direct personal or pecuniary interest in the event of such question.

2. (a) A Member may not authorize any other person to cast the vote of such Member or record the presence of such Member in the House or the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

(b) No other person may cast a Member's vote or record a Member's presence in the House or the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

Delegates and the Resident Commissioner

3. (a) Each Delegate and the Resident Commissioner shall be elected to serve on standing committees in the same manner as Members and shall possess in such committees the same powers and privileges as the other members of the committee.

(b) The Delegates and the Resident Commissioner may be appointed to any select committee and to any conference committee.

RULE IV

THE HALL OF THE HOUSE

Use and admittance

1. The Hall of the House shall be used only for the legislative business of the House and for caucus and conference meetings of its Members, except when the House agrees to take part in any ceremonies to be observed therein.

2. (a) Only the following persons shall be admitted to the Hall of the House or rooms leading thereto:

(1) Members of Congress, Members-elect, and contestants in election cases during the pendency of their cases on the floor.

(2) The Delegates and the Resident Commissioner.

(3) The President and Vice President of the United States and their private secretaries.

(4) Justices of the Supreme Court.

(5) Elected officers and minority employees nominated as elected officers of the House.

(6) The Parliamentarian.

(7) Staff of committees when business from their committee is under consideration, and staff of the respective party leaderships when so assigned with the approval of the Speaker.

(8) Not more than one person from the staff of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner when that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner has an amendment under consideration (subject to clause 5).

(9) The Architect of the Capitol.

(10) The Librarian of Congress and the assistant in charge of the Law Library.

(11) The Secretary and Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate.

(12) Heads of departments.

(13) Foreign ministers.

(14) Governors of States.

(15) Former Members, Delegates, and Resident Commissioners; former Parliamentarians of the House; and former elected officers and minority employees nominated as elected officers of the House (subject to clause 4).

(16) One attorney to accompany a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who is the respondent in an investigation undertaken by the Committee on Ethics when a recommendation of that committee is under consideration in the House.

(17) Such persons as have, by name, received the thanks of Congress.

(b) The Speaker may not entertain a unanimous consent request or a motion to suspend this clause or clauses 1, 3, 4, or 5.

3. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b), all persons not entitled to the privilege of the floor during the session shall be excluded at all times from the Hall of the House and the cloakrooms.

(b) Until 15 minutes of the hour of the meeting of the House, persons employed in its service, accredited members of the press entitled to admission to the press

gallery, and other persons on request of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner by card or in writing, may be admitted to the Hall of the House.

4. (a) A former Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner; a former Parliamentarian of the House; or a former elected officer of the House or former minority employee nominated as an elected officer of the House shall not be entitled to the privilege of admission to the Hall of the House and rooms leading thereto if such individual—

(1) is a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal as those terms are defined in clause 5 of rule XXV;

(2) has any direct personal or pecuniary interest in any legislative measure pending before the House or reported by a committee; or

(3) is in the employ of or represents any party or organization for the purpose of influencing, directly or indirectly, the passage, defeat, or amendment of any legislative proposal.

(b) The Speaker may promulgate regulations to carry out this rule including regulations that exempt ceremonial or educational functions from the restrictions of this clause.

5. A person from the staff of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may be admitted to the Hall of the House or rooms leading thereto under clause 2 only upon prior notice to the Speaker. Such persons, and persons from the staff of committees admitted under clause 2, may not engage in efforts in the Hall of the House or rooms leading thereto to influence Members with regard to the legislation being amended. Such persons shall remain at the desk and are admitted only to advise the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or committee responsible for their admission. A person who violates this clause may be excluded during the session from the Hall of the House and rooms leading thereto by the Speaker.

Gallery

6. (a) The Speaker shall set aside a portion of the west gallery for the use of the President, the members of the Cabinet, justices of the Supreme Court, foreign ministers and suites, and the members of their respective families. The Speaker shall set aside another portion of the same gallery for the accommodation of persons to be admitted on the cards of Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner.

(b) The Speaker shall set aside the southerly half of the east gallery for the use of the families of Members of Congress. The Speaker shall control one bench. On the request of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or Senator, the Speaker shall issue a card of admission to the family of such individual, which may include their visitors. No other person shall be admitted to this section.

Prohibition on campaign contributions

7. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, or any other person entitled to admission to the Hall of the House or rooms leading thereto by this rule, may not knowingly distribute a political campaign contribution in the Hall of the House or rooms leading thereto.

RULE V

BROADCASTING THE HOUSE

1. The Speaker shall administer, direct, and control a system for closed-circuit viewing of floor proceedings of the House in the offices of all Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, and committees and in such other places in the Capitol and the House Office Buildings as the Speaker considers appropriate. Such system may include other communications functions as the Speaker considers appropriate. Any such communications shall be subject to rules and regulations issued by the Speaker.

2. (a) The Speaker shall administer, direct, and control a system for complete and unedited audio and visual broadcasting and recording of the floor proceedings of the House. The Speaker shall provide for the distribution of such broadcasts and recordings to news media, for the storage of audio and video recordings of the proceedings, and for the closed-captioning of the proceedings for hearing-impaired persons.

(b) All television and radio broadcasting stations, networks, services, and systems (including cable systems) that are accredited to the House Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries, and all radio and television correspondents who are so accredited, shall be provided access to the live coverage of the House.

(c) Coverage made available under this clause, including any recording thereof—

(1) may not be used for any partisan political campaign purpose;

(2) may not be used in any commercial advertisement; and

(3) may not be broadcast with commercial sponsorship except as part of a bona fide news program or public affairs documentary program.

3. The Speaker may delegate any of the responsibilities under this rule to such legislative entity as the Speaker considers appropriate.

RULE VI

OFFICIAL REPORTERS AND NEWS MEDIA GALLERIES

Official reporters

1. Subject to the direction and control of the Speaker, the Clerk shall appoint, and may remove for cause, the official reporters of the House, including stenographers of committees, and shall supervise the execution of their duties.

News media galleries

2. A portion of the gallery over the Speaker's chair, as may be necessary to accommodate representatives of the press wishing to report debates and proceedings, shall be set aside for their use. Reputable reporters and correspondents shall be admitted thereto under such regulations as the Speaker may prescribe from time to time. The Standing Committee of Correspondents for the Press Gallery, and the Executive Committee of Correspondents for the Periodical Press Gallery, shall supervise such galleries, including the designation of its employees, subject to the direction and control of the Speaker. The Speaker may admit to the floor, under such regulations as the Speaker may prescribe, not more than one representative of each press association.

3. A portion of the gallery as may be necessary to accommodate reporters of news to be disseminated by radio, television, and similar means of transmission, wishing to report debates and proceedings, shall be set aside for their use. Reputable reporters and correspondents shall be admitted thereto under such regulations as the Speaker may prescribe. The Executive Committee of the Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries shall supervise such gallery, including the designation of its employees, subject to the direction and control of the Speaker. The Speaker may admit to the floor, under such regulations as the Speaker may prescribe, not more than one representative of each media outlet.

RULE VII

RECORDS OF THE HOUSE

Archiving

1. (a) At the end of each Congress, the chair of each committee shall transfer to the Clerk any noncurrent records of such committee, including the subcommittees thereof.

(b) At the end of each Congress, each officer of the House elected under rule II shall transfer to the Clerk any noncurrent records made or acquired in the course of the duties of such officer.

2. The Clerk shall deliver the records transferred under clause 1, together with any other noncurrent records of the House, to the Archivist of the United States for preservation at the National Archives and Records Administration. Records so delivered are the permanent property of the House and remain subject to this rule and any order of the House.

Public availability

3. (a) The Clerk shall authorize the Archivist to make records delivered under clause 2 available for public use, subject to clause 4(b) and any order of the House.

(b)(1) A record shall immediately be made available if it was previously made available for public use by the House or a committee or a subcommittee.

(2) An investigative record that contains personal data relating to a specific living person (the disclosure of which would be an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy), an administrative record relating to personnel, or a record relating to a hearing that was closed under clause 2(g)(2) of rule XI shall be made available if it has been in existence for 50 years.

(3) A record for which a time, schedule, or condition for availability is specified by order of the House shall be made available in accordance with that order. Except as otherwise provided by order of the House, a record of a committee for which a time, schedule, or condition for availability is specified by order of the committee (entered during the Congress in which the record is made or acquired by the committee) shall be made available in accordance with the order of the committee.

(4) A record (other than a record referred to in subparagraph (1), (2), or (3)) shall be made available if it has been in existence for 30 years.

4. (a) A record may not be made available for public use under clause 3 if the Clerk determines that such availability would be detrimental to the public interest or inconsistent with the rights and privileges of the House. The Clerk shall notify in writing the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on House Administration of any such determination.

(b) A determination of the Clerk under paragraph (a) is subject to later orders of the House and, in the case of a record of a committee, later orders of the committee.

5. (a) This rule does not supersede rule VIII or clause 11 of rule X and does not authorize the public disclosure of any record if such disclosure is prohibited by law or executive order of the President.

(b) The Committee on House Administration may prescribe guidelines and regulations governing the applicability and implementation of this rule.

(c) A committee may withdraw from the National Archives and Records Administration any record of the committee delivered to the Archivist under this rule. Such a withdrawal shall be on a temporary basis and for official use of the committee.

Definition of record

6. In this rule the term “record” means any official, permanent record of the House (other than a record of an individual Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner), including—

(a) with respect to a committee, an official, permanent record of the committee (including any record of a legislative, oversight, or other activity of such committee or a subcommittee thereof); and

(b) with respect to an officer of the House elected under rule II, an official, permanent record made or acquired in the course of the duties of such officer.

Withdrawal of papers

7. A memorial or other paper presented to the House may not be withdrawn from its files without its leave. If withdrawn certified copies thereof shall be left in the Office of the Clerk. When an act passes for the settlement of a claim, the Clerk may transmit to the officer charged with the settlement thereof the papers on file in the Office of the Clerk relating to such claim. The Clerk may lend temporarily to an officer or bureau of the executive departments any papers on file in the Office of the Clerk relating to any matter pending before such officer or bureau, taking proper receipt therefor.

RULE VIII

RESPONSE TO SUBPOENAS

1. When a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House is properly served with a judicial or administrative subpoena or judicial order directing appearance as a witness relating to the official functions of the House or for the production or disclosure of any document relating to the official functions of the House, such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee shall comply, consistently with the privileges and rights of the House, with the judicial or administrative subpoena or judicial order as hereinafter provided, unless otherwise determined under this rule.

2. Upon receipt of a properly served judicial or administrative subpoena or judicial order described in clause 1, a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall promptly notify the Speaker of its receipt in writing. Such notification shall promptly be laid before the House by the Speaker. During a period of recess or adjournment of longer than three days, notification to the House is not required until the reconvening of the House, when the notification shall promptly be laid before the House by the Speaker.

3. Once notification has been laid before the House, the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall determine whether the issuance of the judicial or administrative subpoena or judicial order described in clause 1 is a proper exercise of jurisdiction by the court, is material and relevant, and is consistent with the privileges and rights of the House. Such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee shall notify the Speaker before seeking judicial determination of these matters.

4. Upon determination whether a judicial or administrative subpoena or judicial order described in clause 1 is a proper exercise of jurisdiction by the court, is material and relevant, and is consistent with the privileges and rights of the House, the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall immediately notify the Speaker of the determination in writing.

5. The Speaker shall inform the House of a determination whether a judicial or administrative subpoena or judicial order described in clause 1 is a proper exercise of jurisdiction by the court, is material and relevant, and is consistent with the privileges and rights of the House. In so informing the House, the Speaker shall generally describe the records or information sought. During a period of recess or adjournment of longer than three days, such notification is not required until the reconvening of the House, when the notification shall promptly be laid before the House by the Speaker.

6. (a) Except as specified in paragraph (b) or otherwise ordered by the House, upon notification to the House that a judicial or administrative subpoena or judicial order described in clause 1 is a proper exercise of jurisdiction by the court, is material and relevant, and is consistent with the privileges and rights of the House, the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall comply with the judicial or administrative subpoena or judicial order by supplying certified copies.

(b) Under no circumstances may minutes or transcripts of executive sessions, or evidence of witnesses in respect thereto, be disclosed or copied. During a period of recess or adjournment of longer than three days, the Speaker may authorize compliance or take such other action as the Speaker considers appropriate under the circumstances. Upon the reconvening of the House, all matters that transpired under this clause shall promptly be laid before the House by the Speaker.

7. A copy of this rule shall be transmitted by the Clerk to the court when a judicial or administrative subpoena or judicial order described in clause 1 is issued and served on a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House.

8. Nothing in this rule shall be construed to deprive, condition, or waive the constitutional or legal privileges or rights applicable or available at any time to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, or of the House itself, or the right of such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee, or of the House itself, to assert such privileges or rights before a court in the United States.

RULE IX

QUESTIONS OF PRIVILEGE

1. Questions of privilege shall be, first, those affecting the rights of the House collectively, its safety, dignity, and the integrity of its proceedings; and second, those affecting the rights, reputation, and conduct of Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner, individually, in their representative capacity only.

2. (a)(1) A resolution reported as a question of the privileges of the House, or offered from the floor by the Majority Leader or the Minority Leader as a question of the privileges of the House, or offered as privileged under clause 1, section 7, article I of the Constitution, shall have precedence of all other questions except motions to adjourn. A resolution offered from the floor by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner other than the Majority Leader or the Minority Leader as a question of the privileges of the House shall have precedence of all other questions except motions to adjourn only at a time or place, designated by the Speaker, in the legislative schedule within two legislative days after the day on which the proponent announces to the House an intention to offer the resolution and the form of the resolution. Oral announcement of the form of the resolution may be dispensed with by unanimous consent.

(2) The time allotted for debate on a resolution offered from the floor as a question of the privileges of the House shall be equally divided between (A) the proponent of the resolution, and (B) the Majority Leader, the Minority Leader, or a designee, as determined by the Speaker.

(b) A question of personal privilege shall have precedence of all other questions except motions to adjourn.

RULE X

Committees and their legislative jurisdictions

1. There shall be in the House the following standing committees, each of which shall have the jurisdiction and related functions assigned by this clause and clauses 2, 3, and 4. General oversight responsibilities

2. (a) The various standing committees shall have general oversight responsibilities as provided in paragraph

(b) in order to assist the House in—

(1) its analysis, appraisal, and evaluation of—

(A) the application, administration, execution, and effectiveness of Federal laws; and

(B) conditions and circumstances that may indicate the necessity or desirability of enacting new or additional legislation; and

(2) its formulation, consideration, and enactment of changes in Federal laws, and of such additional legislation as may be necessary or appropriate.

(b)(1) In order to determine whether laws and programs addressing subjects within the jurisdiction of a committee are being implemented and carried out in accordance with the intent of Congress and whether they should be continued, curtailed, or eliminated, each standing committee (other than the Committee on Appropriations) shall review and study on a continuing basis—

(A) the application, administration, execution, and effectiveness of laws and programs addressing subjects within its jurisdiction;

(B) the organization and operation of Federal agencies and entities having responsibilities for the administration and execution of laws and programs addressing subjects within its jurisdiction;

(C) any conditions or circumstances that may indicate the necessity or desirability of enacting new or additional legislation addressing subjects within its jurisdiction (whether or not a bill or resolution has been introduced with respect thereto); and

(D) future research and forecasting on subjects within its jurisdiction.

(2) Each committee to which subparagraph (1) applies having more than 20 members shall establish an oversight subcommittee, or require its subcommittees to conduct oversight in their respective jurisdictions, to assist in carrying out its responsibilities under this clause. The establishment of an oversight subcommittee does not limit the responsibility of a subcommittee with legislative jurisdiction in carrying out its oversight responsibilities.

(c) Each standing committee shall review and study on a continuing basis the impact or probable impact of tax policies affecting subjects within its jurisdiction as described in clauses 1 and 3.

(d)(1) Not later than February 15 of the first session of a Congress, each standing committee shall, in a meeting that is open to the public and with a quorum present, adopt its oversight plan for that Congress. Such plan shall be submitted simultaneously to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform and to the Committee on House Administration. In developing its plan each committee shall, to the maximum extent feasible—

(A) consult with other committees that have jurisdiction over the same or related laws, programs, or agencies within its jurisdiction with the objective of ensuring maximum coordination and cooperation among committees when conducting reviews of such laws, programs, or agencies and include in its plan an explanation of steps that have been or will be taken to ensure such coordination and cooperation;

(B) review specific problems with Federal rules, regulations, statutes, and court decisions that are ambiguous, arbitrary, or nonsensical, or that impose severe financial burdens on individuals;

(C) give priority consideration to including in its plan the review of those laws, programs, or agencies operating under permanent budget authority or permanent statutory authority;

(D) have a view toward ensuring that all significant laws, programs, or agencies within its jurisdiction are subject to review every 10 years;

(E) have a view toward insuring against duplication of Federal programs; and

(F) include proposals to cut or eliminate programs, including mandatory spending programs, that are inefficient, duplicative, outdated, or more appropriately administered by State or local governments.

(2) Not later than March 31 in the first session of a Congress, after consultation with the Speaker, the Majority Leader, and the Minority Leader, the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform shall report to the House the oversight plans submitted by committees together with any recommendations that it, or the House leadership group described above, may make to ensure the most effective coordination of oversight plans and otherwise to achieve the objectives of this clause.

(e) The Speaker, with the approval of the House, may appoint special ad hoc oversight committees for the purpose of reviewing specific matters within the jurisdiction of two or more standing committees.

Special oversight functions

3. (a) The Committee on Appropriations shall conduct such studies and examinations of the organization and operation of executive departments and other executive agencies (including an agency the majority of the stock of which is owned by the United States) as it considers necessary to assist it in the determination of matters within its jurisdiction.

(b) The Committee on Armed Services shall review and study on a continuing basis laws, programs, and Government activities relating to international arms control and disarmament and the education of military dependents in schools.

(c) The Committee on the Budget shall study on a continuing basis the effect on budget outlays of relevant existing and proposed legislation and report the results of such studies to the House on a recurring basis.

(d) The Committee on Education and the Workforce shall review, study, and coordinate on a continuing basis

laws, programs, and Government activities relating to domestic educational programs and institutions and programs of student assistance within the jurisdiction of other committees.

(e) The Committee on Energy and Commerce shall review and study on a continuing basis laws, programs, and Government activities relating to nuclear and other energy and nonmilitary nuclear energy research and development including the disposal of nuclear waste.

(f) The Committee on Foreign Affairs shall review and study on a continuing basis laws, programs, and Government activities relating to customs administration, intelligence activities relating to foreign policy, international financial and monetary organizations, and international fishing agreements.

(g)(1) The Committee on Homeland Security shall review and study on a continuing basis all Government activities relating to homeland security, including the interaction of all departments and agencies with the Department of Homeland Security.

(2) In addition, the committee shall review and study on a primary and continuing basis all Government activities, programs, and organizations related to homeland security that fall within its primary legislative jurisdiction.

(h) The Committee on Natural Resources shall review and study on a continuing basis laws, programs, and Government activities relating to Native Americans.

(i) The Committee on Oversight and Government Reform shall review and study on a continuing basis the operation of Government activities at all levels with a view to determining their economy and efficiency.

(j) The Committee on Rules shall review and study on a continuing basis the congressional budget process, and the committee shall report its findings and recommendations to the House from time to time.

(k) The Committee on Science, Space, and Technology shall review and study on a continuing basis laws, programs, and Government activities relating to nonmilitary research and development.

(l) The Committee on Small Business shall study and investigate on a continuing basis the problems of all types of small business.

(m) The Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence shall review and study on a continuing basis laws, programs, and activities of the intelligence community and shall review and study on an exclusive basis the sources and methods of entities described in clause 11(b)(1)(A).

Additional functions of committees

4. (a)(1)(A) The Committee on Appropriations shall, within 30 days after the transmittal of the Budget to Congress each year, hold hearings on the Budget as a whole with particular reference to—

(i) the basic recommendations and budgetary policies of the President in the presentation of the Budget; and

(ii) the fiscal, financial, and economic assumptions used as bases in arriving at total estimated expenditures and receipts.

(B) In holding hearings under subdivision (A), the committee shall receive testimony from the Secretary of the Treasury, the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, the Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, and such other persons as the committee may desire.

(C) A hearing under subdivision (A), or any part thereof, shall be held in open session, except when the committee, in open session and with a quorum present, determines by record vote that the testimony to be taken at that hearing on that day may be related to a matter of national security. The committee may by the same procedure close one subsequent day of hearing. A transcript of all such hearings shall be printed and a copy thereof furnished to each Member, Delegate, and the Resident Commissioner.

(D) A hearing under subdivision (A), or any part thereof, may be held before a joint meeting of the committee and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate in accordance with such procedures as the two committees jointly may determine.

(2) Pursuant to section 401(b)(2) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, when a committee reports a bill or joint resolution that provides new entitlement authority as defined in section 3(9) of that Act, and enactment of the bill or joint resolution, as reported, would cause a breach of the committee's pertinent allocation of new budget authority under section 302(a) of that Act, the bill or joint resolution may be referred to the Committee on Appropriations with instructions to report it with recommendations (which may include an amendment limiting the total amount of new entitlement authority provided in the bill or joint resolution). If the Committee on Appropriations fails to report a bill or joint resolution so referred within 15 calendar days (not counting any day on which the House is not in session), the committee automatically shall be discharged from consideration of the bill or joint resolution, and the bill or joint resolution shall be placed on the appropriate calendar.

(3) In addition, the Committee on Appropriations shall study on a continuing basis those provisions of law that (on the first day of the first fiscal year for which the congressional budget process is effective) provide spending authority or permanent budget authority and shall report to the House from time to time its recommendations for terminating or modifying such provisions.

(4) In the manner provided by section 302 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the Committee on Appropriations (after consulting with the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate) shall subdivide any allocations made to it in the joint explanatory statement accompanying the conference report on such concurrent resolution, and promptly report the subdivisions to the House as soon as practicable after a concurrent resolution on the budget for a fiscal year is agreed to.

(b) The Committee on the Budget shall—

(1) review on a continuing basis the conduct by the Congressional Budget Office of its functions and duties;

(2) hold hearings and receive testimony from Members, Senators, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, and such appropriate representatives of Federal departments and agencies, the general public, and national organizations as it considers desirable in developing concurrent resolutions on the budget for each fiscal year;

(3) make all reports required of it by the Congressional Budget Act of 1974;

(4) study on a continuing basis those provisions of law that exempt Federal agencies or any of their activities or outlays from inclusion in the Budget of the United States Government, and report to the House from time to time its recommendations for terminating or modifying such provisions;

(5) study on a continuing basis proposals designed to improve and facilitate the congressional budget process, and report to the House from time to time the results of such studies, together with its recommendations; and

(6) request and evaluate continuing studies of tax expenditures, devise methods of coordinating tax expenditures, policies, and programs with direct budget outlays, and report the results of such studies to the House on a recurring basis.

(c)(1) The Committee on Oversight and Government Reform shall—

(A) receive and examine reports of the Comptroller General of the United States and submit to the House such recommendations as it considers necessary or desirable in connection with the subject matter of the reports;

(B) evaluate the effects of laws enacted to reorganize the legislative and executive branches of the Government; and

(C) study intergovernmental relationships between the United States and the States and municipalities and between the United States and international organizations of which the United States is a member.

(2) In addition to its duties under subparagraph (1), the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform may at any time conduct investigations of any matter without regard to clause 1, 2, 3, or this clause conferring jurisdiction over the matter to another standing committee. The findings and recommendations of the committee in such an investigation shall be made available to any other standing committee having jurisdiction over the matter involved.

(3)(A) The Committee on Oversight and Government Reform may adopt a rule authorizing and regulating the taking of depositions by a member or counsel of the committee, including pursuant to subpoena under clause 2(m) of rule XI (which hereby is made applicable for such purpose).

(B) A rule adopted by the committee pursuant to this subparagraph—

(i) may provide that a deponent be directed to subscribe an oath or affirmation before a person authorized by law to administer the same;

(ii) shall ensure that the minority members and staff of the committee are accorded equitable treatment with respect to notice of and a reasonable opportunity to participate in any proceeding conducted thereunder; and

(iii) shall, unless waived by the deponent, require the attendance of a member of the committee.

(C) Information secured pursuant to the authority described in subdivision (A) shall retain the character of discovery until offered for admission in evidence before the committee, at which time any proper objection shall be timely.

(d)(1) The Committee on House Administration shall—

(A) provide policy direction for the Inspector General and oversight of the Clerk, Sergeant-at-Arms, Chief Administrative Officer, and Inspector General;

(B) oversee the management of services provided to the House by the Architect of the Capitol, except those services that lie within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure under clause 1(r);

(C) have the function of accepting on behalf of the House a gift, except as otherwise provided by law, if the gift does not involve a duty, burden, or condition, or is not made dependent on some future performance by the House;

(D) promulgate regulations to carry out subdivision (C); and

(E) establish and maintain standards for making documents publicly available in electronic form by the House and its committees.

(2) An employing office of the House may enter into a settlement of a complaint under the Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 that provides for the payment of funds only after receiving the joint approval of the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on House Administration concerning the amount of such payment.

(e)(1) Each standing committee shall, in its consideration of all public bills and public joint resolutions within its jurisdiction, ensure that appropriations for continuing programs and activities of the Federal Government and the government of the District of Columbia will be made annually to the maximum extent feasible and consistent with the nature, requirement, and objective of the programs and activities involved. In this subparagraph programs and activities of the Federal Government and the government of the District of Columbia includes programs and activities of any department, agency, establishment, wholly owned Government corporation, or instrumentality of the Federal Government or of the government of the District of Columbia.

(2) Each standing committee shall review from time to time each continuing program within its jurisdiction for which appropriations are not made annually to ascertain whether the program should be modified to provide for annual appropriations.

Budget Act responsibilities

(f)(1) Each standing committee shall submit to the Committee on the Budget not later than six weeks after the submission of the budget by the President, or at such time as the Committee on the Budget may request—

(A) its views and estimates with respect to all matters to be set forth in the concurrent resolution on the budget for the ensuing fiscal year that are within its jurisdiction or functions; and

(B) an estimate of the total amounts of new budget authority, and budget outlays resulting therefrom, to be provided or authorized in all bills and resolutions within its jurisdiction that it intends to be effective during that fiscal year.

(2) The views and estimates submitted by the Committee on Ways and Means under subparagraph (1) shall include a specific recommendation, made after holding public hearings, as to the appropriate level of the public debt that should be set forth in the concurrent resolution on the budget.

Election and membership of standing committees

5. (a)(1) The standing committees specified in clause 1 shall be elected by the House within seven calendar days after the commencement of each Congress, from nominations submitted by the respective party caucus or conference. A resolution proposing to change the composition of a standing committee shall be privileged if offered by direction of the party caucus or conference concerned.

(2)(A) The Committee on the Budget shall be composed of members as follows:

(i) Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner who are members of other standing committees, including five from the Committee on Appropriations, five from the Committee on Ways and Means, and one from the Committee on Rules;

(ii) one Member designated by the elected leadership of the majority party; and

(iii) one Member designated by the elected leadership of the minority party.

(B) Except as permitted by subdivision (C), a member of the Committee on the Budget other than one described in subdivision (A)(ii) or (A)(iii) may not serve on the committee during more than four Congresses in a period of six successive Congresses (disregarding for this purpose any service for less than a full session in a Congress).

(C) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may exceed the limitation of subdivision (B) if elected to serve a second consecutive Congress as the chair or a second consecutive Congress as the ranking minority member.

(3)(A) The Committee on Ethics shall be composed of 10 members, five from the majority party and five from the minority party.

(B) Except as permitted by subdivision (C), a member of the Committee on Ethics may not serve on the committee during more than three Congresses in a period of five successive Congresses (disregarding for this purpose any service for less than a full session in a Congress).

(C) A member of the Committee on Ethics may serve on the committee during a fourth Congress in a period of five successive Congresses only as either the chair or the ranking minority member of the committee.

(4)(A) At the beginning of a Congress, the Speaker or a designee and the Minority Leader or a designee each shall name 10 Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner from the respective party of such individual who are not members of the Committee on Ethics to be available to serve on investigative subcommittees of that committee during that Congress. The lists of Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner so named shall be announced to the House.

(B) Whenever the chair and the ranking minority member of the Committee on Ethics jointly determine that Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner named under subdivision (A) should be assigned to serve on an investigative subcommittee of that committee, each of them shall select an equal number of such Members, Delegates, or Resident Commissioner from the respective party of such individual to serve on that subcommittee.

(b)(1) Membership on a standing committee during the course of a Congress shall be contingent on continuing membership in the party caucus or conference that nominated the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner concerned for election to such committee. Should a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner cease to be a member of a particular party caucus or conference, that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall automatically cease to be a member of each standing committee to which elected on the basis of nomination by that caucus or conference. The chair of the relevant party caucus or conference shall notify the Speaker whenever a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner ceases to be a member of that caucus or conference. The Speaker shall notify the chair of each affected committee that the election of such Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner to the committee is automatically vacated under this subparagraph.

(2)(A) Except as specified in subdivision (B), a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not serve simultaneously as a member of more than two standing committees or more than four subcommittees of the standing committees.

(B) (i) Ex officio service by a chair or ranking minority member of a committee on each of its subcommittees under a committee rule does not count against the limitation on subcommittee service.

(ii) Service on an investigative subcommittee of the Committee on Ethics under paragraph (a)(4) does not count against the limitation on subcommittee service.

(iii) Any other exception to the limitations in subdivision (A) may be approved by the House on the recommendation of the relevant party caucus or conference.

(C) In this subparagraph the term “subcommittee” includes a panel (other than a special oversight panel of the Committee on Armed Services), task force, special subcommittee, or other subunit of a standing committee that is established for a cumulative period longer than six months in a Congress.

(c)(1) One of the members of each standing committee shall be elected by the House, on the nomination of the majority party caucus or conference, as chair thereof. In the absence of the member serving as chair, the member next in rank (and so on, as often as the case shall happen) shall act as chair. Rank shall be determined by the order members are named in resolutions electing them to the committee. In the case of a vacancy in the elected chair of a committee, the House shall elect another chair.

(2) Except in the case of the Committee on Rules, a member of a standing committee may not serve as chair of the same standing committee, or of the same subcommittee of a standing committee, during more than three consecutive Congresses (disregarding for this purpose any service for less than a full session in a Congress).

(d)(1) Except as permitted by subparagraph (2), a committee may have not more than five subcommittees.

(2) A committee that maintains a subcommittee on oversight may have not more than six subcommittees. The Committee on Appropriations may have not more than 13 subcommittees. The Committee on Oversight and Government Reform may have not more than seven subcommittees.

(e) The House shall fill a vacancy on a standing committee by election on the nomination of the respective party caucus or conference.

Expense resolutions

6. (a) Whenever a committee, commission, or other entity (other than the Committee on Appropriations) is granted authorization for the payment of its expenses (including staff salaries) for a Congress, such authorization initially shall be procured by one primary expense resolution reported by the Committee on House Administration. A primary expense resolution may include a reserve fund for unanticipated expenses of committees. An amount from such a reserve fund may be allocated to a committee only by the approval of the Committee on House Administration. A primary expense resolution reported to the House may not be considered in the House unless a printed report thereon was available on the previous calendar day. For the information of the House, such report shall—

(1) state the total amount of the funds to be provided to the committee, commission, or other entity under the primary expense resolution for all anticipated activities and programs of the committee, commission, or other entity; and

(2) to the extent practicable, contain such general statements regarding the estimated foreseeable expenditures for the respective anticipated activities and programs of the committee, commission, or other entity as may be appropriate to provide the House with basic estimates of the expenditures contemplated by the primary expense resolution.

(b) After the date of adoption by the House of a primary expense resolution for a committee, commission, or other entity for a Congress, authorization for the payment of additional expenses (including staff salaries) in that Congress may be procured by one or more supplemental expense resolutions reported by the Committee on House Administration, as necessary. A supplemental expense resolution reported to the House may not be considered in the House unless a printed report thereon was available on the previous calendar day. For the information of the House, such report shall—

(1) state the total amount of additional funds to be provided to the committee, commission, or other entity

under the supplemental expense resolution and the purposes for which those additional funds are available; and

(2) state the reasons for the failure to procure the additional funds for the committee, commission, or other entity by means of the primary expense resolution.

(c) The preceding provisions of this clause do not apply to—

(1) a resolution providing for the payment from committee salary and expense accounts of the House of sums necessary to pay compensation for staff services performed for, or to pay other expenses of, a committee, commission, or other entity at any time after the beginning of an odd-numbered year and before the date of adoption by the House of the primary expense resolution described in paragraph (a) for that year; or

(2) a resolution providing each of the standing committees in a Congress additional office equipment, airmail and special-delivery postage stamps, supplies, staff personnel, or any other specific item for the operation of the standing committees, and containing an authorization for the payment from committee salary and expense accounts of the House of the expenses of any of the foregoing items provided by that resolution,

subject to and until enactment of the provisions of the resolution as permanent law.

(d) From the funds made available for the appointment of committee staff by a primary or additional expense resolution, the chair of each committee shall ensure that sufficient staff is made available to each subcommittee to carry out its responsibilities under the rules of the committee and that the minority party is treated fairly in the appointment of such staff.

(e) Funds authorized for a committee under this clause and clauses 7 and 8 are for expenses incurred in the activities of the committee.

Interim funding

7. (a) For the period beginning at noon on January 3 and ending at midnight on March 31 in each odd-numbered year, such sums as may be necessary shall be paid out of the committee salary and expense accounts of the House for continuance of necessary investigations and studies by—

(1) each standing and select committee established by these rules; and

(2) except as specified in paragraph (b), each select committee established by resolution.

(b) In the case of the first session of a Congress, amounts shall be made available for a select committee established by resolution in the preceding Congress only if—

(1) a resolution proposing to reestablish such select committee is introduced in the present Congress; and

(2) the House has not adopted a resolution of the preceding Congress providing for termination of funding for investigations and studies by such select committee.

(c) Each committee described in paragraph (a) shall be entitled for each month during the period specified in paragraph (a) to 9 percent (or such lesser percentage as may be determined by the Committee on House Administration) of the total annualized amount made available under expense resolutions for such committee in the preceding session of Congress.

(d) Payments under this clause shall be made on vouchers authorized by the committee involved, signed by the chair of the committee, except as provided in paragraph (e), and approved by the Committee on House Administration.

(e) Notwithstanding any provision of law, rule of the House, or other authority, from noon on January 3 of the first session of a Congress until the election by the House of the committee concerned in that Congress, payments under this clause shall be made on vouchers signed by the ranking member of the committee as it was constituted at the expiration of the preceding Congress who is a member of the majority party in the present Congress.

(f)(1) The authority of a committee to incur expenses under this clause shall expire upon adoption by the House of a primary expense resolution for the committee.

(2) Amounts made available under this clause shall be expended in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Committee on House Administration.

(3) This clause shall be effective only insofar as it is not inconsistent with a resolution reported by the Committee on House Administration and adopted by the House after the adoption of these rules.

Travel

8. (a) Local currencies owned by the United States shall be made available to the committee and its employees engaged in carrying out their official duties outside the United States or its territories or possessions. Appropriated funds, including those authorized under this clause and clause 6, may not be expended for the purpose of defraying expenses of members of a committee or its employees in a country where local currencies are available for this purpose.

(b) The following conditions shall apply with respect to travel outside the United States or its territories or possessions:

(1) A member or employee of a committee may not receive or expend local currencies for subsistence in a country for a day at a rate in excess of the maximum per diem set forth in applicable Federal law.

(2) A member or employee shall be reimbursed for the expenses of such individual for a day at the lesser of —

(A) the per diem set forth in applicable Federal law; or

(B) the actual, unreimbursed expenses (other than for transportation) incurred during that day.

(3) Each member or employee of a committee shall make to the chair of the committee an itemized report showing the dates each country was visited, the amount of per diem furnished, the cost of transportation furnished, and funds expended for any other official purpose and shall summarize in these categories the total foreign currencies or appropriated funds expended. Each report shall be filed with the chair of the committee not later than 60 days following the completion of travel for use in complying with reporting requirements in applicable Federal law and shall be open for public inspection.

(c)(1) In carrying out the activities of a committee outside the United States in a country where local currencies are unavailable, a member or employee of a committee may not receive reimbursement for expenses (other than for transportation) in excess of the maximum per diem set forth in applicable Federal law.

(2) A member or employee shall be reimbursed for the expenses of such individual for a day, at the lesser of—

(A) the per diem set forth in applicable Federal law;
or

(B) the actual unreimbursed expenses (other than for transportation) incurred during that day.

(3) A member or employee of a committee may not receive reimbursement for the cost of any transportation in connection with travel outside the United States unless the member or employee actually paid for the transportation.

(d) The restrictions respecting travel outside the United States set forth in paragraph (c) also shall apply to travel outside the United States by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House authorized under any standing rule.

Committee staffs

9. (a)(1) Subject to subparagraph (2) and paragraph (f), each standing committee may appoint, by majority vote, not more than 30 professional staff members to be compensated from the funds provided for the appointment of committee staff by primary and additional expense resolutions. Each professional staff member appointed under this subparagraph shall be assigned to the chair and the ranking minority member of the committee, as the committee considers advisable.

(2) Subject to paragraph (f) whenever a majority of the minority party members of a standing committee (other than the Committee on Ethics or the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence) so request, not more than 10 persons (or one-third of the total professional committee staff appointed under this clause, whichever is fewer) may be selected, by majority vote of the minority party members, for appointment by the committee as professional staff members under subparagraph (1). The committee shall appoint persons so selected whose character and qualifications are acceptable to a majority of the committee. If the committee determines that the character and qualifications of a person so selected are unacceptable, a majority of the minority party members may select another person for appointment by the committee to the professional staff until such appointment is made. Each professional staff member appointed under this subparagraph shall be assigned to such committee business as the minority party members of the committee consider advisable.

(b)(1) The professional staff members of each standing committee—

(A) may not engage in any work other than committee business during congressional working hours; and

(B) may not be assigned a duty other than one pertaining to committee business.

(2)(A) Subparagraph (1) does not apply to staff designated by a committee as “associate” or “shared” staff who are not paid exclusively by the committee, provided that the chair certifies that the compensation paid by the committee for any such staff is commensurate with the work performed for the committee in accordance with clause 8 of rule XXIII.

(B) The use of any “associate” or “shared” staff by a committee other than the Committee on Appropriations shall be subject to the review of, and to any terms, conditions, or limitations established by, the Committee on House Administration in connection with the reporting of any primary or additional expense resolution.

(c) Each employee on the professional or investigative staff of a standing committee shall be entitled to pay at a single gross per annum rate, to be fixed by the chair and that does not exceed the maximum rate of pay as in effect from time to time under applicable provisions of law.

(d) Subject to appropriations hereby authorized, the Committee on Appropriations may appoint by majority vote such staff as it determines to be necessary (in addition to the clerk of the committee and assistants for the minority). The staff appointed under this paragraph, other than minority assistants, shall possess such qualifications as the committee may prescribe.

(e) A committee may not appoint to its staff an expert or other personnel detailed or assigned from a department or agency of the Government except with the written permission of the Committee on House Administration.

(f) If a request for the appointment of a minority professional staff member under paragraph (a) is made when no vacancy exists for such an appointment, the committee nevertheless may appoint under paragraph (a) a person selected by the minority and acceptable to the committee. A person so appointed shall serve as an additional member of the professional staff of the committee until such a vacancy occurs (other than a vacancy in the position of head of the professional staff, by whatever title designated), at which time that person is considered as appointed to that vacancy. Such a person shall be paid from the applicable accounts of the House described in clause 1(k)(1) of rule X. If such a vacancy occurs on the professional staff when seven or more persons have been so appointed who are eligible to fill that vacancy, a majority of the minority party members shall designate which of those persons shall fill the vacancy.

(g) Each staff member appointed pursuant to a request by minority party members under paragraph (a), and each staff member appointed to assist minority members of a committee pursuant to an expense resolution described in clause 6(a), shall be accorded equitable treatment with respect to the fixing of the rate of pay, the assignment of work facilities, and the accessibility of committee records.

(h) Paragraph (a) may not be construed to authorize the appointment of additional professional staff members of a committee pursuant to a request under paragraph (a) by the minority party members of that committee if 10 or more professional staff members provided for in paragraph (a)(1) who are satisfactory to a majority of the minority party members are otherwise assigned to assist the minority party members.

(i) Notwithstanding paragraph (a)(2), a committee may employ nonpartisan staff, in lieu of or in addition to committee staff designated exclusively for the majority or minority party, by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the majority party and of a majority of the members of the minority party.

Select and joint committees

10. (a) Membership on a select or joint committee appointed by the Speaker under clause 11 of rule I during the course of a Congress shall be contingent on continuing membership in the party caucus or conference of which the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner concerned was a member at the time of appointment. Should a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner cease to be a member of that caucus or conference, that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall automatically cease to be a member of any select or joint committee to which assigned. The chair of the relevant party caucus or conference shall notify the Speaker whenever a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner ceases to be a member of a party caucus or conference.

The Speaker shall notify the chair of each affected select or joint committee that the appointment of such Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner to the select or joint committee is automatically vacated under this paragraph.

(b) Each select or joint committee, other than a conference committee, shall comply with clause 2(a) of rule XI unless specifically exempted by law.

Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence

11. (a)(1) There is established a Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence (hereafter in this clause referred to as the “select committee”). The select committee shall be composed of not more than 20 Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner, of whom not more than 12 may be from the same party. The select committee shall include at least one Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner from each of the following committees:

- (A) the Committee on Appropriations;
- (B) the Committee on Armed Services;
- (C) the Committee on Foreign Affairs; and
- (D) the Committee on the Judiciary.

(2) The Speaker and the Minority Leader shall be ex officio members of the select committee but shall have no vote in the select committee and may not be counted for purposes of determining a quorum thereof.

(3) The Speaker and Minority Leader each may designate a respective leadership staff member to assist in the capacity of the Speaker or Minority Leader as ex officio member, with the same access to committee meetings, hearings, briefings, and materials as employees of the select committee and subject to the same security clearance and confidentiality requirements as employees of the select committee under this clause.

(4)(A) Except as permitted by subdivision (B), a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, other than the Speaker or the Minority Leader, may not serve as a member of the select committee during more than four Congresses in a period of six successive Congresses (disregarding for this purpose any service for less than a full session in a Congress).

(B) In the case of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner appointed to serve as the chair or the ranking minority member of the select committee, tenure on the select committee shall not be limited.

(b)(1) There shall be referred to the select committee proposed legislation, messages, petitions, memorials, and other matters relating to the following:

(A) The Central Intelligence Agency, the Director of National Intelligence, and the National Intelligence Program as defined in section 3(6) of the National Security Act of 1947.

(B) Intelligence and intelligence-related activities of all other departments and agencies of the Government, including the tactical intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the Department of Defense.

(C) The organization or reorganization of a department or agency of the Government to the extent that the organization or reorganization relates to a function or activity involving intelligence or intelligence-related activities.

(D) Authorizations for appropriations, both direct and indirect, for the following:

(i) The Central Intelligence Agency, the Director of National Intelligence, and the National Intelligence Program as defined in section 3(6) of the National Security Act of 1947.

(ii) Intelligence and intelligence-related activities of all other departments and agencies of the Government, including the tactical intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the Department of Defense.

(iii) A department, agency, subdivision, or program that is a successor to an agency or program named or referred to in (i) or (ii).

(2) Proposed legislation initially reported by the select committee (other than provisions solely involving matters specified in subparagraph (1)(A) or subparagraph (1)(D) (i)) containing any matter otherwise within the jurisdiction of a standing committee shall be referred by the Speaker to that standing committee. Proposed legislation initially reported by another committee that contains matter within the jurisdiction of the select committee shall be referred by the Speaker to the select committee if requested by the chair of the select committee.

(3) Nothing in this clause shall be construed as prohibiting or otherwise restricting the authority of any other committee to study and review an intelligence or intelligence-related activity to the extent that such activity directly affects a matter otherwise within the jurisdiction of that committee.

(4) Nothing in this clause shall be construed as amending, limiting, or otherwise changing the authority of a standing committee to obtain full and prompt access to the product of the intelligence and intelligence-related activities of a department or agency of the Government relevant to a matter otherwise within the jurisdiction of that committee.

(c)(1) For purposes of accountability to the House, the select committee shall make regular and periodic reports to the House on the nature and extent of the intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the various departments and agencies of the United States. The select committee shall promptly call to the attention of the House, or to any other appropriate committee, a matter requiring the attention of the House or another committee. In making such report, the select committee shall proceed in a manner consistent with paragraph (g) to protect national security.

(2) The select committee shall obtain annual reports from the Director of National Intelligence, the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of State, and the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Such reports shall review the intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the agency or department concerned and the intelligence and intelligence-related activities of foreign countries directed at the United States or its interests. An unclassified version of each report may be made available to the public at the discretion of the select committee. Nothing herein shall be construed as requiring the public disclosure in such reports of the names of persons engaged in intelligence or intelligence-related activities for the United States or the divulging of intelligence methods employed or the sources of information on which the reports are based or the amount of funds authorized to be appropriated for intelligence and intelligence-related activities.

(3) Within six weeks after the President submits a budget under section 1105(a) of title 31, United States Code, or at such time as the Committee on the Budget may request, the select committee shall submit to the Committee on the Budget the views and estimates described in section 301(d) of the Congressional Budget

Act of 1974 regarding matters within the jurisdiction of the select committee.

(d)(1) Except as specified in subparagraph (2), clauses 8(a), (b), and (c) and 9(a), (b), and (c) of this rule, and clauses 1, 2, and 4 of rule XI shall apply to the select committee to the extent not inconsistent with this clause.

(2) Notwithstanding the requirements of the first sentence of clause 2(g)(2) of rule XI, in the presence of the number of members required under the rules of the select committee for the purpose of taking testimony or receiving evidence, the select committee may vote to close a hearing whenever a majority of those present determines that the testimony or evidence would endanger the national security.

(e) An employee of the select committee, or a person engaged by contract or otherwise to perform services for or at the request of the select committee, may not be given access to any classified information by the select committee unless such employee or person has—

(1) agreed in writing and under oath to be bound by the Rules of the House, including the jurisdiction of the Committee on Ethics and of the select committee concerning the security of classified information during and after the period of the employment or contractual agreement of such employee or person with the select committee; and

(2) received an appropriate security clearance, as determined by the select committee in consultation with the Director of National Intelligence, that is commensurate with the sensitivity of the classified information to which such employee or person will be given access by the select committee.

(f) The select committee shall formulate and carry out such rules and procedures as it considers necessary to prevent the disclosure, without the consent of each person concerned, of information in the possession of the select committee that unduly infringes on the privacy or that violates the constitutional rights of such person. Nothing herein shall be construed to prevent the select committee from publicly disclosing classified information in a case in which it determines that national interest in the disclosure of classified information clearly outweighs any infringement on the privacy of a person.

(g)(1) The select committee may disclose publicly any information in its possession after a determination by the select committee that the public interest would be served by such disclosure. With respect to the disclosure of information for which this paragraph requires action by the select committee—

(A) the select committee shall meet to vote on the matter within five days after a member of the select committee requests a vote; and

(B) a member of the select committee may not make such a disclosure before a vote by the select committee on the matter, or after a vote by the select committee on the matter except in accordance with this paragraph.

(2)(A) In a case in which the select committee votes to disclose publicly any information that has been classified under established security procedures, that has been submitted to it by the executive branch, and that the executive branch requests be kept secret, the select committee shall notify the President of such vote.

(B) The select committee may disclose publicly such information after the expiration of a five-day period following the day on which notice of the vote to disclose is transmitted to the President unless, before the expiration of the five-day period, the President, personally in writing, notifies the select committee that the President objects to the disclosure of such information, provides reasons therefor, and certifies that the threat to the national interest of the United States posed by the disclosure is of such gravity that it outweighs any public interest in the disclosure.

(C) If the President, personally in writing, notifies the select committee of objections to the disclosure of information as provided in subdivision (B), the select committee may, by majority vote, refer the question of the disclosure of such information, with a recommendation thereon, to the House. The select committee may not publicly disclose such information without leave of the House.

(D) Whenever the select committee votes to refer the question of disclosure of any information to the House under subdivision (C), the chair shall, not later than the first day on which the House is in session following the day on which the vote occurs, report the matter to the House for its consideration.

(E) If the chair of the select committee does not offer in the House a motion to consider in closed session a matter reported under subdivision (D) within four calendar days on which the House is in session after the recommendation described in subdivision (C) is reported, then such a motion shall be privileged when offered by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner. In either case such a motion shall be decided without debate or intervening motion except one that the House adjourn.

(F) Upon adoption by the House of a motion to resolve into closed session as described in subdivision (E), the Speaker may declare a recess subject to the call of the Chair. At the expiration of the recess, the pending question, in closed session, shall be, "Shall the House approve the recommendation of the select committee?".

(G) Debate on the question described in subdivision (F) shall be limited to two hours equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the select committee. After such debate the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the question of approving the recommendation without intervening motion except one motion that the House adjourn. The House shall vote on the question in open session but without divulging the information with respect to which the vote is taken. If the recommendation of the select committee is not approved, then the question is considered as recommitted to the select committee for further recommendation.

(3)(A) Information in the possession of the select committee relating to the lawful intelligence or intelligence-related activities of a department or agency of the United States that has been classified under established security procedures, and that the select committee has determined should not be disclosed under subparagraph (1) or (2), may not be made available to any person by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House except as provided in subdivision (B).

(B) The select committee shall, under such regulations as it may prescribe, make information described in subdivision (A) available to a committee or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, and permit a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner to attend a hearing of the select committee that is closed to the public. Whenever the select committee makes such information available, it shall keep a written record showing, in the case of particular information, which committee or which Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner received the information. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who, and a committee that, receives information under this subdivision may not disclose the information except in a closed session of the House.

(4) The Committee on Ethics shall investigate any unauthorized disclosure of intelligence or intelligence-related information by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House in violation of subparagraph (3) and report to the House concerning any allegation that it finds to be substantiated.

(5) Upon the request of a person who is subject to an investigation described in subparagraph (4), the Committee on Ethics shall release to such person at the conclusion of its investigation a summary of its investigation, together with its findings. If, at the conclusion of its investigation, the Committee on Ethics determines that there has been a significant breach of confidentiality or unauthorized disclosure by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, it shall report its findings to the House and recommend appropriate action. Recommendations may include censure, removal from committee membership, or expulsion from the House, in the case of a Member, or removal from office or employment or punishment for contempt, in the case of an officer or employee.

(h) The select committee may permit a personal representative of the President, designated by the President to serve as a liaison to the select committee, to attend any closed meeting of the select committee.

(i) Subject to the Rules of the House, funds may not be appropriated for a fiscal year, with the exception of a bill or joint resolution continuing appropriations, or an amendment thereto, or a conference report thereon, to, or for use of, a department or agency of the United States to carry out any of the following activities, unless the funds shall previously have been authorized by a bill or joint resolution passed by the House during the same or preceding fiscal year to carry out such activity for such fiscal year:

(1) The activities of the Director of National Intelligence and the Office of the Director of National Intelligence.

(2) The activities of the Central Intelligence Agency.

(3) The activities of the Defense Intelligence Agency.

(4) The activities of the National Security Agency.

(5) The intelligence and intelligence-related activities of other agencies and subdivisions of the Department of Defense.

(6) The intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the Department of State.

(7) The intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

(8) The intelligence and intelligence-related activities of all other departments and agencies of the executive branch.

(j)(1) In this clause the term “intelligence and intelligence-related activities” includes—

(A) the collection, analysis, production, dissemination, or use of information that relates to a foreign country, or a government, political group, party, military force, movement, or other association in a foreign country, and that relates to the defense, foreign policy, national security, or related policies of the United States and other activity in support of the collection, analysis, production, dissemination, or use of such information;

(B) activities taken to counter similar activities directed against the United States;

(C) covert or clandestine activities affecting the relations of the United States with a foreign government, political group, party, military force, movement, or other association;

(D) the collection, analysis, production, dissemination, or use of information about activities of persons within the United States, its territories and possessions, or nationals of the United States abroad whose political and related activities pose, or may be considered by a department, agency, bureau, office, division, instrumentality, or employee of the United States to pose, a threat to the internal security of the United States; and

(E) covert or clandestine activities directed against persons described in subdivision (D).

(2) In this clause the term “department or agency” includes any organization, committee, council, establishment, or office within the Federal Government.

(3) For purposes of this clause, reference to a department, agency, bureau, or subdivision shall include a reference to any successor department, agency, bureau, or subdivision to the extent that a successor engages in intelligence or intelligence-related activities now conducted by the department, agency, bureau, or subdivision referred to in this clause.

(k) Clause 12(a) of rule XXII does not apply to meetings of a conference committee respecting legislation (or any part thereof) reported by the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence.

RULE XI

PROCEDURES OF COMMITTEES AND UNFINISHED BUSINESS

In general

1. (a)(1)(A) The Rules of the House are the rules of its committees and subcommittees so far as applicable.

(B) Each subcommittee is a part of its committee and is subject to the authority and direction of that committee and to its rules, so far as applicable.

(2)(A) In a committee or subcommittee—

(i) a motion to recess from day to day, or to recess subject to the call of the Chair (within 24 hours), shall be privileged; and

(ii) a motion to dispense with the first reading (in full) of a bill or resolution shall be privileged if printed copies are available.

(B) A motion accorded privilege under this subparagraph shall be decided without debate.

(b)(1) Each committee may conduct at any time such investigations and studies as it considers necessary or appropriate in the exercise of its responsibilities under rule X. Subject to the adoption of expense resolutions as required by clause 6 of rule X, each committee may incur expenses, including travel expenses, in connection with such investigations and studies.

(2) A proposed investigative or oversight report shall be considered as read in committee if it has been available to the members for at least 24 hours (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, or legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day).

(3) A report of an investigation or study conducted jointly by more than one committee may be filed jointly, provided that each of the committees complies independently with all requirements for approval and filing of the report.

(4) After an adjournment sine die of the last regular session of a Congress, an investigative or oversight report may be filed with the Clerk at any time, provided that a member who gives timely notice of intention to file supplemental, minority, or additional views shall be entitled to not less than seven calendar days in which to submit such views for inclusion in the report.

(c) Each committee may have printed and bound such testimony and other data as may be presented at hearings held by the committee or its subcommittees. All costs of stenographic services and transcripts in connection with a meeting or hearing of a committee shall be paid from the applicable accounts of the House described in clause 1(k) (1) of rule X.

(d)(1) Not later than January 2 of each year, a committee shall submit to the House a report on the activities of that committee.

(2) Such report shall include—

(A) separate sections summarizing the legislative and oversight activities of that committee under this rule and rule X during the applicable period;

(B) in the case of the first such report in each Congress, a summary of the oversight plans submitted by the committee under clause 2(d) of rule X;

(C) a summary of the actions taken and recommendations made with respect to the oversight plans specified in subdivision (B);

(D) a summary of any additional oversight activities undertaken by that committee and any recommendations made or actions taken thereon; and

(E) a delineation of any hearings held pursuant to clauses 2(n), (o), or (p) of this rule.

(3) After an adjournment sine die of a regular session of a Congress, or after December 15, whichever occurs first, the chair of a committee may file the report described in subparagraph (1) with the Clerk at any time and without approval of the committee, provided that—

(A) a copy of the report has been available to each member of the committee for at least seven calendar days; and

(B) the report includes any supplemental, minority, or additional views submitted by a member of the committee.

Adoption of written rules

2. (a)(1) Each standing committee shall adopt written rules governing its procedure. Such rules—

(A) shall be adopted in a meeting that is open to the public unless the committee, in open session and with a quorum present, determines by record vote that all or part of the meeting on that day shall be closed to the public;

(B) may not be inconsistent with the Rules of the House or with those provisions of law having the force and effect of Rules of the House; and

(C) shall in any event incorporate all of the succeeding provisions of this clause to the extent applicable.

(2) Each committee shall make its rules publicly available in electronic form and submit such rules for publication in the Congressional Record not later than 30 days after the chair of the committee is elected in each odd-numbered year.

(3) A committee may adopt a rule providing that the chair be directed to offer a motion under clause 1 of rule XXII whenever the chair considers it appropriate.

Regular meeting days

(b) Each standing committee shall establish regular meeting days for the conduct of its business, which shall be not less frequent than monthly. Each such committee shall meet for the consideration of a bill or resolution pending before the committee or the transaction of other committee business on all regular meeting days fixed by the committee if notice is given pursuant to paragraph (g) (3).

Additional and special meetings

(c)(1) The chair of each standing committee may call and convene, as the chair considers necessary, additional and special meetings of the committee for the consideration of a bill or resolution pending before the committee or for the conduct of other committee business, subject to such rules as the committee may adopt. The committee shall meet for such purpose under that call of the chair.

(2) Three or more members of a standing committee may file in the offices of the committee a written request that the chair call a special meeting of the committee. Such request shall specify the measure or matter to be considered. Immediately upon the filing of the request, the clerk of the committee shall notify the chair of the filing of the request. If the chair does not call the requested special meeting within three calendar days after the filing of the request (to be held within seven calendar days after the filing of the request) a majority of the members of the committee may file in the offices of the committee their written notice that a special meeting of the committee will be held. The written notice shall specify the date and hour of the special meeting and the measure or matter to be considered. The committee shall meet on that date and hour. Immediately upon the filing of the notice, the clerk of the committee shall notify all members of the committee that such special meeting will be held and inform them of its date and hour and the measure or matter to be considered. Such notice shall also be made publicly available in electronic form and shall be deemed to satisfy paragraph (g)(3)(A)(ii). Only the measure or matter specified in that notice may be considered at that special meeting.

Temporary absence of chair

(d) A member of the majority party on each standing committee or subcommittee thereof shall be designated by the chair of the full committee as the vice chair of the committee or subcommittee, as the case may be, and shall preside during the absence of the chair from any meeting. If the chair and vice chair of a committee or subcommittee are not present at any meeting of the committee or subcommittee, the ranking majority member who is present shall preside at that meeting.

Committee records

(e)(1)(A) Each committee shall keep a complete record of all committee action which shall include—

(i) in the case of a meeting or hearing transcript, a substantially verbatim account of remarks actually made during the proceedings, subject only to technical, grammatical, and typographical corrections authorized by the person making the remarks involved; and

(ii) a record of the votes on any question on which a record vote is taken.

(B) (i) Except as provided in subdivision (B)(ii) and subject to paragraph (k)(7), the result of each such record vote shall be made available by the committee for inspection by the public at reasonable times in its offices and also made publicly available in electronic form within 48 hours of such record vote. Information so available shall include a description of the amendment, motion, order, or other proposition, the name of each member voting for and each member voting against such amendment, motion, order, or proposition, and the names of those members of the committee present but not voting.

(ii) The result of any record vote taken in executive session in the Committee on Ethics may not be made available for inspection by the public without an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee.

(2)(A) Except as provided in subdivision (B), all committee records (including hearings, data, charts, and files) shall be kept separate and distinct from the congressional office records of the member serving as its chair. Such records shall be the property of the House, and each Member, Delegate, and the Resident Commissioner shall have access thereto.

(B) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, other than members of the Committee on Ethics, may not have access to the records of that committee respecting the conduct of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House without the specific prior permission of that committee.

(3) Each committee shall include in its rules standards for availability of records of the committee delivered to the Archivist of the United States under rule VII. Such standards shall specify procedures for orders of the committee under clause 3(b)(3) and clause 4(b) of rule VII, including a requirement that nonavailability of a record for a period longer than the period otherwise applicable under that rule shall be approved by vote of the committee.

(4) Each committee shall make its publications available in electronic form to the maximum extent feasible.

(5) To the maximum extent practicable, each committee shall—

(A) provide audio and video coverage of each hearing or meeting for the transaction of business in a manner that allows the public to easily listen to and view the proceedings; and

(B) maintain the recordings of such coverage in a manner that is easily accessible to the public.

(6) Not later than 24 hours after the adoption of any amendment to a measure or matter considered by a committee, the chair of such committee shall cause the text of each such amendment to be made publicly available in electronic form.

Prohibition against proxy voting

(f) A vote by a member of a committee or subcommittee with respect to any measure or matter may not be cast by proxy.

Open meetings and hearings

(g)(1) Each meeting for the transaction of business, including the markup of legislation, by a standing committee or subcommittee thereof (other than the Committee on Ethics or its subcommittees) shall be open to the public, including to radio, television, and still photography coverage, except when the committee or subcommittee, in open session and with a majority present, determines by record vote that all or part of the remainder of the meeting on that day shall be in executive session because disclosure of matters to be considered would endanger national security, would compromise sensitive law enforcement information, would tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person, or otherwise would violate a law or rule of the House. Persons, other than members of the committee and such noncommittee Members, Delegates, Resident Commissioner, congressional staff, or departmental representatives as the committee may authorize, may not be present at a business or markup session that is held in executive session. This subparagraph does not apply to open committee hearings, which are governed by clause 4(a)(1) of rule X or by subparagraph (2).

(2)(A) Each hearing conducted by a committee or subcommittee (other than the Committee on Ethics or its subcommittees) shall be open to the public, including to radio, television, and still photography coverage, except when the committee or subcommittee, in open session and with a majority present, determines by record vote that all or part of the remainder of that hearing on that day shall be closed to the public because disclosure of testimony, evidence, or other matters to be considered would endanger national security, would compromise sensitive law enforcement information, or would violate a law or rule of the House.

(B) Notwithstanding the requirements of subdivision (A), in the presence of the number of members required under the rules of the committee for the purpose of taking testimony, a majority of those present may—

(i) agree to close the hearing for the sole purpose of discussing whether testimony or evidence to be received would endanger national security, would compromise sensitive law enforcement information, or would violate clause 2(k)(5); or

(ii) agree to close the hearing as provided in clause 2(k)(5).

(C) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not be excluded from non—participatory attendance at a hearing of a committee or subcommittee (other than the Committee on Ethics or its subcommittees) unless the House by majority vote authorizes a particular committee or subcommittee, for purposes of a particular series of hearings on a particular article of legislation or on a particular subject of investigation, to close its hearings to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner by the same procedures specified in this subparagraph for closing hearings to the public.

(D) The committee or subcommittee may vote by the same procedure described in this subparagraph to close one subsequent day of hearing, except that the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on Armed Services, and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, and the subcommittees thereof, may vote by the same procedure to close up to five additional, consecutive days of hearings.

(3)(A) The chair of a committee shall announce the date, place, and subject matter of—

(i) a committee hearing, which may not commence earlier than one week after such notice; or

(ii) a committee meeting, which may not commence earlier than the third day on which members have notice thereof.

(B) A hearing or meeting may begin sooner than specified in subdivision (A) in either of the following circumstances (in which case the chair shall make the announcement specified in subdivision (A) at the earliest possible time):

(i) the chair of the committee, with the concurrence of the ranking minority member, determines that there is good cause; or

(ii) the committee so determines by majority vote in the presence of the number of members required under the rules of the committee for the transaction of business.

(C) An announcement made under this subparagraph shall be published promptly in the Daily Digest and made publicly available in electronic form.

(D) This subparagraph and subparagraph (4) shall not apply to the Committee on Rules.

(4) At least 24 hours prior to the commencement of a meeting for the markup of legislation, or at the time of an announcement under subparagraph (3)(B) made within 24 hours before such meeting, the chair of the committee shall cause the text of such legislation to be made publicly available in electronic form.

(5) Each committee shall, to the greatest extent practicable, require witnesses who appear before it to submit in advance written statements of proposed testimony and to limit their initial presentations to the committee to brief summaries thereof. In the case of a witness appearing in a nongovernmental capacity, a written statement of proposed testimony shall include a curriculum vitae and a disclosure of the amount and source (by agency and program) of each Federal grant (or subgrant thereof) or contract (or subcontract thereof) received during the current fiscal year or either of the two previous fiscal years by the witness or by an entity represented by the witness. Such statements, with appropriate redactions to protect the privacy of the witness, shall be made publicly available in electronic form not later than one day after the witness appears.

(6)(A) Except as provided in subdivision (B), a point of order does not lie with respect to a measure reported by a committee on the ground that hearings on such measure were not conducted in accordance with this clause.

(B) A point of order on the ground described in subdivision (A) may be made by a member of the committee that reported the measure if such point of order was timely made and improperly disposed of in the committee.

(7) This paragraph does not apply to hearings of the Committee on Appropriations under clause 4(a)(1) of rule X.

Quorum requirements

(h)(1) A measure or recommendation may not be reported by a committee unless a majority of the committee is actually present.

(2) Each committee may fix the number of its members to constitute a quorum for taking testimony and receiving evidence, which may not be less than two.

(3) Each committee (other than the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on the Budget, and the Committee on Ways and Means) may fix the number of its members to constitute a quorum for taking any action other than one for which the presence of a majority of the committee is otherwise required, which may not be less than one-third of the members.

(4)(A) Each committee may adopt a rule authorizing the chair of a committee or subcommittee—

(i) to postpone further proceedings when a record vote is ordered on the question of approving a measure or matter or on adopting an amendment; and

(ii) to resume proceedings on a postponed question at any time after reasonable notice.

(B) A rule adopted pursuant to this subparagraph shall provide that when proceedings resume on a postponed question, notwithstanding any intervening order for the previous question, an underlying proposition shall remain subject to further debate or amendment to the same extent as when the question was postponed.

Limitation on committee sittings

(i) A committee may not sit during a joint session of the House and Senate or during a recess when a joint meeting of the House and Senate is in progress.

Calling and questioning of witnesses

(j)(1) Whenever a hearing is conducted by a committee on a measure or matter, the minority members of the committee shall be entitled, upon request to the chair by a majority of them before the completion of the hearing, to call witnesses selected by the minority to testify with respect to that measure or matter during at least one day of hearing thereon.

(2)(A) Subject to subdivisions (B) and (C), each committee shall apply the five-minute rule during the questioning of witnesses in a hearing until such time as each member of the committee who so desires has had an opportunity to question each witness.

(B) A committee may adopt a rule or motion permitting a specified number of its members to question a witness for longer than five minutes. The time for extended questioning of a witness under this subdivision shall be equal for the majority party and the minority party and may not exceed one hour in the aggregate.

(C) A committee may adopt a rule or motion permitting committee staff for its majority and minority party members to question a witness for equal specified periods. The time for extended questioning of a witness under this subdivision shall be equal for the majority party and the minority party and may not exceed one hour in the aggregate.

Hearing procedures

(k)(1) The chair at a hearing shall announce in an opening statement the subject of the hearing.

(2) A copy of the committee rules and of this clause shall be made available to each witness on request.

(3) Witnesses at hearings may be accompanied by their own counsel for the purpose of advising them concerning their constitutional rights.

(4) The chair may punish breaches of order and decorum, and of professional ethics on the part of counsel, by censure and exclusion from the hearings; and the committee may cite the offender to the House for contempt.

(5) Whenever it is asserted by a member of the committee that the evidence or testimony at a hearing may tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person, or it is asserted by a witness that the evidence or testimony that the witness would give at a hearing may tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate the witness—

(A) notwithstanding paragraph (g)(2), such testimony or evidence shall be presented in executive session if, in the presence of the number of members required under the rules of the committee for the purpose of taking testimony, the committee determines by vote of a majority of those present that such evidence or testimony may tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person; and

(B) the committee shall proceed to receive such testimony in open session only if the committee, a majority being present, determines that such evidence or testimony will not tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person.

In either case the committee shall afford such person an opportunity voluntarily to appear as a witness, and receive and dispose of requests from such person to subpoena additional witnesses.

(6) Except as provided in subparagraph (5), the chair shall receive and the committee shall dispose of requests to subpoena additional witnesses.

(7) Evidence or testimony taken in executive session, and proceedings conducted in executive session, may be released or used in public sessions only when authorized by the committee, a majority being present.

(8) In the discretion of the committee, witnesses may submit brief and pertinent sworn statements in writing for inclusion in the record. The committee is the sole judge of the pertinence of testimony and evidence adduced at its hearing.

(9) A witness may obtain a transcript copy of the testimony of such witness given at a public session or, if given at an executive session, when authorized by the committee.

Supplemental, minority, or additional views

(l) If at the time of approval of a measure or matter by a committee (other than the Committee on Rules) a member of the committee gives notice of intention to file supplemental, minority, or additional views for inclusion in the report to the House thereon, all members shall be entitled to not less than two additional calendar days after the day of such notice (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) to file such written and signed views with the clerk of the committee.

Power to sit and act; subpoena power

(m)(1) For the purpose of carrying out any of its functions and duties under this rule and rule X (including any matters referred to it under clause 2 of rule XII), a committee or subcommittee is authorized (subject to subparagraph (3)(A))—

(A) to sit and act at such times and places within the United States, whether the House is in session, has recessed, or has adjourned, and to hold such hearings as it considers necessary; and

(B) to require, by subpoena or otherwise, the attendance and testimony of such witnesses and the production of such books, records, correspondence, memoranda, papers, and documents as it considers necessary.

(2) The chair of the committee, or a member designated by the chair, may administer oaths to witnesses.

(3)(A) (i) Except as provided in subdivision (A)(ii), a subpoena may be authorized and issued by a committee or subcommittee under subparagraph (1)(B) in the conduct of an investigation or series of investigations or activities only when authorized by the committee or subcommittee, a majority being present. The power to authorize and issue subpoenas under subparagraph (1)(B) may be delegated to the chair of the committee under such rules and under such limitations as the committee may prescribe. Authorized subpoenas shall be signed by the chair of the committee or by a member designated by the committee.

(ii) In the case of a subcommittee of the Committee on Ethics, a subpoena may be authorized and issued only by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members.

(B) A subpoena duces tecum may specify terms of return other than at a meeting or hearing of the committee or subcommittee authorizing the subpoena.

(C) Compliance with a subpoena issued by a committee or subcommittee under subparagraph (1)(B) may be enforced only as authorized or directed by the House.

(n)(1) Each standing committee, or a subcommittee thereof, shall hold at least one hearing during each 120-day period following the establishment of the committee on the topic of waste, fraud, abuse, or mismanagement in Government programs which that committee may authorize.

(2) A hearing described in subparagraph (1) shall include a focus on the most egregious instances of waste, fraud, abuse, or mismanagement as documented by any report the committee has received from a Federal Office of the Inspector General or the Comptroller General of the United States.

(o) Each committee, or a subcommittee thereof, shall hold at least one hearing in any session in which the committee has received disclaimers of agency financial statements from auditors of any Federal agency that the committee may authorize to hear testimony on such disclaimers from representatives of any such agency.

(p) Each standing committee, or a subcommittee thereof, shall hold at least one hearing on issues raised by reports issued by the Comptroller General of the United States indicating that Federal programs or operations that the committee may authorize are at high risk for waste, fraud, and mismanagement, known as the “high-risk list” or the “high-risk series.”

Committee on Ethics

3. (a) The Committee on Ethics has the following functions:

(1) The committee may recommend to the House from time to time such administrative actions as it may consider appropriate to establish or enforce standards of official conduct for Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, officers, and employees of the House. A letter of reproof or other administrative action of the committee pursuant to an investigation under subparagraph (2) shall only be issued or implemented as a part of a report required by such subparagraph.

(2) The committee may investigate, subject to paragraph (b), an alleged violation by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House of the Code of Official Conduct or of a law, rule, regulation, or other standard of conduct applicable to the conduct of such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee in the performance of the duties or the discharge of the responsibilities of such individual. After notice and hearing (unless the right to a hearing is waived by the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee), the committee shall report to the House its findings of fact and recommendations, if any, for the final disposition of any such investigation and such action as the committee may consider appropriate in the circumstances.

(3) The committee may report to the appropriate Federal or State authorities, either with the approval of the House or by an affirmative vote of two-thirds of the members of the committee, any substantial evidence of a violation by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, of a law applicable to the performance of the duties or the discharge of the responsibilities of such individual that may have been disclosed in a committee investigation.

(4) The committee may consider the request of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House for an advisory opinion with respect to the general propriety of any current or proposed conduct of such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee. With appropriate deletions to ensure the privacy of the person concerned, the committee may publish such opinion for the guidance of other Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, officers, and employees of the House.

(5) The committee may consider the request of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House for a written waiver in exceptional circumstances with respect to clause 4 of rule XXIII.

(6)(A) The committee shall offer annual ethics training to each Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, and employee of the House. Such training shall—

(i) involve the classes of employees for whom the committee determines such training to be appropriate; and

(ii) include such knowledge of the Code of Official Conduct and related House rules as may be determined appropriate by the committee.

(B) (i) A new officer or employee of the House shall receive training under this paragraph not later than 60 days after beginning service to the House.

(ii) Not later than January 31 of each year, each officer and employee of the House shall file a certification with the committee that the officer or employee attended ethics training in the last year as established by this subparagraph.

(b)(1)(A) Unless approved by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members, the Committee on Ethics may not report a resolution, report, recommendation, or advisory opinion relating to the official conduct of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, or, except as provided in subparagraph (2), undertake an investigation of such conduct.

(B) (i) Upon the receipt of information offered as a complaint that is in compliance with this rule and the rules of the committee, the chair and ranking minority member jointly may appoint members to serve as an investigative subcommittee.

(ii) The chair and ranking minority member of the committee jointly may gather additional information concerning alleged conduct that is the basis of a complaint or of information offered as a complaint until they have established an investigative subcommittee or either of them has placed on the agenda of the committee the issue of whether to establish an investigative subcommittee.

(2) Except in the case of an investigation undertaken by the committee on its own initiative, the committee may undertake an investigation relating to the official conduct of an individual Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House only—

(A) upon receipt of information offered as a complaint, in writing and under oath, from a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner and transmitted to the committee by such Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner;

(B) upon receipt of information offered as a complaint, in writing and under oath, from a person not a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner provided that a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner certifies in writing to the committee that such Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner believes the information is submitted in good faith and warrants the review and consideration of the committee; or

(C) upon receipt of a report regarding a referral from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics.

If a complaint is not disposed of within the applicable periods set forth in the rules of the Committee on Ethics, the chair and ranking minority member shall establish jointly an investigative subcommittee and forward the complaint, or any portion thereof, to that subcommittee for its consideration. However, if at any time during those periods either the chair or ranking minority member places on the agenda the issue of whether to establish an investigative subcommittee, then an investigative subcommittee may be established only by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee.

(3) The committee may not undertake an investigation of an alleged violation of a law, rule, regulation, or standard of conduct that was not in effect at the time of the alleged violation. The committee may not undertake an investigation of such an alleged violation that occurred before the third previous Congress unless the committee determines that the alleged violation is directly related to an alleged violation that occurred in a more recent Congress.

(4) A member of the committee shall be ineligible to participate as a member of the committee in a committee proceeding relating to the member's official conduct. Whenever a member of the committee is ineligible to act as a member of the committee under the preceding sentence, the Speaker shall designate a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner from the same political party as the ineligible member to act in any proceeding of the committee relating to that conduct.

(5) A member of the committee may seek disqualification from participating in an investigation of the conduct of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House upon the submission in writing and under oath of an affidavit of disqualification stating that the member cannot render an impartial and unbiased decision in the case in which the member seeks to be disqualified. If the committee approves and accepts such affidavit of disqualification, the chair shall so notify the Speaker and request the Speaker to designate a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner from the same political party as the disqualifying member to act in any proceeding of the committee relating to that case.

(6) Information or testimony received, or the contents of a complaint or the fact of its filing, may not be publicly disclosed by any committee or staff member unless specifically authorized in each instance by a vote of the full committee.

(7) The committee shall have the functions designated in titles I and V of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, in sections 7342, 7351, and 7353 of title 5, United States Code, and in clause 11(g)(4) of rule X.

(8)(A) Except as provided by subdivisions (B), (C), and (D), not later than 45 calendar days or 5 legislative days, whichever is later, after receipt of a written report and any findings and supporting documentation regarding a referral from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics or of a referral of the matter from the board

pursuant to a request under paragraph (r), the chair of the Committee on Ethics shall make public the written report and findings of the board unless the chair and ranking member, acting jointly, decide or the committee votes to withhold such information for not more than one additional period of the same duration, in which case the chair shall—

(i) upon the termination of such additional period, make public the written report and findings; and

(ii) upon the day of such decision or vote, make a public statement that the matter, relating to the referral made by the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics regarding the Member, officer, or employee of the House who is the subject of the applicable referral, has been extended.

At least one calendar day before the committee makes public any written report and findings of the board, the chair shall notify such board and the applicable Member, officer, or employee of that fact and transmit to such individual a copy of the statement on the committee's disposition of, and any committee report on, the matter.

(B) (i) Notwithstanding subdivision (A)(i), if the committee votes to dismiss a matter which is the subject of a referral from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics, the committee is not required to make public the written report and findings described in such subdivision unless the committee's vote is inconsistent with the recommendation of the board. For purposes of the previous sentence, a vote by the committee to dismiss a matter is not inconsistent with a report from the board respecting the matter as unresolved due to a tie vote.

(ii) Notwithstanding subdivision (A)(ii), if the board transmits a report respecting any matter with a recommendation to dismiss or as unresolved due to a tie vote, and the matter is extended for an additional period as provided in subdivision (A), the committee is not required to make a public statement that the matter has been extended.

(iii) Except as provided by subdivision (E), if the committee establishes an investigative subcommittee respecting any such matter, then the report and findings of the board shall not be made public until the conclusion of the investigative subcommittee process and the committee shall issue a public statement of the establishment of an investigative subcommittee, which statement shall include the name of the applicable Member, officer, or employee, and shall set forth the alleged violation. If any such investigative subcommittee does not conclude its review within one year after the board transmits a report respecting any matter, then the committee shall make public the report and upon the expiration of the Congress in which the report is made public, the committee shall make public any findings.

(C) (i) If, after receipt of a written report and any findings and supporting documentation regarding a referral from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics or of a referral of the matter from the board pursuant to a request under paragraph (r), the committee agrees to a request from an appropriate law enforcement or regulatory authority to defer taking action on the matter

(I) notwithstanding subdivision (A)(i), the committee is not required to make public the written report and findings described in such subdivision, except that if the recommendation of the board with respect to the report is that the matter requires further review, the committee shall make public the written report but not the findings; and

(II) before the end of the first day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and public holidays) after the day that the committee agrees to the request, the committee shall make a public statement that it is deferring taking action on the matter at the request of such authority.

(ii) If, upon the expiration of the one-year period that begins on the date the committee makes the public statement described in item (i)(II), the committee has not acted on the matter, the committee shall make a new public statement that it is still deferring taking action on the matter, and shall make a new statement upon the expiration of each succeeding one-year period during which the committee has not acted on the matter.

(D) The committee may not receive any referral from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics within 60 days before a Federal, State, or local election in which the subject of the referral is a candidate. The committee may delay any reporting requirement under this subparagraph that falls within that 60-day period until the end of such period and in that case, for purposes of subdivision (A), days within the 60-day period shall not be counted.

(E) If, at the close of any applicable period for a reporting requirement under this subparagraph with respect to a referral from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics, the vote of the committee is a tie or the committee fails to act, the report and the findings of the board shall be made public by the committee, along with a public statement by the chair explaining the status of the matter.

(c)(1) Notwithstanding clause 2(g)(1) of rule XI, each meeting of the Committee on Ethics or a subcommittee thereof shall occur in executive session unless the committee or subcommittee, by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members, opens the meeting to the public.

(2) Notwithstanding clause 2(g)(2) of rule XI, each hearing of an adjudicatory subcommittee or sanction hearing of the Committee on Ethics shall be held in open session unless the committee or subcommittee, in open session by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members, closes all or part of the remainder of the hearing on that day to the public.

(d) Before a member, officer, or employee of the Committee on Ethics, including members of a subcommittee of the committee selected under clause 5(a)(4) of rule X and shared staff, may have access to information that is confidential under the rules of the committee, the following oath (or affirmation) shall be executed:

“I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will not disclose, to any person or entity outside the Committee on Ethics, any information received in the course of my service with the committee, except as authorized by the committee or in accordance with its rules.”

Copies of the executed oath shall be retained by the Clerk as part of the records of the House. This paragraph establishes a standard of conduct within the meaning of paragraph (a)(2). Breaches of confidentiality shall be investigated by the Committee on Ethics and appropriate action shall be taken.

(e)(1) If a complaint or information offered as a complaint is deemed frivolous by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the Committee on Ethics, the committee may take such action as it, by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members, considers appropriate in the circumstances.

(2) Complaints filed before the One Hundred Fifth Congress may not be deemed frivolous by the Committee on Ethics.

Committee agendas

(f) The committee shall adopt rules providing that the chair shall establish the agenda for meetings of the committee, but shall not preclude the ranking minority member from placing any item on the agenda.

Committee staff

(g)(1) The committee shall adopt rules providing that—

(A) the staff be assembled and retained as a professional, nonpartisan staff;

(B) each member of the staff shall be professional and demonstrably qualified for the position for which hired;

(C) the staff as a whole and each member of the staff shall perform all official duties in a nonpartisan manner;

(D) no member of the staff shall engage in any partisan political activity directly affecting any congressional or presidential election;

(E) no member of the staff or outside counsel may accept public speaking engagements or write for publication on any subject that is in any way related to the employment or duties with the committee of such individual without specific prior approval from the chair and ranking minority member; and

(F) no member of the staff or outside counsel may make public, unless approved by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee, any information, document, or other material that is confidential, derived from executive session, or classified and that is obtained during the course of employment with the committee.

(2) Only subdivisions (C), (E), and (F) of subparagraph (1) shall apply to shared staff.

(3)(A) All staff members shall be appointed by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee. Such vote shall occur at the first meeting of the membership of the committee during each Congress and as necessary during the Congress.

(B) Subject to the approval of the Committee on House Administration, the committee may retain counsel not employed by the House of Representatives whenever the committee determines, by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee, that the retention of outside counsel is necessary and appropriate.

(C) If the committee determines that it is necessary to retain staff members for the purpose of a particular investigation or other proceeding, then such staff shall be retained only for the duration of that particular investigation or proceeding.

(D) Outside counsel may be dismissed before the end of a contract between the committee and such counsel only by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee.

(4) In addition to any other staff provided for by law, rule, or other authority, with respect to the committee, the chair and ranking minority member each may appoint one individual as a shared staff member from the respective personal staff of the chair or ranking minority member to perform service for the committee. Such shared staff may assist the chair or ranking minority member on any subcommittee on which the chair or ranking minority member serves.

Meetings and hearings

(h) The committee shall adopt rules providing that—

(1) all meetings or hearings of the committee or any subcommittee thereof, other than any hearing held by an adjudicatory subcommittee or any sanction hearing held by the committee, shall occur in executive session unless the committee or subcommittee by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members opens the meeting or hearing to the public; and

(2) any hearing held by an adjudicatory subcommittee or any sanction hearing held by the committee shall be open to the public unless the committee or subcommittee by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members closes the hearing to the public.

Public disclosure

(i) The committee shall adopt rules providing that, unless otherwise determined by a vote of the committee, only the chair or ranking minority member, after consultation with each other, may make public statements regarding matters before the committee or any subcommittee thereof.

Requirements to constitute a complaint

(j) The committee shall adopt rules regarding complaints to provide that whenever information offered as a complaint is submitted to the committee, the chair and ranking minority member shall have 14 calendar days or five legislative days, whichever is sooner, to determine whether the information meets the requirements of the rules of the committee for what constitutes a complaint.

Duties of chair and ranking minority member regarding properly filed complaints

(k)(1) The committee shall adopt rules providing that whenever the chair and ranking minority member jointly determine that information submitted to the committee meets the requirements of the rules of the committee for what constitutes a complaint, they shall have 45 calendar days or five legislative days, whichever is later, after that determination (unless the committee by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members votes otherwise) to—

(A) recommend to the committee that it dispose of the complaint, or any portion thereof, in any manner that does not require action by the House, which may include dismissal of the complaint or resolution of the complaint by a letter to the Member, officer, or employee of the House against whom the complaint is made;

(B) establish an investigative subcommittee; or

(C) request that the committee extend the applicable 45-calendar day or five-legislative day period by one additional 45-calendar day period when they determine more time is necessary in order to make a recommendation under subdivision (A).

(2) The committee shall adopt rules providing that if the chair and ranking minority member jointly determine that information submitted to the committee meets the requirements of the rules of the committee for what constitutes a complaint, and the complaint is not disposed of within the applicable time periods under subparagraph (1), then they shall establish an investigative subcommittee and forward the complaint, or any portion thereof, to that subcommittee for its consideration. However, if, at any time during those periods, either the chair or ranking minority member places on the agenda the issue of whether to establish an investigative subcommittee, then an investigative subcommittee may be established only by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee.

Duties of chair and ranking minority member regarding information not constituting a complaint

(l) The committee shall adopt rules providing that whenever the chair and ranking minority member jointly determine that information submitted to the committee does not meet the requirements of the rules of the committee for what constitutes a complaint, they may—

(1) return the information to the complainant with a statement that it fails to meet the requirements of the rules of the committee for what constitutes a complaint; or

(2) recommend to the committee that it authorize the establishment of an investigative subcommittee.

Investigative and adjudicatory subcommittees

(m) The committee shall adopt rules providing that—

(1)(A) an investigative subcommittee shall be composed of four Members (with equal representation from the majority and minority parties) whenever such a subcommittee is established pursuant to the rules of the committee;

(B) an adjudicatory subcommittee shall be composed of the members of the committee who did not serve on the pertinent investigative subcommittee (with equal representation from the majority and minority parties) whenever such a subcommittee is established pursuant to the rules of the committee; and

(C) notwithstanding any other provision of this clause, the chair and ranking minority member of the committee may consult with an investigative subcommittee either on their own initiative or on the initiative of the subcommittee, shall have access to information before a subcommittee with which they so consult, and shall not thereby be precluded from serving as full, voting members of any adjudicatory subcommittee;

(2) at the time of appointment, the chair shall designate one member of a subcommittee to serve as chair and the ranking minority member shall designate one member of the subcommittee to serve as the ranking minority member; and

(3) the chair and ranking minority member of the committee may serve as members of an investigative subcommittee, but may not serve as non-voting, ex officio members.

Standard of proof for adoption of statement of alleged violation

(n) The committee shall adopt rules to provide that an investigative subcommittee may adopt a statement of alleged violation only if it determines by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the subcommittee that there is substantial reason to believe that a violation of the Code of Official Conduct, or of a law, rule, regulation, or other standard of conduct applicable to the performance of official duties or the discharge of official responsibilities by a Member, officer, or employee of the House of Representatives, has occurred.

Subcommittee powers

(o)(1) The committee shall adopt rules providing that an investigative subcommittee or an adjudicatory subcommittee may authorize and issue subpoenas only when authorized by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the subcommittee.

(2) The committee shall adopt rules providing that an investigative subcommittee may, upon an affirmative vote of a majority of its members, expand the scope of its investigation when approved by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee.

(3) The committee shall adopt rules to provide that—

(A) an investigative subcommittee may, upon an affirmative vote of a majority of its members, amend its statement of alleged violation anytime before the statement of alleged violation is transmitted to the committee; and

(B) if an investigative subcommittee amends its statement of alleged violation, the respondent shall be notified in writing and shall have 30 calendar days from the date of that notification to file an answer to the amended statement of alleged violation.

Due process rights of respondents

(p) The committee shall adopt rules to provide that—

(1) not less than 10 calendar days before a scheduled vote by an investigative subcommittee on a statement of alleged violation, the subcommittee shall provide the respondent with a copy of the statement of alleged violation it intends to adopt together with all evidence it intends to use to prove those charges which it intends to adopt, including documentary evidence, witness testimony, memoranda of witness interviews, and physical evidence, unless the subcommittee by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members decides to withhold certain evidence in order to protect a witness; but if such evidence is withheld, the subcommittee shall inform the respondent that evidence is being withheld and of the count to which such evidence relates;

(2) neither the respondent nor the counsel of the respondent shall, directly or indirectly, contact the subcommittee or any member thereof during the period of time set forth in paragraph (1) except for the sole purpose of settlement discussions where counsel for the respondent and the subcommittee are present;

(3) if, at any time after the issuance of a statement of alleged violation, the committee or any subcommittee thereof determines that it intends to use evidence not

provided to a respondent under paragraph (1) to prove the charges contained in the statement of alleged violation (or any amendment thereof), such evidence shall be made immediately available to the respondent, and it may be used in any further proceeding under the rules of the committee;

(4) evidence provided pursuant to paragraph (1) or (3) shall be made available to the respondent and the counsel of the respondent only after each agrees, in writing, that no document, information, or other materials obtained pursuant to that paragraph shall be made public until—

(A) such time as a statement of alleged violation is made public by the committee if the respondent has waived the adjudicatory hearing; or

(B) the commencement of an adjudicatory hearing if the respondent has not waived an adjudicatory hearing;

but the failure of respondent and the counsel of the respondent to so agree in writing, and their consequent failure to receive the evidence, shall not preclude the issuance of a statement of alleged violation at the end of the period referred to in paragraph (1);

(5) a respondent shall receive written notice whenever—

(A) the chair and ranking minority member determine that information the committee has received constitutes a complaint;

(B) a complaint or allegation is transmitted to an investigative subcommittee;

(C) an investigative subcommittee votes to authorize its first subpoena or to take testimony under oath, whichever occurs first; or

(D) an investigative subcommittee votes to expand the scope of its investigation;

(6) whenever an investigative subcommittee adopts a statement of alleged violation and a respondent enters into an agreement with that subcommittee to settle a complaint on which that statement is based, that agreement, unless the respondent requests otherwise, shall be in writing and signed by the respondent and respondent's counsel, the chair and ranking minority member of the subcommittee, and the outside counsel, if any;

(7) statements or information derived solely from a respondent or the counsel of a respondent during any settlement discussions between the committee or a subcommittee thereof and the respondent shall not be included in any report of the subcommittee or the committee or otherwise publicly disclosed without the consent of the respondent; and

(8) whenever a motion to establish an investigative subcommittee does not prevail, the committee shall promptly send a letter to the respondent informing the respondent of such vote.

Committee reporting requirements

(q) The committee shall adopt rules to provide that—

(1) whenever an investigative subcommittee does not adopt a statement of alleged violation and transmits a report to that effect to the committee, the committee may by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members transmit such report to the House of Representatives;

(2) whenever an investigative subcommittee adopts a statement of alleged violation, the respondent admits to the violations set forth in such statement, the respondent waives the right to an adjudicatory hearing, and the respondent's waiver is approved by the committee—

(A) the subcommittee shall prepare a report for transmittal to the committee, a final draft of which shall be provided to the respondent not less than 15 calendar days before the subcommittee votes on whether to adopt the report;

(B) the respondent may submit views in writing regarding the final draft to the subcommittee within seven calendar days of receipt of that draft;

(C) the subcommittee shall transmit a report to the committee regarding the statement of alleged violation together with any views submitted by the respondent pursuant to subdivision (B), and the committee shall make the report together with the respondent's views available to the public before the commencement of any sanction hearing; and

(D) the committee shall by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members issue a report and transmit such report to the House of Representatives, together with the respondent's views previously submitted pursuant to subdivision (B) and any additional views respondent may submit for attachment to the final report; and

(3) members of the committee shall have not less than 72 hours to review any report transmitted to the committee by an investigative subcommittee before both the commencement of a sanction hearing and the committee vote on whether to adopt the report.

(r) Upon receipt of any written notification from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics that the board is undertaking a review of any alleged conduct of any Member, officer, or employee of the House and if the committee is investigating such matter, the committee may at any time so notify the board and request that the board cease its review and refer the matter to the committee for its consideration. If at the end of the applicable time period (including any permissible extension) the committee has not reached a final resolution of the matter or has not referred the matter to the appropriate Federal or State authorities, the committee shall so notify the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics in writing. The committee may not request the same matter from the board more than one time.

Audio and visual coverage of committee proceedings

4. (a) The purpose of this clause is to provide a means, in conformity with acceptable standards of dignity, propriety, and decorum, by which committee hearings or committee meetings that are open to the public may be covered by audio and visual means—

(1) for the education, enlightenment, and information of the general public, on the basis of accurate and impartial news coverage, regarding the operations, procedures, and practices of the House as a legislative and representative body, and regarding the measures, public issues, and other matters before the House and its committees, the consideration thereof, and the action taken thereon; and

(2) for the development of the perspective and understanding of the general public with respect to the role and function of the House under the Constitution as an institution of the Federal Government.

(b) In addition, it is the intent of this clause that radio and television tapes and television film of any coverage under this clause may not be used, or made available for use, as partisan political campaign material to promote or oppose the candidacy of any person for elective public office.

(c) It is, further, the intent of this clause that the general conduct of each meeting (whether of a hearing or otherwise) covered under authority of this clause by audio or visual means, and the personal behavior of the committee members and staff, other Government officials and personnel, witnesses, television, radio, and press media personnel, and the general public at the hearing or other meeting, shall be in strict conformity with and observance of the acceptable standards of dignity, propriety, courtesy, and decorum traditionally observed by the House in its operations, and may not be such as to—

(1) distort the objects and purposes of the hearing or other meeting or the activities of committee members in connection with that hearing or meeting or in connection with the general work of the committee or of the House; or

(2) cast discredit or dishonor on the House, the committee, or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner or bring the House, the committee, or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner into disrepute.

(d) The coverage of committee hearings and meetings by audio and visual means shall be permitted and conducted only in strict conformity with the purposes, provisions, and requirements of this clause.

(e) Whenever a hearing or meeting conducted by a committee or subcommittee is open to the public, those proceedings shall be open to coverage by audio and visual means. A committee or subcommittee chair may not limit the number of television or still cameras to fewer than two representatives from each medium (except for legitimate space or safety considerations, in which case pool coverage shall be authorized).

(f) Each committee shall adopt written rules to govern its implementation of this clause. Such rules shall contain provisions to the following effect:

(1) If audio or visual coverage of the hearing or meeting is to be presented to the public as live coverage, that coverage shall be conducted and presented without commercial sponsorship.

(2) The allocation among the television media of the positions or the number of television cameras permitted by a committee or subcommittee chair in a hearing or meeting room shall be in accordance with fair and equitable procedures devised by the Executive Committee of the Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries.

(3) Television cameras shall be placed so as not to obstruct in any way the space between a witness giving evidence or testimony and any member of the committee or the visibility of that witness and that member to each other.

(4) Television cameras shall operate from fixed positions but may not be placed in positions that obstruct unnecessarily the coverage of the hearing or meeting by the other media.

(5) Equipment necessary for coverage by the television and radio media may not be installed in, or removed from, the hearing or meeting room while the committee is in session.

(6)(A) Except as provided in subdivision (B), floodlights, spotlights, strobelights, and flash—guns may not be used in providing any method of coverage of the hearing or meeting.

(B) The television media may install additional lighting in a hearing or meeting room, without cost to the Government, in order to raise the ambient lighting level in a hearing or meeting room to the lowest level necessary to provide adequate television coverage of a hearing or meeting at the current state of the art of television coverage.

(7) If requests are made by more of the media than will be permitted by a committee or subcommittee chair for coverage of a hearing or meeting by still photography, that coverage shall be permitted on the basis of a fair and equitable pool arrangement devised by the Standing Committee of Press Photographers.

(8) Photographers may not position themselves between the witness table and the members of the committee at any time during the course of a hearing or meeting.

(9) Photographers may not place themselves in positions that obstruct unnecessarily the coverage of the hearing by the other media.

(10) Personnel providing coverage by the television and radio media shall be currently accredited to the Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries.

(11) Personnel providing coverage by still photography shall be currently accredited to the Press Photographers' Gallery.

(12) Personnel providing coverage by the television and radio media and by still photography shall conduct themselves and their coverage activities in an orderly and unobtrusive manner.

Pay of witnesses

5. Witnesses appearing before the House or any of its committees shall be paid the same per diem rate as established, authorized, and regulated by the Committee on House Administration for Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, and employees of the House, plus actual expenses of travel to or from the place of examination. Such per diem may not be paid when a witness has been summoned at the place of examination.

Unfinished business of the session

6. All business of the House at the end of one session shall be resumed at the commencement of the next session of the same Congress in the same manner as if no adjournment had taken place.

RULE XII

RECEIPT AND REFERRAL OF MEASURES AND MATTERS

Messages

1. Messages received from the Senate, or from the President, shall be entered on the Journal and published in the Congressional Record of the proceedings of that day.

Referral

2. (a) The Speaker shall refer each bill, resolution, or other matter that relates to a subject listed under a standing committee named in clause 1 of rule X in accordance with the provisions of this clause.

(b) The Speaker shall refer matters under paragraph (a) in such manner as to ensure to the maximum extent feasible that each committee that has jurisdiction under clause 1 of rule X over the subject matter of a provision thereof may consider such provision and report to the House thereon. Precedents, rulings, or procedures in effect before the Ninety-Fourth Congress shall be applied to referrals under this clause only to the extent that they will contribute to the achievement of the objectives of this clause.

(c) In carrying out paragraphs (a) and (b) with respect to the referral of a matter, the Speaker—

(1) shall designate a committee of primary jurisdiction (except where the Speaker determines that extraordinary circumstances justify review by more than one committee as though primary);

(2) may refer the matter to one or more additional committees for consideration in sequence, either initially or after the matter has been reported by the committee of primary jurisdiction;

(3) may refer portions of the matter reflecting different subjects and jurisdictions to one or more additional committees;

(4) may refer the matter to a special, ad hoc committee appointed by the Speaker with the approval of the House, and including members of the committees of jurisdiction, for the specific purpose of considering that matter and reporting to the House thereon;

(5) may subject a referral to appropriate time limitations; and

(6) may make such other provision as may be considered appropriate.

(d) A bill for the payment or adjudication of a private claim against the Government may not be referred to a committee other than the Committee on Foreign Affairs or the Committee on the Judiciary, except by unanimous consent.

Petitions, memorials, and private bills

3. If a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner has a petition, memorial, or private bill to present, the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall sign it, deliver it to the Clerk, and may specify the reference or disposition to be made thereof. Such petition, memorial, or private bill (except when judged by the Speaker to be obscene or insulting) shall be entered on the Journal with the name of the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner presenting it and shall be printed in the Congressional Record.

4. A private bill or private resolution (including an omnibus claim or pension bill), or amendment thereto, may not be received or considered in the House if it authorizes or directs—

(a) the payment of money for property damages, for personal injuries or death for which suit may be instituted under the Tort Claims Procedure provided in title 28, United States Code, or for a pension (other than to carry out a provision of law or treaty stipulation);

(b) the construction of a bridge across a navigable stream; or

(c) the correction of a military or naval record.

Prohibition on commemorations

5. (a) A bill or resolution, or an amendment thereto, may not be introduced or considered in the House if it establishes or expresses a commemoration.

(b) In this clause the term “commemoration” means a remembrance, celebration, or recognition for any purpose through the designation of a specified period of time.

Excluded matters

6. A petition, memorial, bill, or resolution excluded under this rule shall be returned to the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner from whom it was received. A petition or private bill that has been inappropriately referred may, by direction of the committee having possession of it, be properly referred in the manner originally presented. An erroneous reference of a petition or private bill under this clause does not confer jurisdiction on a committee to consider or report it.

Sponsorship

7. (a) Bills, memorials, petitions, and resolutions, endorsed with the names of Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner introducing them, may be delivered to the Speaker to be referred. The titles and references of all bills, memorials, petitions, resolutions, and other documents referred under this rule shall be entered on the Journal and printed in the Congressional Record. An erroneous reference may be corrected by the House in accordance with rule X on any day immediately after the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag by unanimous consent or motion. Such a motion shall be privileged if offered by direction of a committee to which the bill has been erroneously referred or by direction of a committee claiming jurisdiction and shall be decided without debate.

(b)(1) The sponsor of a public bill or public resolution may name cosponsors. The name of a cosponsor added after the initial printing of a bill or resolution shall appear in the next printing of the bill or resolution on the written request of the sponsor. Such a request may be submitted to the Speaker at any time until the last committee authorized to consider and report the bill or resolution reports it to the House or is discharged from its consideration.

(2) The name of a cosponsor of a bill or resolution may be deleted by unanimous consent. The Speaker may entertain such a request only by the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner whose name is to be deleted or by the sponsor of the bill or resolution, and only until the last committee authorized to consider and report the bill or resolution reports it to the House or is discharged from its consideration. The Speaker may not entertain a request to delete the name of the sponsor of a bill or resolution. A deletion shall be indicated by date in the next printing of the bill or resolution.

(3) The addition or deletion of the name of a cosponsor of a bill or resolution shall be entered on the Journal and printed in the Congressional Record of that day.

(4) A bill or resolution shall be reprinted on the written request of the sponsor. Such a request may be submitted to the Speaker only when 20 or more cosponsors have been added since the last printing of the bill or resolution.

(5) When a bill or resolution is introduced “by request,” those words shall be entered on the Journal and printed in the Congressional Record.

(c)(1) A bill or joint resolution may not be introduced unless the sponsor submits for printing in the Congressional Record a statement citing as specifically as practicable the power or powers granted to Congress in the Constitution to enact the bill or joint resolution. The statement shall appear in a portion of the Record designated for that purpose and be made publicly available in electronic form by the Clerk.

(2) Before consideration of a Senate bill or joint resolution, the chair of a committee of jurisdiction may submit the statement required under subparagraph (1) as though the chair were the sponsor of the Senate bill or joint resolution.

Executive communications

8. Estimates of appropriations and all other communications from the executive departments intended for the consideration of any committees of the House shall be addressed to the Speaker for referral as provided in clause 2 of rule XIV.

RULE XIII

CALENDARS AND COMMITTEE REPORTS

Calendars

1. (a) All business reported by committees shall be referred to one of the following three calendars:

(1) A Calendar of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, to which shall be referred public bills and public resolutions raising revenue, involving a tax or charge on the people, directly or indirectly making appropriations of money or property or requiring such appropriations to be made, authorizing payments out of appropriations already made, releasing any liability to the United States for money or property, or referring a claim to the Court of Claims.

(2) A House Calendar, to which shall be referred all public bills and public resolutions not requiring referral to the Calendar of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

(3) A Private Calendar as provided in clause 5 of rule XV, to which shall be referred all private bills and private resolutions.

(b) There is established a Calendar of Motions to Discharge Committees as provided in clause 2 of rule XV.

Filing and printing of reports

2. (a)(1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2), all reports of committees (other than those filed from the floor) shall be delivered to the Clerk for printing and reference to the proper calendar under the direction of the Speaker in accordance with clause 1. The title or subject of each report shall be entered on the Journal and printed in the Congressional Record.

(2) A bill or resolution reported adversely (other than those filed as privileged) shall be laid on the table unless a committee to which the bill or resolution was referred requests at the time of the report its referral to an appropriate calendar under clause 1 or unless, within three days thereafter, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner makes such a request.

(b)(1) It shall be the duty of the chair of each committee to report or cause to be reported promptly to the House a measure or matter approved by the committee and to take or cause to be taken steps necessary to bring the measure or matter to a vote.

(2) In any event, the report of a committee on a measure that has been approved by the committee shall be filed within seven calendar days (exclusive of days on which the House is not in session) after the day on which a written request for the filing of the report, signed by a majority of the members of the committee, has been filed with the clerk of the committee. The clerk of the committee shall immediately notify the chair of the filing of such a request. This subparagraph does not apply to a report of the Committee on Rules with respect to a rule, joint rule, or order of business of the House, or to the reporting of a resolution of inquiry addressed to the head of an executive department.

(c) All supplemental, minority, or additional views filed under clause 2(l) of rule XI by one or more members of a committee shall be included in, and shall be a part of, the report filed by the committee with respect to a measure or matter. When time guaranteed by clause 2(l) of rule XI has expired (or, if sooner, when all separate views have been received), the committee may arrange to file its report with the Clerk not later than one hour after the expiration of such time. This clause and provisions of clause 2(l) of rule XI do not preclude the immediate filing or printing of a committee report in the absence of a timely request for the opportunity to file supplemental, minority, or additional views as provided in clause 2(l) of rule XI.

Content of reports

3. (a)(1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2), the report of a committee on a measure or matter shall be printed in a single volume that—

(A) shall include all supplemental, minority, or additional views that have been submitted by the time of the filing of the report; and

(B) shall bear on its cover a recital that any such supplemental, minority, or additional views (and any material submitted under paragraph (c)(3)) are included as part of the report.

(2) A committee may file a supplemental report for the correction of a technical error in its previous report on a measure or matter. A supplemental report only correcting errors in the depiction of record votes under paragraph (b) may be filed under this subparagraph and shall not be subject to the requirement in clause 4 or clause 6 concerning the availability of reports.

(b) With respect to each record vote on a motion to report a measure or matter of a public nature, and on any amendment offered to the measure or matter, the total number of votes cast for and against, and the names of members voting for and against, shall be included in the committee report. The preceding sentence does not apply to votes taken in executive session by the Committee on Ethics.

(c) The report of a committee on a measure that has been approved by the committee shall include, separately set out and clearly identified, the following:

(1) Oversight findings and recommendations under clause 2(b)(1) of rule X.

(2) The statement required by section 308(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, except that an estimate of new budget authority shall include, when practicable, a comparison of the total estimated funding level for the relevant programs to the appropriate levels under current law.

(3) An estimate and comparison prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office under section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 if timely submitted to the committee before the filing of the report.

(4) A statement of general performance goals and objectives, including outcome-related goals and objectives, for which the measure authorizes funding.

(d) Each report of a committee on a public bill or public joint resolution shall contain the following:

(1)(A) An estimate by the committee of the costs that would be incurred in carrying out the bill or joint resolution in the fiscal year in which it is reported and in each of the five fiscal years following that fiscal year (or for the authorized duration of any program authorized by the bill or joint resolution if less than five years);

(B) a comparison of the estimate of costs described in subdivision (A) made by the committee with any estimate of such costs made by a Government agency and submitted to such committee; and

(C) when practicable, a comparison of the total estimated funding level for the relevant programs with the appropriate levels under current law.

(2)(A) In subparagraph (1) the term “Government agency” includes any department, agency, establishment, wholly owned Government corporation, or instrumentality of the Federal Government or the government of the District of Columbia.

(B) Subparagraph (1) does not apply to the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on House Administration, the Committee on Rules, or the Committee on Ethics, and does not apply when a cost estimate and comparison prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office under section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 has been included in the report under paragraph (c)(3).

(e)(1) Whenever a committee reports a bill or joint resolution proposing to repeal or amend a statute or part thereof, it shall include in its report or in an accompanying document—

(A) the text of a statute or part thereof that is proposed to be repealed; and

(B) a comparative print of any part of the bill or joint resolution proposing to amend the statute and of the statute or part thereof proposed to be amended, and adjacent provisions if useful to enable the intent and effect of the amendment to be clearly understood, showing by appropriate typographical devices the omissions and insertions proposed.

(2) If a committee reports a bill or joint resolution proposing to repeal or amend a statute or part thereof with a recommendation that the bill or joint resolution be amended, the comparative print required by subparagraph (1) shall reflect the changes in existing law proposed to be made by the bill or joint resolution as proposed to be amended.

(f)(1) A report of the Committee on Appropriations on a general appropriation bill shall include—

(A) a concise statement describing the effect of any provision of the accompanying bill that directly or indirectly changes the application of existing law; and

(B) a list of all appropriations contained in the bill for expenditures not currently authorized by law for the period concerned (excepting classified intelligence or national security programs, projects, or activities), along with a statement of the last year for which such expenditures were authorized, the level of expenditures authorized for that year, the actual level of expenditures for that year, and the level of appropriations in the bill for such expenditures.

(2) Whenever the Committee on Appropriations reports a bill or joint resolution including matter specified in clause 1(b)(2) or (3) of rule X, it shall include—

(A) in the bill or joint resolution, separate headings for “Rescissions” and “Transfers of Unexpended Balances”; and

(B) in the report of the committee, a separate section listing such rescissions and transfers.

(g) Whenever the Committee on Rules reports a resolution proposing to repeal or amend a standing rule of the House, it shall include in its report or in an accompanying document—

(1) the text of any rule or part thereof that is proposed to be repealed; and

(2) a comparative print of any part of the resolution proposing to amend the rule and of the rule or part thereof proposed to be amended, showing by appropriate typographical devices the omissions and insertions proposed.

(h)(1) It shall not be in order to consider a bill or joint resolution reported by the Committee on Ways and Means that proposes to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 unless—

(A) the report includes a tax complexity analysis prepared by the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation in accordance with section 4022(b) of the Internal Revenue Service Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998; or

(B) the chair of the Committee on Ways and Means causes such a tax complexity analysis to be printed in the Congressional Record before consideration of the bill or joint resolution.

(2)(A) It shall not be in order to consider a bill or joint resolution reported by the Committee on Ways and Means that proposes to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 unless—

(i) the report includes a macroeconomic impact analysis;

(ii) the report includes a statement from the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation explaining why a macroeconomic impact analysis is not calculable; or

(iii) the chair of the Committee on Ways and Means causes a macroeconomic impact analysis to be printed in the Congressional Record before consideration of the bill or joint resolution.

(B) In subdivision (A), the term “macroeconomic impact analysis” means—

(i) an estimate prepared by the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation of the changes in economic output, employment, capital stock, and tax revenues expected to result from enactment of the proposal; and

(ii) a statement from the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation identifying the critical assumptions and the source of data underlying that estimate.

Availability of reports

4. (a)(1) Except as specified in subparagraph (2), it shall not be in order to consider in the House a measure or matter reported by a committee until the third calendar day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, or legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) on which each report of a committee on that measure or matter has been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner.

(2) Subparagraph (1) does not apply to—

(A) a resolution providing a rule, joint rule, or order of business reported by the Committee on Rules considered under clause 6;

(B) a resolution providing amounts from the applicable accounts described in clause 1(k)(1) of rule X reported by the Committee on House Administration considered under clause 6 of rule X;

(C) a resolution presenting a question of the privileges of the House reported by any committee;

(D) a measure for the declaration of war, or the declaration of a national emergency, by Congress; and

(E) a measure providing for the disapproval of a decision, determination, or action by a Government agency that would become, or continue to be, effective unless disapproved or otherwise invalidated by one or both Houses of Congress. In this subdivision the term “Government agency” includes any department, agency, establishment, wholly owned Government corporation, or instrumentality of the Federal Government or of the government of the District of Columbia.

(b) A committee that reports a measure or matter shall make every reasonable effort to have its hearings thereon (if any) printed and available for distribution to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner before the consideration of the measure or matter in the House.

(c) A general appropriation bill reported by the Committee on Appropriations may not be considered in the House until the third calendar day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) on which printed hearings of the Committee on Appropriations thereon have been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner.

Privileged reports, generally

5. (a) The following committees shall have leave to report at any time on the following matters, respectively:

(1) The Committee on Appropriations, on general appropriation bills and on joint resolutions continuing appropriations for a fiscal year after September 15 in the preceding fiscal year.

(2) The Committee on the Budget, on the matters required to be reported by such committee under titles III and IV of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

(3) The Committee on House Administration, on enrolled bills, on contested elections, on matters referred to it concerning printing for the use of the House or the two Houses, on expenditure of the applicable accounts of the House described in clause 1(k)(1) of rule X, and on matters relating to preservation and availability of noncurrent records of the House under rule VII.

(4) The Committee on Rules, on rules, joint rules, and the order of business.

(5) The Committee on Ethics, on resolutions recommending action by the House with respect to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House as a result of an investigation by the committee relating to the official conduct of such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee.

(b) A report filed from the floor as privileged under paragraph (a) may be called up as a privileged question by direction of the reporting committee, subject to any requirement concerning its availability to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner under clause 4 or concerning the timing of its consideration under clause 6.

Privileged reports by the Committee on Rules

6. (a) A report by the Committee on Rules on a rule, joint rule, or the order of business may not be called up for consideration on the same day it is presented to the House except—

(1) when so determined by a vote of two-thirds of the Members voting, a quorum being present;

(2) in the case of a resolution proposing only to waive a requirement of clause 4 or of clause 8 of rule XXII concerning the availability of reports; or

(3) during the last three days of a session of Congress.

(b) Pending the consideration of a report by the Committee on Rules on a rule, joint rule, or the order of business, the Speaker may entertain one motion that the House adjourn but may not entertain any other dilatory motion until the report shall have been disposed of.

(c) The Committee on Rules may not report a rule or order that would prevent the motion to recommit a bill or joint resolution from being made as provided in clause 2(b) of rule XIX, including a motion to recommit with instructions to report back an amendment otherwise in order, if offered by the Minority Leader or a designee, except with respect to a Senate bill or joint resolution for which the text of a House-passed measure has been substituted.

(d) The Committee on Rules shall present to the House reports concerning rules, joint rules, and the order of business, within three legislative days of the time when they are ordered. If such a report is not considered immediately, it shall be referred to the calendar. If such a report on the calendar is not called up by the member of the committee who filed the report within seven legislative days, any member of the committee may call it up as a privileged question on the day after the calendar day on which the member announces to the House intention to do so. The Speaker shall recognize a member of the committee who rises for that purpose.

(e) An adverse report by the Committee on Rules on a resolution proposing a special order of business for the consideration of a public bill or public joint resolution may be called up as a privileged question by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner on a day when it is in order to consider a motion to discharge committees under clause 2 of rule XV.

(f) If the House has adopted a resolution making in order a motion to consider a bill or resolution, and such a motion has not been offered within seven calendar days thereafter, such a motion shall be privileged if offered by direction of all reporting committees having initial jurisdiction of the bill or resolution.

(g) Whenever the Committee on Rules reports a resolution providing for the consideration of a measure, it shall to the maximum extent possible specify in the accompanying report any waiver of a point of order against the measure or against its consideration.

Resolutions of inquiry

7. A report on a resolution of inquiry addressed to the head of an executive department may be filed from the floor as privileged. If such a resolution is not reported to the House within 14 legislative days after its introduction, a motion to discharge a committee from its consideration shall be privileged.

RULE XIV

ORDER AND PRIORITY OF BUSINESS

1. The daily order of business (unless varied by the application of other rules and except for the disposition of matters of higher precedence) shall be as follows:

First. Prayer by the Chaplain.

Second. Reading and approval of the Journal, unless postponed under clause 8 of rule XX.

Third. The Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

Fourth. Correction of reference of public bills.

Fifth. Disposal of business on the Speaker's table as provided in clause 2.

Sixth. Unfinished business as provided in clause 3.

Seventh. The morning hour for the consideration of bills called up by committees as provided in clause 4.

Eighth. Motions that the House resolve into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union subject to clause 5.

Ninth. Orders of the day.

2. Business on the Speaker's table shall be disposed of as follows:

(a) Messages from the President shall be referred to the appropriate committees without debate.

(b) Communications addressed to the House, including reports and communications from heads of departments and bills, resolutions, and messages from the Senate, may be referred to the appropriate committees in the same manner and with the same right of correction as public bills and public resolutions presented by Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner.

(c) Motions to dispose of Senate amendments on the Speaker's table may be entertained as provided in clauses 1, 2, and 4 of rule XXII.

(d) Senate bills and resolutions substantially the same as House measures already favorably reported and not required to be considered in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union may be disposed of by motion. Such a motion shall be privileged if offered by direction of all reporting committees having initial jurisdiction of the House measure.

3. Consideration of unfinished business in which the House may have been engaged at an adjournment, except business in the morning hour and proceedings postponed under clause 8 of rule XX, shall be resumed as soon as the business on the Speaker's table is finished, and at the same time each day thereafter until disposed of. The consideration of all other unfinished business shall be resumed whenever the class of business to which it belongs shall be in order under the rules.

4. After the unfinished business has been disposed of, the Speaker shall call each standing committee in regular order and then select committees. Each committee when named may call up for consideration a bill or resolution reported by it on a previous day and on the House Calendar. If the Speaker does not complete the call of the committees before the House passes to other business, the next call shall resume at the point it left off, giving preference to the last bill or resolution under consideration. A committee that has occupied the call for two days may not call up another bill or resolution until the other committees have been called in their turn.

5. After consideration of bills or resolutions under clause 4 for one hour, it shall be in order, pending consideration thereof, to entertain a motion that the House resolve into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union or, when authorized by a committee, that the House resolve into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union to consider a particular bill. Such a motion shall be subject to only one amendment designating another bill. If such a motion is decided in the negative, another such motion may not be considered until the matter that was pending when such motion was offered is disposed of.

6. All questions relating to the priority of business shall be decided by a majority without debate.

RULE XV

BUSINESS IN ORDER ON SPECIAL DAYS

Suspensions

1. (a) A rule may not be suspended except by a vote of two-thirds of the Members voting, a quorum being present. The Speaker may not entertain a motion that the House suspend the rules except on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Wednesdays and during the last six days of a session of Congress.

(b) Pending a motion that the House suspend the rules, the Speaker may entertain one motion that the House adjourn but may not entertain any other motion until the vote is taken on the suspension.

(c) A motion that the House suspend the rules is debatable for 40 minutes, one-half in favor of the motion and one-half in opposition thereto.

Discharge motions, second and fourth Mondays

2. (a) Motions to discharge committees shall be in order on the second and fourth Mondays of a month.

(b)(1) A Member may present to the Clerk a motion in writing to discharge—

(A) a committee from consideration of a public bill or public resolution that has been referred to it for 30

legislative days; or

(B) the Committee on Rules from consideration of a resolution that has been referred to it for seven legislative days and that proposes a special order of business for the consideration of a public bill or public resolution that has been reported by a committee or has been referred to a committee for 30 legislative days.

(2) Only one motion may be presented for a bill or resolution. A Member may not file a motion to discharge the Committee on Rules from consideration of a resolution providing for the consideration of more than one public bill or public resolution or admitting or effecting a nongermane amendment to a public bill or public resolution.

(c) A motion presented under paragraph (b) shall be placed in the custody of the Clerk, who shall arrange a convenient place for the signatures of Members. A signature may be withdrawn by a Member in writing at any time before a motion is entered on the Journal. The Clerk shall make the signatories a matter of public record, causing the names of the Members who have signed a discharge motion during a week to be published in a portion of the Congressional Record designated for that purpose on the last legislative day of the week and making cumulative lists of such names available each day for public inspection in an appropriate office of the House. The Clerk shall devise a means for making such lists available to offices of the House and to the public in electronic form. When a majority of the total membership of the House shall have signed the motion, it shall be entered on the Journal, published with the signatories thereto in the Record, and referred to the Calendar of Motions to Discharge Committees.

(d)(1) On the second and fourth Mondays of a month (except during the last six days of a session of Congress), immediately after the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag, a motion to discharge that has been on the calendar for at least seven legislative days shall be privileged if called up by a Member whose signature appears thereon. When such a motion is called up, the House shall proceed to its consideration under this paragraph without intervening motion except one motion to adjourn. Privileged motions to discharge shall have precedence in the order of their entry on the Journal.

(2) When a motion to discharge is called up, the bill or resolution to which it relates shall be read by title only. The motion is debatable for 20 minutes, one-half in favor of the motion and one-half in opposition thereto.

(e)(1) If a motion prevails to discharge the Committee on Rules from consideration of a resolution, the House shall immediately consider the resolution, pending which the Speaker may entertain one motion that the House adjourn but may not entertain any other dilatory motion until the resolution has been disposed of. If the resolution is adopted, the House shall immediately proceed to its execution.

(2) If a motion prevails to discharge a committee from consideration of a public bill or public resolution, a motion that the House proceed to the immediate consideration of such bill or resolution shall be privileged if offered by a Member whose signature appeared on the motion to discharge. The motion to proceed is not debatable. If the motion to proceed is adopted, the bill or resolution shall be considered immediately under the general rules of the House. If unfinished before adjournment of the day on which it is called up, the bill or resolution shall remain the unfinished business until it is disposed of. If the motion to proceed is rejected, the bill or resolution shall be referred to the appropriate calendar, where it shall have the same status as if the committee from which it was discharged had duly reported it to the House.

(f)(1) When a motion to discharge originated under this clause has once been acted on by the House, it shall not be in order to entertain during the same session of Congress

(A) a motion to discharge a committee from consideration of that bill or resolution or of any other bill or resolution that, by relating in substance to or dealing with the same subject matter, is substantially the same; or

(B) a motion to discharge the Committee on Rules from consideration of a resolution providing a special order of business for the consideration of that bill or resolution or of any other bill or resolution that, by relating in substance to or dealing with the same subject matter, is substantially the same.

(2) A motion to discharge on the Calendar of Motions to Discharge Committees that is rendered out of order under subparagraph (1) shall be stricken from that calendar.

Adverse report by the Committee on Rules, second and fourth Mondays

3. An adverse report by the Committee on Rules on a resolution proposing a special order of business for the consideration of a public bill or public joint resolution may be called up under clause 6(e) of rule XIII as a privileged question by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner on a day when it is in order to consider a motion to discharge committees under clause 2.

District of Columbia business, second and fourth Mondays

4. The second and fourth Mondays of a month shall be set apart for the consideration of such District of Columbia business as may be called up by the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform after the disposition of motions to discharge committees and after the disposal of such business on the Speaker's table as requires reference only.

Private Calendar, first and third Tuesdays

5. (a) On the first Tuesday of a month, the Speaker shall direct the Clerk to call the bills and resolutions on the Private Calendar after disposal of such business on the Speaker's table as requires reference only. If two or more Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner object to the consideration of a bill or resolution so called, it shall be recommitted to the committee that reported it. No other business shall be in order before completion of the call of the Private Calendar on this day unless two-thirds of the Members voting, a quorum being present, agree to a motion that the House dispense with the call.

(b)(1) On the third Tuesday of a month, after the disposal of such business on the Speaker's table as requires reference only, the Speaker may direct the Clerk to call the bills and resolutions on the Private Calendar. Preference shall be given to omnibus bills containing the texts of bills or resolutions that have previously been objected to on a call of the Private Calendar. If two or more Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner object to the consideration of a bill or resolution so called (other than an omnibus bill), it shall be recommitted to the committee that reported it. Two-thirds of the Members voting, a quorum being present, may adopt a motion that the House dispense with the call on this day.

(2) Omnibus bills shall be read for amendment by paragraph. No amendment shall be in order except to strike or to reduce amounts of money or to provide limitations. An item or matter stricken from an omnibus bill may not thereafter during the same session of Congress be included in an omnibus bill. Upon passage such an omnibus bill shall be resolved into the several bills and resolutions of which it is composed. The several bills and resolutions, with any amendments adopted by the House, shall be engrossed, when necessary, and otherwise considered as passed severally by the House as distinct bills and resolutions.

(c) The Speaker may not entertain a reservation of the right to object to the consideration of a bill or resolution under this clause. A bill or resolution considered under this clause shall be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole. A motion to dispense with the call of the Private Calendar under this clause shall be privileged. Debate on such a motion shall be limited to five minutes in support and five minutes in opposition.

Calendar Call of Committees, Wednesdays

6. (a) On Wednesday of each week, business shall not be in order before completion of the call of those committees (except as provided by clause 4 of rule XIV) whose chair, or other member authorized by the committee, has announced to the House a request for such call on the preceding legislative day.

(b) A bill or resolution on either the House or the Union Calendar, except bills or resolutions that are privileged under the Rules of the House, may be called under this clause. A bill or resolution called up from the Union Calendar shall be considered in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union without motion, subject to clause 3 of rule XVI. General debate on a measure considered under this clause shall be confined to the measure and may not exceed two hours equally divided between a proponent and an opponent.

(c) This clause does not apply during the last two weeks of a session of Congress.

(d) Precedents, rulings, or procedures in effect before the One Hundred Eleventh Congress regarding the priority of business and the availability of other business on Wednesday shall be applied only to the extent consistent with this clause.

RULE XVI

MOTIONS AND AMENDMENTS

Motions

1. Every motion entertained by the Speaker shall be reduced to writing on the demand of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner and, unless it is withdrawn the same day, shall be entered on the Journal with the name of the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner offering it. A dilatory motion may not be entertained by the Speaker.

Withdrawal

2. When a motion is entertained, the Speaker shall state it or cause it to be read aloud by the Clerk before it is debated. The motion then shall be in the possession of the House but may be withdrawn at any time before a decision or amendment thereon.

Question of consideration

3. When a motion or proposition is entertained, the question, “Will the House now consider it?” may not be put unless demanded by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner.

Precedence of motions

4. (a) When a question is under debate, only the following motions may be entertained (which shall have precedence in the following order):

- (1) To adjourn.
- (2) To lay on the table.
- (3) For the previous question.
- (4) To postpone to a day certain.
- (5) To refer.
- (6) To amend.
- (7) To postpone indefinitely.

(b) A motion to adjourn, to lay on the table, or for the previous question shall be decided without debate. A motion to postpone to a day certain, to refer, or to postpone indefinitely, being decided, may not be allowed again on the same day at the same stage of the question.

(c)(1) It shall be in order at any time for the Speaker, in the discretion of the Speaker, to entertain a motion—

(A) that the Speaker be authorized to declare a recess; or

(B) that when the House adjourns it stand adjourned to a day and time certain.

(2) Either motion shall be of equal privilege with the motion to adjourn and shall be decided without debate.

Divisibility

5. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b), a question shall be divided on the demand of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner before the question is put if it includes propositions so distinct in substance that, one being taken away, a substantive proposition remains.

(b)(1) A motion or resolution to elect members to a standing committee of the House, or to a joint standing committee, is not divisible.

(2) A resolution or order reported by the Committee on Rules providing a special order of business is not divisible.

(c) A motion to strike and insert is not divisible, but rejection of a motion to strike does not preclude another motion to amend.

Amendments

6. When an amendable proposition is under consideration, a motion to amend and a motion to amend that amendment shall be in order, and it also shall be in order to offer a further amendment by way of substitute for the original motion to amend, to which one amendment may be offered but which may not be voted on until the original amendment is perfected. An amendment may be withdrawn in the House at any time before a decision or amendment thereon. An amendment to the title of a bill or resolution shall not be in order until after its passage or adoption and shall be decided without debate.

Germaneness

7. No motion or proposition on a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted under color of amendment.

Readings

8. Bills and joint resolutions are subject to readings as follows:

(a) A first reading is in full when the bill or joint resolution is first considered.

(b) A second reading occurs only when the bill or joint resolution is read for amendment in a Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union under clause 5 of rule XVIII.

(c) A third reading precedes passage when the Speaker states the question: “Shall the bill [or joint resolution] be engrossed [when applicable] and read a third time?” If that question is decided in the affirmative, then the bill or joint resolution shall be read the final time by title and then the question shall be put on its passage.

RULE XVII

DECORUM AND DEBATE

Decorum

1. (a) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who desires to speak or deliver a matter to the House shall rise and respectfully address the Speaker and, on being recognized, may address the House from any place on the floor. When invited by the Chair, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may speak from the Clerk’s desk.

(b) Remarks in debate (which may include references to the Senate or its Members) shall be confined to the question under debate, avoiding personality.

Recognition

2. When two or more Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner rise at once, the Speaker shall name the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who is first to speak. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not occupy more than one hour in debate on a question in the House or in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union except as otherwise provided in this rule.

Managing debate

3. (a) The Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who calls up a measure may open and close debate thereon. When general debate extends beyond one day, that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall be entitled to one hour to close without regard to the time used in opening.

(b) Except as provided in paragraph (a), a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not speak more than once to the same question without leave of the House.

(c) A manager of a measure who opposes an amendment thereto is entitled to close controlled debate thereon.

Call to order

4. (a) If a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, in speaking or otherwise, transgresses the Rules of the House, the Speaker shall, or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may, call to order the offending Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, who shall immediately sit down unless permitted on motion of another Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner to explain. If a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner is called to order, the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner making the call to order shall indicate the words excepted to, which shall be taken down in writing at the Clerk's desk and read aloud to the House.

(b) The Speaker shall decide the validity of a call to order. The House, if appealed to, shall decide the question without debate. If the decision is in favor of the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner called to order, the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall be at liberty to proceed, but not otherwise. If the case requires it, an offending Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall be liable to censure or such other punishment as the House may consider proper. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not be held to answer a call to order, and may not be subject to the censure of the House therefor, if further debate or other business has intervened.

Comportment

5. When the Speaker is putting a question or addressing the House, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not walk out of or across the Hall. When a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner is speaking, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not pass between the person speaking and the Chair.

During the session of the House, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not wear a hat or remain by the Clerk's desk during the call of the roll or the counting of ballots. A person on the floor of the House may not smoke or use a mobile electronic device that impairs decorum. The Sergeant-at-Arms is charged with the strict enforcement of this clause.

Exhibits

6. When the use of an exhibit in debate is objected to by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, the Chair, in the discretion of the Chair, may submit the question of its use to the House without debate.

Galleries

7. During a session of the House, it shall not be in order for a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner to introduce to or to bring to the attention of the House an occupant in the galleries of the House. The Speaker may not entertain a request for the suspension of this rule by unanimous consent or otherwise.

Congressional Record

8. (a) The Congressional Record shall be a substantially verbatim account of remarks made during the proceedings of the House, subject only to technical, grammatical, and typographical corrections authorized by the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner making the remarks.

(b) Unparliamentary remarks may be deleted only by permission or order of the House.

(c) This clause establishes a standard of conduct within the meaning of clause 3(a)(2) of rule XI.

Secret sessions

9. When confidential communications are received from the President, or when the Speaker or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner informs the House that such individual has communications that such individual believes ought to be kept secret for the present, the House shall be cleared of all persons except the Members, Delegates, Resident Commissioner, and officers of the House for the reading of such communications, and debates and proceedings thereon, unless otherwise ordered by the House.

RULE XVIII

THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE HOUSE ON THE STATE OF THE UNION

Resolving into the Committee of the Whole

1. Whenever the House resolves into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Speaker shall leave the chair after appointing a Member as Chair to preside. In case of disturbance or disorderly conduct in the galleries or lobby, the Chair may cause the same to be cleared.

2. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b) and in clause 6 of rule XV, the House resolves into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union by motion. When such a motion is entertained, the Speaker shall put the question without debate: “Shall the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for consideration of this matter?”, naming it.

(b) After the House has adopted a resolution reported by the Committee on Rules providing a special order of business for the consideration of a measure in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Speaker may at any time, when no question is pending before the House, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of that measure without intervening motion, unless the special order of business provides otherwise.

Measures requiring initial consideration in the Committee of the Whole

3. All public bills, resolutions, or Senate amendments (as provided in clause 3 of rule XXII) involving a tax or charge on the people, raising revenue, directly or indirectly making appropriations of money or property or requiring such appropriations to be made, authorizing payments out of appropriations already made, releasing any liability to the United States for money or property, or referring a claim to the Court of Claims, shall be first considered in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union. A bill, resolution, or Senate amendment that fails to comply with this clause is subject to a point of order against its consideration.

Order of business

4. (a) Subject to subparagraph (b) business on the calendar of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union may be taken up in regular order, or in such order as the Committee may determine, unless the measure to be considered was determined by the House at the time of resolving into the Committee of the Whole.

(b) Motions to resolve into the Committee of the Whole for consideration of bills and joint resolutions making general appropriations have precedence under this clause.

Reading for amendment

5. (a) Before general debate commences on a measure in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, it shall be read in full. When general debate is concluded or closed by order of the House, the measure under consideration shall be read for amendment. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who offers an amendment shall be allowed five minutes to explain it, after which the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who shall first obtain the floor shall be allowed five minutes to speak in opposition to it. There shall be no further debate thereon, but the same privilege of debate shall be allowed in favor of and against any amendment that may be offered to an amendment. An amendment, or an amendment to an amendment, may be withdrawn by its proponent only by the unanimous consent of the Committee of the Whole.

(b) When a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner offers an amendment in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Clerk shall promptly transmit five copies of the amendment to the majority committee table and five copies to the minority committee table. The Clerk also shall deliver at least one copy of the amendment to the majority cloakroom and at least one copy to the minority cloakroom.

Quorum and voting

6. (a) A quorum of a Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union is 100 Members. The first time that a Committee of the Whole finds itself without a quorum during a day, the Chair shall invoke the procedure for a quorum call set forth in clause 2 of rule XX, unless the Chair elects to invoke an alternate procedure set forth in clause 3 or clause 4(a) of rule XX. If a quorum appears, the Committee of the Whole shall continue its business. If a quorum does not appear, the Committee of the Whole shall rise, and the Chair shall report the names of absentees to the House.

(b)(1) The Chair may refuse to entertain a point of order that a quorum is not present during general debate.

(2) After a quorum has once been established on a day, the Chair may entertain a point of order that a quorum is not present only when the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union is operating under the five-minute rule and the Chair has put the pending proposition to a vote.

(3) Upon sustaining a point of order that a quorum is not present, the Chair may announce that, following a regular quorum call under paragraph (a), the minimum time for electronic voting on the pending question shall be not less than two minutes.

(c) When ordering a quorum call in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Chair may announce an intention to declare that a quorum is constituted at any time during the quorum call when the Chair determines that a quorum has appeared. If the Chair interrupts the quorum call by declaring that a quorum is constituted, proceedings under the quorum call shall be considered as vacated, and the Committee of the Whole shall continue its sitting and resume its business.

(d) A quorum is not required in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for adoption of a motion that the Committee rise.

(e) In the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Chair shall order a recorded vote on a request supported by at least 25 Members.

(f) In the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Chair may reduce to not less than two minutes the minimum time for electronic voting without any intervening business or debate on any or all pending amendments after a record vote has been taken on the first pending amendment.

(g) The Chair may postpone a request for a recorded vote on any amendment. The Chair may resume proceedings on a postponed request at any time. The Chair may reduce to not less than two minutes the minimum time for electronic voting—

(1) on any postponed question that follows another electronic vote without intervening business, provided that the minimum time for electronic voting on the first in any series of questions shall be 15 minutes; or

(2) on any postponed question taken without intervening debate or motion after the Committee of the Whole resumes its sitting if in the discretion of the Chair Members would be afforded an adequate opportunity to vote.

Dispensing with the reading of an amendment

7. It shall be in order in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union to move that the Committee of the Whole dispense with the reading of an amendment that has been printed in the bill or resolution as reported by a committee, or an amendment that a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner has caused to be printed in the Congressional Record. Such a motion shall be decided without debate.

Closing debate

8. (a) Subject to paragraph (b) at any time after the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union has begun five-minute debate on amendments to any portion of a bill or resolution, it shall be in order to move that the Committee of the Whole close all debate on that portion of the bill or resolution or on the pending amendments only. Such a motion shall be decided without debate. The adoption of such a motion does not preclude further amendment, to be decided without debate.

(b) If the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union closes debate on any portion of a bill or resolution before there has been debate on an amendment that a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner has caused to be printed in the Congressional Record at least one day before its consideration, the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who caused the amendment to be printed in the Record shall be allowed five minutes to explain it, after which the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who shall first obtain the floor shall be allowed five minutes to speak in opposition to it. There shall be no further debate thereon.

(c) Material submitted for printing in the Congressional Record under this clause shall indicate the full text of the proposed amendment, the name of the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner proposing it, the number of the bill or resolution to which it will be offered, and the point in the bill or resolution or amendment thereto where the amendment is intended to be offered. The amendment shall appear in a portion of the Record designated for that purpose. Amendments to a specified measure submitted for printing in that portion of the Record shall be numbered in the order printed.

Striking the enacting clause

9. A motion that the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union rise and report a bill or resolution to the House with the recommendation that the enacting or resolving clause be stricken shall have precedence of a motion to amend, and, if carried in the House, shall constitute a rejection of the bill or resolution. Whenever a bill or resolution is reported from the Committee of the Whole with such adverse recommendation and the recommendation is rejected by the House, the bill or resolution shall stand recommitted to the Committee of the Whole without further action by the House. Before the question of concurrence is submitted, it shall be in order to move that the House refer the bill or resolution to a committee, with or without instructions. If a bill or resolution is so referred, then when it is again reported to the House it shall be referred to the Committee of the Whole without debate.

Concurrent resolution on the budget

10. (a) At the conclusion of general debate in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union on a concurrent resolution on the budget under section 305(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the concurrent resolution shall be considered as read for amendment.

(b) It shall not be in order in the House or in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union to consider an amendment to a concurrent resolution on the budget, or an amendment thereto, unless the concurrent resolution, as amended by such amendment or amendments—

(1) would be mathematically consistent except as limited by paragraph (c); and

(2) would contain all the matter set forth in paragraphs (1) through (5) of section 301(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

(c)(1) Except as specified in subparagraph (2), it shall not be in order in the House or in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union to consider an amendment to a concurrent resolution on the budget, or an amendment thereto, that proposes to change the amount of the appropriate level of the public debt set forth in the concurrent resolution, as reported.

(2) Amendments to achieve mathematical consistency under section 305(a)(5) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, if offered by direction of the Committee on the Budget, may propose to adjust the amount of the appropriate level of the public debt set forth in the concurrent resolution, as reported, to reflect changes made in other figures contained in the concurrent resolution.

Applicability of Rules of the House

11. The Rules of the House are the rules of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union so far as applicable.

RULE XIX

MOTIONS FOLLOWING THE AMENDMENT STAGE

Previous question

1. (a) There shall be a motion for the previous question, which, being ordered, shall have the effect of cutting off all debate and bringing the House to a direct vote on the immediate question or questions on which it has been ordered. Whenever the previous question has been ordered on an otherwise debatable question on which there has been no debate, it shall be in order to debate that question for 40 minutes, equally divided and controlled by a proponent of the question and an opponent. The previous question may be moved and ordered on a single question, on a series of questions allowable under the rules, or on an amendment or amendments, or may embrace all authorized motions or amendments and include the bill or resolution to its passage, adoption, or rejection.

(b) Incidental questions of order arising during the pendency of a motion for the previous question shall be decided, whether on appeal or otherwise, without debate.

(c) Notwithstanding paragraph (a), when the previous question is operating to adoption or passage of a measure pursuant to a special order of business, the Chair may postpone further consideration of such measure in the House to such time as may be designated by the Speaker.

Recommit

2. (a) After the previous question has been ordered on passage or adoption of a measure, or pending a motion to that end, it shall be in order to move that the House recommit (or commit, as the case may be) the measure, with or without instructions, to a standing or select committee. For such a motion to recommit, the Speaker shall give preference in recognition to a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who is opposed to the measure.

(b)(1) Except as provided in paragraph (c), a motion that the House recommit a bill or joint resolution on which the previous question has been ordered to passage shall be debatable for 10 minutes equally divided between the proponent and an opponent.

(2) A motion to recommit a bill or joint resolution may include instructions only in the form of a direction to report an amendment or amendments back to the House forthwith.

(c) On demand of the floor manager for the majority, it shall be in order to debate the motion for one hour equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent.

Reconsideration

3. When a motion has been carried or lost, it shall be in order on the same or succeeding day for a Member on the prevailing side of the question to enter a motion for the reconsideration thereof. The entry of such a motion shall take precedence over all other questions except the consideration of a conference report or a motion to adjourn, and may not be withdrawn after such succeeding day without the consent of the House. Once entered, a motion may be called up for consideration by any Member. During the last six days of a session of Congress, such a motion shall be disposed of when entered.

4. A bill, petition, memorial, or resolution referred to a committee, or reported therefrom for printing and recommitment, may not be brought back to the House on a motion to reconsider.

RULE XX

VOTING AND QUORUM CALLS

1. (a) The House shall divide after the Speaker has put a question to a vote by voice as provided in clause 6 of rule I if the Speaker is in doubt or division is demanded. Those in favor of the question shall first rise from their seats to be counted, and then those opposed.

(b) If a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner requests a recorded vote, and that request is supported by at least one-fifth of a quorum, the vote shall be taken by electronic device unless the Speaker invokes another procedure for recording votes provided in this rule. A recorded vote taken in the House under this paragraph shall be considered a vote by the yeas and nays.

(c) In case of a tie vote, a question shall be lost.

2. (a) Unless the Speaker directs otherwise, the Clerk shall conduct a record vote or quorum call by electronic device. In such a case the Clerk shall enter on the Journal and publish in the Congressional Record, in alphabetical order in each category, the names of Members recorded as voting in the affirmative, the names of Members recorded as voting in the negative, and the names of Members answering present as if they had been called in the manner provided in clause 3. Except as otherwise permitted under clause 8 or 9 of this rule or under clause 6 of rule XVIII, the minimum time for a record vote or quorum call by electronic device shall be 15 minutes.

(b) When the electronic voting system is inoperable or is not used, the Speaker or Chair may direct the Clerk to conduct a record vote or quorum call as provided in clause 3 or 4.

3. The Speaker may direct the Clerk to conduct a record vote or quorum call by call of the roll. In such a case the Clerk shall call the names of Members, alphabetically by surname. When two or more have the same surname, the name of the State (and, if necessary to distinguish among Members from the same State, the given names of the Members) shall be added. After the roll has been called once, the Clerk shall call the names of those not recorded, alphabetically by surname. Members appearing after the second call, but before the result is announced, may vote or announce a pair.

4. (a) The Speaker may direct a record vote or quorum call to be conducted by tellers. In such a case the tellers named by the Speaker shall record the names of the Members voting on each side of the question or record their presence, as the case may be, which the Clerk shall enter on the Journal and publish in the Congressional Record. Absentees shall be noted, but the doors may not be closed except when ordered by the Speaker. The minimum time for a record vote or quorum call by tellers shall be 15 minutes.

(b) On the demand of a Member, or at the suggestion of the Speaker, the names of Members sufficient to make a quorum in the Hall of the House who do not vote shall be noted by the Clerk, entered on the Journal, reported to the Speaker with the names of the Members voting, and be counted and announced in determining the presence of a quorum to do business.

5. (a) In the absence of a quorum, a majority comprising at least 15 Members, which may include the Speaker, may compel the attendance of absent Members.

(b) Subject to clause 7(b) a majority described in paragraph (a) may order the Sergeant-at-Arms to send officers appointed by the Sergeant-at-Arms to arrest those Members for whom no sufficient excuse is made and shall secure and retain their attendance. The House shall determine on what condition they shall be discharged. Unless the House otherwise directs, the Members who voluntarily appear shall be admitted immediately to the Hall of the House and shall report their names to the Clerk to be entered on the Journal as present.

(c)(1) If the House should be without a quorum due to catastrophic circumstances, then—

(A) until there appear in the House a sufficient number of Representatives to constitute a quorum among the whole number of the House, a quorum in the House shall be determined based upon the provisional number of the House; and

(B) the provisional number of the House, as of the close of the call of the House described in subparagraph (3)(C), shall be the number of Representatives responding to that call of the House.

(2) If a Representative counted in determining the provisional number of the House thereafter ceases to be a Representative, or if a Representative not counted in determining the provisional number of the House thereafter appears in the House, the provisional number of the House shall be adjusted accordingly.

(3) For the purposes of subparagraph (1), the House shall be considered to be without a quorum due to catastrophic circumstances if, after a motion under paragraph (a) has been disposed of and without intervening adjournment, each of the following occurs in the stated sequence:

(A) A call of the House (or a series of calls of the House) is closed after aggregating a period in excess of 72 hours (excluding time the House is in recess) without producing a quorum.

(B) The Speaker—

(i) with the Majority Leader and the Minority Leader (or their respective designees), receives from the Sergeant-at-Arms (or a designee) a catastrophic quorum failure report, as described in subparagraph (4);

(ii) consults with the Majority Leader and the Minority Leader (or their respective designees) on the content of that report; and

(iii) announces the content of that report to the House.

(C) A further call of the House (or a series of calls of the House) is closed after aggregating a period in excess of 24 hours (excluding time the House is in recess) without producing a quorum.

(4)(A) For purposes of subparagraph (3), a catastrophic quorum failure report is a report advising that the inability of the House to establish a quorum is attributable to catastrophic circumstances involving natural disaster, attack, contagion, or similar calamity rendering Representatives incapable of attending the proceedings of the House.

(B) Such report shall specify the following:

(i) The number of vacancies in the House and the names of former Representatives whose seats are vacant.

(ii) The names of Representatives considered incapacitated.

(iii) The names of Representatives not incapacitated but otherwise incapable of attending the proceedings of the House.

(iv) The names of Representatives unaccounted for.

(C) Such report shall be prepared on the basis of the most authoritative information available after consultation with the Attending Physician to the Congress and the Clerk (or their respective designees) and pertinent public health and law enforcement officials.

(D) Such report shall be updated every legislative day for the duration of any proceedings under or in reliance on this paragraph. The Speaker shall make such updates available to the House.

(5) An announcement by the Speaker under subparagraph (3)(B)(iii) shall not be subject to appeal.

(6) Subparagraph (1) does not apply to a proposal to create a vacancy in the representation from any State in respect of a Representative not incapacitated but otherwise incapable of attending the proceedings of the House.

(7) For purposes of this paragraph:

(A) The term “provisional number of the House” means the number of Representatives upon which a quorum will be computed in the House until Representatives sufficient in number to constitute a quorum among the whole number of the House appear in the House.

(B) The term “whole number of the House” means the number of Representatives chosen, sworn, and living whose membership in the House has not been terminated by resignation or by the action of the House.

(d) Upon the death, resignation, expulsion, disqualification, removal, or swearing of a Member, the whole number of the House shall be adjusted accordingly. The Speaker shall announce the adjustment to the House. Such an announcement shall not be subject to appeal. In the case of a death, the Speaker may lay before the House such documentation from Federal, State, or local officials as the Speaker deems pertinent.

6. (a) When a quorum fails to vote on a question, a quorum is not present, and objection is made for that cause (unless the House shall adjourn)—

(1) there shall be a call of the House;

(2) the Sergeant-at-Arms shall proceed forthwith to bring in absent Members; and

(3) the yeas and nays on the pending question shall at the same time be considered as ordered.

(b) The Clerk shall record Members by the yeas and nays on the pending question, using such procedure as the Speaker may invoke under clause 2, 3, or 4. Each Member arrested under this clause shall be brought by the Sergeant-at-Arms before the House, whereupon the Member shall be noted as present, discharged from arrest, and given an opportunity to vote; and such vote shall be recorded. If those voting on the question and those who are present and decline to vote together make a majority of the House, the Speaker shall declare that a quorum is constituted, and the pending question shall be decided as the requisite majority of those voting shall have determined. Thereupon further proceedings under the call shall be considered as dispensed with.

(c) At any time after Members have had the requisite opportunity to respond by the yeas and nays ordered under this clause, but before a result has been announced, a motion that the House adjourn shall be in order if seconded by a majority of those present, to be ascertained by actual count by the Speaker. If the House adjourns on such a motion, all proceedings under this clause shall be considered as vacated.

7. (a) The Speaker may not entertain a point of order that a quorum is not present unless a question has been put to a vote.

(b) Subject to paragraph (c) the Speaker may recognize a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner to move a call of the House at any time. When a quorum is established pursuant to a call of the House, further proceedings under the call shall be considered as dispensed with unless the Speaker recognizes for a motion to compel attendance of Members under clause 5(b).

(c) A call of the House shall not be in order after the previous question is ordered unless the Speaker determines by actual count that a quorum is not present.

Postponement of proceedings

8. (a)(1) When a recorded vote is ordered, or the yeas and nays are ordered, or a vote is objected to under clause 6—

(A) on any of the questions specified in subparagraph (2), the Speaker may postpone further proceedings to a designated place in the legislative schedule within two additional legislative days; and

(B) on the question of agreeing to the Speaker's approval of the Journal, the Speaker may postpone further proceedings to a designated place in the legislative schedule on that legislative day.

(2) The questions described in subparagraph (1) are as follows:

(A) The question of passing a bill or joint resolution.

(B) The question of adopting a resolution or concurrent resolution.

(C) The question of agreeing to a motion to instruct managers on the part of the House (except that proceedings may not resume on such a motion under clause 7(c) of rule XXII if the managers have filed a report in the House).

(D) The question of agreeing to a conference report.

(E) The question of ordering the previous question on a question described in subdivision (A), (B), (C), or (D).

(F) The question of agreeing to a motion to suspend the rules.

(G) The question of agreeing to a motion to reconsider or the question of agreeing to a motion to lay on the table a motion to reconsider.

(H) The question of agreeing to an amendment reported from the Committee of the Whole.

(b) At the time designated by the Speaker for further proceedings on questions postponed under paragraph (a),

the Speaker shall resume proceedings on each postponed question.

(c) The Speaker may reduce to five minutes the minimum time for electronic voting on a question postponed under this clause, or on a question incidental thereto, that—

(1) follows another electronic vote without intervening business, so long as the minimum time for electronic voting on the first in any series of questions is 15 minutes; or

(2) follows a report from the Committee of the Whole without intervening debate or motion if in the discretion of the Speaker Members would be afforded an adequate opportunity to vote.

(d) If the House adjourns on a legislative day designated for further proceedings on questions postponed under this clause without disposing of such questions, then on the next legislative day the unfinished business is the disposition of such questions.

Five-minute votes

9. The Speaker may reduce to five minutes the minimum time for electronic voting—

(a) on any question arising without intervening business after an electronic vote on another question if notice of possible five-minute voting for a given series of votes was issued before the preceding electronic vote;

(b) on any question arising after a report from the Committee of the Whole without debate or intervening motion; or

(c) on the question of adoption of a motion to recommit (or ordering the previous question thereon) arising without intervening motion or debate other than debate on the motion.

Automatic yeas and nays

10. The yeas and nays shall be considered as ordered when the Speaker puts the question on passage of a bill or joint resolution, or on adoption of a conference report, making general appropriations, or increasing Federal income tax rates (within the meaning of clause 5 of rule XXI), or on final adoption of a concurrent resolution on the budget or conference report thereon.

Ballot votes

11. In a case of ballot for election, a majority of the votes shall be necessary to an election. When there is not such a majority on the first ballot, the process shall be repeated until a majority is obtained. In all balloting blanks shall be rejected, may not be counted in the enumeration of votes, and may not be reported by the tellers.

RULE XXI

RESTRICTIONS ON CERTAIN BILLS

Reservation of certain points of order

1. At the time a general appropriation bill is reported, all points of order against provisions therein shall be considered as reserved.

General appropriation bills and amendments

2. (a)(1) An appropriation may not be reported in a general appropriation bill, and may not be in order as an amendment thereto, for an expenditure not previously authorized by law, except to continue appropriations for public works and objects that are already in progress.

(2) A reappropriation of unexpended balances of appropriations may not be reported in a general appropriation bill, and may not be in order as an amendment thereto, except to continue appropriations for public works and objects that are already in progress. This subparagraph does not apply to transfers of unexpended balances within the department or agency for which they were originally appropriated that are reported by the Committee on Appropriations.

(b) A provision changing existing law may not be reported in a general appropriation bill, including a provision making the availability of funds contingent on the receipt or possession of information not required by existing law for the period of the appropriation, except germane provisions that retrench expenditures by the reduction of amounts of money covered by the bill (which may include those recommended to the Committee on Appropriations by direction of a legislative committee having jurisdiction over the subject matter) and except rescissions of appropriations contained in appropriation Acts.

(c) An amendment to a general appropriation bill shall not be in order if changing existing law, including an amendment making the availability of funds contingent on the receipt or possession of information not required by existing law for the period of the appropriation. Except as provided in paragraph (d), an amendment proposing a limitation not specifically contained or authorized in existing law for the period of the limitation shall not be in order during consideration of a general appropriation bill.

(d) After a general appropriation bill has been read for amendment, a motion that the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted shall, if offered by the Majority Leader or a designee, have precedence over motions to amend the bill. If such a motion to rise and report is rejected or not offered, amendments proposing limitations not specifically contained or authorized in existing law for the period of the limitation or proposing germane amendments that retrench expenditures by reductions of amounts of money covered by the bill may be considered.

(e) A provision other than an appropriation designated an emergency under section 251(b)(2) or section 252(e) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act, a rescission of budget authority, or a reduction in direct spending or an amount for a designated emergency may not be reported in an appropriation bill or joint resolution containing an emergency designation under section 251(b)(2) or section 252(e) of such Act and may not be in order as an amendment thereto.

(f) During the reading of an appropriation bill for amendment in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, it shall be in order to consider en bloc amendments proposing only to transfer appropriations among objects in the bill without increasing the levels of budget authority or outlays in the bill. When considered en bloc under this paragraph, such amendments may amend portions of the bill not yet read for amendment (following disposition of any points of order against such portions) and are not subject to a demand for division of the question in the House or in the Committee of the Whole.

3. It shall not be in order to consider a general appropriation bill or joint resolution, or conference report thereon, that—

(a) provides spending authority derived from receipts deposited in the Highway Trust Fund (excluding any transfers from the General Fund of the Treasury); or

(b) reduces or otherwise limits the accruing balances of the Highway Trust Fund, for any purpose other than for those activities authorized for the highway or mass transit categories.

Appropriations on legislative bills

4. A bill or joint resolution carrying an appropriation may not be reported by a committee not having jurisdiction to report appropriations, and an amendment proposing an appropriation shall not be in order during the consideration of a bill or joint resolution reported by a committee not having that jurisdiction. A point of order against an appropriation in such a bill, joint resolution, or amendment thereto may be raised at any time during pendency of that measure for amendment.

Tax and tariff measures and amendments

5. (a)(1) A bill or joint resolution carrying a tax or tariff measure may not be reported by a committee not having jurisdiction to report tax or tariff measures, and an amendment in the House or proposed by the Senate carrying a tax or tariff measure shall not be in order during the consideration of a bill or joint resolution reported by a committee not having that jurisdiction. A point of order against a tax or tariff measure in such a bill, joint resolution, or amendment thereto may be raised at any time during pendency of that measure for amendment.

(2) For purposes of paragraph (1), a tax or tariff measure includes an amendment proposing a limitation on funds in a general appropriation bill for the administration of a tax or tariff.

Passage of tax rate increases

(b) A bill or joint resolution, amendment, or conference report carrying a Federal income tax rate increase may not be considered as passed or agreed to unless so determined by a vote of not less than three-fifths of the Members voting, a quorum being present. In this paragraph the term “Federal income tax rate increase” means any amendment to subsection (a), (b), (c), (d), or (e) of section 1, or to section 11(b) or 55(b), of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, that imposes a new percentage as a rate of tax and thereby increases the amount of tax imposed by any such section.

Consideration of retroactive tax rate increases

(c) It shall not be in order to consider a bill, joint resolution, amendment, or conference report carrying a retroactive Federal income tax rate increase. In this paragraph—

(1) the term “Federal income tax rate increase” means any amendment to subsection (a), (b), (c), (d), or (e) of section 1, or to section 11(b) or 55(b), of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, that imposes a new percentage as a rate of tax and thereby increases the amount of tax imposed by any such section; and

(2) a Federal income tax rate increase is retroactive if it applies to a period beginning before the enactment of the provision.

Designation of public works

6. It shall not be in order to consider a bill, joint resolution, amendment, or conference report that provides for the designation or redesignation of a public work in honor of an individual then serving as a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or Senator.

7. It shall not be in order to consider a concurrent resolution on the budget, or an amendment thereto, or a conference report thereon that contains reconciliation directives under section 310 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 that specify changes in law such that the reconciliation legislation reported pursuant to such directives would cause an increase in net direct spending (as such term is defined in clause 10) for the period covered by such concurrent resolution.

8. With respect to measures considered pursuant to a special order of business, points of order under title III of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 shall operate without regard to whether the measure concerned has been reported from committee. Such points of order shall operate with respect to (as the case may be)—

(a) the form of a measure recommended by the reporting committee where the statute uses the term “as reported” (in the case of a measure that has been so reported);

(b) the form of the measure made in order as an original bill or joint resolution for the purpose of amendment; or

(c) the form of the measure on which the previous question is ordered directly to passage.

9. (a) It shall not be in order to consider—

(1) a bill or joint resolution reported by a committee unless the report includes a list of congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, and limited tariff benefits in the bill or in the report (and the name of any Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who submitted a request to the committee for each respective item included in such list) or a statement that the proposition contains no congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits;

(2) a bill or joint resolution not reported by a committee unless the chair of each committee of initial referral has caused a list of congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, and limited tariff benefits in the bill (and the name of any Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who submitted a request to the committee for each respective item included in such list) or a statement that the proposition contains no congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited

tariff benefits to be printed in the Congressional Record prior to its consideration;

(3) an amendment to a bill or joint resolution to be offered at the outset of its consideration for amendment by a member of a committee of initial referral as designated in a report of the Committee on Rules to accompany a resolution prescribing a special order of business unless the proponent has caused a list of congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, and limited tariff benefits in the amendment (and the name of any Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who submitted a request to the proponent for each respective item included in such list) or a statement that the proposition contains no congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits to be printed in the Congressional Record prior to its consideration; or

(4) a conference report to accompany a bill or joint resolution unless the joint explanatory statement prepared by the managers on the part of the House and the managers on the part of the Senate includes a list of congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, and limited tariff benefits in the conference report or joint statement (and the name of any Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or Senator who submitted a request to the House or Senate committees of jurisdiction for each respective item included in such list) or a statement that the proposition contains no congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits.

(b) It shall not be in order to consider a conference report to accompany a regular general appropriation bill unless the joint explanatory statement prepared by the managers on the part of the House and the managers on the part of the Senate includes—

(1) a list of congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, and limited tariff benefits in the conference report or joint statement (and the name of any Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or Senator who submitted a request to the House or Senate committees of jurisdiction for each respective item included in such list) that were neither committed to the conference committee by either House nor in a report of a committee of either House on such bill or on a companion measure; or

(2) a statement that the proposition contains no such congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits.

(c) It shall not be in order to consider a rule or order that waives the application of paragraph (a) or (b). As disposition of a point of order under this paragraph or paragraph (b), the Chair shall put the question of consideration with respect to the rule or order or conference report, as applicable. The question of consideration shall be debatable for 10 minutes by the Member initiating the point of order and for 10 minutes by an opponent, but shall otherwise be decided without intervening motion except one that the House adjourn.

(d) In order to be cognizable by the Chair, a point of order raised under paragraph (a) may be based only on the failure of a report, submission to the Congressional Record, or joint explanatory statement to include a list required by paragraph (a) or a statement that the proposition contains no congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits.

(e) For the purpose of this clause, the term “congressional earmark” means a provision or report language included primarily at the request of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or Senator providing, authorizing or recommending a specific amount of discretionary budget authority, credit authority, or other spending authority for a contract, loan, loan guarantee, grant, loan authority, or other expenditure with or to an entity, or targeted to a specific State, locality or Congressional district, other than through a statutory or administrative formula-driven or competitive award process.

(f) For the purpose of this clause, the term “limited tax benefit” means—

(1) any revenue-losing provision that—

(A) provides a Federal tax deduction, credit, exclusion, or preference to 10 or fewer beneficiaries under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, and

(B) contains eligibility criteria that are not uniform in application with respect to potential beneficiaries of such provision; or

(2) any Federal tax provision which provides one beneficiary temporary or permanent transition relief from a change to the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(g) For the purpose of this clause, the term “limited tariff benefit” means a provision modifying the Harmonized Tariff Schedule of the United States in a manner that benefits 10 or fewer entities.

10. (a)(1) Except as provided in paragraphs (b) and (c), it shall not be in order to consider a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment thereto or a conference report thereon, if the provisions of such measure have the net effect of increasing mandatory spending for the period of either—

(A) the current year, the budget year, and the four fiscal years following that budget year; or

(B) the current year, the budget year, and the nine fiscal years following that budget year.

(2) For the purpose of this clause, the terms “budget year” and “current year” have the meanings specified in section 250 of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, and the term “mandatory spending” has the meaning of “direct spending” specified in such section 250 except that such term shall also include provisions in appropriation Acts that make outyear modifications to substantive law as described in section 3(4)(C) of the Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010.

(b) If a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment thereto, is considered pursuant to a special order of the House directing the Clerk to add as new matter at the end of such bill or joint resolution the entire text of a separate measure or measures as passed by the House, the new matter proposed to be added shall be included in the evaluation under paragraph (a) of the bill, joint resolution, or amendment.

(c)(1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2), the evaluation under paragraph (a) shall exclude a provision expressly designated as an emergency for the Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010, in the case of a point of order under this clause against consideration of—

(A) a bill or joint resolution;

(B) an amendment made in order as original text by a special order of business;

(C) a conference report; or

(D) an amendment between the Houses.

(2) In the case of an amendment (other than one specified in subparagraph (1)) to a bill or joint resolution, the evaluation under paragraph (a) shall give no cognizance to any designation of emergency.

11. It shall not be in order to consider a bill or joint resolution which has not been reported by a committee until the third calendar day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, or legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) on which such measure has been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner.

RULE XXII

HOUSE AND SENATE RELATIONS

Senate amendments

1. A motion to disagree to Senate amendments to a House proposition and to request or agree to a conference with the Senate, or a motion to insist on House amendments to a Senate proposition and to request or agree to a conference with the Senate, shall be privileged in the discretion of the Speaker if offered by direction of the primary committee and of all reporting committees that had initial referral of the proposition.

2. A motion to dispose of House bills with Senate amendments not requiring consideration in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union shall be privileged.

3. Except as permitted by clause 1, before the stage of disagreement, a Senate amendment to a House bill or resolution shall be subject to the point of order that it must first be considered in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union if, originating in the House, it would be subject to such a point under clause 3 of rule XVIII.

4. When the stage of disagreement has been reached on a bill or resolution with House or Senate amendments, a motion to dispose of any amendment shall be privileged.

5. (a) Managers on the part of the House may not agree to a Senate amendment described in paragraph (b) unless specific authority to agree to the amendment first is given by the House by a separate vote with respect thereto. If specific authority is not granted, the Senate amendment shall be reported in disagreement by the conference committee back to the two Houses for disposition by separate motion.

(b) The managers on the part of the House may not agree to a Senate amendment described in paragraph (a) that—

(1) would violate clause 2(a)(1) or (c) of rule XXI if originating in the House; or

(2) proposes an appropriation on a bill other than a general appropriation bill.

6. A Senate amendment carrying a tax or tariff measure in violation of clause 5(a) of rule XXI may not be agreed to.

Conference reports; amendments reported in disagreement

7. (a) The presentation of a conference report shall be in order at any time except during a reading of the Journal or the conduct of a record vote, a vote by division, or a quorum call.

(b)(1) Subject to subparagraph (2) the time allotted for debate on a motion to instruct managers on the part of the House shall be equally divided between the majority and minority parties.

(2) If the proponent of a motion to instruct managers on the part of the House and the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner of the other party identified under subparagraph (1) both support the motion, one-third of the time for debate thereon shall be allotted to a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who opposes the motion on demand of that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner.

(c)(1) A motion to instruct managers on the part of the House, or a motion to discharge all managers on the part of the House and to appoint new conferees, shall be privileged after a conference committee has been appointed for 20 calendar days and 10 legislative days without making a report, but only on the day after the calendar day on which the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner offering the motion announces to the House intention to do so and the form of the motion.

(2) The Speaker may designate a time in the legislative schedule on that legislative day for consideration of a motion described in subparagraph (1).

(3) During the last six days of a session of Congress, a motion under subparagraph (1) shall be privileged after a conference committee has been appointed for 36 hours without making a report and the proponent meets the notice requirement in subparagraph (1).

(d) Instructions to conferees in a motion to instruct or in a motion to recommit to conference may not include argument.

(e) Each conference report to the House shall be printed as a report of the House. Each such report shall be accompanied by a joint explanatory statement prepared jointly by the managers on the part of the House and the managers on the part of the Senate. The joint explanatory statement shall be sufficiently detailed and explicit to inform the House of the effects of the report on the matters committed to conference.

8. (a)(1) Except as specified in subparagraph (2), it shall not be in order to consider a conference report until

(A) the third calendar day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, or legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) on which the conference report and the accompanying joint explanatory statement have been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner in the Congressional Record or pursuant to clause 3 of rule XXIX; and

(B) printed or electronic copies of the conference report and the accompanying joint explanatory statement have been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner for at least two hours.

(2) Subparagraph (1)(A) does not apply during the last six days of a session of Congress.

(b)(1) Except as specified in subparagraph (2), it shall not be in order to consider a motion to dispose of a Senate amendment reported in disagreement by a conference committee until—

(A) the third calendar day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, or legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) on which the report in disagreement and any accompanying statement have been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner in the Congressional Record; and

(B) copies of the report in disagreement and any accompanying statement, together with the text of the Senate amendment, have been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner for at least two hours.

(2) Subparagraph (1)(A) does not apply during the last six days of a session of Congress.

(3) During consideration of a Senate amendment reported in disagreement by a conference committee on a general appropriation bill, a motion to insist on disagreement to the Senate amendment shall be preferential to any other motion to dispose of that amendment if the original motion offered by the floor manager proposes to change existing law and the motion to insist is offered before debate on the original motion by the chair of the committee having jurisdiction of the subject matter of the amendment or a designee. Such a preferential motion shall be separately debatable for one hour equally divided between its proponent and the proponent of the original motion. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the preferential motion to its adoption without intervening motion.

(c) A conference report or a Senate amendment reported in disagreement by a conference committee that has been available as provided in paragraph (a) or (b) shall be considered as read when called up.

(d)(1) Subject to subparagraph (2), the time allotted for debate on a conference report or on a motion to dispose of a Senate amendment reported in disagreement by a conference committee shall be equally divided between the majority and minority parties.

(2) If the floor manager for the majority and the floor manager for the minority both support the conference report or motion, one-third of the time for debate thereon shall be allotted to a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who opposes the conference report or motion on demand of that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner.

(e) Under clause 6(a)(2) of rule XIII, a resolution proposing only to waive a requirement of this clause concerning the availability of reports to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner may be considered by the House on the same day it is reported by the Committee on Rules.

9. Whenever a disagreement to an amendment has been committed to a conference committee, the managers on the part of the House may propose a substitute that is a germane modification of the matter in disagreement. The introduction of any language presenting specific additional matter not committed to the conference committee by either House does not constitute a germane modification of the matter in disagreement. Moreover, a conference report may not include matter not committed to the conference committee by either House and may not include a modification of specific matter committed to the conference committee by either or both Houses if that modification is beyond the scope of that specific matter as committed to the conference committee.

10. (a)(1) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may raise a point of order against nongermane matter, as specified in subparagraph (2), before the commencement of debate on—

(A) a conference report;

(B) a motion that the House recede from its disagreement to a Senate amendment reported in disagreement by a conference committee and concur therein, with or without amendment; or

(C) a motion that the House recede from its disagreement to a Senate amendment on which the stage of disagreement has been reached and concur therein, with or without amendment.

(2) A point of order against nongermane matter is one asserting that a proposition described in subparagraph (1) contains specified matter that would violate clause 7 of rule XVI if it were offered in the House as an amendment to the underlying measure in the form it was passed by the House.

(b) If a point of order under paragraph (a) is sustained, a motion that the House reject the nongermane matter identified by the point of order shall be privileged. Such a motion is debatable for 40 minutes, one-half in favor of the motion and one-half in opposition thereto.

(c) After disposition of a point of order under paragraph (a) or a motion to reject under paragraph (b), any further points of order under paragraph (a) not covered by a previous point of order, and any consequent motions to reject under paragraph (b), shall be likewise disposed of.

(d)(1) If a motion to reject under paragraph (b) is adopted, then after disposition of all points of order under paragraph (a) and any consequent motions to reject under paragraph (b), the conference report or motion, as the case may be, shall be considered as rejected and the matter remaining in disagreement shall be disposed of under subparagraph (2) or (3), as the case may be.

(2) After the House has adopted one or more motions to reject nongermane matter contained in a conference report under the preceding provisions of this clause—

(A) if the conference report accompanied a House measure amended by the Senate, the pending question shall be whether the House shall recede and concur in the Senate amendment with an amendment consisting of so much of the conference report as was not rejected; and

(B) if the conference report accompanied a Senate measure amended by the House, the pending question shall be whether the House shall insist further on the House amendment.

(3) After the House has adopted one or more motions to reject nongermane matter contained in a motion that the House recede and concur in a Senate amendment, with or without amendment, the following motions shall be privileged and shall have precedence in the order stated:

(A) A motion that the House recede and concur in the Senate amendment with an amendment in writing then available on the floor.

(B) A motion that the House insist on its disagreement to the Senate amendment and request a further conference with the Senate.

(C) A motion that the House insist on its disagreement to the Senate amendment.

(e) If, on a division of the question on a motion described in paragraph (a)(1)(B) or (C), the House agrees to recede, then a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may raise a point of order against nongermane matter, as specified in paragraph (a)(2), before the commencement of debate on concurring in the Senate amendment, with or without amendment. A point of order under this paragraph shall be disposed of according to the preceding provisions of this clause in the same manner as a point of order under paragraph (a).

11. It shall not be in order to consider a conference report to accompany a bill or joint resolution that proposes to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 unless—

(a) the joint explanatory statement of the managers includes a tax complexity analysis prepared by the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation in accordance with section 4022(b) of the Internal Revenue Service Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998; or

(b) the chair of the Committee on Ways and Means causes such a tax complexity analysis to be printed in the Congressional Record before consideration of the conference report.

12. (a)(1) Subject to subparagraph (2), a meeting of each conference committee shall be open to the public.

(2) In open session of the House, a motion that managers on the part of the House be permitted to close to the public a meeting or meetings of their conference committee shall be privileged, shall be decided without debate, and shall be decided by the yeas and nays.

(3) In conducting conferences with the Senate, managers on the part of the House should endeavor to ensure—

(A) that meetings for the resolution of differences between the two Houses occur only under circumstances in which every manager on the part of the House has notice of the meeting and a reasonable opportunity to attend;

(B) that all provisions on which the two Houses disagree are considered as open to discussion at any meeting of a conference committee; and

(C) that papers reflecting a conference agreement are held inviolate to change without renewal of the opportunity of all managers on the part of the House to reconsider their decisions to sign or not to sign the agreement.

(4) Managers on the part of the House shall be provided a unitary time and place with access to at least one complete copy of the final conference agreement for the purpose of recording their approval (or not) of the final conference agreement by placing their signatures (or not) on the sheets prepared to accompany the conference report and joint explanatory statement of the managers.

(b) A point of order that a conference committee failed to comply with paragraph (a) may be raised immediately after the conference report is read or considered as read. If such a point of order is sustained, the conference report shall be considered as rejected, the House shall be considered to have insisted on its amendments or on disagreement to the Senate amendments, as the case may be, and to have requested a further conference with the Senate, and the Speaker may appoint new conferees without intervening motion.

13. It shall not be in order to consider a conference report the text of which differs in any way, other than clerical, from the text that reflects the action of the conferees on all of the differences between the two Houses, as recorded by their placement of their signatures (or not) on the sheets prepared to accompany the conference report and joint explanatory statement of the managers.

RULE XXIII

CODE OF OFFICIAL CONDUCT

There is hereby established by and for the House the following code of conduct, to be known as the “Code of Official Conduct”:

1. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall behave at all times in a manner that shall reflect creditably on the House.

2. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall adhere to the spirit and the letter of the Rules of the House and to the rules of duly constituted committees thereof.

3. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not receive compensation and may not permit compensation to accrue to the beneficial interest of such individual from any source, the receipt of which would occur by virtue of influence improperly exerted from the position of such individual in Congress.

4. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not accept gifts except as provided by clause 5 of rule XXV.

5. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not accept an honorarium for a speech, a writing for publication, or other similar activity, except as otherwise provided under rule XXV.

6. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner—

(a) shall keep the campaign funds of such individual separate from the personal funds of such individual;

(b) may not convert campaign funds to personal use in excess of an amount representing reimbursement for legitimate and verifiable campaign expenditures; and

(c) except as provided in clause 1(b) of rule XXIV, may not expend funds from a campaign account of such individual that are not attributable to bona fide campaign or political purposes.

7. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall treat as campaign contributions all proceeds from testimonial dinners or other fund-raising events.

8. (a) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer of the House may not retain an employee who does not perform duties for the offices of the employing authority commensurate with the compensation such employee receives.

(b) In the case of a committee employee who works under the direct supervision of a member of the committee other than a chair, the chair may require that such member affirm in writing that the employee has complied with clause 8(a) (subject to clause 9 of rule X) as evidence of compliance by the chair with this clause and with clause 9 of rule X.

(c)(1) Except as specified in subparagraph (2)—

(A) a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not retain the relative of such individual in a paid position; and

(B) an employee of the House may not accept compensation for work for a committee on which the relative of such employee serves as a member.

(2) Subparagraph (1) shall not apply in the case of a relative whose pertinent employment predates the One Hundred Thirteenth Congress.

(3) As used in this paragraph, the term “relative” means an individual who is related to the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner as father, mother, son, daughter, brother, sister, uncle, aunt, first cousin, nephew, niece, husband, wife, father-in-law, mother-in-law, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, stepfather, stepmother, stepson, stepdaughter, stepbrother, stepsister, half brother, half sister, grandson, or granddaughter.

9. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not discharge and may not refuse to hire an individual, or otherwise discriminate against an individual with respect to compensation, terms, conditions, or privileges of employment, because of the race, color, religion, sex (including marital or parental status), disability, age, or national origin of such individual, but may take into consideration the domicile or political affiliation of such individual.

10. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who has been convicted by a court of record for the commission of a crime for which a sentence of two or more years’ imprisonment may be imposed should refrain from participation in the business of each committee of which such individual is a member, and a Member should refrain from voting on any question at a meeting of the House or of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, unless or until judicial or executive proceedings result in reinstatement of the presumption of the innocence of such Member or until the Member is reelected to the House after the date of such conviction.

11. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not authorize or otherwise allow an individual, group, or organization not under the direction and control of the House to use the words “Congress of the United States,” “House of Representatives,” or “Official Business,” or any combination of words thereof, on any letterhead or envelope.

12. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b), an employee of the House who is required to file a report under rule XXVI may not participate personally and substantially as an employee of the House in a contact with an agency of the executive or judicial branches of Government with respect to nonlegislative matters affecting any nongovernmental person in which the employee has a significant financial interest.

(b) Paragraph (a) does not apply if an employee first advises the employing authority of such employee of a significant financial interest described in paragraph (a) and obtains from such employing authority a written waiver stating that the participation of the employee in the activity described in paragraph (a) is necessary. A copy of each such waiver shall be filed with the Committee on Ethics.

13. Before a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may have access to classified information, the following oath (or affirmation) shall be executed:

“I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will not disclose any classified information received in the course of my service with the House of Representatives, except as authorized by the House of Representatives or in accordance with its Rules.”

Copies of the executed oath (or affirmation) shall be retained as part of the records of the House, in the case of a Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner, by the Clerk, and in the case of an officer or employee of the House, by the Sergeant-at-Arms. The Clerk shall make the signatories a matter of public record, causing the names of each Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who has signed the oath during a week (if any) to be published in a portion of the Congressional Record designated for that purpose on the last legislative day of the week and making cumulative lists of such names available each day for public inspection in an appropriate office of the House.

14. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not, with the intent to influence on the basis of partisan political affiliation an employment decision or employment practice of any private entity—

(a) take or withhold, or offer or threaten to take or withhold, an official act; or

(b) influence, or offer or threaten to influence, the official act of another.

15. (a) Except as provided in paragraphs (b) and (c), a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not use personal funds, official funds, or campaign funds for a flight on an aircraft.

(b) Paragraph (a) does not apply if—

(1) the aircraft is operated by an air carrier or commercial operator certificated by the Federal Aviation Administration and the flight is required to be conducted under air carrier safety rules, or, in the case of travel which is abroad, by an air carrier or commercial operator certificated by an appropriate foreign civil aviation authority and the flight is required to be conducted under air carrier safety rules;

(2) the aircraft is owned or leased by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner or a family member of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner (including an aircraft owned by an entity that is not a public corporation in which the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner or a family member of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner has an ownership interest, provided that such Member,

Delegate, or Resident Commissioner does not use the aircraft any more than the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or family member's proportionate share of ownership allows);

(3) the flight consists of the personal use of an aircraft by a Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner that is supplied by—

(A) an individual on the basis of personal friendship; or

(B) another Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner;

(4) the aircraft is operated by an entity of the Federal government or an entity of the government of any State; or

(5) the owner or operator of the aircraft is paid a pro rata share of the fair market value of the normal and usual charter fare or rental charge for a comparable plane of comparable size as determined by dividing such cost by the number of Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner, officers, or employees of Congress on the flight.

(c) An advance written request for a waiver of the restriction in paragraph (a) may be granted jointly by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Ethics, subject to such conditions as they may prescribe.

(d) In this clause—

(1) the term “campaign funds” includes funds of any political committee under the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, without regard to whether the committee is an authorized committee of the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner involved under such Act;

(2) the term “family member” means an individual who is related to the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, as father, mother, son, daughter, brother, sister, husband, wife, father-in-law, or mother-in-law; and

(3) the term “on the basis of personal friendship” has the same meaning as in clause 5 of rule XXV and shall be determined as under clause 5(a)(3)(D)(ii) of rule XXV.

16. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not condition the inclusion of language to provide funding for a congressional earmark, a limited tax benefit, or a limited tariff benefit in any bill or joint resolution (or an accompanying report) or in any conference report on a bill or joint resolution (including an accompanying joint explanatory statement of managers) on any vote cast by another Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner. For purposes of this clause and clause 17, the terms “congressional earmark,” “limited tax benefit,” and “limited tariff benefit” shall have the meanings given them in clause 9 of rule XXI.

17. (a) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who requests a congressional earmark, a limited tax benefit, or a limited tariff benefit in any bill or joint resolution (or an accompanying report) or in any conference report on a bill or joint resolution (or an accompanying joint statement of managers) shall provide a written statement to the chair and ranking minority member of the committee of jurisdiction, including—

(1) the name of the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner;

(2) in the case of a congressional earmark, the name and address of the intended recipient or, if there is no specifically intended recipient, the intended location of the activity;

(3) in the case of a limited tax or tariff benefit, identification of the individual or entities reasonably anticipated to benefit, to the extent known to the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner;

(4) the purpose of such congressional earmark or limited tax or tariff benefit; and

(5) a certification that the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner or spouse has no financial interest in such congressional earmark or limited tax or tariff benefit.

(b) Each committee shall maintain the information transmitted under paragraph (a), and the written disclosures for any congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits included in any measure reported by the committee or conference report filed by the chair of the committee or any subcommittee thereof shall be open for public inspection.

18. (a) In this Code of Official Conduct, the term “officer or employee of the House” means an individual whose compensation is disbursed by the Chief Administrative Officer.

(b) An individual whose services are compensated by the House pursuant to a consultant contract shall be considered an employee of the House for purposes of clauses 1, 2, 3, 4, 8, 9, and 13 of this rule. An individual whose services are compensated by the House pursuant to a consultant contract may not lobby the contracting committee or the members or staff of the contracting committee on any matter. Such an individual may lobby other Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner or staff of the House on matters outside the jurisdiction of the contracting committee. In the case of such an individual who is a member or employee of a firm, partnership, or other business organization, the other members and employees of the firm, partnership, or other business organization shall be subject to the same restrictions on lobbying that apply to the individual under this paragraph.

RULE XXIV

LIMITATIONS ON USE OF OFFICIAL FUNDS

Limitations on use of official and unofficial accounts

1. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b), a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not maintain, or have maintained for the use of such individual, an unofficial office account. Funds may not be paid into an unofficial office account.

(b)(1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2), a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may defray official expenses with funds of the principal campaign committee of such individual under the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 431 et seq.).

(2) The funds specified in subparagraph (1) may not be used to defray official expenses for mail or other communications, compensation for services, office space, office furniture, office equipment, or any associated information technology services (excluding handheld communications devices).

2. Notwithstanding any other provision of this rule, if an amount from the Official Expenses Allowance of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner is paid into the House Recording Studio revolving fund for telecommunications satellite services, the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may accept reimbursement from nonpolitical entities in that amount for transmission to the Chief Administrative Officer for credit to the Official Expenses Allowance.

3. In this rule the term “unofficial office account” means an account or repository in which funds are received for the purpose of defraying otherwise unreimbursed expenses allowable under section 162(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 as ordinary and necessary in the operation of a congressional office, and includes a newsletter fund referred to in section 527(g) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

Limitations on use of the frank

4. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall mail franked mail under section 3210(d) of title 39, United States Code at the most economical rate of postage practicable.

5. Before making a mass mailing, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall submit a sample or description of the mail matter involved to the House Commission on Congressional Mailing Standards for an advisory opinion as to whether the proposed mailing is in compliance with applicable provisions of law, rule, or regulation.

6. A mass mailing that is otherwise frankable by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner under the provisions of section 3210(e) of title 39, United States Code, is not frankable unless the cost of preparing and printing it is defrayed exclusively from funds made available in an appropriation Act.

7. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not send a mass mailing outside the congressional district from which elected.

8. In the case of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, a mass mailing is not frankable under section 3210 of title 39, United States Code, when it is postmarked less than 90 days before the date of a primary or general election (whether regular, special, or runoff) in which such individual is a candidate for public office. If the mail matter is of a type that is not customarily postmarked, the date on which it would have been postmarked, if it were of a type customarily postmarked, applies.

9. In this rule the term “mass mailing” means, with respect to a session of Congress, a mailing of newsletters or other pieces of mail with substantially identical content (whether such pieces of mail are deposited singly or in bulk, or at the same time or different times), totaling more than 500 pieces of mail in that session, except that such term does not include a mailing—

(a) of matter in direct response to a communication from a person to whom the matter is mailed;

(b) from a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner to other Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, or Senators, or to Federal, State, or local government officials; or

(c) of a news release to the communications media.

Prohibition on use of funds by Members not elected to succeeding Congress

10. Funds from the applicable accounts described in clause 1(k)(1) of rule X, including funds from committee expense resolutions, and funds in any local currencies owned by the United States may not be made available for travel by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or Senator after the date of a general election in which such individual was not elected to the succeeding Congress or, in the case of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who is not a candidate in a general election, after the earlier of the date of such general election or the adjournment sine die of the last regular session of the Congress.

RULE XXV

LIMITATIONS ON OUTSIDE EARNED INCOME AND ACCEPTANCE OF GIFTS

Outside earned income; honoraria

1. (a) Except as provided by paragraph (b), a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not—

(1) have outside earned income attributable to a calendar year that exceeds 15 percent of the annual rate of basic pay for level II of the Executive Schedule under section 5313 of title 5, United States Code, as of January 1 of that calendar year; or

(2) receive any honorarium, except that an officer or employee of the House who is paid at a rate less than 120 percent of the minimum rate of basic pay for GS–15 of the General Schedule may receive an honorarium unless the subject matter is directly related to the official duties of the individual, the payment is made because of the status of the individual with the House, or the person offering the honorarium has interests that may be substantially affected by the performance or nonperformance of the official duties of the individual.

(b) In the case of an individual who becomes a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, such individual may not have outside earned income attributable to the portion of a calendar year that occurs after such individual becomes a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee that exceeds 15 percent of the annual rate of basic pay for level II of the Executive Schedule under section 5313 of title 5, United States Code, as of January 1 of that calendar year multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the number of days the individual is a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee during that calendar year and the denominator of which is 365.

(c) A payment in lieu of an honorarium that is made to a charitable organization on behalf of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not be received by that Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee. Such a payment may not exceed $2,000 or be made to a charitable organization from which the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee or a parent, sibling, spouse, child, or dependent relative of the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee, derives a financial benefit.

2. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not—

(a) receive compensation for affiliating with or being employed by a firm, partnership, association, corporation, or other entity that provides professional services involving a fiduciary relationship except for the practice of medicine;

(b) permit the name of such individual to be used by such a firm, partnership, association, corporation, or other entity;

(c) receive compensation for practicing a profession that involves a fiduciary relationship except for the practice of medicine;

(d) serve for compensation as an officer or member of the board of an association, corporation, or other entity; or

(e) receive compensation for teaching, without the prior notification and approval of the Committee on Ethics.

Copyright royalties

3. (a) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not receive an advance payment on copyright royalties. This paragraph does not prohibit a literary agent, researcher, or other individual (other than an individual employed by the House or a relative of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee) working on behalf of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee with respect to a publication from receiving an advance payment of a copyright royalty directly from a publisher and solely for the benefit of that literary agent, researcher, or other individual.

(b) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not receive copyright royalties under a contract entered into on or after January 1, 1996, unless that contract is first approved by the Committee on Ethics as complying with the requirement of clause 4(d)(1)(E) (that royalties are received from an established publisher under usual and customary contractual terms).

Definitions

4. (a)(1) In this rule, except as provided in subparagraph (2), the term “officer or employee of the House” means an individual (other than a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner) whose pay is disbursed by the Chief Administrative Officer, who is paid at a rate equal to or greater than 120 percent of the minimum rate of basic pay for GS–15 of the General Schedule, and who is so employed for more than 90 days in a calendar year.

(2)(A) When used with respect to an honorarium, the term “officer or employee of the House” means an individual (other than a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner) whose salary is disbursed by the Chief Administrative Officer.

(B) When used in clause 5 of this rule, the terms “officer” and “employee” have the same meanings as in rule XXIII.

(b) In this rule the term “honorarium” means a payment of money or a thing of value for an appearance, speech, or article (including a series of appearances, speeches, or articles) by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, excluding any actual and necessary travel expenses incurred by that Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee (and one relative) to the extent that such expenses are paid or reimbursed by any other person. The amount otherwise determined shall be reduced by the amount of any such expenses to the extent that such expenses are not so paid or reimbursed.

(c) In this rule the term “travel expenses” means, with respect to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, or a relative of such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee, the cost of transportation, and the cost of lodging and meals while away from the residence or principal place of employment of such individual.

(d)(1) In this rule the term “outside earned income” means, with respect to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, wages, salaries, fees, and other amounts received or to be received as compensation for personal services actually rendered, but does not include—

(A) the salary of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee;

(B) any compensation derived by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House for personal services actually rendered before the adoption of this rule or before such individual became a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee;

(C) any amount paid by, or on behalf of, a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House to a tax-qualified pension, profit-sharing, or stock bonus plan and received by such individual from such a plan;

(D) in the case of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House engaged in a trade or business in which such individual or the family of such individual holds a controlling interest and in which both personal services and capital are income-producing factors, any amount received by the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee, so long as the personal services actually rendered by such individual in the trade or business do not generate a significant amount of income; or

(E) copyright royalties received from established publishers under usual and customary contractual terms; and

(2) outside earned income shall be determined without regard to community property law.

(e) In this rule the term “charitable organization” means an organization described in section 170(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

Gifts

5. (a)(1)(A) (i) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not knowingly accept a gift except as provided in this clause.

(ii) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not knowingly accept a gift from a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal or from a private entity that retains or employs registered lobbyists or agents of a foreign principal except as provided in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph.

(B) (i) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may accept a gift (other than cash or cash equivalent) not prohibited by subdivision (A)(ii) that the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee reasonably and in good faith believes to have a value of less than $50 and a cumulative value from one source during a calendar year of less than $100. A gift having a value of less than $10 does not count toward the $100 annual limit. The value of perishable food sent to an office shall be allocated among the individual recipients and not to the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner. Formal recordkeeping is not required by this subdivision, but a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall make a good faith effort to comply with this subdivision.

(ii) A gift of a ticket to a sporting or entertainment event shall be valued at the face value of the ticket or, in the case of a ticket without a face value, at the highest cost of a ticket with a face value for the event. The price printed on a ticket to an event shall be deemed its face value only if it also is the price at which the issuer offers that ticket for sale to the public.

(2)(A) In this clause the term “gift” means a gratuity, favor, discount, entertainment, hospitality, loan, forbearance, or other item having monetary value. The term includes gifts of services, training, transportation, lodging, and meals, whether provided in kind, by purchase of a ticket, payment in advance, or reimbursement after the expense has been incurred.

(B) (i) A gift to a family member of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, or a gift to any other individual based on that individual's relationship with the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee, shall be considered a gift to the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee if it is given with the knowledge and acquiescence of the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee and the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee has reason to believe the gift was given because of the official position of such individual.

(ii) If food or refreshment is provided at the same time and place to both a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House and the spouse or dependent thereof, only the food or refreshment provided to the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee shall be treated as a gift for purposes of this clause.

(3) The restrictions in subparagraph (1) do not apply to the following:

(A) Anything for which the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House pays the market value, or does not use and promptly returns to the donor.

(B) A contribution, as defined in section 301(8) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 431) that is lawfully made under that Act, a lawful contribution for election to a State or local government office, or attendance at a fundraising event sponsored by a political organization described in section 527(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(C) A gift from a relative as described in section 109(16) of title I of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 (5 U.S.C. App. 109(16)).

(D) (i) Anything provided by an individual on the basis of a personal friendship unless the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House has reason to believe that, under the circumstances, the gift was provided because of the official position of such individual and not because of the personal friendship.

(ii) In determining whether a gift is provided on the basis of personal friendship, the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall consider the circumstances under which the gift was offered, such as:

(I) The history of the relationship of such individual with the individual giving the gift, including any previous exchange of gifts between them.

(II) Whether to the actual knowledge of such individual the individual who gave the gift personally paid for the gift or sought a tax deduction or business reimbursement for the gift.

(III) Whether to the actual knowledge of such individual the individual who gave the gift also gave the same or similar gifts to other Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioners, officers, or employees of the House.

(E) Except as provided in paragraph (e)(3), a contribution or other payment to a legal expense fund established for the benefit of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House that is otherwise lawfully made in accordance with the restrictions and disclosure requirements of the Committee on Ethics.

(F) A gift from another Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House or Senate.

(G) Food, refreshments, lodging, transportation, and other benefits—

(i) resulting from the outside business or employment activities of the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House (or other outside activities that are not connected to the duties of such individual as an officeholder), or of the spouse of such individual, if such benefits have not been offered or enhanced because of the official position of such individual and are customarily provided to others in similar circumstances;

(ii) customarily provided by a prospective employer in connection with bona fide employment discussions; or

(iii) provided by a political organization described in section 527(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 in connection with a fundraising or campaign event sponsored by such organization.

(H) Pension and other benefits resulting from continued participation in an employee welfare and benefits plan maintained by a former employer.

(I) Informational materials that are sent to the office of the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House in the form of books, articles, periodicals, other written materials, audiotapes, videotapes, or other forms of communication.

(J) Awards or prizes that are given to competitors in contests or events open to the public, including random drawings.

(K) Honorary degrees (and associated travel, food, refreshments, and entertainment) and other bona fide, nonmonetary awards presented in recognition of public service (and associated food, refreshments, and entertainment provided in the presentation of such degrees and awards).

(L) Training (including food and refreshments furnished to all attendees as an integral part of the training) if such training is in the interest of the House.

(M) Bequests, inheritances, and other transfers at death.

(N) An item, the receipt of which is authorized by the Foreign Gifts and Decorations Act, the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act, or any other statute.

(O) Anything that is paid for by the Federal Government, by a State or local government, or secured by the Government under a Government contract.

(P) A gift of personal hospitality (as defined in section 109(14) of the Ethics in Government Act) of an individual other than a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal.

(Q) Free attendance at an event permitted under subparagraph (4).

(R) Opportunities and benefits that are—

(i) available to the public or to a class consisting of all Federal employees, whether or not restricted on the basis of geographic consideration;

(ii) offered to members of a group or class in which membership is unrelated to congressional employment;

(iii) offered to members of an organization, such as an employees' association or congressional credit union, in which membership is related to congressional employment and similar opportunities are available to large segments of the public through organizations of similar size;

(iv) offered to a group or class that is not defined in a manner that specifically discriminates among Government employees on the basis of branch of Government or type of responsibility, or on a basis that favors those of higher rank or rate of pay;

(v) in the form of loans from banks and other financial institutions on terms generally available to the public; or

(vi) in the form of reduced membership or other fees for participation in organization activities offered to all Government employees by professional organizations if the only restrictions on membership relate to professional qualifications.

(S) A plaque, trophy, or other item that is substantially commemorative in nature and that is intended for presentation.

(T) Anything for which, in an unusual case, a waiver is granted by the Committee on Ethics.

(U) Food or refreshments of a nominal value offered other than as a part of a meal.

(V) Donations of products from the district or State that the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner represents that are intended primarily for promotional purposes, such as display or free distribution, and are of minimal value to any single recipient.

(W) An item of nominal value such as a greeting card, baseball cap, or a T-shirt.

(4)(A) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may accept an offer of free attendance at a widely attended convention, conference, symposium, forum, panel discussion, dinner, viewing, reception, or similar event, provided by the sponsor of the event, if—

(i) the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House participates in the event as a speaker or a panel participant, by presenting information related to Congress or matters before Congress, or by performing a ceremonial function appropriate to the official position of such individual; or

(ii) attendance at the event is appropriate to the performance of the official duties or representative function of the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House.

(B) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House who attends an event described in subdivision (A) may accept a sponsor's unsolicited offer of free attendance at the event for an accompanying individual.

(C) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, or the spouse or dependent thereof, may accept a sponsor's unsolicited offer of free attendance at a charity event, except that reimbursement for transportation and lodging may not be accepted in connection with the event unless—

(i) all of the net proceeds of the event are for the benefit of an organization described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and exempt from taxation under section 501(a) of such Code;

(ii) reimbursement for the transportation and lodging in connection with the event is paid by such organization; and

(iii) the offer of free attendance at the event is made by such organization.

(D) In this paragraph the term “free attendance” may include waiver of all or part of a conference or other fee, the provision of local transportation, or the provision of food, refreshments, entertainment, and instructional materials furnished to all attendees as an integral part of the event. The term does not include entertainment collateral to the event, nor does it include food or refreshments taken other than in a group setting with all or substantially all other attendees.

(5) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not accept a gift the value of which exceeds $250 on the basis of the personal friendship exception in subparagraph (3)(D) unless the Committee on Ethics issues a written determination that such exception applies. A determination under this subparagraph is not required for gifts given on the basis of the family relationship exception in subparagraph (3)(C).

(6) When it is not practicable to return a tangible item because it is perishable, the item may, at the discretion of the recipient, be given to an appropriate charity or destroyed.

(b)(1)(A) A reimbursement (including payment in kind) to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House for necessary transportation, lodging, and related expenses for travel to a meeting, speaking engagement, factfinding trip, or similar event in connection with the duties of such individual as an officeholder shall be considered as a reimbursement to the House and not a gift prohibited by this clause when it is from a private source other than a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal or a private entity that retains or employs registered lobbyists or agents of a foreign principal (except as provided in subdivision (C)), if the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee—

(i) in the case of an employee, receives advance authorization, from the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer under whose direct supervision the employee works, to accept reimbursement; and

(ii) discloses the expenses reimbursed or to be reimbursed and the authorization to the Clerk within 15 days after the travel is completed.

(B) For purposes of subdivision (A), events, the activities of which are substantially recreational in nature, are not considered to be in connection with the duties of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House as an officeholder.

(C) A reimbursement (including payment in kind) to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House for any purpose described in subdivision (A) also shall be considered as a reimbursement to the House and not a gift prohibited by this clause (without regard to whether the source retains or employs registered lobbyists or agents of a foreign principal) if it is, under regulations prescribed by the Committee on Ethics to implement this provision—

(i) directly from an institution of higher education within the meaning of section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965; or

(ii) provided only for attendance at or participation in a one-day event (exclusive of travel time and an overnight stay).

Regulations prescribed to implement this provision may permit a two-night stay when determined by the committee on a case-by-case basis to be practically required to participate in the one-day event.

(2) Each advance authorization to accept reimbursement shall be signed by the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer of the House under whose direct supervision the employee works and shall include—

(A) the name of the employee;

(B) the name of the person who will make the reimbursement;

(C) the time, place, and purpose of the travel; and

(D) a determination that the travel is in connection with the duties of the employee as an officeholder and would not create the appearance that the employee is using public office for private gain.

(3) Each disclosure made under subparagraph (1)(A) shall be signed by the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer (in the case of travel by that Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer) or by the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer under whose direct supervision the employee works (in the case of travel by an employee) and shall include—

(A) a good faith estimate of total transportation expenses reimbursed or to be reimbursed;

(B) a good faith estimate of total lodging expenses reimbursed or to be reimbursed;

(C) a good faith estimate of total meal expenses reimbursed or to be reimbursed;

(D) a good faith estimate of the total of other expenses reimbursed or to be reimbursed;

(E) a determination that all such expenses are necessary transportation, lodging, and related expenses as defined in subparagraph (4);

(F) a description of meetings and events attended; and

(G) in the case of a reimbursement to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer, a determination that the travel was in connection with the duties of such individual as an officeholder and would not create the appearance that the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer is using public office for private gain.

(4) In this paragraph the term “necessary transportation, lodging, and related expenses”—

(A) includes reasonable expenses that are necessary for travel for a period not exceeding four days within the United States or seven days exclusive of travel time outside of the United States unless approved in advance by the Committee on Ethics;

(B) is limited to reasonable expenditures for transportation, lodging, conference fees and materials, and food and refreshments, including reimbursement for necessary transportation, whether or not such transportation occurs within the periods described in subdivision (A);

(C) does not include expenditures for recreational activities, nor does it include entertainment other than that provided to all attendees as an integral part of the event, except for activities or entertainment otherwise permissible under this clause; and

(D) may include travel expenses incurred on behalf of a relative of the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee.

(5) The Clerk of the House shall make all advance authorizations, certifications, and disclosures filed pursuant to this paragraph available for public inspection as soon as possible after they are received.

(c)(1)(A) Except as provided in subdivision (B), a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not accept a reimbursement (including payment in kind) for transportation, lodging, or related expenses for a trip on which the traveler is accompanied on any segment by a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal.

(B) Subdivision (A) does not apply to a trip for which the source of reimbursement is an institution of higher education within the meaning of section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

(2) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not accept a reimbursement (including payment in kind) for transportation, lodging, or related expenses under the exception in paragraph (b)(1)(C)(ii) of this clause for a trip that is financed in whole or in part by a private entity that retains or employs registered lobbyists or agents of a foreign principal unless any involvement of a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal in the planning, organization, request, or arrangement of the trip is de minimis under rules prescribed by the Committee on Ethics to implement paragraph (b)(1)(C) of this clause.

(3) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not accept a reimbursement (including payment in kind) for transportation, lodging, or related expenses for a trip (other than a trip permitted under paragraph (b)(1)(C) of this clause) if such trip is in any part planned, organized, requested, or arranged by a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal.

(d) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall, before accepting travel otherwise permissible under paragraph (b)(1) of this clause from any private source—

(1) provide to the Committee on Ethics before such trip a written certification signed by the source or (in the case of a corporate person) by an officer of the source—

(A) that the trip will not be financed in any part by a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal;

(B) that the source either—

(i) does not retain or employ registered lobbyists or agents of a foreign principal; or

(ii) is an institution of higher education within the meaning of section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965; or

(iii) certifies that the trip meets the requirements specified in rules prescribed by the Committee on Ethics to implement paragraph (b)(1)(C)(ii) of this clause and specifically details the extent of any involvement of a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal in the planning, organization, request, or arrangement of the trip considered to qualify as de minimis under such rules;

(C) that the source will not accept from another source any funds earmarked directly or indirectly for the purpose of financing any aspect of the trip;

(D) that the traveler will not be accompanied on any segment of the trip by a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal (except in the case of a trip for which the source of reimbursement is an institution of higher education within the meaning of section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965); and

(E) that (except as permitted in paragraph (b)(1)(C) of this clause) the trip will not in any part be planned, organized, requested, or arranged by a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal; and

(2) after the Committee on Ethics has promulgated the regulations mandated in paragraph (i)(1)(B) of this clause, obtain the prior approval of the committee for such trip.

(e) A gift prohibited by paragraph (a)(1) includes the following:

(1) Anything provided by a registered lobbyist or an agent of a foreign principal to an entity that is maintained or controlled by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House.

(2) A charitable contribution (as defined in section 170(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) made by a registered lobbyist or an agent of a foreign principal on the basis of a designation, recommendation, or other specification of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House (not including a mass mailing or other solicitation directed to a broad category of persons or entities), other than a charitable contribution permitted by paragraph (f).

(3) A contribution or other payment by a registered lobbyist or an agent of a foreign principal to a legal expense fund established for the benefit of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House.

(4) A financial contribution or expenditure made by a registered lobbyist or an agent of a foreign principal relating to a conference, retreat, or similar event, sponsored by or affiliated with an official congressional organization, for or on behalf of Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, officers, or employees of the House.

(f)(1) A charitable contribution (as defined in section 170(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) made by a registered lobbyist or an agent of a foreign principal in lieu of an honorarium to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House is not considered a gift under this clause if it is reported as provided in subparagraph (2).

(2) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee who designates or recommends a contribution to a charitable organization in lieu of an honorarium described in subparagraph (1) shall report within 30 days after such designation or recommendation to the Clerk—

(A) the name and address of the registered lobbyist who is making the contribution in lieu of an honorarium;

(B) the date and amount of the contribution; and

(C) the name and address of the charitable organization designated or recommended by the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner.

The Clerk shall make public information received under this subparagraph as soon as possible after it is received.

(g) In this clause—

(1) the term “registered lobbyist” means a lobbyist registered under the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act or any successor statute;

(2) the term “agent of a foreign principal” means an agent of a foreign principal registered under the Foreign Agents Registration Act; and

(3) the terms “officer” and “employee” have the same meanings as in rule XXIII.

(h) All the provisions of this clause shall be interpreted and enforced solely by the Committee on Ethics. The Committee on Ethics is authorized to issue guidance on any matter contained in this clause.

(i)(1) Not later than 45 days after the date of adoption of this paragraph and at annual intervals thereafter, the Committee on Ethics shall develop and revise, as necessary—

(A) guidelines on judging the reasonableness of an expense or expenditure for purposes of this clause, including the factors that tend to establish—

- (i) a connection between a trip and official duties;
- (ii) the reasonableness of an amount spent by a sponsor;
- (iii) a relationship between an event and an officially connected purpose; and
- (iv) a direct and immediate relationship between a source of funding and an event; and

(B) regulations describing the information it will require individuals subject to this clause to submit to the committee in order to obtain the prior approval of the committee for any travel covered by this clause, including any required certifications.

(2) In developing and revising guidelines under subparagraph (1)(A), the committee shall take into account the maximum per diem rates for official Government travel published annually by the General Services Administration, the Department of State, and the Department of Defense.

Claims against the Government

6. A person may not be an officer or employee of the House, or continue in its employment, if acting as an agent for the prosecution of a claim against the Government or if interested in such claim, except as an original claimant or in the proper discharge of official duties.

7. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall prohibit all staff employed by that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner (including staff in personal, committee, and leadership offices) from making any lobbying contact (as defined in section 3 of the Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995) with that individual's spouse if that spouse is a lobbyist under the Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995 or is employed or retained by such a lobbyist for the purpose of influencing legislation.

8. During the dates on which the national political party to which a Member (including a Delegate or Resident Commissioner) belongs holds its convention to nominate a candidate for the office of President or Vice President, the Member may not participate in an event honoring that Member, other than in the capacity as a candidate for such office, if such event is directly paid for by a registered lobbyist under the Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995 or a private entity that retains or employs such a registered lobbyist.

RULE XXVI

FINANCIAL DISCLOSURE

1. The Clerk shall send a copy of each report filed with the Clerk under title I of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 within the seven-day period beginning on the date on which the report is filed to the Committee on Ethics.

2. For the purposes of this rule, the provisions of title I of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 shall be considered Rules of the House as they pertain to Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, officers, and employees of the House.

3. Members of the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics shall file annual financial disclosure reports with the Clerk of the House on or before May 15 of each calendar year after any year in which they perform the duties of that position. Such reports shall be on a form prepared by the Clerk that is substantially similar to form 450 of the Office of Government Ethics. The Clerk shall send a copy of each such report filed with the Clerk within the seven-day period beginning on the date on which the report is filed to the Committee on Ethics and shall have them printed as a House document and made available to the public pursuant to clause 1.

RULE XXVII

DISCLOSURE BY MEMBERS AND STAFF OF EMPLOYMENT NEGOTIATIONS

1. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall not directly negotiate or have any agreement of future employment or compensation, unless such Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, within 3 business days after the commencement of such negotiation or agreement of future employment or compensation, files with the Committee on Ethics a statement, which must be signed by the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, regarding such negotiations or agreement, including the name of the private entity or entities involved in such negotiations or agreement, and the date such negotiations or agreement commenced.

2. An officer or an employee of the House earning in excess of 75 percent of the salary paid to a Member shall notify the Committee on Ethics that such individual is negotiating or has any agreement of future employment or compensation.

3. The disclosure and notification under this rule shall be made within 3 business days after the commencement of such negotiation or agreement of future employment or compensation.

4. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, and an officer or employee to whom this rule applies, shall recuse himself or herself from any matter in which there is a conflict of interest or an appearance of a conflict for that Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee under this rule and shall notify the Committee on Ethics of such recusal. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner making such recusal shall, upon such recusal, submit to the Clerk for public disclosure the statement of disclosure under clause 1 with respect to which the recusal was made.

RULE XXVIII

(RESERVED.)

RULE XXIX

GENERAL PROVISIONS

1. The provisions of law that constituted the Rules of the House at the end of the previous Congress shall govern the House in all cases to which they are applicable, and the rules of parliamentary practice comprised by Jefferson's Manual shall govern the House in all cases to which they are applicable and in which they are not inconsistent with the Rules and orders of the House.

2. In these rules words importing one gender include the other as well.

3. If a measure or matter is publicly available in electronic form at a location designated by the Committee on House Administration, it shall be considered as having been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner for purposes of these rules.

4. Authoritative guidance from the Committee on the Budget concerning the impact of a legislative proposition on the levels of new budget authority, outlays, direct spending, new entitlement authority and revenues may be provided by the chair of the committee.

Exhibit XX

RULES OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

ONE HUNDRED FIFTEENTH CONGRESS

RULE I

THE SPEAKER

Approval of the Journal

1. The Speaker shall take the Chair on every legislative day precisely at the hour to which the House last adjourned and immediately call the House to order. Having examined and approved the Journal of the last day's proceedings, the Speaker shall announce to the House approval thereof. The Speaker's approval of the Journal shall be deemed agreed to unless a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner demands a vote thereon. If such a vote is decided in the affirmative, it shall not be subject to a motion to reconsider. If such a vote is decided in the negative, then one motion that the Journal be read shall be privileged, shall be decided without debate, and shall not be subject to a motion to reconsider.

Preservation of order

2. The Speaker shall preserve order and decorum and, in case of disturbance or disorderly conduct in the galleries or in the lobby, may cause the same to be cleared.

Control of Capitol facilities

3. Except as otherwise provided by rule or law, the Speaker shall have general control of the Hall of the House, the corridors and passages in the part of the Capitol assigned to the use of the House, and the disposal of unappropriated rooms in that part of the Capitol.

Signature of documents

4. The Speaker shall sign all acts and joint resolutions passed by the two Houses and all writs, warrants, and subpoenas of, or issued by order of, the House. The Speaker may sign enrolled bills and joint resolutions whether or not the House is in session.

Questions of order

5. The Speaker shall decide all questions of order, subject to appeal by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner. On such an appeal a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not speak more than once without permission of the House.

Form of a question

6. The Speaker shall put a question in this form: “Those in favor (of the question), say ‘Aye.’”; and after the affirmative voice is expressed, “Those opposed, say ‘No.’”. After a vote by voice under this clause, the Speaker may use such voting procedures as may be invoked under rule XX.

Discretion to vote

7. The Speaker is not required to vote in ordinary legislative proceedings, except when such vote would be decisive or when the House is engaged in voting by ballot.

Speaker pro tempore

8. (a) The Speaker may appoint a Member to perform the duties of the Chair. Except as specified in paragraph (b), such an appointment may not extend beyond three legislative days.

(b)(1) In the case of illness, the Speaker may appoint a Member to perform the duties of the Chair for a period not exceeding 10 days, subject to the approval of the House. If the Speaker is absent and has omitted to make such an appointment, then the House shall elect a Speaker pro tempore to act during the absence of the Speaker.

(2) With the approval of the House, the Speaker may appoint a Member to act as Speaker pro tempore only to sign enrolled bills and joint resolutions for a specified period of time.

(3)(A) In the case of a vacancy in the Office of Speaker, the next Member on the list described in subdivision (B) shall act as Speaker pro tempore until the election of a Speaker or a Speaker pro tempore. Pending such election the Member acting as Speaker pro tempore may exercise such authorities of the Office of Speaker as may be necessary and appropriate to that end.

(B) As soon as practicable after the election of the Speaker and whenever appropriate thereafter, the Speaker shall deliver to the Clerk a list of Members in the order in which each shall act as Speaker pro tempore under subdivision (A).

(C) For purposes of subdivision (A), a vacancy in the Office of Speaker may exist by reason of the physical inability of the Speaker to discharge the duties of the office.

Other responsibilities

9. The Speaker, in consultation with the Minority Leader, shall develop through an appropriate entity of the House a system for drug testing in the House. The system may provide for the testing of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, and otherwise shall be comparable in scope to the system for drug testing in the executive branch pursuant to Executive Order 12564 (Sept. 15, 1986). The expenses of the system may be paid from applicable accounts of the House for official expenses.

Designation of travel

10. The Speaker may designate a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House to travel on the business of the House within or without the United States, whether the House is meeting, has recessed, or has adjourned. Expenses for such travel may be paid from applicable accounts of the House described in clause 1(k)(1) of rule X on vouchers approved and signed solely by the Speaker.

Committee appointment

11. The Speaker shall appoint all select, joint, and conference committees ordered by the House. At any time after an original appointment, the Speaker may remove Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner from, or appoint additional Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner to, a select or conference committee. In appointing Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner to conference committees, the Speaker shall appoint no less than a majority who generally supported the House position as determined by the Speaker, shall name those who are primarily responsible for the legislation, and shall, to the fullest extent feasible, include the principal proponents of the major provisions of the bill or resolution passed or adopted by the House.

Recess and Convening Authorities

12. (a) To suspend the business of the House for a short time when no question is pending before the House, the Speaker may declare a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

(b)(1) To suspend the business of the House when notified of an imminent threat to its safety, the Speaker may declare an emergency recess subject to the call of the Chair.

(2) To suspend the business of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union when notified of an imminent threat to its safety, the chair of the Committee of the Whole may declare an emergency recess subject to the call of the Chair.

(c) During any recess or adjournment of not more than three days, if the Speaker is notified by the Sergeant-at-Arms of an imminent impairment of the place of reconvening at the time previously appointed, then the Speaker may, in consultation with the Minority Leader—

(1) postpone the time for reconvening within the limits of clause 4, section 5, article I of the Constitution and notify Members accordingly; or

(2) reconvene the House before the time previously appointed solely to declare the House in recess within the limits of clause 4, section 5, article I of the Constitution and notify Members accordingly.

(d) The Speaker may convene the House in a place at the seat of government other than the Hall of the House if, in the opinion of the Speaker, the public interest shall warrant it.

(e) During any recess or adjournment of not more than three days, if in the opinion of the Speaker the public interest so warrants, then the Speaker, after consultation with the Minority Leader, may reconvene the House at a time other than that previously appointed, within the limits of clause 4, section 5, article I of the Constitution, and notify Members accordingly.

(f) The Speaker may name a designee for purposes of paragraphs (c), (d), and (e).

RULE II

OTHER OFFICERS AND OFFICIALS

Elections

1. There shall be elected at the commencement of each Congress, to continue in office until their successors are chosen and qualified, a Clerk, a Sergeant-at-Arms, a Chief Administrative Officer, and a Chaplain. Each of these officers shall take an oath to support the Constitution of the United States, and for the true and faithful exercise of the duties of the office to the best of the knowledge and ability of the officer, and to keep the secrets of the House. Each of these officers shall appoint all of the employees of the department concerned provided for by law. The Clerk, Sergeant-at-Arms, and Chief Administrative Officer may be removed by the House or by the Speaker.

Clerk

2. (a) At the commencement of the first session of each Congress, the Clerk shall call the Members, Delegates, and Resident Commissioner to order and proceed to record their presence by States in alphabetical order, either by call of the roll or by use of the electronic voting system. Pending the election of a Speaker or Speaker pro tempore, and in the absence of a Member acting as Speaker pro tempore pursuant to clause 8(b)(3)(A) of rule I, the Clerk shall preserve order and decorum and decide all questions of order, subject to appeal by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner.

(b) At the commencement of every regular session of Congress, the Clerk shall make and cause to be delivered to each Member, Delegate, and the Resident Commissioner a list of the reports that any officer or Department is required to make to Congress, citing the law or resolution in which the requirement may be contained and placing under the name of each officer the list of reports required to be made by such officer.

(c) The Clerk shall—

(1) note all questions of order, with the decisions thereon, the record of which shall be appended to the Journal of each session;

(2) enter on the Journal the hour at which the House adjourns;

(3) complete the distribution of the Journal to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner, together with an accurate and complete index, as soon as possible after the close of a session; and

(4) send a copy of the Journal to the executive of and to each branch of the legislature of every State as may be requested by such State officials.

(d)(1) The Clerk shall attest and affix the seal of the House to all writs, warrants, and subpoenas issued by order of the House and certify the passage of all bills and joint resolutions.

(2) The Clerk shall examine all bills, amendments, and joint resolutions after passage by the House and, in cooperation with the Senate, examine all bills and joint resolutions that have passed both Houses to see that they are correctly enrolled and forthwith present those bills and joint resolutions that originated in the House to the President in person after their signature by the Speaker and the President of the Senate, and report to the House the fact and date of their presentment.

(e) The Clerk shall cause the calendars of the House to be distributed each legislative day.

(f) The Clerk shall—

(1) retain in the library at the Office of the Clerk for the use of the Members, Delegates, Resident Commissioner, and officers of the House, and not to be withdrawn therefrom, two copies of all the books and printed documents deposited there; and

(2) deliver to any Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner an extra copy of each document requested by that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner that has been printed by order of either House of Congress in any Congress in which the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner served.

(g) The Clerk shall provide for the temporary absence or disability of the Clerk by designating an official in the Office of the Clerk to sign all papers that may require the official signature of the Clerk and to perform all other official acts that the Clerk may be required to perform under the rules and practices of the House, except such official acts as are provided for by statute. Official acts performed by the designated official shall be under the name of the Clerk. The designation shall be in writing and shall be laid before the House and entered on the Journal.

(h) The Clerk may receive messages from the President and from the Senate at any time when the House is in recess or adjournment.

(i)(1) The Clerk shall supervise the staff and manage the office of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who has died, resigned, or been expelled until a successor is elected. The Clerk shall perform similar duties in the event that a vacancy is declared by the House in any congressional district because of the incapacity of the person representing such district or other reason. When acting as a supervisory authority over such staff, the Clerk shall have authority to terminate employees and, with the approval of the Committee on House Administration, may appoint such staff as is required to operate the office until a successor is elected.

(2) For 60 days following the death of a former Speaker, the Clerk shall maintain on the House payroll, and shall supervise in the same manner, staff appointed under House Resolution 1238, Ninety-first Congress (as enacted into permanent law by chapter VIII of the Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1971) (2 U.S.C. 5128).

(j) In addition to any other reports required by the Speaker or the Committee on House Administration, the Clerk shall report to the Committee on House Administration not later than 45 days following the close of each semiannual period ending on June 30 or on December 31 on the financial and operational status of each function under the jurisdiction of the Clerk. Each report shall include financial statements and a description or explanation of current operations, the implementation of new policies and procedures, and future plans for each function.

(k) The Clerk shall fully cooperate with the appropriate offices and persons in the performance of reviews and audits of financial records and administrative operations.

Sergeant-at-Arms

3. (a) The Sergeant-at-Arms shall attend the House during its sittings and maintain order under the direction of the Speaker or other presiding officer. The Sergeant-at-Arms shall execute the commands of the House, and all processes issued by authority thereof, directed to the Sergeant-at-Arms by the Speaker.

(b) The symbol of the Office of the Sergeant-at-Arms shall be the mace, which shall be borne by the Sergeant-at-Arms while enforcing order on the floor.

(c) The Sergeant-at-Arms shall enforce strictly the rules relating to the privileges of the Hall of the House and be responsible to the House for the official conduct of employees of the Office of the Sergeant-at-Arms.

(d) The Sergeant-at-Arms may not allow a person to enter the room over the Hall of the House during its sittings and, from 15 minutes before the hour of the meeting of the House each day until 10 minutes after adjournment, shall see that the floor is cleared of all persons except those privileged to remain.

(e) In addition to any other reports required by the Speaker or the Committee on House Administration, the Sergeant-at-Arms shall report to the Committee on House Administration not later than 45 days following the close of each semiannual period ending on June 30 or on December 31 on the financial and operational status of each function under the jurisdiction of the Sergeant-at-Arms. Each report shall include financial statements and a description or explanation of current operations, the implementation of new policies and procedures, and future plans for each function.

(f) The Sergeant-at-Arms shall fully cooperate with the appropriate offices and persons in the performance of reviews and audits of financial records and administrative operations.

(g)(1) The Sergeant-at-Arms is authorized and directed to impose a fine against a Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner for the use of an electronic device for still photography or for audio or visual recording or broadcasting in contravention of clause 5 of rule XVII and any applicable Speaker's announced policy on electronic devices.

(2) A fine imposed pursuant to this paragraph shall be $500 for a first offense and $2,500 for any subsequent offense.

(3)(A) The Sergeant-at-Arms shall promptly notify the Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner, the Speaker, the Chief Administrative Officer, and the Committee on Ethics of any such fine.

(B) Such Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may appeal the fine in writing to the Committee on Ethics not later than 30 calendar days or five legislative days, whichever is later, after notification pursuant to subdivision (A).

(C) Upon receipt of an appeal pursuant to subdivision (B), the Committee on Ethics shall have 30 calendar days or five legislative days, whichever is later, to either dismiss the fine or allow it to proceed. Upon a determination regarding the appeal or if no appeal has been filed at the expiration of the period specified in subdivision (B), the chair of the Committee on Ethics shall promptly notify the Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner, the Speaker and the Chief Administrative Officer. The Speaker shall promptly lay such notification before the House.

(4) The Sergeant-at-Arms and the Committee on Ethics are authorized to establish policies and procedures for the implementation of this paragraph.

Chief Administrative Officer

4. (a) The Chief Administrative Officer shall have operational and financial responsibility for functions as assigned by the Committee on House Administration and shall be subject to the policy direction and oversight of the Committee on House Administration.

(b) In addition to any other reports required by the Committee on House Administration, the Chief Administrative Officer shall report to the Committee on House Administration not later than 45 days following the close of each semiannual period ending on June 30 or December 31 on the financial and operational status of each function under the jurisdiction of the Chief Administrative Officer. Each report shall include financial statements and a description or explanation of current operations, the implementation of new policies and procedures, and future plans for each function.

(c) The Chief Administrative Officer shall fully cooperate with the appropriate offices and persons in the performance of reviews and audits of financial records and administrative operations.

(d)(1) Upon notification from the chair of the Committee on Ethics pursuant to clause 3(g)(3)(C), the Chief Administrative Officer shall deduct the amount of any fine levied under clause 3(g) from the net salary otherwise due the Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner.

(2) The Chief Administrative Officer is authorized to establish policies and procedures for such salary deductions.

Chaplain

5. The Chaplain shall offer a prayer at the commencement of each day's sitting of the House.

Office of Inspector General

6. (a) There is established an Office of Inspector General.

(b) The Inspector General shall be appointed for a Congress by the Speaker, the Majority Leader, and the Minority Leader, acting jointly.

(c) Subject to the policy direction and oversight of the Committee on House Administration, the Inspector

General shall only—

(1) provide audit, investigative, and advisory services to the House and joint entities in a manner consistent with government-wide standards;

(2) inform the officers or other officials who are the subject of an audit of the results of that audit and suggesting appropriate curative actions;

(3) simultaneously notify the Speaker, the Majority Leader, the Minority Leader, and the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on House Administration in the case of any financial irregularity discovered in the course of carrying out responsibilities under this clause;

(4) simultaneously submit to the Speaker, the Majority Leader, the Minority Leader, and the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations and the Committee on House Administration a report of each audit conducted under this clause; and

(5) report to the Committee on Ethics information involving possible violations by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House of any rule of the House or of any law applicable to the performance of official duties or the discharge of official responsibilities that may require referral to the appropriate Federal or State authorities under clause 3(a)(3) of rule XI.

Office of the Historian

7. There is established an Office of the Historian of the House of Representatives. The Speaker shall appoint and set the annual rate of pay for employees of the Office of the Historian.

Office of General Counsel

8. (a) There is established an Office of General Counsel for the purpose of providing legal assistance and representation to the House. Legal assistance and representation shall be provided without regard to political affiliation. The Speaker shall appoint and set the annual rate of pay for employees of the Office of General Counsel. The Office of General Counsel shall function pursuant to the direction of the Speaker, who shall consult with the Bipartisan Legal Advisory Group.

(b) There is established a Bipartisan Legal Advisory Group composed of the Speaker and the majority and minority leaderships. Unless otherwise provided by the House, the Bipartisan Legal Advisory Group speaks for, and articulates the institutional position of, the House in all litigation matters.

(c) The House, the Speaker, a committee or the chair of a committee authorized during a prior Congress to act in a litigation matter is authorized to act as the successor in interest to the House, the Speaker, such committee or the chair of such committee of a prior Congress, respectively, with respect to such litigation matter, and to take such steps as may be appropriate to ensure continuation of such litigation matter.

RULE III

THE MEMBERS, DELEGATES, AND RESIDENT COMMISSIONER OF PUERTO RICO

Voting

1. Every Member shall be present within the Hall of the House during its sittings, unless excused or necessarily prevented, and shall vote on each question put, unless having a direct personal or pecuniary interest in the event of such question.

2. (a) A Member may not authorize any other person to cast the vote of such Member or record the presence of such Member in the House or the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

(b) No other person may cast a Member's vote or record a Member's presence in the House or the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

Delegates and the Resident Commissioner

3. (a) Each Delegate and the Resident Commissioner shall be elected to serve on standing committees in the same manner as Members and shall possess in such committees the same powers and privileges as the other members of the committee.

(b) The Delegates and the Resident Commissioner may be appointed to any select committee and to any conference committee.

RULE IV

THE HALL OF THE HOUSE

Use and admittance

1. The Hall of the House shall be used only for the legislative business of the House and for caucus and conference meetings of its Members, except when the House agrees to take part in any ceremonies to be observed therein.

2. (a) Only the following persons shall be admitted to the Hall of the House or rooms leading thereto:

(1) Members of Congress, Members-elect, and contestants in election cases during the pendency of their cases on the floor.

(2) The Delegates and the Resident Commissioner.

(3) The President and Vice President of the United States and their private secretaries.

(4) Justices of the Supreme Court.

(5) Elected officers and minority employees nominated as elected officers of the House.

(6) The Parliamentarian.

(7) Staff of committees when business from their committee is under consideration, and staff of the respective party leaderships when so assigned with the approval of the Speaker.

(8) Not more than one person from the staff of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner when that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner has an amendment under consideration (subject to clause 5).

(9) The Architect of the Capitol.

(10) The Librarian of Congress and the assistant in charge of the Law Library.

(11) The Secretary and Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate.

(12) Heads of departments.

(13) Foreign ministers.

(14) Governors of States.

(15) Former Members, Delegates, and Resident Commissioners; former Parliamentarians of the House; and former elected officers and minority employees nominated as elected officers of the House (subject to clause 4).

(16) One attorney to accompany a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who is the respondent in an investigation undertaken by the Committee on Ethics when a recommendation of that committee is under consideration in the House.

(17) Such persons as have, by name, received the thanks of Congress.

(b) The Speaker may not entertain a unanimous consent request or a motion to suspend this clause or clauses 1, 3, 4, or 5.

3. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b), all persons not entitled to the privilege of the floor during the session shall be excluded at all times from the Hall of the House and the cloakrooms.

(b) Until 15 minutes of the hour of the meeting of the House, persons employed in its service, accredited members of the press entitled to admission to the press gallery, and other persons on request of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner by card or in writing, may be admitted to the Hall of the House.

4. (a) A former Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner; a former Parliamentarian of the House; or a former elected officer of the House or former minority employee nominated as an elected officer of the House shall not be entitled to the privilege of admission to the Hall of the House and rooms leading thereto if such individual—

(1) is a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal as those terms are defined in clause 5 of rule XXV;

(2) has any direct personal or pecuniary interest in any legislative measure pending before the House or reported by a committee; or

(3) is in the employ of or represents any party or organization for the purpose of influencing, directly or indirectly, the passage, defeat, or amendment of any legislative proposal.

(b) The Speaker may promulgate regulations to carry out this rule including regulations that exempt ceremonial or educational functions from the restrictions of this clause.

5. A person from the staff of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may be admitted to the Hall of the House or rooms leading thereto under clause 2 only upon prior notice to the Speaker. Such persons, and persons from the staff of committees admitted under clause 2, may not engage in efforts in the Hall of the House or rooms leading thereto to influence Members with regard to the legislation being amended. Such persons are admitted only to advise the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or committee responsible for their admission. A person who violates this clause may be excluded during the session from the Hall of the House and rooms leading thereto by the Speaker.

Gallery

6. (a) The Speaker shall set aside a portion of the west gallery for the use of the President, the members of the Cabinet, justices of the Supreme Court, foreign ministers and suites, and the members of their respective families. The Speaker shall set aside another portion of the same gallery for the accommodation of persons to be admitted on the cards of Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner.

(b) The Speaker shall set aside the southerly half of the east gallery for the use of the families of Members of Congress. The Speaker shall control one bench. On the request of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or Senator, the Speaker shall issue a card of admission to the family of such individual, which may include their visitors. No other person shall be admitted to this section.

Prohibition on campaign contributions

7. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, or any other person entitled to admission to the Hall of the House or rooms leading thereto by this rule, may not knowingly distribute a political campaign contribution in the Hall of the House or rooms leading thereto.

RULE V

BROADCASTING THE HOUSE

1. The Speaker shall administer, direct, and control a system for closed-circuit viewing of floor proceedings of the House in the offices of all Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, and committees and in such other places in the Capitol and the House Office Buildings as the Speaker considers appropriate. Such system may include other communications functions as the Speaker considers appropriate. Any such communications shall be subject to rules and regulations issued by the Speaker.

2. (a) The Speaker shall administer, direct, and control a system for complete and unedited audio and visual broadcasting and recording of the floor proceedings of the House. The Speaker shall provide for the distribution of such broadcasts and recordings to news media, for the storage of audio and video recordings of the proceedings, and for the closed-captioning of the proceedings for hearing-impaired persons.

(b) All television and radio broadcasting stations, networks, services, and systems (including cable systems) that are accredited to the House Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries, and all radio and television correspondents who are so accredited, shall be provided access to the live coverage of the House.

(c) Coverage made available under this clause, including any recording thereof—

(1) may not be used for any partisan political campaign purpose;

(2) may not be used in any commercial advertisement; and

(3) may not be broadcast with commercial sponsorship except as part of a bona fide news program or public affairs documentary program.

3. The Speaker may delegate any of the responsibilities under this rule to such legislative entity as the Speaker considers appropriate.

RULE VI

OFFICIAL REPORTERS AND NEWS MEDIA GALLERIES

Official reporters

1. Subject to the direction and control of the Speaker, the Clerk shall appoint, and may remove for cause, the official reporters of the House, including stenographers of committees, and shall supervise the execution of their duties.

News media galleries

2. A portion of the gallery over the Speaker's chair, as may be necessary to accommodate representatives of the press wishing to report debates and proceedings, shall be set aside for their use. Reputable reporters and correspondents shall be admitted thereto under such regulations as the Speaker may prescribe from time to time. The Standing Committee of Correspondents for the Press Gallery, and the Executive Committee of Correspondents for the Periodical Press Gallery, shall supervise such galleries, including the designation of its employees, subject to the direction and control of the Speaker. The Speaker may admit to the floor, under such regulations as the Speaker may prescribe, not more than one representative of each press association.

3. A portion of the gallery as may be necessary to accommodate reporters of news to be disseminated by radio, television, and similar means of transmission, wishing to report debates and proceedings, shall be set aside for their use. Reputable reporters and correspondents shall be admitted thereto under such regulations as the Speaker may prescribe. The Executive Committee of the Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries shall supervise such gallery, including the designation of its employees, subject to the direction and control of the Speaker. The Speaker may admit to the floor, under such regulations as the Speaker may prescribe, not more than one representative of each media outlet.

RULE VII

RECORDS OF THE HOUSE

Archiving

1. (a) At the end of each Congress, the chair of each committee shall transfer to the Clerk any noncurrent records of such committee, including the subcommittees thereof.

(b) At the end of each Congress, each officer of the House elected under rule II shall transfer to the Clerk any noncurrent records made or acquired in the course of the duties of such officer.

2. The Clerk shall deliver the records transferred under clause 1, together with any other noncurrent records of the House, to the Archivist of the United States for preservation at the National Archives and Records Administration. Records so delivered are the permanent property of the House and remain subject to this rule and any order of the House.

Public availability

3. (a) The Clerk shall authorize the Archivist to make records delivered under clause 2 available for public use, subject to clause 4(b) and any order of the House.

(b)(1) A record shall immediately be made available if it was previously made available for public use by the House or a committee or a subcommittee.

(2) An investigative record that contains personal data relating to a specific living person (the disclosure of which would be an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy), an administrative record relating to personnel, or a record relating to a hearing that was closed under clause 2(g)(2) of rule XI shall be made available if it has been in existence for 50 years.

(3) A record for which a time, schedule, or condition for availability is specified by order of the House shall be made available in accordance with that order. Except as otherwise provided by order of the House, a record of a committee for which a time, schedule, or condition for availability is specified by order of the committee (entered during the Congress in which the record is made or acquired by the committee) shall be made available in accordance with the order of the committee.

(4) A record (other than a record referred to in subparagraph (1), (2), or (3)) shall be made available if it has been in existence for 30 years.

4. (a) A record may not be made available for public use under clause 3 if the Clerk determines that such availability would be detrimental to the public interest or inconsistent with the rights and privileges of the House. The Clerk shall notify in writing the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on House Administration of any such determination.

(b) A determination of the Clerk under paragraph (a) is subject to later orders of the House and, in the case of a record of a committee, later orders of the committee.

5. (a) This rule does not supersede rule VIII or clause 11 of rule X and does not authorize the public disclosure of any record if such disclosure is prohibited by law or executive order of the President.

(b) The Committee on House Administration may prescribe guidelines and regulations governing the applicability and implementation of this rule.

(c) A committee may withdraw from the National Archives and Records Administration any record of the committee delivered to the Archivist under this rule. Such a withdrawal shall be on a temporary basis and for official use of the committee.

Definition of record

6. (a) In this rule the term “record” means any official, permanent record of the House (other than a record of an individual Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner as described in paragraph (b)), including—

(1) with respect to a committee, an official, permanent record of the committee (including any record of a legislative, oversight, or other activity of such committee or a subcommittee thereof); and

(2) with respect to an officer of the House elected under rule II, an official, permanent record made or acquired in the course of the duties of such officer.

(b) Records created, generated, or received by the congressional office of a Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner in the performance of official duties are exclusively the personal property of the individual Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner and such Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner has control over such records.

Withdrawal of papers

7. A memorial or other paper presented to the House may not be withdrawn from its files without its leave. If withdrawn certified copies thereof shall be left in the Office of the Clerk. When an act passes for the settlement of a claim, the Clerk may transmit to the officer charged with the settlement thereof the papers on file in the Office of the Clerk relating to such claim. The Clerk may lend temporarily to an officer or bureau of the executive departments any papers on file in the Office of the Clerk relating to any matter pending before such officer or bureau, taking proper receipt therefor.

RULE VIII

RESPONSE TO SUBPOENAS

1. (a) When a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House is properly served with a judicial subpoena or order, such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee shall comply, consistently with the privileges and rights of the House, with the judicial subpoena or order as hereinafter provided, unless otherwise determined under this rule.

(b) For purposes of this rule, “judicial subpoena or order” means a judicial subpoena or judicial order directing appearance as a witness relating to the official functions of the House or for the production or disclosure of any document relating to the official functions of the House.

2. (a) Upon receipt of a properly served judicial subpoena or order, a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall promptly notify the Speaker in writing of its receipt together with either:

(1) a determination as to whether the issuance of the judicial subpoena or order is a proper exercise of jurisdiction by the court and is consistent with the privileges and rights of the House; or

(2) a statement that such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House intends to make a determination with respect to the matters described in subparagraph (1).

(b) The notification required by paragraph (a) shall promptly be laid before the House by the Speaker.

3. (a) Except as specified in paragraph (b) or otherwise ordered by the House, upon notification to the House that a judicial subpoena or order is a proper exercise of jurisdiction by the court and is consistent with the privileges and rights of the House, the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall comply with the judicial subpoena or order by supplying copies.

(b) Under no circumstances may minutes or transcripts of executive sessions, or evidence of witnesses in respect thereto, be disclosed or copied. During a period of recess or adjournment of longer than three days, the Speaker may authorize compliance or take such other action as the Speaker considers appropriate under the circumstances. Upon the reconvening of the House, all matters that transpired under this clause shall promptly be laid before the House by the Speaker.

4. Nothing in this rule shall be construed to deprive, condition, or waive the constitutional or legal privileges or rights applicable or available at any time to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, or of the House itself, or the right of such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee, or of the House itself, to assert such privileges or rights before a court in the United States.

RULE IX

QUESTIONS OF PRIVILEGE

1. Questions of privilege shall be, first, those affecting the rights of the House collectively, its safety, dignity, and the integrity of its proceedings; and second, those affecting the rights, reputation, and conduct of Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner, individually, in their representative capacity only.

2. (a)(1) A resolution reported as a question of the privileges of the House, or offered from the floor by the Majority Leader or the Minority Leader as a question of the privileges of the House, or offered as privileged under clause 1, section 7, article I of the Constitution, shall have precedence of all other questions except motions to adjourn. A resolution offered from the floor by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner other than the Majority Leader or the Minority Leader as a question of the privileges of the House shall have precedence of all other questions except motions to adjourn only at a time or place, designated by the Speaker, in the legislative schedule within two legislative days after the day on which the proponent announces to the House an intention to offer the resolution and the form of the resolution. Oral announcement of the form of the resolution may be dispensed with by unanimous consent.

(2) The time allotted for debate on a resolution offered from the floor as a question of the privileges of the House shall be equally divided between (A) the proponent of the resolution, and (B) the Majority Leader, the Minority Leader, or a designee, as determined by the Speaker.

(b) A question of personal privilege shall have precedence of all other questions except motions to adjourn.

RULE X

Committees and their legislative jurisdictions

1. There shall be in the House the following standing committees, each of which shall have the jurisdiction and related functions assigned by this clause and clauses 2, 3, and 4. General oversight responsibilities

- 2. (a) The various standing committees shall have general oversight responsibilities as provided in paragraph (b) in order to assist the House in—
 - (1) its analysis, appraisal, and evaluation of—
 - (A) the application, administration, execution, and effectiveness of Federal laws; and

(B) conditions and circumstances that may indicate the necessity or desirability of enacting new or additional legislation; and

(2) its formulation, consideration, and enactment of changes in Federal laws, and of such additional legislation as may be necessary or appropriate.

(b)(1) In order to determine whether laws and programs addressing subjects within the jurisdiction of a committee are being implemented and carried out in accordance with the intent of Congress and whether they should be continued, curtailed, or eliminated, each standing committee (other than the Committee on Appropriations) shall review and study on a continuing basis—

(A) the application, administration, execution, and effectiveness of laws and programs addressing subjects within its jurisdiction;

(B) the organization and operation of Federal agencies and entities having responsibilities for the administration and execution of laws and programs addressing subjects within its jurisdiction;

(C) any conditions or circumstances that may indicate the necessity or desirability of enacting new or additional legislation addressing subjects within its jurisdiction (whether or not a bill or resolution has been introduced with respect thereto); and

(D) future research and forecasting on subjects within its jurisdiction.

(2) Each committee to which subparagraph (1) applies having more than 20 members shall establish an oversight subcommittee, or require its subcommittees to conduct oversight in their respective jurisdictions, to assist in carrying out its responsibilities under this clause. The establishment of an oversight subcommittee does not limit the responsibility of a subcommittee with legislative jurisdiction in carrying out its oversight responsibilities.

(c) Each standing committee shall review and study on a continuing basis the impact or probable impact of tax policies affecting subjects within its jurisdiction as described in clauses 1 and 3.

(d)(1) Not later than February 15 of the first session of a Congress, each standing committee (other than the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on Ethics, and the Committee on Rules) shall, in a meeting that is open to the public, adopt its authorization and oversight plan for that Congress. Such plan shall be submitted simultaneously to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform, the Committee on House Administration, and the Committee on Appropriations.

(2) Each such plan shall include, with respect to programs and agencies within the committee's jurisdiction, and to the maximum extent practicable—

(A) a list of such programs or agencies with lapsed authorizations that received funding in the prior fiscal year or, in the case of a program or agency with a permanent authorization, which has not been subject to a comprehensive review by the committee in the prior three Congresses;

(B) a description of each such program or agency to be authorized in the current Congress;

(C) a description of each such program or agency to be authorized in the next Congress, if applicable;

(D) a description of any oversight to support the authorization of each such program or agency in the current Congress; and

(E) recommendations for changes to existing law for moving such programs or agencies from mandatory funding to discretionary appropriations, where appropriate.

(3) Each such plan may include, with respect to the programs and agencies within the committee's jurisdiction

(A) recommendations for the consolidation or termination of such programs or agencies that are duplicative, unnecessary, or inconsistent with the appropriate roles and responsibilities of the Federal Government;

(B) recommendations for changes to existing law related to Federal rules, regulations, statutes, and court decisions affecting such programs and agencies that are inconsistent with the authorities of the Congress under Article I of the Constitution; and

(C) a description of such other oversight activities as the committee may consider necessary.

(4) In the development of such plan, the chair of each committee shall coordinate with other committees of jurisdiction to ensure that programs and agencies are subject to routine, comprehensive authorization efforts.

(5) Not later than March 31 in the first session of a Congress, after consultation with the Speaker, the Majority Leader, and the Minority Leader, the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform shall report to the House the authorization and oversight plans submitted by committees together with any recommendations that it, or the House leadership group described above, may make to ensure the most effective coordination of authorization and oversight plans and otherwise to achieve the objectives of this clause.

(e) The Speaker, with the approval of the House, may appoint special ad hoc oversight committees for the purpose of reviewing specific matters within the jurisdiction of two or more standing committees.

Special oversight functions

3. (a) The Committee on Appropriations shall conduct such studies and examinations of the organization and operation of executive departments and other executive agencies (including an agency the majority of the stock of which is owned by the United States) as it considers necessary to assist it in the determination of matters within its jurisdiction.

(b) The Committee on Armed Services shall review and study on a continuing basis laws, programs, and Government activities relating to international arms control and disarmament and the education of military dependents in schools.

(c) The Committee on the Budget shall study on a continuing basis the effect on budget outlays of relevant existing and proposed legislation and report the results of such studies to the House on a recurring basis.

(d) The Committee on Education and the Workforce shall review, study, and coordinate on a continuing basis laws, programs, and Government activities relating to domestic educational programs and institutions and programs of student assistance within the jurisdiction of other committees.

(e) The Committee on Energy and Commerce shall review and study on a continuing basis laws, programs, and Government activities relating to nuclear and other energy and nonmilitary nuclear energy research and development including the disposal of nuclear waste.

(f) The Committee on Foreign Affairs shall review and study on a continuing basis laws, programs, and Government activities relating to customs administration, intelligence activities relating to foreign policy, international financial and monetary organizations, and international fishing agreements.

(g)(1) The Committee on Homeland Security shall review and study on a continuing basis all Government activities relating to homeland security, including the interaction of all departments and agencies with the Department of Homeland Security.

(2) In addition, the committee shall review and study on a primary and continuing basis all Government activities, programs and organizations related to homeland security that fall within its primary legislative jurisdiction.

(h) The Committee on Natural Resources shall review and study on a continuing basis laws, programs, and Government activities relating to Native Americans.

(i) The Committee on Oversight and Government Reform shall review and study on a continuing basis the operation of Government activities at all levels with a view to determining their economy and efficiency.

(j) The Committee on Rules shall review and study on a continuing basis the congressional budget process, and the committee shall report its findings and recommendations to the House from time to time.

(k) The Committee on Science, Space, and Technology shall review and study on a continuing basis laws, programs, and Government activities relating to nonmilitary research and development.

(l) The Committee on Small Business shall study and investigate on a continuing basis the problems of all types of small business.

(m) The Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence shall review and study on a continuing basis laws, programs, and activities of the intelligence community and shall review and study on an exclusive basis the sources and methods of entities described in clause 11(b)(1)(A).

Additional functions of committees

4. (a)(1)(A) The Committee on Appropriations shall, within 30 days after the transmittal of the Budget to Congress each year, hold hearings on the Budget as a whole with particular reference to—

(i) the basic recommendations and budgetary policies of the President in the presentation of the Budget; and

(ii) the fiscal, financial, and economic assumptions used as bases in arriving at total estimated expenditures and receipts.

(B) In holding hearings under subdivision (A), the committee shall receive testimony from the Secretary of the Treasury, the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, the Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, and such other persons as the committee may desire.

(C) A hearing under subdivision (A), or any part thereof, shall be held in open session, except when the committee, in open session and with a quorum present, determines by record vote that the testimony to be taken at that hearing on that day may be related to a matter of national security. The committee may by the same procedure close one subsequent day of hearing. A transcript of all such hearings shall be printed and a copy thereof furnished to each Member, Delegate, and the Resident Commissioner.

(D) A hearing under subdivision (A), or any part thereof, may be held before a joint meeting of the committee and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate in accordance with such procedures as the two committees jointly may determine.

(2) Pursuant to section 401(b)(2) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, when a committee reports a bill or joint resolution that provides new entitlement authority as defined in section 3(9) of that Act, and enactment of the bill or joint resolution, as reported, would cause a breach of the committee's pertinent allocation of new budget authority under section 302(a) of that Act, the bill or joint resolution may be referred to the Committee on Appropriations with instructions to report it with recommendations (which may include an amendment limiting the total amount of new entitlement authority provided in the bill or joint resolution). If the Committee on Appropriations fails to report a bill or joint resolution so referred within 15 calendar days (not counting any day on which the House is not in session), the committee automatically shall be discharged from consideration of the bill or joint resolution, and the bill or joint resolution shall be placed on the appropriate calendar.

(3) In addition, the Committee on Appropriations shall study on a continuing basis those provisions of law that (on the first day of the first fiscal year for which the congressional budget process is effective) provide spending authority or permanent budget authority and shall report to the House from time to time its recommendations for terminating or modifying such provisions.

(4) In the manner provided by section 302 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the Committee on Appropriations (after consulting with the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate) shall subdivide any allocations made to it in the joint explanatory statement accompanying the conference report on such concurrent resolution, and promptly report the subdivisions to the House as soon as practicable after a concurrent resolution on the budget for a fiscal year is agreed to.

(b) The Committee on the Budget shall—

(1) review on a continuing basis the conduct by the Congressional Budget Office of its functions and duties;

(2) hold hearings and receive testimony from Members, Senators, Delegates, the Resident

Commissioner, and such appropriate representatives of Federal departments and agencies, the general public, and national organizations as it considers desirable in developing concurrent resolutions on the budget for each fiscal year;

(3) make all reports required of it by the Congressional Budget Act of 1974;

(4) study on a continuing basis those provisions of law that exempt Federal agencies or any of their activities or outlays from inclusion in the Budget of the United States Government, and report to the House from time to time its recommendations for terminating or modifying such provisions;

(5) study on a continuing basis proposals designed to improve and facilitate the congressional budget process, and report to the House from time to time the results of such studies, together with its recommendations; and

(6) request and evaluate continuing studies of tax expenditures, devise methods of coordinating tax expenditures, policies, and programs with direct budget outlays, and report the results of such studies to the House on a recurring basis.

(c)(1) The Committee on Oversight and Government Reform shall—

(A) receive and examine reports of the Comptroller General of the United States and submit to the House

such recommendations as it considers necessary or desirable in connection with the subject matter of the reports;

(B) evaluate the effects of laws enacted to reorganize the legislative and executive branches of the Government; and

(C) study intergovernmental relationships between the United States and the States and municipalities and between the United States and international organizations of which the United States is a member.

(2) In addition to its duties under subparagraph (1), the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform may at any time conduct investigations of any matter without regard to clause 1, 2, 3, or this clause conferring jurisdiction over the matter to another standing committee. The findings and recommendations of the committee in such an investigation shall be made available to any other standing committee having jurisdiction over the matter involved.

(3)(A) The Committee on Oversight and Government Reform may adopt a rule authorizing and regulating the taking of depositions by a member or counsel of the committee, including pursuant to subpoena under clause 2(m) of rule XI (which hereby is made applicable for such purpose).

(B) A rule adopted by the committee pursuant to this subparagraph—

(i) may provide that a deponent be directed to subscribe an oath or affirmation before a person authorized by law to administer the same;

(ii) shall ensure that the minority members and staff of the committee are accorded equitable treatment with respect to notice of and a reasonable opportunity to participate in any proceeding conducted thereunder; and

(iii) shall, unless waived by the deponent, require the attendance of a member of the committee.

(C) Information secured pursuant to the authority described in subdivision (A) shall retain the character of discovery until offered for admission in evidence before the committee, at which time any proper objection shall be timely.

(d)(1) The Committee on House Administration shall—

(A) provide policy direction for the Chief Administrative Officer and the Inspector General and oversight of the Clerk, Sergeant-at-Arms, Chief Administrative Officer, and Inspector General;

(B) oversee the management of services provided to the House by the Architect of the Capitol, except those services that lie within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure under clause 1(r);

(C) have the function of accepting on behalf of the House a gift, except as otherwise provided by law, if the gift does not involve a duty, burden, or condition, or is not made dependent on some future performance by the House;

(D) promulgate regulations to carry out subdivision (C); and

(E) establish and maintain standards for making documents publicly available in electronic form by the House and its committees.

(2) An employing office of the House may enter into a settlement of a complaint under the Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 that provides for the payment of funds only after receiving the joint approval of the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on House Administration concerning the amount of such payment.

(e)(1) Each standing committee shall, in its consideration of all public bills and public joint resolutions within its jurisdiction, ensure that appropriations for continuing programs and activities of the Federal Government and the government of the District of Columbia will be made annually to the maximum extent feasible and consistent with the nature, requirement, and objective of the programs and activities involved. In this subparagraph programs and activities of the Federal Government and the government of the District of Columbia includes programs and activities of any department, agency, establishment, wholly owned

Government corporation, or instrumentality of the Federal Government or of the government of the District of Columbia.

(2) Each standing committee shall review from time to time each continuing program within its jurisdiction for which appropriations are not made annually to ascertain whether the program should be modified to provide for annual appropriations.

Budget Act responsibilities

(f)(1) Each standing committee shall submit to the Committee on the Budget not later than six weeks after the submission of the budget by the President, or at such time as the Committee on the Budget may request—

(A) its views and estimates with respect to all matters to be set forth in the concurrent resolution on the budget for the ensuing fiscal year that are within its jurisdiction or functions; and

(B) an estimate of the total amounts of new budget authority, and budget outlays resulting therefrom, to be provided or authorized in all bills and resolutions within its jurisdiction that it intends to be effective during that fiscal year.

(2) The views and estimates submitted by the Committee on Ways and Means under subparagraph (1) shall include a specific recommendation, made after holding public hearings, as to the appropriate level of the public debt that should be set forth in the concurrent resolution on the budget.

Election and membership of standing committees

5. (a)(1) The standing committees specified in clause 1 shall be elected by the House within seven calendar days after the commencement of each Congress, from nominations submitted by the respective party caucus or conference. A resolution proposing to change the composition of a standing committee shall be privileged if offered by direction of the party caucus or conference concerned.

(2)(A) The Committee on the Budget shall be composed of members as follows:

(i) Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner who are members of other standing committees, including five from the Committee on Appropriations, five from the Committee on Ways and Means, and one from the Committee on Rules;

(ii) one Member designated by the elected leadership of the majority party; and

(iii) one Member designated by the elected leadership of the minority party.

(B) Except as permitted by subdivision (C), a member of the Committee on the Budget other than one described in subdivision (A)(ii) or (A)(iii) may not serve on the committee during more than four Congresses in a period of six successive Congresses (disregarding for this purpose any service for less than a full session in a Congress).

(C) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may exceed the limitation of subdivision (B) if elected to serve a second consecutive Congress as the chair or a second consecutive Congress as the ranking minority member.

(3)(A) The Committee on Ethics shall be composed of 10 members, five from the majority party and five from the minority party.

(B) Except as permitted by subdivision (C), a member of the Committee on Ethics may not serve on the committee during more than three Congresses in a period of five successive Congresses (disregarding for this purpose any service for less than a full session in a Congress).

(C) A member of the Committee on Ethics may serve on the committee during a fourth Congress in a period of five successive Congresses only as either the chair or the ranking minority member of the committee.

(4)(A) At the beginning of a Congress, the Speaker or a designee and the Minority Leader or a designee each shall name 10 Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner from the respective party of such individual who are not members of the Committee on Ethics to be available to serve on investigative subcommittees of that committee during that Congress.

The lists of Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner so named shall be announced to the House.

(B) Whenever the chair and the ranking minority member of the Committee on Ethics jointly determine that Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner named under subdivision (A) should be assigned to serve on an investigative subcommittee of that committee, each of them shall select an equal number of such Members, Delegates, or Resident Commissioner from the respective party of such individual to serve on that subcommittee.

(b)(1) Membership on a standing committee during the course of a Congress shall be contingent on continuing membership in the party caucus or conference that nominated the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner concerned for election to such committee. Should a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner cease to be a member of a particular party caucus or conference, that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall automatically cease to be a member of each standing committee to which elected on the basis of nomination by that caucus or conference. The chair of the relevant party caucus or conference shall notify the Speaker whenever a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner ceases to be a member of that caucus or conference. The Speaker shall notify the chair of each affected committee that the election of such Member,

Delegate, or Resident Commissioner to the committee is automatically vacated under this subparagraph.

(2)(A) Except as specified in subdivision (B), a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not serve simultaneously as a member of more than two standing committees or more than four subcommittees of the standing committees.

(B)(i) Ex officio service by a chair or ranking minority member of a committee on each of its subcommittees under a committee rule does not count against the limitation on subcommittee service.

(ii) Service on an investigative subcommittee of the Committee on Ethics under paragraph (a)(4) does not count against the limitation on subcommittee service.

(iii) Any other exception to the limitations in subdivision (A) may be approved by the House on the recommendation of the relevant party caucus or conference.

(C) In this subparagraph the term “subcommittee” includes a panel (other than a special oversight panel of the Committee on Armed Services), task force, special subcommittee, or other subunit of a standing committee that is established for a cumulative period longer than six months in a Congress.

(c)(1) One of the members of each standing committee shall be elected by the House, on the nomination of the majority party caucus or conference, as chair thereof. In the absence of the member serving as chair, the member next in rank (and so on, as often as the case shall happen) shall act as chair. Rank shall be determined by the order members are named in resolutions electing them to the committee. In the case of a vacancy in the elected chair of a committee, the House shall elect another chair.

(2) Except in the case of the Committee on Rules, a member of a standing committee may not serve as chair of the same standing committee, or of the same subcommittee of a standing committee, during more than three consecutive Congresses (disregarding for this purpose any service for less than a full session in a Congress).

(d)(1) Except as permitted by subparagraph (2), a committee may have not more than five subcommittees.

(2)(A) A committee that maintains a subcommittee on oversight may have not more than six subcommittees.

(B) The Committee on Appropriations may have not more than 13 subcommittees.

(C) The Committee on Armed Services may have not more than seven subcommittees.

(D) The Committee on Foreign Affairs may have not more than seven subcommittees.

(E) The Committee on Oversight and Government Reform may have not more than seven subcommittees.

(F) The Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure may have not more than six subcommittees.

(e) The House shall fill a vacancy on a standing committee by election on the nomination of the respective party caucus or conference.

Expense resolutions

6. (a) Whenever a committee, commission, or other entity (other than the Committee on Appropriations) is granted authorization for the payment of its expenses (including staff salaries) for a Congress, such authorization initially shall be procured by one primary expense resolution reported by the Committee on House Administration. A primary expense resolution may include a reserve fund for unanticipated expenses of committees. An amount from such a reserve fund may be allocated to a committee only by the approval of the Committee on House Administration. A primary expense resolution reported to the House may not be considered in the House unless a printed report thereon was available on the previous calendar day. For the information of the House, such report shall—

(1) state the total amount of the funds to be provided to the committee, commission, or other entity under the primary expense resolution for all anticipated activities and programs of the committee, commission, or other entity; and

(2) to the extent practicable, contain such general statements regarding the estimated foreseeable expenditures for the respective anticipated activities

and programs of the committee, commission, or other entity as may be appropriate to provide the House with basic estimates of the expenditures contemplated by the primary expense resolution.

(b) After the date of adoption by the House of a primary expense resolution for a committee, commission, or other entity for a Congress, authorization for the payment of additional expenses (including staff salaries) in that Congress may be procured by one or more supplemental expense resolutions reported by the Committee on House Administration, as necessary. A supplemental expense resolution reported to the House may not be considered in the House unless a printed report thereon was available on the previous calendar day. For the information of the House, such report shall—

(1) state the total amount of additional funds to be provided to the committee, commission, or other entity under the supplemental expense resolution and the purposes for which those additional funds are available; and

(2) state the reasons for the failure to procure the additional funds for the committee, commission, or other entity by means of the primary expense resolution.

(c) The preceding provisions of this clause do not apply to—

(1) a resolution providing for the payment from committee salary and expense accounts of the House of sums necessary to pay compensation for staff services performed for, or to pay other expenses of, a committee, commission, or other entity at any time after the beginning of an odd-numbered year and before the date of adoption by the House of the primary expense resolution described in paragraph (a) for that year; or

(2) a resolution providing each of the standing committees in a Congress additional office equipment, airmail and special-delivery postage stamps, supplies, staff personnel, or any other specific item for the operation of the standing committees, and containing an authorization for the payment from committee salary and expense accounts of the House of the expenses of any of the foregoing items provided by that resolution, subject to and until enactment of the provisions of the resolution as permanent law.

(d) From the funds made available for the appointment of committee staff by a primary or additional expense resolution, the chair of each committee shall ensure that sufficient staff is made available to each subcommittee to carry out its responsibilities under the rules of the committee and that the minority party is treated fairly in the appointment of such staff.

(e) Funds authorized for a committee under this clause and clauses 7 and 8 are for expenses incurred in the activities of the committee.

Interim funding

7. (a) For the period beginning at noon on January 3 and ending at midnight on March 31 in each odd-numbered year, such sums as may be necessary shall be paid out of the committee salary and expense accounts of the House for continuance of necessary investigations and studies by—

(1) each standing and select committee established by these rules; and

(2) except as specified in paragraph (b), each select committee established by resolution.

(b) In the case of the first session of a Congress, amounts shall be made available for a select committee established by resolution in the preceding Congress only if—

(1) a resolution proposing to reestablish such select committee is introduced in the present Congress; and

(2) the House has not adopted a resolution of the preceding Congress providing for termination of funding for investigations and studies by such select committee.

(c) Each committee described in paragraph (a) shall be entitled for each month during the period specified in paragraph (a) to 9 percent (or such lesser percentage as may be determined by the Committee on House Administration) of the total annualized amount made available under expense resolutions for such committee in the preceding session of Congress.

(d) Payments under this clause shall be made on vouchers authorized by the committee involved, signed by the chair of the committee, except as provided in paragraph (e), and approved by the Committee on House Administration.

(e) Notwithstanding any provision of law, rule of the House, or other authority, from noon on January 3 of the first session of a Congress until the election by the House of the committee concerned in that Congress, payments under this clause shall be made on vouchers signed by the ranking member of the committee as it was constituted at the expiration of the preceding Congress who is a member of the majority party in the present Congress.

(f)(1) The authority of a committee to incur expenses under this clause shall expire upon adoption by the House of a primary expense resolution for the committee.

(2) Amounts made available under this clause shall be expended in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Committee on House Administration.

(3) This clause shall be effective only insofar as it is not inconsistent with a resolution reported by the Committee on House Administration and adopted by the House after the adoption of these rules.

Travel

8. (a) Local currencies owned by the United States shall be made available to the committee and its employees engaged in carrying out their official duties outside the United States or its territories or possessions. Appropriated funds, including those authorized under this clause and clause 6, may not be expended for the purpose of defraying expenses of members of a committee or its employees in a country where local currencies are available for this purpose.

(b) The following conditions shall apply with respect to travel outside the United States or its territories or possessions:

(1) A member or employee of a committee may not receive or expend local currencies for subsistence in a country for a day at a rate in excess of the maximum per diem set forth in applicable Federal law.

(2) A member or employee shall be reimbursed for the expenses of such individual for a day at the lesser of

(A) the per diem set forth in applicable Federal law; or

(B) the actual, unreimbursed expenses (other than for transportation) incurred during that day.

(3) Each member or employee of a committee shall make to the chair of the committee an itemized report showing the dates each country was visited, the amount of per diem furnished, the cost of transportation furnished, and funds expended for any other official purpose and shall summarize in these categories the total foreign currencies or appropriated funds expended. Each report shall be filed with the chair of the committee not later than 60 days following the completion of travel for use in complying with reporting requirements in applicable Federal law and shall be open for public inspection.

(c)(1) In carrying out the activities of a committee outside the United States in a country where local currencies are unavailable, a member or employee of a committee may not receive reimbursement for expenses (other than for transportation) in excess of the maximum per diem set forth in applicable Federal law.

(2) A member or employee shall be reimbursed for the expenses of such individual for a day, at the lesser of—

(A) the per diem set forth in applicable Federal law;
or

(B) the actual unreimbursed expenses (other than for transportation) incurred during that day.

(3) A member or employee of a committee may not receive reimbursement for the cost of any transportation in connection with travel outside the United States unless the member or employee actually paid for the transportation.

(d) The restrictions respecting travel outside the United States set forth in paragraph (c) also shall apply to travel outside the United States by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House authorized under any standing rule.

Committee staffs

9. (a)(1) Subject to subparagraph (2) and paragraph (f), each standing committee may appoint, by majority vote, not more than 30 professional staff members to be compensated from the funds provided for the appointment of committee staff by primary and additional expense resolutions. Each professional staff member appointed under this subparagraph shall be assigned to the chair and the ranking minority member of the committee, as the committee considers advisable.

(2) Subject to paragraph (f) whenever a majority of the minority party members of a standing committee (other than the Committee on Ethics or the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence) so request, not more than 10 persons (or one-third of the total professional committee staff appointed under this clause, whichever is fewer) may be selected, by majority vote of the minority party members, for appointment by the committee as professional staff members under subparagraph (1). The committee shall appoint persons so selected whose character and qualifications are acceptable to a majority of the committee. If the committee determines that the character and qualifications of a person so selected are unacceptable, a majority of the minority party members may select another person for appointment by the committee to the professional staff until such appointment is made. Each professional staff member appointed under this subparagraph shall be assigned to such committee business as the minority party members of the committee consider advisable.

(b)(1) The professional staff members of each standing committee—

(A) may not engage in any work other than committee business during congressional working hours; and

(B) may not be assigned a duty other than one pertaining to committee business.

(2)(A) Subparagraph (1) does not apply to staff designated by a committee as “associate” or “shared” staff who are not paid exclusively by the committee, provided that the chair certifies that the compensation paid by the committee for any such staff is commensurate with the work performed for the committee in accordance with clause 8 of rule XXIII.

(B) The use of any “associate” or “shared” staff by a committee other than the Committee on Appropriations shall be subject to the review of, and to any terms, conditions, or limitations established by, the Committee on House Administration in connection with the reporting of any primary or additional expense resolution.

(c) Each employee on the professional or investigative staff of a standing committee shall be entitled to pay at a single gross per annum rate, to be fixed by the chair and that does not exceed the maximum rate of pay as in effect from time to time under applicable provisions of law.

(d) Subject to appropriations hereby authorized, the Committee on Appropriations may appoint by majority vote such staff as it determines to be necessary (in addition to the clerk of the committee and assistants for the minority). The staff appointed under this paragraph, other than minority assistants, shall possess such qualifications as the committee may prescribe.

(e) A committee may not appoint to its staff an expert or other personnel detailed or assigned from a department or agency of the Government except with the written permission of the Committee on House Administration.

(f) If a request for the appointment of a minority professional staff member under paragraph (a) is made when no vacancy exists for such an appointment, the committee nevertheless may appoint under paragraph (a) a person selected by the minority and acceptable to the committee. A person so appointed shall serve as an additional member of the professional staff of the committee until such a vacancy occurs (other than a vacancy in the position of head of the professional staff, by whatever title designated), at which time that person is considered as appointed to that vacancy. Such a person shall be paid from the applicable accounts of the House described in clause 1(k)(1) of rule X. If such a vacancy occurs on the professional staff when seven or more persons have been so appointed who are eligible to fill that vacancy, a majority of the minority party members shall designate which of those persons shall fill the vacancy.

(g) Each staff member appointed pursuant to a request by minority party members under paragraph (a), and each staff member appointed to assist minority members of a committee pursuant to an expense resolution described in clause 6(a), shall be accorded equitable treatment with respect to the fixing of the rate of pay, the assignment of work facilities, and the accessibility of committee records.

(h) Paragraph (a) may not be construed to authorize the appointment of additional professional staff members of a committee pursuant to a request under paragraph (a) by the minority party members of that committee if 10 or more professional staff members provided for in paragraph (a)(1) who are satisfactory to a majority of the minority party members are otherwise assigned to assist the minority party members.

(i) Notwithstanding paragraph (a)(2), a committee may employ nonpartisan staff, in lieu of or in addition to committee staff designated exclusively for the majority or minority party, by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the majority party and of a majority of the members of the minority party.

Select and joint committees

10. (a) Membership on a select or joint committee appointed by the Speaker under clause 11 of rule I during the course of a Congress shall be contingent on continuing membership in the party caucus or conference of which the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner concerned was a member at the time of appointment. Should a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner cease to be a member of that caucus or conference, that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall automatically cease to be a member of any select or joint committee to which assigned. The chair of the relevant party caucus or conference shall notify the Speaker whenever a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner ceases to be a member of a party caucus or conference. The Speaker shall notify the chair of each affected select or joint committee that the appointment of such Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner to the select or joint committee is automatically vacated under this paragraph.

(b) Each select or joint committee, other than a conference committee, shall comply with clause 2(a) of rule XI unless specifically exempted by law.

Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence

11. (a)(1) There is established a Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence (hereafter in this clause referred to as the “select committee”). The select committee shall be composed of not more than 22 Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner, of whom not more than 13 may be from the same party. The select committee shall include at least one Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner from each of the following committees:

- (A) the Committee on Appropriations;
- (B) the Committee on Armed Services;
- (C) the Committee on Foreign Affairs; and
- (D) the Committee on the Judiciary.

(2) The Speaker and the Minority Leader shall be ex officio members of the select committee but shall have no vote in the select committee and may not be counted for purposes of determining a quorum thereof.

(3) The Speaker and Minority Leader each may designate a respective leadership staff member to assist in the capacity of the Speaker or Minority Leader as ex officio member, with the same access to committee meetings, hearings, briefings, and materials as employees of the select committee and subject to the same security clearance and confidentiality requirements as employees of the select committee under this clause.

(4)(A) Except as permitted by subdivision (B), a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, other than the Speaker or the Minority Leader, may not serve as a member of the select committee during more than four Congresses in a period of six successive Congresses (disregarding for this purpose any service for less than a full session in a Congress).

(B) In the case of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner appointed to serve as the chair or the ranking minority member of the select committee, tenure on the select committee shall not be limited.

(b)(1) There shall be referred to the select committee proposed legislation, messages, petitions, memorials, and other matters relating to the following:

(A) The Central Intelligence Agency, the Director of National Intelligence, and the National Intelligence Program as defined in section 3(6) of the National Security Act of 1947.

(B) Intelligence and intelligence-related activities of all other departments and agencies of the Government, including the tactical intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the Department of Defense.

(C) The organization or reorganization of a department or agency of the Government to the extent that the organization or reorganization relates to a function or activity involving intelligence or intelligence-related activities.

(D) Authorizations for appropriations, both direct and indirect, for the following:

(i) The Central Intelligence Agency, the Director of National Intelligence, and the National Intelligence Program as defined in section 3(6) of the National Security Act of 1947.

(ii) Intelligence and intelligence-related activities of all other departments and agencies of the Government, including the tactical intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the Department of Defense.

(iii) A department, agency, subdivision, or program that is a successor to an agency or program named or referred to in (i) or (ii).

(2) Proposed legislation initially reported by the select committee (other than provisions solely involving matters specified in subparagraph (1)(A) or subparagraph (1)(D) (i)) containing any matter otherwise within the jurisdiction of a standing committee shall be referred by the Speaker to that standing committee. Proposed legislation initially reported by another committee that contains matter within the jurisdiction of the select committee shall be referred by the Speaker to the select committee if requested by the chair of the select committee.

(3) Nothing in this clause shall be construed as prohibiting or otherwise restricting the authority of any other committee to study and review an intelligence or intelligence-related activity to the extent that such activity directly affects a matter otherwise within the jurisdiction of that committee.

(4) Nothing in this clause shall be construed as amending, limiting, or otherwise changing the authority of a standing committee to obtain full and prompt access to the product of the intelligence and intelligence-related activities of a department or agency of the Government relevant to a matter otherwise within the jurisdiction of that committee.

(c)(1) For purposes of accountability to the House, the select committee shall make regular and periodic reports to the House on the nature and extent of the intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the various departments and agencies of the United States. The select committee shall promptly call to the attention of the House, or to any other appropriate committee, a matter requiring the attention of the House or another committee. In making such report, the select committee shall proceed in a manner consistent with paragraph (g) to protect national security.

(2) The select committee shall obtain annual reports from the Director of National Intelligence, the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of State, and the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Such reports shall review the intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the agency or department concerned and the intelligence and intelligence-related activities of foreign countries directed at the United States or its interests. An unclassified version of each report may be made available to the public at the discretion of the select committee. Nothing herein shall be construed as requiring the public disclosure in such reports of the names of persons engaged in intelligence or intelligence-related activities for the United States or the divulging of intelligence methods employed or the sources of information on which the reports are based or the amount of funds authorized to be appropriated for intelligence and intelligence-related activities.

(3) Within six weeks after the President submits a budget under section 1105(a) of title 31, United States Code, or at such time as the Committee on the Budget may request, the select committee shall submit to the Committee on the Budget the views and estimates described in section 301(d) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 regarding matters within the jurisdiction of the select committee.

(d)(1) Except as specified in subparagraph (2), clauses 8(a), (b), and (c) and 9(a), (b), and (c) of this rule, and clauses 1, 2, and 4 of rule XI shall apply to the select committee to the extent not inconsistent with this clause.

(2) Notwithstanding the requirements of the first sentence of clause 2(g)(2) of rule XI, in the presence of the number of members required under the rules of the select committee for the purpose of taking testimony or receiving evidence, the select committee may vote to close a hearing whenever a majority of those present determines that the testimony or evidence would endanger the national security.

(e) An employee of the select committee, or a person engaged by contract or otherwise to perform services for or at the request of the select committee, may not be given access to any classified information by the select committee unless such employee or person has—

(1) agreed in writing and under oath to be bound by the Rules of the House, including the jurisdiction of the Committee on Ethics and of the select committee concerning the security of classified information during and after the period of the employment or contractual agreement of such employee or person with the select committee; and

(2) received an appropriate security clearance, as determined by the select committee in consultation with the Director of National Intelligence, that is commensurate with the sensitivity of the classified information to which such employee or person will be given access by the select committee.

(f) The select committee shall formulate and carry out such rules and procedures as it considers necessary to prevent the disclosure, without the consent of each person concerned, of information in the possession of the select committee that unduly infringes on the privacy or that violates the constitutional rights of such person. Nothing herein shall be construed to prevent the select committee from publicly disclosing classified information in a case in which it determines that national interest in the disclosure of classified information clearly outweighs any infringement on the privacy of a person.

(g)(1) The select committee may disclose publicly any information in its possession after a determination by the select committee that the public interest would be served by such disclosure. With respect to the disclosure of information for which this paragraph requires action by the select committee—

(A) the select committee shall meet to vote on the matter within five days after a member of the select committee requests a vote; and

(B) a member of the select committee may not make such a disclosure before a vote by the select committee on the matter, or after a vote by the select committee on the matter except in accordance with this paragraph.

(2)(A) In a case in which the select committee votes to disclose publicly any information that has been classified under established security procedures, that has been submitted to it by the executive branch, and that the executive branch requests be kept secret, the select committee shall notify the President of such vote.

(B) The select committee may disclose publicly such information after the expiration of a five-day period following the day on which notice of the vote to disclose is transmitted to the President unless, before the expiration of the five-day period, the President, personally in writing, notifies the select committee that the President objects to the disclosure of such information, provides reasons therefor, and certifies that the threat to the national interest of the United States posed by the disclosure is of such gravity that it outweighs any public interest in the disclosure.

(C) If the President, personally in writing, notifies the select committee of objections to the disclosure of information as provided in subdivision (B), the select committee may, by majority vote, refer the question of the disclosure of such information, with a recommendation thereon, to the House. The select committee may not publicly disclose such information without leave of the House.

(D) Whenever the select committee votes to refer the question of disclosure of any information to the House under subdivision (C), the chair shall, not later than the first day on which the House is in session following the day on which the vote occurs, report the matter to the House for its consideration.

(E) If the chair of the select committee does not offer in the House a motion to consider in closed session a matter reported under subdivision (D) within four calendar days on which the House is in session after the recommendation described in subdivision (C) is reported, then such a motion shall be privileged when offered by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner. In either case such a motion shall be decided without debate or intervening motion except one that the House adjourn.

(F) Upon adoption by the House of a motion to resolve into closed session as described in subdivision (E), the Speaker may declare a recess subject to the call of the Chair. At the expiration of the recess, the pending question, in closed session, shall be, "Shall the House approve the recommendation of the select committee?"

(G) Debate on the question described in subdivision (F) shall be limited to two hours equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the select committee. After such debate the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the question of approving the recommendation without intervening motion except one motion that the House adjourn. The House shall vote on the question in open session but without divulging the information with respect to which the vote is taken. If the recommendation of the select committee is not approved, then the question is considered as recommitted to the select committee for further recommendation.

(3)(A) Information in the possession of the select committee relating to the lawful intelligence or intelligence-related activities of a department or agency of the United States that has been classified under established security procedures, and that the select committee has determined should not be disclosed under subparagraph (1) or (2), may not be made available to any person by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House except as provided in subdivision (B).

(B) The select committee shall, under such regulations as it may prescribe, make information described in subdivision (A) available to a committee or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, and permit a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner to attend a hearing of the select committee that is closed to the public. Whenever the select committee makes such information available, it shall keep a written record showing, in the case of particular information, which committee or which Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner received the information. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who, and a committee that, receives information under this subdivision may not disclose the information except in a closed session of the House.

(4) The Committee on Ethics shall investigate any unauthorized disclosure of intelligence or intelligence-related information by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House in violation of subparagraph (3) and report to the House concerning any allegation that it finds to be substantiated.

(5) Upon the request of a person who is subject to an investigation described in subparagraph (4), the Committee on Ethics shall release to such person at the conclusion of its investigation a summary of its investigation, together with its findings. If, at the conclusion of its investigation, the Committee on Ethics determines that there has been a significant breach of confidentiality or unauthorized disclosure by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, it shall report its findings to the House and recommend appropriate action. Recommendations may include censure, removal from committee membership, or expulsion from the House, in the case of a Member, or removal from office or employment or punishment for contempt, in the case of an officer or employee.

(h) The select committee may permit a personal representative of the President, designated by the President to serve as a liaison to the select committee, to attend any closed meeting of the select committee.

(i) Subject to the Rules of the House, funds may not be appropriated for a fiscal year, with the exception of a bill or joint resolution continuing appropriations, or an amendment thereto, or a conference report thereon, to, or for use of, a department or agency of the United States to carry out any of the following activities, unless the funds shall previously have been authorized by a bill or joint resolution passed by the House during the same or preceding fiscal year to carry out such activity for such fiscal year:

(1) The activities of the Director of National Intelligence and the Office of the Director of National Intelligence.

(2) The activities of the Central Intelligence Agency.

(3) The activities of the Defense Intelligence Agency.

(4) The activities of the National Security Agency.

(5) The intelligence and intelligence-related activities of other agencies and subdivisions of the Department of Defense.

(6) The intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the Department of State.

(7) The intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

(8) The intelligence and intelligence-related activities of all other departments and agencies of the executive branch.

(j)(1) In this clause the term “intelligence and intelligence-related activities” includes—

(A) the collection, analysis, production, dissemination, or use of information that relates to a foreign country, or a government, political group, party, military force, movement, or other association in a foreign country, and that relates to the defense, foreign policy, national security, or related policies of the United States and other activity in support of the collection, analysis, production, dissemination, or use of such information;

(B) activities taken to counter similar activities directed against the United States;

(C) covert or clandestine activities affecting the relations of the United States with a foreign government, political group, party, military force, movement, or other association;

(D) the collection, analysis, production, dissemination, or use of information about activities of persons within the United States, its territories and possessions, or nationals of the United States abroad whose political and related activities pose, or may be considered by a department, agency, bureau, office, division, instrumentality, or employee of the United States to pose, a threat to the internal security of the United States; and

(E) covert or clandestine activities directed against persons described in subdivision (D).

(2) In this clause the term “department or agency” includes any organization, committee, council, establishment, or office within the Federal Government.

(3) For purposes of this clause, reference to a department, agency, bureau, or subdivision shall include a reference to any successor department, agency, bureau, or subdivision to the extent that a successor engages in intelligence or intelligence-related activities now conducted by the department, agency, bureau, or subdivision referred to in this clause.

(k) Clause 12(a) of rule XXII does not apply to meetings of a conference committee respecting legislation (or any part thereof) reported by the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence.

RULE XI

PROCEDURES OF COMMITTEES AND UNFINISHED BUSINESS

In general

1. (a)(1)(A) The Rules of the House are the rules of its committees and subcommittees so far as applicable.

(B) Each subcommittee is a part of its committee and is subject to the authority and direction of that committee and to its rules, so far as applicable.

(2)(A) In a committee or subcommittee—

(i) a motion to recess from day to day, or to recess subject to the call of the Chair (within 24 hours), shall be privileged; and

(ii) a motion to dispense with the first reading (in full) of a bill or resolution shall be privileged if printed copies are available.

(B) A motion accorded privilege under this subparagraph shall be decided without debate.

(b)(1) Each committee may conduct at any time such investigations and studies as it considers necessary or appropriate in the exercise of its responsibilities under rule X. Subject to the adoption of expense resolutions as required by clause 6 of rule X, each committee may incur expenses, including travel expenses, in connection with such investigations and studies.

(2) A proposed investigative or oversight report shall be considered as read in committee if it has been available to the members for at least 24 hours (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, or legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day).

(3) A report of an investigation or study conducted jointly by more than one committee may be filed jointly, provided that each of the committees complies independently with all requirements for approval and filing of the report.

(4) After an adjournment sine die of the last regular session of a Congress, an investigative or oversight report may be filed with the Clerk at any time, provided that a member who gives timely notice of intention to file supplemental, minority, additional, or dissenting views shall be entitled to not less than seven calendar days in which to submit such views for inclusion in the report.

(c) Each committee may have printed and bound such testimony and other data as may be presented at hearings held by the committee or its subcommittees. All costs of stenographic services and transcripts in connection with a meeting or hearing of a committee shall be paid from the applicable accounts of the House described in clause 1(k)(1) of rule X.

(d)(1) Not later than January 2 of each odd-numbered year, a committee shall submit to the House a report on the activities of that committee.

(2) Such report shall include—

(A) separate sections summarizing the legislative and oversight activities of that committee under this rule and rule X during the Congress;

(B) a summary of the authorization and oversight plans submitted by the committee under clause 2(d) of rule X;

(C) a summary of the actions taken and recommendations made with respect to the authorization and oversight plans specified in subdivision (B);

(D) a summary of any additional oversight activities undertaken by that committee and any recommendations made or actions taken thereon; and

(E) a delineation of any hearings held pursuant to clauses 2(n), (o), or (p) of this rule.

(3) After an adjournment sine die of the last regular session of a Congress, or after December 15 of an even-numbered year, whichever occurs first, the chair of a committee may file the report described in subparagraph (1) with the Clerk at any time and without approval of the committee, provided that—

(A) a copy of the report has been available to each member of the committee for at least seven calendar days; and

(B) the report includes any supplemental, minority, additional, or dissenting views submitted by a member of the committee.

Adoption of written rules

2. (a)(1) Each standing committee shall adopt written rules governing its procedure. Such rules—

(A) shall be adopted in a meeting that is open to the public unless the committee, in open session and with a quorum present, determines by record vote that all or part of the meeting on that day shall be closed to the public;

(B) may not be inconsistent with the Rules of the House or with those provisions of law having the force and effect of Rules of the House;

(C) shall in any event incorporate all of the succeeding provisions of this clause to the extent applicable; and

(D) shall include provisions to govern the implementation of clause 4 as provided in paragraph (f) of such clause.

(2) Each committee shall make its rules publicly available in electronic form and submit such rules for publication in the Congressional Record not later than 30 days after the chair of the committee is elected in each odd-numbered year.

(3) A committee may adopt a rule providing that the chair be directed to offer a motion under clause 1 of rule XXII whenever the chair considers it appropriate.

Regular meeting days

(b) Each standing committee shall establish regular meeting days for the conduct of its business, which shall be not less frequent than monthly. Each such committee shall meet for the consideration of a bill or resolution pending before the committee or the transaction of other committee business on all regular meeting days fixed by the committee if notice is given pursuant to paragraph (g) (3).

Additional and special meetings

(c)(1) The chair of each standing committee may call and convene, as the chair considers necessary, additional and special meetings of the committee for the consideration of a bill or resolution pending before the committee or for the conduct of other committee business, subject to such rules as the committee may adopt. The committee shall meet for such purpose under that call of the chair.

(2) Three or more members of a standing committee may file in the offices of the committee a written request that the chair call a special meeting of the committee. Such request shall specify the measure or matter to be considered. Immediately upon the filing of the request, the clerk of the committee shall notify the chair of the filing of the request. If the chair does not call the requested special meeting within three calendar days after the filing of the request (to be held within seven calendar days after the filing of the request) a majority of the members of the committee may file in the offices of the committee their written notice that a special meeting of the committee will be held. The written notice shall specify the date and hour of the special meeting and the measure or matter to be considered. The committee shall meet on that date and hour. Immediately upon the filing of the notice, the clerk of the committee shall notify all members of the committee that such special meeting will be held and inform them of its date and hour and the measure or matter to be considered. Such notice shall also be made publicly available in electronic form and shall be deemed to satisfy paragraph (g)(3)(A)(ii). Only the measure or matter specified in that notice may be considered at that special meeting.

Temporary absence of chair

(d) A member of the majority party on each standing committee or subcommittee thereof shall be designated by the chair of the full committee as the vice chair of the committee or subcommittee, as the case may be, and shall preside during the absence of the chair from any meeting. If the chair and vice chair of a committee or subcommittee are not present at any meeting of the committee or subcommittee, the ranking majority member who is present shall preside at that meeting.

Committee records

(e)(1)(A) Each committee shall keep a complete record of all committee action which shall include—

(i) in the case of a meeting or hearing transcript, a substantially verbatim account of remarks actually made during the proceedings, subject only to technical, grammatical, and typographical corrections authorized by the person making the remarks involved; and

(ii) a record of the votes on any question on which a record vote is taken.

(B)(i) Except as provided in subdivision (B)(ii) and subject to paragraph (k)(7), the result of each such record vote shall be made available by the committee for inspection by the public at reasonable times in its offices and also made publicly available in electronic form within 48 hours of such record vote. Information so available shall include a description of the amendment, motion, order, or other proposition, the name of each member voting for and each member voting against such amendment, motion, order, or proposition, and the names of those members of the committee present but not voting.

(ii) The result of any record vote taken in executive session in the Committee on Ethics may not be made available for inspection by the public without an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee.

(2)(A) Except as provided in subdivision (B), all committee records (including hearings, data, charts, and files) shall be kept separate and distinct from the congressional office records of the member serving as its chair. Such records shall be the property of the House, and each Member, Delegate, and the Resident Commissioner shall have access thereto.

(B) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, other than members of the Committee on Ethics, may not have access to the records of that committee respecting the conduct of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House without the specific prior permission of that committee.

(3) Each committee shall include in its rules standards for availability of records of the committee delivered to the Archivist of the United States under rule VII. Such standards shall specify procedures for orders of the committee under clause 3(b)(3) and clause 4(b) of rule

VII, including a requirement that nonavailability of a record for a period longer than the period otherwise applicable under that rule shall be approved by vote of the committee.

(4) Each committee shall make its publications available in electronic form to the maximum extent feasible.

(5) To the maximum extent practicable, each committee shall—

(A) provide audio and video coverage of each hearing or meeting for the transaction of business in a manner that allows the public to easily listen to and view the proceedings; and

(B) maintain the recordings of such coverage in a manner that is easily accessible to the public.

(6) Not later than 24 hours after the adoption of any amendment to a measure or matter considered by a committee, the chair of such committee shall cause the text of each such amendment to be made publicly available in electronic form.

Prohibition against proxy voting

(f) A vote by a member of a committee or subcommittee with respect to any measure or matter may not be cast by proxy.

Open meetings and hearings

(g)(1) Each meeting for the transaction of business, including the markup of legislation, by a standing committee or subcommittee thereof (other than the Committee on Ethics or its subcommittees) shall be open to the public, including to radio, television, and still photography coverage, except when the committee or subcommittee, in open session and with a majority present, determines by record vote that all or part of the remainder of the meeting on that day shall be in executive session because disclosure of matters to be considered would endanger national security, would compromise sensitive law enforcement information, would tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person, or otherwise would violate a law or rule of the House. Persons, other than members of the committee and such noncommittee Members, Delegates, Resident Commissioner, congressional staff, or departmental representatives as the committee may authorize, may not be present at a business or markup session that is held in executive session. This subparagraph does not apply to open committee hearings, which are governed by clause 4(a)(1) of rule X or by subparagraph (2).

(2)(A) Each hearing conducted by a committee or subcommittee (other than the Committee on Ethics or its subcommittees) shall be open to the public, including to radio, television, and still photography coverage, except when the committee or subcommittee, in open session and with a majority present, determines by record vote that all or part of the remainder of that hearing on that day shall be closed to the public because disclosure of testimony, evidence, or other matters to be considered would endanger national security, would compromise sensitive law enforcement information, or would violate a law or rule of the House.

(B) Notwithstanding the requirements of subdivision (A), in the presence of the number of members required under the rules of the committee for the purpose of taking testimony, a majority of those present may—

(i) agree to close the hearing for the sole purpose of discussing whether testimony or evidence to be received would endanger national security, would compromise sensitive law enforcement information, or would violate clause 2(k)(5); or

(ii) agree to close the hearing as provided in clause 2(k)(5).

(C) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not be excluded from nonparticipatory attendance at a hearing of a committee or subcommittee (other than the Committee on Ethics or its subcommittees) unless the House by majority vote authorizes a particular committee or subcommittee, for purposes of a particular series of hearings on a particular article of legislation or on a particular subject of investigation, to close its hearings to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner by the same procedures specified in this subparagraph for closing hearings to the public.

(D) The committee or subcommittee may vote by the same procedure described in this subparagraph to close one subsequent day of hearing, except that the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on Armed Services, the Committee on Homeland Security, and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, and the subcommittees thereof, may vote by the same procedure to close up to five additional, consecutive days of hearings.

(3)(A) The chair of a committee shall announce the date, place, and subject matter of—

- (i) a committee hearing, which may not commence earlier than one week after such notice; or
- (ii) a committee meeting, which may not commence earlier than the third day on which members have notice thereof.

(B) A hearing or meeting may begin sooner than specified in subdivision (A) in either of the following circumstances (in which case the chair shall make the announcement specified in subdivision (A) at the earliest possible time):

- (i) the chair of the committee, with the concurrence of the ranking minority member, determines that there is good cause; or
- (ii) the committee so determines by majority vote in the presence of the number of members required under the rules of the committee for the transaction of business.

(C) An announcement made under this subparagraph shall be published promptly in the Daily Digest and made publicly available in electronic form.

(D) This subparagraph and subparagraph (4) shall not apply to the Committee on Rules.

(4) At least 24 hours prior to the commencement of a meeting for the markup of legislation, or at the time of an announcement under subparagraph (3)(B) made within 24 hours before such meeting, the chair of the committee shall cause the text of such legislation to be made publicly available in electronic form.

(5)(A) Each committee shall, to the greatest extent practicable, require witnesses who appear before it to submit in advance written statements of proposed testimony and to limit their initial presentations to the committee to brief summaries thereof.

(B) In the case of a witness appearing in a nongovernmental capacity, a written statement of proposed testimony shall include a curriculum vitae and a disclosure of any Federal grants or contracts, or contracts or payments originating with a foreign government, received during the current calendar year or either of the two previous calendar years by the witness or by an entity represented by the witness and related to the subject matter of the hearing.

(C) The disclosure referred to in subdivision (B) shall include—

(i) the amount and source of each Federal grant (or subgrant thereof) or contract (or subcontract thereof) related to the subject matter of the hearing; and

(ii) the amount and country of origin of any payment or contract related to the subject matter of the hearing originating with a foreign government.

(D) Such statements, with appropriate redactions to protect the privacy or security of the witness, shall be made publicly available in electronic form not later than one day after the witness appears.

(6)(A) Except as provided in subdivision (B), a point of order does not lie with respect to a measure reported by a committee on the ground that hearings on such measure were not conducted in accordance with this clause.

(B) A point of order on the ground described in subdivision (A) may be made by a member of the committee that reported the measure if such point of order was timely made and improperly disposed of in the committee.

(7) This paragraph does not apply to hearings of the Committee on Appropriations under clause 4(a)(1) of rule X.

Quorum requirements

(h)(1) A measure or recommendation may not be reported by a committee unless a majority of the committee is actually present.

(2) Each committee may fix the number of its members to constitute a quorum for taking testimony and receiving evidence, which may not be less than two.

(3) Each committee (other than the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on the Budget, and the Committee on Ways and Means) may fix the number of its members to constitute a quorum for taking any action other than one for which the presence of a majority of the committee is otherwise required, which may not be less than one-third of the members.

(4)(A) Each committee may adopt a rule authorizing the chair of a committee or subcommittee—

(i) to postpone further proceedings when a record vote is ordered on the question of approving a measure or matter or on adopting an amendment; and

(ii) to resume proceedings on a postponed question at any time after reasonable notice.

(B) A rule adopted pursuant to this subparagraph shall provide that when proceedings resume on a postponed question, notwithstanding any intervening order for the previous question, an underlying proposition shall remain subject to further debate or amendment to the same extent as when the question was postponed.

Limitation on committee sittings

(i) A committee may not sit during a joint session of the House and Senate or during a recess when a joint meeting of the House and Senate is in progress.

Calling and questioning of witnesses

(j)(1) Whenever a hearing is conducted by a committee on a measure or matter, the minority members of the committee shall be entitled, upon request to the chair by a majority of them before the completion of the hearing, to call witnesses selected by the minority to testify with respect to that measure or matter during at least one day of hearing thereon.

(2)(A) Subject to subdivisions (B) and (C), each committee shall apply the five-minute rule during the questioning of witnesses in a hearing until such time as each member of the committee who so desires has had an opportunity to question each witness.

(B) A committee may adopt a rule or motion permitting a specified number of its members to question a witness for longer than five minutes. The time for extended questioning of a witness under this subdivision shall be equal for the majority party and the minority party and may not exceed one hour in the aggregate.

(C) A committee may adopt a rule or motion permitting committee staff for its majority and minority party members to question a witness for equal specified periods. The time for extended questioning of a witness under this subdivision shall be equal for the majority party and the minority party and may not exceed one hour in the aggregate.

Hearing procedures

(k)(1) The chair at a hearing shall announce in an opening statement the subject of the hearing.

(2) A copy of the committee rules and of this clause shall be made available to each witness on request.

(3) Witnesses at hearings may be accompanied by their own counsel for the purpose of advising them concerning their constitutional rights.

(4) The chair may punish breaches of order and decorum, and of professional ethics on the part of counsel, by censure and exclusion from the hearings; and the committee may cite the offender to the House for contempt.

(5) Whenever it is asserted by a member of the committee that the evidence or testimony at a hearing may tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person, or it is asserted by a witness that the evidence or testimony that the witness would give at a hearing may tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate the witness—

(A) notwithstanding paragraph (g)(2), such testimony or evidence shall be presented in executive session if, in the presence of the number of members required under the rules of the committee for the purpose of taking testimony, the committee determines by vote of a majority of those present that such evidence or testimony may tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person; and

(B) the committee shall proceed to receive such testimony in open session only if the committee, a majority being present, determines that such evidence or testimony will not tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person.

In either case the committee shall afford such person an opportunity voluntarily to appear as a witness, and receive and dispose of requests from such person to subpoena additional witnesses.

(6) Except as provided in subparagraph (5), the chair shall receive and the committee shall dispose of requests to subpoena additional witnesses.

(7) Evidence or testimony taken in executive session, and proceedings conducted in executive session, may be released or used in public sessions only when authorized by the committee, a majority being present.

(8) In the discretion of the committee, witnesses may submit brief and pertinent sworn statements in writing for inclusion in the record. The committee is the sole judge of the pertinence of testimony and evidence adduced at its hearing.

(9) A witness may obtain a transcript copy of the testimony of such witness given at a public session or, if given at an executive session, when authorized by the committee.

Supplemental, minority, additional, or dissenting views

(l) If at the time of approval of a measure or matter by a committee (other than the Committee on Rules) a member of the committee gives notice of intention to file supplemental, minority, additional, or dissenting views for inclusion in the report to the House thereon, all members shall be entitled to not less than two additional calendar days after the day of such notice (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) to file such written and signed views with the clerk of the committee.

Power to sit and act; subpoena power

(m)(1) For the purpose of carrying out any of its functions and duties under this rule and rule X (including any matters referred to it under clause 2 of rule XII), a committee or subcommittee is authorized (subject to subparagraph (3)(A))—

(A) to sit and act at such times and places within the United States, whether the House is in session, has recessed, or has adjourned, and to hold such hearings as it considers necessary; and

(B) to require, by subpoena or otherwise, the attendance and testimony of such witnesses and the production of such books, records, correspondence, memoranda, papers, and documents as it considers necessary.

(2) The chair of the committee, or a member designated by the chair, may administer oaths to witnesses.

(3)(A)(i) Except as provided in subdivision (A)(ii), a subpoena may be authorized and issued by a committee or subcommittee under subparagraph (1)(B) in the conduct of an investigation or series of investigations or activities only when authorized by the committee or subcommittee, a majority being present. The power to authorize and issue subpoenas under subparagraph (1)(B) may be delegated to the chair of the committee under such rules and under such limitations as the committee may prescribe. Authorized subpoenas shall be signed by the chair of the committee or by a member designated by the committee.

(ii) In the case of a subcommittee of the Committee on Ethics, a subpoena may be authorized and issued only by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members.

(B) A subpoena duces tecum may specify terms of return other than at a meeting or hearing of the committee or subcommittee authorizing the subpoena.

(C) Compliance with a subpoena issued by a committee or subcommittee under subparagraph (1)(B) may be enforced only as authorized or directed by the House.

(n)(1) Each standing committee, or a subcommittee thereof, shall hold at least one hearing during each 120-day period following the establishment of the committee on the topic of waste, fraud, abuse, or mismanagement in Government programs which that committee may authorize.

(2) A hearing described in subparagraph (1) shall include a focus on the most egregious instances of waste, fraud, abuse, or mismanagement as documented by any report the committee has received from a Federal Office of the Inspector General or the Comptroller General of the United States.

(o) Each committee, or a subcommittee thereof, shall hold at least one hearing in any session in which the committee has received disclaimers of agency financial statements from auditors of any Federal agency that the committee may authorize to hear testimony on such disclaimers from representatives of any such agency.

(p) Each standing committee, or a subcommittee thereof, shall hold at least one hearing on issues raised by reports issued by the Comptroller General of the United States indicating that Federal programs or operations that the committee may authorize are at high risk for waste, fraud, and mismanagement, known as the “high-risk list” or the “high-risk series.”

Committee on Ethics

3. (a) The Committee on Ethics has the following functions:

(1) The committee may recommend to the House from time to time such administrative actions as it may consider appropriate to establish or enforce standards of official conduct for Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, officers, and employees of the House. A letter of reproof or other administrative action of the committee pursuant to an investigation under subparagraph (2) shall only be issued or implemented as a part of a report required by such subparagraph.

(2) The committee may investigate, subject to paragraph (b), an alleged violation by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House of the Code of Official Conduct or of a law, rule, regulation, or other standard of conduct applicable to the conduct of such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee in the performance of the duties or the discharge of the responsibilities of such individual. After notice and hearing (unless the right to a hearing is waived by the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee), the committee shall report to the House its findings of fact and recommendations, if any, for the final disposition of any such investigation and such action as the committee may consider appropriate in the circumstances.

(3) The committee may report to the appropriate Federal or State authorities, either with the approval of the House or by an affirmative vote of two-thirds of the members of the committee, any substantial evidence of a violation by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, of a law applicable to the performance of the duties or the discharge of the responsibilities of such individual that may have been disclosed in a committee investigation.

(4) The committee may consider the request of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House for an advisory opinion with respect to the general propriety of any current or proposed conduct of such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee. With appropriate deletions to ensure the privacy of the person concerned, the committee may publish such opinion for the guidance of other Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, officers, and employees of the House.

(5) The committee may consider the request of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House for a written waiver in exceptional circumstances with respect to clause 4 of rule XXIII.

(6)(A) The committee shall offer annual ethics training to each Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, and employee of the House. Such training shall—

(i) involve the classes of employees for whom the committee determines such training to be appropriate; and

(ii) include such knowledge of the Code of Official Conduct and related House rules as may be determined appropriate by the committee.

(B)(i) A new Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall receive training under this paragraph not later than 60 days after beginning service to the House.

(ii) Not later than January 31 of each year, each officer and employee of the House shall file a certification with the committee that the officer or employee attended ethics training in the last year as established by this subparagraph.

(b)(1)(A) Unless approved by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members, the Committee on Ethics may not report a resolution, report, recommendation, or advisory opinion relating to the official conduct of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, or, except as provided in subparagraph (2), undertake an investigation of such conduct.

(B)(i) Upon the receipt of information offered as a complaint that is in compliance with this rule and the rules of the committee, the chair and ranking minority member jointly may appoint members to serve as an investigative subcommittee.

(ii) The chair and ranking minority member of the committee jointly may gather additional information concerning alleged conduct that is the basis of a complaint or of information offered as a complaint until they have established an investigative subcommittee or either of them has placed on the agenda of the committee the issue of whether to establish an investigative subcommittee.

(2) Except in the case of an investigation undertaken by the committee on its own initiative, the committee may undertake an investigation relating to the official conduct of an individual Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House only—

(A) upon receipt of information offered as a complaint, in writing and under oath, from a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner and transmitted to the committee by such Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner;

(B) upon receipt of information offered as a complaint, in writing and under oath, from a person not a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner provided that a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner certifies in writing to the committee that such Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner believes the information is submitted in good faith and warrants the review and consideration of the committee; or

(C) upon receipt of a report regarding a referral from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics.

If a complaint is not disposed of within the applicable periods set forth in the rules of the Committee on Ethics, the chair and ranking minority member shall establish jointly an investigative subcommittee and forward the complaint, or any portion thereof, to that subcommittee for its consideration. However, if at any time during those periods either the chair or ranking minority member places on the agenda the issue of whether to establish an investigative subcommittee, then an investigative subcommittee may be established only by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee.

(3) The committee may not undertake an investigation of an alleged violation of a law, rule, regulation, or standard of conduct that was not in effect at the time of the alleged violation. The committee may not undertake an investigation of such an alleged violation that occurred before the third previous Congress unless the committee determines that the alleged violation is directly related to an alleged violation that occurred in a more recent Congress.

(4) A member of the committee shall be ineligible to participate as a member of the committee in a committee proceeding relating to the member's official conduct. Whenever a member of the committee is ineligible to act as a member of the committee under the preceding sentence, the Speaker shall designate a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner from the same political party as the ineligible member to act in any proceeding of the committee relating to that conduct.

(5) A member of the committee may seek disqualification from participating in an investigation of the conduct of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House upon the submission in writing and under oath of an affidavit of disqualification stating that the member cannot render an impartial and unbiased decision in the case in which the member seeks to be disqualified. If the committee approves and accepts such affidavit of disqualification, the chair shall so notify the Speaker and request the Speaker to designate a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner from the same political party as the disqualifying member to act in any proceeding of the committee relating to that case.

(6) Information or testimony received, or the contents of a complaint or the fact of its filing, may not be publicly disclosed by any committee or staff member unless specifically authorized in each instance by a vote of the full committee.

(7) The committee shall have the functions designated in titles I and V of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, in sections 7342, 7351, and 7353 of title 5, United States Code, and in clause 11(g)(4) of rule X.

(8)(A) Except as provided by subdivisions (B), (C), and (D), not later than 45 calendar days or 5 legislative days, whichever is later, after receipt of a written report and any findings and supporting documentation regarding a referral from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics or of a referral of the matter from the board

pursuant to a request under paragraph (r), the chair of the Committee on Ethics shall make public the written report and findings of the board unless the chair and ranking member, acting jointly, decide or the committee votes to withhold such information for not more than one additional period of the same duration, in which case the chair shall—

(i) upon the termination of such additional period, make public the written report and findings; and

(ii) upon the day of such decision or vote, make a public statement that the matter, relating to the referral made by the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics regarding the Member, officer, or employee of the House who is the subject of the applicable referral, has been extended.

At least one calendar day before the committee makes public any written report and findings of the board, the chair shall notify such board and the applicable Member, officer, or employee of that fact and transmit to such individual a copy of the statement on the committee's disposition of, and any committee report on, the matter.

(B)(i) Notwithstanding subdivision (A)(i), if the committee votes to dismiss a matter which is the subject of a referral from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics, the committee is not required to make public the written report and findings described in such subdivision unless the committee's vote is inconsistent with the recommendation of the board. For purposes of the previous sentence, a vote by the committee to dismiss a matter is not inconsistent with a report from the board respecting the matter as unresolved due to a tie vote.

(ii) Notwithstanding subdivision (A)(ii), if the board transmits a report respecting any matter with a recommendation to dismiss or as unresolved due to a tie vote, and the matter is extended for an additional period as provided in subdivision (A), the committee is not required to make a public statement that the matter has been extended.

(iii) Except as provided by subdivision (E), if the committee establishes an investigative subcommittee respecting any such matter, then the report and findings of the board shall not be made public until the conclusion of the investigative subcommittee process and the committee shall issue a public statement of the establishment of an investigative subcommittee, which statement shall include the name of the applicable Member, officer, or employee, and shall set forth the alleged violation. If any such investigative subcommittee does not conclude its review within one year after the board transmits a report respecting any matter, then the committee shall make public the report and upon the expiration of the Congress in which the report is made public, the committee shall make public any findings.

(C)(i) If, after receipt of a written report and any findings and supporting documentation regarding a referral from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics or of a referral of the matter from the board pursuant to a request under paragraph (r), the committee agrees to a request from an appropriate law enforcement or regulatory authority to defer taking action on the matter

(I) notwithstanding subdivision (A)(i), the committee is not required to make public the written report and findings described in such subdivision, except that if the recommendation of the board with respect to the report is that the matter requires further review, the committee shall make public the written report but not the findings; and

(II) before the end of the first day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and public holidays) after the day that the committee agrees to the request, the committee shall make a public statement that it is deferring taking action on the matter at the request of such authority.

(ii) If, upon the expiration of the one-year period that begins on the date the committee makes the public statement described in item (i)(II), the committee has not acted on the matter, the committee shall make a new public statement that it is still deferring taking action on the matter, and shall make a new statement upon the expiration of each succeeding one-year period during which the committee has not acted on the matter.

(D) The committee may not receive any referral from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics within 60 days before a Federal, State, or local election in which the subject of the referral is a candidate. The committee may delay any reporting requirement under this subparagraph that falls within that 60-day period until the end of such period and in that case, for purposes of subdivision (A), days within the 60-day period shall not be counted.

(E) If, at the close of any applicable period for a reporting requirement under this subparagraph with respect to a referral from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics, the vote of the committee is a tie or the committee fails to act, the report and the findings of the board shall be made public by the committee, along with a public statement by the chair explaining the status of the matter.

(c)(1) Notwithstanding clause 2(g)(1) of rule XI, each meeting of the Committee on Ethics or a subcommittee thereof shall occur in executive session unless the committee or subcommittee, by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members, opens the meeting to the public.

(2) Notwithstanding clause 2(g)(2) of rule XI, each hearing of an adjudicatory subcommittee or sanction hearing of the Committee on Ethics shall be held in open session unless the committee or subcommittee, in open session by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members, closes all or part of the remainder of the hearing on that day to the public.

(d) Before a member, officer, or employee of the Committee on Ethics, including members of a subcommittee of the committee selected under clause 5(a)(4) of rule X and shared staff, may have access to information that is confidential under the rules of the committee, the following oath (or affirmation) shall be executed:

“I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will not disclose, to any person or entity outside the Committee on Ethics, any information received in the course of my service with the committee, except as authorized by the committee or in accordance with its rules.”

Copies of the executed oath shall be retained by the Clerk as part of the records of the House. This paragraph establishes a standard of conduct within the meaning of paragraph (a)(2). Breaches of confidentiality shall be investigated by the Committee on Ethics and appropriate action shall be taken.

(e)(1) If a complaint or information offered as a complaint is deemed frivolous by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the Committee on Ethics, the committee may take such action as it, by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members, considers appropriate in the circumstances.

(2) Complaints filed before the One Hundred Fifth Congress may not be deemed frivolous by the Committee on Ethics.

Committee agendas

(f) The committee shall adopt rules providing that the chair shall establish the agenda for meetings of the committee, but shall not preclude the ranking minority member from placing any item on the agenda.

Committee staff

(g)(1) The committee shall adopt rules providing that—

(A) the staff be assembled and retained as a professional, nonpartisan staff;

(B) each member of the staff shall be professional and demonstrably qualified for the position for which hired;

(C) the staff as a whole and each member of the staff shall perform all official duties in a nonpartisan manner;

(D) no member of the staff shall engage in any partisan political activity directly affecting any congressional or presidential election;

(E) no member of the staff or outside counsel may accept public speaking engagements or write for publication on any subject that is in any way related to the employment or duties with the committee of such individual without specific prior approval from the chair and ranking minority member; and

(F) no member of the staff or outside counsel may make public, unless approved by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee, any information, document, or other material that is confidential, derived from executive session, or classified and that is obtained during the course of employment with the committee.

(2) Only subdivisions (C), (E), and (F) of subparagraph (1) shall apply to shared staff.

(3)(A) All staff members shall be appointed by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee. Such vote shall occur at the first meeting of the membership of the committee during each Congress and as necessary during the Congress.

(B) Subject to the approval of the Committee on House Administration, the committee may retain counsel not employed by the House of Representatives whenever the committee determines, by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee, that the retention of outside counsel is necessary and appropriate.

(C) If the committee determines that it is necessary to retain staff members for the purpose of a particular investigation or other proceeding, then such staff shall be retained only for the duration of that particular investigation or proceeding.

(D) Outside counsel may be dismissed before the end of a contract between the committee and such counsel only by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee.

(4) In addition to any other staff provided for by law, rule, or other authority, with respect to the committee, the chair and ranking minority member each may appoint one individual as a shared staff member from the respective personal staff of the chair or ranking minority member to perform service for the committee. Such shared staff may assist the chair or ranking minority member on any subcommittee on which the chair or ranking minority member serves.

Meetings and hearings

(h) The committee shall adopt rules providing that—

(1) all meetings or hearings of the committee or any subcommittee thereof, other than any hearing held by an adjudicatory subcommittee or any sanction hearing held by the committee, shall occur in executive session unless the committee or subcommittee by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members opens the meeting or hearing to the public; and

(2) any hearing held by an adjudicatory subcommittee or any sanction hearing held by the committee shall be open to the public unless the committee or subcommittee by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members closes the hearing to the public.

Public disclosure

(i) The committee shall adopt rules providing that, unless otherwise determined by a vote of the committee, only the chair or ranking minority member, after consultation with each other, may make public statements regarding matters before the committee or any subcommittee thereof.

Requirements to constitute a complaint

(j) The committee shall adopt rules regarding complaints to provide that whenever information offered as a complaint is submitted to the committee, the chair and ranking minority member shall have 14 calendar days or five legislative days, whichever is sooner, to determine whether the information meets the requirements of the rules of the committee for what constitutes a complaint.

Duties of chair and ranking minority member regarding properly filed complaints

(k)(1) The committee shall adopt rules providing that whenever the chair and ranking minority member jointly determine that information submitted to the committee meets the requirements of the rules of the committee for what constitutes a complaint, they shall have 45 calendar days or five legislative days, whichever is later, after that determination (unless the committee by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members votes otherwise) to—

(A) recommend to the committee that it dispose of the complaint, or any portion thereof, in any manner that does not require action by the House, which may include dismissal of the complaint or resolution of the complaint by a letter to the Member, officer, or employee of the House against whom the complaint is made;

(B) establish an investigative subcommittee; or

(C) request that the committee extend the applicable 45-calendar day or five-legislative day period by one additional 45-calendar day period when they determine more time is necessary in order to make a recommendation under subdivision (A).

(2) The committee shall adopt rules providing that if the chair and ranking minority member jointly determine that information submitted to the committee meets the requirements of the rules of the committee for what constitutes a complaint, and the complaint is not disposed of within the applicable time periods under subparagraph (1), then they shall establish an investigative subcommittee and forward the complaint, or any portion thereof, to that subcommittee for its consideration. However, if, at any time during those periods, either the chair or ranking minority member places on the agenda the issue of whether to establish an investigative subcommittee, then an investigative subcommittee may be established only by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee.

Duties of chair and ranking minority member regarding information not constituting a complaint

(l) The committee shall adopt rules providing that whenever the chair and ranking minority member jointly determine that information submitted to the committee does not meet the requirements of the rules of the committee for what constitutes a complaint, they may—

(1) return the information to the complainant with a statement that it fails to meet the requirements of the rules of the committee for what constitutes a complaint; or

(2) recommend to the committee that it authorize the establishment of an investigative subcommittee.

Investigative and adjudicatory subcommittees

(m) The committee shall adopt rules providing that—

(1)(A) an investigative subcommittee shall be composed of four Members (with equal representation from the majority and minority parties) whenever such a subcommittee is established pursuant to the rules of the committee;

(B) an adjudicatory subcommittee shall be composed of the members of the committee who did not serve on the pertinent investigative subcommittee (with equal representation from the majority and minority parties) whenever such a subcommittee is established pursuant to the rules of the committee; and

(C) notwithstanding any other provision of this clause, the chair and ranking minority member of the committee may consult with an investigative subcommittee either on their own initiative or on the initiative of the subcommittee, shall have access to information before a subcommittee with which they so consult, and shall not thereby be precluded from serving as full, voting members of any adjudicatory subcommittee;

(2) at the time of appointment, the chair shall designate one member of a subcommittee to serve as chair and the ranking minority member shall designate one member of the subcommittee to serve as the ranking minority member; and

(3) the chair and ranking minority member of the committee may serve as members of an investigative subcommittee, but may not serve as non-voting, ex officio members.

Standard of proof for adoption of statement of alleged violation

(n) The committee shall adopt rules to provide that an investigative subcommittee may adopt a statement of alleged violation only if it determines by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the subcommittee

that there is substantial reason to believe that a violation of the Code of Official Conduct, or of a law, rule, regulation, or other standard of conduct applicable to the performance of official duties or the discharge of official responsibilities by a Member, officer, or employee of the House of Representatives, has occurred.

Subcommittee powers

(o)(1) The committee shall adopt rules providing that an investigative subcommittee or an adjudicatory subcommittee may authorize and issue subpoenas only when authorized by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the subcommittee.

(2) The committee shall adopt rules providing that an investigative subcommittee may, upon an affirmative vote of a majority of its members, expand the scope of its investigation when approved by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee.

(3) The committee shall adopt rules to provide that—

(A) an investigative subcommittee may, upon an affirmative vote of a majority of its members, amend its statement of alleged violation anytime before the statement of alleged violation is transmitted to the committee; and

(B) if an investigative subcommittee amends its statement of alleged violation, the respondent shall be notified in writing and shall have 30 calendar days from the date of that notification to file an answer to the amended statement of alleged violation.

Due process rights of respondents

(p) The committee shall adopt rules to provide that—

(1) not less than 10 calendar days before a scheduled vote by an investigative subcommittee on a statement of alleged violation, the subcommittee shall provide the respondent with a copy of the statement of alleged violation it intends to adopt together with all evidence it intends to use to prove those charges which it intends to adopt, including documentary evidence, witness testimony, memoranda of witness interviews, and physical evidence, unless the subcommittee by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members decides to withhold certain evidence in order to protect a witness; but if such evidence is withheld, the subcommittee shall inform the respondent that evidence is being withheld and of the count to which such evidence relates;

(2) neither the respondent nor the counsel of the respondent shall, directly or indirectly, contact the subcommittee or any member thereof during the period of time set forth in paragraph (1) except for the sole purpose of settlement discussions where counsel for the respondent and the subcommittee are present;

(3) if, at any time after the issuance of a statement of alleged violation, the committee or any subcommittee thereof determines that it intends to use evidence not

provided to a respondent under paragraph (1) to prove the charges contained in the statement of alleged violation (or any amendment thereof), such evidence shall be made immediately available to the respondent, and it may be used in any further proceeding under the rules of the committee;

(4) evidence provided pursuant to paragraph (1) or (3) shall be made available to the respondent and the counsel of the respondent only after each agrees, in writing, that no document, information, or other materials obtained pursuant to that paragraph shall be made public until—

(A) such time as a statement of alleged violation is made public by the committee if the respondent has waived the adjudicatory hearing; or

(B) the commencement of an adjudicatory hearing if the respondent has not waived an adjudicatory hearing;

but the failure of respondent and the counsel of the respondent to so agree in writing, and their consequent failure to receive the evidence, shall not preclude the issuance of a statement of alleged violation at the end of the period referred to in paragraph (1);

(5) a respondent shall receive written notice whenever—

(A) the chair and ranking minority member determine that information the committee has received constitutes a complaint;

(B) a complaint or allegation is transmitted to an investigative subcommittee;

(C) an investigative subcommittee votes to authorize its first subpoena or to take testimony under oath, whichever occurs first; or

(D) an investigative subcommittee votes to expand the scope of its investigation;

(6) whenever an investigative subcommittee adopts a statement of alleged violation and a respondent enters into an agreement with that subcommittee to settle a complaint on which that statement is based, that agreement, unless the respondent requests otherwise, shall be in writing and signed by the respondent and respondent's counsel, the chair and ranking minority member of the subcommittee, and the outside counsel, if any;

(7) statements or information derived solely from a respondent or the counsel of a respondent during any settlement discussions between the committee or a subcommittee thereof and the respondent shall not be included in any report of the subcommittee or the committee or otherwise publicly disclosed without the consent of the respondent; and

(8) whenever a motion to establish an investigative subcommittee does not prevail, the committee shall promptly send a letter to the respondent informing the respondent of such vote.

Committee reporting requirements

(q) The committee shall adopt rules to provide that—

(1) whenever an investigative subcommittee does not adopt a statement of alleged violation and transmits a report to that effect to the committee, the committee may by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members transmit such report to the House of Representatives;

(2) whenever an investigative subcommittee adopts a statement of alleged violation, the respondent admits to the violations set forth in such statement, the respondent waives the right to an adjudicatory hearing, and the respondent's waiver is approved by the committee—

(A) the subcommittee shall prepare a report for transmittal to the committee, a final draft of which shall be provided to the respondent not less than 15 calendar days before the subcommittee votes on whether to adopt the report;

(B) the respondent may submit views in writing regarding the final draft to the subcommittee within seven calendar days of receipt of that draft;

(C) the subcommittee shall transmit a report to the committee regarding the statement of alleged violation together with any views submitted by the respondent pursuant to subdivision (B), and the committee shall make the report together with the respondent's views available to the public before the commencement of any sanction hearing; and

(D) the committee shall by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members issue a report and transmit such report to the House of Representatives, together with the respondent's views previously submitted pursuant to subdivision (B) and any additional views respondent may submit for attachment to the final report; and

(3) members of the committee shall have not less than 72 hours to review any report transmitted to the committee by an investigative subcommittee before both the commencement of a sanction hearing and the committee vote on whether to adopt the report.

(r) Upon receipt of any written notification from the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics that the board is undertaking a review of any alleged conduct of any Member, officer, or employee of the House and if the committee is investigating such matter, the committee may at any time so notify the board and request that the board cease its review and refer the matter to the committee for its consideration. If at the end of the applicable time period (including any permissible extension) the committee has not reached a final resolution of the matter or has not referred the matter to the appropriate Federal or State authorities, the committee shall so notify the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics in writing. The committee may not request the same matter from the board more than one time.

(s) The committee may not take any action that would deny any person any right or protection provided under the Constitution of the United States.

Audio and visual coverage of committee proceedings

4. (a) The purpose of this clause is to provide a means, in conformity with acceptable standards of dignity, propriety, and decorum, by which committee hearings or committee meetings that are open to the public may be covered by audio and visual means—

(1) for the education, enlightenment, and information of the general public, on the basis of accurate and impartial news coverage, regarding the operations, procedures, and practices of the House as a legislative and representative body, and regarding the measures, public issues, and other matters before the House and its committees, the consideration thereof, and the action taken thereon; and

(2) for the development of the perspective and understanding of the general public with respect to the role and function of the House under the Constitution as an institution of the Federal Government.

(b) In addition, it is the intent of this clause that radio and television tapes and television film of any coverage under this clause may not be used for any partisan political campaign purpose or be made available for such use.

(c) It is, further, the intent of this clause that the general conduct of each meeting (whether of a hearing or otherwise) covered under authority of this clause by audio or visual means, and the personal behavior of the committee members and staff, other Government officials and personnel, witnesses, television, radio, and press media personnel, and the general public at the hearing or other meeting, shall be in strict conformity with and observance of the acceptable standards of dignity, propriety, courtesy, and decorum traditionally observed by the House in its operations, and may not be such as to—

(1) distort the objects and purposes of the hearing or other meeting or the activities of committee members in connection with that hearing or meeting or in connection with the general work of the committee or of the House; or

(2) cast discredit or dishonor on the House, the committee, or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner or bring the House, the committee, or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner into disrepute.

(d) The coverage of committee hearings and meetings by audio and visual means shall be permitted and conducted only in strict conformity with the purposes, provisions, and requirements of this clause.

(e) Whenever a hearing or meeting conducted by a committee or subcommittee is open to the public, those proceedings shall be open to coverage by audio and visual means. A committee or subcommittee chair may not limit the number of television or still cameras to fewer than two representatives from each medium (except for legitimate space or safety considerations, in which case pool coverage shall be authorized).

(f) Written rules adopted by each committee pursuant to clause 2(a)(1)(D) shall contain provisions to the following effect:

(1) If audio or visual coverage of the hearing or meeting is to be presented to the public as live coverage, that coverage shall be conducted and presented without commercial sponsorship.

(2) The allocation among the television media of the positions or the number of television cameras permitted by a committee or subcommittee chair in a hearing or meeting room shall be in accordance with fair and equitable procedures devised by the Executive Committee of the Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries.

(3) Television cameras shall be placed so as not to obstruct in any way the space between a witness giving evidence or testimony and any member of the committee or the visibility of that witness and that member to each other.

(4) Television cameras shall operate from fixed positions but may not be placed in positions that obstruct unnecessarily the coverage of the hearing or meeting by the other media.

(5) Equipment necessary for coverage by the television and radio media may not be installed in, or removed from, the hearing or meeting room while the committee is in session.

(6)(A) Except as provided in subdivision (B), floodlights, spotlights, strobelights, and flashguns may not be used in providing any method of coverage of the hearing or meeting.

(B) The television media may install additional lighting in a hearing or meeting room, without cost to the Government, in order to raise the ambient lighting level in a hearing or meeting room to the lowest level necessary to provide adequate television coverage of a hearing or meeting at the current state of the art of television coverage.

(7) If requests are made by more of the media than will be permitted by a committee or subcommittee chair for coverage of a hearing or meeting by still photography, that coverage shall be permitted on the basis of a fair and equitable pool arrangement devised by the Standing Committee of Press Photographers.

(8) Photographers may not position themselves between the witness table and the members of the committee at any time during the course of a hearing or meeting.

(9) Photographers may not place themselves in positions that obstruct unnecessarily the coverage of the hearing by the other media.

(10) Personnel providing coverage by the television and radio media shall be currently accredited to the Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries.

(11) Personnel providing coverage by still photography shall be currently accredited to the Press Photographers' Gallery.

(12) Personnel providing coverage by the television and radio media and by still photography shall conduct themselves and their coverage activities in an orderly and unobtrusive manner.

Pay of witnesses

5. Witnesses appearing before the House or any of its committees shall be paid the same per diem rate as established, authorized, and regulated by the Committee on House Administration for Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, and employees of the House, plus actual expenses of travel to or from the place of examination. Such per diem may not be paid when a witness has been summoned at the place of examination.

Unfinished business of the session

6. All business of the House at the end of one session shall be resumed at the commencement of the next session of the same Congress in the same manner as if no adjournment had taken place.

RULE XII

RECEIPT AND REFERRAL OF MEASURES AND MATTERS

Messages

1. Messages received from the Senate, or from the President, shall be entered on the Journal and published in the Congressional Record of the proceedings of that day.

Referral

2. (a) The Speaker shall refer each bill, resolution, or other matter that relates to a subject listed under a standing committee named in clause 1 of rule X in accordance with the provisions of this clause.

(b) The Speaker shall refer matters under paragraph (a) in such manner as to ensure to the maximum extent feasible that each committee that has jurisdiction under clause 1 of rule X over the subject matter of a provision thereof may consider such provision and report to the House thereon. Precedents, rulings, or procedures in effect before the Ninety-Fourth Congress shall be applied to referrals under this clause only to the extent that they will contribute to the achievement of the objectives of this clause.

(c) In carrying out paragraphs (a) and (b) with respect to the referral of a matter, the Speaker—

(1) shall designate a committee of primary jurisdiction (except where the Speaker determines that extraordinary circumstances justify review by more than one committee as though primary);

(2) may refer the matter to one or more additional committees for consideration in sequence, either initially or after the matter has been reported by the committee of primary jurisdiction;

(3) may refer portions of the matter reflecting different subjects and jurisdictions to one or more additional committees;

(4) may refer the matter to a special, ad hoc committee appointed by the Speaker with the approval of the House, and including members of the committees of jurisdiction, for the specific purpose of considering that matter and reporting to the House thereon;

(5) may subject a referral to appropriate time limitations; and

(6) may make such other provision as may be considered appropriate.

(d) A bill for the payment or adjudication of a private claim against the Government may not be referred to a committee other than the Committee on Foreign Affairs or the Committee on the Judiciary, except by unanimous consent.

Petitions, memorials, and private bills

3. If a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner has a petition, memorial, or private bill to present, the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall sign it, deliver it to the Clerk, and may specify the reference or disposition to be made thereof. Such petition, memorial, or private bill (except when judged by the Speaker to be obscene or insulting) shall be entered on the Journal with the name of the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner presenting it and shall be printed in the Congressional Record.

4. A private bill or private resolution (including an omnibus claim or pension bill), or amendment thereto, may not be received or considered in the House if it authorizes or directs—

(a) the payment of money for property damages, for personal injuries or death for which suit may be instituted under the Tort Claims Procedure provided in title 28, United States Code, or for a pension (other than to carry out a provision of law or treaty stipulation);

(b) the construction of a bridge across a navigable stream; or

(c) the correction of a military or naval record.

Prohibition on commemorations

5. (a) A bill or resolution, or an amendment thereto, may not be introduced or considered in the House if it establishes or expresses a commemoration.

(b) In this clause the term “commemoration” means a remembrance, celebration, or recognition for any purpose through the designation of a specified period of time.

Excluded matters

6. A petition, memorial, bill, or resolution excluded under this rule shall be returned to the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner from whom it was received. A petition or private bill that has been inappropriately referred may, by direction of the committee having possession of it, be properly referred in the manner originally presented. An erroneous reference of a petition or private bill under this clause does not confer jurisdiction on a committee to consider or report it.

Sponsorship

7. (a) Bills, memorials, petitions, and resolutions, endorsed with the names of Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner introducing them, may be delivered to the Speaker to be referred. The titles and references of all bills, memorials, petitions, resolutions, and other documents referred under this rule shall be entered on the Journal and printed in the Congressional Record. An erroneous reference may be corrected by the House in accordance with rule X on any day immediately after the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag by unanimous consent or motion. Such a motion shall be privileged if offered by direction of a committee to which the bill has been erroneously referred or by direction of a committee claiming jurisdiction and shall be decided without debate.

(b)(1) The sponsor of a public bill or public resolution may name cosponsors. The name of a cosponsor added after the initial printing of a bill or resolution shall appear in the next printing of the bill or resolution on the written request of the sponsor. Such a request may be submitted to the Speaker at any time until the last committee authorized to consider and report the bill or resolution reports it to the House or is discharged from its consideration.

(2) The name of a cosponsor of a bill or resolution may be deleted by unanimous consent. The Speaker may entertain such a request only by the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner whose name is to be deleted or by the sponsor of the bill or resolution, and only until the last committee authorized to consider and report the bill or resolution reports it to the House or is discharged from its consideration. The Speaker may not entertain a request to delete the name of the sponsor of a bill or resolution. A deletion shall be indicated by date in the next printing of the bill or resolution.

(3) The addition or deletion of the name of a cosponsor of a bill or resolution shall be entered on the Journal and printed in the Congressional Record of that day.

(4) A bill or resolution shall be reprinted on the written request of the sponsor. Such a request may be submitted to the Speaker only when 20 or more cosponsors have been added since the last printing of the bill or resolution.

(5) When a bill or resolution is introduced “by request,” those words shall be entered on the Journal and printed in the Congressional Record.

(c)(1) A bill or joint resolution may not be introduced unless the sponsor submits for printing in the Congressional Record a statement citing as specifically as practicable the power or powers granted to Congress in the Constitution to enact the bill or joint resolution. The statement shall appear in a portion of the Record designated for that purpose and be made publicly available in electronic form by the Clerk.

(2) Before consideration of a Senate bill or joint resolution, the chair of a committee of jurisdiction may submit the statement required under subparagraph (1) as though the chair were the sponsor of the Senate bill or joint resolution.

Executive communications

8. Estimates of appropriations and all other communications from the executive departments intended for the consideration of any committees of the House shall be addressed to the Speaker for referral as provided in clause 2 of rule XIV.

RULE XIII

CALENDARS AND COMMITTEE REPORTS

Calendars

1. (a) All business reported by committees shall be referred to one of the following three calendars:

(1) A Calendar of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, to which shall be referred public bills and public resolutions raising revenue, involving a tax or charge on the people, directly or indirectly making appropriations of money or property or requiring such appropriations to be made, authorizing payments out of appropriations already made, or releasing any liability to the United States for money or property.

(2) A House Calendar, to which shall be referred all public bills and public resolutions not requiring referral to the Calendar of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

(3) A Private Calendar as provided in clause 5 of rule XV, to which shall be referred all private bills and private resolutions.

(b) There is established a Calendar of Motions to Discharge Committees as provided in clause 2 of rule XV.

Filing and printing of reports

2. (a)(1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2), all reports of committees (other than those filed from the floor) shall be delivered to the Clerk for printing and reference to the proper calendar under the direction of the Speaker in accordance with clause 1. The title or subject of each report shall be entered on the Journal and printed in the Congressional Record.

(2) A bill or resolution reported adversely (other than those filed as privileged) shall be laid on the table unless a committee to which the bill or resolution was referred requests at the time of the report its referral to an appropriate calendar under clause 1 or unless, within three days thereafter, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner makes such a request.

(b)(1) It shall be the duty of the chair of each committee to report or cause to be reported promptly to the House a measure or matter approved by the committee and to take or cause to be taken steps necessary to bring the measure or matter to a vote.

(2) In any event, the report of a committee on a measure that has been approved by the committee shall be filed within seven calendar days (exclusive of days on which the House is not in session) after the day on which a written request for the filing of the report, signed by a majority of the members of the committee, has been filed with the clerk of the committee. The clerk of the committee shall immediately notify the chair of the filing of such a request. This subparagraph does not apply to a report of the Committee on Rules with respect to a rule, joint rule, or order of business of the House, or to the reporting of a resolution of inquiry addressed to the head of an executive department.

(c) All supplemental, minority, additional, or dissenting views filed under clause 2(1) of rule XI by one or more members of a committee shall be included in, and shall be a part of, the report filed by the committee with respect to a measure or matter. When time guaranteed by clause 2(1) of rule XI has expired (or, if sooner, when all separate views have been received), the committee may arrange to file its report with the Clerk not later than one hour after the expiration of such time. This clause and provisions of clause 2(1) of rule XI do not preclude the immediate filing or printing of a committee report in the absence of a timely request for the opportunity to file supplemental, minority, additional, or dissenting views as provided in clause 2(1) of rule XI.

Content of reports

3. (a)(1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2), the report of a committee on a measure or matter shall be printed in a single volume that—

(A) shall include all supplemental, minority, additional, or dissenting views that have been submitted by the time of the filing of the report; and

(B) shall bear on its cover a recital that any such supplemental, minority, additional, or dissenting views (and any material submitted under paragraph (c)(3)) are included as part of the report.

(2) A committee may file a supplemental report for the correction of a technical error in its previous report on a measure or matter. A supplemental report only correcting errors in the depiction of record votes under paragraph (b) may be filed under this subparagraph and shall not be subject to the requirement in clause 4 or clause 6 concerning the availability of reports.

(b) With respect to each record vote on a motion to report a measure or matter of a public nature, and on any amendment offered to the measure or matter, the total number of votes cast for and against, and the names of members voting for and against, shall be included in the committee report. The preceding sentence does not apply to votes taken in executive session by the Committee on Ethics.

(c) The report of a committee on a measure that has been approved by the committee shall include, separately set out and clearly identified, the following:

(1) Oversight findings and recommendations under clause 2(b)(1) of rule X.

(2) The statement required by section 308(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, except that an estimate of new budget authority shall include, when practicable, a comparison of the total estimated funding level for the relevant programs to the appropriate levels under current law.

(3) An estimate and comparison prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office under section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 if timely submitted to the committee before the filing of the report.

(4) A statement of general performance goals and objectives, including outcome-related goals and objectives, for which the measure authorizes funding.

(5) On a bill or joint resolution that establishes or reauthorizes a Federal program, a statement indicating whether any such program is known to be duplicative of another such program, including at a minimum an explanation of whether any such program was included in a report to Congress pursuant to section 21 of Public Law 111–139 or whether the most recent Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance (published pursuant to section 6104 of title 31, United States Code) identified other programs related to the program established or reauthorized by the measure.

(d) Each report of a committee on a public bill or public joint resolution shall contain the following:

(1)(A) An estimate by the committee of the costs that would be incurred in carrying out the bill or joint resolution in the fiscal year in which it is reported and in each of the five fiscal years following that fiscal year (or for the authorized duration of any program authorized by the bill or joint resolution if less than five years);

(B) a comparison of the estimate of costs described in subdivision (A) made by the committee with any estimate of such costs made by a Government agency and submitted to such committee; and

(C) when practicable, a comparison of the total estimated funding level for the relevant programs with the appropriate levels under current law.

(2)(A) In subparagraph (1) the term “Government agency” includes any department, agency, establishment, wholly owned Government corporation, or instrumentality of the Federal Government or the government of the District of Columbia.

(B) Subparagraph (1) does not apply to the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on House Administration, the Committee on Rules, or the Committee on Ethics, and does not apply when a cost estimate and comparison prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office under section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 has been included in the report under paragraph (c)(3).

(e)(1) Whenever a committee reports a bill or joint resolution proposing to repeal or amend a statute or part thereof, it shall include in its report or in an accompanying document (showing by appropriate typographical devices the omissions and insertions proposed)—

(A) the entire text of each section of a statute that is proposed to be repealed; and

(B) a comparative print of each amendment to the entire text of a section of a statute that the bill or joint resolution proposes to make.

(2) If a committee reports a bill or joint resolution proposing to repeal or amend a statute or part thereof with a recommendation that the bill or joint resolution be amended, the comparative print required by subparagraph (1) shall reflect the changes in existing law proposed to be made by the bill or joint resolution as proposed to be amended.

(f)(1) A report of the Committee on Appropriations on a general appropriation bill shall include—

(A) a concise statement describing the effect of any provision of the accompanying bill that directly or indirectly changes the application of existing law; and

(B) a list of all appropriations contained in the bill for expenditures not currently authorized by law for the period concerned (excepting classified intelligence or national security programs, projects, or activities), along with a statement of the last year for which such expenditures were authorized, the level of expenditures authorized for that year, the actual level of expenditures for that year, and the level of appropriations in the bill for such expenditures.

(2) Whenever the Committee on Appropriations reports a bill or joint resolution including matter specified in clause 1(b)(2) or (3) of rule X, it shall include—

(A) in the bill or joint resolution, separate headings for “Rescissions” and “Transfers of Unexpended Balances”; and

(B) in the report of the committee, a separate section listing such rescissions and transfers.

(g) Whenever the Committee on Rules reports a resolution proposing to repeal or amend a standing rule of the House, it shall include in its report or in an accompanying document—

(1) the text of any rule or part thereof that is proposed to be repealed; and

(2) a comparative print of any part of the resolution proposing to amend the rule and of the rule or part thereof proposed to be amended, showing by appropriate typographical devices the omissions and insertions proposed.

(h) It shall not be in order to consider a bill or joint resolution reported by the Committee on Ways and Means that proposes to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 unless—

(1) the report includes a tax complexity analysis prepared by the Joint Committee on Taxation in accordance with section 4022(b) of the Internal Revenue Service Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998; or

(2) the chair of the Committee on Ways and Means causes such a tax complexity analysis to be printed in the Congressional Record before consideration of the bill or joint resolution.

Availability of reports

4. (a)(1) Except as specified in subparagraph (2), it shall not be in order to consider in the House a measure or matter reported by a committee until the third calendar day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, or legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) on which each report of a committee on that measure or matter has been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner.

(2) Subparagraph (1) does not apply to—

(A) a resolution providing a rule, joint rule, or order of business reported by the Committee on Rules considered under clause 6;

(B) a resolution providing amounts from the applicable accounts described in clause 1(k)(1) of rule X reported by the Committee on House Administration considered under clause 6 of rule X;

(C) a resolution presenting a question of the privileges of the House reported by any committee;

(D) a measure for the declaration of war, or the declaration of a national emergency, by Congress; and

(E) a measure providing for the disapproval of a decision, determination, or action by a Government agency that would become, or continue to be, effective unless disapproved or otherwise invalidated by one or both Houses of Congress. In this subdivision the term “Government agency” includes any department, agency, establishment, wholly owned Government corporation, or instrumentality of the Federal Government or of the government of the District of Columbia.

(b) A committee that reports a measure or matter shall make every reasonable effort to have its hearings thereon (if any) printed and available for distribution to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner before the consideration of the measure or matter in the House.

Privileged reports, generally

5. (a) The following committees shall have leave to report at any time on the following matters, respectively:

(1) The Committee on Appropriations, on general appropriation bills and on joint resolutions continuing appropriations for a fiscal year after September 15 in the preceding fiscal year.

(2) The Committee on the Budget, on the matters required to be reported by such committee under titles III and IV of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

(3) The Committee on House Administration, on enrolled bills, on contested elections, on matters referred to it concerning printing for the use of the House or the two Houses, on expenditure of the applicable accounts of the House described in clause 1(k)(1) of rule X, and on matters relating to preservation and availability of noncurrent records of the House under rule VII.

(4) The Committee on Rules, on rules, joint rules, and the order of business.

(5) The Committee on Ethics, on resolutions recommending action by the House with respect to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House as a result of an investigation by the committee relating to the official conduct of such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee.

(b) A report filed from the floor as privileged under paragraph (a) may be called up as a privileged question by direction of the reporting committee, subject to any requirement concerning its availability to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner under clause 4 or concerning the timing of its consideration under clause 6.

Privileged reports by the Committee on Rules

6. (a) A report by the Committee on Rules on a rule, joint rule, or the order of business may not be called up for consideration on the same day it is presented to the House except—

(1) when so determined by a vote of two-thirds of the Members voting, a quorum being present;

(2) in the case of a resolution proposing only to waive a requirement of clause 4 or of clause 8 of rule XXII concerning the availability of reports; or

(3) during the last three days of a session of Congress.

(b) Pending the consideration of a report by the Committee on Rules on a rule, joint rule, or the order of business, the Speaker may entertain one motion that the House adjourn but may not entertain any other dilatory motion until the report shall have been disposed of.

(c) The Committee on Rules may not report a rule or order that would prevent the motion to recommit a bill or joint resolution from being made as provided in clause 2(b) of rule XIX, including a motion to recommit with instructions to report back an amendment otherwise in order, if offered by the Minority Leader or a designee, except with respect to a Senate bill or joint resolution for which the text of a House-passed measure has been substituted.

(d) The Committee on Rules shall present to the House reports concerning rules, joint rules, and the order of business, within three legislative days of the time when they are ordered. If such a report is not considered immediately, it shall be referred to the calendar. If such a report on the calendar is not called up by the member of the committee who filed the report within seven legislative days, any member of the committee may call it up as a privileged question on the day after the calendar day on which the member announces to the House intention to do so. The Speaker shall recognize a member of the committee who seeks recognition for that purpose.

(e) An adverse report by the Committee on Rules on a resolution proposing a special order of business for the consideration of a public bill or public joint resolution may be called up as a privileged question by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner on a day when it is in order to consider a motion to discharge committees under clause 2 of rule XV.

(f) If the House has adopted a resolution making in order a motion to consider a bill or resolution, and such a motion has not been offered within seven calendar days thereafter, such a motion shall be privileged if offered by direction of all reporting committees having initial jurisdiction of the bill or resolution.

(g) Whenever the Committee on Rules reports a resolution providing for the consideration of a measure, it shall to the maximum extent possible specify in the accompanying report any waiver of a point of order against the measure or against its consideration.

Resolutions of inquiry

7. A report on a resolution of inquiry addressed to the head of an executive department may be filed from the floor as privileged. If such a resolution is not reported to the House within 14 legislative days after its introduction, a motion to discharge a committee from its consideration shall be privileged.

Estimates of major legislation

8. (a) An estimate provided by the Congressional Budget Office under section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 for any major legislation shall, to the extent practicable, incorporate the budgetary effects of changes in economic output, employment, capital stock, and other macroeconomic variables resulting from such legislation.

(b) An estimate provided by the Joint Committee on Taxation to the Director of the Congressional Budget Office under section 201(f) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 for any major legislation shall, to the extent practicable, incorporate the budgetary effects of changes in economic output, employment, capital stock, and other macroeconomic variables resulting from such legislation.

(c) An estimate referred to in this clause shall, to the extent practicable, include—

(1) a qualitative assessment of the budgetary effects (including macroeconomic variables described in paragraphs (a) and (b)) of such legislation in the 20-fiscal year period beginning after the last fiscal year of the most recently agreed to concurrent resolution on the budget that set forth appropriate levels required by section 301 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974; and

(2) an identification of the critical assumptions and the source of data underlying that estimate.

(d) As used in this clause—

(1) the term “major legislation” means any bill or joint resolution—

(A) for which an estimate is required to be prepared pursuant to section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 and that causes a gross budgetary effect (before incorporating macroeconomic effects) in any fiscal year over the years of the most recently agreed to concurrent resolution on the budget equal to or greater than 0.25 percent of the current projected gross domestic product of the United States for that fiscal year; or

(B) designated as such by the chair of the Committee on the Budget for all direct spending legislation other than revenue legislation or the Member who is chair or vice chair, as applicable, of the Joint Committee on Taxation for revenue legislation; and

(2) the term “budgetary effects” means changes in revenues, outlays, and deficits.

RULE XIV

ORDER AND PRIORITY OF BUSINESS

1. The daily order of business (unless varied by the application of other rules and except for the disposition of matters of higher precedence) shall be as follows:

First. Prayer by the Chaplain.

Second. Reading and approval of the Journal, unless postponed under clause 8 of rule XX.

Third. The Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

Fourth. Correction of reference of public bills.

Fifth. Disposal of business on the Speaker's table as provided in clause 2.

Sixth. Unfinished business as provided in clause 3.

Seventh. The morning hour for the consideration of bills called up by committees as provided in clause 4.

Eighth. Motions that the House resolve into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union subject to clause 5.

Ninth. Orders of the day.

2. Business on the Speaker's table shall be disposed of as follows:

(a) Messages from the President shall be referred to the appropriate committees without debate.

(b) Communications addressed to the House, including reports and communications from heads of departments and bills, resolutions, and messages from the Senate, may be referred to the appropriate committees in the same manner and with the same right of correction as public bills and public resolutions presented by Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner.

(c) Motions to dispose of Senate amendments on the Speaker's table may be entertained as provided in clauses 1, 2, and 4 of rule XXII.

(d) Senate bills and resolutions substantially the same as House measures already favorably reported and not required to be considered in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union may be disposed of by motion. Such a motion shall be privileged if offered by direction of all reporting committees having initial jurisdiction of the House measure.

3. Consideration of unfinished business in which the House may have been engaged at an adjournment, except business in the morning hour and proceedings postponed under clause 8 of rule XX, shall be resumed as soon as the business on the Speaker's table is finished, and at the same time each day thereafter until disposed of. The consideration of all other unfinished business shall be resumed whenever the class of business to which it belongs shall be in order under the rules.

4. After the unfinished business has been disposed of, the Speaker shall call each standing committee in regular order and then select committees. Each committee when named may call up for consideration a bill or resolution reported by it on a previous day and on the House Calendar. If the Speaker does not complete the call of the committees before the House passes to other business, the next call shall resume at the point it left off, giving preference to the last bill or resolution under consideration. A committee that has occupied the call for two days may not call up another bill or resolution until the other committees have been called in their turn.

5. After consideration of bills or resolutions under clause 4 for one hour, it shall be in order, pending consideration thereof, to entertain a motion that the House resolve into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union or, when authorized by a committee, that the House resolve into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union to consider a particular bill. Such a motion shall be subject to only one amendment designating another bill. If such a motion is decided in the negative, another such motion may not be considered until the matter that was pending when such motion was offered is disposed of.

6. All questions relating to the priority of business shall be decided by a majority without debate.

RULE XV

BUSINESS IN ORDER ON SPECIAL DAYS

Suspensions

1. (a) A rule may not be suspended except by a vote of two-thirds of the Members voting, a quorum being present. The Speaker may not entertain a motion that the House suspend the rules except on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Wednesdays and during the last six days of a session of Congress.

(b) Pending a motion that the House suspend the rules, the Speaker may entertain one motion that the House adjourn but may not entertain any other motion until the vote is taken on the suspension.

(c) A motion that the House suspend the rules is debatable for 40 minutes, one-half in favor of the motion and one-half in opposition thereto.

Discharge motions, second and fourth Mondays

2. (a) Motions to discharge committees shall be in order on the second and fourth Mondays of a month.

(b)(1) A Member may present to the Clerk a motion in writing to discharge—

(A) a committee from consideration of a public bill or public resolution that has been referred to it for 30 legislative days; or

(B) the Committee on Rules from consideration of a resolution that has been referred to it for seven legislative days and that proposes a special order of business for the consideration of a public bill or public resolution that has been reported by a committee or has been referred to a committee for 30 legislative days.

(2) Only one motion may be presented for a bill or resolution. A Member may not file a motion to discharge the Committee on Rules from consideration of a resolution providing for the consideration of more than one public bill or public resolution or admitting or effecting a nongermane amendment to a public bill or public resolution.

(c) A motion presented under paragraph (b) shall be placed in the custody of the Clerk, who shall arrange a convenient place for the signatures of Members. A signature may be withdrawn by a Member in writing at any time before a motion is entered on the Journal. The Clerk shall make the signatories a matter of public record, causing the names of the Members who have signed a discharge motion during a week to be published in a portion of the Congressional Record designated for that purpose on the last legislative day of the week and making cumulative lists of such names available each day for public inspection in an appropriate office of the House. The Clerk shall devise a means for making such lists available to offices of the House and to the public in electronic form. When a majority of the total membership of the House shall have signed the motion, it shall be entered on the Journal, published with the signatories thereto in the Record, and referred to the Calendar of Motions to Discharge Committees.

(d)(1) On the second and fourth Mondays of a month (except during the last six days of a session of Congress), immediately after the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag, a motion to discharge that has been on the calendar for at least seven legislative days shall be privileged if called up by a Member whose signature appears thereon. When such a motion is called up, the House shall proceed to its consideration under this paragraph without intervening motion except one motion to adjourn. Privileged motions to discharge shall have precedence in the order of their entry on the Journal.

(2) When a motion to discharge is called up, the bill or resolution to which it relates shall be read by title only. The motion is debatable for 20 minutes, one-half in favor of the motion and one-half in opposition thereto.

(e)(1) If a motion prevails to discharge the Committee on Rules from consideration of a resolution, the House shall immediately consider the resolution, pending which the Speaker may entertain one motion that the House adjourn but may not entertain any other dilatory motion until the resolution has been disposed of. If the resolution is adopted, the House shall immediately proceed to its execution.

(2) If a motion prevails to discharge a committee from consideration of a public bill or public resolution, a motion that the House proceed to the immediate consideration of such bill or resolution shall be privileged if offered by a Member whose signature appeared on the motion to discharge. The motion to proceed is not debatable. If the motion to proceed is adopted, the bill or resolution shall be considered immediately under the general rules of the House. If unfinished before adjournment of the day on which it is called up, the bill or resolution shall remain the unfinished business until it is disposed of. If the motion to proceed is rejected, the bill or resolution shall be referred to the appropriate calendar, where it shall have the same status as if the committee from which it was discharged had duly reported it to the House.

(f)(1) When a motion to discharge originated under this clause has once been acted on by the House, it shall not be in order to entertain during the same session of Congress

(A) a motion to discharge a committee from consideration of that bill or resolution or of any other bill or resolution that, by relating in substance to or dealing with the same subject matter, is substantially the same; or

(B) a motion to discharge the Committee on Rules from consideration of a resolution providing a special order of business for the consideration of that bill or resolution or of any other bill or resolution that, by relating in substance to or dealing with the same subject matter, is substantially the same.

(2) A motion to discharge on the Calendar of Motions to Discharge Committees that is rendered out of order under subparagraph (1) shall be stricken from that calendar.

Adverse report by the Committee on Rules, second and fourth Mondays

3. An adverse report by the Committee on Rules on a resolution proposing a special order of business for the consideration of a public bill or public joint resolution may be called up under clause 6(e) of rule XIII as a privileged question by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner on a day when it is in order to consider a motion to discharge committees under clause 2.

District of Columbia business, second and fourth Mondays

4. The second and fourth Mondays of a month shall be set apart for the consideration of such District of Columbia business as may be called up by the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform after the disposition of motions to discharge committees and after the disposal of such business on the Speaker's table as requires reference only.

Private Calendar, first and third Tuesdays

5. (a) On the first Tuesday of a month, the Speaker shall direct the Clerk to call the bills and resolutions on the Private Calendar after disposal of such business on the Speaker's table as requires reference only. If two or more Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner object to the consideration of a bill or resolution so called, it shall be recommitted to the committee that reported it. No other business shall be in order before completion of the call of the Private Calendar on this day unless two-thirds of the Members voting, a quorum being present, agree to a motion that the House dispense with the call.

(b)(1) On the third Tuesday of a month, after the disposal of such business on the Speaker's table as requires reference only, the Speaker may direct the Clerk to call the bills and resolutions on the Private Calendar. Preference shall be given to omnibus bills containing the texts of bills or resolutions that have previously been objected to on a call of the Private Calendar. If two or more Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner object to the consideration of a bill or resolution so called (other than an omnibus bill), it shall be recommitted to the committee that reported it. Two-thirds of the Members voting, a quorum being present, may adopt a motion that the House dispense with the call on this day.

(2) Omnibus bills shall be read for amendment by paragraph. No amendment shall be in order except to strike or to reduce amounts of money or to provide limitations. An item or matter stricken from an omnibus bill may not thereafter during the same session of Congress be included in an omnibus bill. Upon passage such an omnibus bill shall be resolved into the several bills and resolutions of which it is composed. The several bills and resolutions, with any amendments adopted by the House, shall be engrossed, when necessary, and otherwise considered as passed severally by the House as distinct bills and resolutions.

(c) The Speaker may not entertain a reservation of the right to object to the consideration of a bill or resolution under this clause. A bill or resolution considered under this clause shall be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole. A motion to dispense with the call of the Private Calendar under this clause shall be privileged. Debate on such a motion shall be limited to five minutes in support and five minutes in opposition.

Calendar Call of Committees, Wednesdays

6. (a) On Wednesday of each week, business shall not be in order before completion of the call of those committees (except as provided by clause 4 of rule XIV) whose chair, or other member authorized by the committee, has announced to the House a request for such call on the preceding legislative day.

(b) A bill or resolution on either the House or the Union Calendar, except bills or resolutions that are privileged under the Rules of the House, may be called under this clause. A bill or resolution called up from the Union Calendar shall be considered in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union without motion, subject to clause 3 of rule XVI. General debate on a measure considered under this clause shall be confined to the measure and may not exceed two hours equally divided between a proponent and an opponent.

(c) This clause does not apply during the last two weeks of a session of Congress.

(d) Precedents, rulings, or procedures in effect before the One Hundred Eleventh Congress regarding the priority of business and the availability of other business on Wednesday shall be applied only to the extent consistent with this clause.

RULE XVI

MOTIONS AND AMENDMENTS

Motions

1. Every motion entertained by the Speaker shall be reduced to writing on the demand of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner and, unless it is withdrawn the same day, shall be entered on the Journal with the name of the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner offering it. A dilatory motion may not be entertained by the Speaker.

Withdrawal

2. When a motion is entertained, the Speaker shall state it or cause it to be read aloud by the Clerk before it is debated. The motion then shall be in the possession of the House but may be withdrawn at any time before a decision or amendment thereon.

Question of consideration

3. When a motion or proposition is entertained, the question, “Will the House now consider it?” may not be put unless demanded by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner.

Precedence of motions

4. (a) When a question is under debate, only the following motions may be entertained (which shall have precedence in the following order):

- (1) To adjourn.
- (2) To lay on the table.
- (3) For the previous question.
- (4) To postpone to a day certain.
- (5) To refer.
- (6) To amend.
- (7) To postpone indefinitely.

(b) A motion to adjourn, to lay on the table, or for the previous question shall be decided without debate. A motion to postpone to a day certain, to refer, or to postpone indefinitely, being decided, may not be allowed again on the same day at the same stage of the question.

(c)(1) It shall be in order at any time for the Speaker, in the discretion of the Speaker, to entertain a motion—

(A) that the Speaker be authorized to declare a recess; or

(B) that when the House adjourns it stand adjourned to a day and time certain.

(2) Either motion shall be of equal privilege with the motion to adjourn and shall be decided without debate.

Divisibility

5. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b), a question shall be divided on the demand of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner before the question is put if it includes propositions so distinct in substance that, one being taken away, a substantive proposition remains.

(b)(1) A motion or resolution to elect members to a standing committee of the House, or to a joint standing committee, is not divisible.

(2) A resolution or order reported by the Committee on Rules providing a special order of business is not divisible.

(c) A motion to strike and insert is not divisible, but rejection of a motion to strike does not preclude another motion to amend.

Amendments

6. When an amendable proposition is under consideration, a motion to amend and a motion to amend that amendment shall be in order, and it also shall be in order to offer a further amendment by way of substitute for the original motion to amend, to which one amendment may be offered but which may not be voted on until the original amendment is perfected. An amendment may be withdrawn in the House at any time before a decision or amendment thereon. An amendment to the title of a bill or resolution shall not be in order until after its passage or adoption and shall be decided without debate.

Germaneness

7. No motion or proposition on a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted under color of amendment.

Readings

8. Bills and joint resolutions are subject to readings as follows:

(a) A first reading is in full when the bill or joint resolution is first considered.

(b) A second reading occurs only when the bill or joint resolution is read for amendment in a Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union under clause 5 of rule XVIII.

(c) A third reading precedes passage when the Speaker states the question: "Shall the bill [or joint resolution] be engrossed [when applicable] and read a third time?” If that question is decided in the affirmative, then the bill or joint resolution shall be read the final time by title and then the question shall be put on its passage.

RULE XVII

DECORUM AND DEBATE

Decorum

1. (a) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who desires to speak or deliver a matter to the House shall respectfully address the Speaker and, on being recognized, may address the House from any place on the floor. When invited by the Chair, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may speak from the Clerk’s desk.

(b) Remarks in debate (which may include references to the Senate or its Members) shall be confined to the question under debate, avoiding personality.

Recognition

2. When two or more Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner seek recognition, the Speaker shall name the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who is first to speak. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not occupy more than one hour in debate on a question in the House or in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union except as otherwise provided in this rule.

Managing debate

3. (a) The Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who calls up a measure may open and close debate thereon. When general debate extends beyond one day, that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall be entitled to one hour to close without regard to the time used in opening.

(b) Except as provided in paragraph (a), a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not speak more than once to the same question without leave of the House.

(c) A manager of a measure who opposes an amendment thereto is entitled to close controlled debate thereon.

Call to order

4. (a) If a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, in speaking or otherwise, transgresses the Rules of the House, the Speaker shall, or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may, call to order the offending Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, who shall immediately sit down unless permitted on motion of another Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner to explain. If a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner is called to order, the Member,

Delegate, or Resident Commissioner making the call to order shall indicate the words excepted to, which shall be taken down in writing at the Clerk's desk and read aloud to the House.

(b) The Speaker shall decide the validity of a call to order. The House, if appealed to, shall decide the question without debate. If the decision is in favor of the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner called to order, the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall be at liberty to proceed, but not otherwise. If the case requires it, an offending Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall be liable to censure or such other punishment as the House may consider proper. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not be held to answer a call to order, and may not be subject to the censure of the House therefor, if further debate or other business has intervened.

Comportment

5. When the Speaker is putting a question or addressing the House, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not exit or cross the Hall. When a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner is speaking, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not pass between the person speaking and the Chair. During the session of the House, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not wear a hat or remain by the Clerk's desk during the call of the roll or the counting of ballots. A person on the floor of the House may not smoke or use a mobile electronic device that impairs decorum. The Sergeant-at-Arms is charged with the strict enforcement of this clause.

Exhibits

6. When the use of an exhibit in debate is objected to by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, the Chair, in the discretion of the Chair, may submit the question of its use to the House without debate.

Galleries

7. During a session of the House, it shall not be in order for a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner to introduce to or to bring to the attention of the House an occupant in the galleries of the House. The Speaker may not entertain a request for the suspension of this rule by unanimous consent or otherwise.

Congressional Record

8. (a) The Congressional Record shall be a substantially verbatim account of remarks made during the proceedings of the House, subject only to technical, grammatical, and typographical corrections authorized by the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner making the remarks.

(b) Unparliamentary remarks may be deleted only by permission or order of the House.

(c) This clause establishes a standard of conduct within the meaning of clause 3(a)(2) of rule XI.

Legislative Proceedings

9. (a) A Member, Delegate, the Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not engage in disorderly or disruptive conduct in the Chamber, including—

(1) intentionally obstructing or impeding the passage of others in the Chamber;

(2) the use of an exhibit to impede, disrupt, or disturb the proceedings of the House; and

(3) the denial of legislative instruments to others seeking to engage in legislative proceedings.

(b) This clause establishes a standard of conduct within the meaning of clause 3(a)(2) of rule XI.

Secret sessions

10. When confidential communications are received from the President, or when the Speaker or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner informs the House that such individual has communications that such individual believes ought to be kept secret for the present, the House shall be cleared of all persons except the Members, Delegates, Resident Commissioner, and officers of the House for the reading of such communications, and debates and proceedings thereon, unless otherwise ordered by the House.

RULE XVIII

THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE HOUSE ON THE STATE OF THE UNION

Resolving into the Committee of the Whole

1. Whenever the House resolves into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Speaker shall leave the chair after appointing a Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner as Chair to preside. In case of disturbance or disorderly conduct in the galleries or lobby, the Chair may cause the same to be cleared.

2. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b) and in clause 6 of rule XV, the House resolves into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union by motion. When such a motion is entertained, the Speaker shall put the question without debate: “Shall the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for consideration of this matter?”, naming it.

(b) After the House has adopted a resolution reported by the Committee on Rules providing a special order of business for the consideration of a measure in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Speaker may at any time, when no question is pending before the House, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of that measure without intervening motion, unless the special order of business provides otherwise.

Measures requiring initial consideration in the Committee of the Whole

3. All public bills, resolutions, or Senate amendments (as provided in clause 3 of rule XXII) involving a tax or charge on the people, raising revenue, directly or indirectly making appropriations of money or property or requiring such appropriations to be made, authorizing payments out of appropriations already made, or releasing any liability to the United States for money or property, shall be first considered in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union. A bill, resolution, or Senate amendment that fails to comply with this clause is subject to a point of order against its consideration.

Order of business

4. (a) Subject to subparagraph (b) business on the calendar of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union may be taken up in regular order, or in such order as the Committee may determine, unless the measure to be considered was determined by the House at the time of resolving into the Committee of the Whole.

(b) Motions to resolve into the Committee of the Whole for consideration of bills and joint resolutions making general appropriations have precedence under this clause.

Reading for amendment

5. (a) Before general debate commences on a measure in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, it shall be read in full. When general debate is concluded or closed by order of the House, the measure under consideration shall be read for amendment. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who offers an amendment shall be allowed five minutes to explain it, after which the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who shall first obtain the floor shall be allowed five minutes to speak in opposition to it. There shall be no further debate thereon, but the same privilege of debate shall be allowed in favor of and against any amendment that may be offered to an amendment. An amendment, or an amendment to an amendment, may be withdrawn by its proponent only by the unanimous consent of the Committee of the Whole.

(b) When a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner offers an amendment in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Clerk shall promptly transmit five copies of the amendment to the majority committee table and five copies to the minority committee table. The Clerk also shall deliver at least one copy of the amendment to the majority cloakroom and at least one copy to the minority cloakroom.

Quorum and voting

6. (a) A quorum of a Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union is 100 Members. The first time that a Committee of the Whole finds itself without a quorum during a day, the Chair shall invoke the procedure for a quorum call set forth in clause 2 of rule XX, unless the Chair elects to invoke an alternate procedure set forth in clause 3 or clause 4(a) of rule XX. If a quorum appears, the Committee of the Whole shall continue its business. If a quorum does not appear, the Committee of the Whole shall rise, and the Chair shall report the names of absentees to the House.

(b)(1) The Chair may refuse to entertain a point of order that a quorum is not present during general debate.

(2) After a quorum has once been established on a day, the Chair may entertain a point of order that a quorum is not present only when the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union is operating under the five-minute rule and the Chair has put the pending proposition to a vote.

(3) Upon sustaining a point of order that a quorum is not present, the Chair may announce that, following a regular quorum call under paragraph (a), the minimum time for electronic voting on the pending question shall be not less than two minutes.

(c) When ordering a quorum call in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Chair may announce an intention to declare that a quorum is constituted at any time during the quorum call when the Chair determines that a quorum has appeared. If the Chair interrupts the quorum call by declaring that a quorum is constituted, proceedings under the quorum call shall be considered as vacated, and the Committee of the Whole shall continue its sitting and resume its business.

(d) A quorum is not required in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for adoption of a motion that the Committee rise.

(e) In the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Chair shall order a recorded vote on a request supported by at least 25 Members.

(f) In the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Chair may reduce to not less than two minutes the minimum time for electronic voting without any intervening business or debate on any or all pending amendments after a record vote has been taken on the first pending amendment.

(g) The Chair may postpone a request for a recorded vote on any amendment. The Chair may resume proceedings on a postponed request at any time. The Chair may reduce to not less than two minutes the minimum time for electronic voting—

(1) on any postponed question that follows another electronic vote without intervening business, provided that the minimum time for electronic voting on the first in any series of questions shall be 15 minutes; or

(2) on any postponed question taken without intervening debate or motion after the Committee of the Whole resumes its sitting if in the discretion of the Chair Members would be afforded an adequate opportunity to vote.

Dispensing with the reading of an amendment

7. It shall be in order in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union to move that the Committee of the Whole dispense with the reading of an amendment that has been printed in the bill or resolution as reported by a committee, or an amendment that a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner has caused to be printed in the Congressional Record. Such a motion shall be decided without debate.

Closing debate

8. (a) Subject to paragraph (b) at any time after the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union has begun five-minute debate on amendments to any portion of a bill or resolution, it shall be in order to move that the Committee of the Whole close all debate on that portion of the bill or resolution or on the pending amendments only. Such a motion shall be decided without debate. The adoption of such a motion does not preclude further amendment, to be decided without debate.

(b) If the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union closes debate on any portion of a bill or resolution before there has been debate on an amendment that a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner has caused to be printed in the Congressional Record at least one day before its consideration, the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who caused the amendment to be printed in the Record shall be allowed five minutes to explain it, after which the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who shall first obtain the floor shall be allowed five minutes to speak in opposition to it. There shall be no further debate thereon.

(c) Material submitted for printing in the Congressional Record under this clause shall indicate the full text of the proposed amendment, the name of the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner proposing it, the number of the bill or resolution to which it will be offered, and the point in the bill or resolution or amendment thereto where the amendment is intended to be offered. The amendment shall appear in a portion of the Record designated for that purpose. Amendments to a specified measure submitted for printing in that portion of the Record shall be numbered in the order printed.

Striking the enacting clause

9. A motion that the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union rise and report a bill or resolution to the House with the recommendation that the enacting or resolving clause be stricken shall have precedence of a motion to amend, and, if carried in the House, shall constitute a rejection of the bill or resolution. Whenever a bill or resolution is reported from the Committee of the Whole with such adverse recommendation and the recommendation is rejected by the House, the bill or resolution shall stand recommitted to the Committee of the Whole without further action by the House. Before the question of concurrence is submitted, it shall be in order to move that the House refer the bill or resolution to a committee, with or without instructions. If a bill or resolution is so referred, then when it is again reported to the House it shall be referred to the Committee of the Whole without debate.

Concurrent resolution on the budget

10. (a) At the conclusion of general debate in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union on a concurrent resolution on the budget under section 305(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the concurrent resolution shall be considered as read for amendment.

(b) It shall not be in order in the House or in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union to consider an amendment to a concurrent resolution on the budget, or an amendment thereto, unless the concurrent resolution, as amended by such amendment or amendments—

(1) would be mathematically consistent except as limited by paragraph (c); and

(2) would contain all the matter set forth in paragraphs (1) through (5) of section 301(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

(c)(1) Except as specified in subparagraph (2), it shall not be in order in the House or in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union to consider an amendment to a concurrent resolution on the budget, or an amendment thereto, that proposes to change the amount of the appropriate level of the public debt set forth in the concurrent resolution, as reported.

(2) Amendments to achieve mathematical consistency under section 305(a)(5) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, if offered by direction of the Committee on the Budget, may propose to adjust the amount of the appropriate level of the public debt set forth in the concurrent resolution, as reported, to reflect changes made in other figures contained in the concurrent resolution.

Applicability of Rules of the House

11. The Rules of the House are the rules of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union so far as applicable.

RULE XIX

MOTIONS FOLLOWING THE AMENDMENT STAGE

Previous question

1. (a) There shall be a motion for the previous question, which, being ordered, shall have the effect of cutting off all debate and bringing the House to a direct vote on the immediate question or questions on which it has been ordered. Whenever the previous question has been ordered on an otherwise debatable question on which there has been no debate, it shall be in order to debate that question for 40 minutes, equally divided and controlled by a proponent of the question and an opponent. The previous question may be moved and ordered on a single question, on a series of questions allowable under the rules, or on an amendment or amendments, or may embrace all authorized motions or amendments and include the bill or resolution to its passage, adoption, or rejection.

(b) Incidental questions of order arising during the pendency of a motion for the previous question shall be decided, whether on appeal or otherwise, without debate.

(c) Notwithstanding paragraph (a), when the previous question is operating to adoption or passage of a measure pursuant to a special order of business, the Chair may postpone further consideration of such measure in the House to such time as may be designated by the Speaker.

Recommit

2. (a) After the previous question has been ordered on passage or adoption of a measure, or pending a motion to that end, it shall be in order to move that the House recommit (or commit, as the case may be) the measure, with or without instructions, to a standing or select committee. For such a motion to recommit, the Speaker shall give preference in recognition to a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who is opposed to the measure.

(b)(1) Except as provided in paragraph (c), a motion that the House recommit a bill or joint resolution on which the previous question has been ordered to passage shall be debatable for 10 minutes equally divided between the proponent and an opponent.

(2) A motion to recommit a bill or joint resolution may include instructions only in the form of a direction to report an amendment or amendments back to the House forthwith.

(c) On demand of the floor manager for the majority, it shall be in order to debate the motion for one hour equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent.

Reconsideration

3. When a motion has been carried or lost, it shall be in order on the same or succeeding day for a Member on the prevailing side of the question to enter a motion for the reconsideration thereof. The entry of such a motion shall take precedence over all other questions except the consideration of a conference report or a motion to adjourn, and may not be withdrawn after such succeeding day without the consent of the House. Once entered, a motion may be called up for consideration by any Member. During the last six days of a session of Congress, such a motion shall be disposed of when entered.

4. A bill, petition, memorial, or resolution referred to a committee, or reported therefrom for printing and recommitment, may not be brought back to the House on a motion to reconsider.

RULE XX

VOTING AND QUORUM CALLS

1. (a) The House shall divide after the Speaker has put a question to a vote by voice as provided in clause 6 of rule I if the Speaker is in doubt or division is demanded. Those in favor of the question shall first rise or otherwise indicate from their seats and be counted, and then those opposed.

(b) If a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner requests a recorded vote, and that request is supported by at least one-fifth of a quorum, the vote shall be taken by electronic device unless the Speaker invokes another procedure for recording votes provided in this rule. A recorded vote taken in the House under this paragraph shall be considered a vote by the yeas and nays.

(c) In case of a tie vote, a question shall be lost.

2. (a) Unless the Speaker directs otherwise, the Clerk shall conduct a record vote or quorum call by electronic device. In such a case the Clerk shall enter on the Journal and publish in the Congressional Record, in alphabetical order in each category, the names of Members recorded as voting in the affirmative, the names of Members recorded as voting in the negative, and the names of Members answering present as if they had been called in the manner provided in clause 3. Except as otherwise permitted under clause 8 or 9 of this rule or under clause 6 of rule XVIII, the minimum time for a record vote or quorum call by electronic device shall be 15 minutes.

(b) When the electronic voting system is inoperable or is not used, the Speaker or Chair may direct the Clerk to conduct a record vote or quorum call as provided in clause 3 or 4.

3. The Speaker may direct the Clerk to conduct a record vote or quorum call by call of the roll. In such a case the Clerk shall call the names of Members, alphabetically by surname. When two or more have the same surname, the name of the State (and, if necessary to distinguish among Members from the same State, the given names of the Members) shall be added. After the roll has been called once, the Clerk shall call the names of those not recorded, alphabetically by surname. Members appearing after the second call, but before the result is announced, may vote or announce a pair.

4. (a) The Speaker may direct a record vote or quorum call to be conducted by tellers. In such a case the tellers named by the Speaker shall record the names of the Members voting on each side of the question or record their presence, as the case may be, which the Clerk shall enter on the Journal and publish in the Congressional Record. Absentees shall be noted, but the doors may not be closed except when ordered by the Speaker. The minimum time for a record vote or quorum call by tellers shall be 15 minutes.

(b) On the demand of a Member, or at the suggestion of the Speaker, the names of Members sufficient to make a quorum in the Hall of the House who do not vote shall be noted by the Clerk, entered on the Journal, reported to the Speaker with the names of the Members voting, and be counted and announced in determining the presence of a quorum to do business.

5. (a) In the absence of a quorum, a majority comprising at least 15 Members, which may include the Speaker, may compel the attendance of absent Members.

(b) Subject to clause 7(b) a majority described in paragraph (a) may order the Sergeant-at-Arms to send officers appointed by the Sergeant-at-Arms to arrest those Members for whom no sufficient excuse is made and shall secure and retain their attendance. The House shall determine on what condition they shall be discharged. Unless the House otherwise directs, the Members who voluntarily appear shall be admitted immediately to the Hall of the House and shall report their names to the Clerk to be entered on the Journal as present.

(c)(1) If the House should be without a quorum due to catastrophic circumstances, then—

(A) until there appear in the House a sufficient number of Representatives to constitute a quorum among the whole number of the House, a quorum in the House shall be determined based upon the provisional number of the House; and

(B) the provisional number of the House, as of the close of the call of the House described in subparagraph (3)(C), shall be the number of Representatives responding to that call of the House.

(2) If a Representative counted in determining the provisional number of the House thereafter ceases to be a Representative, or if a Representative not counted in determining the provisional number of the House thereafter appears in the House, the provisional number of the House shall be adjusted accordingly.

(3) For the purposes of subparagraph (1), the House shall be considered to be without a quorum due to catastrophic circumstances if, after a motion under paragraph (a) has been disposed of and without intervening adjournment, each of the following occurs in the stated sequence:

(A) A call of the House (or a series of calls of the House) is closed after aggregating a period in excess of 72 hours (excluding time the House is in recess) without producing a quorum.

(B) The Speaker—

(i) with the Majority Leader and the Minority Leader (or their respective designees), receives from the Sergeant-at-Arms (or a designee) a catastrophic quorum failure report, as described in subparagraph (4);

(ii) consults with the Majority Leader and the Minority Leader (or their respective designees) on the content of that report; and

(iii) announces the content of that report to the House.

(C) A further call of the House (or a series of calls of the House) is closed after aggregating a period in excess of 24 hours (excluding time the House is in recess) without producing a quorum.

(4)(A) For purposes of subparagraph (3), a catastrophic quorum failure report is a report advising that the inability of the House to establish a quorum is attributable to catastrophic circumstances involving natural disaster, attack, contagion, or similar calamity rendering Representatives incapable of attending the proceedings of the House.

(B) Such report shall specify the following:

(i) The number of vacancies in the House and the names of former Representatives whose seats are vacant.

(ii) The names of Representatives considered incapacitated.

(iii) The names of Representatives not incapacitated but otherwise incapable of attending the proceedings of the House.

(iv) The names of Representatives unaccounted for.

(C) Such report shall be prepared on the basis of the most authoritative information available after consultation with the Attending Physician to the Congress and the Clerk (or their respective designees) and pertinent public health and law enforcement officials.

(D) Such report shall be updated every legislative day for the duration of any proceedings under or in reliance on this paragraph. The Speaker shall make such updates available to the House.

(5) An announcement by the Speaker under subparagraph (3)(B)(iii) shall not be subject to appeal.

(6) Subparagraph (1) does not apply to a proposal to create a vacancy in the representation from any State in respect of a Representative not incapacitated but otherwise incapable of attending the proceedings of the House.

(7) For purposes of this paragraph:

(A) The term “provisional number of the House” means the number of Representatives upon which a quorum will be computed in the House until Representatives sufficient in number to constitute a quorum among the whole number of the House appear in the House.

(B) The term “whole number of the House” means the number of Representatives chosen, sworn, and living whose membership in the House has not been terminated by resignation or by the action of the House.

(d) Upon the death, resignation, expulsion, disqualification, removal, or swearing of a Member, the whole number of the House shall be adjusted accordingly. The Speaker shall announce the adjustment to the House. Such an announcement shall not be subject to appeal. In the case of a death, the Speaker may lay before the House such documentation from Federal, State, or local officials as the Speaker deems pertinent.

6. (a) When a quorum fails to vote on a question, a quorum is not present, and objection is made for that cause (unless the House shall adjourn)—

- (1) there shall be a call of the House;
- (2) the Sergeant-at-Arms shall proceed forthwith to bring in absent Members; and
- (3) the yeas and nays on the pending question shall at the same time be considered as ordered.

(b) The Clerk shall record Members by the yeas and nays on the pending question, using such procedure as the Speaker may invoke under clause 2, 3, or 4. Each Member arrested under this clause shall be brought by the Sergeant-at-Arms before the House, whereupon the Member shall be noted as present, discharged from arrest, and given an opportunity to vote; and such vote shall be recorded. If those voting on the question and those who are present and decline to vote together make a majority of the House, the Speaker shall declare that a quorum is constituted, and the pending question shall be decided as the requisite majority of those voting shall have determined. Thereupon further proceedings under the call shall be considered as dispensed with.

(c) At any time after Members have had the requisite opportunity to respond by the yeas and nays ordered under this clause, but before a result has been announced, a motion that the House adjourn shall be in order if seconded by a majority of those present, to be ascertained by actual count by the Speaker. If the House adjourns on such a motion, all proceedings under this clause shall be considered as vacated.

7. (a) The Speaker may not entertain a point of order that a quorum is not present unless a question has been put to a vote.

(b) Subject to paragraph (c) the Speaker may recognize a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner to move a call of the House at any time. When a quorum is established pursuant to a call of the House, further proceedings under the call shall be considered as dispensed with unless the Speaker recognizes for a motion to compel attendance of Members under clause 5(b).

(c) A call of the House shall not be in order after the previous question is ordered unless the Speaker determines by actual count that a quorum is not present.

Postponement of proceedings

8. (a)(1) When a recorded vote is ordered, or the yeas and nays are ordered, or a vote is objected to under clause 6—

(A) on any of the questions specified in subparagraph (2), the Speaker may postpone further proceedings to a designated place in the legislative schedule within two additional legislative days; and

(B) on the question of agreeing to the Speaker's approval of the Journal, the Speaker may postpone further proceedings to a designated place in the legislative schedule on that legislative day.

(2) The questions described in subparagraph (1) are as follows:

(A) The question of passing a bill or joint resolution.

(B) The question of adopting a resolution or concurrent resolution.

(C) The question of agreeing to a motion to instruct managers on the part of the House (except that proceedings may not resume on such a motion under clause 7(c) of rule XXII if the managers have filed a report in the House).

(D) The question of agreeing to a conference report.

(E) The question of adopting a motion to recommit.

(F) The question of adopting a motion to concur in a Senate amendment, with or without amendment.

(G) The question of ordering the previous question on a question described in subdivisions (A) through (F).

(H) The question of agreeing to a motion to suspend the rules.

(I) The question of agreeing to a motion to reconsider or the question of agreeing to a motion to lay on the table a motion to reconsider.

(J) The question of agreeing to an amendment reported from the Committee of the Whole.

(b) At the time designated by the Speaker for further proceedings on questions postponed under paragraph (a), the Speaker shall resume proceedings on each postponed question.

(c) The Speaker may reduce to five minutes the minimum time for electronic voting on a question postponed under this clause, or on a question incidental thereto, that—

(1) follows another electronic vote without intervening business, so long as the minimum time for electronic voting on the first in any series of questions is 15 minutes; or

(2) follows a report from the Committee of the Whole without intervening debate or motion if in the discretion of the Speaker Members would be afforded an adequate opportunity to vote.

(d) If the House adjourns on a legislative day designated for further proceedings on questions postponed under this clause without disposing of such questions, then on the next legislative day the unfinished business is the disposition of such questions.

Five-minute votes

9. The Speaker may reduce to five minutes the minimum time for electronic voting—

(a) on any question arising without intervening business after an electronic vote on another question if notice of possible five-minute voting for a given series of votes was issued before the preceding electronic vote; or

(b) if in the discretion of the Speaker Members would be afforded an adequate opportunity to vote—

(1) on any question arising after a report from the Committee of the Whole without debate or intervening motion; or

(2) on the question of adoption of a motion to recommit (or ordering the previous question thereon) arising without intervening motion or debate other than debate on the motion.

Automatic yeas and nays

10. The yeas and nays shall be considered as ordered when the Speaker puts the question on passage of a bill or joint resolution, or on adoption of a conference report, making general appropriations, or increasing Federal income tax rates (within the meaning of clause 5 of rule XXI), or on final adoption of a concurrent resolution on the budget or conference report thereon.

Ballot votes

11. In a case of ballot for election, a majority of the votes shall be necessary to an election. When there is not such a majority on the first ballot, the process shall be repeated until a majority is obtained. In all balloting blanks shall be rejected, may not be counted in the enumeration of votes, and may not be reported by the tellers.

RULE XXI

RESTRICTIONS ON CERTAIN BILLS

Reservation of certain points of order

1. At the time a general appropriation bill is reported, all points of order against provisions therein shall be considered as reserved.

General appropriation bills and amendments

2. (a)(1) An appropriation may not be reported in a general appropriation bill, and may not be in order as an amendment thereto, for an expenditure not previously authorized by law, except to continue appropriations for public works and objects that are already in progress.

(2) A reappropriation of unexpended balances of appropriations may not be reported in a general appropriation bill, and may not be in order as an amendment thereto, except to continue appropriations for public works and objects that are already in progress. This subparagraph does not apply to transfers of unexpended balances within the department or agency for which they were originally appropriated that are reported by the Committee on Appropriations.

(b) A provision changing existing law may not be reported in a general appropriation bill, including a provision making the availability of funds contingent on the receipt or possession of information not required by existing law for the period of the appropriation, except germane provisions that retrench expenditures by the reduction of amounts of money covered by the bill (which may include those recommended to the Committee on Appropriations by direction of a legislative committee having jurisdiction over the subject matter) and except rescissions of appropriations contained in appropriation Acts.

(c) An amendment to a general appropriation bill shall not be in order if changing existing law, including an amendment making the availability of funds contingent on the receipt or possession of information not required by existing law for the period of the appropriation. Except as provided in paragraph (d), an amendment proposing a limitation not specifically contained or authorized in existing law for the period of the limitation shall not be in order during consideration of a general appropriation bill.

(d) After a general appropriation bill has been read for amendment, a motion that the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted shall, if offered by the Majority Leader or a designee, have precedence over motions to amend the bill. If such a motion to rise and report is rejected or not offered, amendments proposing limitations not specifically contained or authorized in existing law for the period of the limitation or proposing germane amendments that retrench expenditures by reductions of amounts of money covered by the bill may be considered.

(e) A provision other than an appropriation designated an emergency under section 251(b)(2) or section 252(e) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act, a rescission of budget authority, or a reduction in direct spending or an amount for a designated emergency may not be reported in an appropriation bill or joint resolution containing an emergency designation under section 251(b)(2) or section 252(e) of such Act and may not be in order as an amendment thereto.

(f) During the reading of an appropriation bill for amendment in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, it shall be in order to consider en bloc amendments proposing only to transfer appropriations among objects in the bill without increasing the levels of budget authority or outlays in the bill. When considered en bloc under this paragraph, such amendments may amend portions of the bill not yet read for amendment (following disposition of any points of order against such portions) and are not subject to a demand for division of the question in the House or in the Committee of the Whole.

(g) An amendment to a general appropriation bill shall not be in order if proposing a net increase in the level of budget authority in the bill.

3. It shall not be in order to consider a general appropriation bill or joint resolution, or conference report thereon, that—

(a) provides spending authority derived from receipts deposited in the Highway Trust Fund (excluding any transfers from the General Fund of the Treasury); or

(b) reduces or otherwise limits the accruing balances of the Highway Trust Fund, for any purpose other than for those activities authorized for the highway or mass transit categories.

Appropriations on legislative bills

4. A bill or joint resolution carrying an appropriation may not be reported by a committee not having jurisdiction to report appropriations, and an amendment proposing an appropriation shall not be in order during the consideration of a bill or joint resolution reported by a committee not having that jurisdiction. A point of order against an appropriation in such a bill, joint resolution, or amendment thereto may be raised at any time during pendency of that measure for amendment.

Tax and tariff measures and amendments

5. (a)(1) A bill or joint resolution carrying a tax or tariff measure may not be reported by a committee not having jurisdiction to report tax or tariff measures, and an amendment in the House or proposed by the Senate carrying a tax or tariff measure shall not be in order during the consideration of a bill or joint resolution reported by a committee not having that jurisdiction. A point of order against a tax or tariff measure in such a bill, joint resolution, or amendment thereto may be raised at any time during pendency of that measure for amendment.

(2) For purposes of paragraph (1), a tax or tariff measure includes an amendment proposing a limitation on funds in a general appropriation bill for the administration of a tax or tariff.

Passage of tax rate increases

(b) A bill or joint resolution, amendment, or conference report carrying a Federal income tax rate increase may not be considered as passed or agreed to unless so determined by a vote of not less than three-fifths of the Members voting, a quorum being present. In this paragraph the term “Federal income tax rate increase” means any amendment to subsection (a), (b), (c), (d), or (e) of section 1, or to section 11(b) or 55(b), of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, that imposes a new percentage as a rate of tax and thereby increases the amount of tax imposed by any such section.

Consideration of retroactive tax rate increases

(c) It shall not be in order to consider a bill, joint resolution, amendment, or conference report carrying a retroactive Federal income tax rate increase. In this paragraph—

(1) the term “Federal income tax rate increase” means any amendment to subsection (a), (b), (c), (d), or (e) of section 1, or to section 11(b) or 55(b), of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, that imposes a new percentage as a rate of tax and thereby increases the amount of tax imposed by any such section; and

(2) a Federal income tax rate increase is retroactive if it applies to a period beginning before the enactment of the provision.

Designation of public works

6. It shall not be in order to consider a bill, joint resolution, amendment, or conference report that provides for the designation or redesignation of a public work in honor of an individual then serving as a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or Senator.

7. It shall not be in order to consider a concurrent resolution on the budget, or an amendment thereto, or a conference report thereon that contains reconciliation directives under section 310 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 that specify changes in law such that the reconciliation legislation reported pursuant to such directives would cause an increase in net direct spending (as such term is defined in clause 10) for the period covered by such concurrent resolution.

8. With respect to measures considered pursuant to a special order of business, points of order under title III of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 shall operate without regard to whether the measure concerned has been reported from committee. Such points of order shall operate with respect to (as the case may be)—

(a) the form of a measure recommended by the reporting committee where the statute uses the term “as reported” (in the case of a measure that has been so reported);

(b) the form of the measure made in order as an original bill or joint resolution for the purpose of amendment; or

(c) the form of the measure on which the previous question is ordered directly to passage.

9. (a) It shall not be in order to consider—

(1) a bill or joint resolution reported by a committee unless the report includes a list of congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, and limited tariff benefits in the bill or in the report (and the name of any Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who submitted a request to the committee for each respective item included in such list) or a statement that the proposition contains no congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits;

(2) a bill or joint resolution not reported by a committee unless the chair of each committee of initial referral has caused a list of congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, and limited tariff benefits in the bill (and the name of any Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who submitted a request to the committee for each respective item included in such list) or a statement that the proposition contains no congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits to be printed in the Congressional Record prior to its consideration;

(3) an amendment to a bill or joint resolution to be offered at the outset of its consideration for amendment by a member of a committee of initial referral as designated in a report of the Committee on Rules to accompany a resolution prescribing a special order of business unless the proponent has caused a list of congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, and limited tariff benefits in the amendment (and the name of any Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who submitted a request to the proponent for each respective item included in such list) or a statement that the proposition contains no congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits to be printed in the Congressional Record prior to its consideration; or

(4) a conference report to accompany a bill or joint resolution unless the joint explanatory statement prepared by the managers on the part of the House and the managers on the part of the Senate includes a list of congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, and limited tariff benefits in the conference report or joint statement (and the name of any Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or Senator who submitted a request to the House or Senate committees of jurisdiction for each respective item included in such list) or a statement that the proposition contains no congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits.

(b) It shall not be in order to consider a conference report to accompany a regular general appropriation bill unless the joint explanatory statement prepared by the managers on the part of the House and the managers on the part of the Senate includes—

(1) a list of congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, and limited tariff benefits in the conference report or joint statement (and the name of any Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or Senator who submitted a request to the House or Senate committees of jurisdiction for each respective item included in such list) that were neither committed to the conference committee by either House nor in a report of a committee of either House on such bill or on a companion measure; or

(2) a statement that the proposition contains no such congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits.

(c) It shall not be in order to consider a rule or order that waives the application of paragraph (a) or (b). As disposition of a point of order under this paragraph or paragraph (b), the Chair shall put the question of consideration with respect to the rule or order or conference report, as applicable. The question of consideration shall be debatable for 10 minutes by the Member initiating the point of order and for 10 minutes by an opponent, but shall otherwise be decided without intervening motion except one that the House adjourn.

(d) In order to be cognizable by the Chair, a point of order raised under paragraph (a) may be based only on the failure of a report, submission to the Congressional Record, or joint explanatory statement to include a list required by paragraph (a) or a statement that the proposition contains no congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits.

(e) For the purpose of this clause, the term “congressional earmark” means a provision or report language included primarily at the request of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or Senator providing, authorizing or recommending a specific amount of discretionary budget authority, credit authority, or other spending authority for a contract, loan, loan guarantee, grant, loan authority, or other expenditure with or to an entity, or targeted to a specific State, locality or Congressional district, other than through a statutory or administrative formula-driven or competitive award process.

(f) For the purpose of this clause, the term “limited tax benefit” means—

(1) any revenue-losing provision that—

(A) provides a Federal tax deduction, credit, exclusion, or preference to 10 or fewer beneficiaries under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, and

(B) contains eligibility criteria that are not uniform in application with respect to potential beneficiaries of such provision; or

(2) any Federal tax provision which provides one beneficiary temporary or permanent transition relief from a change to the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(g) For the purpose of this clause, the term “limited tariff benefit” means a provision modifying the Harmonized Tariff Schedule of the United States in a manner that benefits 10 or fewer entities.

10. (a)(1) Except as provided in paragraphs (b) and (c), it shall not be in order to consider a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment thereto or a conference report thereon, if the provisions of such measure have the net effect of increasing mandatory spending for the period of either—

(A) the current year, the budget year, and the four fiscal years following that budget year; or

(B) the current year, the budget year, and the nine fiscal years following that budget year.

(2) For the purpose of this clause, the terms “budget year” and “current year” have the meanings specified in section 250 of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, and the term “mandatory spending” has the meaning of “direct spending” specified in such section 250 except that such term shall also include provisions in appropriation Acts that make outyear modifications to substantive law as described in section 3(4)(C) of the Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010.

(b) If a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment thereto, is considered pursuant to a special order of the House directing the Clerk to add as new matter at the end of such bill or joint resolution the entire text of a separate measure or measures as passed by the House, the new matter proposed to be added shall be included in the evaluation under paragraph (a) of the bill, joint resolution, or amendment.

(c)(1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2), the evaluation under paragraph (a) shall exclude a provision expressly designated as an emergency for the Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010, in the case of a point of order under this clause against consideration of—

(A) a bill or joint resolution;

(B) an amendment made in order as original text by a special order of business;

(C) a conference report; or

(D) an amendment between the Houses.

(2) In the case of an amendment (other than one specified in subparagraph (1)) to a bill or joint resolution, the evaluation under paragraph (a) shall give no cognizance to any designation of emergency.

11. It shall not be in order to consider a bill or joint resolution which has not been reported by a committee until the third calendar day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, or legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) on which such measure has been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner.

12. (a)(1) Before a bill or joint resolution proposing to repeal or amend a statute or part thereof may be considered, there shall be made available on a publicly available website of the House an easily searchable electronic comparative print that shows how the bill or joint resolution proposes to change current law, showing (to the greatest extent practicable) by appropriate typographical devices the omissions and insertions proposed.

(2) Before an amendment in the nature of a substitute may be considered if the amendment proposes to repeal or amend a statute or part thereof, there shall be made available on a publicly available website of the House an easily searchable electronic comparative print that shows (to the greatest extent practicable) how the amendment proposes to change current law, showing by appropriate typographical devices the omissions and insertions proposed.

(b) If a committee reports a bill or joint resolution, before the bill or joint resolution may be considered with text different from the text reported, there shall be made available on a publicly available website of the House a document that shows, by appropriate typographical devices, the differences between the text of the bill or joint resolution as proposed to be considered and the text of the bill or joint resolution as reported.¹

¹ The effective date of clause 12 is December 31, 2017.

RULE XXII

HOUSE AND SENATE RELATIONS

Senate amendments

1. A motion to disagree to Senate amendments to a House proposition and to request or agree to a conference with the Senate, or a motion to insist on House amendments to a Senate proposition and to request or agree to a conference with the Senate, shall be privileged in the discretion of the Speaker if offered by direction of the primary committee and of all reporting committees that had initial referral of the proposition.

2. A motion to dispose of House bills with Senate amendments not requiring consideration in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union shall be privileged.

3. Except as permitted by clause 1, before the stage of disagreement, a Senate amendment to a House bill or resolution shall be subject to the point of order that it must first be considered in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union if, originating in the House, it would be subject to such a point under clause 3 of rule XVIII.

4. When the stage of disagreement has been reached on a bill or resolution with House or Senate amendments, a motion to dispose of any amendment shall be privileged.

5. (a) Managers on the part of the House may not agree to a Senate amendment described in paragraph (b) unless specific authority to agree to the amendment first is given by the House by a separate vote with respect thereto. If specific authority is not granted, the Senate amendment shall be reported in disagreement by the conference committee back to the two Houses for disposition by separate motion.

(b) The managers on the part of the House may not agree to a Senate amendment described in paragraph (a) that—

(1) would violate clause 2(a)(1) or (c) of rule XXI if originating in the House; or

(2) proposes an appropriation on a bill other than a general appropriation bill.

6. A Senate amendment carrying a tax or tariff measure in violation of clause 5(a) of rule XXI may not be agreed to.

Conference reports; amendments reported in disagreement

7. (a) The presentation of a conference report shall be in order at any time except during a reading of the Journal or the conduct of a record vote, a vote by division, or a quorum call.

(b)(1) Subject to subparagraph (2) the time allotted for debate on a motion to instruct managers on the part of the House shall be equally divided between the majority and minority parties.

(2) If the proponent of a motion to instruct managers on the part of the House and the Member, Delegate, or

Resident Commissioner of the other party identified under subparagraph (1) both support the motion, one-third of the time for debate thereon shall be allotted to a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who opposes the motion on demand of that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner.

(c)(1) A motion to instruct managers on the part of the House, or a motion to discharge all managers on the part of the House and to appoint new conferees, shall be privileged after a conference committee has been appointed for 45 calendar days and 25 legislative days without making a report, but only on the day after the calendar day on which the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner offering the motion announces to the House intention to do so and the form of the motion.

(2) The Speaker may designate a time in the legislative schedule on that legislative day for consideration of a motion described in subparagraph (1).

(3) During the last six days of a session of Congress, a motion under subparagraph (1) shall be privileged after a conference committee has been appointed for 36 hours without making a report and the proponent meets the notice requirement in subparagraph (1).

(d) Instructions to conferees in a motion to instruct or in a motion to recommit to conference may not include argument.

(e) Each conference report to the House shall be printed as a report of the House. Each such report shall be accompanied by a joint explanatory statement prepared jointly by the managers on the part of the House and the managers on the part of the Senate. The joint explanatory statement shall be sufficiently detailed and explicit to inform the House of the effects of the report on the matters committed to conference.

8. (a)(1) Except as specified in subparagraph (2), it shall not be in order to consider a conference report until

(A) the third calendar day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, or legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) on which the conference report and the accompanying joint explanatory statement have been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner in the Congressional Record or pursuant to clause 3 of rule XXIX; and

(B) printed or electronic copies of the conference report and the accompanying joint explanatory statement have been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner for at least two hours.

(2) Subparagraph (1)(A) does not apply during the last six days of a session of Congress.

(b)(1) Except as specified in subparagraph (2), it shall not be in order to consider a motion to dispose of a Senate amendment reported in disagreement by a conference committee until—

(A) the third calendar day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, or legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) on which the report in disagreement and any accompanying statement have been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner in the Congressional Record; and

(B) copies of the report in disagreement and any accompanying statement, together with the text of the Senate amendment, have been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner for at least two hours.

(2) Subparagraph (1)(A) does not apply during the last six days of a session of Congress.

(3) During consideration of a Senate amendment reported in disagreement by a conference committee on a general appropriation bill, a motion to insist on disagreement to the Senate amendment shall be preferential to any other motion to dispose of that amendment if the original motion offered by the floor manager proposes to change existing law and the motion to insist is offered before debate on the original motion by the chair of the committee having jurisdiction of the subject matter of the amendment or a designee. Such a preferential motion shall be separately debatable for one hour equally divided between its proponent and the proponent of the original motion. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the preferential motion to its adoption without intervening motion.

(c) A conference report or a Senate amendment reported in disagreement by a conference committee that has been available as provided in paragraph (a) or (b) shall be considered as read when called up.

(d)(1) Subject to subparagraph (2), the time allotted for debate on a conference report or on a motion to dispose of a Senate amendment reported in disagreement by a conference committee shall be equally divided between the majority and minority parties.

(2) If the floor manager for the majority and the floor manager for the minority both support the conference report or motion, one-third of the time for debate thereon shall be allotted to a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who opposes the conference report or motion on demand of that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner.

(e) Under clause 6(a)(2) of rule XIII, a resolution proposing only to waive a requirement of this clause concerning the availability of reports to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner may be considered by the House on the same day it is reported by the Committee on Rules.

9. Whenever a disagreement to an amendment has been committed to a conference committee, the managers on the part of the House may propose a substitute that is a germane modification of the matter in disagreement. The introduction of any language presenting specific additional matter not committed to the conference committee by either House does not constitute a germane modification of the matter in disagreement. Moreover, a conference report may not include matter not committed to the conference committee by either House and may not include a modification of specific matter committed to the conference committee by either or both Houses if that modification is beyond the scope of that specific matter as committed to the conference committee.

10. (a)(1) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may raise a point of order against nongermane matter, as specified in subparagraph (2), before the commencement of debate on—

(A) a conference report;

(B) a motion that the House recede from its disagreement to a Senate amendment reported in disagreement by a conference committee and concur therein, with or without amendment; or

(C) a motion that the House recede from its disagreement to a Senate amendment on which the stage of disagreement has been reached and concur therein, with or without amendment.

(2) A point of order against nongermane matter is one asserting that a proposition described in subparagraph (1) contains specified matter that would violate clause 7 of rule XVI if it were offered in the House as an amendment to the underlying measure in the form it was passed by the House.

(b) If a point of order under paragraph (a) is sustained, a motion that the House reject the nongermane matter identified by the point of order shall be privileged. Such a motion is debatable for 40 minutes, one-half in favor of the motion and one-half in opposition thereto.

(c) After disposition of a point of order under paragraph (a) or a motion to reject under paragraph (b), any further points of order under paragraph (a) not covered by a previous point of order, and any consequent motions to reject under paragraph (b), shall be likewise disposed of.

(d)(1) If a motion to reject under paragraph (b) is adopted, then after disposition of all points of order under paragraph (a) and any consequent motions to reject under paragraph (b), the conference report or motion, as the case may be, shall be considered as rejected and the matter remaining in disagreement shall be disposed of under subparagraph (2) or (3), as the case may be.

(2) After the House has adopted one or more motions to reject nongermane matter contained in a conference report under the preceding provisions of this clause—

(A) if the conference report accompanied a House measure amended by the Senate, the pending question shall be whether the House shall recede and concur in the Senate amendment with an amendment consisting of so much of the conference report as was not rejected;

and

(B) if the conference report accompanied a Senate measure amended by the House, the pending question shall be whether the House shall insist further on the House amendment.

(3) After the House has adopted one or more motions to reject nongermane matter contained in a motion that the House recede and concur in a Senate amendment, with or without amendment, the following motions shall be privileged and shall have precedence in the order stated:

(A) A motion that the House recede and concur in the Senate amendment with an amendment in writing then available on the floor.

(B) A motion that the House insist on its disagreement to the Senate amendment and request a further conference with the Senate.

(C) A motion that the House insist on its disagreement to the Senate amendment.

(e) If, on a division of the question on a motion described in paragraph (a)(1)(B) or (C), the House agrees to recede, then a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may raise a point of order against nongermane matter, as specified in paragraph (a)(2), before the commencement of debate on concurring in the Senate amendment, with or without amendment. A point of order under this paragraph shall be disposed of according to the preceding provisions of this clause in the same manner as a point of order under paragraph (a).

11. It shall not be in order to consider a conference report to accompany a bill or joint resolution that proposes to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 unless—

(a) the joint explanatory statement of the managers includes a tax complexity analysis prepared by the Joint Committee on Taxation in accordance with section 4022(b) of the Internal Revenue Service Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998; or

(b) the chair of the Committee on Ways and Means causes such a tax complexity analysis to be printed in the Congressional Record before consideration of the conference report.

12. (a)(1) Subject to subparagraph (2), a meeting of each conference committee shall be open to the public.

(2) In open session of the House, a motion that managers on the part of the House be permitted to close to the public a meeting or meetings of their conference committee shall be privileged, shall be decided without debate, and shall be decided by the yeas and nays.

(3) In conducting conferences with the Senate, managers on the part of the House should endeavor to ensure—

(A) that meetings for the resolution of differences between the two Houses occur only under circumstances in which every manager on the part of the House has notice of the meeting and a reasonable opportunity to attend;

(B) that all provisions on which the two Houses disagree are considered as open to discussion at any meeting of a conference committee; and

(C) that papers reflecting a conference agreement are held inviolate to change without renewal of the opportunity of all managers on the part of the House to reconsider their decisions to sign or not to sign the agreement.

(4) Managers on the part of the House shall be provided a unitary time and place with access to at least one complete copy of the final conference agreement for the purpose of recording their approval (or not) of the final conference agreement by placing their signatures (or not) on the sheets prepared to accompany the conference report and joint explanatory statement of the managers.

(b) A point of order that a conference committee failed to comply with paragraph (a) may be raised immediately after the conference report is read or considered as read. If such a point of order is sustained, the conference report shall be considered as rejected, the House shall be considered to have insisted on its amendments or on disagreement to the Senate amendments, as the case may be, and to have requested a further conference with the Senate, and the Speaker may appoint new conferees without intervening motion.

13. It shall not be in order to consider a conference report the text of which differs in any way, other than clerical, from the text that reflects the action of the conferees on all of the differences between the two Houses, as recorded by their placement of their signatures (or not) on the sheets prepared to accompany the conference report and joint explanatory statement of the managers.

RULE XXIII

CODE OF OFFICIAL CONDUCT

There is hereby established by and for the House the following code of conduct, to be known as the “Code of Official Conduct”:

1. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall behave at all times in a manner that shall reflect creditably on the House.

2. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall adhere to the spirit and the letter of the Rules of the House and to the rules of duly constituted committees thereof.

3. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not receive compensation and may not permit compensation to accrue to the beneficial interest of such individual from any source, the receipt of which would occur by virtue of influence improperly exerted from the position of such individual in Congress.

4. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not accept gifts except as provided by clause 5 of rule XXV.

5. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not accept an honorarium for a speech, a writing for publication, or other similar activity, except as otherwise provided under rule XXV.

6. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner—

(a) shall keep the campaign funds of such individual separate from the personal funds of such individual;

(b) may not convert campaign funds to personal use in excess of an amount representing reimbursement for legitimate and verifiable campaign expenditures; and

(c) except as provided in clause 1(b) of rule XXIV, may not expend funds from a campaign account of such individual that are not attributable to bona fide campaign or political purposes.

7. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall treat as campaign contributions all proceeds from testimonial dinners or other fund-raising events.

8. (a) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer of the House may not retain an employee who does not perform duties for the offices of the employing authority commensurate with the compensation such employee receives.

(b) In the case of a committee employee who works under the direct supervision of a member of the committee other than a chair, the chair may require that such member affirm in writing that the employee has complied with clause 8(a) (subject to clause 9 of rule X) as evidence of compliance by the chair with this clause and with clause 9 of rule X.

(c)(1) Except as specified in subparagraph (2)—

(A) a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not retain the relative of such individual in a paid position; and

(B) an employee of the House may not accept compensation for work for a committee on which the relative of such employee serves as a member.

(2) Subparagraph (1) shall not apply in the case of a relative whose pertinent employment predates the One Hundred Thirteenth Congress.

(3) As used in this paragraph, the term “relative” means an individual who is related to the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner as father, mother, son, daughter, brother, sister, uncle, aunt, first cousin, nephew, niece, husband, wife, father-in-law, mother-in-law, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, stepfather, stepmother, stepson, stepdaughter, stepbrother, stepsister, half brother, half sister, grandson, or granddaughter.

9. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not discharge and may not refuse to hire an individual, or otherwise discriminate against an individual with respect to compensation, terms, conditions, or privileges of employment, because of the race, color, religion, sex (including marital or parental status), disability, age, or national origin of such individual, but may take into consideration the domicile or political affiliation of such individual.

10. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who has been convicted by a court of record for the commission of a crime for which a sentence of two or more years' imprisonment may be imposed should refrain from participation in the business of each committee of which such individual is a member, and a Member should refrain from voting on any question at a meeting of the House or of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, unless or until judicial or executive proceedings result in reinstatement of the presumption of the innocence of such Member or until the Member is reelected to the House after the date of such conviction.

11. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not authorize or otherwise allow an individual, group, or organization not under the direction and control of the House to use the words “Congress of the United States,” “House of Representatives,” or “Official Business,” or any combination of words thereof, on any letterhead or envelope.

12. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b), an employee of the House who is required to file a report under rule XXVI may not participate personally and substantially as an employee of the House in a contact with an agency of the executive or judicial branches of Government with respect to nonlegislative matters affecting any nongovernmental person in which the employee has a significant financial interest.

(b) Paragraph (a) does not apply if an employee first advises the employing authority of such employee of a significant financial interest described in paragraph (a) and obtains from such employing authority a written waiver stating that the participation of the employee in the activity described in paragraph (a) is necessary. A copy of each such waiver shall be filed with the Committee on Ethics.

13. Before a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may have access to classified information, the following oath (or affirmation) shall be executed:

“I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will not disclose any classified information received in the course of my service with the House of Representatives, except as authorized by the House of Representatives or in accordance with its Rules.”

Copies of the executed oath (or affirmation) shall be retained as part of the records of the House, in the case of a Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner, by the Clerk, and in the case of an officer or employee of the House, by the Sergeant-at-Arms. The Clerk shall make the signatories a matter of public record, causing the names of each Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who has signed the oath during a week (if any) to be published in a portion of the Congressional Record designated for that purpose on the last legislative day of the week and making cumulative lists of such names available each day for public inspection in an appropriate office of the House.

14. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not, with the intent to influence on the basis of partisan political affiliation an employment decision or employment practice of any private entity—

(a) take or withhold, or offer or threaten to take or withhold, an official act; or

(b) influence, or offer or threaten to influence, the official act of another.

15. (a) Except as provided in paragraphs (b) and (c), a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not use personal funds, official funds, or campaign funds for a flight on an aircraft.

(b) Paragraph (a) does not apply if—

(1) the aircraft is operated by an air carrier or commercial operator certificated by the Federal Aviation Administration and the flight is required to be conducted under air carrier safety rules, or, in the case of travel which is abroad, by an air carrier or commercial operator certificated by an appropriate foreign civil aviation authority and the flight is required to be conducted under air carrier safety rules;

(2) the aircraft is owned or leased by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner or a family member of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner (including an aircraft owned by an entity that is not a public corporation in which the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner or a family member of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner has an ownership interest, provided that such Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner does not use the aircraft any more than the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or family member's proportionate share of ownership allows);

(3) the flight consists of the personal use of an aircraft by a Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner that is supplied by—

(A) an individual on the basis of personal friendship; or

(B) another Member, Delegate, or the Resident Commissioner;

(4) the aircraft is operated by an entity of the Federal government or an entity of the government of any State; or

(5) the owner or operator of the aircraft is paid a pro rata share of the fair market value of the normal and usual charter fare or rental charge for a comparable plane of comparable size as determined by dividing such cost by the number of Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner, officers, or employees of Congress on the flight.

(c) An advance written request for a waiver of the restriction in paragraph (a) may be granted jointly by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Ethics, subject to such conditions as they may prescribe.

(d) In this clause—

(1) the term “campaign funds” includes funds of any political committee under the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, without regard to whether the committee is an authorized committee of the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner involved under such Act;

(2) the term “family member” means an individual who is related to the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, as father, mother, son, daughter, brother, sister, husband, wife, father-in-law, or mother-in-law; and

(3) the term “on the basis of personal friendship” has the same meaning as in clause 5 of rule XXV and shall be determined as under clause 5(a)(3)(D)(ii) of rule XXV.

16. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not condition the inclusion of language to provide funding for a congressional earmark, a limited tax benefit, or a limited tariff benefit in any bill or joint resolution (or an accompanying report) or in any conference report on a bill or joint resolution (including an accompanying joint explanatory statement of managers) on any vote cast by another Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner. For purposes of this clause and clause 17, the terms “congressional earmark,” “limited tax benefit,” and “limited tariff benefit” shall have the meanings given them in clause 9 of rule XXI.

17. (a) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who requests a congressional earmark, a limited tax benefit, or a limited tariff benefit in any bill or joint resolution (or an accompanying report) or in any conference report on a bill or joint resolution (or an accompanying joint statement of managers) shall provide a written statement to the chair and ranking minority member of the committee of jurisdiction, including—

(1) the name of the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner;

(2) in the case of a congressional earmark, the name and address of the intended recipient or, if there is no specifically intended recipient, the intended location of the activity;

(3) in the case of a limited tax or tariff benefit, identification of the individual or entities reasonably anticipated to benefit, to the extent known to the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner;

(4) the purpose of such congressional earmark or limited tax or tariff benefit; and

(5) a certification that the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner or spouse has no financial interest in such congressional earmark or limited tax or tariff benefit.

(b) Each committee shall maintain the information transmitted under paragraph (a), and the written disclosures for any congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits included in any measure reported by the committee or conference report filed by the chair of the committee or any subcommittee thereof shall be open for public inspection.

18. (a) In this Code of Official Conduct, the term “officer or employee of the House” means an individual whose compensation is disbursed by the Chief Administrative Officer.

(b) An individual whose services are compensated by the House pursuant to a consultant contract shall be considered an employee of the House for purposes of clauses 1, 2, 3, 4, 8, 9, and 13 of this rule. An individual whose services are compensated by the House pursuant to a consultant contract may not lobby the contracting committee or the members or staff of the contracting committee on any matter. Such an individual may lobby other Members, Delegates, or the Resident Commissioner or staff of the House on matters outside the jurisdiction of the contracting committee. In the case of such an individual who is a member or employee of a firm, partnership, or other business organization, the other members and employees of the firm, partnership, or other business organization shall be subject to the same restrictions on lobbying that apply to the individual under this paragraph.

LIMITATIONS ON USE OF OFFICIAL FUNDS

Limitations on use of official and unofficial accounts

1. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b), a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not maintain, or have maintained for the use of such individual, an unofficial office account. Funds may not be paid into an unofficial office account.

(b)(1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2), a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may defray official expenses with funds of the principal campaign committee of such individual under the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 431 et seq.).

(2) The funds specified in subparagraph (1) may not be used to defray official expenses for mail or other communications, compensation for services, office space, office furniture, office equipment, or any associated information technology services (excluding handheld communications devices).

2. Notwithstanding any other provision of this rule, if an amount from the Official Expenses Allowance of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner is paid into the House Recording Studio revolving fund for telecommunications satellite services, the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may accept reimbursement from nonpolitical entities in that amount for transmission to the Chief Administrative Officer for credit to the Official Expenses Allowance.

3. In this rule the term “unofficial office account” means an account or repository in which funds are received for the purpose of defraying otherwise unreimbursed expenses allowable under section 162(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 as ordinary and necessary in the operation of a congressional office, and includes a newsletter fund referred to in section 527(g) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

Limitations on use of the frank

4. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall mail franked mail under section 3210(d) of title 39, United States Code at the most economical rate of postage practicable.

5. Before making a mass mailing, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall submit a sample or description of the mail matter involved to the House Commission on Congressional Mailing Standards for an advisory opinion as to whether the proposed mailing is in compliance with applicable provisions of law, rule, or regulation.

6. A mass mailing that is otherwise frankable by a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner under the provisions of section 3210(e) of title 39, United States Code, is not frankable unless the cost of preparing and printing it is defrayed exclusively from funds made available in an appropriation Act.

7. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not send a mass mailing outside the congressional district from which elected.

8. In the case of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, a mass mailing is not frankable under section 3210 of title 39, United States Code, when it is postmarked less than 90 days before the date of a primary or general election (whether regular, special, or runoff) in which such individual is a candidate for public office. If the mail matter is of a type that is not customarily postmarked, the date on which it would have been postmarked, if it were of a type customarily postmarked, applies.

9. In this rule the term “mass mailing” means, with respect to a session of Congress, a mailing of newsletters or other pieces of mail with substantially identical content (whether such pieces of mail are deposited singly or in bulk, or at the same time or different times), totaling more than 500 pieces of mail in that session, except that such term does not include a mailing—

(a) of matter in direct response to a communication from a person to whom the matter is mailed;

(b) from a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner to other Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, or Senators, or to Federal, State, or local government officials; or

(c) of a news release to the communications media.

Prohibition on use of funds by Members not elected to succeeding Congress

10. Funds from the applicable accounts described in clause 1(k)(1) of rule X, including funds from committee expense resolutions, and funds in any local currencies owned by the United States may not be made available for travel by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or Senator after the date of a general election in which such individual was not elected to the succeeding Congress or, in the case of a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner who is not a candidate in a general election, after the earlier of the date of such general election or the adjournment sine die of the last regular session of the Congress.

RULE XXV

LIMITATIONS ON OUTSIDE EARNED INCOME AND ACCEPTANCE OF GIFTS

Outside earned income; honoraria

1. (a) Except as provided by paragraph (b), a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not—

(1) have outside earned income attributable to a calendar year that exceeds 15 percent of the annual rate of basic pay for level II of the Executive Schedule under section 5313 of title 5, United States Code, as of January 1 of that calendar year; or

(2) receive any honorarium, except that an officer or employee of the House who is paid at a rate less than 120 percent of the minimum rate of basic pay for GS–15 of the General Schedule may receive an honorarium unless the subject matter is directly related to the official duties of the individual, the payment is made because of the status of the individual with the House, or the person offering the honorarium has interests that may be substantially affected by the performance or nonperformance of the official duties of the individual.

(b) In the case of an individual who becomes a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, such individual may not have outside earned income attributable to the portion of a calendar year that occurs after such individual becomes a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee that exceeds 15 percent of the annual rate of basic pay for level II of the Executive Schedule under section 5313 of title 5, United States Code, as of January 1 of that calendar year multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the number of days the individual is a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee during that calendar year and the denominator of which is 365.

(c) A payment in lieu of an honorarium that is made to a charitable organization on behalf of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not be received by that Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee. Such a payment may not exceed $2,000 or be made to a charitable organization from which the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee or a parent, sibling, spouse, child, or dependent relative of the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee, derives a financial benefit.

2. A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not—

(a) receive compensation for affiliating with or being employed by a firm, partnership, association, corporation, or other entity that provides professional services involving a fiduciary relationship except for the practice of medicine;

(b) permit the name of such individual to be used by such a firm, partnership, association, corporation, or other entity;

(c) receive compensation for practicing a profession that involves a fiduciary relationship except for the practice of medicine;

(d) serve for compensation as an officer or member of the board of an association, corporation, or other entity; or

(e) receive compensation for teaching, without the prior notification and approval of the Committee on Ethics.

Copyright royalties

3. (a) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not receive an advance payment on copyright royalties. This paragraph does not prohibit a literary agent, researcher, or other individual (other than an individual employed by the House or a relative of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee) working on behalf of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee with respect to a publication from receiving an advance payment of a copyright royalty directly from a publisher and solely for the benefit of that literary agent, researcher, or other individual.

(b) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not receive copyright royalties under a contract entered into on or after January 1, 1996, unless that contract is first approved by the Committee on Ethics as complying with the requirement of clause 4(d)(1)(E) (that royalties are received from an established publisher under usual and customary contractual terms).

Definitions

4. (a)(1) In this rule, except as provided in subparagraph (2), the term “officer or employee of the House” means an individual (other than a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner) whose pay is disbursed by the Chief Administrative Officer, who is paid at a rate equal to or greater than 120 percent of the minimum rate of basic pay for GS–15 of the General Schedule, and who is so employed for more than 90 days in a calendar year.

(2)(A) When used with respect to an honorarium, the term “officer or employee of the House” means an individual (other than a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner) whose salary is disbursed by the Chief Administrative Officer.

(B) When used in clause 5 of this rule, the terms “officer” and “employee” have the same meanings as in rule XXIII.

(b) In this rule the term “honorarium” means a payment of money or a thing of value for an appearance, speech, or article (including a series of appearances, speeches, or articles) by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, excluding any actual and necessary travel expenses incurred by that Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee (and one relative) to the extent that such expenses are paid or reimbursed by any other person. The amount otherwise determined shall be reduced by the amount of any such expenses to the extent that such expenses are not so paid or reimbursed.

(c) In this rule the term “travel expenses” means, with respect to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, or a relative of such Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee, the cost of transportation, and the cost of lodging and meals while away from the residence or principal place of employment of such individual.

(d)(1) In this rule the term “outside earned income” means, with respect to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, wages, salaries, fees, and other amounts received or to be received as compensation for personal services actually rendered, but does not include—

(A) the salary of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee;

(B) any compensation derived by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House for personal services actually rendered before the adoption of this rule or before such individual became a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee;

(C) any amount paid by, or on behalf of, a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House to a tax-qualified pension, profit-sharing, or stock bonus plan and received by such individual from such a plan;

(D) in the case of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House engaged in a trade or business in which such individual or the family of such individual holds a controlling interest and in which both personal services and capital are income-producing factors, any amount received by the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee, so long as the personal services actually rendered by such individual in the trade or business do not generate a significant amount of income; or

(E) copyright royalties received from established publishers under usual and customary contractual terms; and

(2) outside earned income shall be determined without regard to community property law.

(e) In this rule the term “charitable organization” means an organization described in section 170(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

Gifts

5. (a)(1)(A)(i) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not knowingly accept a gift except as provided in this clause.

(ii) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not knowingly accept a gift from a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal or from a private entity that retains or employs registered lobbyists or agents of a foreign principal except as provided in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph.

(B)(i) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may accept a gift (other than cash or cash equivalent) not prohibited by subdivision (A)(ii) that the Member, Delegate, Resident

Commissioner, officer, or employee reasonably and in good faith believes to have a value of less than $50 and a cumulative value from one source during a calendar year of less than $100. A gift having a value of less than $10 does not count toward the $100 annual limit. The value of perishable food sent to an office shall be allocated among the individual recipients and not to the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner. Formal recordkeeping is not required by this subdivision, but a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall make a good faith effort to comply with this subdivision.

(ii) A gift of a ticket to a sporting or entertainment event shall be valued at the face value of the ticket or, in the case of a ticket without a face value, at the highest cost of a ticket with a face value for the event. The price printed on a ticket to an event shall be deemed its face value only if it also is the price at which the issuer offers that ticket for sale to the public.

(2)(A) In this clause the term “gift” means a gratuity, favor, discount, entertainment, hospitality, loan, forbearance, or other item having monetary value. The term includes gifts of services, training, transportation, lodging, and meals, whether provided in kind, by purchase of a ticket, payment in advance, or reimbursement after the expense has been incurred.

(B)(i) A gift to a family member of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, or a gift to any other individual based on that individual's relationship with the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee, shall be considered a gift to the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee if it is given with the knowledge and acquiescence of the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee and the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee has reason to believe the gift was given because of the official position of such individual.

(ii) If food or refreshment is provided at the same time and place to both a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House and the spouse or dependent thereof, only the food or refreshment provided to the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee shall be treated as a gift for purposes of this clause.

(3) The restrictions in subparagraph (1) do not apply to the following:

(A) Anything for which the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House pays the market value, or does not use and promptly returns to the donor.

(B) A contribution, as defined in section 301(8) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C.

431) that is lawfully made under that Act, a lawful contribution for election to a State or local government office, or attendance at a fundraising event sponsored by a political organization described in section 527(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(C) A gift from a relative as described in section 109(16) of title I of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 (5 U.S.C. App. 109(16)).

(D)(i) Anything provided by an individual on the basis of a personal friendship unless the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House has reason to believe that, under the circumstances, the gift was provided because of the official position of such individual and not because of the personal friendship.

(ii) In determining whether a gift is provided on the basis of personal friendship, the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall consider the circumstances under which the gift was offered, such as:

(I) The history of the relationship of such individual with the individual giving the gift, including any previous exchange of gifts between them.

(II) Whether to the actual knowledge of such individual the individual who gave the gift personally paid for the gift or sought a tax deduction or business reimbursement for the gift.

(III) Whether to the actual knowledge of such individual the individual who gave the gift also gave the same or similar gifts to other Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioners, officers, or employees of the House.

(E) Except as provided in paragraph (e)(3), a contribution or other payment to a legal expense fund established for the benefit of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House that is otherwise lawfully made in accordance with the restrictions and disclosure requirements of the Committee on Ethics.

(F) A gift from another Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House or Senate.

(G) Food, refreshments, lodging, transportation, and other benefits—

(i) resulting from the outside business or employment activities of the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House (or other outside activities that are not connected to the duties of such individual as an officeholder), or of the spouse of such individual, if such benefits have not been offered or enhanced because of the official position of such individual and are customarily provided to others in similar circumstances;

(ii) customarily provided by a prospective employer in connection with bona fide employment discussions; or

(iii) provided by a political organization described in section 527(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 in connection with a fundraising or campaign event sponsored by such organization.

(H) Pension and other benefits resulting from continued participation in an employee welfare and benefits plan maintained by a former employer.

(I) Informational materials that are sent to the office of the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House in the form of books, articles, periodicals, other written materials, audiotapes, videotapes, or other forms of communication.

(J) Awards or prizes that are given to competitors in contests or events open to the public, including random drawings.

(K) Honorary degrees (and associated travel, food, refreshments, and entertainment) and other bona fide, nonmonetary awards presented in recognition of public service (and associated food, refreshments, and entertainment provided in the presentation of such degrees and awards).

(L) Training (including food and refreshments furnished to all attendees as an integral part of the training) if such training is in the interest of the House.

(M) Bequests, inheritances, and other transfers at death.

(N) An item, the receipt of which is authorized by the Foreign Gifts and Decorations Act, the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act, or any other statute.

(O) Anything that is paid for by the Federal Government, by a State or local government, or secured by the Government under a Government contract.

(P) A gift of personal hospitality (as defined in section 109(14) of the Ethics in Government Act) of an individual other than a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal.

(Q) Free attendance at an event permitted under subparagraph (4).

(R) Opportunities and benefits that are—

(i) available to the public or to a class consisting of all Federal employees, whether or not restricted on the basis of geographic consideration;

(ii) offered to members of a group or class in which membership is unrelated to congressional employment;

(iii) offered to members of an organization, such as an employees' association or congressional credit union, in which membership is related to congressional employment and similar opportunities are available to large segments of the public through organizations of similar size;

(iv) offered to a group or class that is not defined in a manner that specifically discriminates among Government employees on the basis of branch of Government or type of responsibility, or on a basis that favors those of higher rank or rate of pay;

(v) in the form of loans from banks and other financial institutions on terms generally available to the public; or

(vi) in the form of reduced membership or other fees for participation in organization activities offered to all Government employees by professional organizations if the only restrictions on membership relate to professional qualifications.

(S) A plaque, trophy, or other item that is substantially commemorative in nature and that is intended for presentation.

(T) Anything for which, in an unusual case, a waiver is granted by the Committee on Ethics.

(U) Food or refreshments of a nominal value offered other than as a part of a meal.

(V) Donations of products from the district or State that the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner represents that are intended primarily for promotional purposes, such as display or free distribution, and are of minimal value to any single recipient.

(W) An item of nominal value such as a greeting card, baseball cap, or a T-shirt.

(4)(A) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may accept an offer of free attendance at a widely attended convention, conference, symposium, forum, panel discussion, dinner, viewing, reception, or similar event, provided by the sponsor of the event, if—

(i) the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House participates in the event as a speaker or a panel participant, by presenting information related to Congress or matters before Congress, or by performing a ceremonial function appropriate to the official position of such individual; or

(ii) attendance at the event is appropriate to the performance of the official duties or representative function of the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House.

(B) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House who attends an event described in subdivision (A) may accept a sponsor's unsolicited offer of free attendance at the event for an accompanying individual.

(C) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House, or the spouse or dependent thereof, may accept a sponsor's unsolicited offer of free attendance at a charity event, except that reimbursement for transportation and lodging may not be accepted in connection with the event unless—

(i) all of the net proceeds of the event are for the benefit of an organization described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and exempt from taxation under section 501(a) of such Code;

(ii) reimbursement for the transportation and lodging in connection with the event is paid by such organization; and

(iii) the offer of free attendance at the event is made by such organization.

(D) In this paragraph the term “free attendance” may include waiver of all or part of a conference or other fee, the provision of local transportation, or the provision of food, refreshments, entertainment, and instructional materials furnished to all attendees as an integral part of the event. The term does not include entertainment collateral to the event, nor does it include food or refreshments taken other than in a group setting with all or substantially all other attendees.

(5) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not accept a gift the value of which exceeds $250 on the basis of the personal friendship exception in subparagraph (3)(D) unless the Committee on Ethics issues a written determination that such exception applies. A determination under this subparagraph is not required for gifts given on the basis of the family relationship exception in subparagraph (3)(C).

(6) When it is not practicable to return a tangible item because it is perishable, the item may, at the discretion of the recipient, be given to an appropriate charity or destroyed.

(b)(1)(A) A reimbursement (including payment in kind) to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House for necessary transportation, lodging, and related expenses for travel to a meeting, speaking engagement, factfinding trip, or similar event in connection with the duties of such individual as an officeholder shall be considered as a reimbursement to the House and not a gift prohibited by this clause when it is from a private source other than a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal or a private entity that retains or employs registered lobbyists or agents of a foreign principal (except as provided in subdivision (C)), if the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee—

(i) in the case of an employee, receives advance authorization, from the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer under whose direct supervision the employee works, to accept reimbursement; and

(ii) discloses the expenses reimbursed or to be reimbursed and the authorization to the Clerk within 15 days after the travel is completed.

(B) For purposes of subdivision (A), events, the activities of which are substantially recreational in nature, are not considered to be in connection with the duties of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House as an officeholder.

(C) A reimbursement (including payment in kind) to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House for any purpose described in subdivision (A) also shall be considered as a reimbursement to the House and not a gift prohibited by this clause (without regard to whether the source retains or employs registered lobbyists or agents of a foreign principal) if it is, under regulations prescribed by the Committee on Ethics to implement this provision—

(i) directly from an institution of higher education within the meaning of section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965; or

(ii) provided only for attendance at or participation in a one-day event (exclusive of travel time and an overnight stay).

Regulations prescribed to implement this provision may permit a two-night stay when determined by the committee on a case-by-case basis to be practically required to participate in the one-day event.

(2) Each advance authorization to accept reimbursement shall be signed by the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer of the House under whose direct supervision the employee works and shall include—

(A) the name of the employee;

(B) the name of the person who will make the reimbursement;

(C) the time, place, and purpose of the travel; and

(D) a determination that the travel is in connection with the duties of the employee as an officeholder and would not create the appearance that the employee is using public office for private gain.

(3) Each disclosure made under subparagraph (1)(A) shall be signed by the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer (in the case of travel by that Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer) or by the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer under whose direct supervision the employee works (in the case of travel by an employee) and shall include—

(A) a good faith estimate of total transportation expenses reimbursed or to be reimbursed;

(B) a good faith estimate of total lodging expenses reimbursed or to be reimbursed;

(C) a good faith estimate of total meal expenses reimbursed or to be reimbursed;

(D) a good faith estimate of the total of other expenses reimbursed or to be reimbursed;

(E) a determination that all such expenses are necessary transportation, lodging, and related expenses as defined in subparagraph (4);

(F) a description of meetings and events attended; and

(G) in the case of a reimbursement to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer, a determination that the travel was in connection with the duties of such individual as an officeholder and would not create the appearance that the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or officer is using public office for private gain.

(4) In this paragraph the term “necessary transportation, lodging, and related expenses”—

(A) includes reasonable expenses that are necessary for travel for a period not exceeding four days within the United States or seven days exclusive of travel time outside of the United States unless approved in advance by the Committee on Ethics;

(B) is limited to reasonable expenditures for transportation, lodging, conference fees and materials, and food and refreshments, including reimbursement for necessary transportation, whether or not such transportation occurs within the periods described in subdivision (A);

(C) does not include expenditures for recreational activities, nor does it include entertainment other than that provided to all attendees as an integral part of the event, except for activities or entertainment otherwise permissible under this clause; and

(D) may include travel expenses incurred on behalf of a relative of the Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee.

(5) The Clerk of the House shall make all advance authorizations, certifications, and disclosures filed pursuant to this paragraph available for public inspection as soon as possible after they are received.

(c)(1)(A) Except as provided in subdivision (B), a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not accept a reimbursement (including payment in kind) for transportation, lodging, or related expenses for a trip on which the traveler is accompanied on any segment by a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal.

(B) Subdivision (A) does not apply to a trip for which the source of reimbursement is an institution of higher education within the meaning of section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

(2) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not accept a reimbursement (including payment in kind) for transportation, lodging, or related expenses under the exception in paragraph (b)(1)(C)(ii) of this clause for a trip that is financed in whole or in part by a private entity that retains or employs registered lobbyists or agents of a foreign principal unless any involvement of a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal in the planning, organization, request, or arrangement of the trip is de minimis under rules prescribed by the Committee on Ethics to implement paragraph (b)(1)(C) of this clause.

(3) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House may not accept a reimbursement (including payment in kind) for transportation, lodging, or related expenses for a trip (other than a trip permitted under paragraph (b)(1)(C) of this clause) if such trip is in any part planned, organized, requested, or arranged by a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal.

(d) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House shall, before accepting travel otherwise permissible under paragraph (b)(1) of this clause from any private source—

(1) provide to the Committee on Ethics before such trip a written certification signed by the source or (in the case of a corporate person) by an officer of the source—

(A) that the trip will not be financed in any part by a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal;

(B) that the source either—

(i) does not retain or employ registered lobbyists or agents of a foreign principal; or

(ii) is an institution of higher education within the meaning of section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965; or

(iii) certifies that the trip meets the requirements specified in rules prescribed by the Committee on Ethics to implement paragraph (b)(1)(C)(ii) of this clause and specifically details the extent of any involvement of a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal in the planning, organization, request, or arrangement of the trip considered to qualify as de minimis under such rules;

(C) that the source will not accept from another source any funds earmarked directly or indirectly for the purpose of financing any aspect of the trip;

(D) that the traveler will not be accompanied on any segment of the trip by a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal (except in the case of a trip for which the source of reimbursement is an institution of higher education within the meaning of section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965); and

(E) that (except as permitted in paragraph (b)(1)(C) of this clause) the trip will not in any part be planned, organized, requested, or arranged by a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal; and

(2) after the Committee on Ethics has promulgated the regulations mandated in paragraph (i)(1)(B) of this clause, obtain the prior approval of the committee for such trip.

(e) A gift prohibited by paragraph (a)(1) includes the following:

(1) Anything provided by a registered lobbyist or an agent of a foreign principal to an entity that is maintained or controlled by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House.

(2) A charitable contribution (as defined in section 170(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) made by a registered lobbyist or an agent of a foreign principal on the basis of a designation, recommendation, or other specification of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House (not including a mass mailing or other solicitation directed to a broad category of persons or entities), other than a charitable contribution permitted by paragraph (f).

(3) A contribution or other payment by a registered lobbyist or an agent of a foreign principal to a legal expense fund established for the benefit of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House.

(4) A financial contribution or expenditure made by a registered lobbyist or an agent of a foreign principal relating to a conference, retreat, or similar event, sponsored by or affiliated with an official congressional organization, for or on behalf of Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, officers, or employees of the House.

(f)(1) A charitable contribution (as defined in section 170(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) made by a registered lobbyist or an agent of a foreign principal in lieu of an honorarium to a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House is not considered a gift under this clause if it is reported as provided in subparagraph (2).

(2) A Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee who designates or recommends a contribution to a charitable organization in lieu of an honorarium described in subparagraph (1) shall report within 30 days after such designation or recommendation to the Clerk—

(A) the name and address of the registered lobbyist who is making the contribution in lieu of an honorarium;

(B) the date and amount of the contribution; and

(C) the name and address of the charitable organization designated or recommended by the Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner.

The Clerk shall make public information received under this subparagraph as soon as possible after it is received.

(g) In this clause—

(1) the term “registered lobbyist” means a lobbyist registered under the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act or any successor statute;

(2) the term “agent of a foreign principal” means an agent of a foreign principal registered under the Foreign Agents Registration Act; and

(3) the terms “officer” and “employee” have the same meanings as in rule XXIII.

(h) All the provisions of this clause shall be interpreted and enforced solely by the Committee on Ethics. The Committee on Ethics is authorized to issue guidance on any matter contained in this clause.

(i)(1) Not later than 45 days after the date of adoption of this paragraph and at annual intervals thereafter, the Committee on Ethics shall develop and revise, as necessary—

(A) guidelines on judging the reasonableness of an expense or expenditure for purposes of this clause, including the factors that tend to establish—

(i) a connection between a trip and official duties;

(ii) the reasonableness of an amount spent by a sponsor;

(iii) a relationship between an event and an officially connected purpose; and

(iv) a direct and immediate relationship between a source of funding and an event; and

(B) regulations describing the information it will require individuals subject to this clause to submit to the committee in order to obtain the prior approval of the committee for any travel covered by this clause, including any required certifications.

(2) In developing and revising guidelines under subparagraph (1)(A), the committee shall take into account the maximum per diem rates for official Government travel published annually by the General Services Administration, the Department of State, and the Department of Defense.

Claims against the Government

6. A person may not be an officer or employee of the House, or continue in its employment, if acting as an agent for the prosecution of a claim against the Government or if interested in such claim, except as an original claimant or in the proper discharge of official duties.

7. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall prohibit all staff employed by that Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner (including staff in personal, committee, and leadership offices) from making any lobbying contact (as defined in section 3 of the Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995) with that individual's spouse if that spouse is a lobbyist under the Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995 or is employed or retained by such a lobbyist for the purpose of influencing legislation.

8. During the dates on which the national political party to which a Member (including a Delegate or Resident Commissioner) belongs holds its convention to nominate a candidate for the office of President or Vice President, the Member may not participate in an event honoring that Member, other than in the capacity as a candidate for such office, if such event is directly paid for by a registered lobbyist under the Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995 or a private entity that retains or employs such a registered lobbyist.

RULE XXVI

FINANCIAL DISCLOSURE

1. The Clerk shall send a copy of each report filed with the Clerk under title I of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 within the seven-day period beginning on the date on which the report is filed to the Committee on Ethics.

2. For the purposes of this rule, the provisions of title I of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 shall be considered Rules of the House as they pertain to Members, Delegates, the Resident Commissioner, officers, and employees of the House.

3. Members of the board of the Office of Congressional Ethics shall file annual financial disclosure reports with the Clerk of the House on or before May 15 of each calendar year after any year in which they perform the duties of that position. Such reports shall be on a form prepared by the Clerk that is substantially similar to form 450 of the Office of Government Ethics. The Clerk shall send a copy of each such report filed with the Clerk within the seven-day period beginning on the date on which the report is filed to the Committee on Ethics and shall have them printed as a House document and made available to the public by August 1 of each year.

RULE XXVII

DISCLOSURE BY MEMBERS AND STAFF OF EMPLOYMENT NEGOTIATIONS

1. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner shall not directly negotiate or have any agreement of future employment or compensation, unless such Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, within 3 business days after the commencement of such negotiation or agreement of future employment or compensation, files with the Committee on Ethics a statement, which must be signed by the Member,

Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, regarding such negotiations or agreement, including the name of the private entity or entities involved in such negotiations or agreement, and the date such negotiations or agreement commenced.

2. An officer or an employee of the House earning in excess of 75 percent of the salary paid to a Member shall notify the Committee on Ethics that such individual is negotiating or has any agreement of future employment or compensation.

3. The disclosure and notification under this rule shall be made within 3 business days after the commencement of such negotiation or agreement of future employment or compensation.

4. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, and an officer or employee to whom this rule applies, shall recuse himself or herself from any matter in which there is a conflict of interest or an appearance of a conflict for that Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee under this rule and shall notify the Committee on Ethics of such recusal. A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner making such recusal shall, upon such recusal, submit to the Clerk for public disclosure the statement of disclosure under clause 1 with respect to which the recusal was made.

RULE XXVIII

(RESERVED.)

RULE XXIX

GENERAL PROVISIONS

1. The provisions of law that constituted the Rules of the House at the end of the previous Congress shall govern the House in all cases to which they are applicable, and the rules of parliamentary practice comprised by Jefferson's Manual shall govern the House in all cases to which they are applicable and in which they are not inconsistent with the Rules and orders of the House.

2. In these rules words importing one gender include the other as well.

3. If a measure or matter is publicly available at an electronic document repository operated by the Clerk, it shall be considered as having been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner for purposes of these rules.

4. Authoritative guidance from the Committee on the Budget concerning the impact of a legislative proposition on the levels of new budget authority, outlays, direct spending, new entitlement authority and revenues may be provided by the chair of the committee.

2 Mr. Castor. Good morning. This is a transcribed interview of Ms. Lesley Wolf,
3 former Assistant United States Attorney for the District of Delaware. Chairman Jordan
4 has requested this interview as part of the committee's oversight of the Justice
5 Department's handling of the Hunter Biden investigation and the impeachment inquiry.

6 Would the witness please state your name for the record?

7 Ms. Wolf. Lesley Wolf.

8 Mr. Castor. And we encourage witnesses who appear before the committee to 9 freely consult with counsel if they so choose. It's my understanding you're appearing 10 here today with personal counsel.

11 Would you identify yourself for the record.

12 Ms. Kramer. Of course. Jenny Kramer. I'm with the firm of Alston & Bird.
13 And with me here today is Stephen Simrill, also with Alston & Bird --

14 Mr. Castor. Okay.

15 Ms. Kramer. -- on behalf of Ms. Wolf.

16 Mr. Castor. Okay. On behalf of the committee and Chairman Jordan, I want to 17 thank you for appearing here today and agreeing to participate in what is now a 18 transcribed interview.

19 And my name is Steve Castor. I'm a staffer on the House Judiciary Committee.

20 I'll now have the other staffers here in the room introduce themselves.

21 Ms. Nabity. Caroline Nabity with Chairman Jordan.

22 Mr. Clerget. Sean Clerget, Chairman Jordan.

23 [REDACTED] [REDACTED] with Ranking Member Nadler.

24 [REDACTED] [REDACTED], oversight counsel with Ranking Member Nadler's 25 staff.

1 [REDACTED] [REDACTED], Ranking Member Nadler's staff.

2 [REDACTED] [REDACTED] with Ranking Member Nadler's staff.

3 [REDACTED] [REDACTED] with Ranking Member Nadler.

4 [REDACTED] [REDACTED] with Ranking Member Nadler.

5 Ms. Havens. Brittany Havens, Chairman Jordan's staff.

6 Mr. Zaro. Luke Zaro, Chairman Jordan's staff.

7 Mr. Abourisk. Clark Abourisk, Chairman Jordan's staff.

8 Mr. Hungerford. Joey Hungerford, Chairman Jordan's staff.

9 Mr. Esguerra. Matthew Esguerra, Chairman Jordan's staff.

10 Ms. Jag. Rachel Jag, Chairman Jordan's staff.

11 Ms. Meadows. Lillian Meadows, Chairman Jordan's staff.

12 Mr. Castor. Mr. Jordan issued two deposition subpoenas to Ms. Wolf, one for 13 last Thursday, December 7th. Based on scheduling conflicts we issued a second one for 14 today. We've agreed to withdraw that subpoena in lieu of a voluntary transcribed 15 interview.

16 That being said, there may be questions that we ask today and in a voluntary 17 setting you choose not to answer, and we just want to make clear that it's likely we will 18 follow up with the list of questions that you didn't answer, identifying ones that are 19 important to us, and that'll start a second process, and we can go from there.

20 I'll go over the ground rules and guidelines that we'll follow during today's 21 interview. Our questioning will proceed in rounds. The majority will ask questions for 22 an hour, then we'll switch around; the minority staff will come over and they'll have a 23 chance to answer [sic] questions for an hour as well.

24 We can take breaks whenever you need to if you need to confer with counsel or 25 for whatever reason or no reason. Often we do that at the end of the hour. If you

1 need to take a lunch break, if we're going long, you just let us know. We really -- it's 2 whatever the witness wants to do. Many witnesses don't want lunch. They want to 3 plow through. That's fine. So you let us know.

4 So the court reporter can take down a clear record and everyone around the room
5 can hear each other, we'll do our best to limit the number of people asking you questions
6 to just one at a time. Sometimes others may chime in if they didn't hear something or 7 they need clarification.

8 We want you to answer our questions in the most complete and truthful manner
9 as possible. I'm sure you understand that it's a criminal offense to knowingly make false
10 statements to Congress. You're aware of that?

11 Ms. Wolf. Yes.

12 Mr. Castor. And 18 United States Code 1001 deals with that, and that statute is 13 the statute that is often used when individuals fail to tell the truth. Are you aware of 14 that?

15 Ms. Wolf. Yes, I'm familiar with 1001.

16 Mr. Castor. We might use some exhibits -- of course we'll use some exhibits
17 today. We'll keep those as part of our record. So to the extent there are exhibits that 18 we share with you, we'd ask that you leave them here in the room.

19 That's the end of my welcoming remarks.

20 Ms. Kramer. If you will --

21 Mr. Castor. Of course.

22 Ms. Kramer. -- just briefly, I'll just remind everyone here that Ms. Wolf is here
23 voluntarily. We have provided to you the authorization letter that the Department
24 provided to us. So I think it comes as no surprise that she will be severely limited in the 25 scope of what she can and cannot provide information about today.

1 Having said that, Ms. Wolf would like to give some opening remarks, so --

2 Mr. Castor. Okay.

3 Ms. Kramer. -- if you'll allow her to do so, we do appreciate that.

4 Mr. Castor. We will. And I just want to defer to -- I'm sorry.

5 Chairman Jordan. No, I just want to thank you for being here today. I'm going
6 to have to run out here in a few minutes to go vote on the House floor, but then I'll be 7 back. And thank you for coming.

8 Mr. Castor. And before that, I wanted to ask [REDACTED] if she has anything.

9 [REDACTED]. We thank the witness for joining us today. I do want to note, I think
10 there is a vote on the House floor. I think once that wraps, we will have a couple 11 members coming in. It's a little odd setting here, so I didn't want them to surprise you.

12 Ms. Wolf. Thank you.

13 Ms. Kramer. Great. All right.

14 Ms. Wolf. I would like to thank you for the opportunity to speak briefly this 15 morning.

16 Only a few short weeks ago, I left the Department of Justice after serving as an 17 Assistant United States Attorney for more than 16 years. It is because of my work as an 18 Assistant United States Attorney that I find myself sitting here today.

19 During my tenure with DOJ, and in particular with the United States Attorney's 20 Office for the District of Delaware, I took great pride in being part of the work done and 21 the mission of the Department to seek justice, exercise reason judgment, and to do so in 22 a fair and even-handed manner.

23 When I started with the Department, Alberto Gonzales was the attorney general.
24 I served through Attorneys General Mukasey, Holder, Lynch, Sessions, Barr, and finally 25 Garland. My time in the office spanned four different Presidential administrations and

1 three different United States Attorneys.

2 Despite these changes and at times evolving priorities of the Department and the 3 district, the core mission did not waver, nor did my own commitment to the fair and just 4 administration of Federal criminal laws. At no time did politics play a role in or in any 5 way impact my work as a Federal prosecutor.

6 Guided by the Principles of Federal Prosecution and the Justice Manual, as well as 7 steadfastly complying with my statutory mandates and my ethical obligations, throughout 8 my career, I followed the facts and applied the law in each and every case I handled.
9 When there were decisions to be made, I sought the input of and collaborated with my 10 colleagues, attorneys and investigators alike, and made the decisions that I believed 11 would best serve the investigation while still complying with law and policy. This was 12 not always an easy task.

13 There is no one size fits all for Federal prosecutions. Each case presents its own
14 unique circumstances and challenges. Different and, at times, evolving policies, 15 guidelines, and statutory and ethical obligations are often at play due to the particular 16 nature of an investigation. And against this backdrop, there is room for disagreement.
17 A proper and appropriate decision and course of action did not always please everyone.
18 But, again, such decisions were never made in a vacuum and were always guided by the 19 principles of justice and fairness, as I've described. Throughout my career, I've prided
20 myself on being able to adeptly navigate those challenges and to maintain positive
21 relationships with investigators, even in times when we may not have seen eye to eye.

22 I have worked with so many wonderful people, many of whom I consider to be the 23 truest of friends. Having spent the majority of my career as a Federal prosecutor, the 24 people with whom I have collaborated over the years have become like family.
25 Together we have celebrated marriages and the arrival of children, reluctantly cheered

1 retirements, and grieved the losses of loved ones.

2 While it may seem odd to those outside of the DOJ, this closeness is not
3 uncommon when you have a unified dedication to such a critically important
4 mission -- the pursuit of justice.

5 In each and every case, I maintained a professional and collaborative relationship,
6 because doing so is in the best interest of an investigation, and it enabled me to be the 7 best I could as a Federal prosecutor.

8 Just as politics have no place in the work of the Justice Department, neither do
9 personal feelings, unchecked emotions, or ego. And I don't think there's any mystery
10 surrounding the fact that sleepless nights tend to accompany serving as an AUSA. One 11 thing, however, that has never kept me awake is wondering whether I deviated from my 12 own moral compass, ethical obligations, or, critically, what I genuinely believed to be in 13 the best interest of an investigation.

14 As I was reminded daily by the words of Justice Sutherland in Berger
15 v. United States, which remain prominently posted on the wall of the U.S. Attorney's 16 Office in Delaware, the end goal was not to win at all costs and by any means, but instead 17 to vigorously and fairly pursue justice.

18 My voluntary appearance here today is not without an overwhelming feeling of 19 frustration and disappointment, because as much as I would invite the opportunity to 20 explain the decisions made and accurately describe the actions taken, I will not be 21 permitted to answer most of the questions you have for me. It should come as no
22 surprise to the committee that as a former DOJ employee, I am significantly constrained 23 by and must strictly adhere to the authorization provided by the Department of Justice,
24 as well as those obligations independently imposed by the Federal Rule of Criminal
25 Procedure, including rule 6(e), and the relevant laws governing disclosure of tax

1 information.

2 I am here voluntarily precisely because I respect the law. I loved being an AUSA
3 and have always taken enormous pride in doing the right thing.

4 The allegations made against my colleagues and me have had a profound impact
5 on me both professionally and personally. In light of the ongoing nature of the 6 investigation, I am legally obligated at this time to largely remain silent as to those 7 allegations, beyond stating the truth, which is, at all times while serving as an AUSA, I
8 acted consistently with the Justice Manual, DOJ policy directives, and my statutory legal 9 and ethical obligations.

10 I followed the facts where they led and made decisions in the best interests of the 11 investigation. This includes, but is by no means limited to, policies and rules governing 12 politically sensitive investigations, election-year sensitivities, attorney search warrants, 13 search warrant filter requirements, and professional conduct rules barring contact with 14 represented parties.

15 My desire to serve my community and my country, such a great source of pride, 16 has recently come at significant cost. As a private person, the once routine and 17 mundane details of my life have become the subject of public interest in an invasive and 18 disturbing manner. Far worse, I've been threatened and harassed, causing me to fear 19 for my own and my family's safety.

20 I mentioned earlier that I recently left the U.S. Attorney's Office. My decision to 21 do so long predated and was unconnected to the baseless allegations made against me.
22 In fact, I agreed to stay with the office months longer than planned because of my belief
23 that my family and I were safer while I remained an AUSA.

24 I have no doubt that after today the threats of harassment and my own fear
25 stemming from them will heighten. This not only scares me, but as someone who loves

1 this country, it also breaks my heart.

2 We are living in a day and age where politics and winning seem to be paramount,
3 and the truth has become collateral damage.

4 It is my sincere hope that at least by my voluntary appearance here today, I can 5 convey that, as far as I'm aware, any narrative that suggests, much less insists, that 6 political influence played a role in any matter I handled is a false one.

7 Nonetheless, I am here today, again, voluntarily, and sincerely hope that the 8 limited information I am permitted to share with you provides some reassurance, if not to 9 the committee, then at least to the American people whom I have been so proud to have 10 served for the majority of my professional life.

11 Mr. Castor. Thank you.

12 We'll go on the record. It's 10:14. We'll go on the first round. We'll start.

13 And I'll note at the outset that we may have, as I indicated, questions that you're 14 not going to answer today. And if you would just bear with us while we ask the 15 question, and you can tell us -- you know, you can give us your response.

16 We are going to go through most of the questions that we'd like to ask for 17 purposes of making a record and outlining the information we seek so we can go back to 18 the Department and pursue it.

19 So just wanted to alert you to that. We're not trying to badger you in any way, 20 okay?

21 Ms. Wolf. Yes.

22 EXAMINATION

23 BY MR. CASTOR:

24 Q So you indicated that you joined the Department of Justice during the tenure
25 of Attorney General Gonzales. Was that in 2007?

1 A Yes. I joined the Department in August 2007.

2 Q And have you always been in the District of Delaware U.S. Attorney's Office?

3 A Yes.

4 Q Okay. And in that office, have you always been a Assistant United States
5 Attorney?

6 A Yes.

7 Q Did you have any specific leadership role in the office?

8 A I had, since 2018, a designation as a section chief for economic crimes, which 9 was not an official supervisory role but one that allowed me to assist the criminal chief
10 help supervise AUSA's handling financial crime and economic case matters.

11 Q So you've been with the Department, what -- how many years total?
12 Sixteen?

13 A Sixteen.

14 Q Sixteen years. And during that time, how many tax cases have you 15 worked?

16 A I can give you an approximate number.

17 Q Of course.

18 A I would say, during that time, somewhere between 12 and 25.

19 Q Fair enough. So you have a fairly good understanding of the ordinary 20 process for dealing with the Tax Division at headquarters?

21 A To the extent there's an ordinary process, yes --

22 Q Okay.

23 A -- I'm familiar with -- I have dealt with Tax Division in --

24 Q Okay. I mean, the Tax Division has to approve investigative activities, you 25 know, under certain circumstances, correct?

1 A Correct. And Tax Division has to approve grand juries for Title 26 tax cases
2 at the outset of an investigation. And depending on the particulars of a case, also there
3 are additional approval requirements, as well as an approval of charges.

4 Q And if you're going to bring charges, Tax Division has to green-light them,
5 correct?

6 A In the first instance, that's the normal mechanism.

7 Q Okay. And how often have you had cases in your career that have touched 8 on other districts? You know, the Hunter Biden case involved potentially a case in the 9 District of Columbia or the Central District of California.

10 How often have you worked on cases that touched on other districts or raised the 11 prospect of bringing charges in a different district?

12 A So I think there's two separate questions there. So the first question is,
13 how often sort of do you deal with or handle matters that touch on other districts? I 14 would say it's probably more common than not that something that we're doing and that 15 I was working on would touch upon another district.

16 It's the nature and sort of the essence of Federal prosecution is that there's 17 elements of it that are interstate in nature. I think that's sometimes particularly true
18 when you're in a geographically small district that borders a number of other -- you know,
19 three other States.

20 So it's fairly common to have things that touch and concern other districts.
21 Something as simple as needing to execute a search warrant over the State line in 22 New Jersey, that has to go through and you have to work with the district of New Jersey
23 on that. At other times, fugitives are arrested in a district, so I may be handling an 24 arrest in the District of Delaware for a case out of the District of Vermont. And those 25 types of contacts are routine.

1 In investigations, I think it is also not at all unusual that you will run across -- and
2 usually your investigators will figure this out -- either common schemes or common 3 players, and you work with the other districts, depending on whether those people are 4 witnesses, whether those people are subjects, whether those people are targets, to figure 5 out a path forward and to either work together and decide to work together or to 6 deconflict in order to -- to move forward.

7 But it is routine to work with other districts.

8 Q Okay. So we may have some questions about how your office interacted
9 with the District of Columbia's U.S. Attorney's Office and how your office interacted with 10 the Central District of California. So we may ask you to, you know, compare that to your 11 greater experience.

12 A Okay.

13 Q The Hunter Biden case, was this the first time that you worked with Special 14 Agent Ziegler or Supervisory Special Agent Shapley?

15 A I don't want to -- I think the answer to that's yes. I think --

16 Q Okay.

17 A -- I can answer that.

18 Q So you hadn't really met them before --

19 A I had not met either of them before.

20 Q -- before this case?

21 And this is the only case you've worked with them on?

22 A That is true.

23 Q And when did that -- when did you begin working on the Hunter Biden case?

24 Ms. Kramer. I think at this point, you know, if you want to go ahead and discuss 25 the restrictions that --

1 Ms. Wolf. Yeah. So I -- I'm not authorized to discuss particular aspects of an 2 ongoing investigation.

3 Mr. Castor. Okay. Well, I'm just asking to try to understand the timeframe that 4 we're dealing with. So --

5 Ms. Kramer. We understand the question, yes.

6 Ms. Wolf. Yeah.

7 Mr. Castor. Okay. You're not able to tell us when you started working on the 8 Hunter Biden case?

9 Ms. Kramer. You can repeat your answer.

10 Ms. Wolf. Yeah. I'm not authorized to discuss --

11 Mr. Castor. Okay. I'm not trying to be --

12 Ms. Wolf. -- particular matter.

13 Ms. Kramer. Understood.

14 BY MR. CASTOR:

15 Q I'm not trying to be tricky or badgering here.

16 A Yeah.

17 Q I'm just trying to -- when's the first time you met Shapley and Ziegler?

18 A I -- in person or -- I met Mr. Ziegler at some point in 2019. I did not meet 19 Mr. Shapley until some point in 2020.

20 Q Okay. As your office was handling the Hunter Biden matter, did you -- you
21 were the lead AUSA on the case?

22 A I'm not going to discuss particular aspects of an ongoing investigation.

23 Q Okay. How many AUSAs were involved in the case?

24 A Again, I'm not able to talk about the particulars --

25 Q Okay.

1 A -- of an ongoing investigation.

2 Q How does it work in your office generally?

3 A Sure. That I'm happy to talk about it.

4 Q You have an -- do you ordinarily have an AUSA that is the lead on a case?

5 A It depends on the particular case, but within the District of Delaware,
6 throughout my career in the Department, the staffing would differ obviously based on the 7 nature of the matter.

8 I would say that it's pretty typical in any case that something other than a very 9 routine, sometimes reactive case, like a simple -- a simple reactive gun arrest or drug 10 arrest or something as base- -- like a bank robbery, something along those lines.

11 Almost all investigative cases which are proactive investigations are in the District 12 of Delaware, staffed with at least two AUSAs. And depending on the case, it might be 13 someone more senior who is helping someone more junior as a training exercise, or it 14 could be two co-equal partners working on a case without one particularly being lead.
15 And a lot of that will just depend on the sort of vagaries of staffing at any given moment
16 and who has capacity and who has timing and who comes and who goes from the office.

17 Q Okay. And how does the supervisory structure work ordinarily?

18 A So in sort of any case within the Criminal Division is under the supervision of 19 the chief of the Criminal Division in any case. The criminal chief reports up and I believe 20 reports, I think, in the chain of command, directly to the U.S. Attorney. Although the 21 first assistant also at times plays a role and is involved in the supervision of cases.

22 I mentioned that I had served as a section chief, and that was more -- in economic 23 crimes -- that is more of an informal arrangement. There were at various points other 24 section chiefs for things like violent crime and cyber and national security who performed
25 similar functions, although that was not consistent through my tenure. And that is more

1 of an informal supervisory role, so that it is a place if, for example, someone's working a
2 case on their own or more junior people have some questions, and it helps sort of achieve
3 uniformity and just relieve some of the work and the burden on the criminal chief so that 4 by the time he or she was reviewing a cross memo or an indictment, it had sort of already 5 been through various iterations.

6 Q During the year 2022, what position did Shannon Hanson hold?

7 A I think that's a matter of public record that Shannon Hanson was the First 8 Assistant U.S. Attorney.

9 Q Okay. And during that time period, what position did Shawn Weede hold?

10 A I think similarly it's a matter of public record that Shawn Weede was the 11 criminal chief.

12 Q How often in your work do you have interaction with Main Justice?

13 A In -- typically, in the breadth of my experience?

14 Q Yeah.

15 A Again, it depends on the case. You always have -- you know, they're always 16 in the background because you're always required to comply with the policies and 17 procedures in the Justice Manual and the directives of DOJ.

18 Depending on what you're doing and the nature of the investigation, you may be 19 partnering with a litigating component, for example, Tax Division, or National Security
20 Division, or the fraud section, or the Civil Rights Division. And that happens on occasion, 21 either when you need help on a case, either with staffing or substantive expertise, or 22 sometimes they will come to you in your district and be looking to work a case and you
23 would partner with them. And that is a routine part of the practice.

24 There are other areas that touch and concern Main Justice that in any case you
25 may have. So, for example, if you're getting a wiretap in any case, right, that's required

1 to be approved through the Office of Enforcement Operations, Policy and Statutory 2 Enforcement Unit. If you're getting an attorney search warrant, similarly, that needs to 3 go through the Policy and Statutory Enforcement Unit.

4 So in almost every case you're going to run into some aspect of Main Justice at 5 some point in time.

6 Q In the last couple years, have you had interactions with the Deputy Attorney
7 General's Office?

8 A As a general matter, without talking about any particular investigation, I 9 think a line assistant such as myself would have far more limited interaction with the 10 Office of the Deputy Attorney General than people above me in the chain of command.

11 Q Okay. On the Hunter Biden case, what DOJ components did you interact 12 with?

13 A I'm unable to talk about any particular investigation.

14 Q Other than the Tax Division?

15 Who in the Tax Division did you interact with other than Mark Daly and Jeff 16 Morgan.

17 A I'm unable to discuss the particulars of any ongoing criminal investigation.

18 Q Did you have -- sorry.

19 Ms. Kramer. Mr. Castro, right, I would ask you, would you please let Ms. Wolf 20 finish her answers before asking your next question?

21 Mr. Castor. Indeed.

22 Ms. Kramer. Thank you.

23 BY MR. CASTOR:

24 Q Did you have interactions with Stuart Goldberg?

25 A I'm not able to discuss any particular matters related to an ongoing

1 investigation.

2 Q So we discussed earlier, it's fair to say that in Federal criminal tax cases,
3 approval from DOJ Tax is required before a U.S. Attorney's Office may issue subpoenas
4 and undertake other investigative actions. Is that correct?

5 A The Criminal Tax Manual -- all right. There's the Justice Manual, and 6 criminal tax has its own manual, and I believe that is an accurate description of their 7 authorization requirements.

8 Q And if a U.S. Attorney's Office is going to bring criminal tax charges, what 9 types of approval are necessary from the Tax Division?

10 A In my experience in general cases, the Tax Division will, in the first instance,
11 have approved, as I indicated, if it's a grand jury -- it's not always a grand jury
12 investigation. There are other ways tax cases can come through. But if it's been a 13 grand jury investigation, they will have approved it as a grand jury matter. They will 14 have approved it -- if a tax case grows out of another investigation, they will approve the 15 expansion of the grand jury to include Title 26 offenses.

16 And then there will be an authorization that comes through their chain. And 17 most typically there is an assigned Tax Division trial attorney who reviews the submission 18 of a special agent report by an agent that is then -- and makes a recommendation to their 19 assistant chief. And then the assistant chief makes a recommendation, in the District
20 of Delaware situation, to the chief of the Northern section. And I believe that it's signed 21 off on by the chief of the section and not by the AAG for the Tax Division.

22 Q Okay. With respect to the Hunter Biden case, Stuart Goldberg testified that 23 even though David Weiss has said he has ultimate charging authority, that the 24 Tax Division still was required to approve any tax charges. Was that your 25 understanding?

1 A I am not authorized to speak on the particulars of any ongoing matter.

2 Q Okay. So you're not authorized to speak on David Weiss' charging
3 authority? I mean, that's been one of the areas that the justice Department has allowed 4 witnesses to address.

5 A It is my understanding that because you have heard directly from others on 6 this issue who are in a far better position than I am to speak to the actual scope of his 7 authority, that I am not authorized to speak on that.

8 Q So you're not authorized to speak on Weiss' authority?

9 A That's correct.

10 Q Okay.

11 Ms. Kramer. I think -- I think you can respond with what your understanding --

12 Ms. Wolf. Right.

13 Ms. Kramer. -- of his authority was.

14 Ms. Wolf. Okay. Yes.

15 It was always my understanding, without the particulars, was that 16 U.S. Attorney Weiss would have the necessary authority to bring charges that he believed 17 were appropriate, to bring in any jurisdiction that he felt it was appropriate to bring said 18 charges in.

19 So I wasn't -- it's fair to say I was never focused on authority because it was not an 20 issue in my day-to-day experience.

21 Mr. Castor. Ordinarily, if an AUSA or U.S. Attorney wants to bring tax charges
22 and the Tax Division declines, how does that work itself out?

23 Ms. Wolf. So in an ordinary case -- I don't know that I've ever dealt with that. I
24 believe there is a process for an appeal of that, but I don't actually know what that 25 process is.

1 Mr. Castor. Is there a distinction between a Tax Division approval and 2 Tax Division discretion?

3 Ms. Kramer. If you know.

4 Ms. Wolf. Yeah. Again, I think without -- I think there probably is, but I don't 5 know, and without really looking at the tax manual and understanding the particulars of 6 it, that they would be something different. Though I would also, I think, regard them
7 both as authorization to proceed.

8 BY MR. CASTOR:

9 Q Have you ever worked a tax case where the Tax Division provided discretion
10 as opposed to approval?

11 A I'm not going to speak to any particular matters.

12 Q Fair enough.

13 A It's possible. It's possible as -- because as you indicated, there is -- some 14 possibility exists, and, again, I would refer you to the Criminal Tax Manual.

15 Q Yeah, I guess my question was, have you ever worked a case -- I'm not asking 16 you the name of the case -- where the Tax Division afforded a discretion as opposed to 17 approval?

18 A And I'm not going to speak as to any particular matters.

19 Q Have there ever been, during the course of your career, other districts that 20 you brought cases in, maybe as a Special Assistant United States Attorney?

21 A I have brought cases, at least at some point in time, in other districts as a 22 special.

23 Q Okay. How many?

24 A There's certainly one that was in court and, I guess, there may have been 25 others that didn't culminate in charges or proceeded in another matter at various points

1 in time.

2 Q Okay. But you have been deemed a SAUSA, as they call it?

3 A I have been.

4 Q Okay. What's the process for that ordinarily?

5 A As a general matter, it sort of depends on why you're being, what they call
6 being SAUSA'd in to a different district. So it can be, for example, because another 7 district has a recusal, a districtwide recusal, and they can't handle an investigation.

8 In that case, typically that comes from, usually I believe, the general counsel's
9 office of the Executive Office of the United States Attorney, communicates the need to do
10 that. And then you may get some ministerial help from the district into which you're 11 moving, but it involves completing some paperwork, signing off. You may need to 12 present a certificate of good standing, depending on the jurisdiction or what the situation
13 is. But those are -- those are one kind.

14 If it's a case where you're coming in on a sort of a more voluntary basis to 15 participate in a case and help prosecute a case, usually, right, it won't be like suddenly 16 you're going to be a special assistant. You've been working usually alongside of people.
17 It reaches a point where that becomes necessary, and those are discussions, you know, 18 where usually, in the first instance, a criminal chief would agree to that, and they'd talk
19 about the process and what was necessary. I'm not sure if ultimately you need sign-off 20 from a U.S. Attorney to do it. Some paperwork, from my perspective, but --

21 Q In the last instance, 2018, have you served as a SAUSA?

22 A I don't believe I have since 2018.

23 Q Okay. So you were not a Special Assistant United States Attorney in the 24 District of Columbia at any point in time?

25 A I have not been.

1 Q Or the Central District of California?

2 A Since 2018, I have not, but I've been a special assistant in the Eastern District
3 of Pennsylvania.

4 Q Has anyone in your office been a SAUSA in the Central District of California
5 since 2018?

6 A I can't speak to -- I can't speak to that. First of all, I don't know --

7 Q Okay.

8 A -- and I would hesitate to answer in relation to any particular investigation of 9 which I am aware. I'm not authorized to speak to that.

10 Q Okay. U.S. Attorney Martin Estrada testified that there were some SAUSAs
11 from Delaware in the Central District of California. Were you aware of that?

12 A So I'm not authorized to comment on particular things. Sometimes you
13 may start and -- as a general matter, you may start a process and things may change
14 along the way, and you may not follow through or complete the necessary paperwork.
15 But while you're -- while things are hot and heavy or you're trying to make decisions, 16 someone may start to do something, but, again, I can't speak with regard to any 17 particular investigation.

18 Q He testified there was a SAUSA from Delaware that had been onboarded 19 prior to his taking over as the U.S. Attorney. Are you aware of that?

20 A I can't speak to any particular information related to ongoing matters.

21 Q Fair enough. And if you were able to speak, do you know the answer to 22 that question, or is this one of the questions you just don't know the answer to, whether 23 you're allowed to tell us or not?

24 A I'd like -- I just want to talk with my counsel about that, so we can do it
25 now or I can --

1 Q Of course.

2 A -- talk about it on a break.

3 Q You can do it now.

4 A Okay.

5 [Recess.]

6 Ms. Kramer. Before we go any further, Ms. Wolf just wanted to clarify for the 7 record that she doesn't believe and doesn't recall having been SAUSA'd anywhere from 8 2018 forward, just to make sure that's clear. She just doesn't have recollection --

9 Mr. Castor. Yeah.

10 Ms. Kramer. -- of that.

11 Okay. But back to the question that you had asked as to whether or not you
12 specifically knew if someone had been SAUSA'd in Central District of California.

13 Ms. Wolf. Right. And to the extent that that relates to an ongoing 14 investigation, I am not able or not authorized by the Department to speak to that.

15 BY MR. CASTOR:

16 Q Okay. And I ask this follow-up question because if the answer is you don't 17 know the answer to begin with, then it's not worth our time to pursue it. And so the 18 question is, if you were permitted to give us an answer, do you know?

19 A And sitting here, definitively, I would not be able to answer that question.

20 Q Okay. Fair enough.

21 Under what -- this is related to David Weiss' authority. Under what authority 22 could he have brought charges outside the District of Delaware without the approval of 23 the local U.S. Attorney?

24 A So without speaking to any particular investigation or in this particular 25 context?

1 Q In this, the Hunter Biden case.

2 A Then I'm not able or authorized to speak as to the manner in which
3 U.S. Attorney Weiss would have been able to proceed.

4 Q Okay. And were you aware of what he had to do to bring a case in the 5 District of Columbia? Did he communicate that to you?

6 A Again, I'm not authorized to comment on the deliberative process associated 7 with an ongoing investigation.

8 Q Okay. And if you were able to communicate to us on that, would you -- I 9 mean, would you be able to?

10 A I think --

11 Ms. Kramer. Our understanding --

12 Ms. Wolf. Go ahead.

13 Ms. Kramer. Our understanding is that U.S. Attorney Weiss has already 14 appeared before this committee, and I believe he indicated that he intends to file a very 15 comprehensive report that will likely address most, if not all, of your questions.

16 So with that as the backdrop, go ahead.

17 Ms. Wolf. I think it -- it will depend on the particulars of a question, and I think 18 to get to whether or not I'm able to answer it essentially would override the sort of 19 nonauthorization to speak on particular points.

20 Mr. Castor. I guess the question then is, was it handled at his level only or did he 21 involve the whole team in those decisions?

22 Ms. Kramer. I think this kind of line of questioning has been sufficiently asked 23 and answered. Any questions about his authority and Ms. Wolf, you know, as 24 a prior -- again, as a line assistant -- a line assistant -- sitting here today, she has made 25 clear she is not able to opine on his authority.

1 So questions along those lines, you're going to get the same answer. You can
2 feel free to keep asking them, but just so you all know, it's going to be unsatisfying for you
3 moving forward. Sorry about that.

4 BY MR. CASTOR:

5 Q Are you aware that in February of 2022, David Weiss requested special
6 attorney authority from Main Justice?

7 A Again, I'm not authorized to answer questions related to the deliberative
8 process in an ongoing matter.

9 Q Okay. Are you aware of the three letters that David Weiss sent to the Hill, 10 two to Mr. Jordan and one to Senator Lindsey Graham?

11 A Those are --

12 Q They're public. Yeah, we can mark them.

13 A Yeah, I just want to make sure that I know what letters we're --

14 Q Yeah.

15 A -- talking about.

16 Ms. Kramer. The question is if you're generally aware.

17 Ms. Wolf. I'm generally aware that there was communications sent to the Hill,
18 yes.

19 Mr. Castor. And we'll mark them -- there's three letters. We'll mark them 20 exhibits 1, 2, and 3. The first is a June 7th letter, the second's a June 30th letter, and the 21 third is a July 10th letter.

22 [Wolf Exhibit Nos. 1, 2, and 3.

23 were marked for identification.]

24 Ms. Kramer. Would you like us to pass these down to others at the table?

25 Mr. Castor. Do you guys need them or did you bring your own copy? This is a

1 frequently used exhibit, so I'm not sure whether -- you got them?

2 [REDACTED]: Yeah. We have our own copies. We don't need exhibits -- or we 3 do need exhibits but not these exhibits.

4 Ms. Kramer. Those are all June 30th?

5 Ms. Wolf. Yeah.

6 Ms. Kramer. Okay. So there's July.

7 Ms. Wolf. So there's three, just so I'm tracking, June 7th, June 30th, and July 8 10th?

9 Mr. Castor. Yes.

10 Ms. Wolf. Okay.

11 Mr. Castor. Starting with exhibit 1, the June 7th letter.

12 Ms. Wolf. Yes.

13 Mr. Castor. The procedural history of this is Mr. Jordan wrote to the 14 Attorney General and, in response, we received a letter from David Weiss, which was 15 somewhat unusual to have a U.S. Attorney outside of, you know, Washington to respond 16 to us.

17 Did you have any role in helping David Weiss prepare this letter?

18 Ms. Kramer. Take your time to look through it.

19 Ms. Wolf. As far as I recall, no, I did not.

20 Mr. Castor. I want to refer you in the second paragraph to the sentence that 21 reads, "I have been granted ultimate authority."

22 Ms. Kramer. Is there a question?

23 Mr. Castor. I'm just referring her to that. Then I'm going to read it --

24 Ms. Kramer. Okay.

25 Mr. Castor. -- and then I'm going to ask a question.

1 BY MR. CASTOR:

2 Q "I've been granted ultimate authority over this matter, including
3 responsibility for deciding where, when, and whether to file charges and for making 4 decisions necessary to preserve the integrity of the prosecution."

5 You see that sentence?

6 A I do.

7 Q Okay. Do you take this sentence as a -- you know, being granted ultimate 8 authority, do you take that sentence as meaning that he had unfettered authority to 9 proceed without the Tax Division's approval?

10 A So I think that U.S. Attorney or Special Counsel Weiss is probably the better 11 witness --

12 Q Okay.

13 A -- to answer that question. I didn't write the letter --

14 Q Okay.

15 A -- and as far as I recall did not even participate or review the letter --

16 Q Okay.

17 A -- so I'm probably not your witness for that.

18 Q Okay. Would you agree that the phrase "ultimate authority" indicates that 19 the special counsel -- the now special counsel then -- just the standard U.S. Attorney, the 20 phrase "ultimate authority" meant that he could bring a case over the objection of the 21 Tax Division?

22 Ms. Kramer. Asked and answered.

23 Go ahead.

24 Ms. Wolf. I -- I'm not able to agree or disagree with what Special Counsel Weiss, 25 and at the time U.S. Attorney Weiss, intended to indicate with this.

1 Mr. Castor. I'll turn your attention to exhibit 2, dated June 30th. Are you
2 aware of when this letter was sent at the time? Did you have any role in -- or help
3 preparing it?

4 Ms. Kramer. Compound question.

5 Ms. Wolf. Yeah.

6 Ms. Kramer. Maybe break that down. Are you asking Ms. Wolf if she's aware 7 of the date that appears prominently on the first page when you say "when this letter 8 was sent," or are you asking her a more specific question about her knowledge at the 9 time?

10 Mr. Castor. Fair enough. I'll rephrase.

11 Ms. Kramer. Thank you.

12 BY MR. CASTOR:

13 Q Did you have a role in helping Mr. Weiss prepare this letter?

14 A I do not believe that I did. As far as I recall, I had no role in helping to 15 prepare this letter.

16 Q Did you read the letter when it was sent?

17 A I'm sure I read it at some point in time, but I have no specific recollection of 18 doing so prior to it being included in documents that were forwarded for preparation in 19 today's interview.

20 Q Okay. It states, "I stand by what I wrote" -- and he's referring to his 21 June 7th letter -- "and wish to expand on what this means."

22 Ms. Kramer. I'm sorry. Can you point us --

23 Mr. Castor. Yeah.

24 Ms. Kramer. -- to the -- oh, thank you. I'm there. Thank you.

25 Mr. Castor. Okay.

1 Ms. Kramer. Sorry. Was there a question pending about that?

2 Mr. Castor. I'm going to read it --

3 Ms. Kramer. Okay.

4 Mr. Castor. -- and then ask a question.

5 Ms. Kramer. Great.

6 BY MR. CASTOR:

7 Q "As the U.S. Attorney for the District of Delaware, my charging authority is
8 geographically limited to my home district. If venue for a case lies elsewhere, common
9 departmental practice is to contact the United States Attorney's Office for the district in 10 question, determine whether it wants to partner on the case. If not, I may request
11 special attorney status from the Attorney General, pursuant to 28 United States Code,
12 Section 515. Here, I have been assured that, if necessary after the above process, I 13 would be granted Section 515 authority in the District of Columbia, the Central District of 14 California, or any other district where charges could be brought in this matter."

15 A Okay.

16 Q Do you believe the June 30th letter is consistent with the June 7th letter
17 where he professed to have ultimate authority?

18 A I think that the documents speak for themselves. I think, as I indicated
19 previously, the paragraph that you just read in the June 30th letter was generally 20 consistent with what my understanding was as to the scope of his authority.

21 Q But, again, you didn't have any involvement in the preparation of this letter?

22 A I did not.

23 Q Do you know if anyone outside of Mr. Weiss in your office did have a role?

24 A I do not.

25 Q Lastly, exhibit 3, the July 10th letter to Senator Lindsey Graham. The

1 second -- the third paragraph. "To clarify an apparent misperception and to avoid
2 future confusion." Do you see that part of the letter?

3 A Yes.

4 Q Okay. "I wish to make one point clear: In this case, I have not requested
5 special counsel designation pursuant to the 28 CFR, section 600 et seq. Rather, I had 6 discussions with departmental officials regarding potential appointment under 28 United 7 States Code, Section 515, which would have allowed me to file charges in a district
8 outside my own without the partnership of the local U.S. Attorney. I was assured that I
9 would be granted this authority if it proved necessary."

10 How do you reconcile Mr. Weiss' statement that he would be granted authority to 11 bring charges outside of his district with his previous assertion that he already had that
12 authority?

13 Ms. Kramer. Just for the record, I'm going to again state this whole line of 14 questioning has, in my opinion, been asked and answered.

15 Ms. Wolf has said a number of times that the proper witness is not her. The best 16 witness to discuss the contents of a letter of which she had no dealings or role in 17 preparing would be the author himself.

18 Having said that, go ahead and answer.

19 Ms. Wolf. I think, again, to the extent I'm authorized to speak on the scope of 20 U.S. Attorney Weiss' authority, I indicated it was my understanding that he would have 21 the authority he needed. The particulars of that and what it looked like, I do not have 22 either authorization to speak to or, quite frankly, the knowledge thereof.

23 So I do think, having had the opportunity to speak with U.S. Attorney Weiss about 24 this, that's probably going to be the best witness to be able to answer your question
25 about how to reconcile the various statements.

1 BY MR. CASTOR:

2 Q Are you familiar with the former U.S. Attorney for the Western District of 3 Pennsylvania, Scott Brady?

4 A When you say familiar, I'm aware that Scott Brady was the former 5 U.S. Attorney for the Western District of Pennsylvania, but I don't know Mr. Brady.

6 Q Okay. Did you have any meetings with him?

7 A I'm not going to speak to -- I'm not authorized to speak with regard to 8 particular matters.

9 Q Okay. Were you aware that he had been charged by Main Justice to 10 evaluate certain matters related to the Hunter Biden case and Ukraine, Burisma
11 generally?

12 A It's my understanding as a matter of public record and published news
13 articles that that was, in fact, the case.

14 Q Mr. Brady testified that his role was limited to vetting the information that 15 he was able to review and compile and send it if he deemed it to have some credibility, to 16 send it to the U.S. Attorney's Offices around the country with grand jury investigations 17 going on.

18 Was that your understanding of his role?

19 A I'm not able to speak to what the particulars were more broadly of his role.
20 And to the extent it's related to any particular matter, I'm not authorized to speak on 21 that.

22 Q Mr. Brady testified that it was a regular challenge for his office to obtain 23 information from the U.S. Attorney's Office in Delaware, so much so at one point he had 24 to submit written interrogatories to your office.

25 Can you tell us about that episode?

1 A I'm unable to answer questions about the particulars of an
2 ongoing -- connected to an ongoing matter.

3 Q Mr. Brady testified that he had such trouble connecting with the 4 U.S. Attorney's Office in Delaware, he had to ask the DAG's office to run some 5 interference and facilitate communications. Is that something you can tell us about?

6 A I'm not authorized to speak to that.

7 Q In your experience, have you ever had a situation where the DAG's office had 8 to broker a meeting between two U.S. Attorney's Offices?

9 A More generally?

10 Q Yeah.

11 A I think the DAG's office regularly engages in that kind of contact. I think the 12 DAG's office is the decider essentially where there's any question or conflict between 13 various U.S. Attorney's Offices.

14 Q Have you ever dealt with a situation where the DAG's office had to require 15 your office to meet with a different office?

16 Ms. Kramer. Can you clarify?

17 Ms. Wolf. Yeah.

18 Ms. Kramer. I'm sorry. I don't understand that question.

19 Ms. Wolf. And I want to make sure that --

20 Mr. Castor. Mr. Brady testified that to have meetings with the U.S. Attorney's 21 Office in Delaware, he had to go through the DAG, and the DAG basically had to,
22 according to his testimony, had to make that happen.

23 Ms. Wolf. So --

24 Ms. Kramer. Wait. Is there a question pending? This is a series of statements 25 you're making about someone else's testimony. So what's the question related to the 1 last statement you just made, please?

2 Mr. Castor. The question is, in your experience, has the DAG's office ever had to
3 do that?

4 Ms. Kramer. Asked and answered.

5 Chairman Jordan. Did you ever talk to Mr. Brady yourself?

6 Ms. Wolf. Again, I'm not authorized to speak to any particulars of an ongoing
7 investigation.

8 Chairman Jordan. We're not asking about particulars. We're just asking, did 9 you talk to the guy?

10 Ms. Wolf. I think that that is -- exceeds the scope of my authorization to discuss.

11 BY MR. CASTOR:

12 Q Are you familiar with the 1023 form dated June 30th, summarizing a 13 confidential human sources meeting with Burisma executives that U.S. Attorney Brady 14 was able to uncover?

15 A I am familiar generally with it as it's been reported and discussed.

16 Q And did you become familiar with it in the course of your official duties?

17 A I'm unable to discuss the particulars.

18 Q Did you become familiar with it like reading it in the press, I guess is my 19 question, or was it sent to your office?

20 A I'm not authorized to discuss that.

21 Chairman Jordan. When did you become familiar with it?

22 Ms. Wolf. The form itself?

23 Mr. Castor. The June 30th, 2020, 1023.

24 Ms. Kramer. Would it be helpful to present her with the document so that we 25 know more clearly and specifically what you're addressing?

1 Mr. Castor. Do you have the 1023?

2 Ms. Kramer. Thank you.

3 Mr. Castor. This will be exhibit 4. [[]]

4 Ms. Kramer. It just helps the process to look at the document she's being asked
5 about.

6 Mr. Castor. It will not become exhibit 4 because we need to go get the 7 document.

8 Ms. Kramer. Okay. That's fine. Great.

9 Mr. Castor. We'll come back to it later.

10 Ms. Kramer. We appreciate that. Thank you.

11 BY MR. CASTOR:

12 Q Mr. Brady testified that your office only accepted a briefing from his office
13 after the DAG's office got involved. And, again, I know I've asked this maybe a couple 14 different times, and I'm not trying to badger, but had that ever happened in your 15 experience before?

16 A So I'm not authorized to speak to the particulars of a matter and to either 17 confirm or -- even confirm or deny Mr. Brady's testimony.

18 Q Okay.

19 A So that, I think is -- to the extent it presupposes it happened in that 20 particular instance, I'm just not able to answer the question.

1 [11:01 a.m.]

2 BY MR. CASTOR:

3 Q And during the course of your career, have you ever had a situation where 4 you were reluctant to cooperate with a different U.S. Attorney's Office? And by 5 cooperate, I mean have meetings, take telephone calls.

6 Ms. Kramer. I know this is almost too formal for this process, but I'm going to 7 object to form.

8 What does that mean, unwilling to cooperate? I'm just not clear on what exactly 9 you're trying to ask.

10 Mr. Castor. Unwilling to take meetings?

11 Ms. Kramer. Generally?

12 Mr. Castor. With a different U.S. Attorney's Office.

13 Ms. Wolf. I can answer those questions, generally.

14 BY MR. CASTOR:

15 Q Sure, sure.

16 A I think as a general matter, the idea would be that you are coming from a 17 place of cooperation and the common mission of the Department of Justice and what it is 18 you're trying to accomplish. But there may well be very, very valid means, reasons for a 19 desire and an interest to keep investigations separate and apart. And in those 20 circumstances, you would -- and it wouldn't be unusual to say, you know what, we're not 21 going to need to share information, we're not going to do this. And it would just 22 depend, again, on the particulars of an investigation and what the needs and what the 23 various interests were at play.

24 Q Okay. Are you familiar with Supervisory Special Agent Gary Shapley's
25 testimony where he indicated you were unwilling to interact with Scott Brady?

1 A I'm generally familiar with Special Agent Shapley's testimony, yes.

2 Q Okay. Are you familiar with that particular aspect of it?

3 A I mean, I've read his testimony.

4 Chairman Jordan. Would there be a reason not to interact and meet with Mr.
5 Brady and his team?

6 Ms. Wolf. As that relates to a particular investigation, I'm not authorized to 7 speak to that.

8 Chairman Jordan. You said there were some situations that -- the general way of 9 doing things is to, you know, "cooperate," I think, is the word you used. And you said
10 there are times that we're not going to do that. Why would there be a reason not to do
11 it in this situation?

12 Ms. Kramer. Chairman, respectfully, I think you had left the room when I had 13 asked Mr. Castor earlier, please allow Ms. Wolf to finish her answers to the questions
14 before --

15 Chairman Jordan. Okay, sure. I apologize.

16 Ms. Kramer. -- and me as well, number one. And number two, I believe you 17 mischaracterized her very recent answer.

18 I don't believe you said that there were times that you would refuse to cooperate,
19 unless I misheard.

20 So let's break that down. I think your first question, Chairman Jordan, is what 21 again, if you don't mind repeating it?

22 Chairman Jordan. Would there be a reason not to cooperate with Mr. Brady's
23 office?

24 Ms. Wolf. As to this particular case, I'm not authorized to speak to that. As a 25 general matter, and I think to potentially recast and just reframe, the infusion on the

1 point, there are valid investigative reasons in any given case that would need to be 2 evaluated before joining, overlapping, even taking in information, and that would all be 3 factored in, in any case, to deciding how to move forward in a matter, all in the spirit of 4 advancing and the best interest of the investigation.

5 Chairman Jordan. I understand. That's the general. But this is a little 6 different situation, right?

7 Ms. Wolf. I'm not authorized to speak to the particular situation.

8 Chairman Jordan. Mr. Rosen in the Attorney
9 General's Office tasked Scott Brady with being the key clearinghouse for any information
10 related to Ukraine and Hunter Biden. This is a unique situation.

11 So it would seem to me that your answer was the norm is to cooperate when you
12 have the Attorney General of the United States designating the U.S. Attorney's Office as 13 being that clearinghouse. That would even tend to be more focused on we need to 14 cooperate.

15 Ms. Kramer. I believe this has been asked and answered. And I am not even 16 sure, Chairman Jordan, there is a question pending in that statement that you just made.

17 Mr. Castor. In your experience, have you dealt with U.S. Attorneys that have 18 been the recipient of an assignment from Main Justice to examine a particular matter 19 that then subsequently touches on one of the cases you're working on?

20 Ms. Wolf. As a general matter, in my 16 years in the Department of Justice, 21 might that have happened, possibly.

22 Mr. Castor. Okay. But you can't recall anything specific?

23 Ms. Wolf. I can't -- I'm not authorized to discuss specific investigations.

24 Chairman Jordan. Well, he's asked a general question. Was this unique or did 25 this situation happen before?

1 Ms. Wolf. Again, I can't speak to -- so I want to be very clear. I can't speak to 2 what the scope of Mr. Brady's authority was, either as he understood it or as it was 3 provided by, I believe you said Mr. Rosen. I do know that at times U.S. Attorneys are 4 tasked with particular projects and particular requests on behalf of the Deputy Attorney
5 General or on behalf of the Attorney General. I don't think there's anything particularly 6 extraordinary about that undertaking.

7 You know, to the extent that it then subsequently touches on an investigation or a
8 matter in your district, I would expect that would be something that you would be aware 9 of and usually the kind of thing that would probably take place above the line level. And 10 that's part of, you know, a sort of lack of clarity or understanding on how this sort of what 11 is and isn't typical. I hesitate to answer. And, quite frankly, I think in answering 12 whether this was typical or atypical, it runs afoul of what I am authorized to discuss,
13 because it essentially acknowledges or will be interpreted as acknowledging or denying or 14 endorsing what may or may not have happened.

15 BY MR. CASTOR:

16 Q Do you have a recollection of Mr. Brady's office sending your office written 17 questions?

18 A That exceeds the scope of what I'm authorized to discuss.

19 Q And if you were authorized to discuss that, do you know the answer to the 20 question?

21 A I think that by answering it I would -- even by answering your subsequent 22 question, I would be exceeding the scope of the authority.

23 I would again reiterate that I think Special Counsel Weiss has indicated, and I think 24 it's required or at least as I understand it under special counsel statute, that he's going to 25 issue a fulsome report at the appropriate time. And I would expect that a number of the 1 questions that you're asking here today will be addressed within that document.

2 Mr. Castor. I'll mark exhibit 4.

3 [Wolf Exhibit No. 4.

4 was marked for identification.]

5 BY MR. CASTOR:

6 Q This is an email chain between you and FBI Special Agent Joshua Wilson. In 7 the last sentence of the email that you sent, it states, "There should be nothing about 8 political figure 1 in here."

9 Can you tell us who political figure 1 is?

10 A Looking at page 2 of the document, it would be, well, who's described as 11 former Vice President Joseph Robinette Biden, Jr., now President Biden.

12 Q And can you tell us why you wrote "There should be nothing about political 13 figure 1 in here"?

14 A So I am not able to answer questions about this particular search warrant or 15 this particular draft, but I can speak to the process of search warrants and drafting search 16 warrants and the process associated with that, if that would be helpful.

17 Q Okay.

18 A So in any given case, while you're seeking a search warrant, there are a 19 number of requirements. The first is that you demonstrate probable cause, and not that 20 a crime has been committed, but it's not simply enough to say there has been a crime
21 that a search warrant is probable cause for a particular crime. So just because I have 22 probable cause to look for guns in your house doesn't mean I can go in and take all your 23 bank records, for example. That's as a general matter.

24 And then the second link to it is there not only needs to be probable cause to 25 believe that a crime has been committed but that evidence or fruits of the crime will be

1 discovered at the location to be searched. The way in which -- so that is what's 2 articulated in the affidavit accompanying a search warrant or in support of a search
3 warrant.

4 The warrant itself requires specificity both of the area to be searched, and that's 5 attachment A, and then attachment B, which is a list of the items to be seized. And that 6 is where you describe the evidence that you expect to find and that you are seeking court
7 authorization to be able to take as a result of that and to seize within the scope of the 8 warrant. All of those things need to line up and need to speak to each other.

9 There is sort of a drafting, I think -- it's not uncommon that special agents will 10 spend a lot of time with an affidavit, and that's obviously where it will -- and you may get 11 a draft where no one has yet really looked at attachment B or even attachment A when it 12 comes over to make sure things marry up.

13 So in order, in any given case, you're first making sure that both your probable 14 cause lines up for both the crimes, the evidence, and what you're seeking authorization to 15 take as a result of that. It's not a carte blanche. And I think that's important. I think 16 that's important for people to understand that search warrants don't let you -- they're 17 limited. They're intrusions on people's rights. And the default is an intrusion on 18 someone's rights. So that there are protections built into the process by the 19 Constitution that the magistrates are responsible for enforcing.

20 So as a search warrant goes through, you need to be careful. If you're presenting 21 a warrant to a magistrate, you don't want to overstate your case. You don't want to be 22 too broad, so you need to line things up. So in any given case as you're revising both an 23 affidavit and the accompanying attachments to the warrant, you're working through all of 24 that. And you will frequently take things out more often. It's actually usually a process
25 of removing certain things, as often as it is a process of adding in other things. So it's

1 kind of an iterative process to get to the point where everything lines up as best it could
2 for what you have probable cause to believe you can fairly present to the court, both as a
3 matter of getting it approved by the court and also as a matter of what your sort of 4 ethical and, you know, responsibilities are as an attorney.

5 Q So in this instance, you stand by your statement that there should be 6 nothing about political figure 1 in here?

7 A I'm not able to speak to this particular warrant.

8 Q Okay. But in your opening statement, I think you indicated that none of 9 these decisions were made for political reasons. Is that fair to say?

10 A That is reflected in my opening statement, and I agree with that.

11 Q Okay. So to extent you didn't -- you asked the agents to take out political 12 figure 1, there was no political motivation in requesting that?

13 A I refer back to my opening statement where I said at no time there was 14 politics playing a role in those decisions.

15 Mr. Castor. I think my time's up on the first hour.

16 [Discussion off the record.]

17 [REDACTED]. We can go on the record, please.

18 EXAMINATION

19 BY [REDACTED]:

20 Q Good morning again, Ms. Wolf.

21 A Good morning.

22 Q You went through your background with a good deal of detail, but I just want
23 to bring out a little bit more, if you don't mind. You indicated you came into the U.S.
24 Attorney's Office in Delaware for the first time in 2007 under Attorney General Gonzales,
25 correct?

1 A That is correct.

2 Q And who was the President at that time that appointed Attorney General
3 Gonzales?

4 A I believe that it was George W. Bush.

5 Q Okay. You indicated that you worked through several Presidential 6 administrations. Those included both Republican administrations and Democrats. Is 7 that correct?

8 A That is correct.

9 Q And was there any meaningful change in the role that you had as a line
10 assistant during a Republican versus a Democratic administration?

11 A Absolutely not.

12 Q You have also indicated that you were a career, you call, line assistant. Can 13 you explain what a line assistant is in terms of your career?

14 A It is a nonsupervisory role. You're the person on the front line, essentially,
15 prosecuting all the ins and out of cases.

16 Q And that's not a political-appointed position, correct?

17 A No, to the contrary.

18 Q What do you mean by to the contrary?

19 A Well, it can't be essentially that you are, both officially under the Hatch Act, 20 limited in what you can do, but also more importantly the very nature of the work should 21 not be and can't be political.

22 Q You referred to the Hatch Act. Why do you refer to the Hatch Act when 23 you explain that your job is not political?

24 A The Hatch Act, I guess, places certain restriction on political activity by 25 Justice Department -- government employees generally, but applicable to the line on up

1 within DOJ. And as a part of that I think it is to -- I've always understood it to be to 2 create confidence from the public and the people that the individuals such as myself
3 making these decisions are not doing so with political motives or biases in mind.

4 Q And fair to say you've never held a political appointee position within the 5 Department of Justice?

6 A I have not.

7 Q And would you say that in your experience as an AUSA, you have made an 8 effort throughout your career to remain apolitical in your job?

9 A Absolutely. It's require -- I mean, it's not -- I would anyway, but it's 10 required.

11 Q Okay. During your career as an Assistant U.S. Attorney, about how many 12 cases, criminal cases, have you prosecuted?

13 A Prosecuting like that culminated in charges or investigations that may have 14 gone different directions at just --

15 Q Yeah. Just to start with, if you could answer it in whatever way is 16 meaningful to you in terms of investigations.

17 A Right. Because oftentimes information will come in and a very preliminary 18 investigation will be conducted, and it will be determined that, for whatever reason,
19 either no crime has been committed or it's not appropriate for Federal prosecution.
20 Others, some work is done -- well, work is done before a decision like that is or isn't
21 made, and it may be referred either to another district or to another body like the State
22 Attorney General's Office.

23 But in terms of actual charged cases over the 16 years that I served as an AUSA, I
24 should know the number, but I would expect that it would be approximately a hundred.

25 Q Those are all criminal cases?

1 A They are. Though at various points, I did also handle some civil cases early
2 in my career, as well as some asset forfeiture cases as well, which are civil in nature.

3 Q How many cases have you tried before a jury, if you know?

4 A Seven or eight, I believe.

5 Q And if you know, how many cases have you indicted before a grand jury?

6 A I would say most of those hundred were grand jury indictments.

7 Occasionally, as you may be aware, you can charge a matter by an information, which is 8 essentially where a pre-indictment, there is an agreement to enter a plea of guilty. That 9 would be the only circumstance in which you wouldn't indict a case before a grand jury.

10 Q So in addition to those approximately 100, you may have also been involved
11 in cases that were resolved before indictment?

12 A Well, that's included within the hundred matters.

13 Q Okay. You indicated also that you had some unofficial supervisory position
14 within the Department. Were you ever a FOUSA or in the -- I guess they're called front
15 office in the U.S. Attorney's Office?

16 A I was not, but I did sit in on senior staff and I had an SLC designation. And 17 the reason I was invited into senior staff was in part because of my seniority in the office, 18 in part because of my role with economic crime. In some ways, it was, I think, to 19 represent a line. And I think I may have been designated in connection with that as 20 counsel to the U.S. Attorney. But again, those are sort of unofficial roles that largely 21 relate, quite honestly, to an ability to give a pay bump rather than sort of a meaningful 22 supervisory role. It's not technically a supervisory role.

23 Q Okay. Throughout your career as an AUSA, have you received any awards
24 from the Department of Justice for your work?

25 A I have. From the Department itself I received a Director's Award, which I

1 think is the second highest -- you know, sort of regarded as the second highest form of 2 recognition for some work with a team as part of a litigative team for trial work I did in 3 one matter, as well as recognition at various points in time from Federal agencies,
4 including FBI and IRS.

5 Q And just a little bit about that. The Director's Award, do you recall when 6 that was given to you?

7 A So the award I think came in 2020, because there was no ceremony that 8 year.

9 Q And can you explain anything -- is that matter closed?

10 A The matter is closed. It was connected to the Wilmington Trust trial, which 11 I handled with two of my colleagues and an incredible team of agents, as well as great 12 support staff within our office. And it was essentially one of the few prosecutions of 13 individuals and senior bank executives arising in connection with the 2008 financial crisis
14 and the bailout.

15 It breaks my heart to say that it was reversed on appeal. The convictions were 16 reversed on appeal on a technical legal matter relating to a jury instruction. And 17 although the Supreme Court, I think, has since said we had it right, so that's little comfort 18 at present time. But we were recognized for -- it was about a 6-week trial, and we were 19 recognized by the Department for the work we did in that investigation and in the trial.

20 Q And would you say that that case, in the context of the other work that you
21 did at the U.S. Attorney's Office throughout your career, was one of the larger cases that 22 you had worked on?

23 A Yes.

24 Q And would you say it was impactful in your career in a way that was more 25 significant than other cases that were not run of the mill?

1 A Yes. I don't want to -- and sometimes -- you know, I don't want to sort of 2 overstate it, because I think even the little cases, right, matter, and are important, and
3 they certainly are important to the people on the other side who are being prosecuted
4 and their families. And they're important to the victims, and they're important to the 5 law enforcement agents who are investigating them. And sometimes you learn as 6 much, if not more, from the little cases as the big ones.

7 But, yes, you know, there are over a span of years taking a case from the earliest 8 stages of an investigation through trial, through appeal is just as a matter of right with 9 complicated legal issues and multiple defendants and everything else along the way, it's 10 going to be impactful.

11 Q Okay. You indicated that you retired from the Department of Justice in, I 12 think you said November of '23. Is that right?

13 A Yeah. I wish I retired, but I left the Department. I separated from the 14 Department.

15 Q Oh, understood. You didn't yet retire?

16 A No.

17 Q Okay. And those plans to separate or to leave the Department of Justice
18 were in place years ago or months ago?

19 A So it was -- it was a process. It was probably about a year ago where I first 20 started speaking with people about my intent to consider moving on from the 21 Department. And it takes a little while to figure out exactly what that looks like. But 22 those plans were in place, and I had sort of figured it all out by mid-June of this year.

23 Q Fair to say that when you chose to leave the Department, it had nothing at 24 all to do with performance as an AUSA?

25 A No, it didn't. I was -- had received outstanding ratings for I think every year

1 except the first, or maybe a first or second year when -- as an AUSA when I was merely 2 satisfactory.

3 Q Merely. Understood. And just real generally with what you're willing to 4 share with us today, can you tell us, are you proud of the work that you did as a Federal 5 prosecutor for 16 years?

6 A I'm enormously proud of it. I think for anyone who's done it, they can 7 appreciate the fact. And it sounds sort of trite to say, but it's more than a job. And it is 8 an incredibly -- it serves an important function. And you just learn to care about your 9 work. I think I alluded to the impact it has on the community, on the people that you
10 are dealing with on both sides of the occasion. And it feels like the kind of thing that 11 matters. And you work with people who share that belief and share that view in 12 attempting to seek justice.

13 So it is -- you know, you leave the job with a heavy heart because I don't think 14 there are a lot of jobs that offer that, though there are other things out there to do. But 15 I feel very confident the very little I will do moving forward will mean quite as much to me
16 as it did to be an AUSA for 16 years.

17 Q Okay. I'm going to move a little bit away from your personal background.
18 I did want to ask too, was there anything from the first hour that you needed to clarify or 19 say before I get into some more specific questions?

20 A I don't believe so.

21 Q Okay. I'm going to ask you some general questions. Not specifically 22 about the Hunter Biden matter or others, but all of these are just aimed at your 23 experience generally as an AUSA, about what kind of considerations prosecutors have 24 when they're making charging decisions or other decisions about how to lead an
25 investigation.

1 But before I even get into some of that, you indicated clearly that your position
2 was a line career assistant throughout your time at the Department, correct?

3 A Yes.

4 Q And as a line assistant, is it fair to say that you actually personally never had 5 the authority to charge people criminally; that authority instead lies with the United 6 States Attorney at whose direction you're working?

7 A Yes.

8 Q And so your role, is it fair to say, as a line assistant, as Assistant U.S.
9 Attorney, is to make recommendations about charging and other investigative steps that 10 the United States Attorney then has to authorize?

11 A Yes, it is. I have no independent authority to decide to charge a matter.

12 Q Okay. And that applies to every single case that you have ever touched at 13 the District of Delaware and elsewhere in the Department?

14 A That is every single case.

15 Q Okay. No -- sorry. Are you familiar with the Justice Manual and the 16 Principles of Federal Prosecution?

17 A I am.

18 Q And how are you familiar with it?

19 A The Justice Manual and the Principles of Federal Prosecution, which I think 20 are actually included as sections within the Justice Manual, they're your playbook, they're 21 your go-to as an AUSA. And you may hear me call it the USAM, or the U.S. Attorney's 22 Manual, because for a long time that's what it was. But it is the policies and procedures
23 that are applicable to all cases and in some areas are sort of specific and technical 24 requirements that need to be followed. And others like, for example, as they embody 25 the Principles of Federal Prosecution, just a little more aspirational and amorphous to

1 provide some guidance and bumpers, so to speak, to sort of remind people, I think, of 2 what the obligations are and what the relevant considerations are.

3 Q Okay. I'm going to admit as -- I think it's exhibit 5. This is a portion of the 4 Justice Manual that includes the Principles of Federal Prosecution.

5 [Wolf Exhibit No. 5.

6 was marked for identification.]

7 BY [REDACTED]:

8 Q If you can take a minute to look at the portion I've provided to you. Are 9 you familiar with this generally?

10 A Yes.

11 Q Okay. I'm going to direct you to just first the preface, which is section 12 9-27.000 and 01. I guess it starts on the second page, as is printed here.

13 Directing your attention to the last paragraph on that page. The first sentence of 14 the paragraph describes the Principles of Federal Prosecution serve two purposes. Do 15 you see that portion?

16 A Yes.

17 Q Okay. And according to this, it says that the two purposes of the Principles 18 of Federal Prosecution are, one, quote, "Ensuring the fair and effective exercise of 19 prosecutorial discretion," unquote. And then it says the second is, quote, "Promoting 20 confidence on the part of the public and individual defendants that prosecutorial 21 decisions will be made rationally and objectively based on individualized assessment of 22 the facts and circumstances of the case."

23 I've omitted some language, but did I read it correctly as far as you can tell?

24 A Yes.

25 Q Okay. Are you familiar with this language and the purposes that underlie

1 the Principles of Federal Prosecution?

2 A I am.

3 Q Based on your experience and expertise, what do you think it means, this
4 language, quote, "ensuring the fair and effective exercise of prosecutorial discretion," end
5 quote?

6 A I think it's just creating a baseline to, as I said, remind people of the 7 obligation to -- because you do have discretion and you're making decisions all of the 8 time. And that the principles of fairness are vital to that, as well as being effective in 9 enforcing -- not only just enforcing the criminal laws, but also enforcing them in a matter
10 so as to achieve justice.

11 Q And you already referred to prosecutorial discretion, but can you give us a 12 few words about what that means?

13 A Sure. In speaking right, Federal criminal laws are statutory; that there are 14 elements to each offense. And as a baseline matter, you have to determine that there's 15 proof available to support all of those -- all of those things in order to bring a case. It's 16 improper to bring a case if you don't believe that you can prove that case. But, more 17 importantly, is just because you can doesn't mean you should.

18 And this is a constant in -- and I don't think it's unique to being an AUSA, though 19 it's certainly heightened as an AUSA. You are authorized to do a lot of things, right; that 20 there's a relatively low threshold for approaching witnesses or subpoenaing documents.
21 A lot of times you can articulate probable cause to serve something. In other instances,
22 you can definitely meet the legal requirements and probably convict someone before a 23 jury. But that doesn't mean you should.

24 In each circumstance, and really every day, there's like a million decisions, right.
25 I think there's some research out there about how many decisions people make on a daily

1 basis, and it's something like 62,000, or something ridiculous. It's probably twice that
2 for an AUSA. Because you're constantly evaluating, okay, I can do this. Does this sort
3 of big picture, right, satisfy and work towards achieving and moving towards justice?
4 Whereas on the back side of it, also just at an individual level, the question is, is how does
5 this serve the best interest of the investigation?

6 And those are all the things that you're required to think about and do in every 7 single case, sort of every single day.

8 Q Okay. Do you broadly agree that one of the main objectives of the 9 Principles of Federal Prosecution is to ensure that prosecutors treat defendants fairly and 10 equally under the law?

11 A Yes.

12 Q And I don't want to put words in your mouth, but would you agree that 13 prosecutors have somewhat unique role in the criminal justice system because it's not 14 just their job to win a case, but also to simultaneously respect the rights of the defendant
15 that's being charged?

16 A Absolutely. And I think I alluded to the quotes from Berger v. United 17 States, right, that it is -- you have to strike fair blows. And it is not simply about winning 18 or burying the other side. It is about working hard, vigorously pursuing the truth, and 19 doing so in a way that is still within the limitations and the boundaries of the Constitution.

20 Q And you as a prosecutor actually have legal obligations to the defendant, not 21 just under the law to prosecute a case. For example, Brady obligations?

22 A That is correct.

23 Q And you have ethical obligations as a prosecutor as well to the defendant.
24 Is that correct?

25 A That is correct.

1 Q During your long career as a Federal prosecutor, have you scrupulously
2 adhered to the principle articulated in the Principles of Federal Prosecution in order to 3 ensure that you've treated defendants fairly and equally under the law?

4 A I think as I said sort of out of the gate in my opening comments and opening 5 remarks, yes, I have.

6 Q And just, if you can give any color to that, can you explain in any way, like,
7 how is it that you're able to do that, and how are you confident that you're able to do
8 that in your work?

9 A So I think the most basic way in which I'm confident that I was able to do it is 10 because I believe in it. And it's not just something that I've signed on to in conjunction 11 with taking a job or as a condition of employment, but it is important to the system of 12 justice and to sort of rule of law, which I have enormous respect for, that it's done so.
13 And I think that part of the reason for me that my work, and in particular at the United 14 States Attorney's Office for the District of Delaware, was so meaningful was because that 15 was very much a shared mission. It is a smaller office, and I think it's one of the smallest 16 U.S. Attorney's Offices. And as a part of that, there are periods where -- there's always 17 people that come and go from U.S. Attorney's Offices, but there was, for most of my 18 career, a core group of people who were not just passing through and who fostered that 19 and shared that vision and that role moving forward. And constantly because 20 you're -- and then just lastly, you're always mindful of it because you are trying to do the 21 right thing, and I think you are guided by what internally you believe is the right thing.
22 You have these principles backing you up. And then you have usually terrific colleagues, 23 when you're not sure what to do, you can talk to and bounce ideas off of and encourage 24 you to think about things in new ways and in a new light.

25 Q Okay. The second part of that preface it talked about fairness to the

1 defendant. And it also talks about the need to promote the perception in the public
2 that there is fairness, or not to undermine the perception of fairness in the public. Do
3 you agree that that is also important as the prosecutor exercises her discretion, to make 4 sure that the public is not looking on this system as unfair?

5 A It is. It's very important. It's also very challenging to do. And in part it's 6 because you -- partially, you're trying to do your best, but you -- and you have reasons.
7 And often they are reasons you can't share for a variety of reasons as to why you've made
8 a particular decision. And you have to be willing. You know, I think that sometimes 9 can be undermining to public confidence, but it is sort of a necessary part of the process
10 to protect people's individual rights and really the integrity of the system.

11 But -- and partially you don't control every aspect of that in, right -- the courts are 12 charged with sentencing. And sometimes the end result of a sentence will be different 13 than either what you expected or what it was in a way. And while they're tasked with 14 not imposing unwarranted sentencing disparities, sometimes it feels like those are not, 15 you know, always equal. So you don't always have control over the process, and it is 16 difficult.

17 And then it's a public-facing role as well. So you have a lot of people, and 18 depending on the type of case or investigation that you're doing, more or less of sort of 19 commentary and scrutiny on the decisions you're making and the work you're doing, 20 which can have the effect essentially of undermining confidence in what you're doing 21 along the way.

22 Q I'm going to have you move a little bit past this preface. Turn to page 5, if 23 you would, and we're going to look at the portion of the Justice Manual, section 9-27.220, 24 which is entitled, "Grounds for Commencing or Declining Prosecution." It should be on 25 the bottom of page 5.

1 Do you see that section, Ms. Wolf?

2 A Yes.

3 Q It's kind of small print, I apologize.

4 A I've got my glasses. I can see it.

5 Q Okay. I'm going to read first that portion. That portion reads, "Grounds
6 for Commencing or Declining Prosecution. The attorney for the government should 7 commence or recommend Federal prosecution if he or she believes that the person's 8 conduct constitutes a Federal offense, and that the admissible evidence will probably be 9 sufficient to obtain and sustain a conviction, unless, one, the prosecution would serve no
10 substantial Federal interest; two, the person is subject to effective prosecution in another 11 jurisdiction; or three, there exists an adequate noncriminal alternate to prosecution."

12 First of all, have I read that correctly?

13 A Yes.

14 Q Have your actions as a Federal prosecutor been guided by these principles as 15 we've articulated them here from the Justice Manual?

16 A Yes, they have.

17 Q And let's walk through them one by one. First, the prosecutor is guided to 18 recommend charges when they believe the admissible evidence will probably be 19 sufficient to obtain and sustain a conviction. What does admissible evidence mean?

20 A It means essentially that it satisfies both constitutional requirements and the 21 Federal Rules of Evidence so that there's a whole structure, for the nonlawyers in the 22 room, as to what can and cannot come in in a courtroom.

23 Q And it's not that uncommon in an investigation for you to have knowledge or 24 hear information that may not be able to be submitted to the jury because it doesn't 25 comply with those rules. Is that fair to say?

1 A It is. And part of the reason also that investigations, for example, we
2 were -- I was describing the process for search warrants, part of the reason it's important
3 to get that and make sure it's correct is to do everything you can to make sure as much
4 evidence as possible that you're gathering will, in fact, be admissible at trial.

5 Q And that refers to what a trial judge might do if you were to, say, obtain
6 evidence from a search warrant illegally. Could the judge limit the introduction of that 7 evidence or in some way --

8 A Yes.

9 Q -- punish you as a prosecutor?

10 A It's not punishment, but yes, it could be deemed inadmissible.

11 Q Okay. So the Principles of Federal Prosecution also refer to the amount of 12 admissible evidence that is, quote, "sufficient to obtain and sustain a conviction," 13 unquote.

14 In a criminal case, the amount of evidence sufficient to obtain or sustain a 15 conviction is an amount sufficient to prove the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable 16 doubt, correct?

17 A Yes.

18 Q Sorry that was long.

19 Now, beyond a reasonable doubt is the highest evidentiary standard in the law.
20 Fair to say?

21 A Yes.

22 Q Beyond a reasonable doubt is higher standard than probable cause standard,
23 which is often used -- well, which is used to indict people in the grand jury?

24 A It is. And that's sort of the difference I think we were talking about, the can 25 versus should. That you can charge a case based on probable cause alone, that is the

1 legal standard that goes before a grand jury. But in making the decision whether to 2 present that basis for probable cause to a grand jury and seek to charge a case, you are 3 looking at the threshold as articulated in the 9-27.220.

4 Q Okay. That's beyond a reasonable doubt?

5 A It's a reasonable likelihood or substantial likelihood of prevailing of the 6 merits, which is substantial likelihood that you could prove your case beyond a
7 reasonable doubt.

8 [REDACTED]: I'm sorry, when you're considering whether to charge, can you
9 explain why you specifically take into account beyond a reasonable doubt, even though 10 you could charge just based on a probable cause standard?

11 Ms. Wolf. In part because, ultimately, that's the burden you're held to at trial.
12 And you, as a general matter without -- you like to feel like you've got a good sense of 13 what your evidence is before you make that decision precisely for these reasons and for 14 an understanding.

15 We also are in a world of finite resources, and you can't do every single case.
16 That is a violation of Federal criminal law as a case. It's time-consuming. And as you're 17 trying to figure out how to allocate resources, it's a relevant consideration as to whether 18 or not you can do it. But more broadly, there is a question as to where you have no 19 shortage of matters to pursue, to proceed against those who most warrant, deserve the 20 scrutiny and attention, which is largely based on the seriousness of the conduct. But 21 also it does little to inspire confidence in the system to go after people who are 22 wishy-washy. It doesn't help to lose cases. In some ways, right, there's always a risk of 23 emboldening other people to engage in similar conduct.

24 So these are all really important considerations. And it is -- it goes beyond the 25 technical probable cause requirement as you're thinking through it.

1 BY [REDACTED]:

2 Q And continuing with this part of the Principles of Federal Prosecution, the 3 prosecutor's obligation under the principles to present sufficient evidence to prove a case
4 beyond a reasonable doubt, that's sometimes referred to as burden of proof at trial,
5 correct?

6 A Beyond a reasonable doubt is the burden. That is the burden of proof, yes.

7 Q And it's the government who bears that burden in a criminal case, correct?

8 A At all times.

9 Q A defendant, by contrast, does not have to present any defense or any 10 evidence at trial if they choose not to, right?

11 A That is correct.

12 Q But if the defendant chooses to present their own evidence and to put on a 13 defense, in order for the government to then meet its burden, it must overcome that 14 defense and still present enough evidence beyond a reasonable doubt to prove guilt. Is 15 that true?

16 A Yes, it does -- if a defendant puts on a case, it still doesn't change that the 17 ultimate burden of proof lies with the government to prove the case beyond a reasonable 18 doubt.

19 Q Okay. Because, ultimately, the evidence must be sufficient in light of all 20 defenses presented at trial, if one is presented, for the government to show beyond a 21 reasonable doubt the defendant has been guilty?

22 A Yeah. It's not enough to simply understand what your evidence will be in 23 evaluating whether or not to bring a prosecution. And, typically, right, there's a process 24 of writing what's a prosecution memo where you analyze your position and your 25 argument and what's going on. But part of that is also understanding and articulating

1 and talking through what the likely defenses will be and how that impacts what proof.

2 You can't simply assume that your theory of the case and the evidence you have will be
3 uncontroverted or that it's unequivocally supported by all of the facts in the case.

4 There is often, in particular in fraud cases, where the issue is more commonly 5 mental state than anything else. There's not a lot of dispute about what happened.
6 There's more dispute about what it means; that there will be conflicting evidence or 7 counternarratives that you expect to present at trial, and you need to think through how 8 that impacts your ultimate ability to prove your case.

9 Q You mentioned the prosecution, and I'm going to get to that in just a second.

10 A Okay.

11 Q But just continuing along a little bit, when the prosecutor is under the rules
12 of -- or under the Principles of Federal Prosecution, considering whether they have 13 enough evidence and the beyond the reasonable doubt standard, in your experience as a
14 Federal prosecutor, is it fair to say that it can be difficult to convince a jury beyond a 15 reasonable doubt, even when you have a significant amount of evidence that the 16 defendant has violated the law?

17 A So --

18 Q I guess what I'm emphasizing is the jury itself. Like, one other challenge
19 that a prosecutor has often in a criminal case is that you not only have to present enough 20 evidence to get beyond a reasonable doubt in that standard, but you have to prove that 21 to a jury, which is 12 citizens who unanimously have to agree that you've met your 22 burden. Is that correct?

23 A That is correct.

24 Q And if even one person on that jury decides that they have a reasonable 25 doubt with respect to something that you've proven in your case, they'll be instructed

1 not -- to find the defendant not guilty?

2 A That is correct. And, you know, this is commonly a factor we think about in 3 shop as jury appeal of a case. And it's really both sort of proactively, like, why should a 4 jury care about this, and why should they care enough to say, we're going to convict
5 someone and revoke their liberty for this particular thing?

6 So there's that matter. And then there are sort of the particulars of any 7 individual defendant and whether there's an expectation that there are particular factors
8 or circumstances associated with the defendant that will come out at trial that may 9 impact -- as you said, it only takes one, but more broadly, the potential for unanimity of a 10 jury verdict.

11 Q Okay. So, again, just focusing a little bit more on this challenge that a 12 prosecutor has, when they are looking at charging a case, they're looking down the road
13 at what's going to happen at trial, correct?

14 A You should be.

15 Q Well, according to the Principles of Federal Prosecution, you should be,
16 right?

17 A Yes. Yes.

18 Q And you have to overcome the beyond a reasonable doubt standard,
19 correct?

20 A At the --

21 Q You have to present evidence at trial. And you also have to convince 12
22 citizens who are not legal experts that your evidence is sufficient, correct?

23 A Yes.

24 Q And could one of the problems, in your experience, be overcoming a 25 vigorous defense? For example, if the defendant on the other side has a good argument

1 or a vigorous defense attorney, could that be a problem sometimes at trial to convince 2 the jury that you have something to overcome that?

3 A Certainly. And it doesn't even have to be a good defense. It can be
4 very -- I think as you alluded to, it can be a very good lawyer. And because there's so
5 much, right. We need 12. They only need one. And you see people -- and because I
6 think the safeguards -- and it's not necessarily inappropriate to do so, right. The 7 safeguards are there for the people who you're trying to convict of a crime. It
8 sometimes feels like the system is -- you know, I won't say stacked against you because 9 that's not fair. But you are held to a much, much higher standard and burden along the 10 way.

11 So, obviously, I think it is -- you know, there's litigation risk involved, and you have 12 to think through what a defense is going to look like.

13 Q Okay. In addition to the vigorousness of the defense or the quality of the 14 defense attorney, another difficulty might be explaining a complex series of crimes to a 15 jury of lay citizens. Is that fair to say?

16 A It is. Although, if you do your job right, it shouldn't be. But it's one of the 17 most -- it can be one of the most challenging things, and you have to figure out how to 18 explain it.

19 Q Okay. And the complexity of charges is something that you would have to 20 consider on the front end when you're considering whether you're likely to succeed at 21 trial, correct?

22 A Yes. I think there's also, as you're working through things, right, that there
23 can be very convoluted theories and more straightforward theories. And you working 24 both with your own team and with your supervisors and everything else, you focus on the 25 sort of storytelling and how you're going to accurately and truthfully convey to the jury

1 both what happened, why that matters, and why they should care.

2 Q Okay. And another difficulty or challenge that a prosecutor might face in 3 convincing a jury is the defendant's intent if the crime requires proving willfulness. Is 4 that fair to say?

5 A Intent is almost always the hot button issue in most fraud or white-collar
6 economic crime prosecutions, yes.

7 Q Can it sometimes be difficult to convince a jury of the defendant's guilt
8 where there's evidence that the defendant is in a very troubled state of mind at the time
9 that the crimes were alleged to have occurred?

10 A I mean, that would be one factor.

11 Q In order to obtain a criminal conviction, you not only need to establish the 12 defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt; we indicated that you also have to have a 13 unanimous verdict, correct?

14 A Yes.

15 Q Okay. Have there been times when you, guided by the Principles of Federal 16 Prosecution, have recommended declining to bring charges against the defendant?

17 A In my 16 years?

18 Q Yes, in your entire career.

19 A Yes.

20 Q Okay. Have there been times when your investigation may have yielded a 21 significant amount of evidence that this defendant was guilty but where the evidence was 22 still not sufficient, in your judgment, to convince a jury of the defendant's guilt beyond a 23 reasonable doubt?

24 A Yes.

25 Q Why might you recommend declining to bring charges, hypothetically, in

1 cases like that?

2 A I mean, there's any number of reasons why you would do that.

3 Certainly -- a lot of times, right, it would -- I think -- and this goes back to the original -- is 4 there sort of an adequate noncriminal recourse here. So if the way things have shaped
5 all over, like several years, right, does it feel -- even though you could prove it, right, does
6 it feel maybe like it's more of a civil case. Or just in terms of feeling like there's a sense
7 of feeling of like justice as to what has happened and how this has all gone out, maybe 8 that's a factor.

9 You may have a defendant against who you have a great case against but they're 10 in, you know, terminal kidney failure. And you may have, you know, a husband and wife 11 who have committed crimes together, where one is substantially more culpable than the 12 other and you could probably prove the case against both, but there might be, you know, 13 young children left at home without, you know, either par- -- these are not specific to any 14 case, but these are the kinds of things that you're thinking about.

15 It may be a case where an agent who knows all the information and ran 16 everything through retires. And that's just a huge knowledge gap that's going to make 17 the case, like, so much -- you have to basically do it all over. And depending on what it 18 is -- it's a constant balancing of factors and decisions. And there's no sort of right, wrong
19 way to do it.

20 Q Okay. And you said that, you know, you have had circumstances where 21 you've seen a significant amount of evidence against a defendant, where you have 22 recommended declining charges, for whatever reason, as some of them you've described,
23 right?

24 A Yes.

25 Q And when you've done that, you're not just acting on your own without

1 consulting people in your office. Fair to say?

2 A That is correct. I don't believe that I have ever, in my recollection, sort of 3 issued that type of declination without having a conversation with at least one supervisor.

4 Q And also, you're not making those decisions in a vacuum. You are doing it
5 because you're bound by many factors, including prosecutorial ethics, the Federal 6 prosecution guidelines that we've just discussed, and other considerations that bind
7 prosecutors in these decisions. Is that fair to say?

8 A That's correct. It's never in a vacuum. And it's never just what I think.
9 It's what I think in relation to all of these things.

10 Q Okay. I'm going to move beyond the Principles of Federal Prosecution. I 11 think you've given us a good understanding of how they operate and how they worked in 12 your career.

13 You mentioned before that there's a -- I think you called it a prosecution memo.
14 Is that the term you used?

15 A Yes.

16 Q Okay. Can you tell us a little bit -- I'm going to focus on the stages of a 17 prosecution, sort of distinguishing between the investigative stage, and as you get closer 18 to potential charges in a trial, what the process looks like.

19 Now, with respect to the prosecution memo, can you just tell us, what is that, in 20 your experience?

21 A In my experience, it's a requirement -- I don't know if it's a requirement in 22 the Justice Manual or just in that District of Delaware Criminal Manual, but for every case
23 before indictment, you're required to, in written form, present -- essentially, you talk
24 generally about the case, you talk about the law, you talk about the punishment, you talk 25 about the elements of the offense, you talk about the proof, and you talk about the

1 defendant. And you sort of wrap that up and present that in the first -- and make a
2 recommendation.

3 And it's usually -- usually you don't write a full declination memo. But for any 4 case you're prosecuting, you request essentially to present the indictment to a grand jury.
5 That goes to the criminal chief. And you've drafted a proposed charging document
6 along with -- that goes to the criminal chief in the first instance, who then sends it up for 7 U.S. Attorney approval.

1 [12:02 p.m.]

2 BY [REDACTED]:

3 Q And in cases that -- you referred to earlier that you have reactive cases and 4 then you also have proactive cases. Can you just briefly explain what the difference is in 5 terms of the U.S. Attorney's Office generally?

6 A Sure. So, you know, the easiest example of a reactive case is they pull 7 somebody over for a traffic stop and they discover a whole bunch of, you know, drugs in a 8 vehicle.

9 Or that, you know, they show up, they are called to the scene of an argument or 10 crime and somebody has a gun, and when they run that person, they have a felony 11 conviction precluding them from lawfully presenting the firearm.

12 Those are more reactive cases.

13 Proactive cases are things where -- they can be both sort of moving forward.
14 They can be like wiretap cases. So not all like drug and gun cases are reactive where 15 you're doing affirmative steps to investigate. There is still work to be done, essentially,
16 to be able to prove or make the case along the way.

17 And they can be -- but they can be retrospective, right. It's a proactive 18 investigation if doing things, marshaling materials. They don't lend themselves to sort of 19 a simple like three-sentence narrative. You have to talk to witnesses. You have to get 20 documents. You have to kind of piece together what happened.

21 Q So focusing a little bit on the proactive cases, these usually are cases that 22 you start as an AUSA working with an investigator, some kind of Federal investigator. Is 23 that fair to say?

24 A Yes.

25 Q What kind of agencies would you work with throughout your career?

1 A Probably most frequently FBI. They just have the broadest jurisdiction and 2 sort of largest local presence. I worked with FBI. I worked with IRS CI, DEA, ATF, postal
3 inspectors. Secret Service has criminal jurisdiction as well.

4 And then there are all of these sort of little OIGs, like Social Security OIG, USDA
5 OIG, all who have responsibility for fraud within their programs. So we worked a lot 6 with them as well.

7 And sometimes those agencies will partner also with like State and local 8 authorities. So we worked not infrequently with the Delaware State Police or New 9 Castle County Police Department or Wilmington Police Department on our matters in 10 Delaware.

11 Q A lot of those investigations, is it usually the case that the investigators will 12 come to you with information that they have begun to gather or is it the other way 13 around or both?

14 A It's both, but more typically it is driven or initiated by the investigative 15 agency.

16 Q Okay. And can you talk a little bit about what the difference is, if there is 17 one, between the role of the investigator at that stage and the role of the prosecutor as 18 you come together to work an investigation?

19 A I'm sorry, at which stage?

20 Q At the beginning, when the investigator comes to you with some 21 information.

22 A So typically -- or the most -- there is no real typical because it's one of those 23 things that varies greatly, and there are a lot of ways that an investigation can come in or 24 be opened.

25 But a, for example -- and I'll use the FBI here because they are here -- someone, a

1 citizen, they have an internet complaint system where people can file and just let people
2 know something has happened online, and that gets routed to sort of the most 3 appropriate jurisdiction.

4 So they may say -- somebody reported that their bookkeeper embezzled
5 $43 million from their company. Usually that would be a phone call, but nonetheless 6 they've come in.

7 Usually, sort of baseline, they do some very basic work before they even reached
8 out to the U.S. Attorney's Office. Most notably, they'd sort of run in the system to see 9 like, "Oh, does somebody else already have this open? Is there something already going 10 on in that?"

11 They might look for news articles or just do some very basic things to make sure 12 it's not a frivolous complaint or that it's something that they're worth looking into. And 13 they can either open an assessment or a full case.

14 The stage at which they will definitely come to the U.S. Attorney's Office is the 15 point at which they want to issue process or take some sort of affirmative step in 16 connection with the matter.

17 So I'll get -- and I got a lot of these, both directly and then as the supervisor for 18 economic crimes -- you get a phone call. "Hey, we got this information. We'd like to 19 open a case. What's your position on it?" And I will often, more often than not say,
20 "Yeah, let's open it up."

21 The threshold for opening an investigation is relatively low. And then sometimes 22 you do some very preliminary work, kick some subpoenas. You get information back
23 and suddenly it makes sense. So you close that case down.

24 Other times that's just the start of the process.

25 Q Is it fair to say that the investigators, as they come to you, have a different

1 role than you have when you're examining, for example, whether to open a matter at the 2 U.S. Attorney's Office or to issue a subpoena or give them some other kind of approval for 3 a legal process?

4 A Yes, there's different roles. There's a team approach and people talk
5 through and work through. But ultimately the decision to determine the legal 6 sufficiency or present a document to the court or anything else is the prosecutor's
7 decision, not the investigator's.

8 Q And why is that decision made by the prosecutor and not the investigator, in 9 your opinion?

10 A In my opinion? I think it's -- I mean, some of it is it's various legal 11 processes. It's sort of a requirement. I don't think it's because we're magically smarter
12 or better than anyone. It's just we're trained to do it, so to speak.

13 You know, I often -- like, you know, I don't tell ATF how to go out and execute a 14 search warrant once we've gotten the search warrant, but I do help them get to a point 15 where the search warrant we're presenting to the court states probable cause for 16 whatever they want to do.

17 There's just different lanes. Maybe that's the best way to say it.

18 Q Okay. Fair to say that a lot of the investigators are not lawyers?

19 A Mostly that's true.

20 Q And they're not trained as prosecutors are to consider what we've gone
21 through, like with the Federal Prosecution Principles, for example, how to decline or 22 approve charges? They're not trained in that respect?

23 A That's correct.

24 Q Okay.

25 So have you in your career had differences of opinion with agents generally in

1 cases when it comes to either investigative steps they would like to take or charges that 2 they would like to bring? Have you ever had a difference of opinion with an
3 investigative team with respect to that generally?

4 A I mean, at the smallest level. I can't remember a case when at some point
5 there wasn't if not ultimately a disagreement at least a discussion or a consideration of 6 two different approaches to something. It is the norm.

7 Q Okay. And generally, is it fair to say that investigators tend to overvalue
8 the evidence and prosecutors tend to be a little more cautious? Is that a fair
9 characterization in some cases?

10 A I wouldn't necessarily say that. But I think sort of in line with what you 11 were saying about the differing role and lane, there is often, at least in an initial 12 approach, and it varies from person to person, there is a huge variation in this.

13 The investigators tend to be a little more aggressive in their first pitch as to what 14 they'd like to do. That is a generalization. I have worked with some very, very 15 measured and careful investigators who do not take that.

16 But if you were going to stereotype it, yes, in varying degrees, investigators tend 17 to be advocating more aggressive positions.

18 Q In those cases, when you've had a disagreement, how do you handle those,
19 in general?

20 A So it depends. You know, sometimes it's not uncommon that an 21 investigator can convince me of the merits of what they want to do and that not 22 only -- you know, that it is, what they're proposing, first and foremost, is compliant with 23 legal and ethical obligations, but then also is in the best interest of the investigation; or 24 not sort of appreciably different or meaningfully different than the approach that I would 25 prefer.

1 So sometimes we resolve it that way and do that. Usually everybody, you know,
2 talks it through, communicates about it, and it's done, and everybody continues working
3 in the best interests of the investigation in a collaborative manner.

4 There are times where people take, you know, decisions to their supervisors and 5 then their supervisors call my supervisors.

6 But almost always it gets resolved. And I think at the end of the day, almost 7 always people genuinely believe, even if you agree to disagree, that you're all trying to 8 work towards the same goal.

9 Q Okay. I'm going to shift gears now a little bit away from the process. And 10 you've testified repeatedly in your opening statement and in response to questions that 11 you were not influenced by any personal or political bias in your role on the Hunter Biden 12 prosecution team or in any prosecution that you've handled. Is that fair to say?

13 A Yes.

14 Q Okay. And all of your actions in that case and in all others, your 15 recommendations to your superiors were guided by your statutory and ethical obligations
16 as a Federal prosecutor. Is that fair?

17 A Yes.

18 Q Do you agree that it would be inappropriate for a Federal prosecutor to 19 make or recommend charging decisions in order to influence the results of an election or 20 to favor one political official or candidate over another?

21 A Yes, I do agree.

22 Q In your career as a Federal prosecutor, have you ever been asked to act in 23 such an inappropriate manner?

24 A No, I have not.

25 Q How would you have responded if you had been asked to take an action or

1 make a recommendation for political purposes?

2 A I mean, I would not have, right, in the first instance. And I, in all likelihood,
3 would have gone to a supervisor to discuss and report because there are 4 sometimes -- there are reporting obligations for professional responsibility, obligations
5 both within the Department and more generally within the bar. So if it was a lawyer or 6 depending on what it was.

7 But I certainly would not try to navigate that point on my own. I would want to 8 make sure that others were aware and that everyone understood what I understood had 9 happened and to be a part of the decision.

10 It wouldn't be something I would like sweep under the rug and be like, "Oh, we're 11 just going to forget they said that." That wouldn't be the way to go here.

12 Q What is your response to those who have accused you of acting based on 13 political considerations or bias?

14 A I think I alluded to this in my opening statement. It's hurtful. It's difficult
15 to listen to even knowing that it's not true. It's frustrating not to be able to respond 16 meaningfully to it, although I think there are very good reasons for that.

17 And, you know, the response is, I think to the extent that I said in my opening 18 statement, it's just not true.

19 Q Would you agree that your work on the Hunter Biden matter has gotten 20 more public attention than work on other matters that you've handled?

21 A Yes.

22 Q And do you think that that has resulted in negative repercussions for you
23 personally?

24 A It's been really not pleasant. So there is the just sort of emotional aspects
25 of it. There is having people you know sort of asking about things. There's people you

1 don't know who track down -- you know, my work email is easy to find. But, you know,
2 there were people who tracked down my personal phone number, both home and cell,
3 who would, you know, feel free to share their view.

4 And, again, as much as you know the hateful things people are saying are not true,
5 it's still unpleasant to hear, especially when they strike against sort of the core of 6 something you've been so proud to not be along the way.

7 You know, at times it has made me feel and worry about the safety of my family.
8 We've changed the way we do some things at home because of that.

9 And then I think I alluded -- you know, just professionally, I delayed my departure
10 from the office as a part of that. You know, I think that's probably a minimal 11 repercussion, but nonetheless it's had an influence of my professional life and the start of 12 a sort of new chapter of my career.

13 Q Do you have any concerns for others who have been in a similar position in 14 terms of what that harassment and threats and outside interest in cases like this could 15 mean for prosecutors who are trying to do their jobs?

16 A I think it's -- you know, obviously I do, as someone who cares about the 17 mission of the Department. People should feel safe and secure in doing their work.

18 And certainly, as it relates to this case, right, the people with whom I worked on 19 this case, some of whom are in similar circumstances, who I care about deeply personally, 20 you know, I think that.

21 But there's no question that attempts to hash things out publicly and in the public
22 discourse, there may be a time and a place for that in connection with any matter. But 23 while something is still ongoing or pending and before people have an opportunity to 24 really understand, it's very, very disheartening.

25 [REDACTED]. My colleague has a question.

1 [REDACTED]: Thank you.

2 BY [REDACTED]:

3 Q Ms. Wolf, how long have you known David Weiss?

4 A David Weiss was on the -- he was at the time the civil chief and first assistant
5 and was on the panel of people who interviewed me in June of 2007 to join the U.S.
6 Attorney's Office.

7 Q To the best of your knowledge, has David Weiss made decisions as U.S.
8 Attorney and now as special counsel without reference to political considerations?

9 A Yes.

10 Q And has he made decisions -- all decisions -- consistent with his statutory and 11 ethical obligations as a Federal prosecutor?

12 A To my knowledge, absolutely.

13 Q And then I just want to restate some of the things that you said earlier to 14 make sure I have it right.

15 You were asked about Mr. Weiss' authority generally?

16 A Yes.

17 Q And you said that it was your understanding that U.S. Attorney Weiss had 18 the necessary authority to bring charges he deemed appropriate in any jurisdiction. Is 19 that correct?

20 A Yes.

21 Q And you stand by that?

22 A Yes, that was my general understanding.

23 Q Okay. And I think you actually said, from your perspective as the line
24 prosecutor, you never thought about authority because it was just your understanding 25 that the authority was there, correct?

1 A Yes. I assumed that whatever was going to get worked out was going to
2 get worked out above my pay grade, in essence, and I was proceeding in a manner that I
3 would in an investigation, working towards determining whether it was appropriate to 4 bring charges.

5 Q Okay. So you were not concerned about whether you, as Mr. Weiss'
6 subordinate, might be able to take the steps you needed to take?

7 A Consistent with my understanding of his authority, yes.

8 Q Okay, thank you.

9 [REDACTED]. Mr. Ivey, do you have any questions.

10 Mr. Ivey. Not at this time.

11 [REDACTED]: We can go off the record.

12 [Recess.]

13 Mr. Castor. We're back on the record. It's 12:38.

14 I'm going to mark as exhibit 6 the authorization letter from the Department, just 15 as a matter of completeness.

16 [Wolf Exhibit No. 6.

17 was marked for identification.]

18 Ms. Kramer. Six, you said?

19 Mr. Castor. No. 6, yeah.

20 Ms. Kramer. Okay.

21 Mr. Castor. And Mr. Jordan is going to -- he has a question. He's going to refer 22 you back to exhibit 4.

23 Chairman Jordan. Yes, exhibit 4, Ms. Wolf.

24 So who is Josh Wilson and Carly Hudson that you sent the email to, you returned 25 the email to?

1 Ms. Wolf. I am not authorized to identify line personnel who were involved in
2 the case.

3 Chairman Jordan. But you worked with them on the case. Is that right? I
4 mean, Mr. Wilson sent you the email 5:30 p.m., Wednesday, August 5th, 2020, and you
5 responded back a couple hours later.

6 Ms. Wolf. Yeah. The document I think speaks to itself. It's an email originally 7 sent from Special Agent Wilson to me and Ms. Hudson and copying several others. And 8 I responded to Special Agent Wilson, as well as Ms. Hudson with the cc's.

9 Chairman Jordan. And so had you worked with Mr. Wilson and Ms. Hudson? I
10 mean, you worked with them for -- on numerous cases? Is that common that you
11 worked -- I mean, he's a Baltimore office field agent and she's U.S. Attorney Delaware.
12 You worked with them a lot?

13 Ms. Wolf. Generally, without speaking to any particular case, we had a relatively 14 small office in Delaware. We frequently -- and you may not have been here when we 15 discussed -- our cases are frequently staffed -- any of our cases -- are mostly staffed with 16 more than one AUSA.

17 And in terms of investigating cases, the Wilmington Resident Office is part of the 18 Baltimore field division of the FBI.

19 Chairman Jordan. Right. Right.

20 Ms. Wolf. So that is where our FBI agents assigned to investigations almost 21 always came from, although sometimes they'd come from other places.

22 Chairman Jordan. And your first sentence, you said, in your response email, you
23 said, "Someone needs to redraft attachment B," which implies there was an attachment A 24 and maybe multiple other attachments.

25 How many attachments typically accompany a search warrant?

1 Ms. Wolf. Typically, a search warrant has, in every search warrant, an
2 attachment A and an attachment B. They're required parts of the search warrant.

3 Chairman Jordan. Okay. And are there more? Is there C, D, E? Is there 4 multiple?

5 Ms. Wolf. Those are the only two that are required.

6 Chairman Jordan. But I'm asking are there others or just these two?

7 Ms. Wolf. With regard to this particular warrant or --

8 Chairman Jordan. Yes.

9 Ms. Wolf. -- in general?

10 Chairman Jordan. Both.

11 Ms. Wolf. With regard to this particular warrant, I'm not going to speak to it.

12 In general, there may be other things that get attached, usually the affidavit, as 13 exhibits. But attachment A is always a description of the location or premises to be 14 searched, and attachment B is the list of items to be seized.

15 Chairman Jordan. Okay. And is it common to have those -- is it common 16 practice to have those redrafted? When your staff puts together or other attorneys or 17 agents put it together, is it common to have this redrafted?

18 Ms. Wolf. Yes. I think I -- again, you may not have been present when I spoke 19 about the process associated with search warrants, but they're vitally important pieces of 20 the document.

21 Chairman Jordan. We understand that.

22 Ms. Wolf. And they need to be in line, the affidavit and the attachments need to 23 line up and really speak to each other --

24 Chairman Jordan. Sure.

25 Ms. Wolf. -- and be consistent across the board.

1 And I think sometimes, just in the rush to get an affidavit out, not as much in the 2 initial drafting, not as much attention is paid to attachment B.

3 So it's not at all uncommon to get an attachment B sometimes that's completely
4 like cut and pasted from something else and it's just a placeholder, but that isn't 5 communicated. And sometimes it's just a quick job.

6 So it's not at all uncommon that I would go to an attachment B or any prosecutor
7 would go to an attachment B and say, "Wait, this doesn't look right. Like, while I'm 8 working on the affidavit, then looking at the affidavit, can you go back and send me a new 9 draft of that?"

10 Chairman Jordan. And is this the kind of language you would typically use where 11 you said, "None of it is appropriate and within the scope of this warrant"? I'm not sure 12 who cut and pasted this. That sounds like pretty strong language, like, "Hey, this stinks.
13 You've got to change it."

14 Ms. Kramer. I think this has been asked and answered a number of times.
15 Ms. Wolf is not going to discuss anything around the document itself or the specifics of 16 the case --

17 Chairman Jordan. I'm just asking if that's customary, how you would --

18 Ms. Kramer. May I please finish, Chairman Jordan.

19 Chairman Jordan. Sure.

20 Ms. Kramer. Thank you.

21 Or the specifics of the case.

22 Despite this being asked and answered so many times, feel free to tell the 23 chairman what your answer is.

24 Chairman Jordan. Well, let me go back. In the initial email from Mr. Wilson, he 25 says, "Hello all. See attached draft BS SW. Thanks to Sue and Michelle who

1 contributed fully to this, we talked enough for one week during a single day."

2 So it sounds like they spent a lot of time on it. And then you respond back, "I'm 3 not sure who put this together" -- I'm paraphrasing -- "I'm not sure" -- well, I'll just read it.

4 "I am not sure what this is cut and pasted from but other than the attribution,
5 location, and identity stuff at the end, none of it is appropriate and within the scope of 6 the warrant."

7 I'm just asking is that normal, how you would say to people who spent all day
8 working on something, "Hey, this stinks. You've got to change it."

9 Ms. Wolf. So that's your interpretation of what a document says. I'm neither 10 agreeing or disagreeing with that in the context of a particular warrant.

11 I should also just say that typically spending a single day on an affidavit in support
12 of a search warrant in any substantial sort of white collar or complex case is not a long 13 time to have spent on something.

14 Chairman Jordan. Yeah. Well, I'm sure they spent more time. They said we 15 talked enough for one day about it.

16 Okay. On the subject line, it says, "BS SW Draft." I assume it's SW, search 17 warrant, stands for search warrant.

18 Just for the record, can you tell us what BS represents?

19 Ms. Wolf. No, I can't.

20 Chairman Jordan. Is it Blue Star --

21 Ms. Wolf. I'm not authorized to do -- I should say I'm not authorized to do so.

22 Chairman Jordan. Is it Blue Star Strategies? Is that what it refers to?

23 Ms. Wolf. I'm not authorized --

24 Ms. Kramer. Objection. Asked and answered.

25 Chairman Jordan. Okay.

1 Was the search warrant executed?

2 Ms. Wolf. Again, I'm not authorized to speak as to the particulars of an ongoing
3 investigation.

4 Chairman Jordan. Okay.

5 Mr. Castor. I'll mark as exhibit 7 the 1023 that we were discussing.

6 [Wolf Exhibit No. 7.

7 was marked for identification.]

8 BY MR. CASTOR:

9 Q Is this the first time you've seen the 1023?

10 A I am not able to -- I'm not authorized to answer whether I have or have not 11 previously seen the 1023.

12 Q I'll refer you to the third paragraph that begins, "During the meeting,
13 Pojarskii asked CHS whether CHS was aware of Burisma's Board of Directors. CHS
14 replied 'no', and Pojarskii advised the board members included" -- number one deals with 15 the Prime Minister of Poland, number two, Joe Biden's son, Hunter Biden -- "for 16 prospective oil and gas deals, and they hired Hunter Biden to 'protect us, through his dad,
17 from all kinds of problems.'"

18 Is that type of fact, would that be probative to the matter you were pursuing?

19 A I'm not authorized to discuss the particulars.

20 Q Flip the page. The first paragraph, the penultimate sentence, beginning 21 "CHS told Zlochevsky --" Do you see where I am there?

22 A Yes.

23 Q Okay. "CHS told Zlochevsky that due to Shokin's investigation into Burisma, 24 which was made public at the time" -- or "this time" -- "it would have a substantial
25 negative impact on Burisma's prospective IPO in the United States. Zlochevsky replied

1 something to the effect of, 'Don't worry, Hunter will take care of it' -- sorry -- "Hunter
2 will take care of all these issues through his dad.' CHS did not ask any further questions
3 about what that specifically meant."

4 Is this something that would be probative to the investigation?

5 Ms. Kramer. Objection. Asked and answered.

6 Ms. Wolf has repeatedly said she cannot discuss the particulars or details about 7 anything relating to an ongoing investigation or matter, in particular this document.

8 BY MR. CASTOR:

9 Q The last sentence of the next paragraph.

10 "Zlochevsky also laughed at CHS's number of $50,000 (not because of the small 11 amount, but because the number contained a '5') and said 'It cost 5 (million) to pay one 12 Biden and 5 (million) to pay another Biden.' CHS noted that at this time, it was unclear
13 to CHS whether these alleged payments were already made."

14 Do you remember reading this part of the 1023 prior to today?

15 Ms. Kramer. Same objection.

16 Ms. Wolf. Again, I'm not authorized to either confirm or deny that I have or I 17 haven't read or have any memory associated with the 1023.

18 Mr. Castor. Can you tell us whether this is something that U.S. Attorney Brady 19 forwarded to your office?

20 Ms. Wolf. I am not authorized to answer that question.

21 Mr. Castor. I'm going to mark as exhibit 8 a statement, an affidavit, that Gary 22 Shapley provided. It's been made public.

23 [Wolf Exhibit No. 8.

24 was marked for identification.]

25 BY MR. CASTOR:

1 Q Have you ever seen this document before?

2 A I have.

3 Q Okay. When did you see it before today?

4 A I certainly reviewed it in preparation for today. I don't actually know if I
5 reviewed it at any prior time.

6 Q Okay.

7 I understand it turns out most of my questions you are telling us that you're not
8 able to answer based on the instruction from the Department.

9 So with that in mind, we have taken testimony from two whistleblowers,
10 Mr. Shapley and Mr. Ziegler. So we do have an obligation to pursue the facts that they 11 provided to us. I mean, that's part of what a congressional investigation does.

12 So I just say that as background. Certainly I'm not trying to badger you with 13 these questions.

14 On page 2 of the document, Mr. Shapley writes, "I am providing additional 15 facts" -- this is the second sentence on page 2 -- "I am providing additional facts to help
16 place this issue in context. The prosecution team discussed the Hunter Biden-related 17 work of the Pittsburgh U.S. Attorney" -- USAO -- "on several occasions, and it was a line
18 item on the recurring prosecution team call agenda for a long period of time.

19 "Assistant United States Attorney Lesley Wolf told us the Pittsburgh U.S. Attorney
20 and the U.S. Attorney Scott Brady requested to brief the Delaware U.S. Attorney's Office
21 Hunter Biden's investigative team on multiple occasions, but they were turned down by 22 AUSA Wolf and the Delaware U.S. Attorney."

23 Is that a statement that you consider to be true?

24 A I'm not able to comment on the statements that relate to the pending
25 investigation.

1 Q "AUSA Wolf's comments made clear that she did not want to cooperate with 2 the Pittsburgh USAO and that she had already concluded no information from that office
3 could be credible, stating her belief that it all came from Rudy Giuliani."

4 Do you have a reaction to that?

5 A I have a reaction, but I'm not allowed to comment, so I won't.

6 Q Okay.

7 Are you aware that Mr. Brady, when he testified, indicated that the evidence he 8 obtained he was able to verify independently of any relation to Rudy Giuliani? Are you 9 aware that he testified to that?

10 A I am not aware of Mr. Brady's testimony.

11 Q And I take it you're not able to talk about whether that matter was worked 12 on?

13 Ms. Kramer. I'm sorry. What matter was worked on?

14 Mr. Castor. The Rudy Giuliani issue.

15 Ms. Wolf. There are I think and have been, potentially. That could refer to any 16 number of things.

17 BY MR. CASTOR:

18 Q In the document, Mr. Shapley states that "AUSA Wolf's comments made 19 clear that she did not want to cooperate with the Pittsburgh U.S. Attorney's Office and 20 that she had already concluded no information from that office could be credible," stating 21 her belief that it all came from Rudy Giuliani.

22 And so I guess the question is -- and it wasn't clear, so I'll rephrase -- was it your 23 belief that everything Scott Brady was providing was generated from Rudy Giuliani?

24 A I'm not able to comment on that.

25 Q Okay. And if you were able to comment, do you know the answer to that

1 question?

2 A I lost the thread of the question. If you could repeat it. If I were able to --

3 Q If you were able to testify to that, do you know the answer to the question?

4 A Which is the question as to whether or not I said that --

5 Q Whether everything from --

6 A -- or that everything from Mr. Brady -- that Mr. Giuliani was the only --

7 Q Yes.

8 A -- source of information from --

9 Q Correct.

10 A -- that provided information to Mr. Brady?

11 I'm just not authorized to comment on that, and I think answering that question

12 would necessarily be the exception that followed the rule.

13 Q Okay.

14 I'm going to mark exhibit 9, a document that was made public by the Ways and 15 Means Committee through whistleblower testimony.

16 [Wolf Exhibit No. 9.

17 was marked for identification.]

18 BY MR. CASTOR:

19 Q It's a memorandum of conversation dated September 3rd, 2020.

20 Is this the type of document that was shared with the U.S. Attorney's Office or is 21 this an IRS-only document, to your knowledge?

22 A Again, in the ordinary course -- as it relates to this specific case, I'm not able 23 to comment on whether or not this was shared with the U.S. Attorney's Office.

24 Typically certain memos and information would be provided at some point to the 25 U.S. Attorney's Office so that we could prepare to produce what was required to be

1 produced in discovery or pursuant to Jencks or to our Brady obligations.

2 But it wouldn't be a type of -- interview reports of internal conversations and 3 discussions are typically not sort of provided and immediately generated and sent over,
4 but there may be situations where there are if they're particularly pertinent to 5 something.

6 Q And you're not able to comment on the --

7 A This particular one, no, I'm not.

8 Q Number two. There's a statement attributed to you that said the 9 decision -- "She stated that there is more than enough probable cause. She stated that 10 the decision was whether the 'juice was worth the squeeze.'"

11 What does that term or the phrase "juice worth" -- you know, "whether the juice 12 was worth the squeeze" mean?

13 A And, again, without talking particularly about these circumstances, I think
14 this harkens back to what I was discussing with minority counsel and the difference 15 between, right -- just because you can do something doesn't mean you should.

16 And there are a lot of things that go into that. And sometimes the reason you
17 shouldn't do something is because of justice or fairness or there is some detriment. And 18 sometimes the reason you don't do something is because it's going to be an incredibly 19 heavy lift, and there are 87 other things that you want to tackle before you do that on any 20 given day.

21 Q Okay.

22 Number three. "AUSA Wolf stated that it's likely that a lot of the evidence
23 sought in the T26 investigation" -- maybe for the record you could just identify what's a 24 T26?

25 A Again, I can't. This is not a document that I wrote or authored, so I would

1 be guessing as to what a -- I don't even know who wrote it.

2 Q It's written by Shapley.

3 A Okay.

4 Q Page 2.

5 A Then Mr. Shapley would be --

6 Q Okay.

7 "AUSA Wolf stated that it's likely that a lot of the evidence sought in the T26
8 investigation would be found in the guest house of Joe Biden's residence and she stated,
9 'There is no way we will get that approved.'"

10 Why didn't you think it would get approved?

11 Ms. Kramer. Again, I'm going to object yet again to all of these lines of 12 questioning.

13 And I also want to remind those here today we do understand that U.S. Attorney
14 Weiss has indicated his intention, and he's required to do so, to provide a report that will,
15 I would imagine, comprehensively address each and every one of these questions when 16 the time is proper and appropriate, which is not now, as Ms. Wolf has said repeatedly 17 throughout the course of today.

18 So again, Mr. Castor, if you want to continue to ask questions about a document 19 that she has already told you several times she cannot opine about, feel free to do so, but 20 her answer is not going to change.

21 BY MR. CASTOR:

22 Q Number four. There was a discussion about removing the subject's name
23 from a search warrant. Generally speaking, when would that be appropriate?

24 A So, again, without -- I'm not authorized to speak as to any particulars of this 25 investigation. As a general matter, and I think as I've indicated multiple times and

1 during my opening, all of the decisions surrounding all of these things are being made
2 against the background of applicable Department policies and procedures.

3 So if, for example, there was a policy or a memo -- and it's not hypothetical -- in 4 May of 2020, Attorney General William Barr issued a memorandum discussing election
5 year sensitivity and reminding prosecutors of the sort of longstanding rule and obligation
6 that we are not to take actions that are intended to influence the outcome of an election
7 and significantly -- or that create the appearance that you are attempting to influence,
8 right.

9 There is a memo saying nobody is really looking -- nobody thinks, right -- taking 10 the Rosa view -- nobody thinks you're going to do these things because you're actually 11 trying to influence. But if the public or others may think that there is an appearance 12 that you are trying to do so, that also falls within the scope of policy and that -- and to be 13 mindful of that.

14 And as those issues arise, that there are consultation requirements and 15 discussions with what is originally vested in the Public Integrity Section of the Department
16 of Justice.

17 Q So if a search warrant was appropriate for a candidate for office and it was 18 inside the 90-day window, would that search warrant be delayed pending the outcome of 19 an election?

20 A Again, it would vary on the particular circumstances of the case. There 21 might be other policies that were at play. For example, the February Barr memo which 22 talked about the requirements for opening any investigation into a candidate for public
23 office.

24 So there's a lot of different things. Would things be delayed? Maybe. Maybe 25 not. It would just be a question of particular circumstances in any given case. But

1 there would be a requirement to consult and essentially discuss and let somebody well
2 above my pay grade make that call ultimately.

3 Q In a tax investigation that involves potential improper deductions, would it
4 be appropriate to interview beneficiaries of a particular deduction?

5 So, for example, if an individual deducted college tuition and claimed it was an 6 ordinary and necessary business expense, would it be ordinary to go interview the 7 beneficiary of the college tuition?

8 A It might be. So it might be ordinary in the sense that if you needed to 9 establish that it wasn't a legitimate expense and the only mechanism to do that was by 10 interviewing someone and you needed to do that, sure.

11 Now, there are boundaries and professional responsibility rules that govern when 12 you can and can't interview and approach certain individuals. So if an individual is 13 represented by counsel, and you're aware that they're represented by counsel, you, as a 14 prosecutor and attorney, or your agents who are underneath your authority in that,
15 cannot go out and simply approach and interview witnesses who are represented.

16 Q Can you think of something that if an individual deducts college tuition for a 17 son or daughter as an ordinary and necessary business expense, can you think of a 18 situation where that would be appropriate?

19 A I think that's just hard to answer in a vacuum without knowing the 20 particulars of any case.

21 I think it's fair to say it would be something that would be looked at in the course
22 of an investigation in an attempt to discern whether or not it was or wasn't a proper 23 deduction.

24 Q But you'd concede on its face it raises questions, correct?

25 A I think, without speaking about any specific deduction or anything along

1 those lines, it would raise -- I think it would probably raise questions.

2 Q And from a general matter, if it raises questions to the prosecutor, that
3 would be the type of thing that the investigative agents would follow up on, correct?

4 A I think there are many ways to follow up and pursue, and there is also, I
5 think, you know, just, again, prioritization and anything else.

6 So if you're asking was it an unreasonable request or would it be an unreasonable
7 request for someone to say, "Hey, I'd like to go do this interview," no, it wouldn't be an 8 unreasonable ask, nor would it be an unreasonable response from the prosecutor to say,
9 "Hey, I like my law license, and I know this person has a lawyer, so we're going to have to 10 work through counsel to get that interview you want."

11 Ms. Kramer. Generally speaking.

12 Ms. Wolf. Generally speaking.

13 Mr. Castor. I'll mark exhibit 10, email thread, Mr. Ziegler and you, involving also 14 Carly Hudson, Mark Daly, and Jack Morgan of the Tax Division.

15 [Wolf Exhibit No. 10.

16 was marked for identification.]

17 Mr. Castor. Carly Hudson, what was her title in the U.S. Attorney's Office?

18 Ms. Wolf. She's on pleadings. I think you could look her up. She's an AUSA in 19 the District of Delaware.

20 Mr. Castor. Okay. But she's not a supervisor?

21 Ms. Wolf. No.

22 Ms. Kramer. This is 10?

23 Mr. Castor. No. 10.

24 Ms. Kramer. Thank you.

25 Mr. Castor. This is a document provided by whistleblowers that deals with an

1 episode they testified about regarding the search of a storage unit. Have you seen this 2 document before?

3 Ms. Wolf. I have -- I'm on the document. I think I was shown this document.
4 You sent it over in anticipation of today.

5 Mr. Castor. Okay. But prior to me sending it over, you hadn't seen it lately? I
6 know you're on the email.

7 Ms. Kramer. I mean, to the extent -- I just have to interrupt -- you're asking
8 about prep sessions with her lawyers in advance of today, I'm going to instruct Ms. Wolf
9 to not answer how the prep was conducted, what she reviewed.

10 Mr. Castor. I didn't ask that. I didn't ask that.

11 Ms. Kramer. Well, you did.

12 Mr. Castor. No, I didn't. I asked her if she's seen it before.

13 Ms. Kramer. Why don't you reframe the question for my comfort, please?

14 BY MR. CASTOR:

15 Q Have you seen this document before? I'm not asking about any 16 preparation you had with your lawyer. I'm talking about when it was released publicly 17 by the Ways and Means Committee or prior to that.

18 A I probably looked through what was released to Ways and Means, but I don't 19 have any specific recollection of like, "Oh, this document or" --

20 Q Okay.

21 A Nothing --

22 Q You're aware that the whistleblowers raised the issue of the storage unit 23 search, correct?

24 A I am.

25 Q Okay. Was there anything in their testimony that you found to be false?

1 A I'm not able to address -- I'm not authorized to address the particular
2 allegations.

3 I would go back to my opening where I indicated that all departmental policies
4 and procedures would have been followed.

5 So if some of those -- if some policies and procedures associated with attorney
6 search warrants and filter requirements were implicated in any particular case, those 7 policies and procedures would have been followed.

8 Q In working with Mr. Shapley and Ziegler, it seems like, obviously, there was a 9 disconnect. Is that something you can acknowledge on many of these investigative 10 questions?

11 Ms. Kramer. Objection to the characterization of your interpretation of the 12 email.

13 Go ahead and answer that.

14 Ms. Wolf. I'm not authorized to comment on the nature of the relationship with 15 investigators in an ongoing investigation.

16 Mr. Castor. Okay. So I take it there is nothing about the storage unit incident
17 that Shapley and Ziegler testified about that you can help us with here today?

18 Ms. Wolf. I think that's a fair characterization.

19 Mr. Castor. I'll mark as exhibit 11 a document made public as part of the 20 whistleblowers' testimony. It's a monthly significant case report into the Hunter Biden 21 matter dated May of 2021.

22 [Wolf Exhibit No. 11.

23 was marked for identification.]

24 BY MR. CASTOR:

25 Q In the "Results & Challenges" portion of this document there's a sentence

1 about the middle of that paragraph beginning with, "FBI is actively investigating potential
2 [redacted] violations." Do you see that sentence?

3 A I do.

4 Q "Through interviews and review of evidence obtained via [redacted] and
5 search warrant, it appears there may be campaign finance criminal violations. AUSA
6 Wolf stated on the last prosecution team meeting that she did not want any of the agents
7 to look into the allegation."

8 Is there any testimony you can provide about this document?

9 A So I'm not authorized to provide any testimony about this document.

10 I can speak generally to some of the policies that were applicable during this time
11 frame that existed within the Department of Justice and to say at all times I acted in 12 compliance with those policies.

13 And those include -- I previously mentioned the February 5th, 2020, Barr memo
14 discussing the requirements and mechanisms for opening even a preliminary criminal 15 investigation into a candidate or a public official, as well as the longstanding 16 departmental requirements that all campaign finance investigations be routed in 17 consultation with the Public Integrity Section, which then is also -- your obligations 18 require sort of regular and consistent consultation with that section.

19 Q Okay. I'll mark the next exhibit, exhibit No. 12. It's an email between you, 20 Mr. Ziegler, cc'd Mark Daly and Jack Morgan from the Tax Division, and Ms. Hudson.

21 [Wolf Exhibit No. 12.

22 was marked for identification.]

23 BY MR. CASTOR:

24 Q Drawing your attention to the email you sent to Mr. Ziegler at 5:26 on 25 September 9th. It begins with, "I do not think you are going to be able to do these

1 interviews as planned. The document requests require approvals from the Tax
2 Division."

3 Were you indicating to Mr. Ziegler that the Tax Division needed to approve this 4 type of investigative activity?

5 A The document speaks for itself. I'm not able to comment or elaborate on 6 that.

7 Q Okay. Can you tell us whether the delays here related to the 90-day
8 window before an election?

9 A I'm unable to comment on that.

10 Q Okay. Is there anything about this document that you're able to testify
11 about?

12 A I'm not authorized to do so, no.

13 Q Okay. We've received testimony that in October of 2021 there was a 14 meeting of the investigative team that involved Mark Daly, Jack Morgan, Ms. Hudson, 15 Mr. Ziegler, and yourself to talk about the charges in the Hunter Biden case.

16 Do you remember the date of this meeting?

17 A Again, I'm not authorized to discuss --

18 Q I know you're not going to --

19 A -- whether a meeting took place or didn't take place on any particular date.

20 Q Okay. Can you tell us whether -- it's been provided to the committee that 21 felony tax charges were recommended unanimously by the team. Can you tell us
22 anything about that decision?

23 A I'm not authorized to do so, no.

24 Q And it's our understanding, based on Mr. Ziegler's testimony, that following 25 that meeting, he began the process of drafting a special agent report. Is that something

1 you can testify about?

2 A I'm not authorized to testify with regard to that.

3 Q From a process perspective, when would an IRS criminal investigator draft a 4 special agent report?

5 A As a general matter --

6 Q Yes.

7 A -- and not connected to any particular investigation, it would depend a little 8 bit on the case. But as a general matter, it would take place at a point where they were 9 nearing the completion of the investigation.

10 It can take some time for the special agent report to move through the various 11 layers of approval in the first instance through IRS criminal investigations and through 12 criminal tax counsel even before it reaches the Tax Division.

13 So sometimes they will just build in time for that, and the investigation will not be 14 fully complete, but you want to have it be substantially complete or you would hope that 15 it would be substantially complete and that there wouldn't be any sort of lingering 16 dispositive questions, just sort of things you might want to clean up along the way.

17 But it's a substantial step in the investigation.

18 Q Okay. Mr. Ziegler's special agent report that he subsequently prepared, it
19 was a long document. It was about 85 pages. Is that ordinary in tax cases, that a 20 special agent report be that comprehensive?

21 A To the extent you're characterizing this particular report as comprehensive 22 or otherwise, I can't comment on that. The length of them will depend and vary case to 23 case. They can be quite lengthy, and in the regular, quite honestly, it's the nature of tax
24 cases.

25 Q Okay. And what's the role of the U.S. Attorney's Office in the preparation

1 and review of the special agent report?

2 A Typically?

3 Q As a general matter.

4 A Again, there's some variation. So in some instances, if the case has been 5 worked administratively by an agent, there is no involvement whatsoever, and we won't 6 have seen it or done it.

7 Sometimes we will request that they start the process in order to be able to move
8 the matter forward. Sometimes you'll see a draft. Sometimes you won't see a draft.

9 And, you know, it's a useful document ultimately in terms of drafting a pros memo 10 because it's got a lot of good information, if done correctly, right there at your 11 fingerprints and indexes like exhibits and witnesses so you know who said what.

12 So there's no like sort of one-size, you know, fits-all for it.

13 Q After the special agent report is prepared by IRS, what happens next in an 14 ordinary tax case? Does it go to the Tax Division, or does it go to the U.S. Attorney's 15 Office?

16 Ms. Kramer. If you know.

17 Ms. Wolf. If I know.

18 So my understanding -- and there may be witnesses who can give you a better
19 answer than I on this -- but the -- it goes -- in the first instance, the special agent writes a 20 report. I believe a supervisor signs it. It then goes to what's called CT counsel, which is 21 criminal tax counsel, which is I believe internal to IRS CI. They review the report and 22 make a recommendation.

23 You know, a line attorney sort of reviews the report and makes a 24 recommendation. And then somebody at a slightly higher level either signs off or 25 doesn't. And they can recommend to concur, nonconcur. There's different

1 designations they can.

2 That sort of legal determination isn't dispositive in a case. It goes with that 3 determination then in the next instance to Tax Division where it's assigned if it's not 4 somebody -- if Tax hasn't been actively participating on the case or otherwise or hasn't 5 previously been assigned, it goes to the line attorney within the Tax Division who reviews
6 it and writes sort of a comprehensive internal to tax pros memo, which then goes to an 7 assistant chief who writes a review note.

8 And it then goes up to the chief for sign-off and authorization before it comes 9 back to the U.S. Attorney's Office in official form.

10 BY MR. CASTOR:

11 Q What were Mark Daly and Jack Morgan's titles in the Tax Division or their 12 role?

13 A Mark Daly was a senior litigation counsel, which is, again, I think more of a 14 designation of pay than supervisor. He wasn't a supervisor.

15 Q Okay.

16 A And Jack Morgan was a trial attorney.

17 Q Okay. Was Daly more senior than Morgan?

18 A I'm not going to discuss the particulars of that. I think Mr. Goldberg 19 probably would have been a good witness to answer that.

20 Q Were they colleagues or were they-- was one supervising the other? I'm 21 sorry to ask the question again.

22 A Yeah, no, and I just am not able, within the scope of the authorization, I'm 23 not comfortable. As much as it seems noncontroversial, I'm not comfortable within the 24 scope of the authorization to answer that.

25 Chairman Jordan. When did the Justice Department tell you what you were

1 authorized to answer, what type of questions you were authorized to answer in the scope
2 of this? When did they give you instructions?

3 Ms. Kramer. I can answer that on your behalf.

4 We were provided with the authorization letter -- what's today, Thursday? -- just 5 the other day, and we provided it to Mr. Castor upon receipt.

6 Chairman Jordan. And was there any communication from the Justice
7 Department after yesterday's vote by the House of Representatives on the majority of the 8 House on record supporting an official impeachment inquiry?

9 Ms. Kramer. Is that a question directed to me about my dealings with the 10 Department?

11 Chairman Jordan. Was the -- did the Department do any supplemental 12 communication with you regarding the scope of what Ms. Wolf could talk about after the 13 vote yesterday on the House floor?

14 Ms. Kramer. The letter that we received from the Department has remained 15 unchanged, and the committee has exactly what we received.

16 Chairman Jordan. Okay. Thank you.

17 Ms. Kramer. Yep.

18 Mr. Castor. Do you remember when the decision was made to bring charges in 19 the District of Columbia on the Hunter Biden case?

20 Ms. Wolf. I am not authorized to discuss or comment or -- again, there's a 21 premise baked in that I'm not authorized to either -- to answer any questions, nor should 22 it be interpreted as signifying that the assertion is or is not accurate.

23 Mr. Castor. I think it's a matter of public record that Mr. Weiss brought the case
24 to Mr. Graves and asked him to partner.

25 Ms. Kramer. If it's a matter of public record and you know the answer to the 1 question, I think you have the answer to your question.

2 BY MR. CASTOR:

3 Q Okay. And what was your involvement with that?

4 A Again, I'm not authorized to speak to that.

5 Q Can you tell us about the tolling agreement for the statute of limitations on
6 2014 and 2015?

7 A I'm not authorized to speak to that.

8 Q Can you tell us how many times the tolling agreement was extended?

9 A I'm not authorized to speak to that.

10 Q Was that something handled by your office, or was that handled by a 11 different entity?

1 [1:23 p.m.]

2 Ms. Wolf. I'm not -- I'm not authorized to speak to that.

3 BY MR. CASTOR:

4 Q Okay. Are you aware that prior to asking the U.S. Attorney's Office in D.C.
5 to partner, that U.S. Attorney Weiss requested special attorney authority under 28
6 United States Code 515?

7 A I'm not authorized to speak to that.

8 Q Okay. Referring you to exhibit 3, the letter that Mr. Weiss sent to Senator
9 Graham.

10 A On what date?

11 Q July 10th.

12 A July 10th.

13 Q Are you aware of the -- I'm looking at the third paragraph, the last paragraph 14 on the first page.

15 A Okay.

16 Q Are you aware of what the distinction is between special counsel designation
17 and special attorney designation?

18 A As a general matter, not in any particular case, I'm actually not.

19 Q Okay. And do you know the difference between any of those two and the 20 authority Mr. Weiss has currently?

21 A Again, I'm not authorized to speak to, you know -- I know that they are 22 different than being special counsel, but -- and so I -- there's a distinction, but I have not
23 paid any particular attention or studied or have any understanding of the distinction
24 between those three designations.

25 Q The decision to seek special counsel authority, were you involved as a staffer

1 with Mr. Weiss in deciding how to approach the Justice Department on that issue?

2 A I'm not authorized to speak to that.

3 Q Does the Justice Department have any procedures in place to avoid 4 accidental statute of limitations -- if you're working on a case and the statute of 5 limitations is coming up, are there any procedures DOJ has to help everyone avoid that?

6 A Generally speaking?

7 Q Yeah.

8 A Not that I'm aware of. As a general matter, as a prosecutor, you have some 9 sense of what the statute is, and if you're coming up on a statute of limitations, you're 10 aware of it.

11 Q Okay. Whose responsibility, as a general matter, is it to manage that 12 question, that is, the statute's expiring?

13 A Sorry, just so I understand the question, are you asking who's supposed to 14 know that the statute is expiring, who's tasked with that?

15 Q Right.

16 A It would be the line prosecutors handling the case to be aware of the statute
17 of limitations.

18 Q And are there any policies or procedures that require a line prosecutor to 19 confer with the U.S. Attorney or with supervisory personnel as the statute is coming up 20 on its deadline?

21 A So I actually am not sure. I don't believe -- I'm not aware of any certainly in 22 the Justice Manual. I do not know whether or not there are formal policies that are 23 included in the District of Delaware Criminal matter -- Criminal Manual. But as a general
24 matter, it would be unusual for someone to just unilaterally make that decision.

25 Q So if the statute of limitations is about to expire and it does expire, it's not by

1 mistake. Is that a fair thing to say?

2 Ms. Kramer. I think she's answered the question.

3 Ms. Wolf. I think -- yeah. As a general matter, I would say that is accurate. I
4 am quite sure that on occasion it happens. But as a general matter, you're aware of the 5 statute and when it's due to run.

6 Chairman Jordan. Were you part of the -- when David Weiss was named special
7 counsel back in August, and prior to leaving a few weeks ago, were you part of the special
8 counsel investigative team?

9 Ms. Wolf. I'm just not authorized to discuss that.

10 Chairman Jordan. Well, you're obviously a key player in the investigation for the 11 first 4 and a half years. We just want to know -- and then it went from U.S. Attorney
12 David Weiss investigating, you had to keep clearing that investigation, took on a different 13 status. And I'm just asking if you knew that new special counsel status and were part of 14 that investigative team?

15 Ms. Wolf. I think as a matter of public record, I remained an Assistant 16 United States Attorney at all times prior to --

17 Chairman Jordan. I'm not disputing that. I know that.

18 Ms. Kramer. Please let her finish the answer.

19 Chairman Jordan. I'm sorry.

20 Ms. Kramer. Thank you.

21 Ms. Wolf. So to the extent I'm able to answer the question, I did not give up an 22 AUSA role in order to join the special counsel team.

23 Chairman Jordan. Wait. Say that again, please.

24 Ms. Wolf. I did not -- I remained an AUSA. I did not give up an AUSA role to 25 join the special counsel team. That's just a matter of public record, as I continued to 1 appear as an AUSA on pleadings in a variety of cases and matters.

2 Beyond that, I'm not authorized to comment on the scope of the staffing of special
3 counsel's office.

4 BY MR. CASTOR:

5 Q Are the AUSAs that do work for the special counsel's office, do they have 6 different titles or -- are they not AUSAs, I guess, is the question?

7 A I believe -- and, again, this isn't entirely accurate, but if you looked at a 8 pleading, there would be, depending on what it was, it would be reflective of what their 9 actual titles are.

10 Q Were there -- to the extent you are aware, were there people who were on 11 the special counsel team but also performing duties in the U.S. Attorney's Office for 12 Delaware on other matters?

13 A I'm not authorized to speak on the staffing of special counsel's office.

14 Q Are there any Department policies or procedures that were implicated
15 because the subject of the investigation was the son of the former Vice President 2018,
16 2019, 2020, and then a candidate for office, and then the President of the United States?

17 A Sorry. Can you just repeat the question?

18 Q Were there any DOJ policies or procedures because the subject of the 19 investigation was the son of the President?

20 A Just merely by virtue of that? I'm not going to speak to any particular DOJ
21 policies or procedures. All -- but except to say, all of the relevant and applicable policies
22 and procedures were followed by me at all times in my work as an AUSA.

23 Q Was there ever any discussion that maybe this investigation should've been 24 handled by a different U.S. Attorney's Office that wasn't so geographically connected to 25 the President?

1 A I'm not authorized to speak to that.

2 Q Okay. Have you ever met Joe Biden, the President?

3 A No.

4 Q Have you ever met Beau Biden, or did you ever work with Beau Biden?

5 A No.

6 Q And have you ever met Hunter Biden, other than through the course of this
7 investigation?

8 A No.

9 Q How about somebody named Alexander Mackler?

10 A Do I -- have I met Alexander Mackler?

11 Q Yeah.

12 A Yes.

13 Q He's a former colleague of yours?

14 A Yes, he is.

15 Q And Mr. Mackler was a staffer for Senator Biden, I believe?

16 A I don't know his full work history. I -- I know that he at some point worked 17 for, I guess, then Senator Biden, but I don't know in what capacity and whether it was as a 18 staffer or in connection with campaigns or what his particular role was.

19 Q Okay. What was Mr. Mackler's role in the U.S. Attorney's Office?

20 A He was an Assistant U.S. Attorney.

21 Q Do you know for how long?

22 A I don't know exactly. Somewhere between 3 and 5 years is just a ballpark.

23 Q Do you know when he left the U.S. Attorney's Office?

24 A So there -- that's -- he left at some point in I think the spring of 2019. But 25 he actually finished his tenure and was gone from the office like at the very beginning of

1 2019, because I believe he was doing military duty. So he was an AUSA sort of on the 2 payroll and anything else but was absent from the office for months before that time.

3 Q Okay. And do you know if he worked on the Hunter Biden investigation at 4 all?

5 Ms. Wolf. Can I answer?

6 Ms. Kramer. I --

7 Ms. Wolf. I'm not authorized to answer that question.

8 BY MR. CASTOR:

9 Q And are you aware that Mr. Mackler then went to work for the transition
10 team -- Presidential transition team for --

11 A I believe that was publicly reported that he was part of the transition team.

12 Q And while he was on the transition team, did you have any communications
13 with him?

14 A With regard to the transition or did I see him perhaps at a going-away party
15 for another colleague or anything else?

16 Q Official work duties, not social.

17 A No, I had no communications with him in that capacity.

18 Q Martin Estrada testified that -- I mentioned this earlier this morning -- there
19 were some SAUSAs from Delaware in the Central District of California, and I believe you 20 weren't able to comment on that. And I just have one follow-up question --

21 A Sure.

22 Q -- on that, and that's whether the name Stephanie Christensen is a name
23 that rings a bell for you?

24 A So --

25 Q She was the Acting U.S. Attorney before Mr. Estrada was sworn in.

1 A The name rings a bell.

2 Q Okay. Did you have any communications with her?

3 A I'm not able to comment on a particular -- I'm not able to comment as it
4 relates to a particular investigation.

5 Q Ordinarily when your office is seeking to partner with a different
6 U.S. Attorney's Office, who's involved in the presentation of the evidence or the making 7 the case that your office should partner with a different office?

8 A I think it would vary. You know, it -- depending on the jurisdiction.
9 Sometimes there's personal relationships already between AUSAs and districts, so there 10 might be a direct reach-out.

11 I think on sort of a cold call, the most typical way in which I would expect it to 12 happen would be criminal chief to criminal chief, who then might say, you know, okay,
13 let's have our line folks connect and talk and discuss with -- yeah.

14 Q Were there any special considerations for this case, since it was the son of 15 the President, in terms of liaising with the different offices?

16 A I'm not authorized to discuss that.

17 Q And by different offices, I mean the U.S. Attorney's Office for D.C. and the 18 U.S. Attorney's Office for the Central District of California.

19 A Again, I'm not authorized to answer that.

20 Q Seems like in testimony from both Mr. Graves and Mr. Estrada, neither one 21 wanted a piece of this case. Was that your sense too?

22 A Again, I'm not authorized to answer that.

23 Ms. Kramer. Can we get a time check, please?

24 Mr. Castor. Fifty-eight minutes.

25 Ms. Kramer. 120 seconds left.

1 Mr. Castor. Okay. Would you like to stop here?

2 Ms. Kramer. It's up to you. Just asking for the time check. Carry on.

3 Mr. Castor. We can stop here. I'm ready to head into a different topic, so --

4 Ms. Kramer. Okay. All right.

5 Mr. Castor. Off the record.

6 [Recess.]

7 Mr. Castor. We're back on the record. It's 1:57.

8 Ms. Kramer. Mr. Castro, before you begin with your questions again, can I make 9 one very small clarification? It's kind of like a reclarification if you will.

10 Mr. Castor. Sure.

11 Ms. Kramer. Thank you very much for the opportunity to do that.

12 So earlier today when we went back on the record, I think we previously clarified
13 when Ms. Wolf was being asked questions about whether or not she served as a SAUSA in 14 other districts. I just want to make clear that all of her testimony here today is, she's 15 providing it, you know, truthfully obviously but to the best of her recollection. And just 16 wanted to be clear that the prior testimony, I believe, was that Ms. Wolf said that she had 17 not, again to the best of her recollection, served as a SAUSA in any other district 18 post-2018.

19 Just want to clear up that it is to the best of her recollection. Oftentimes, I think 20 she had testified the process of becoming a SAUSA can be something that involves 21 paperwork. I think there's usually a swearing-in.

22 But to the extent she testified about, you know, in an absolute way that she was 23 never a SAUSA post-2018, to the extent there's information out there that shows
24 otherwise, she is testifying to the best of her recollection.

25 Is that clear? I just want to --

1 Mr. Castor. Of course.

2 Ms. Kramer. -- make sure --

3 Mr. Castor. Yes.

4 Ms. Kramer. -- it's very important to her to be very clear in the testimony so that 5 nothing is twisted or turned and, you know, distorted at a later time. Is that --

6 Ms. Nabity. That's fair.

7 Ms. Kramer. Okay.

8 Mr. Castor. I appreciate that.

9 Ms. Kramer. Of course. Thank you for allowing us the opportunity to do that.

10 Mr. Castor. And if after your testimony is complete and you depart and review
11 the transcript, there's things that you want to advise us of, that's fine as well.

12 Ms. Kramer. Great. Thank you.

13 Mr. Castor. Nobody's trying to catch a witness in a ticky-tacky slip-up here.

14 Ms. Kramer. Sure.

15 Mr. Castor. We have a job to do to try to get as much information about the 16 core facts here, and so to the extent you need to supplement, we are happy to have you 17 do that.

18 Ms. Kramer. Thank you. We appreciate it.

19 BY MR. CASTOR:

20 Q I'm going to turn your attention to interactions that you had with Chris Clark, 21 lawyer for Hunter Biden. Was he the only defense lawyer that you dealt with or were 22 there other lawyers on the Hunter Biden team?

23 A I'm not authorized to discuss interactions with defense counsel.

24 Q At one point there was an allegation, I think made by Chris Clark, that there 25 were leaks to the news media. Is that something you can confirm?

1 He expressed concern about leaks. So he was, in essence, complaining about 2 leaks. Is that something you can confirm?

3 A Sorry. Just to be clear, you're not asking me to confirm that there was or 4 was not a leak but that Mr. Clark complained about a leak --

5 Q Yes.

6 A -- to us. Yeah, I'm not authorized to discuss communications with defense
7 counsel.

8 Q Okay. Subsequently, after the plea deal went south in July, somebody from 9 the Hunter Biden defense counsel camp, like, dumped all their documents to The New 10 York Times and Politico. Are you familiar with that?

11 A I am aware that there were documents that were provided to The New York
12 Times and Politico because I saw the articles.

13 Q Right.

14 A But I'm not -- I'm not aware of who dumped them.

15 Q Do you find that to be a little ironic that the gentleman who was complaining 16 about leaks and, you know, wanted them investigated and so forth was then supplying 17 The New York Times and Politico with like hundreds of -- I think it's like 300 pages of 18 material?

19 A So, again, I'm not authorized to -- whether or not, in fact, Mr. Clark had ever 20 made such a complaint, so I'm not going to be able to answer that question.

21 Q Okay. But you would agree, if that was the case, that would be certainly 22 ironic or rich?

23 A I'm not going to comment on that.

24 Q Okay. On the plea deal -- and we can make it a exhibit if we need to, but 25 on the plea deal and diversion agreement from July --

1 Ms. Kramer. Can you make -- if Ms. Wolf is going to be asked questions about a
2 document, we would ask that you mark it.

3 Mr. Castor. We absolutely can.

4 Ms. Kramer. Thank you. I appreciate it.

5 Mr. Castor. We'll make the next exhibit No. 13, the plea agreement, and we'll 6 make exhibit 14, the diversion agreement.

7 Ms. Wolf. Thank you.

8 [Wolf Exhibit Nos. 13 and 14.
9 were marked for identification.]

10 BY MR. CASTOR:

11 Q There was some email traffic that was made public that the U.S. Attorney's 12 Office in Delaware suggested to the defense attorney that they put together a draft of the 13 plea agreement. Is that customary?

14 A I'm not -- so -- sorry. You're asking -- you're asking about a specific related 15 to a particular investigation that I'm not authorized to comment on --

16 Q Okay.

17 A -- so --

18 Q In your experience, is it customary to have defense counsel take the first 19 crack at a potential plea agreement, in terms of drafting?

20 A I don't -- in sort of a mine-run, you know, basic case, more typically a plea 21 agreement would go out as a proposed plea agreement from the government.

22 Q Okay.

23 A When it's a longer investigation, when there are particular things that matter
24 to both parties or otherwise, I don't think that it's -- it's extraordinary that in any 25 particular case an agreement, whether it be a plea agreement or an NPA or a DPA, or

1 whatever it ends up being, would be drafted in the first instance by another party.

2 Q As a general matter, do you think it gives an advantage to a defense attorney
3 if they get to take the first crack at a draft of a plea agreement?

4 A As a general matter, I don't think it's an advantage or disadvantage one way.
5 If both parties are doing their job and doing what they're supposed to do, they're paying
6 attention to the things that matter to them and attempting to make sure they're included
7 in any agreement.

8 Q Okay. The plea agreement from the government side was signed by Leo
9 Wise, Derek Hines, and Benjamin Wallace. Those are three names that, you know, do
10 not come up in the materials that -- that's on page 6 of the plea agreement. They're 11 three lawyers that don't come up in the voluminous, you know, information and 12 testimony, both documentary and testimonial evidence that the whistleblowers provided.

13 Can you help us understand why the prosecution team was swapped out?

14 A I think I already indicated I'm not authorized to discuss staffing matters
15 associated with the investigation.

16 Q If you look at the exhibit 1 attached to the plea agreement --

17 A Yes.

18 Q -- do you know who drafted this?

19 A I'm not authorized to discuss who drafted documents in connection with the 20 matter.

21 Q And I guess you can't help us understand the decisionmaking behind all the 22 information that's included in exhibit 1?

23 A That's correct. I think that would be core deliberative process, and I'm 24 not authorized --

25 Q Okay.

1 A -- to speak to --

2 Q But you can state that this is a document that the government -- the 3 government should be drafting, correct --

4 A I'm not going to answer --

5 Q -- from an ordinary standpoint?

6 A -- as to any particular case, nor -- nor is there sort of a should or shouldn't as 7 a general matter or rule associated with this.

8 Q The diversion agreement, which is the next exhibit, it's the diversion
9 agreement for the gun charge. Is that correct?

10 A That's what the agreement says.

11 Q Is it customary to have -- you know, if there's a diversion agreement for a 12 gun charge, is it customary to bring in a statement of facts that encompasses a long list of 13 other factual matters that have no involvement to the gun charge?

14 Ms. Kramer. Objection to form. I --

15 Ms. Wolf. Yeah, I'm not -- I -- I -- sorry.

16 Ms. Kramer. No. That's -- it's compound. It's vague. Can you break that 17 down into clearer questions, please?

18 BY MR. CASTOR:

19 Q The diversion agreement relates to the gun charge, but it involves, you 20 know, a statement of facts that exceeds simply the gun charge. Is that customary?

21 A So, again, without discussing the particulars of any particular matter or 22 document, I think when it comes to diversion agreements, it's difficult to talk about what 23 is or isn't customary, so I'm hesitant to do so. But there is an element in a diversion 24 agreement that is always tailored to the specifics of any case. So the decisions made in 25 connection with any particular case are going to relate to what's going on and what's

1 attempting to be accomplished, and the reasons for the diversion agreement, et cetera,
2 et cetera, et cetera, which can't really be talked about or thought about in a vacuum.

3 Q Are diversion agreements usually seen or presented to a judge?

4 A It varies.

5 Q Okay.

6 A And they can proceed in either way.

7 Q Are they usually involved in the enforcement of the alleged breach of the 8 diversion agreement?

9 Ms. Kramer. Who's they?

10 Mr. Castor. The judge.

11 Ms. Kramer. If you know.

12 Ms. Wolf. I think that that's sort of a -- so to the extent there is a breach of a 13 diversion agreement and charges are filed, yes, then a judge is typically involved in -- well,
14 definitely involved in a case. With regard to the role in -- that I think is what you're 15 getting to that relates to this particular diversion agreement, it says I am not authorized 16 to discuss that.

17 BY MR. CASTOR:

18 Q Okay. I'd like to refer you to paragraph 14 of the diversion agreement. It
19 begins, "If the United States believes that a knowing material breach of this agreement
20 has occurred, it may seek a determination by the United States district judge for the 21 District of Delaware with responsibility for the supervision of the agreement."

22 Have you ever had a case before that had a similar provision in it?

23 A Again, I'm not going to comment on this particular document. As a general
24 matter, there are, for example, supervised release violations in the Federal system. So if 25 you -- or once you come out of jail, you're often sentenced to a term of supervised

1 release. The probation office will at times bring a petition to determine if someone is in 2 violation of supervised release.

3 Sometimes those violations are admitted before the court, and other times a
4 court, in fact, makes a factual finding in the first instance as to whether or not. So 5 it -- that, as a general matter, is a type of provision that's sort of seen, but without 6 commenting on the specifics of this agreement, I'm not able to get into that here.

7 Q It seems like the plea agreement came together pretty quickly after the 8 whistleblowers came forward. Is there anything you can help us with that?

9 A I'm not authorized to discuss that, but I would go back to my opening 10 statement and harken back to the idea that at no time did politics play a role in the 11 decisions that were made in any matter I handled at the Department of Justice.

12 Q Okay. And were you handling the matter at this time?

13 A I'm not authorized to discuss staffing.

14 Q Okay. I'm going to mark the next exhibit. Number 15 is the December 15 7th indictment in the Central District of California.

16 [Wolf Exhibit No. 15.

17 was marked for identification.]

18 BY MR. CASTOR:

19 Q It's a public document. Have you had an occasion to read this document or 20 seen it before?

21 A So I looked sort of very generally at the document and -- but did not read it.
22 I think I sort of flipped through to see what counts were included and otherwise, but I did 23 not read the document.

24 Q Okay. Is there anything new in the document since you had left the case?

25 A I'm not authorized to discuss an indictment in a pending matter.

1 Q And if I understand correctly, you can't tell us when you stopped working on 2 the case? We understand you left the Department at the end of November.

3 A I'm not authorized to discuss that.

4 Q Did you have an awareness that the investigative team from the IRS side of 5 things, Mr. Shapley and Mr. Ziegler, were removed from the case?

6 A I'm not authorized to discuss that.

7 Q Did you know that there was a period of time between when they were 8 removed from the case and when they found out they were removed from the case?
9 And that period of time was -- was a long period. You know, it was several months.

10 A Again, I'm not authorized to discuss that.

11 Q Okay. There was a meeting that Mr. Shapley characterized as his red-line
12 meeting with the prosecution team on October 7th, 2022. And I understand you 13 were -- you were not a part of that meeting. Do you know which meeting I'm referring 14 to?

15 A Through Mr. Shapley's testimony I'm aware of what meeting you're 16 discussing.

17 Q Okay. And I'm just curious why you weren't at that meeting. The 18 attendees seemed like all the -- all the key players except you.

19 A I'm not authorized to discuss that.

20 Q Okay. Did you get any readouts from that meeting in real time?

21 A I'm not authorized to discuss that.

22 Q Okay. The October 7th meeting is one of the topics DOJ has authorized 23 witnesses to testify to, so --

24 A It was not included. Again, I don't believe it was within the scope of my 25 authorization.

1 Q Okay. So --

2 A Yeah. Okay. So I am not included in that authorization. If you look at 3 page 4 of the authorization letter, it notes that others have been authorized to provide 4 515, but as an -- I am -- Tax Division's been provided by appropriate supervisory officials
5 with knowledge, and then it says, your client, me, is not an appropriate witness, as a 6 longstanding matter of Department policy.

7 Ms. Kramer. So for clarification of the record, Ms. Wolf's answer was indeed
8 correct, she is not authorized pursuant to the letter provided by the Department which 9 we also provided to you.

10 Ms. Wolf. Sorry. It's hard to be a witness and not a lawyer.

11 BY MR. CASTOR:

12 Q On a politically sensitive investigation, what policies does DOJ have that 13 prevent political motivations from seeping into them on the part of their employees?

14 A As a general matter?

15 Q Yeah.

16 A So I think very basically on the most fundamental level, there are the 17 Principles of Federal Prosecution, which explicitly in one section -- and it wasn't one of 18 the ones we discussed today -- says, you know, there's no place for politics and that can't 19 be the basis for pursuing any investigation. In other matters, it is things along the lines
20 of requiring high-level approvals, as I indicated, for example, in the February 5th Barr
21 memo, for opening of certain investigations. I believe more recently there was guidance 22 that was pushed out related to opening investigations into Members of Congress and 23 staffers.

24 There is other guidance, again, that relates to election-year sensitivities, which 25 vests and relates not only to actual influence and bias, but, again, the appearance

1 thereof, that that's articulated in the February -- or not the February, but in the May Barr
2 memo and then sort of reiterated over the course of the summer. There was 3 subsequent guidance in the summer of 2020 from the head of the public integrity section,
4 again, just reminding everybody of those obligations.

5 Q Okay.

6 A There may be other provisions, but those are of which I'm chiefly and 7 principally aware.

8 Q Was the Hunter Biden investigation deemed a politically sensitive
9 investigation?

10 A I'm not at liberty to discuss any particular investigation and any designations
11 that might apply to one.

12 Q Were there any special precautions taken with the Biden investigation given 13 that his father was the President and he's from Delaware?

14 Ms. Kramer. Asked and answered many, many times.

15 Go ahead.

16 Ms. Wolf. I would just say, again, without commenting on the particulars of any 17 investigation, all appropriate policies and procedures and professional responsibility
18 obligations were followed in the case.

19 Mr. Castor. Somebody like Alexander Mackler who worked for Joe Biden, would 20 he be permitted under the Department's guidelines to work on a case against Joe Biden's 21 son? Just as a theoretical standpoint.

22 Ms. Wolf. I'm sort of uncomfortable with the hypothetical -- the specific 23 hypothetical because I think it does relate to a particular investigation.

24 As a more general matter, though, I think all attorneys have separate -- whether 25 they're with the Department or otherwise, have ethical obligations associated with

1 conflicts of interest, and some of those run to apparent conflicts of interest versus actual 2 conflicts of interest. And without -- I don't know the sort of ins and outs of them, but 3 those certainly, people's ethical obligations and ethical rules, and professional 4 responsibility obligations associated with the State that they're in, all of which would be 5 in play.

6 You don't sort of lose or suspend those requirements simply because you work for 7 the Department of Justice, and there are various organizations within the Department,
8 both the general counsel for Executive Office of AUSA, deals with ethics information, and 9 then there's a professional responsibility advisory office who is available in certain 10 instances to provide guidance along those lines.

11 Mr. Castor. As a practical matter, though, wouldn't need too much guidance to 12 figure out that Mr. Mackler couldn't work on a case relating to his former boss, right?

13 Ms. Kramer. Objection to form. Also --

14 Ms. Wolf. Again, I'm unable to answer or agree or disagree with your statement 15 as it relates to a particular person or investigation.

16 Mr. Castor. Okay. If a special agent assigned to an investigation, whether it be 17 an IRS supervisory special agent, or criminal investigator, or FBI agent, had concerns with 18 the objectivity of the Justice Department, what is the appropriate path for that agent to 19 communicate his concerns -- his or her concerns?

20 Ms. Kramer. If you know.

21 Ms. Wolf. Yeah. So as a formal matter, I presume -- and again, I don't know
22 the ins and outs, but I assume, as in most jobs and places, there are sort of official kind of 23 whistleblower-type challenges -- or not challenges but pathways available to people and 24 that they would be able to avail themselves of those.

25 There is also the sort of old school, you know, as a general matter, like,

1 conversations between people or at lower level without formalizing complaints or 2 allegations that there are opportunities for, but whatever path people choose, there are 3 mechanisms in place.

4 I am -- while I'm not sure exactly what they are, I'm a hundred percent there are 5 mechanisms in place for people to raise them.

6 BY MR. CASTOR:

7 Q Were you aware of Shapley and Ziegler's concerns before they came to 8 Congress?

9 A I'm not authorized to discuss the particulars of that matter.

10 Q Okay. Were you surprised that they felt the need to come to Congress?

11 A Again, I'm not authorized to discuss that.

12 Q There was reportedly a meeting in August of 2022 with Chris Clark where he 13 suggested to the prosecutors that moving forward on the Hunter Biden case would be 14 career suicide. Is that something you remember?

15 A I'm not authorized to discuss what I remember in connection to this
16 particular investigation.

17 As a general matter in cases, defense counsel comes in all the time
18 and -- attempting to convince you not to bring charges, and makes comments similar 19 about how challenging the case will be and throws every possible reason why you
20 shouldn't do something. They don't work, at least with this prosecutor, so --

21 Q Did you participate in a January meeting, this January, with Stuart Goldberg, 22 U.S. Attorney Weiss, and Chris Clark?

23 A I'm not authorized to discuss participation in any particular meeting.

24 Q During this meeting, it's reported that Clark advised Weiss that his legacy
25 would be defined how he handled the Hunter Biden case.

1 A I'm not authorized to comment on that.

2 Q Have you been contacted by any inspectors' general office about
3 participating in any sort of matter related to this?

4 A I'm not authorized to speak to underlying matters.

5 Q If you were contacted by an inspector general, would you be able to 6 cooperate, or how would that work now that you've left the Department?

7 A I'm -- I'm not sure.

8 Q Okay.

9 A I would seek guidance as appropriate.

10 Mr. Castor. We can go off the record here.

11 [Discussion off the record.]

12 Mr. Castor. We'll go back on the record.

13 BY MR. CASTOR:

14 Q Did you attend a meeting on or about June 15th, 2022, at Main Justice to 15 discuss this case?

16 A I'm not authorized to discuss that.

17 Q We've been told there were participants from the IRS, Mr. Shapley,
18 Mr. Waldon, the Tax Division, Mr. Daly, Mr. Goldberg, Mr. Morgan, and the FBI. Do you
19 know who from the U.S. Attorney's Office in Delaware were there?

20 A I'm not authorized to discuss that.

21 Q I give you those list of people in case it helps jog your memory, but it sounds
22 like you're not willing to discuss that meeting. Is that correct?

23 A I'm not authorized to discuss it.

24 Q Okay.

25 Mr. Castor. We'll go off the record.

The ‘Ongoing Investigation’ Dodge on Hunter Biden

In the Justice Department’s handling of the case involving the president’s son, all we know for sure is that someone is lying.

Delaware U.S. Attorney David Weiss says he’s willing to answer Congress’s questions about the Hunter Biden case—but not yet. On Monday he again invoked an “ongoing investigation” as a reason for why he won’t do so now. The problem for Mr. Weiss going forward is that there is no “ongoing investigation” exemption for refusing Congress.

His latest comments come in a reply to Sen. Lindsey Graham, ranking member of the Judiciary Committee, who had asked what actions Mr. Weiss had taken in regard to an informant's accusation that Joe Biden had accepted a $5 million bribe from a Ukrainian energy company while he was vice president. Mr. Graham also wanted to know whether Mr. Weiss had sought special counsel status. Mr. Weiss answered that he had neither "requested" nor been "denied the authority to bring charges in any jurisdiction." This contradicts what IRS investigator Gary Shapley testified that Mr. Weiss told six witnesses at an Oct. 7, 2022, meeting.

Remember what this is all about. It began with Republican questions about what exactly Biden family members did in exchange for millions apparently paid to them by overseas companies. Then we learned about the alleged bribe. Each bit of new information only raised more serious questions.

Notwithstanding the partisan sniping and media catcalls, Congress has done a decent job of unearthing specific information that the Justice Department and FBI didn't want public. Their stonewalling now presents the ultimate oversight issue: Did the FBI and Justice properly investigate? Or did the Biden name prevent that?

Attorney General Merrick Garland insists Mr. Weiss was free to bring whatever charges he wanted anywhere he wanted to bring them. Mr. Weiss's public statements back that up.

But Mr. Shapley testified that Mr. Weiss stated, in the presence of six witnesses, "I'm not the deciding official on whether charges are filed." He further said Mr. Weiss "shocked us" with the news that "the Biden-appointed D.C. U.S. Attorney Matthew Graves would not allow him to charge in his district." Finally, Mr. Shapley testified that Mr. Weiss had admitted he'd "subsequently asked for special counsel authority from Main DOJ at that time and was denied that authority."

Mr. Garland insists there was no interference and Mr. Weiss was free to bring charges in any district he saw fit.

All we know is that someone is lying. The Republican House committees rightly want Mr. Weiss to come in and clear it all up.

Alas, Mr. Weiss isn't cooperating. And too many are letting him off with his "ongoing investigation" excuse.

"The executive branch response of 'ongoing investigation' is really a political objection, rather than a legal one," says Andrew McCarthy, a former assistant U.S. attorney. "There is no 'ongoing investigation' privilege."

The "ongoing investigation" dodge is particularly troublesome here, because the issue now is the integrity of Justice and the FBI. The suspicion isn't that Mr. Weiss is protecting his case. It's that he's trying to shield the investigators and prosecutors from accountability for what they did and did not do.

It's true there are prudential reasons why prosecutors and investigators don't discuss ongoing cases—mostly for fear of jeopardizing them. But legitimate concerns can be accommodated, such as by holding a closed-door hearing.

Much of the information Congress has already unearthed, moreover, should be relatively easy to confirm or refute. On Sunday, Iowa Sen. Chuck Grassley released his own letter with six questions for Mr. Weiss to answer. They range from whether he's still investigating the bribery allegations against President Biden to why IRS agents were shut out of a key Justice and FBI briefing in 2020.

That's oversight. It's maddeningly slow. Right now the House committees are trying to squeeze information from federal authorities. They are also beginning to depose the people involved under oath, such as those named by Mr. Shapley. Then come subpoenas, maybe even for Mr. Weiss and Hunter Biden.

That won't be until they've got enough of those involved on the record to have a fair idea of what's left to ask. In the past, Congress might have deferred to concerns about an ongoing investigation. But the FBI and Justice have lost the credibility that made that possible. They themselves are the issue now, and Congress has a duty to get answers.

The process isn't perfect, but it beats dumping everything on another special counsel. Former Attorney General William Barr told Fox News last month that the Justice Department's indictment of Donald Trump (which he says was justified) "really demands that the department assure everybody that the investigations into the Bidens was thorough and that the final decisions reached were reasonable.” They should accordingly view Mr. Comer’s committee as “a good opportunity to do that.” It’s in Mr. Garland’s and Mr. Wray’s interest to cooperate with Congress fully.

But only if they have nothing to hide.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR COMPLETING CIVIL COVER SHEET JS-44
Authority for Civil Cover Sheet

The JS-44 civil cover sheet and the information contained herein neither replaces nor supplements the filings and services of pleadings or other papers as required by law, except as provided by local rules of court. This form, approved by the Judicial Conference of the United States in September 1974, is required for the use of the Clerk of Court for the purpose of initiating the civil docket sheet. Consequently, a civil cover sheet is submitted to the Clerk of Court for each civil complaint filed. Listed below are tips for completing the civil coversheet. These tips coincide with the Roman Numerals on the cover sheet.

- I. COUNTY OF RESIDENCE OF FIRST LISTED PLAINTIFF/DEFENDANT (b) County of residence: Use 11001 to indicate plaintiff if resident of Washington, DC, 88888 if plaintiff is resident of United States but not Washington, DC, and 99999 if plaintiff is outside the United States.
- III. CITIZENSHIP OF PRINCIPAL PARTIES: This section is completed only if diversity of citizenship was selected as the Basis of Jurisdiction under Section II.
- IV. CASE ASSIGNMENT AND NATURE OF SUIT: The assignment of a judge to your case will depend on the category you select that best represents the primary cause of action found in your complaint. You may select only one category. You must also select one corresponding nature of suit found under the category of the case.
- VI. CAUSE OF ACTION: Cite the U.S. Civil Statute under which you are filing and write a brief statement of the primary cause.
- VIII. RELATED CASE(S), IF ANY: If you indicated that there is a related case, you must complete a related case form, which may be obtained from the Clerk's Office.

Because of the need for accurate and complete information, you should ensure the accuracy of the information provided prior to signing the form.
